Blue-Bottle Flies.—Three blue-bottle flies, says Linnæus, will devour a horse as soon as a lion could do it. The statement is no doubt somewhat of an exaggeration, but it is not so far over the mark as it may be supposed to be. One fly, it has been stated, will produce 20,000 eggs, and no sooner are the maggots hatched from them than they set to work with such vigor that in twenty-four hours they will increase in weight 200 times. In about three weeks every one of them may have become a perfect fly, half of them, perhaps, females, each capable of depositing another 20,000 eggs in any dead rat or "high" leg of mutton that threatens to breed pestilence in the air.

A Clock Made of Bread.—Milan has a curiosity in a clock which is made entirely of bread. The maker is a Peruvian, a native of India, and he has devoted three years of his time to the construction of this curiosity. He was very poor, and, being without means to purchase the necessary metal, deprived himself regularly of his daily bread, which he devoted to the construction of this curiosity, eating the crust and saving the soft part for doing his work. He made use of certain salt to solidify his material, and when the various pieces were dry they were perfectly hard and insoluble to water. The clock is of respectable size, and goes well. The case, which is also of hardened bread, displays great talent in design and execution.

The Working Hours of Life.—Suppose a man throw away in every year fifty-two days for Sundays, thirteen days for illness, vacations and interruptions; and suppose that for forty-five consecutive years he works 300 days a year—a very large average—that would give a man, in the mature part of life 13,500 days. If you please, there isn't any doubt about that. Supposing that a man have health and industry enough to work ten hours in each of these 13,500 days, he will have 135,000 mature working hours. A man who is 40, however, has but 90,000 hours left, a man who is 60 has so few hours left that I don't want to shock you by mentioning their number. At the end of 135,000 hours the mature working portion of a life is ended and there is no doubt about this proposition. Positively the pulpit knows something on this point. Time moves in a straight line, never in a circle. We say Tuesday comes back to Tuesday, Wednesday to Wednesday, January to January. The name comes back to the name, but not the thing to the thing. In no circle does time move, but in a straight line, an eagle's flight, forth and right on. The trees stay, but the leaves fall; and you and I are leaves, not trees.

One Experience from Many.

"I had been sick and miserable so long and had caused my husband so much trouble and expense, no one seemed to know what ailed me, that I was completely disheartened and discouraged. In this frame of mind I got a bottle of Hop Bitters and used them unknown to my family. I soon began to improve and gained so fast that my husband and family thought it strange and unnatural, but when I told them what had helped me, they said 'Hurrah for Hop Bitters! long may they prosper, for they have made mother well and us happy.'"—The Mother.—Home Journal.

Slightly Prevaricating.

Old Barty Willard was a wheelwright by trade, and, though an excellent workman, was remarkable for his habit of procrastinating. He would promise, and then break his engagement over and over again, with as little scruple and as many "positively lasts" as a theatrical star. Having pledged his word to a very urgent customer, for the third time, he would have his cart done by a certain day, Barty again failed to keep his engagement, and, on the arrival of the owner, the cart was still unfinished.

"Well," says the customer, "you have got my cart done by this time, of course!"

"Yes," said Barty, "I had done the work, and supposed it was quite ready for you, when I discovered that I had made a mistake, a very unaccountable mistake—that will put me back a fortnight."

"Ah, indeed!" said the customer, "what's the trouble?"

"Why, you see," said Barty, with great gravity, and an air of extreme vexation, "you see I have made a mistake—I never made such a blunder before in my life—I have committed the ridiculous mistake of making both wheels for the same side; they are both off-wheels!"

"Is it possible?" said the customer, who was thoroughly mystified, and allowed Barty another fortnight to finish the cart.

Sensible Advice.

Don't judge a man by the clothes he wears, for God made one and the tailor the other. Don't judge him by his family connection, for Cain belonged to a very proud family. Don't judge him by his speech, for the parrot talks, and the tongue is but an instrument of sound. Don't judge a man by the house he lives in, for the lizards and rats often inhabit the grandest structures. Don't judge him for his activity in church, for that is not infrequently inspired by hypocritical and selfish motives. Don't judge him by his love of display, for the long-eared beast is the humblest of animals, but when aroused is terrible to behold. Don't take it for granted that because he carries the contribution box he is liberal; he often pays the Lord in that way and keeps the currency.

Feeble Ladies.

Those languid, tiresome sensations, causing you to feel scarcely able to be on your feet; that constant drain that is taking from your system all its elasticity; that continual strain upon your vital forces, rendering you irritable and fretful, can easily be removed by the use of that marvelous remedy, Hop Bitters. Irregularities and obstructions of your system are relieved at once, while the special cause of periodical pain is permanently removed. Will you heed this?—Cincinnati Saturday Night.

The Legal Meaning of Some Common Words.

"To resort" means to go once or more. In State against Ah' Sam, the Nevada Supreme Court, under a statute forbidding any one "to resort" to any place to smoke opium, said: "The appellant also contends that the District Judge erred in instructing the jury to the effect that going once to a place kept for opium-smoking for the purpose of smoking is an infraction of the law. What the statute forbids all persons to do is to 'resort' to such places, and it is argued that resort means not to go merely once, but to go and go again; in other words, to make a practice of going. The etymology of the word 'resort' lends some support to this argument, but the definitions given in the lexicons show that whatever may have been its original meaning it no longer means anything more in the connection in which it is employed in the statute than to go once."

"Eggs" are not "meat" nor "poultry" within a statute prohibiting the sale of such articles when unsound. Boring through a floor with an auger constitutes burglary, say the Alabama Supreme Court, in Walker against State. This was where the prisoner bored a hole through the floor of a corn-crib, stopped it up with a cob, and afterward, on a separate occasion, drew the shelled corn through the hole into a sack underneath the crib. "Brass knucks" is used in the statute as the name of a weapon, without reference to the metal of which it is made. Therefore a conviction of unlawfully carrying "brass knucks" will not be set aside because it is proved that the weapon was lead or pewter. "Terms cash" is not equivalent to "received payment." "Terms cash" on an unreceipted bill of goods sent by a wholesale to a retail dealer cannot be held as a matter of law to imply that the goods were paid for before they were shipped.

A farm overseer is not a "laborer," within the Lien law. Notes, bills, etc., representing money loaned on interest by a corporation, are "property" liable to taxation. A railroad depot is a "warehouse," within the statute of burglary.

A supervising architect is a person performing "labor," although not a "laborer," within the meaning of the Mechanics' Lien law. A widow keeping a boarding-house, with a female friend residing with her, and female servants beside the boarders, is the "head of a family." But a single man, who keeps house and has no other persons living with him than servants and employes, is not the "head of a family" or a "householder." And an unmarried man, who does not keep house, but supports his mother and his unmarried sister in another town, is not the "head of a family."—Albany Law Journal.

JUST SO.

[From the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.]

It pays to follow good advice. Mr. C. W. Braun, in Eureka Springs, Ark., sends the following item: I had been a sufferer with Dyspepsia for the past three years. Advised by a friend, I used Hamburg Drops. At once, after the first dose, I experienced relief. I continued its use for one month and found myself completely cured. There are so many suffering with indigestion that my advice to such would be: Do as I have done—take the Hamburg Drops and get cured.

Free and Easy Manners.

When girls assume a swaggering manner upon the street, use coarse expressions, and greet each other with a rough "hello!" they cannot expect much deference from their male friends. A lady's manner always controls that of a gentleman; and if she does not respect herself he will not respect her. When boys and girls, young men and maidens, are allowed to fall into the absurdities of low, foolish, meaningless talk, it seems to dwarf them intellectually; they can find nothing of interest or importance to say, and therefore make up for sense by filling every sentence with needless exclamations, exaggerations, or misused adjectives. It requires much patience to be compelled to listen to half a dozen folks and hear the strange, inappropriate use of language. They will assure each other that it is "awful" warm, or the concert "awful" nice; the sermon "horrid" dull; a young lady is "awful pretty," but her dress "horrid ugly;" the teacher "horrid strict;" such a young gentleman who called had an "awful swell" team of fast horses. If young people could hear themselves as others hear them, it might result in their reformation.

The Omaha Weekly Bee.

Over fifteen thousand dollars in premiums given to the subscribers of the Omaha Weekly Bee. These premiums include one forty-acre farm; over $4,000 in farm machinery and implements; $3,000 worth of household goods, musical instruments and sewing machines; $7,000 worth of watches, silverware, books, &c. The Weekly Bee is the best paper west of the Mississippi; contains more for Western news, including the Rocky mountain Territories and Pacific slope, than any other paper in America. Sample copies, with full premium list, mailed free to any applicant. Address Daily Bee, Omaha, Neb.

A short time ago the postal authorities at Vienna were startled by the receipt of a letter addressed to her Royal and Imperial Highness Maria Theresa, who died in 1780. The letter might have been written by Rip Van Winkle, and was 100 years too late. It was returned to the sender, marked "dead."

The human voice in its sweetness and purity is deliciously musical; with throat affections and coughs it loses all attractions. Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup restores it when failing through coughs, colds, etc.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR.

Dr. Sauptleben claimed the following prescription as an antidote for carbolic acid: Dilute sulphuric acid, 10 grammes; muc. of gum arabic, 200 grammes; simple syrup, 30 grammes; mix. Give a table-spoonful every hour.

Ointment for Chapped Hands.—Melt one ounce of spermaceti and one-half drachm of white wax in one ounce of oil of sweet almonds, then add one-half ounce of pure glycerine and stir until cold. Scent, if you please, with whatever perfume liked. This is excellent for chapped hands or lips. For the hands apply at night, and draw on a pair of old kids to prevent soiling bed-clothing.

Coffee and Eggs for Sick Persons.—A sick person, wanting nourishment and having lost appetite, can often be sustained on the following, when nothing else can be taken: Make a strong cup of coffee, adding boiling milk as usual, only sweetening rather more; take an egg, beat the yolk and white together thoroughly; boil the coffee, milk and sugar together, and pour it over the beaten egg in the cup you are going to serve it in. This simple recipe is used frequently in hospital practice.

Prof. O. S. Fowler, the great phrenologist, states that bile in the stomach is dissoluble in water just as hot as it can be swallowed. A pint of hot water sipped slowly, say for three-quarters to an hour and a half, after which the patient is to go to bed and cover up warm, will cure biliousness; repeat a few times if necessary. The bilious fever and chills are cured in this way, by the addition of a cloth dipped in hot water and laid on the stomach; the patient to get into bed, cover up well, and stay there.

Many people suffer from chronic indigestion, from the mere fact that, having first and foremost produced the dyspepsia by overloading the stomach, or by other errors in diet, they give it no rest; they keep on worrying it to get well; the very medicines they keep pouring into it keep up the irritation in probably five cases out of ten. In these cases I am convinced that two or three hours' complete rest to the stomach every day from both meat and medicine would soon induce a healthy hunger. Those who have this organ in good working order would do well to remember that the time when every particle of food has left the stomach is not the time to put more in. An hour's rest, at least, is needed, and if you give it this before each meal it will be a willing servant, and will never think of suggesting the propriety of a sherry and bitters before you sit down to dinner; and remember, a willing servant makes a glad master, and a good-tempered one to boot.

The Food We Take.—An ordinary meal, says an authority, is generally composed of five ingredients—animal or nitrogenous food, starchy or sweet food, watery vegetables, beverages and condiments. This food, when digested, is taken into the system by the blood vessels. For persons, and especially for workingmen, in this climate, meats are the most easily digested, and at the same time are the most nourishing food. Tripe is the easiest and pork the hardest to digest. Among vegetables rice and boiled cabbage are the extremes. Anything that is fried in fat is extremely indigestible. Milk contains the five ingredients referred to above, so is really "all-sufficient." Mothers make a great mistake in trying to induce infants under two years of age to eat starchy food, for there is no alkaline fluid in the stomach of an infant by means of which the starch can be changed to sugar, and so infused into the system. It has been estimated that a man working in the open air daily needs fifteen ounces of meat, eighteen of bread, three and a half of butter or fat, and fifty-one of water. Tea and coffee are nourishing. An excess of starchy food is to be carefully avoided. Men who handle lead ought to abstain from alcohol, for, if too much is taken the kidneys, which throw off the poison of the lead, are likely to become diseased.

Ages of Presidents.

President Garfield is in his 50th year, and is the third youngest President this republic has ever had. Grant was the youngest President, having lacked one month of 47 years when inaugurated. Franklin Pierce was four days younger than Garfield at the time of his inauguration. Two other Presidents were in their 50th year when inaugurated—James K. Polk and Millard Fillmore. The next youngest was John Tyler, who was over 51 when he succeeded to Harrison's barely-begun term of office. Abraham Lincoln was 52 years old, and Martin Van Buren and R. B. Hayes not quite 55. Andrew Jackson lacked eight months of being [illegible], and George Washington had passed that age when inaugurated. Oddly enough, the four consecutive Presidents Thomas Jefferson, James Madison, James Monroe and John Quincy Adams, were each in their 58th year when inaugurated. Zachary Taylor and Tippecanoe Harrison were 65 and 68 respectively, when they took the oath of office, and neither lived to fill out his term. In point of age James Buchanan came between the two, being in his 66th year when inaugurated. The average age of Presidents when inaugurated has been 57 years.

[From the Lawrenceburgh (Ind.) Register.]

Our compliments to St. Jacob; we have tried the celebrated St. Jacobs Oil on our rheumatic foot and experienced great relief therefrom. The Saint is a public benefactor.

How an Arab Lady Perfumes Herself.

In the floor of the tent or hut, as it may chance to be, a small hole is excavated sufficiently large to contain a common champaign bottle; a fire of charcoal or of simply glowing embers is made within the hole, into which the woman about to be scented throws a handful of drugs. She then takes off the cloth or "topee" which forms her dress and crouches naked over the fumes, while she arranges her robe to fall as a mantle from her neck to the ground like a tent. She begins to perspire freely in the hot-air bath, and, the pores of the skin being thus opened and moist, the volatile oil from the smoke of the burning perfume is immediately absorbed. By the time the fire has expired the scenting process is completed, and both her person and her robe are redolent with incense.

Gold and silver ore, ranging respectively $728 and $98 to the ton, have been discovered at Whitefield, Me.

The latest thing for ladies' wear is a large cord with tassels attached, which is worn around the waist. It looks nice, but any young man who is really attentive to a girl this winter will have to protect his right wrist with some kind of pad, and even then much of the romance attendant upon clasping the waist of a lovely creature will disappear when your arm comes in contact with something that seems too large for a clothes-line and not large enough for a ship's hawser.

The remedy that will cure the many diseases peculiar to women is Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure.—Mother's Magazine.

A savage black wolf has captured Montgomery county, Pa. He escaped from an exhibitor's cage and took to the woods. He emerges at night and feeds himself on hens, having stolen altogether 250 from one farmer. He has whipped a great number of dogs, notably a most ferocious and powerful bull-dog, which had been confidently set on him. Hunters go out to slay him, but are too nervous to aim well, and he has not been hit.

The Voltaic Belt Co., Marshall, Mich., Will send their Electro-Voltaic Belts to the afflicted upon thirty days' trial. See their advertisement in this paper, headed, "On Thirty Days' Trial."

Malarial fevers can be prevented, also other miasmatic diseases, by occasionally using Dr. Sanford's Liver Invigorator, the oldest general Family Medicine, which is recommended as a cure for all diseases caused by a disordered liver. Eighty-page book sent free. Address Dr. Sanford, 162 Broadway, New York.

Vegetine is nourishing and strengthening, purifies the blood, regulates the bowels, quiets the nervous system, acts directly upon the secretions, and arouses the whole system to action.

No young man will be satisfied until he has had the advantages of H. B. Bryant's Chicago Business College. It is the best capital.

Only the genuine axle grease has the name of Frazer on every package, and wears longer than any other.

Prevent crooked boots and blistered heels by wearing Lyon's Patent Heel Stiffeners.

American Pluck at Heidelberg.

Kremer's Railway Guide says among the sixty or seventy American students at Heidelberg none of them belong to the fighting corps. They are not cowards, either. It is known that if occasion requires they can fight their own way, but they have no desire that their good-looking faces shall be hacked and chopped up like dogs' meat and be disfigured ever after. Not long ago an American student had a slight quarrel with one of the fighting corps and received from him a challenge. Being the challenged party the American had the choice of weapons. He sent word to the German by a friend that he would meet him the next morning at 3 o'clock at a place outside of the city, and the weapons should be navy revolvers (he had a good pair) at ten paces. The German and his friends concluded it would not be a good day for duels, and the matter dropped. A student here was reading me an extract from a letter he had recently received from his father in Kentucky. As near as I can remember, this is the substance of it.

"Dear Bob—I hear that they have sword duels in Heidelberg, and that many of the students engage in them. I do not believe in the barbarous practice of duelling, but there are times when one has to fight or be branded as a coward. You know that our family does not belong to the latter class. Should occasion require, which I trust will not happen, never choose swords—only cowards and Frenchmen use those weapons. Choose pistols or rifles, which mean business. Never show yourself in your native town with a sword scratch on your person. From your affectionate

"Father."

The young man asked me what I thought of that doctrine. I told him I did not believe in either the sword scratch or the hole made by the pistol ball.

Private Dalzell, Mrs. Tilton, and George Francis Train haven't been heard from for some time, and the country is prospering.

D^r BULL'S COUGH SYRUP

$72 a week. $12 a day at home easily made. Costly Outfit free. Address True & Co., Augusta, Me.

PISO'S CURE for Consumption is also the best cough medicine.

BIG WAGES, summer and winter. Samples free. National Copying Co., 300 West Madison st., Chicago.

$777 A YEAR and expenses to Agents. Outfit Free. Address P. O. VICKERY, Augusta, Maine.

YOUNG MEN Learn Telegraphy and earn $40 to $100 a month. Every graduate guaranteed a paying situation. Address VALENTINE BROS., Managers, Janesville, Wis.

PURE TEAS.

ON 30 DAYS' TRIAL.

Address Voltaic Belt Co., Marshall, Mich.

IF YOU ARE SUFFERING From CATARRH

LITERARY REVOLUTION

3 CENTS

5 CENTS

PENSIONS!

New Law. Thousands of Soldiers and heirs entitled. Pensions date back to discharge or death. Time limited. Address, with stamp, GEORGE E. LEMON, P.O. Drawer 325, Washington, D.C.

RED RIVER VALLEY

2,000,000 Acres Wheat Lands

best in the World, for sale by the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba R.R. CO.

For particulars apply to D. A. McKINLAY, Land Commissioner, St. Paul, Minn.

HEALTH THE KEYSTONE TO HAPPINESS

CURES COUGHS, COLDS, BRONCHITIS, CONSUMPTION

RHEUMATISM ABSOLUTELY CURED BY THE USE OF DR. BOSANKO'S RHEUMATIC CURE, THE GREAT ALKALINE REMEDY.

PRICE 75 CENTS.

Address THE DR. BOSANKO MEDICINE CO., PIQUA, O.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. Address Stinson & Co., Portland, Me.

$350 A MONTH! Agents Wanted!

MUSTACHE & WHISKERS

AGENTS WANTED FOR THE Best and Fastest Selling PICTORIAL BOOKS and BIBLES.

Address NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO., Philadelphia, Pa., Chicago, Ill., or St. Louis, Mo.

PETROLEUM VASELINE JELLY.

SAPONIFIER

Is the "Original" Concentrated Lye and Reliable Family Soap Maker.

Penn'a Salt Manufact'ing Co., Phila.

$100 PRESENT!

For a Machine that will Saw as Fast and Easy as this one.

This is the King of Saw Machines. It saws off a 2 foot log in 2 minutes. 30,000 in use. The cheapest machine made, and fully warranted. Circular free. United States Manufacturing Co., Chicago, Ill.

THE GREAT GERMAN REMEDY FOR RHEUMATISM, NEURALGIA, SCIATICA, LUMBAGO, BACKACHE, GOUT, SORENESS OF THE CHEST, SORE THROAT, QUINSY, SWELLINGS AND SPRAINS, FROSTED FEET AND EARS, BURNS AND SCALDS, General Bodily Pains, TOOTH, EAR AND HEADACHE, AND ALL OTHER PAINS AND ACHES.

St. Jacobs Oil

No Preparation on earth equals St. Jacobs Oil as a safe, sure, simple and cheap External Remedy. A trial entails but the comparatively trifling outlay of 50 Cents, and every one suffering with pain can have cheap and positive proof of its claims. DIRECTIONS IN ELEVEN LANGUAGES.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS AND DEALERS IN MEDICINE.

A. VOGELER & CO.

Baltimore, Md., U. S. A.

$66 a week in your own town. Terms and $5 Outfit free. Address H. Hallett & Co., Portland, Me.

OPIUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till Cured. Dr. J. Stephens, Lebanon, Ohio.

YOUNG MAN OR OLD,

AGENTS! AGENTS! AGENTS!

JOSIAH ALLEN'S WIFE HAS "WROTE" A NEW BOOK. THE BEST AND FUNNIEST OF ALL.

"My Wayward Pardner."

AGENTS WANTED in every Town. Don't miss it, but send for Circular at once, and secure territory. Address H. N. HINCKLEY, Chicago, Ill.

Deafness, Ear Diseases, Catarrh.

Dr. C. E. SHOEMAKER, the well-known experienced Aural Surgeon, Author, and Writer on the above Diseases, may be consulted by mail or personally at his office, No. 611 Walnut St., Reading, Pa. His small book sent free. His large and complete work of 375 pages on Deafness, Diseases of the Ear and Tonsils, and Catarrh, and their proper treatment; price $2 by mail.

NOTE.—No one will question Dr. Shoemaker's standing or skill.

NATRONA BI-CARB. SODA

Is the best in the World.

Penn'a Salt Manufact'ing Co., Phila.

$5.00 PER DAY Made Selling Our New PLATFORM FAMILY SCALE.

BOOM FOR AGENTS.

DOMESTIC SCALE CO., Cincinnati, O.

C. GILBERT'S STARCH

CRISTADORO'S

ESTEY ORGAN

J. ESTEY & CO. BRATTLEBORO VT.

DR. MARCHISI'S UTERINE CATHOLICON

O. N. U. No. 49

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS, please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

VIENNA 1873
SANTIAGO 1875
PHILAD 1876
PARIS 1878
PARIS 1867
SWEDEN 1878
MATCHLESS UNRIVALED FRANZ LISZT
HIGHEST AWARDS AT ALL GREAT WORLD'S EXHIBITIONS FOR THIRTEEN YEARS
THE BEST ORGANS

THESE ORGANS ARE CERTAINLY UNRIVALED IN EXCELLENCE, WHILE THE PRICES ARE NOT MUCH HIGHER THAN THOSE OF VERY INFERIOR INSTRUMENTS.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGAN CO.,

154 Tremont St., BOSTON; 46 East 14th St. (Union Square), New York; 149 Wabash Ave., CHICAGO.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, IND., DECEMBER 9, 1880.

CHICAGO has formed a society for the prosecution of dealers in adulterated goods.

THE increase in the total vote of 1880 over that of 1876, as far as heard from, was 778,838.

THE "Solid South" is the name of a newspaper started in Memphis, Tennessee, by Kernan.

THE estate of the late Governor Williams is said amounted to 4,000 acres of land and $25,000 in money.

GEN. GRANT will be accorded a public reception in Washington by the boys in blue next Monday.

NEW YORK SUN: The democratic party has votes enough. What it needes is men who are not knaves and no fools.

A BILL is before the South Carolinia legislature to punish, with death, the slaying of an opponent in a duel.

R. B. HAYES and family will go to Europe in the spring, but will not recieve as much homage from any of the foreign nations as did Grant, unless it be at Cork.

IT is said that General Grant's income has dwindled down to $5,0 a year. Well, what kind of meat does this Caesar feed upon, that he cannot live on that?

JOHN SHERMAN will take some of the strut out of Charley Foster before the Ohio senatorial fight is over. A man whose coat-tail drags on the snow, when the latter is six inches deep, is never as large as he feels.—Burlington Hawkeye.

VERMONT has passed the most stringent liquor law ever known in the state. The bill makes any place of resort where liquor is sold or given away, or where gambling is allowed, a nuisance, and the place is shut up, the keeper is fined from $20 to $200, and imprisoned for three months.

A PETITION is being numerously signed here and at Elkhart for the appointment of Hon. H. D. Wilson to the circuit Judgeship which will soon be vacated by Judge Woods. As Governer Gray will have the appointment, a democrat will undoubtedly be Judge Wood's successor, and we know of no lawyer in the counties who would fill the place with more honor, dignity and ability than Mr. Wilson. His application is signed by both democrats and republicans.—Goshen Times.

THE house ordered Tuesday the reprinting of the refunding bill, interstate commerce bill and the joint resolution (originally introduced by Mr. Pond) proposing an amendment to the constitution providing that the president shall, from the 4th of March, 1885, hold his term of office for six years, and shall be ineligible to office more than one term consecutively, and that representatives in congress shall serve for a term of three years.

DURING the month of November the coinage executed by the United States mints was as follows: Double eagles—pieces, 32,000; value, $640,000. Eagles—pieces, 198,880; value, $1,988,800. Half-eagles—pieces, 387,280; value $1,936,400. Quarter-eagles, 2,960; $7,400. Dollars, 1,600; $1,600; total gold—pieces, 622,720; value, $4,574,200. Silver dollars—pieces; 2,300,000; value, $2,300,000. Five cents—pieces, 200; value, $10. Three cents—pieces, 200; value, $6. Cents—pieces, 6,-[illegible]00; value, $63,002. Total base—pieces 6,200,000; value, $62,018.

THERE were in the United States, according to the final count, 4,436,000 democrats who cast their votes for Hancock and English, against 4,439,-714 republicans who cast their votes for Garfield and Arthur; and yet there not a few fool republicans who talk as if the republican party is overwhelmingly in the majority, and that hereafter democrats will have little influence in political affairs. The fact is, the republicans have not a majority of the popular vote. As is stated, Garfield received 4,439,-714 votes, Hancock 4,436,000 votes and Weaver, 304,852 votes. Hancock and Weaver 4,740,912—311,198 more than Garfield. Such figures ought to make the republicans less boastful.

HON. S. W. BOWMAN, of Lexington, Ky., is being backed very strongly by his republican friends as the special representative of the southern republicans in Garfield's cabinet. Mr. Bowman has long been prominent as a republican in Kentucky, but is personally popular with the leading men of both parties. He was the originator and the first president of the Kentucky university, at Lexington, and has been noted for his enthusiastic efforts in the cause of education. During the last summer he has been in Colorado, serving as one of the commissioners to arrange the difficulties with the Ute Indians. Mr. Bowman is understood to favor the immediate removal of the Indians to Utah and New Mexico, so as to avoid a conflict, which is imminent this winter unless this step be taken.

THE firm of B. G. Arnold & Co., large coffee dealers of New York, failed last Tuesday for $1,000,000. The cause of the failure is attributed to speculations in coffee. The firm was the largest operators in that line of goods in New York, and probably in this country.

THE steamship Denmark, that arrived at New York a few days ago, brought forty-two Norman horses to be used for improving the stock in Illinois. There were originally forty-nine on the Denmark, but three stallions, two mares and two colts died on the voyage, on account of the incessant rolling and pitching of the vessel, caused by the unusually heavy weather. Forty-one of the animals are stallions. They weigh from 1,600 to 2,000 pounds, stand seventeen to eighteen hands in height, and cost $600 to $1,000 each.

SENATOR McDONALD has introduced a bill authorizing taxation of legal-tender treasury notes of the United States, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., that from and after the passage of this act, any state or territory of the United States may provide for including in the valuation of personal property of the owner or holder of any legal-tender notes of the United States, denominated lawful money, owned or held by person or corporation, in assessing taxes imposed by the authority of such state or territory, and may impose tax thereon, but tax imposed on any such legal tender treasury notes shall not be at a greater rate than is assessed or imposed on gold or silver coin of the United States in the hands of individual citizens or residents of such state or territory.

THROUGHOUT this section, as well as in many other parts of the state, diptheria is prevalent, and in many cases has been fatal. Those who have made it a special study, attribute it to the poisoned condition of the air from filth. An exchange says: "The name, diptheria, comes from a Greek work meaning film or pellicle that generally forms in the throat during the progress of the disease. It was first applied and the disorder was first discribed by Bretonneau, a noted French physician, who had been treating very virulent forms of sore throat, occurring epidemically, and, in the main, in children. Diptheria is apt to be confounded with croup and malignant sore throat, from both of which it is distinct in its symptoms, as well as in the nature and position of the morbid changes on the mucous membrane. In croup there is, indeed, a peculiar membrane, but it is nearly always confined to the air passages and centers in the larynx. In diptheria it commonly begins in the back of the throat, and often extends down to the gullet. Croup is, besides, much more inflammatory than diptheria. Malignant or ulcerated sore throat is still more unlike diptheria, in which, in most cases, there is no ulceration, the mucous membrane being simply covered with a tissue, more or less thick, or false membrane. But both affections are marked by enlargement of the glands behind the ear and in the neck, generally in the region of the parts internally influenced."

Negro Williams' Scheme.

The negro Williams, member of the Ohio legislature, has been to New York for the purpose of getting up a new exodus of colored people from the south. He says a party of capitalists have purchased over half a million acres of land in New Mexico, partly mineral and partly agricultural, and their plan is, during the coming year, to send trustworthy agents among the southern negroes for the purpose of culling good material to form colonies on this land. The negroes chosen for this project will be men of some means, sound, healthy, and, in a word, men inspected as for an army. Land is to be sold to these colonists at $1.25 per acre, and time given them to pay for it, and assistance in the way of reduced railroad rates will also be arranged. The parties engaged in this scheme are enthusiasts, and say that, inasmuch as the colony lands are in nearly the same latitude as South Carolina, the emigrants will be enabled to cultivate cotton and other semi-tropical crops with which they are familiar. The idea is to make this colony a home where colored people can have an opportunity of laboring, educating their children and making them all it is possible for colored men to become under the most favorable circumstances. The southern people will willingly part with their dusky citizens, and if called upon would probably give a few hundred thousand to assist their exit.

A plan has been proposed to reorganize the supreme court of the United States. The idea is to have four more judges, making the whole number thirteen, and then divide into two courts. If the character of the judges can be improved, the number should be reduced rather than increased.

The contest for the Indiana senatorship bids fair to become exceedingly interesting and lively. The ten or twelve aspirants to that honorable position are putting on their war paint.

The Right of the People to the Sunday Rest.

Some time since a meeting was held and addresses made in the city of Washington upon the subject of the observance of the christian sabbath, believing that a discussion by some of our christian statesmen of the observance of such a day would be timely and useful. The non-observance of the sabbath is becoming too common, especially in our cities and larger towns, and the subject is attracting much attention. At the meeting Mr. Justice Strong, of the supreme court of the United States, made the following remarks:

THE RELIGIOUS BASIS OF THE SABBATH.

Sunday, as an American institution, has features in some respects different from those of Sunday in other lands. Other nations, indeed, have their Sunday which is more or less regarded as a peculiar day. There is no civilized nation on the face of the earth, certainly no nation calling itself christian, which does not regard the first day of the week as unlike all other days—a day to be spent in a manner different from that in which all others are spent—a day in which unusual attention should be devoted to man's moral nature. To all believers in Divine revelation, it is a holy day instituted by God himself for all mankind, intended to remind men of God as their Creator, with all that is implied in that recognition, and to be devoted principally to religious duties. Such it is, and so it has ever been, regarded in this country by those who make an honest claim to faith in the christian religion. They accept what the bible declares respecting the sabbath. They acknowledge the obligation of the command: "Remember the sabbath day to keep it holy," that is, to keep it set apart for sacred uses in distinction from all other days, and they trust the promises of God made to those who obey this commandment: "If thou turn away thy foot from the sabbath, from doing thy pleasure on My holy day, and call the sabbath a delight, the holy of the Lord, honorable; and shalt honor Him, not doing thine own ways, finding thine own pleasure, nor speaking thine own words, then shalt thou delight thyself in the Lord, and I will cause thee to ride upon the high places of the earth, for the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it."

THE SABBATH AS A CIVIL INSTITUTION.

But it is of the American sabbath that I will speak briefly not as a religious institution, so much as a secular. The first settlers of this country were a body of select men. They were profoundly impressed by the conviction, that a weekly sabbath was essential to the highest welfare of the communities which they established, and they therefore enacted laws to enforce a proper observance of that day. It was not more upon theological considerations, than it was upon secular and social that they framed those laws and enforced strict obedience to them. The sabbath so observed, no one can doubt, contributed largely to the formation of that character which has stood us in so much stead in our history, and which has been the admiration of the world. The states of the Union, as one after another they have been formed, have followed the example of the country. The American sabbath, therefore, is a civil institution. Our laws protect it as a rest day for all our people. They are not laws in favor of religion any more than are our laws against disorderly conduct, or against any wrongs to our neighbor. I know of nobody who desires any laws for the protection or enforcement of religion, as such, but the great mass of the American people want, as they have ever had, laws for the observance and protection of a weekly rest day for all our people. Not because such a day is a Divine institution, but because they believe that such a day, properly regarded, is of immense importance to our political and social interests.

THE WEEKLY REST A LAW OF NATURE.

That such interests are properly regarded by civil laws all admit, and it is easy to demonstrate that the universal cessation of labor during one day in seven must be conducive to the health, to the good order and to the morals of the community. These are subjects legitimately within the province of civil government. It is not mere conjecture, it has been demonstrated by observation and experiment that man's nature, physical and mental, needs periodical seasons of rest. If they are denied to him or if he denies them to himself, his health of body and mind suffers. Our Creator has given us such a nature, and we cannot, with impunity, violate the laws of nature. The mind and the body give way under the presure of uninterrupted labor. Life is shortened by it. I have known not a few lawyers and business men whose habit it was to pursue their labor as diligently on Sunday as during the week, but in most of these cases the constitution gave way before middle life had been reached; some of them are now in insane hospitals, and not a few come to untimely graves.

There can be no doubt that men can do more work in six days of the week than they can by working the entire seven. The experiment has often been tried. The mind and the body are reinvigorated by one day's rest in the seven, and those who observe it return on Monday to their work with accumulated energy.

THE SUNDAY OBSERVANCE NECESSARY TO SOCIAL ORDER AND MORALS.

And not less important is the correct observance of Sunday to the good order and morals of society. It would seem as if this must be so. If the day be in fact a day of cessation from all ordinary employment, if those things which engage and engross the attention of the community, whether they be business or pleasure, during six days of the week are dropped on the seventh, and dropped because it is a sabbath day, it can hardly be that the thoughts will not be turned upward and conscience and a sense of moral obligation will not assert their power. The restraining influence of churches and good men will be felt and more or less control the conduct during the following week. But we need not speculate upon this subject. Our eyes are better than our speculations. There are, unhappily, communities to be found in our own country where Sunday is not observed as a day of rest for the people, where it is totally disregarded. What is the condition of morals there? What protection is given to life, the person or property? There are, in most of our larger cities, neighborhoods in which Sunday differs from no other day, except by an increase in vice and disorder. It is from these places and from canals, railroads and mining districts, where there is no sabbath, that a very large percentage of our criminals come. They are plague spots in the community, not only poisoning its morals, disturbing its good order, but depreciating its property. They are Sodoms. To quote from another "there is profound political economy in the question, what would a house and lot be worth in Sodom without a sabbath, a church and a preacher?" Those who have observed the administration of criminal law, or been familiar with prison dicipline, have often heard the sad confession of a convicted criminal that his career downward commenced with sabbath desecrations. There is then, abundant justification for our Sunday laws, regarding them as a mere civil institution which they are, and he is no friend to good order and welfare of society who would break them down or who, himself, sets an example of disobedience to them. They appeal to each citizen as a patriot, as an orderly member of the community, and as a well wisher to his fellow men, to uphold them with all his influence, and to show respect for them by his conduct and example. They make a lesser appeal to his self-interest. I verily believe were our civil laws, prescribing observance of Sunday as a day of rest for all our people universally obeyed in their true spirit, life, liberty and property would be far more secure than they now are.

THE RIGHT OF UNDISTURBED WORSHIP.

There are many other considerations that might be presented for a better observance of the sabbath than we now have, and in justification of the laws that require obedience. The majority of our people are firm believers in the Christian religion and worshippers of God on the sabbath. Wherever gathered together they have a right to protection against disturbers, and a right to worship God; aye, as good a right as to enjoy any protection of their property. The right to worship God according to the dictates of his conscience, is one of the fundamental principles of the constitution guaranteed to every man in this country. A man cannot set a glue factory, gas works or a soap factory near your house, and why not prevent a nuisance in the shape of disturbers of christians observing the sabbath in the house of God. Now I have a right, and you have a right, to worship God in your church, and to worship him without the disturbance of business and recreation around you. I say it is a constitutional right guaranteed to me, and as much to be protected as my house against the incursions of my neighbor. I am sorry to say it, but I think it must be said in truth, that there is a growing disregard of the sabbath in this country; probably more so in our larger cities than in the country. The sabbath is not now observed as it was when I was a boy and when you were children. It has not the influence over the community that it had forty years ago, and it is time for christian men, for lovers of their country and fellow men, to arise, and so far as in their power, exert an influence to restore the sabbath to what it was intended to be by the framers of our laws and by our fathers.

Carr's Corner.

—Haul your wood to market while the roads are good.

—The cold weather is somewhat damaging to the wheat.

—Mr. and Mrs. John Coy returned home a few days since from a visit to Kansas.

—Mr. A. D. Goetschius, and the ague have had a wrestle every other day, for the last two months. A. D. has come out best so far.

—Hank Swisher and Frank Hoyer gave up going to Michigan. They started over the B. & O. for Canton, Ohio, last Thursday.

—The citizens of the Lockwood district support a singing-school every Saturday evening. All are invited to attend.

—A number of our boys, who attended school at Auburn, are now having a vacation. We met Billy Snyder going home Wednesday morning and he looked as if he had been burned out.

—It appears that the literary and debating society, of this place, is a thing of the past. Something of an amusing nature should be gotten up to while away the long winter evenings.

C. O. D.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

Notice of Sale of Real Estate.

Notice is hereby given that by virtue of an order of the DeKalb circuit court, the undersigned administrator of the estate of Joh[illegible] Whittington, deceased, will offer for sale on the premises, on Friday the 31st day of November, 18[illegible] the following real estate to-wit: Lot No six in the original plot of the town of Auburn Junction, DeKalb county, Indiana.

TERMS: One third cash; the residue in equal payments at twelve and eighteen months, with notes and interest, waiving valuation laws, with approved personal security. Sale to be at two o'clock, p. m. W. H. DILLS, Administrator.

50 3t

TO THE AFFLICTED.

Since the [illegible] bian Oil, it [illegible] given be'te[illegible] and rheum[illegible] continued [illegible] mates, has [illegible] agent to [illegible] which are [illegible] orders. It [illegible] lieving an [illegible] protection [illegible] mation, [illegible] pains, wou[illegible] diarrhoea, [illegible] among chi[illegible] to be kept [illegible] person can [illegible] who have [illegible] fately cert[illegible] always cu[illegible] Casebeer & [illegible] book givi[illegible] propert[illegible]

Introduction of Kellogg's Colum[illegible] has made more permanent cures a[illegible] satisfaction on kidney complain[illegible] tism than any known remedy. [illegible] series of wonderful cures in all [illegible] made it known as a safe and reliab[illegible] employ against all aches and pai[illegible] the forerunners of more serious [illegible] acts speedily and surely, always [illegible] ering and often saving life. T[illegible] it affords by its timely use on rh[illegible] kidney affection, and all aches [illegible] ods, cramping pains cholera mor[illegible] coughs, colds, catarrh and disord[illegible] dren, makes it an invaluable rem[illegible] always on hand in every home. [illegible] afford to be without it, and th[illegible] once used it never will. It is a[illegible] ain in its remedial effects, and [illegible] e when cures are possible. Cal[illegible] Matheny's and get a memorand[illegible] g more full details of the curat[illegible] e of this wonderful medicine 31-[illegible]

ROOT & COMPANY

As usual, for the

HOLIDAY SEASON!

Are displaying an immense assortment

ATTRACTIVE GOODS!

-IN-

EVERY DEPARTMENT!

Special sale of Black and Colored Satin DeLyon, at $1, $1.15 and $1.50.

PLAIN SILKS

At 75c., 90c., $1 and $1.25c., reduced from $1, $1.25 and $1.50. Changeable Silks in elegant Quality, and Choice Tints for $1 per yard. All shades of colored 22-inch Satin DeLyon at $1.50, worth $2 per yard.

TRIMMING

Velvets, Satins, Plushes and Brocade Silks in a great variety of color and quantity

OUR DRESS GOODS DEPARTMEMT

Is now complete with new and superior fabrics in the choicest styles, and at the lowest prices.

CLOAKS AND FURS

Our cloaks, shawls, suit and fur department now contain some very choice things in seal, fur-lined and other garments. Also an unusually fine line of ladies' and children's goods of all kinds. Also elegant suits and shawls, and all at our usual low prices. Besides we have an almost endless line of small articles especially for the

HOLLIDAY TRADE

To which we call the attention of the public. Remember our long established motto: "No trouble to show goods, and an inspection of our stock incurs no obligation to purchase." ROOT & CO., FORT WAYNE, INDIANA.

BIG RUSH

-AT-

Isaac Ochs' Mammoth Store!

THE BOOM INCREASES DAILY.

New Stocks Received Daily!

STUPENDOUS BARGAINS TO BE HAD IN ALL CLASSES OF GOODS.

THE BOTTOM KNOCKED CLEAR OUT OF

BOOTS, SHOES AND RUBBER GOODS.

Selling piles of them cheap; cheaper than anybody.

Immense Trade in Clothing, and Why?

Because I have an immense stock, and am selling cheaper than anybody. Biggest line of Ladies' Dress Goods, and Cloaks, and Dolmans in town, at prices

WAY DOWN! WAY DOWN!

STAPLES ALMOST GIVEN AWAY. Come all ye that want bargains, and I will give them to you.

JOIN THE CROWD AND COME AND SEE US, COME EVERYBODY!

ISAAC OCHS, Auburn, Ind.

CLOCKS, CLOCKS,

WHEELER
WALTHAM

GOLD

-AND-

Silver Watches

Rodgers & Brother's PLATED WARE,

SPOONS, KNIVES, and FORKS, Ladies Gold Chains, Rings, Necklaces, Vest Chains Castors, Everything in the Jewelry line.

Violins, Guitars,

Banjos, Accordeons,

Violin Strings.

Special attention given to repairing fine watches

All Work Warranted.

No charge for mending silver ware sold at

JOE ABRIGHTS,

Second door north of Postoffice, Auburn, Ind.

SUPERIOR TO ALL OTHERS!

Largest and Most Complete Line Manufactured.

ADAPTED FOR BURNING ALL KINDS OF FUEL.

EVERY STOVE WARRANTED A SUCCESS

None their Equal—Acknowledged Favorites.

ALWAYS AWARDED FIRST PREMIUM.

Buy the Best.

Sold by W. H. KIBLINGER & CO

HOLIDAY GOODS!

A SURPRISE.

SANTA CLAUS
Has arrivd withea
DRAY LOAD!
OF

Fancy Goods,
Fancy Toys,
and Fancy Candies,

COME ONE, COME ALL.

YOU WILL FIND THEM AT ENSLEY & HARTER'S.

Auburn Courier.

Local and Miscellaneous

—There is a young fellow in Auburn, working in Mich. Houston's butcher shop, whose name is Chatley Ross. If not the long-lost Charley, he has at least had a similar fate, and the care-worn and hardened expression, which comes only from rubbing up against the rough side of the world, tell that life has been a struggle with him. He is not lost, he say, but, like the Indian, his wigwam is lost. At a tender age he was stolen by two men and conveyed in a buggy to a city. As strange as it may appear, he does not know from which state, county or town he was taken. He remembers to have been in Chicago, and was taken from there to Philadelphia, and thence to New York where he fell in care of a woman. This lady, he says, was very cruel to him, and often threatened to kill him. He ran away from her and become a "boot artist," and went by the name of boot-black Charley. He drifted into this state about six months ago, and works at anything he can get to do for a living. He will not say that he is or is not the Charley Ross about whom so much has been said, but says that is his name and that he is anxious to know who and where his parents are, and who the devil he is, anyway. Though young, he has had an eventful and sad career.

—Sleighing parties are now in order. Groups, of from ten to fifteen, can now pack themselves into a bob-sled, armed with oysters and crackers, and fire up-on farmer Jones. Did you ever accompany one of these parties? It's delightful fun. Each fellow has a girl—or should have—and when the sleigh drives up he tells her to hop in and squat down—she obeys. Then he climbs in and pulls the buffalo robe all off of her getting his feet in position. "All aboard!" he cries, and the driver cracks the whip. After they have passed the corporation lines his girl begins to feel chilly. Of course he tucks the robe around her feet, and this pulls it down from her off-shoulder, and he tries many different ways to get it back, with poor results. Finally she "tumbles" and his arm is placed around her. She rides so comfortably now, and wishes that Mr. Jones lived a hundred miles away.

—We wish to give our young ladies a little advice, as this is the marriageable season of the year. Now that you are being courted, you think, of course, it is all very well, and it will be nicer when you get married. But it won't. He thinks he's going to keep on this high pitch of love all the time. But he won't. He doesn't know himself, and you don't know him. When he sees you as many times a day as he wants to, may be more, when he sees your head done up regularly every morning in curl papers and the bloom is all off the eye; when your home contains a good deal of wash-tub, cradle and cookstove, he won't stand in front of the house for one hour, out in the cold, watching your light in the window. He'll be thinking rather of getting out of the house. Young woman, protract this courtship as long as you can. Let well enough alone. A courtship in progress has more poetry in it than married life.

—Mr. Joseph M. Zonker is a prosperous farmer of Fairfield township, of the tender age of sixty-five. Age has not stiffened his joints; years have not weakened his youthful ardor. He is as supple as a jumping jack; as gay as a young mule in a green pasture, and can not think of wasting his sweetness in the desert life of celibacy. Accordingly he went to the house of Catherine Parnell, a fair damsel of 20, offered her his love and was accepted. He came to town Tuesday and got the necessary legal papers, but wants the matter kept still, as the wedding will not come off for a few days yet—till after he markets his crop,—and we hereby request our readers to keep their mouths shut about it.

—Aleck. Kinmont, of Auburn, Ind., is in town making arrangements to dispose of his property on South street, now occupied by J. O. Rose.—Hicksville Rep.

—Henry Rehm, a young man who a few months ago was clerk in the grocery store of Frank Hoff, but who for the past few weeks has been bar-tender in Mr George Winninghoff's saloon on Eighth street, left Sunday night, while the proprietor was absent in the east, taking with him what money there was on hand. Henry's home is in Lima, this state, and during his residence here had won the favorable opinion of many of our citizens, who are surprised at his action in this case.

—Already their is a general holiday influence in the atmosphere that betokens the near approach of Christmas and New Year. Thanksgiving, the avant courem, has come and gone, and all home-folks are busied in the plans and plots for the tree and stocking, how best to surprise the dear ones, where the desired articles may be obtained—in a word, how most summarily and irretrievably to bankrupt one's self to make somebody—or many other bodies—happy for at least one day in the year.

—Each winter heretofore our widows have been supplied with wood through the kindness and energy of our young men. It has been customary to organize "chopping bees" and donate the results of their labor to this class of our citizens. Thus far this winter nothing has been done in this direction, and it would be a good idea for some young man to start the movement. The present winter promises to be a cold one, and a good, bright fire, in their almost destitute rooms, would cheer up the inmates wonderfully.

—A word to the girls. Now, girls, if your fellow comes around to take you a sleigh ride with an old, dilapidated cutter and a buffalo robe that was used in his grandfathers days, don't you go. All the little boys will yell "shoot the sleigh," and men will make more severe remarks. Have them drive around in a fine out-fit, with a couple of warm bricks in the bottom of the sleigh—or an 8x10 plank, which ever will fit your feet the best. Let him have some style about him, or give him the g. b.

—We have noticed, so far this winter, that very few of our young men have kept up that customary practice of loafing. Certainly, we have our share of professional loafers, and so has every town upon God's foot-stool, but the practice is not indulged in to half the extent that it has been in the past. The boys seem to have a different idea of things, and instead of whiling away their time beside the grocery fire, they are out upon the ice, in the woods or at other labor. We have several young congressman growing up in our midst.

—As was announced in last week's COURIER, a number of our citizens have formed a club for the purpose of furnishing literary entertainments during the winter. The first of this series of lectures and readings will take place at the Methodist church on the evening of Friday, the 17th, by Miss Emlie Gaven, who comes highly recommended by the lecture bureau, as an humorist and Shakepearian delineator. It is hoped that our citizens will come out and show that they appreciate the enterprise thus undertaken by a few for the good of our people.

—The milk-and-mush social given by Mrs. Copper, Misses Mate Cleveland, Alice McKay and Sadie Hollister, at the residence of the latter, last Friday evening, to raise a fund to buy books for poor school children, was a successful affair, from which there were $21.40 realized. The ladies return thanks to the band for music and to the citizens for their aid. Encouraged by the liberal assistance of our citizens in this instance, these young ladies have determined to have another social for the same purpose at the residence of Doctor Sears to-morrow (Friday) evening, and it is hoped that all who can will turn turn out and contribute their mites. Remember the poor whom you have always with you.

—Now sleighride.

—The skating is played out.

—Christmas comes on Saturday.

—Tramps are quite scarce here.

—The hog market continues good.

—Geo. Wagner has the depot colt.

—A new blacksmith in Ashley's shop.

—The jail is well supplied with wood.

—Grease up your cutters and go it again.

—The stave-factory will start up Monday.

—Social at Dr. Sears' to-morrow evening.

—One of Recorder Boland's children is quite sick.

—Now the livery men have things their own way.

—The county guardians are in session this week.

—To-day is said to be the coldest so far this winter.

—Hi. Palmer's child, Harry, is not expected to live.

—The Christmas turkey will soon cease to gobble.

—Our teamsters are all longing for a run of sleighing.

—Mrs. Geo. Moss has returned from her visit to Butler.

—Frank Leas was at Corunna to-day serving subpœnas.

—Miss Alice McKay has been on the sick list this week.

—Treasurer Miller Sundayed over at his home in Corunna.

—Frank Copper has been to Toledo, this week on business.

—The heavy wind Sunday night blew down a number of signs.

—Bring back those ladders that belong to the fire company.

—Sewing machine agents and book canvassers are numerous.

—Mrs. L. Tess is quite sick with an attack of typhoid pneumonia.

—Mr. Isaac Brush and family have gone to Oseo, Michigan, to live.

—Sunday-school teachers are now preparing for Christmas trees.

—F. Palmer, the Garrett hardware man, was in town over Sunday.

—Dave Snyder has a handsome pair of bob sleds in front of his store.

—Hank wolf is now a sewing machine peddler. He handles the Singer.

—A great many pumps are frozen up. This makes it bad in case of fire.

—Mr. E. Winninghoff has returned from a two week's trip in the east.

—People in the vicinity of the German Reform church complain of wood thieves.

—Wm. Ashelman, one mile east of town, has put a stone foundation under his barn.

—Mr. Welling, of Jackson, Mich., is the new agent of the Jackson road at this place.

—The shrill sound of the hub and spoke factory whistle is again heard in the land.

—Mrs. D. Teeters, of Hudson, paid a visit to her sister, Mrs. C. Hare, last Saturday.

—There is enough ice put up now, in this place, to supply the market for two summers.

—Mr. M. S. Mahurin, of Fort Wayne, is visiting with his sister, Mrs. W. H. McQuiston.

—Circuit court convenes next Monday. There is a large number of cases on the docket.

—Mich. Houston is removing the old refrigerator that was used at his old meat market.

—Chris. Ashelman is tired of following the plow, and has taken up his residence in town.

—J. Pearce has the contract for elevating wheat at the Fort Wayne & Jackson depot.

—John Ward and Charley Picker are the champion hog dressers. They slay "siveral" a day.

—Frank Culbertson will drive one hack himself after this week. It don't pay to hire.

—Carper, of the junction, is working up town gradually. He lives in Stamets' addition now.

—Hank Lesh, formerly a clerk in J. L. Davis' hardware store, is in town, visiting his brother.

—Rev. Johnson sold his horse and buggy to Mr. Barclay, and his cow to ex-Treasurer Gonser.

—It was really astonishing what a large amount of poultry was brought to this market last week.

—Bob Showers had a raffling match at his shop last Saturday evening. The boys report a lively time.

—There is a culvert on the corner of Jackson and Fourteenth streets that is greatly in need of repair.

—James Anderson's trotting mare is sick. Dr. Mader has her in charge, and we hope she will get well.

—Our job department is so crowded with work this week that we are a few hours late with the paper.

—The Immortal J. N. will postpone his lecture here until the 23d, inst. At this date that veil must raise.

—Lew. Roth is said to be confined to the house with consumption. The disease is hereditary in the family.

—Judge Tousley's health is said to be very poor, and probably cannot attend to his official duties here next week.

—Johnny Picker has had enough experience in the teaming business to satisfy his curiosity. The weather is too mild.

—Billy Little is thinking some of starting a shoe store at Sedan. When you go to See Dan drop in and see Billy.

—The band boys use Case's hall now to practice in. There won't be a room in town large enough for them after awhile.

—The mean temperature of the week just past, has been the MEANEST temperature we ever knew at this time of the year.

—Miss Mary Smith, of Spencerville, has been paying a visit to her friends for several weeks past at this place and at Corunna.

—Mrs. J. Pearce, who has been suffering for some time past with that fatal destroyer, consumption, is at present very low.

—Our enterprising grain dealer, T. J. Cuppy, esq., is making things lively at the Eel-River depot. Tom. understands the grain business.

—Now would be a splendid opportunity for the editors(?) of the Republican to make their mark in the world—set down in a snow bank.

—Some of our young men, who protract their visits to the wee' sma' hours, should remember there is a law preventing cruelty to animals.

—Al. Weyer, with a force of good tenders, is now at work plastering the rooms opposite the jail, preparatory to holding school therein.

—Billy Little is in the wood business. Buck Allen purchased a load, and nearly everyone goes to the livery barn when they want to get a warming.

—J. J. Firestone, son-in-law of the Hicksville Republican, has purchased the office of the Syracuse Reflecter, and will soon revive that paper.

—Arrangements are being made, by parties here in town, to give a select dance on Christmas Eve. Everything will be done to make it pleasant.

—Are we again to hear the "musical voice" of the school-boy, during recess, in our hall way? Give us a week's notice so we can prepare for the emergency.

—The married man has no excuse for idleness now. The wood-box is to fill, Johnnie's sled to repair, the path to be made along the clothes-line, and so forth.

—Mrs. Biglow and her daughter Eliza, who have been making their home with C. A. Picker, left Tuesday for Michigan, where they expect to remain until spring.

—We were in error last week in stating that young Tett made a dive into an air-hole in the creek. It was Henry Tess that went in swimming with his skates on.

—Mrs. Rev. Johnson will leave to-day and join her husband at their new home in Grand Haven, Michigan. Miss Emma will remain with grandma Hare until spring.

—Commissioner Shoub was called away Tuesday, having received a telegramme informing him of the death of his brother, Henry Shoub, living just over in Ohio.

—We want more wood. Those who desire to pay their subscription in wood should bring it now while the roads are in good condition.

—Diphtheria is becoming quite prevalent in adjoining town. Parents shoul take care of their children, and not let the dread disease once obtain a hold in our town.

—While at Waterloo, last Friday, we called upon Kahn & Co., one of the leading firms of that place. They are clever, enterprising gentleman, and command a large trade.

—A little son of Mr. Geo. DeLong, living at Newville, shot himself through the leg last Saturday a week ago, inflicting an ugly wound.

—Tom Mayes will find a new baby at his house when he returns. It is the little babe of a Mrs. Venders, who died near New Era a few weeks ago, and was adopted by Mrs. Mays.

—Ira Eaton and wife, who have been visiting under the paternal roof for some time, lost their youngest child, by death, Saturday last. The remains were intered in the cemetery at this place.

—The whooping-cough is said to be quite largely circulated in and about town. This disease is hard on the little ones at this season of the year, and parents cannot be too careful of them.

—The butcher, in Duck's building, was ordered not to haul ice over a piece of ground near the "pike hole." A man who would refuse such a privilege should henceforth and forever hide his face.

—Miss Lillian Morse, of Angola, and Mrs. Mattie C. Birdsal, of Wabash, Ind., sister of Mrs. W. J. Austin, have been visiting the latter this week. Mrs. Birdsal will remain in Auburn until after the holidays.

—Tom. Savage, a baker at Garrett, so says the Kendallville News, has obtained a judgment of nearly $4,000 against the Wabash road for injuries received over one year ago, by being put off of a train on that road.

—Mr. E. Berry left last Saturday for Buffalo, N. Y., to arrange for getting his supply of coal from that point. He has previously dealt with Toledo but thinks he has been gouged by the coal dealers there about long enough.

—There still seems to be a blockade in the business interests of grain and produce buyers, by the inability of the railroad companies to move the produce of the market. It is not only here but we hear complaints from all over the state.

—Miss Metta Farris, of Fostoria, and Miss Ada McFarland, of Mt. Vernon, who have been visiting in Auburn the past week, will return to their mothers Monday. They are pleasant little children, and we hope this will not be their last visit to Auburn.

—The snow, the beautiful snow, fell to the depth of four or five inches Tuesday night. This has been longed for by our dealers in timber and teamsters. A revival in this department of trade can now be looked for, and the hum of the several factories will ring in our ears daily.

—Some one, in rear of the COURIER office, is somewhat careless in empting ashes. We noticed a pile smoking in the midst of a lot of brown paper and pine boxes. We don't know as any material harm would result from this, but we're afraid it might excite the hook and ladder boys.

—Ben. Williams' engine has worked long and faithfully, running a saw and pumping water for the sprinkling wagon, but, like everything else, it had to yield in course of time. It gave out, and last week was taken to Fort Wayne for repairs. She is now in good condition again.

—Steve Girardot wrapped his lines around the wood-rack stakes, and presently the horses began to back. The farther they backed the tighter the lines became, and, of course, the outfit was upturned and more or less damaged. The best place to tie a team is to the wheel—it don't take the horses so long to demolish the wagon.

—The dry-goods establishment of Root & Co., at Fort Wayne, was entered by burglars Sunday. The entrance was made through the scuttle over the elevator. The thieves took six valuable seal-skin sacques and a number of pieces of silks, and the firm estimates its loss at $2,000 if no more goods have been taken than those missed.

—There's nothing small about Sim. Tarney. After his large force of men had finished their job of filling his ice houses, he gave them an oyster supper. His amiable wife and daughter, Nettie, know how to cater to the wants of a hungry assembly. Sim., of course, made everything pleasant and lively, and they all agree that it was good to be there.

—Saturday last was a pleasant day, and old Sol shone bright and warm. The "oldest inhabitants" "knew" that we were going to have a break-up—in fact they had looked for it sooner. But when Sunday morning dawned upon us and the themometer trembled under the cold, the "old inhabitants" had nothing to say—they had drawn in their horns.

—A pleasant party was given last Friday evening at the residence of Mr. F. Zimmerman. A goodly number of invited guests were present, and passed the evening by keeping time to the strains of beautiful music. The supper, under the management of Mrs. Z., was simply superb, and all partook of the viands as though they appreciated the opportunity.

—Next week Dan. Chillcoat, the fighting man of Corunna, will have his trial for striking O. Rosenberry with an axe. They quarreled over the right of a clothes-line post which stood near the center line of a double dwelling house. Two families under one roof make things lively at times, and cause considerable trouble. If Dan. goes over the road the Headlight will have a local.

—Auburn Junction had a fire last Tuesday evening the two-story frame building known as the Davis property and occupied by Dave McNabb, was discovered to be on fire. Only the partition walls burned, the remainder of the building is still standing. We hear that Parley Stimely lost all of his clothes, on which there was no insurance.

—Our popular young friend, Frank Copper, has accepted the agency of the B. & O. road at Albion, and will take charge there on the 15th of this month. While we, in common with everybody in Auburn, regret to part with Frank and his estimable lady, we are glad to know that the change is very much to his interest. He stands high with the officers of the B. & O. road, and is a worthy and efficient young railroader. The COURIER cordially commends him to the kind consideration of the people of Albion.

—Hi. Rasely, formerly a resident at this place, but recently of Garrett, has finally had his ending. He has gone to parts unknown—his wife is dead and buried and his family broken up. It has been but a short time ago that Hi. was doing a good, prosperous business in the harness trade at this place, but he gradually went down, and has come to a sad, unprosperous ending, where it might have been a happy and lucrative one. He was a clever, genial fellow, and his only fault was that absorbing desire for strong drink.

Tickets! Tickets! Tickets!

First-class, emigrant and round-trip railroad tickets to all points east or west can be bought at low rates by calling upon the undersigned at Auburn Junction, or addressing

J. J. MARTIN, Ag't, B. & O. R. R.
Auburn Ind.
tf

THE ALTER.

Married, December 2, Henry M. Pool and Anna M. Sulivan.

Dec. 6, Mathew N. Brown and Nellie Cool.

THE CRADLE.

Wednesday night our friend, Mr. Theodore Reed, was presented by his wife with a half interest in eight pounds of girl bady. A girl is what was wanted, and the little visitor found a hearty welcome in that domicile, as was evidenced by the smiling manner in which its father passed around the cigars to the COURIER force this morning.

Born, Dec. 8, to the wife of Mr. F. Gibson, in Auburn, a son.

THE TOMB.

Died, Friday Dec. 21, Mrs. Hiram Raisley.

Died, Sunday, Dec. 4, near St. Johns, Mrs. Jonas Wilderson, aged 58 years.

Miss Delia Haynes died at her home in St. Johns, Wednesday, Nov. 24, 1880. She was born in Williams county, Ohio, March 23, 1863, and her age was seventeen years, eight months and one day. She was affectionate to her parents, brothers and sisters, and by her sweetness of disposition won the friendship of all with whom she came in contact.

Birthday Party.

—The friends and neighbors of John P. Moore met at his residence four miles east of town, in Jackson township, last Monday evening, to celebrate his birthday. The guests present were William Nelson and lady, Wm. McClellan and lady, John Piles and lady, J. D. Likens and lady, Isaac Ditmar and lady, John Neff and lady, Geo. Hamilton and lady, Milous Brown and lady, Jacob Coy and lady, James Provines and lady, Joseph Prosser and lady, J. J. Walters and lady, Wm. Ellison and son, Adam Prosser and Miss Ida Waters. The presents consisted of an easy chair, butter-knife, sugar-spoon, pickle-fork and glass fruit dish. After partaking of an oyster supper, followed by a supply of "goodies," the friends passed the evening pleasantly until twelve o'clock, when they departed, wishing their host and hostess might live to enjoy many more such gatherings. Mr. and Mrs. Moore return their sincere thanks to their friends for their kind remembrance and nice presents.

599	42
2,205	61
2,387	119
2,809	34
2,851	363
2,565	110
1,134	88
2,330	65
2,347	12
2,599	98
2,441	110
3,089	50
900	15
4,191	187
1,760	11
[illegible]	175
[illegible]	[illegible]
1,483	9
1,757	81
2,062	74
[illegible]	158
2,456	192
3,628	166
1,742	125
1,356	131
3,199	218
3,788	252
3,000	121
2,636	135
1,907	97
1,320	91
2,243	156
3,206	60
2,068	66

SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

Sufferers, Victims of Fever and Ague, the Mercurial Diseased Patient, how they recovered Health, Cheerful Spirits and Good Appetite—they will tell you by taking

SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

For DYSPEPSIA, CONSTIPATION, Jaundice, Bilious attacks, SICK HEADACHE, Colic, Depression of Spirits, SOUR STOMACH, Heartburn, &c.

IT HAS NO EQUAL.

This unrivaled Southern remedy is warranted not to contain a single particle of MERCURY, or any injurious mineral substance, but is

PURELY VEGETABLE.

If you feel drowsy, debilitated, have frequent headache, mouth tastes badly, poor appetite and tongue coated, you are suffering from torpid liver or "biliousness," and nothing will cure you so speedily and permanently as to take

SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR.

It is given with safety and the happiest results to the most delicate infant. It takes the place of quinine and bitters of every kind. It is the cheapest, purest and best family medicine in the world.

J. H. ZEILIN & CO., Philadelphia, Pa.
SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

Pleasantly Surprised.

Wednesday evening, December 1, a party of twenty-seven friends and neighbors, old and young, of DeKalb and Noble counties, assembled without warning or permission, at the residence of Mrs. Lazarus Getts, in Richland township, to celebrate her forty-second birthday. The party came with their arms full of good things to eat, and other nice presents, as a token of their esteem and friendship for the lady. A splendid repast was served, and the evening was one of pleasure to all.

—The following is the report of dist. No. 7, Union township for the month ending December 3, 1880:

Total No. enrolled............41
Average daily attendance..........35½
Names of those neither absent nor tardy:

William Ashelman,
Jane Cobler,
Mary Cobler,
Clara Keller,
Ida Keller,
Ida Langhum,
Marione Miller,
Ida Osborn,
Francis Osborn,
Sherm. Shreeve,
Mary Kosht.

C. A. DUGAN, teacher.

—If any man is blind enough to his own interests to doubt the efficacy of advertising, let him turn over to the eighth page of this paper and note the example set by a firm that has done more of it than most others in this section, W. J. Austin & Co. In fact, let him observe the benefits that have been derived from it by all men who have tried it most and know.

—The Butler Record says, "Charles Garfield, of Bryan, who has figured extensively in the DeKalb county courts, recently attended, at the residence of his father, a birthday party given in honor of the president-elect. It is altogether probable the cases in court against Charley will be dismissed from the docket."

—Some idea of the consumption of matches may be formed from the fact that a single factory in Ashkosh, Wis., cut up 2,000,000 feet of logs into matches, and used $900,000 worth of revenue stamps during 1879.

Money to Loan.

In sums and on terms to suit all. Apply at Guy Plumb's law office. Low rates of interest.
38-3m. C. N. HASKALL.

AUBURN COURIER.

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 9, 1880.

WEEKLY NEWS REVIEW.

THE EAST.

A NEW YORK theatrical manager made elaborate preparations for the production of the "Passion Play," in which James O'Neill was to personate Jesus Christ, but public sentiment was so strong and so loudly expressed against the production of the spectacle that he was compelled to withdraw it....A freight train on the Buffalo, New York and Philadelphia road ran off a trestle near Holland, N. Y., by which three men were fatally, and several others seriously, injured.

THE New York Times' ex-Presidential pension fund, it is stated, is in a fair way to be made up. Over $100,000 is already subscribed.

"DR." BUCHANAN, the Philadelphia peddler of bogus medical diplomas, on trial for fraudulent use of the mails in disposing of his counterfeit wares, has been acquitted by order of the United States District Judge. He directed the jury to return a verdict of not guilty on the remarkable technical ground that because Buchanan did not intend to cheat his patrons, but only to aid them in imposing upon others, he wa not using the mails for a fraudulent purpose..... Three of the life-saving crew at Provincetown, Mass., were drowned in endeavoring to save the lives of some shipwrecked sailors....Everts W. Farr, one of the newly-elected Congressmen from New Hampshire, is dead.

THE volume of business at the New York Clearing House last week was the greatest on record, and the transactions of "Black Friday" no longer set the high-water mark. The aggregate clearings for the six days were $989,274,472, or an average of $164,879,079 daily. The figures indicate the enormous speculations in stocks, cotton, and grain that characterized the week.

BROCKWAY, the "squealing" United States bond forger, has surrendered to the United States District Attorney, at Brooklyn, the counterfeit plates from which the bonds were printed, together with $45,000 in counterfeit $100 bank notes, a quantity of fiber-paper, and, in addition, an amount of information which has already proved of great value to the Government. A New York dispatch says that when the package was opened in the District Attorney's office, and the plates, money, etc., displayed, it was easy to see that the spoils of the most gigantic counterfeiting scheme on record were presented. As plate after plate was displayed the marvel grew greater, and one could not help feeling that the business community had escaped from a great peril.

WHILE New Yorkers have been talking about raising a fund to pension ex-Presidents, a few Philadelphians, including George W. Childs, A. J. Drexel and Col. Thomas A. Scott, have raised a fund of $100,000 to present to Gen. Grant.

THE WEST.

A PETITION IS BEING — the Independent ed here and at Elkhart for the appointment of Hon. H. D. Wilson to the circuit Judgeship which will soon be vacated by Judge Woods. As Governor Gray will have the appointment, a democrat will undoubtedly be Judge Wood's successor, and we know of no lawyer in the counties who would fill the place with more honor, dignity and ability than Mr. Wilson. His application is signed by both democrats and republicans.—Goshen Times.

⁂

THE house ordered Tuesday the reprinting of the refunding bill, interstate commerce bill and the joint resolution (originally introduced by Mr. Pond) proposing an amendment to the constitution providing that the president shall, from the 4th of March, 1885, hold his term of office for six years with trichinæ in Chicago. As usual in such cases, they ate uncooked pork which proved to be alive with the deadly parasites....The late Prof. Watson appears to have been wedded to science. His will provides that his property, valued at $60,000, shall be given to the National Academy of Sciences of the United States, excepting the sum of $3,000, which is set apart for the support of his wife....A boiler explosion in a foundry at Charlotte, Mich., demolished the building and killed three men, beside severely scalding four others.

CHARLES A. HILL, a St. Louis lawyer, pleaded guilty in the United States Court in that city of counterfeiting coin. Hill was a student at law in the office of the late ex-President James Buchanan. The sentence is one year's imprisonment.... George B. Robinson, Lieutenant Governor-elect of Colorado, who was mistaken by a guard for a claim-jumper, and fired upon, near Leadville, has died of his wounds. He was formerly engaged in banking at Kalamazoo, Mich.

THE storage capacity of the Chicago elevators has been increased fully 2,500,000 bushels during the past year, and the prospect is that every bit of it will be needed before the opening of navigation. The elevators now hold something over 19,000,000 bushels.....Maj. Brotherton has sent Scout Allison to Sitting Bull's camp with the ultimatum of the United States Government to that doughty warrior. Sitting Bull is called on to surrender unconditionally and without delay.

THE butter and cheese men of Chicago having discovered that a law of Illinois provides for the punishment of the sale of oleomargarine and butterine as butter, they have subscribed $430 to aid in the enforcement of that law.

CRAWFORD'S Opera House, at Topeka, Kan., has been destroyed by fire. Loss, $30,000; insurance, $15,000.

THE SOUTH.

A LITTLE son and daughter of George Malloy, of Laurinburg, N. C., were left in charge of their grandfather, who tied them near the fireplace and went into the field to pick cotton. In his absence the clothes of the little ones caught fire, and the flames were communicated to the house, which was burned down, the children perishing in the flames....John B. Kelso, the oldest native of Baltimore, who served in the war of 1812, has passed from earth.

A BLAZE on the dock at West Point, Va., destroyed 2,100 feet of the wharves and six large warehouses, the whole covering an area of nearly four acres. Loss, $250,000.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., after being enveloped in black clouds, the other day, was visited by a huge ball of fire, which illuminated the city and burst into fragments, firing the spire of McKendree church.

DUELING has become so thoroughly repulsive to public sentiment in South Carolina that a bill is before the Legislature to punish with death the slaying of an opponent in an affair of honor, and parties leaving the State to fight will be deemed guilty of misdemeanor. ....A fire at Durham, N. C., destroyed a tobacco factory and other buildings comprising a considerable portion of the town, valued at $75,000....H. Victor Newcomb has resigned the Presidency of the Louisville and Nashville road, and E. H. Green has been chosen his successor.

THE County Court of Pulaski, Tenn., imposed a sentence of twenty-one years in the penitentiary on a young negro who had attempted to outrage a white orphan girl. A body of 100 or more citizens rushed into the court-room, took the culprit from the officers, and lynched him on a bridge.

WASHINGTON.

THE vote of Maine foots up: For Garfield, 74,039; Hancock, 65,171; Weaver, 4,480; Dow, 92; scattering, 127. Garfield's majority over all, 4,169; over Hancock, 8,868.... The total electoral vote of Indiana will, after all, be cast for Garfield....The State officers are agreed that Bennett, the Republican candidate in the Eighth district, was elected, and will award a certificate to him accordingly.

THE President has issued his proclamation, stating that it has been satisfactorily shown by China that no discriminating duties are imposed against the United States, and declaring that in consequence all discriminating tonnage and import duties against Chinese vessels, manufactures, and merchandise are discontinued, according to treaty.

JUSTICE HUNT, of the United States Supreme Court, has not occupied his seat for a year, while Justice Clifford has softening of the brain. The work of the tribunal is nearly three years behind. A bill will be introduced in Congress for the appointment of two temporary Justices. Another plan is to create a bench of fifteen, and divide it into three branches.... The allowances and pay of 28,410 of the census enumerators amount to $1,820,000. There are about 1,200 more of them, whose accounts have not yet been settled.

THE army officers over 62 years of age, whose retirement can be made by the President under the law, are Gens. McDowell and Ord, and Quartermaster General Meiggs, none of whom are willing to be put on the retired list that other men may be promoted to their places. The contest as to whether they shall be shelved rages more furiously than ever in army and political circles at Washington.... Assistant Postmaster General Brady has purchased a controlling interest in the National Republican, at Washington.

The monthly public-debt statement issued Dec. 1 is as follows:

Six per cent. bonds		$ 213,521,550
Five per cents		469,651,050
Four and one-half per cents		250,000,000
Four per cents		738,404,450
Refunding certificates		943,350
Navy pension fund		14,000,000
Total coin bonds		$1,686,520,400
Matured debt	$ 5,518,085
Legal tenders	346,741,796
Certificates of deposit	8,525,000
Fractional currency	7,163,207
Gold and silver certificates	43,477,790
Total without interest		404,007,782
Total debt		$2,006,046,268
Total interest		19,861,661
Cash in treasury		210,926,763
Debt less cash in treasury		$1,904,881,166
Decrease during November		2,609,281
Decrease since June 30		37,291,128
Current liabilities—
Interest due and unpaid		$ 2,892,953
Debt on which interest has ceased		5,518,085
Interest thereon		749,376
Gold and silver certificates		42,477,780
United States notes held for redemption of certificates of deposit		8,525,000
Cash balance available Dec. 1		150,763,567
Total		$ 210,926,762
Available assets—
Cash in treasury		$ 210,926,763
Bonds issued to Pacific railway companies, interest payable in lawful money, principal outstanding		$ 64,623,512
Interest accrued and not yet paid		1,615,587
Interest paid by United States		47,580,861
Interest repaid by companies—
By transportation of mails		13,879,965
By cash payments of 5 per cent. of net earnings		655,198
Balance of interest paid by the United States		33,085,296

POLITICAL.

A FARMER named Brown, residing near Minneapolis, drove his wife from the house with a revolver, and then cut his throat and sent four bullets into his head....A Mexican boy of 17 years was executed for murder at Phœnix, Arizona, on the 26th ult.... A Philadelphia traveling man was robbed of a trunk containing $7,000 worth of jewelry in Chicago....While a party of five miners were going from Georgetown, Col., to the North Park, they were caught in an immense snow-slide, and precipitated down a steep mountain side. Two of the party were killed, and one had his thigh broken in two places.

WASHINGTON telegram to Chicago Tribune: "An intimate friend of the President-elect says that Senator Blaine came to Washington at the special request of Gen. Garfield, for a confidential conference. They breakfasted together at the latter's house. There is little doubt that at this interview Gen. Garfield tendered to Senator Blaine first the position of Secretary of State, and second that of Secretary of the Treasury, both of which Mr. Blaine declined."

EX-GOV. JEWELL is said to be a candidate for Minister to France. He does not want a place in the Cabinet....Judge Ezra B. Taylor, the Republican nominee, was yesterday elected to Congress from the Nineteenth Ohio district, to fill the vacancy occasioned by Gen. Garfield's resignation.

THE final result in all the States on Presidential electors is as follows:

For Garfield.		For Hancock.
California	1	Alabama	10
Colorado	3	Arkansas	6
Connecticut	6	California	5
Illinois	21	Delaware	3
Indiana	15	Florida	4
Iowa	11	Georgia	11
Kansas	5	Kentucky	12
Maine	7	Louisiana	8
Massachusetts	13	Maryland	8
Michigan	11	Mississippi	8
Minnesota	5	Missouri	15
Nebraska	3	New Jersey	9
New Hampshire	5	Nevada	3
New York	35	North Carolina	10
Ohio	22	South Carolina	7
Oregon	3	Tennessee	11
Pennsylvania	29	Texas	8
Rhode Island	4	Virginia	12
Vermont	5	West Virginia	5
Wisconsin	10
Total	214	Total	155

Necessary to a choice in the Electoral College, 185, Garfield having 29 more than necessary.

WITH the exception of Georgia, the Electoral Colleges met at the capitals of the several States on the 1st inst., and cast their ballots for President and Vice President, appointing messengers to deliver the certificates at Washington. Although Gov. Colquitt gave the notice required by the State law, the electors of Georgia failed to meet.

GENERAL.

THE Chicago Tribune says that never in the history of the country has there been such difficulty experienced in shipping Western products to the Eastern markets and to the seaboard. The railroad companies are unable to handle one-fifth of the freight which is offered to them, and they have notified shippers that they will receive only perishable goods.... A new cable company has been formed. The European end of the cable will be laid on the Scilly islands, off the extreme southwestern point of England, and the American end will be laid on Sable island, ninety miles southeast of Nova Scotia.

THE Northern Pacific syndicate is composed mainly of bankers in London, Paris, Boston, Baltimore, Philadelphia, and New York, who contract with the railroad to take $40,000,000 in 6 per cent. gold bonds, running forty years, to be issued only as the road is accepted by the Government.... M. de Lesseps is pushing his Panama-canal scheme with extraordinary vigor. Subscriptions for the stock are pouring in from capitalists in all European countries, and the great engineer is highly elated at the success of his efforts....The receipts for tolls of the New York canals for this year amount to $1,155,091, against $941,578 for the previous year.

FIVE survivors of the wrecked steamer Simcoe, which went down off Manitoulin island, have arrived at Owen sound, Canada. They succeeded in getting ashore in a lifeboat. Eleven of the crew and the cook went down with the steamer....The value of the exports from this country during the twelve months ending the 31st of October of this year exceeded the value of the imports by $155,572,126. The excess in value of the exports over the imports in the preceding twelve months was $260,257,182.

GONZALES has been peacefully inaugurated President of the Mexican republic, and Gen. Diaz has accepted the portfolio of public works in his Cabinet....In the New York Assay Office there is foreign gold coin to the value of $50,000,000. It is estimated $12,000,000 more is on the way to the United States.

FOREIGN.

A CABLE dispatch reports the outbreak of a horrible war at New Calabar, attended with fearful butcheries....Trade in Japan is paralyzed by the depreciation of paper currency, and a foreign loan has been resolved upon....The British Parliament will be summoned to meet on Jan. 6, and a practical measure for the settlement of the land troubles is in preparation....A Vienna man publishes to the world that he is ready to enter into competition with Dr. Tanner, beer against water. He asserts that he can fast on beer forty-four days. ....Attempts are being made at Leipsic to array the students against the Jews, and the police of Berlin have torn down placards inciting persecution.

FOUR more British regiments have been ordered to Ireland. The island is being garrisoned from the center to the sea, the red coats of the soldiers being observable from every point of rising ground. Boycott, to dig whose potato crop cost the British tax-payers $50,000, has retired from his castle at Lough Mask, guarded by horse, foot, and artillery, but the policemen continue to guard his empty castle.... The population of Dulcigno has been disarmed, and Dervisch Pasha has left the Montenegrins to hold the place if they can....Advices from Constantinople indicate that the Porte is preparing to deal Greece a blow that will be final and decisive. It is reported that it was to be rid of other complications, in order to act upon the Greek question the more quickly, that Turkey so readily acceded to the cession of Dulcigno.... The right of naturalized citizens of the United States to exemption from military service to the home Government has been recognized by Germany. The fines and penalties imposed upon the natives of Alsace and Lorraine, who had become naturalized in this country, have been remitted, and the parties arrested have been released.

A SUDDEN break of the ice in the Volga river, in Russia, destroyed five steamers and thirty barges.....Mauna Loa, the Sandwich islands volcano, has thrown out a river of lava thirty miles long and twenty feet deep. The scene at night is grand beyond comparison.... A reward of £1,000 has been offered for the detection of the murderers of Wheeler, the late Irish landlord, whose cruel exactions made his name a synonym among the tenantry for all that was atrocious.... The steady drain of gold to this country has attracted serious attention at London, and the Bank of England, it is reported, will attempt to check it....While six members of the crew of the British schooner Sandfly were bathing recently near the shore of one of the Solomon islands, in the South Pacific, they were attacked by the natives and killed. In revenge the survivors of the crew attacked the principal village of the island, burned it, and killed many of the inhabitants. Another British ship has since poured a few shells into the island by way of revenge.

THE Irish political prisoners from four counties, including the men charged with Boyd's murder, have been taken to Waterford for trial. Extraordinary sales of guns are reported there, the county is said to be fully armed, and serious disturbances are apprehended....There is another difficulty about the cession of territory to Montenegro. Dervisch Pasha refuses to surrender San Giorgio, and the Montenegrin Foreign Minister has reported the matter to the representatives of the great powers.... In consequence of the recommendations of the powers, Greece has assumed a less warlike attitude, and has abated somewhat in its claims for Turkish territory.....Boycott has abruptly quitted Ireland for England. A threatening letter received by him at his hotel at Dublin hastened his going.

THE jury for the state trials, as the cases of the indicted Irish agitators are called, will be selected from a special list 1,500 names. From these forty-eight will be selected by ballot. Of the forty-eight, each side will have the right to reject twelve. Of the remaining twenty-four, each side will be allowed to challenge six. The twelve men whose names are left will constitute the jury. Application will be made for the postponement of the trials on the ground that the date fixed would deprive Parnell, Biggar, Sullivan, Sexton and Dillon of their constitutional right to be present at the session of Parliament.

Amusing Mathematical Quid Nunc.

Let one who propounds and understands the problem tell a third person to write down any number, large or small (if a large number the problem will seem more remarkable), without letting him see or know what the number is; write this same number backward—i. e., make the last figure the first, the next to the last the second, etc.; subtract the lesser from the greater; multiply the difference by any number whatever; rub out any figure in the multiple, and (provided the figure is not 0) add together the remaining figures as if they were all units, and tell what is their sum, then the first person will be able to tell what was the figure rubbed out.

Explanation.—The difference between any number and the same written backward will always be a multiple of 9; of course multiplying the difference by any number whatever does not alter this condition. The sum obtained will still be a multiple of 9; for instance, if the sum so multiplied is 7 times 9 (or 63) and is multiplied by 12, it will be 84 times 9 (or 756). The figures expressing any multiple of 9, if added together as units, will always be 9 or some multiple of 9. If one be rubbed out, the sum of the remainder will be so much less than a multiple of 9, thus: if the sum of the remaining figures are 56 the figure rubbed out was 7, that being what is required to make 63, the next multiple of 9.

The reason for excluding 0 from the figures rubbed out is, that if 0 or 9 be erased the remainder will still be a certain number of 9s, and the person propounding the problem cannot tell whether 0 or 9 was rubbed out; but if 0 be excluded of course the figure rubbed out was 9 (for it must be 0 or 9). If the sum given, after rubbing out one of the figures, be 725, 7 and 2 and 5 are 14, and 4 wanting to make it the next multiple of 9 (18), which was the figure rubbed out.—Scientific American.

REPORT OF THE COMPTROLLER OF THE CURRENCY.

The following is a portion of the annual report of the Comptroller of the Currency. The amount of national-bank and legal-tender notes outstanding on Nov. 1, 1880, and the aggregate amounts of both kinds of notes for the same date in 1878 and 1879, was as follows:

Denominations.	Amount of national b'k notes.	Amount of legal tender notes.	Aggregate.
Ones	$ 2,282,462	$ 21,964,900	$ 24,247,362
Twos	2,207,260	21,829,318	24,036,578
Fives	99,910,760	67,132,138	167,042,898
Tens	113,820,860	75,335,688	189,355,548
Twenties	75,631,860	72,082,277	147,719,687
Fifties	21,418,300	24,359,175	45,777,475
One hundreds	36,896,900	23,068,700	59,965,600
Five hundreds	630,000	16,126,000	16,756,500
One thousands	239,000	14,401,500	14,640,500
Five thousands	....	365,000	365,000
Ten thousands	....	230,000	230,000
Add for fractions of notes not presented or destroyed	15,120	....	15,120
Totals	$343,062,451	$347,681,016	$689,744,467
Deduct for legal tender notes destroyed in Chicago fire	....	1,000,000	1,000,000
	$342,062,451	$346,681,016	$688,744,467

The aggregate amount of both kinds of notes in 1879 was $681,815,520 and in 1878 $666,333,137. The law provides that after specie payments are resumed national banks shall not be furnished with notes of less denomination than $5, and in accordance with this provision no notes of the denominations of $1 and $2 have been issued since the 1st of January, 1879. The amount of ones outstanding that day was $4,793,817, and of twos $2,924,930; total, $7,718,748. Since that date ones have been reduced $2,501,355 and twos $1,717,670, making the total reduction of small bank notes $4,219,025. The amount of legal-tender notes of the denomination of $1 outstanding at that date was $20,257,109, and of twos $20,035,525; total, $40,292,634, and the increase since that date to Nov. 1, 1880, has been $3,404,584. Thus it will be seen that while small notes of national banks have been reduced more than $4,000,000 ($4,219,025) in compliance with the law since the date of resumption, the legal-tender notes of the same denomination have been increased $3,491,584. The total amount of these denominations of both kinds outstanding Nov. 1, 1880, is $47,283,940; total increase during the year, $9,365,575. The decrease during the year previous was $3,649,451. Of the entire amount of national-bank and legal-tender notes now outstanding nearly 7 per cent. consists of $1 and $2 notes, more than 31 per cent. of $1, $2, and $5 notes, and more than 58 per cent. is in notes of less denomination than $20, and 80 per cent. is in notes of lower denomination than $50. Of entire issue about 20 per cent. is in denominations of $50 and upward.

The amount of circulation of the Bank of France Jan. 30, 1879, was $456,194,166, showing an increase between that time and Jan. 29 of $6,100,707. The Imperial Bank of Germany issues no notes of less denomination than $7.50, and the Bank of France issues but about $2,000,000 in notes of less denomination than $5. The Bank of England issues no notes less than $25, and the Banks of Ireland and Scotland none less than $5. The amount of circulation in this country in denominations of $5 and under was $214,326,338 on Nov. 1, 1880. In the foreign countries named a large amount of silver and gold coin of lower denominations enters into general circulation. It will be impossible to keep in circulation any large amount of small gold coins or silver dollars unless coinage of the latter is restricted and small notes withdrawn.

The total amount of United States bonds held as security for circulating notes on the 1st of November, 1880, was $359,748,959. On Oct. 1, 1865, the total amount of bonds held for this purpose was $276,250,550, of which $199,397,950 was in 6 per cents. and $76,852,600 in 5 per cents. On Oct. 1, 1870, banks held $246,891,300 of 6 per cents. and $95,942,550 of 5 per cents. Since that time there has been, to Nov. 1, 1879, a decrease of $185,211,560 in 6-per-cent. bonds, and an increase of $51,137,200 in 5 per cents.

Banks now hold $36,988,950 of 4½ per cents., which have been deposited since Sept. 1, 1876, and $119,075,100 of 4 per cents., which have been deposited since July 1, 1877. During the year $19,243,800 of 4 per cents. have been withdrawn, chiefly for the purpose of realizing large premiums on these bonds, and $22,370,750 of 5 per cents. deposited, which will mature in a few months. The banks still hold $8,000 of 6-per-cent. 5-20 bonds and $526,900 5-per-cent. 10-40 bonds, upon which interest has ceased. They also hold $146,552,850 of 5's of 1881, which are redeemable the 1st of next May, $2,010,000 6's of 1881, payable the 1st of January next, and $50,482,150 6's of 1881, which are redeemable the 1st of July next.

The large number of 4-per-cent. bonds recently withdrawn from the treasury by the national banks shows that the banks are taking advantage of the present high rate of premium commanded by those bonds to realize a profit equal to three years' accrued interest. On July 1 there was on deposit in the treasury to secure circulation of national-bank notes and Government deposits about $134,000,000 of 4-per-cent. bonds, and about $143,000,000 of 5-per-cent. bonds. The amount of 4-per-cent. bonds now on deposit is about $118,000,000, and of 5-per-cent. bonds over $159,000,000, thus showing a decrease in 4 per cents. of about $16,000,000, and an increase in 5 per cents. of about a like amount. In substituting the 5 for the 4-per-cent. bonds the banks realize the premium on the latter, and can replace them with 5 per cents. at about par. The substitution has taken place for the most part during the past six weeks, and at present the 4 per cents. are being withdrawn at the rate of about $700,000 per day.

All of the 5 and 6-per-cent. bonds now held by national banks, with the exception of Pacific railway bonds, will mature on or before July 1, 1881, and will probably be replaced by bonds bearing interest at 4 or 4½ per cent., only new bonds, hereafter to be issued by authority of Congress, bearing a less rate of interest. The amount of bonds held by national banks Nov. 1, 1880, was $403,369,350, and the amount held by other banks and bankers of the country in the above table is $228,053,104. The total amount held by all banks and bankers is shown, approximately, to be more than one-third of the whole interest-bearing funded debt of the United States, as follows:

State banks and trust companies	$ 23,408,504
Savings banks	180,187,816
Private bankers	14,366,684
National banks	403,369,350
Total	$631,422,454

The increase in net deposits of national banks during the year was $187,385,075, of savings banks $34,508,295, of private bankers $42,749,004 and of State banks and trust companies $61,714,761, making a total increase in bank deposits of the country of $326,356,815. The total number of national banks, State banks, savings banks, private bankers, etc., in the country June 11, 1880, was 6,532, with total banking capital of $650,049,390, and total deposits $2,219,883,290.

The total estimated amount of coin and bullion in the country Nov. 1 was $612,283,357, of which $454,012,030 was gold and $158,271,327 silver. The amount of gold and silver, and per cent. of each held by the United States treasury Nov. 1, 1880, was as follows:

Standard dollars	$ 47,084,459
Other coin and bullion	30,672,857
Total silver	77,757,316
Gold coin and bullion	140,725,953
Total coin and bullion	218,483,269
Per cent. of silver	35.6
Per cent. of gold	64.4

The amount of bullion in the Bank of England in October, 1880, was $141,692,000, and in the Bank of France Oct. 29, 1880, was $116,146,000. The percentage of gold held was 31.7, and of silver 68.3. Statistics show a rapid reduction during the last two years in the amount of outstanding circulation of banks which have ceased to do business, and indicate that the final loss upon notes of national banks will not exceed 1 or 1½ per cent.

The Comptroller recommends that the law now in force be so amended that the national-bank circulation shall be redeemed upon a percentage of notes outstanding; that the banks in operation shall pay their proportion of expense, and the remainder to be borne by the Government, which alone receives the benefit, and should, therefore, pay its just shares. The Government has for the past fifteen years annually received an average of more than $8,000,000 of taxes upon deposits, upon a system unknown elsewhere in any country, and it is certainly but just that it should bear the expenses of redemption of these notes from circulation, of which it receives the entire benefit. The total amount of national-bank notes received for redemption by the Comptroller of the Currency and at the redemption agencies of the treasury during the year 1880 is shown to have been $60,000,000. The number of bank notes which have been issued since organization of the system is 187,677,919, valued at $989,066,965. Of these 98,986,565, valued at $641,005,534, have been redeemed, and 38,740,653, valued at $342,062,451, were still outstanding on Nov. 1, 1880. The amount of national-bank currency destroyed during the year ending Oct. 31, 1880, was $25,330,660.

The Comptroller says: The total losses charged off by banks during the year were $14,706,406, and for the four years previous $85,646,000. The total losses charged off during the last five years are more than 25 per cent. of the entire capital of the banks. During the last five years the average number of banks annually passing dividends on account of losses have been 279. The average amount of capital upon which no dividend has been paid during that time is $42,266,244, from which it follows that, for a continuous period of five years, about one-seventh of the whole number of banks in operation have paid no dividends, and that nearly one-tenth of the total capital has been unremunerative.

The Comptroller deals at considerable length with the subject of national-bank taxation. He admits the right of the States to tax the shares of banks organized under State laws, but holds that they have no right to impose a higher tax on national-bank shares than on any other money capital in the hands of individuals. He recommends Congress to pass a law fixing the maximum rate of taxation which the State can impose on these shares. The Comptroller repeats his previous recommendation that the national law imposing a tax on the capital and deposits of the banks and providing for the use of the 2-cent check stamp be repealed. He says that the tax on spirits, tobacco, and beer, together with the customs revenue, would be quite sufficient to meet all the expenses of the Government, and to reduce the public debt at the rate of hundreds of millions of dollars every year. The abolition of the match tax and the tax on patent medicines is also recommended.

PRESIDENT HAYES' MESSAGE.

The chief features of the President's annual message to Congress have been telegraphed from Washington in advance of its delivery to that body. From a summarized report, sent to the Chicago Tribune, we condense as follows: A considerable portion of the document is devoted to a review of the administration, particularly to the Southern policy. Attention is called to the fact that the country has again escaped the ravages of the yellow fever, and the work of the National Board of Health is approved. Recommendations are made that the United States Marshals, from whom payment has been withheld for some years, shall be paid for services which they have legally rendered.

On the subject of finances, the message shows that the President has not changed his views. As to the fisheries, the President is able to report indications of a change in the attitude of the British Government on this subject consequent upon the change in the British Cabinet, as Lord Granville is not disposed to make the treaty of Washington and the powers of the British empire subordinate to the police regulations of the fishing villages on the Newfoundland coast. The President announces the successful negotiation of a treaty with the Chinese empire. The propriety of making a new commercial treaty with Spain is referred to; and attention called to the necessity of improving commercial relations with the Spanish West India islands. The portion of the message devoted to Mexico treats of the proposed commercial relations with that country, and of the railroad enterprises now in contemplation between the United States and the City of Mexico, and strongly recommends them. The President indorses the position taken by the Secretary of the Treasury's report relative to the proper means to be taken to redeem the obligations of the United States which will fall due next year, and urges the necessity of the passage of a funding law.

Attention is called to the necessity of such legislation respecting the United States Supreme Court as will relieve the court and prevent the delay of justice and the possible oppression of suitors. The President still adheres to the belief that the creation of additional Circuit Judges would afford a complete remedy. The President agrees with the Secretary of the Interior in the belief that mounted Indian auxiliaries to be put under the control of the army would be of great service as a means of keeping the Indians on their reservations, and of preserving the peace. There is an earnest recommendation that Congress pass a bill for protection of timber upon the public domain.

Department Estimates.

The book of estimates containing the amount of appropriations required by the public service during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1882, has been completed. The total amount estimated for the legislative expenses is $3,038,643. The amount appropriated for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1881, was $2,971,897. The estimate for the executive proper is $98,068, against $97,484 appropriated last year. The following are the estimates for the several executive departments during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1882, and the appropriations made therefor for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1881:

Departments.	1882.	1881.
State	$ 163,440	$ 159,940
Treasury	9,356,364	8,716,240
War	1,257,380	1,224,860
Navy	165,420	173,160
Interior	2,325,204	2,045,984
Postoffice	697,792	601,460
Agriculture	334,720	244,300
Justice	137,420	125,180

The total amount estimated for the executive departments aggregate $14,536,404.23 for 1882. The appropriations made for the same time in 1881 were $13,403,608.50.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Total judicial	$ 350,300
Foreign intercourse	1,257,035
Military establishment	30,240,790
Naval	15,022,331
Indian affairs	4,858,865
Pensions	50,000,000
Public work	15,069,536
Postal service	3,690,757
Estimated amount required for the postal service for 1882	42,475,932

The estimated amount which will be provided by the Department from its own revenue accruing from postages and other sources is $38,845,174, leaving deficiency to be provided for out of the general treasury $3,690,757.

OTHER ITEMS.

Public printing paper, binding and lithographing	$ 2,003,156
Payment of Judges of the Court of Claims	400,000
Life-saving stations	619,900
Revenue-cutter service	1,100,000
Engraving and printing	425,000
Lighthouse establishments	2,099,000
Coast and geometic survey	536,900
Maintenance of fish-hatching vessels, construction of standard weights and measures, suppressing counterfeiting and other crimes, and for other miscellaneous objects under Treasury Department	1,493,280
Signal service	450,000
Miscellaneous objects under the War Department	2,432,236
Miscellaneous objects under the Interior Department	3,217,175
Miscellaneous objects under the Department of Justice	3,265,000
Grand total	$298,202,722

The appropriations for 1881 were in the aggregate $298,050,097.

HERE'S another chance for farmers' boys. The cat's tail that grows so plenteously in our swamps is becoming quite an article of commerce. It is used extensively with grasses and other plants in decorating the interior of houses. A Providence firm has laid in a stock this season of 3,000.

Report of the Commissioner of Agriculture.

Commissioner Le Duc, in his annual report, strongly recommends that a new building for the Department of Agriculture be erected. The plans of the proposed structure have already been finished. In appearance the building, as shown in the plan, reminds one of the pictures of the Sydenham Crystal Palace. The offices and work-rooms of the department are arranged upon the four sides of a hollow parallelogram 1,000 feet in length by 500 feet in depth, the inclosed space to be made a conservatory for the preservation of specimens of plants and trees valuable for economic or ornamental purposes which can be grown in any portion of the country. It is proposed to place those in the space alloted to the States where they can be the most easily and profitably grown. An exhibition of agricultural implements to be furnished by the manufacturers is also provided for.

Commissioner Le Duc will use his influence in opposition to the scheme of the stock-raisers and cattle-dealers to get an appropriation from Congress for the investigation of diseases of animals. This work the Commissioner says has been progressing under the auspices of his department for the last two or three years, and has been performed by the most renowned and skillful veterinary surgeons in the land. The original work is in fact nearly finished, and all that the proposed commission could do would be to go over the same ground again. As a result of the work performed by the agents of the department a bill is now pending before the Senate Committee on Agriculture embodying the remedial suggestions of the gentlemen who have conducted the investigation. This bill was introduced last April by Senator Johnston, who says he will endeavor to secure its passage at the approaching session of Congress. By its provisions it is made an offense punishable by fine and imprisonment for any person to deliver for transportation, or for any railroad official to receive for transportation, live cattle affected with any infectious disease, and especially with contagious pleuro-pneumonia. Section 4 provides for a commission to be composed of the Commissioner of Agriculture, the Second Assistant Secretary of State and the Second Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, whose duty it shall be to take measures for the suppression of infectious and contagious diseases of domestic animals. Appropriations to be made by Congress are to be awarded to the several States which shall signify their acceptance of the rules and regulations formed by the board in sums sufficient to purchase all diseased animals at two-thirds the value of sound animals, which diseased animals are to be slaughtered. Commissioner Le Duc says the investigations of the agents of the department have resulted in the discovery of the present territorial limits of the pleuro-pneumonia, and have practically proved that the disease is not remediable. It is gradually, but very slowly, extending south, being communicated from farm to farm. Its eradication, he believes, may be easily accomplished, but it can only be done by killing all diseased animals and all who have been exposed to the disease. A comparatively small sum will be sufficient to accomplish this now. Among the later results of the work of the veterinary surgeons working under the auspices of the Department of Agriculture, and which have not yet been published, are the following: Dr. D. E. Salmon has made some valuable discoveries in regard to chicken-cholera. Prof. James Law has been experimenting to see if a diluted preparation of the virus of the swine-plague will not give the animal a slight attack of the disease, resulting in the exemption of the animal from the more serious attack. He has met with only partial success. Dr. H. J. Detmers, on the other hand, has been experimenting with preventives, and believes he has met with success. There is no remedy for the disease, but the discovery of a preventive, if it is effective, will save many millions annually. A new disease has also been discovered. Its presence was not suspected until it was noticed that the English Government "scheduled" American cattle and sheep. It is known as apthous fever, or the foot-and-mouth disease. Sheep, cattle, hogs, horses and poultry are all liable to the attacks of this disease, and as long as it exists animals shipped from American ports are liable to be placed at a disadvantage in the European markets.

RECORDER—"James Webster, you are accused of robbing Old Mose of $4 on the corner of Galveston avenue." Prisoner—"Yes, sar; I is ob de 'pinion dat de mitigatin' sarcumstance ought to be tuck into consideration." "What mitigating circumstance do you refer to?" "De trubble I tuck not to hurt his feelings. I knows what de ole man suffers when he has to part wid a dime, so I fixed it so he nebber knowed when he parted wid de cash." "That was very kind in you. How did you manage it?" "I jest chloroformed him, out ob pure kindness, wid a club before I ran my hand in his pocket. He is a mighty wiry ole man when he is awake, and you has to get a 'sessment fur campaign puposes outen him."—Galveston News.

A NEVADA Bishop says there is no Sunday in that State. It is a mining State, and mining is so important and controlling an interest that religion has taken a back seat.

THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK.

BEEVES	$7 25	@10 50
HOGS	4 70	@ 4 90
COTTON	12	@ 12¼
FLOUR—Superfine	3 75	@ 4 25
WHEAT—No. 2 Spring	1 19	@ 1 23
CORN—Ungraded	60	@ 62
OATS—Mixed Western	42	@ 45
RYE—Western	1 03	@ 1 04
PORK—Mess	14 25	@15 25
LARD	9	@ 9¼

CHICAGO.

BEEVES—Choice Graded Steers	5 25	@ 6 25
Cows and Heifers	2 25	@ 3 50
Medium to Fair	4 35	@ 4 85
HOGS	3 50	@ 5 00
FLOUR—Fancy White Winter Ex	5 75	@ 6 25
Good to Choice Spring Ex	5 00	@ 5 50
WHEAT—No. 2 Spring	1 00	@ 1 11
No. 3 Spring	91	@ 96
CORN—No. 2	41	@ 43
OATS—No. 2	31	@ 34
RYE—No. 2	91	@ 93
BARLEY—No. 2	1 05	@ 1 07
BUTTER—Choice Creamery	32	@ 34
EGGS—Fresh	24	@ 26
PORK—Mess	12 30	@12 70
LARD	8¾	@ 8⅞

MILWAUKEE.

WHEAT—No. 1	1 09	@ 1 14
No. 2	1 07	@ 1 08
CORN—No 2	40	@ 44
OATS—No. 2	33	@ 34
RYE—No. 1	87	@ 88
BARLEY—No. 2	87	@ 88

ST. LOUIS.

WHEAT—No. 2 Red	1 06	@ 1 07
CORN—Mixed	42	@ 43
OATS—No. 2	33	@ 34
RYE	89	@ 90
PORK—Mess	13 50	@13 75
LARD	8¼	@ 8½

CINCINNATI.

WHEAT	1 07	@ 1 08
CORN	46	@ 46
OATS	36	@ 37
RYE	98	@ 99
PORK—Mess	13 00	@14 00
LARD	8½	@ 8⅝

TOLEDO.

WHEAT—No. 1 White	1 04	@ 1 05
No. 2 Red	1 07	@ 1 08
CORN—No. 2	43	@ 44
OATS—No. 2	33	@ 34

DETROIT.

FLOUR—Choice	5 25	@ 6 75
WHEAT—No. 1 White	1 07	@ 1 08
CORN—No. 1	49	@ 50
OATS—Mixed	36	@ 37
BARLEY (per cental)	1 35	@ 2 10
PORK—Mess	13 50	@14 50

INDIANAPOLIS.

WHEAT—No. 2 Red	1 06	@ 1 07
CORN	42	@ 44
OATS	33	@ 34
PORK—Clear	15 75	@16 00

EAST LIBERTY, PA.

CATTLE—Best	4 85	@ 4 75
Fair	4 00	@ 4 25
Common	3 50	@ 4 00
HOGS	4 30	@ 4 80
SHEEP	3 50	@ 4 50

AUBURN COURIER.

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 9, 1880.

SUSAN B. ANTHONY and Mrs. E. Cady Stanton have been at work together several months on a book that will place the tyrant man where he belongs.

JAY COOKE says that 185 miles of railroad have been laid on the Northern Pacific during the past summer, and that in two years it will be open to the Pacific.

THE friends of Benjamin Harris Brewster, of Philadelphia, will press his name for appointment as Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court in case of the retirement of Mr. Justice Strong.

THE population of Baltimore is shown by the census to be 332,190; males, 157,361; females, 174,829; native, 276,176; foreign, 56,014; white, 278,487; colored, 53,689; Chinese, 4; Japanese, 1; Indians, 9.

IT is stated that the Duchess of Edinburgh feels badly on account of her unpopularity in England. She herself is genial, kindly, accomplished and very finely educated, but the English like neither her devotion to her father's ideas nor her religion.

THE Emperor William's constant activity and many appearances in public are explained by the conviction of his medical advisers that a quiet life would be detrimental to his health. Busy as he is, however, the old gentleman is far from robust. He looks very feeble, and has to be lifted from his carriage by two attendants.

THE Princess Louise, it is again declared, will not return to Canada, and it is added that the Princess, who is frankness itself, makes no secret of the disappointment to which she has been subjected in her endeavor to throw a little refinement into the tone of the Canadian viceregal court. The Princess, who has always been regarded as the artist of the royal family, finds herself completely isolated from all artistic life at Ottawa.

ROWELL's recently published American Newspaper Directory would lead one to suppose that pretty nearly every trade, as well as some diseases, must have an "organ." For instance, there are the Barbers' National Journal, the Tailors' Review, the Lakeside Watch, the Ice and Fish News, the Tobacco Leaf, the Grain Cleaner, and the National Laundry Journal. The most suggestive titles, however, are the Journal of Inebriety and the American Cancer Journal.

THE two sons of the Prince of Wales—Prince George and Prince Victor—have made a highly creditable examination, and returned to their mother laden with prizes. They are immensely popular with the people of Dartmouth, where the Bullania lies. The two boys, on joining, were at once christened "Herring" and "Sprat," and by these sobriquets are known to this day. The Princes respond to their curious appellations with jaunty frankness and sailor-like good humor. Among their special fancies is a craving on the part of Prince Victor for lump sugar, and on that of Prince George for nutmegs. The Kings of England have all had such fancies. The passion of George III. for apple-dumpling was equaled only by his curiosity as to how the apple got into it.

THE publication of Mrs. Swisshelm's "Half a Century" brings to the surface her sharp, short, and decisive tilt with George D. Prentice, which those who ever knew anything about it have very likely forgotten. She had just established her anti-slavery Saturday Evening Visitor, in Pittsburgh, when Prentice gave her a left-handed editorial welcome in his Louisville Journal, wherein, among other remarks not complimentary, he called her "a man all but the pantaloons." To this she replied in rhyme:

Perhaps you have been busy
Horsewhipping Sal or Lizzie,
Stealing some poor man's baby,
Selling its mother, maybe.
You say—and you are witty—
That I—and 'tis a pity—
Of manhood lack but dress—
But you lack manliness,
A body clean and new,
A soul within it, too.
Nature must change her plan
'Ere you can be a man.

This retort raised a general shout of "Brother George, beware of Sister Jane," and he did.

THERE are three unfinished Pacific railways in the United States, and one in Canada. The probable aggregate cost of the three unfinished roads is put down in the maximum at $150,000,000. The Canadian railway will probably cost at least $100,000,000. There is no doubt a large part of the progress of the country in wealth and trade during the past ten years was caused by the influence of the one through line. All the additional lines have since become prosperous and profitable. Even in the South a reaction has occurred, and Southern railways now yield their due proportion of income upon their investment, and also stimulate industry and trade. In some sense the addition to trunk lines only seems to increase their powers of monopoly. But it would hardly seem possible that the construction of additional lines to the Pacific can increase those monopolistic powers which have enabled the Pacific roads to keep up that dearness of transit which has hitherto so greatly hindered the development of the Pacific States. It is calculated that the Northwestern States could much better afford to spend $1,000,000,000 upon the Northern Pacific road, in order to secure its completion within two years, than see it anticipated in point of time by the Canadian Pacific.

THE large population of England, crowded into a small area, has been for a century the consuming people of the world. They formerly drew their supplies from Russia and Southern Africa. From 1815 to 1845, during the existence of the corn laws, the price of wheat in England was frequently $3 per bushel. Since, by the removal of the protective duty the supply has been marvelously increased, and the prices reduced to $1.12 to $1.36. England is still the point to which the surplus food of the world flows to a final market. Last year the deficit of Europe was 250,000,000 bushels, which was supplied by 175,000,000 bushels from America; the remainder from India, Australia, and Russia. Thus, Europe is the only part of the globe that does not produce enough to eat. The world's consumption of wheat is estimated at 2,000,000,000 bushels, of which America supplies one-fourth. This year the United States production is put at from 450,000,000 to 500,000,000 bushels, or say, 493,000,000. Deducting 275,000,000 for home consumption and seed, and there remains a surplus of 218,000,000 bushels. It is asked: What is to be done with this? Last year Europe took 180,000,000 bushels, while the average American exportation during the last ten years has been 86,000,000 bushels per annum. It is supposed by many that the overplus arising from the difference between even our largest export in any one year and the present surplus cannot be warded off, and that consequently prices must recede. But people forget that this is an exceptional prosperous time with us, that we are consuming more of every product than we were last year, that Europe, especially Great Britain, is consuming more, and consequently that not only will the surplus be consumed, but at higher prices. It is not natural that wheat should be falling while every other product is rising in price, and such, we feel assured, will not be the case. When money is so plenty wheat is always high in price.

Spending Money.

No doubt it is pleasant to spend money; but there is a solid satisfaction in saving it. One of the best uses to which money can be put is to save it for the needs of illness or old age. Expenditure should be made rigidly subject to income and well within it, so as to leave some margin of saving. Some people are doing it, and many, too, whose incomes are very narrow. Looking along the column of daily deposits at one of our savings banks, we find sums from one dollar to ten dollars more frequent than any other, the weekly or monthly mickle delved by honest toil, rescued from consumption, and brought in to add to the muckle by the servant-girl, the teacher, the mechanic, the laborer, the clerks and others on small salary. In days of prosperity we should provide for days of adversity.

Too Loud.

Jim Webster, a saddle-colored sport, is in the habit of perfuming himself with musk and other fashionable perfumery, much to the disgust of Uncle Mose, who is a plain old darky, devoid of all ostentation. He met Jim Webster, and the latter said:

"Look heah, Mose, I hear ob your comparin' me wid a striped polecat. Now I'se gwine to sue you foah damages."

"G'way, niggah," said Old Mose, holding his nose. "I dunno which is damaged de mos' by de comparison, you or de skunk; but by de way yer smells yer must be representin' bofe de beastesses, an' I ain't gwine to 'low nobody to double-team on me dat away. Look at de size ob dat brogan. G'way, or I'll h'ist yer, chile."—Galveston News.

Signs of the Times.

"No," said the vagrant with a sigh, "times are getting better; they're not what they used to be. A man's offered more work than wittals."

"Haven't you signs among you so that you know where to go, and how you will be treated, and all that sort of thing?"

"Well, we each have signs of our own. If I see a big, powerful bull-dog hanging around the front door, I take that as a sign meaning 'move on.' If there are a few stout men in the next field to the house, that means 'too much gristle and too little meat.' If a large pile of cord-wood stands by a house with a bucksaw reclining against it, that's a sign for 'saws-edge.' Oh, yes, we have lots of signs—good, reliable signs, too."

A CERTAIN English General at the point of death, opened his eyes, and, seeing a consultation of four physicians who were standing close by his bedside, faintly exclaimed: "Gentlemen, if you fire by platoons it's all over with me," and instantly expired.

MISS SUSAN M. HOLLAND, of Agency Ford, Mo., likes to have men swear before her. She is a Notary Public.

A VERY SAD AFFAIR.

The Young Man Who Was Ambushed by a Syringe.

A Rockland young man was courting a fat girl at the North End and had progressed very favorably with his suit. One evening he dressed up in his best clothes, carefully combed his hair, and started out to make his tri-weekly visit to his fair one, who is waiting in her parlor with fond expectation in her heart, and a cold in her head, superinduced by the fluctuating weather. This was, as you might say, the prologue to the tragedy. It appears, moreover, that the fat girl's father—who is worth many thousands of dollars in good, sensible bonds, and as a consequence is an object of the young man's tender regard—had for several nights previous been the victim of some unknown miscreant who had raided on his hen pen with disastrous effect. Sick of such foolishness, he had prepared a ghastly retribution for the fowl villains, and to this end he filled a big garden syringe with about a gallon of ancient beef brine, seasoned with garlic and flavored with asafœtida, and was lying in ambush behind a box, where he could sweep every approach to the hennery. The young man who is pretty well acquainted with the whole family, thought he would surprise his girl by entering the house unexpectedly by the back way. This is the situation:

A is the hennery; b is the old man, and c the syringe; d is the young man lightly turning to thoughts of love as well as the corner of the fence; e is the house itself, painted brown, and f is the fat girl sitting by the piano and singing "Father, dear father, come home;" gggg is the gathering darkness.

Gaily up the back yard the young man comes. Silently in ambush the old man lies. Cheerily the fat girl warbles. Quiet but awful is the syringe. In the uncertain light of early evening the old man sees a figure stealthily drawing near the pen. With bated breath he waits the onslaught. The syringe sounds its dreadful "wh-s-s-p" and its deadly contents fly through the air like a wild and mad avenger. A yell that tore the azure robe of night, fairly knocked the fat girl off the piano stool and curdled the old man's blood, followed the discharge, and when the neighbors rushed in, under the impression that the Grant boom had bursted right in the neighborhood, they found the unfortunate young man pawing the ground, and screaming out awful Mexican words terrible to hear, while the old man hovered over the scene with a syringe in his hands, looking like an animated figure escaped from an allegory. Sympathizing arms bore the young man into the house, after their owners had stopped their nostrils with cotton, and it required the combined efforts of the fat girl and eight friends to bring him to, and it was some hours before he was able to fairly inquire if the meteor hit anybody else when it struck.

That night, beneath the darksome shade of a cypress tree, whose thick branches the struggling moonbeams vainly strove to pierce, an old man's tottering form rested upon a spade, and silently viewed a new-made grave. He had just buried the syringe.

Fish Culture---Experiments with the Carp.

The United States Fish Commission has accomplished some remarkable results, and has greatly increased the extent of the food-fishes of the country, but no part of the commission's work is more valuable or of greater interest than the successful cultivation of carp. The commission have just drawn off the water from Babcock lake, the small carp-pond near the monument lot in this city, where most of the experiments have taken place. The result shows that the carp can be successfully cultivated in the muddiest inland streams, and it is said even in sloughs, swamps and mud-puddles. Prof. Baird has already received applications from 3,000 private persons for young carp with which to make the experiment in the Western States. The carp-ponds were stocked last spring with a few hundred carp, placed under the immediate management of Dr. Hassel, who has devoted most of his life to carp-raising in Germany, but who was induced to come to this country three years ago by Prof. Baird. The young carp bred in these ponds are now being distributed throughout the country. A number have been sent to Illinois, Ohio, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan. The experiments have been so successful that new carp lakes for propagating purposes are to be constructed here. One containing eight acres has already been commenced, and another one of five acres is in contemplation. Prof. Baird says that one pair of carp will stock an acre of water, and that the spawn from a single fish will yield from 5,000 to 10,000 young fish. They do not commence to spawn until 4 years old. Dr. Hassel, the Superintendent, has seen carp in Austria 300 years old, so old that even moss grew on the back of the fish; yet it was active, and appeared to have as much vitality as the younger fish. The usual maximum weight of the carp is thirty pounds. Dr. Hassel did not succeed in making any carp live to reach this country until he had made three trips with the fish. Those brought out on the first two voyages died. In the spring of 1877 he succeeded in landing in good condition 130 young carp. From these fish all the carp in this country have been produced within three years. Prof. Baird hopes in the course of a few years to be able to stock most of the Western waters with these fish.—Washington Cor. Chicago Tribune.

Death in Toys.

The effect of india-rubber toys on the health of children in whose hands they are placed has been still further investigated in Berlin, and with some striking results. In one instance a child, having a doll of this material, and having kept it for some time in its mouth, grew sick, and the doll, laid in vinegar, became covered with incrustation. On examination there was found in 0.7325 gram of such a doll 0.4446 gram zinc oxide, or 60.58 per cent. Another portion gave, after being subjected to a red heat, 62.64 gram of ash, yellow while hot, white on cooling; in the ash, beside the zinc, were traces of lime, iron and phosphoric acid. From another doll, which had been warranted "harmless," about 58 per cent. of ash was obtained, consisting almost wholly of zinc oxide. To the presence of the latter is attributed the fact of the poisoning.

REPORT OF SECRETARY SCHURZ.

The larger part of the report of the Secretary of the Interior is devoted to Indian affairs. In his opening chapter upon this subject the Secretary gives an explanation of the important change which has taken place with regard to the reservation system. He says that although at first accepting, as he found it, the reservation policy which had so long been followed by the Indian Office, more extensive observation and study of the matter gradually convinced him that this was a mistaken policy; that it would be better for the Indians, and more in accordance with justice as well as wise expediency, to respect their home attachments; to leave them upon the lands they occupied, provided such lands were capable of yielding them sustenance by agriculture or pastoral pursuits, and to begin and follow up the practice of introducing among them the habits and occupations of civilized life on ground they inhabited. In view of the fact, also, that the maintenance of the system of large reservations against the pressure of white immigration and settlement would, in course of time, become impracticable, a different policy has been followed, having for its object the settlement of the Indians upon lands in severalty, and the disposal for their benefit of their lands not required for this purpose, and gradually to prepare the way for their final incorporation into a body politic as independent and self-relying men, invested with all the rights which the other inhabitants of the country possess. The results already accomplished in pursuance of this policy and the promising outlook in the same direction are described in general terms, and illustrated by specific accounts of the progress made by the individual tribes.

Secretary Schurz expresses the firm belief that the agricultural industry of the Indians would be greatly stimulated and its product much increased if assurance were given to them that they will be secure in the possession of their lands.

The Secretary continues: "I desire also to call attention once more to the bill repeatedly introduced in Congress extending over the Indian reservations the jurisdiction of the courts of the States or Territories in which such reservations are located, giving the Indians a standing in such courts, and securing to them the full benefit of the laws. I venture to express the hope that Congress may not adjourn again without having taken action upon these important measures so essential to the progress and security of our Indian wards."

The number of Indian youth learning trades in workshops at the agencies has increased from 185 last autumn to 358 this year. The policy of employing Indians as workmen, and even as foremen and machinists, at the agencies has been continued and extended with great success. Brickmaking has been begun. Houses for the Indians are now almost exclusively built by the Indians themselves. The aptitude shown by the Indians for mechanical work has, in many cases, been surprising, and is considered deserving of every possible encouragement. Expressions of anxious desire on the part of Indians belonging to the so-called wild tribes to have their children instructed in the ways of civilized life have, it is stated, grown so numerous and urgent that the inadequacy of the means placed at the disposal of the department for this purpose has become particularly painful. The desire and purpose of the department is to largely increase the present small number of industrial boarding-schools for Indian youth, as the day-schools at the agencies do not withdraw the pupils from the influences of home surroundings sufficiently to facilitate a change in their habits of daily life.

The report next mentions as another important civilizing agency, largely introduced under the present administration, the organization of a police force consisting of Indians, which has been put in operation at forty agencies. The force now consists of 162 officers and 653 privates. Its benefits, both as a means of maintaining good order and as a moral influence upon the Indian tribes among whom it has been established, are set forth as worthy of special notice. Looking at the present condition of things, it may be said without exaggeration that, on the whole, the Indian situation is now more hopeful than ever before. The desire of the Indians to maintain friendly relations with their white neighbors, to go to work for their own support, to cultivate the soil, to acquire permanent homes, to have their children educated, and to assimilate themselves to the civilization of the country, is growing stronger and more general every day.

Secretary Schurz remarks that experience has strengthened his conviction (which, as this is his last report, he now feels at greater liberty to express) that the management of Indian affairs should continue to be intrusted to the civil and not to the military branch of the public service. His argument on this topic has been fully foreshadowed in former annual reports.

The report enters into many interesting details concerning the present condition of individual tribes. The case of the Poncas receives minute attention. The injustice done them by their original removal from their Dakota lands is fully described, but it is also clear to the Secretary that it would be contrary alike to their own interests and to those of the country at large to remove them from their present homes.

"Attempts by evil-disposed persons to invade the Indian Territory and to take possession of certain unoccupied lands there have so far been successfully frustrated by the prompt action of the Government, but they have been as persistently repeated. It is reported that another attempt is in preparation now. The military forces of the United States in the Territory are instructed to arrest intruders, and to take proper measures to bring them to justice, as they have done heretofore. But it is evident that the penalty imposed upon repeated intrusion into the Indian Territory, which penalty consists in a mere fine, and is difficult of enforcement, is not sufficient to deter lawless characters from such undertakings. I concur with the Commissioner in recommending that a law be passed adding a penalty of imprisonment to that of fine. If this is done invaders will know that such attempts are not without serious risks to them."

Referring to the measures instituted by the department to put a stop to depredations on public timber lands, the Secretary reports they have been highly successful. During the past three years upward of $240,000 have been turned into the treasury as the result of keeping the department's special agents in the field to defend and prosecute wholesale timber trespassers, and the illicit cutting and exportation of timber from the public lands along our coasts, which had grown to an enormous yearly aggregate, has been almost entirely arrested.

The Secretary again urges upon the attention of Congress the great desirability of enacting laws to provide for the proper preservation of our forests by preventing the reckless waste which now attends the cutting of timber in many parts of the country without restraint.

The report also contains, among other matters not above indicated, a series of synopses of reports, extension of the geological survey all over the United States, and the adoption by legislative enactment of Commissioner Bentley's plan for taking evidence in pension cases by oral examinations throughout the country; concurs with Commissioner Marble in asking an increased force of clerks and examiners for the Patent Office; recommends early action upon the Public Land Commission's bill; indorses Gen. Walker's recommendation for authority to secure prompt publication of the census furnished under special instructions of the department by the Governors of the various Territories, setting forth their material resources and their respective attractions for immigrants.

"He was a kind parent, a good citizen, and had three horses that could beat 2:30," is considered about the right thing for an obituary in Kentucky.—N. Y. Commercial Bulletin.

INDIANA NEWS.

THE wife of Col. John Bridgeland, United States Consul at Havre, France, died at Richmond of consumption.

WHILE oiling shafting in a saw-mill at Columbia City, John Brown was caught in the fly-wheel, and dashed to pieces.

JOHN CARNEY, Auditor-elect of Jennings county, who died on the day after his term should have begun, last week, was sworn in on his death-bed so as to have the appointing power with the County Commissioners.

THE Grand Lodge I. O. O. F. elected the following officers: Grand Master, William Cumback; Deputy Grand Master, N. P. Richmond; Grand Warden, S. P. Oyler; Grand Secretary, B. F. Foster; Grand Treasurer, T. P. Haughey.

JOHN H. HARPER, one of the oldest residents in South Bend, died of heart disease. He had just recovered from his first illness in forty years. Mr. Harper was at one time candidate for Treasurer of State on the Republican ticket. He served two terms as Treasurer of St. Joseph county.

WILLIAM N. GARRETT, of Decatur county, cast his twenty-first Presidential ballot at St. Paul precinct, on Nov. 2, having voted for Thomas Jefferson in 1800, and for every Democratic candidate since that time. Mr. Garrett was born in Culpepper county, Va., on March 9, 1779. If he lives till the 9th of next March he will be 102 years old. He was married to a lady in Rockingham county, Va., by whom he had twenty-five children, of which two only remain living. He settled in Rush county, Ind., in the year 1829, where he has since resided. At the last election he voted with his children, his grandchildren and his great-grandchildren.

LIEUT. GOV. GRAY, who now becomes Acting Governor, is a native of Chester county, Pa. His parents moved to Ohio in 1836. Young Gray removed to Union City in 1855, where he still resides, and is engaged in the practice of law. Gov. Morton appointed him Colonel of the Fourth Indiana cavalry, and he also raised and organized the One Hundred and Forty-seventh infantry in 1864. He was elected a Senator of the State in 1868. In July, 1870, he was appointed Consul to St. Thomas, but declined the appointment. He was a delegate-at-large to the National Liberal Convention of 1872 at Cincinnati. The Democratic Convention of 1876 nominated him for Lieutenant Governor, and he was elected on the ticket with Gov. Williams.

The Official Vote.

The following table gives the vote of Indiana for Presidential electors at the late election, as canvassed by the board:

COUNTIES.	Dem.	Rep.	Nat.
Adams	2,226	1,014	33
Allen	7,791	4,815	84
Bartholomew	2,920	2,575	57
Benton	1,273	1,523	62
Blackford	1,020	781	127
Boone	2,742	2,770	690
Brown	1,576	509	42
Carroll	2,215	2,318	61
Cass	3,079	2,687	119
Clark	3,659	2,890	34
Clay	2,898	2,851	363
Clinton	3,015	2,865	110
Crawford	1,368	1,134	88
Daviess	2,387	2,330	93
Dearborn	3,615	2,547	19
Decatur	2,291	2,590	98
De Kalb	2,582	2,441	110
Delaware	1,836	3,063	60
Dubois	2,498	909	16
Elkhart	3,472	4,191	187
Fayette	1,230	1,760	11
Floyd	3,160	[illegible]	170
Fountain	2,361	2,297	[illegible]
Franklin	3,181	1,683	9
Fulton	1,804	1,757	61
Gibson	2,477	2,662	74
Grant	2,370	[illegible]	168
Greene	2,346	2,456	192
Hamilton	2,093	3,620	166
Hancock	2,273	1,722	125
Harrison	2,481	1,966	231
Hendricks	1,994	[illegible]	312
Henry	2,031	3,784	262
Howard	1,796	3,000	121
Huntington	2,657	2,630	195
Jackson	3,136	1,907	67
Jasper	848	1,320	91
Jay	2,161	2,343	106
Jefferson	2,647	3,206	[illegible]
Jennings	1,710	2,008	[illegible]
Johnson	2,461	2,020	207
Knox	3,449	2,693	24
Kosciusko	2,837	3,571	96
Lagrange	1,303	2,367	116
Lake	1,198	2,103	39
Laporte	3,680	3,531	191
Lawrence	1,701	2,057	[illegible]
Madison	3,722	2,796	[illegible]
Marion	11,362	[illegible]	[illegible]
Marshall	2,670	2,180	[illegible]
Martin	1,621	1,411	37
Miami	3,050	3,016	107
Monroe	1,682	1,780	165
Montgomery	3,405	3,642	105
Morgan	2,040	2,391	133
Newton	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Noble	[illegible]	2,876	81
Ohio	[illegible]	727	18
Orange	1,521	1,422	97
Owen	[illegible]	[illegible]	108
Parke	[illegible]	1,672	[illegible]
Perry	1,807	1,659	27
Pike	1,700	1,618	229
Porter	1,578	2,242	117
Posey	3,015	2,127	[illegible]
Pulaski	1,004	[illegible]	[illegible]
Putnam	2,830	2,539	119
Randolph	2,059	4,236	44
Ripley	2,470	2,309	12
Rush	2,334	2,677	62
Scott	1,100	771	16
Shelby	3,535	2,646	68
Spencer	2,475	2,362	79
Starke	[illegible]	[illegible]	178
St. Joseph	3,682	4,147	[illegible]
Steuben	[illegible]	[illegible]	106
Sullivan	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Switzerland	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Tippecanoe	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Tipton	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Union	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Vanderburgh	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Vermillion	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Vigo	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Wabash	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Warren	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Warrick	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Washington	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Wayne	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Wells	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
White	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Whitley	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Total votes	225,522	232,164	12,986
Net plurality		6,642

The vote for Governor at the October election footed up:

Porter, Republican	231,405
Landers, Democrat	224,452
Gregg, National	14,881
Porter's plurality	6,953

Children CRY FOR Pitcher's Castoria.

Mothers like, and Physicians recommend it.

IT IS NOT NARCOTIC.

CENTAUR LINIMENTS; the World's great Pain-Relieving remedies. They heal, soothe and cure Burns, Wounds, Weak Back and Rheumatism upon Man, and Sprains, Galls, and Lameness upon Beasts. Cheap, quick and reliable.

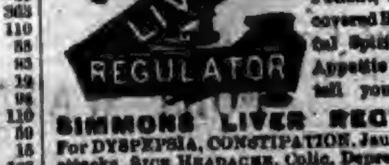
MISHLER'S
HERB
BITTERS

A Compound Tincture of the most valuable remedies known to the medical profession, prepared upon strictly pharmaceutical principles.

NOT A BEVERAGE

THE MISHLER HERB BITTERS CO. Lancaster, Pa.

Parker's Pleasant Worm Syrup.



ARE the recovered Dyspeptics, Bilious Sufferers, Victims of Fever and Ague, the Mercurial Diseased Patient, how they recovered Health, Cheerful Spirits and Good Appetite—they will tell you by taking

SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

For DYSPEPSIA, CONSTIPATION, Jaundice, Bilious attacks, SICK HEADACHE, Colic, Depression of Spirits, SOUR STOMACH, Heartburn, etc.

IT HAS NO EQUAL.

PURELY VEGETABLE.

J. H. ZEILIN & CO., Philadelphia, Pa.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

AGENTS WANTED

PILES

Book for the Million

THE PRIVATE MEDICAL ADVISER

DR. BUTTS' DISPENSARY

Seminal Pastille

DR. BUTTS' DISPENSARY

INDISCRETION—EXPOSURE

YOUNG MAN

PATIENTS TREATED

Fruit House Prices

—FOR—

Christmas and New Year.

GREAT DROP ON

Sugar, Coffee, Prunes, Teas, Etc.

All SUGARS reduced 1 cent per pound.
All COFFEES reduced 2 cents per pound.
Turkish PRUNES reduced 4 cents per pound.
TEAS reduced 10 cents per pound.
And for the Holiday trade we have

Toys, Toy Candies, French Candies, German Toys, Christmas-Tree Candies, and New-Year Gifts of every Description.

Santa Claus in all His Glory.

SUGARS REDUCED 1 1-2C PER POUND.

Crushed	9½c	Coffee A	9c
Powdered Sugar	9½c	Coffee C	8c
Granulated	9½c	Brown Sugar	7c

COFFEES REDUCED 2C PER POUND.

Choice Rio	14c	Roasted Rio	16c
Best Rio	16c	Best	20c
Old Government Java	25c	This is the lowest coffee has sold since 186[illegible]

TEAS DOWN 10C PER POUND.

Our tea trade is simply immense No secret about it—just the same rule as in Sugars, sellin at a small profit, and purchasing direct of the importer; we therefore save the profits of the speculator and wholesale merchant. This profit our customers get the benefit of, and it is from 10c to 15c per pound.

Young Hyson	25c	Good Young Hyson	40c	Best Young Hyson	60c
Imperial	40c	Good Imperial	50c	Best Imperial	65c
Gunpowder	40c	Good Gunpowder	50c	Best Gunpowder	65c
Oolong Black Tea	30c	Good Black Tea	40c	Best Oolong	60c
Uncolendered Japan	30c	Good Japan	40c	Best Japan	60c

All our Teas, even the second qualities, warranted to give satisfaction, and the best can't be beat. Our 60c Tea is equal to any dollar tea sold elsewhere.

Christmas and New Year Goods.

Santa Claus Toys, Christmas Tree Candles and a thousand other things for the holidays, such as Bears Lions, Leopards, Cats, Dogs, Monkeys, Wagons, Hose Carts, Soldiers, Drums, Vases, Albums, Fancy Candies, French Candies, Fruit Candies, Stick Candies 12½c per lb.; French Candies, 15c per pound; Fruit Candies, 20c and 25c per pound, etc., etc.,

Fresh Oysters down 5 cents Per Can,

XXX	15c	Family	25c	S & W	30c	Select Frying	35c

Tobacco of All Kinds.

No 1 Fine Cut	75c	Good Fine Cut	40c
Choice Fine Cut	60c	Good Plug Tobaco	40c
Choice Plug Tobacco	50c	Durham	48c
Best No. 1	60c	Uncle Ned	35c
Smoking	25c

Fish Oil, 70c; Neats Foot Oil 70c; Machine Oil, 25c and 35c; Headlight Oil, 20c.

Syrups, Molasses and Maple Syrup.

Extra Golden Syrup, per gallon	45c	Maple Syrup	1
White Sugar Loaf Drips	60c	Best New Orleans	60

FOR CHRISTMAS CAKE.

Citron, per pound	25c	Orange and Lemon Peel	25c	Shelled Almonds	40c

Nuts of all kinds and best Turkish Prunes, 6c

Liquors, Wines Whiskies Scotch Ale, Dublin and London Porter.

Good, new Whisky, per gallon	$1 00	California wine	$1 25
Whisky, one year old	1 20	New England Rum	1 50
Whisky, two years old	1 40	Brandy	1 25
Whisky, three years old, '76	2 50	Scotch Ale, per bottle	2
Sherry Wine	1 25	London Porter	18
Port Wine, per gallon	1 25	Doublin Stout

Fish, Meats, Pork, Lard, Bacon, Spices, &c.

25 Cents on the Dollar you can save at least by purchasing at the

FORT WAYNE FRUIT HOUSE,
FORT WAYNE, INDIANA.

The Greatest Medical Discovery of the Age.

Kellogg's Columbian Oil is a powerful remedy, which can be taken internally as well as externally by the tenderest infant. It cures almost instantly, is pleasant, acting directly upon the nervous system causing a sudden bouyancy of the mind. In short, the wonderful effects of the most wonderful remedy cannot be explained in written language. A single dose inhaled and taken according to directions will convince any one that it is all that is claimed for it. Warranted to cure the following diseases: Rheumatism or Kidney Disease in any form, Headache, Toothache, Earache, Neuralgia, Sprains, Bruises, Flesh Wounds, Bunions, Burns, Corns, Spinal Affection, Colic, Cramping Pains, Cholera Morbus, Flux, Diarrhœa, Coughs, Colds, Bronchial Affection, Catarrh, and all aches and pains, external or internal. Full directions with each bottle. For sale by Casebeer & Matheny. 34 eow-1y.

1881.

HARPER'S BAZAR.

[ILLUSTRATED.]

This periodical, by its able and scholarly discussions of the questions of the day, as well as by its illustrations—which are prepared by the best artists—has always exerted a most powerful and beneficial influence upon the public mind.

The weight of its influence will always be found on the side of morality, enlightenment and refinement.

HARPER'S PERIODICALS.

HARPER'S BAZAR one year	4 00
" WEEKLY one year	4 05
" MAGAZINE one year	$4 00
The three above publications	10 00
Any two above named	7 00
HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE 1 year	1 50

Postage free to all subscribers in the United States or Canada.

The volumes of the Weekly begin with the first number for January of each year. When no time is mentioned it will be understood that the subscriber wishes to commence with the number next after the receipt of order.

The last eleven annual volumes of Harper's Weekly, in neat cloth binding, will be sent by mail, postage paid, or by express, free of expense (provided the freight does not exceed one dollar per volume), for $7.00 each.

Cloth cases for each volume, suitable for binding, will be sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of $1 00 each.

Remittances should be made by post-office money-order or draft to avoid chance of loss.

[Newspapers are not to copy this advertisement without the express order of Harper & Brothers.]

Address, HARPER & BROTHERS.
New York.

The word is out that President Hayes will show in his message to congress that he can write on civil service if he cannot enforce his ideas. There was a time when Mr. Hayes might have done more than write on this subject. Had he remained at his post during the late campaign, he might have prevented a black-mailing raid on the clearks in the departments at Washington. McPherson and his gang took a mean advantage of the presiden's absence.

A traveler was badly hurt in a railroad accident—two ribs broken and other injuries. He went to the office to complain. "What!" cried the office clerk, "you want to make a row about so small a matter? Not a month ago twelve of our passengers were killed, and we did'nt ever hear a word of complaint from any of them."

1881

THE STEADFAST WATCHMAN

—of—

PUBLIC INTELLIGENCE,

and Exponent of American Democracy.

THE INDIANA

STATE SENTINEL!

Has again been enlarged. It will here after be a

56 Column Quarto,

Making a growth in size of over twenty per cent., or an addition of reading during the year of 416 Columns.

This makes the Sentinel the largest and most desirable weekly paper in the United States, placing it ahead of all its rivals. Every Indian should be proud of it.

Price Per Year, Single Copy, $150

Special Rates To Clubs.

Persons wishing to become agents send for private circulars and sample copy. Liberal cash commission to agents, also first-class list of special premiums offered.

Address

SENTINEL COMPANY,
Indianapolis, Indiana

1850. PIONEER 1880

Hardware Store.

Headquarter for Stoves !

The Celebrated Buffalo N. Y. Stoves have been sold in this house for 25 years. A full stock alway on hand.

—A full line of—

BUILDING HARDWARE and SHELF GOODS.
Wagon and Buggy Mterial,
White Lead, Paints, Oils and Varnishes,
Table and Pocket Cutlery,
Silver-Plated Knives and Forks and Spoons,
Granite Iron-Ware,
Oliver Chilled and Bryan Plows.
FARMING IMPLEMENTS
BLACKSMITHS' MATERIALS,
Buffalo Scales, Sash & Doors,
WOOD AND IRON PUMPS, & DRIVE-WELL FIXTURES,
All at prices to suit the times.
Call at the old stand when you want bargains.

JOHN L. DAVIS, Proprietor.

ISAAC HAGUE'S

NEW SHOE STORE!

A NEW STOCK OF

BOOTS AND SHOES

Arriving daily, for spring and summer trade. Fine goods for ladies a specialty. A full line of men's and boy's shoes, of the lates styles, at low prices. Our facilities for buying are such as to enable us to buy at manufacturers prices, thereby saving our customers one or more profits. Call and examine our stock and satisfy yourselves that what we say is true.

MR. CHARLES RAUT

Is associated with me, and as we are both experienced workmen we are prepared to do custom work, either sewed or pegged, on short notice and at reasonable rates. Repairing promptly attended to. Remember the place,— firstdoor east of Mcquiston & Halstons double store, north of the court house, Auburn, Ind.

16-tf. ISAAC HAGUE

THIS SPACE IS OWNED BY

THE BOOT UP-SIDE DOWN

For the special benefit of everybody that wants to buy.

UNPRECEDENTED BARGAINS IN

BOOTS, SHOES AND RUBBER GOODS!

FOR THE NEXT 90 DAYS.

We have a mammoth stock of everything kept in a first-class Boot and Shoe store, at prices

150 DEGREES BELOW ALL COMPETITION!

We will sell the goods to reduce our stock, and remember we have the only

$10,000 STOCK OF BOOTS AND SHOES

In DeKalb county to select from. Don't fail to see us before purchasing.

ARTICS $1.00 PER PAIR AT THE BOOT UP-SIDE DOWN, Auburn, Ind.

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Devoted to the Interests of the Democratic Party and to the Collection of Local and General News.

Volume 10. AUBURN, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, DECEMBER 16, 1880. Number 51.

The Auburn Courier

PUBLISHED BY THE

COURIER COMPANY.

BUSINESS CARDS.

Cards not exceeding five lines each will be inserted under this head for $5.00 per annum. For each additional line 50 cents extra will be charged.

ATTORNEYS.

D. D. Moody,

ATTORNEY AT LAW AND NOTARY public. Also Prosecuting attorney for DeKalb County. Office in Court House. Auburn, Ind.

PHYSICIANS.

J. J. Littlefield,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. OFFICE AND residence on 10th St., opposite S. W. Halsten's. All calls promptly attended to, day or night. Auburn, Indiana. 32 1y

HOTELS.

Central House,

TENTH STREET, EAST OF MAIN. GOOD Sample rooms, and low rates. T. D. Gross, Prop'r Auburn, Ind.

BUTT'S HOTEL.

FREE OMNIBUS TO AND FROM ALL trains. Good sample rooms on first floor. John Butt, Proprietor, Waterloo, Indiana.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Thomas Baldock,

PROPRIETOR of Stuart's [illegible] compound Asphalt roofing, for DeKalb county, Ind., manufactured at Charlotte, Michigan. Call or address at Auburn Indiana. 33-tf.

James, Is That You?

[Boston Post.]

Women are timid creatures, and hate to be left in a house alone at night, so the other day when Mr. Gallagher went away from home, leaving his wife with only an ignorant servant, she was very much worried, and readily harkened to the voice of an agent who called just after Gallagher had gone around the corner, and wanted to sell her a machine which would prevent burglars from getting into the house. She bought them. Those placed at the front and back doors were so arranged that, when the door was opened, a hammer would swing down from above and knock down the person trying to enter. A third contrivance of different pattern was placed on the stairs and another at the front window. Gallagher unexpectedly returned late that night, and attempting to enter the front door got a blow on the nose that knocked him down the steps into the street. He was both surprised and annoyed at the circumstance, and, utterly unable to understand it, tried the door again. Same result. He then thought somebody was behind the door trying to assassinate him, and, getting up very mad, ran around to the back door to get in that way. There he got a thump that sent him backward into the swill-barrel, and he was terribly cross when he got up. He grabbed an ax, and, as he opened the door, again struck with it. But he hit nobody and got another knock-down. Then he went and got a policeman, so that one could tackle each door, and one be sure to get in; but after both had enjoyed three knock-downs they met and compared notes, and decided that two men must be in the house. They then tried the front window, and, raising it, a deluge of icy water from a hose arranged to bring it flew upon them. But they braved that and got in. Then they ransacked the lower part of the house, but could find nobody, and meantime Mrs. G., upstairs, heard them, and nearly died of fright. They started upstairs, Gallagher first, and near the top a stair, fixed on a pivot, rolled under Gallagher and hurled him backward, and he went to the bottom, taking the policeman with him. They both yelled, but Gallagher yelled the loudest, and his wife recognized his voice and his favorite oath. Her courage returned. She went to the head of the stairs and cried: "James, is that you?" James was painfully hurt and awful mad then, and the policeman was trying to get back the breath Gallagher had squashed out of him. "No," cried James, "it's not me; it's some other fellow. Jim Gallagher was never knocked down seventeen times in one night!" But she knew it was he and explained matters. And then Gallagher gave the policeman $10 to say nothing about the matter, and the officer retired, and then Gallagher jawed his wife for two hours, and the next day went seven miles to overtake the man, who sold her the machines, and kick the life nearly out of him. He admits that the things would be dreadfully discouraging to a burglar, though.

Christianey.

[Utica Observer.]

Of all the failures which strew the pathway of Hayes' progress, old man Christianey is about the worst.

A DUELING REMINISCENCE.

The Fatal Barton-Graham Meeting on the Spot Where Hamilton Fell.

The recent unveiling of the statue of Alexander Hamilton brings up recollections of the ground upon which the duel between Hamilton and Burr was fought. In a recent conversation with an elderly gentleman, an old New Yorker, this subject was brought up, and he gave a graphic account of a duel between one Barton and a Mr. Graham, (the latter being one of the editors of the Courier and Enquirer), not far from the very spot where Hamilton had lost his life some years before. In the spring of 1830 or '31, the narrator, being then a young man, and the owner of a fast Whitehall boat, was approached one evening by two gentlemen who wished to know if he would take a party from the foot of Cortlandt street the next morning at 5 o'clock; this the narrator promised to do, and, at time appointed, he was on hand with the boat, manned by four oarsmen and himself at the tiller. Three gentlemen got on board, and he was directed to steer toward Pauu's Hook, now Jersey City. From there they proceeded up the river to a spot on the beach above Hoboken, and about 100 yards from the spot where the memorable duel had been fought. They all landed, and about fifteen minutes afterward another boat, owned by Captain Anthony B. Fountain, put ashore with Mr. Graham and another party. When this last boat landed, while stepping ashore, Graham stumbled and fell over a rock, saying to the gentleman with him, who turned out to be his second, "Eddy, it won't do to fall yet." This was the first intimation the narrator and Captain Fountain received that a duel was about to take place. While the seconds were measuring off the ground, an old farmer and several men, all with hoes over their shoulders, approached the spot, and one of the men hurried as though he were about to try and stop things where they were, but the old farmer said, "Stop, John, d—d it all, if they want to shoot, let them shoot one another." After some ten paces had been measured off on the beach, the seconds tossed for choice of position, the principals took their pistols, and Barton took his stand facing to the south, Graham facing north. The narrator and Captain Fountain stood near the beach about midway between the combatants, the seconds and the doctor, who was with them, standing opposite.

When the signal was given they fired, Graham's shot striking about midway between the combatants and Barton's shot almost grazing Graham's right side. After the first fire a short conversation ensued between the principals and seconds, which the narrator did not overhear, after which they again took their positions. At the second fire Graham fired first without hitting Barton, and Barton, after taking deliberate aim, fired, hitting Graham in the groin. The injured man jumped about four feet into the air, and the narrator and Captain Fountain ran to the spot and caught him as he fell. Dr. DeLeod then examined him, and observed: "It is all day with him." Graham said, "Barton, my dear fellow, you have shot me; I forgive you." Barton said, "I am sorry." The old farmer and his men then approached, but before they reached the place the parties had all taken to their respective boats. On first leaving the shore the boats were somewhat separated, but they afterward came together, and Barton took from his pocket a flask containing brandy and passed it to Graham. The two boats then took different directions, the narrator taking Barton back to Cortlandt street, and on the way he asked Barton why he shot Graham after his pistol went off and his reply was: "My God, I never thought of it," and the narrator was convinced from his manner that it had never occurred to him that he might have thrown away his fire. Barton told the narrator (and at such a time it is to be supposed that he would have told the truth) that the pistol with which he had just shot Graham was the identical pistol with which Burr had shot Hamilton.

Barton went to the City hotel and packed up his trunks, and was rowed to Staten Island. He was then driven across to Amboy, thence to Cape May, where a pilot boat conveyed him to a ship bound for Havre. The narrator understands that he remained in Paris for some time, and was engaged in the office of the United States consul. Graham died before the boat reached the shore, and there was considerable excitement at the time over the affair. The narrator and Captain Fountain, as also the oarsmen in the two boats, kept shady for a few days, but upon being advised to go to the proper authorities and make a clean breast of it, they did so and were discharged.

REVISING THE SCRIPTURES.

What Prof. Phillip Schaff, of the American Committee, Says About the Work—The New Testament Ready for Publication.

[New York Star.]

In one of the offices of the bible house in this city a reporter of the Star found a pleasant-faced elderly gentleman, who spoke with a slight German accent, and who is known as Prof. Phillip Schaff, a member of the American committee for the revision of the bible. Prof. Schaff is well versed in the ancient and modern languages, and therefore fully qualified for the difficult task that was taken in hand by himself and his co-laborers. He has devoted a great deal of time to the work, and when the fact is taken into consideration that he is to have no financial remuneration for his labor, it will be understood that there is a great amount of self-sacrifice on his part. In common with his associate, he feels that he is bestowing a great boon upon all Christendom. The professor is withal a very modest man and reluctant to accept even the credit that is his due in the matter.

"Will you give me some facts in regard to the bible revision for publication in the Star?" inquired the reporter of the professor.

"Certainly," was the reply. "I will tell you all I am at liberty to communicate, under the circumstances. There are some points that are yet under the seal of confidence, and it will be a breach of confidence for me to divulge them."

"Do you feel at liberty to mention some of the principal changes that have been made in the text?"

"Yes, sir, I will give you a few illustrations on the point to which you refer. For instance, there is the word 'prevent,' which frequently occurs in the bible. Now, in most cases, its meaning is entirely misunderstood. According to Webster and other leading lexicographers, the word signifies to stop or hinder a thing or act. As used in the bible it means to precede or to go before. John, the Baptist, 'prevented' Christ—that is to say, he was a forerunner of the Savior."

Prof. Schaff said that nearly all the changes were in idioms. In no place was an entire sentence eliminated, interpolated or made to give place to another. The learned men engaged in the revision have endeavored to give the real meaning of the original Greek and Hebrew with scrupulous exactness.

To show the new version of the bible will compare with the old, Prof. Schaff said that if a person were to take a Roman Catholic bible and a copy of one of the versions used by protestants, and compare the two together, it would be observed that there were many instances in which the wording of the texts differed, but the use was the same. The latest revision of the scriptures differs in like manner from the old. Frequently there will be found a dozen or more consecutive verses, and sometimes whole chapters, in which not the slightest change has been made. On the other hand, there are chapters which, compared with the original, would remind the reader of a "badly marked up" proof-sheet in a printing-office.

The work on the new testament now being complete, the work is in press, and will be shortly thrown upon the market so that the public will have an opportunity of judging its merits and demerits. It is expected that several thousand copies of the revised new testament will be sent from Europe to America for circulation within six or eight months. In the meantime, a limited edition of a few hundred copies will be furnished to persons who subscribe toward paying the expenses of the committee in prosecuting their labors. The reporter asked Professor Schaff if he had any objection to stating what expenses it was intended should be defrayed with the subscriptions. The professor replied: "The members of the committee, especially those residing in America, have been obliged to use a large amount of their own money for traveling and other expenses connected with the work. It is no more than right that they should have their money returned to them."

"What are the terms of subscription?"

"Well, sir, after thinking the matter over the committee came to the conclusion that it would be a good plan to have several hundred of the first copies of the New Testament that came from the press handsomely bound, as memorial volumes. Every person who subscribes $10 will be given one of the memorial Testaments."

"Do you think the plan will be a successful method of raising money?"

"Oh, yes. This morning I received five subscriptions, amounting to $50. There are many persons who will desire to have a copy of the memorial edition. The book will be kept in families as an heirloom. I wish it distinctly understood that none of the money subscribed will be paid as salaries to the committee or as compensation in any form for the work of revision. What we have done and are doing is a labor of love. We want no reward except the consciousness of having performed our duty in this great and much-needed work."

"You have told me some interesting facts in regard to the revision of the New Testament. Now, will you be kind enough to tell me about the progress of the work of reconstructing the Old Testament."

"The old testament will be issued just as soon as the committee can complete its revision. The work is being pushed forward toward completion as rapidly as possible. Of course it is a very slow and tedious task. It is no uncommon thing for hours, and even days, to be consumed in the consideration of a single idiom. When the committee held their first meeting before commencing the work they resolved to take the utmost care to so perform their task that their revision would stand the test of the more severe criticism. I entertain the highest respect for my associates on the committee. They have labored conscientiously and in harmony. Disputed points have been discussed with good sense and moderation, and in every instance the opinion of the majority has been made the rule of action."

"Can you indicate approximately the date when the Old Testament will be placed before the public?"

"I really can not; but I hope the date is not far distant when a complete revised edition of the Bible will be printed. In the meantime, the public must patiently await its appearance."

He Won a New Bible.

[Opie Read in the Little Rock Gazette.]

Two young preachers, rivals in the ministerial profession, met on the street yesterday, when Mr. Slinger, the Methodist, remarked to Mr. Billings, the Baptist:

"Good morning, Brother Billings, how do you feel since your labor of Sunday?"

"First-rate. I had a good audience, and it makes me feel good to think that the people are turning from their ways of wickedness. There was a time in Little Rock when, if a minister could group together 100 people, he was doing well. Yesterday I had 300, which, considering the number of our churches is remarkable. I am sorry to learn that your church is not getting along well."

"How do you know my church is not getting along well?" asked Mr. Slinger.

"Oh, well, I hear so from authentic sources."

"That's all right," continued Mr. Slinger; "let that go for what it is worth. It is, of course, inconsistent with our profession to bet, but waiving for a moment the requirements of our divine calling, I'll bet you a Bible that I had a larger congregation than you did."

"The requirements of the divine calling shall for the moment be waived. Notwithstanding the fact that I am a preacher, I remain a human being all the same, and do not propose to be bullragged. Come on, and put up your Bible."

The two preachers went into a book store, selected Bibles, and called up a deacon as a witness.

"Well," said Mr. Billings, "my congregation last Sunday numbered 300. I know this to be a fact, for I hired the sexton to count the people."

"My congregation was 500," remarked Slinger, with a confident air.

"Did you count 'em?"

"No."

"Well, how do you know? Why, your little church won't hold that many."

"That is all right. I had a congregation of 500. Not a man got up and left. There was not the slightest disturbance, and the three women, who were present, behaved themselves."

"Look a heah, whar did you preach?"

"I preached to the convicts at the penitentiary."

There is a new Bible on the stand at Mr. Slinger's house.

The Cabinet

[Globe-Democrat.]

Garfield's cabinet is to be composed of—but no, we will not violate the general's confidence.

United States Supreme Court.

[Nashville American.]

It is beginning to be apparent that the United States supreme court will soon be solidly republican.

Saved.

[Manchester (N. H.) Union.

Garfield and Hayes have dined together and the country is saved.

The Lime-Kiln Club on Ingersoll.

[Detroit Free Press.]

The president stated that he was in receipt of a communication from St. Louis, asking the club how it stood on the Bob Ingersoll question of God or no God. He would ask Sir Isaac Walpole to answer it for himself and for his fellow-members. He was willing to abide by what the good old man said, and he believed all others would be.

The white-headed old man, old and wrinkled, and burdened with the weight of seventy years, rose in his seat, looked about him and quietly began:

"If dar am no God, dem dar am no fuchur. When we close our eyes in death de soul dies wid us, an' we molder to dust de same as de brutes. It has bin a long journey for me. In my heart am de grave of wife an' chill'en. My days have bin cloudy an' full of woe. My nights have bin dark and full of sorrow. I have bin robbed, cheated, abused an' made to feel wretchedness, but nebber, not eben in my darkest hour, did I doubt dar was a God, nor did I lose faith in Him. Take away that to-night—make me believe dat dar am no heaben—tell me dat I won't meet my poor old Chloe an' de blessed chill'en up dar 'mong de angis, an' you would crush me down an' break my ole heart. Dat's all I 'pear to be libin' fur—to wait de Master's call to close de ledger of life an' go home! I am old an' poor an' lowly, but heah in my breast am a feelin' dat I wouldn't sell fur all de gold in de world—dat all de arguments of a million Ingersolls could not change—a feeling dat poor as I are an' lowly as I am, de grave will not be de las' of me."

During his remarks the hall was as quiet as the grave. When he had finished it was a full minute before any one moved. Then Brother Gardner softly said:

"As say Sir Isaac, so say we all."

Beecher, Calvinism and Grant

[New York Sun, Monday.]

In his sermon yesterday, Beecher became very much excited over the notion of God conveyed by the Calvanistic faith. He advanced to the edge of his pulpit and cried:

"I tell you, brethren, emphatically and undeniably, that the Calvanistic creed is hideous in its idea of Almighty God. In it, God is made repulsive, despicable and dastardy in the extreme. No one of its thousands of ministers believe a word of their orthodox theological training, which teaches that God is a merciless being, who brings millions of men into the earth only to send them to everlasting hell if they do not live up to the letter of their creed. If the ministers of the Calvinistic creed profess belief in their work they profess to a lie. If any minister does believe in the doctrine he is some stiff old lightning-rod man, who spends his life in his pulpit, and doesn't know his congregation, nor do his congregation know him."

Gen. Grant sat in the center of the church, and at the end of the service, the people crowded around him, refusing to go out. Beecher, at length, mounted the platform and said:

"I wish you would go home now; this house is for the worship of God, not for man."

At this Grant laughed outright.

Senator Johnston, of Virginia, is preparing an article upon the condition of the South. He will seek to show that the difference in the rate of the material progress of the two sections of country is due in no slight degree to the small amout of pecuniary assistance the South has recieved from the General Government, in comparison with the immense sums that have been appropriated to the North—appropriations to the latter amounting to billions, while a few millions will cover all that has been appropriated to the entire South.

Money to Loan.

In sums and on terms to suit all. Apply at Guy Plumb's law office. Low rates of interest.

35-3m. C. N. HASKALL.

Tickets! Tickets! Tickets!

First-class, emigrant and round-trip railroad tickets to all points east or west can be bought at low rates by calling upon the undersigned at Auburn Junction, or addressing

J. J. MARTIN, Ag't, B. & O. R. R.
tf Auburn Ind.

Examination Of Teachers.

Examinations for the year commencing June 1st, 1879, will be held regularly, in the high-school building at Auburn, the last Saturday of each month. Special examinations at other points on due notice.

W. H. MACINTOSH,
Co. Sup't, of schools

Proving too Much.

Walter Savage Landor used to relate an anecdote of one of our judges. Being on the circuit, two old men were brought before him as witnesses, and according to custom, he began to chat with them among other things, about their ages, for the purpose of giving a moral lesson to the young barristers.

"Well, my good man," said he to the first witness, "how old may you be?"

"About eighty-seven, my lord."

"I daresay, now, you have lived a sober life?"

"Yes, my lord; I haven't been tipsy for the last sixty years."

"There!" cried his lordship, turning to the gentlemen of the bar, "you see what a fine thing sobriety is! The witness looks as though he would live twenty years more."

The barristers nodded assent. In his turn, another witness came forward who looked particularly hale and robust.

"And how old are you friend?" inquired the judge.

"Ninety-five, my lord," was the reply.

"Ninety-five! I'll answer for it you have led a sober life—haven't you?"

Witness hung his head, and answered: "I don't like to say afore all these gentlemen."

"Never mind, speak out."

"Well then, my lord, I haven't gone to be sober for these last seventy years."

At this his lordship looked rather blank, and the bar smiled. The judge then said:

"We will proceed with the case, gentlemen."—Chamber's Journal.

A pair of fashionable glovers met on Main street last evening:

"Good ebening, lub," said he.

"Good ebening, lub," said she.

She takes out her handkerchief, and steps up to the curbstone. Then he returns.

"Howd's your cole, sweetness," he asks.

"Nod mudge better, lub," she answered, again applying her handkerchief.

"Does sweetness lub he devoted Zohn?"

"O, Zohn, 'ow cad you ask id? You know I lub you [illegible]."

Then we left.

Couldn't Go Without Dalzell.

[Atlanta Constitution.]

Ohio statesmen like Sherman couldn't get along without Dalzell. He is the only political midwife in the country.

The Greatest Medical Discovery of the Age.

Kellogg's Columbian Oil is a powerful remedy, which can be taken internally as well as externally by the tenderest infant. It cures almost instantly, is pleasant, acting directly upon the nervous system causing a sudden bouyancy of the mind. In short, the wonderful effects of the most wonderful remedy cannot be explained in written language. A single dose inhaled and taken according to directions will convince any one that it is all that is claimed for it. Warranted to cure the following diseases: Rheumatism or Kidney Disease in any form, Headache, Toothache, Earache, Neuralgia, Sprains, Bruises, Flesh Wounds, Bunions, Burns, Corns, Spinal Affection, Colic, Cramping Pains, Cholera Morbus, Flux, Diarrhœa, Coughs, Colds, Bronchial Affection, Catarrh, and all aches and pains, external or internal. Full directions with each bottle. For sale by Cassbeer & Matheny. 34-eow-1y.

$100
Reward
For any case of
CATARRH
That cannot be cured with
HALL'S CATARRH CURE.

This is no humbug. No nasty douche. No snuff. Nothing to irritate the nasal cavity or distroy the sense of smell. It is an INTERNAL REMEDY ACTING UPON THE BLOOD, cleansing it from its impurities, causing the poisonous matter to be carried off through the natural channels. It is a scientific preparation used and prescribed for years by some of the ablest practitioners in this country, and has never failed to cure when used according to directions.

WE MAKE THIS PROPOSITION:

If any person, after taking one dozen of HALL'S CATARRH CURE is Not Cured or Benefited more than four times its cost, we will refund the money paid. If it does you good you are willing to pay for it. If it does no good it costs you nothing.

PRICE 75 CENTS PER BOTTLE.

Manufactured by F. J. CHENEY & Co., Druggists, Toledo, O.

11-1 yr. For Sale by all Druggists.

AUBURN COURIER.

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 16, 1880.

WEEKLY NEWS REVIEW.

THE EAST.

The Grand Jury at New York has indicted Edward Ellis for writing, and Joseph Hart, Louis A. Post, and Charles A. Byrne for publishing in Truth an editorial headed "Lying and Sticking to It," as also for printing the Morey letter. Samuel S. Morey has been indicted for perjury. The penalty for criminal libel in New York is one year's imprisonment in the penitentiary and a fine of $250.... A syndicate has been formed at New York to take subscriptions for the De Lesseps' Panama canal project.... The cotton-house of the Pepperell Manufacturing Company, at Biddeford, Me., has been burned.

A pedestrian match between O'Leary and Weston, for $5,500, has been arranged to take place in New York.... The Kearsarge cotton mill, a six-story brick structure, at Portsmouth, N. H., has been destroyed by fire. One employe was burned to death and 350 thrown out of employment. The loss is placed at $500,000, on which there is $411,000 insurance.

The wholesale coffee house of B. G. Arnold & Co., New York, has made an assignment, after aspiring to control the trade of the world, the liabilities being about $1,000,000.

Seven persons were killed and five seriously injured at Wendell, Mass., by the explosion of the boiler of a portable saw-mill.

A fire in a manufacturing block at Springfield, Mass., in which the chief engineer and several firemen were injured, did damage to the amount of $125,000.

THE WEST.

The explosion of a kerosene lamp caused the destruction of the Beckwith House, at Oshkosh, Wis. Mrs. Charles E. Harlow was saved by leaping from the fourth floor to outstretched blankets; Mrs. Simon B. Page was taken out insensible, and is dead. A porter and a servant girl also perished in the flames. The loss on the hotel is $60,000.... The trial at Chicago of B. F. Allen, President of the defunct Cook County National Bank, upon the indictment charging him with making false report as to its condition, terminated in a verdict of "not guilty."... Henry H. Key, of national reputation as commander of the "Regulators" among the Andersonville prisoners, has just died at Springfield, Ill. Under his leadership, as such, six men, convicted of plundering sick and dying prisoners, were hanged.

A serious collision occurred on the Wisconsin division of the Northwestern railroad, near Crystal Lake, Ill. The Geneva Lake passenger train, south bound, had stopped to repair a brake, and the dense fog which prevailed prevented the flagman who was sent back to warn the approaching Janesville passenger, also south bound, from being seen by the engineer. The engine of the Janesville train crashed into the rear car of the Lake Geneva train, telescoping it and creating a terrible havoc among the fifteen passengers. Mrs. H. C. Maynard, the invalid wife of the manager of the Western Union Telegraph Company, of Chicago, was the most severely wounded, and at last accounts fears were entertained of her recovery. The only person who escaped without any injury whatever—and that, too, in a most remarkable way—was a son of L. Z. Leiter, who was thrown to the bottom of the car by the shock of the collision, the locomotive passing over his body, but leaving him unhurt, though very badly scared..... The most important dramatic event of the season in Chicago is the production on the boards of McVicker's theater of Sheridan's famous comedy of "The Rivals." The cast is an exceptionally strong one, including Mr. Joseph Jefferson as Bob Acres, Mrs. John Drew as Mrs. Malaprop, Mr. Frederick Robinson as Sir Anthony Absolute, Mr. Maurice Barrymore as Capt. Absolute, Mr. Chas. Waverly as Sir Lucius O'Trigger, and Miss Rose Rand as Lydia Languish. This celebrated comedy has never been seen in the West with such a strong cast, and the management of McVicker's Theater have bestowed unusual care and attention to the mounting of the piece.... In Chicago there are regularly-organized bands of youthful highwaymen from 12 to 15 years of age. Many of them are armed with pistols and knives. When they meet a youngster not of their tribe they seize him, hold him up, go through him, take whatever he has of value, threaten him with vengeance, and then depart hastily. Children of wealthy parents, on their way to school, are their favorite victims.... Dr. C. A. Washington was hanged by a mob at Otero, N. M. He had treated a hotel dining-room girl, who died, stating before her death that he had chloroformed her and taken improper liberties.

A street car on Archer avenue, Chicago, while crossing the Michigan Southern railroad track, was run into by a switch engine. Eight persons on the car were injured, two of them seriously.... Two stores in Central block, Omaha, were destroyed by fire. Her & Co., liquor dealers, lost $50,000, and Collins Brothers, leather goods, $35,000.

Two thousand Oklahoma colonists, encamped at Arkansas City, Kan., formulated an address to President Hayes, announcing their intention to settle upon the ceded lands of Indian Territory, and demanding that Gen. Pope be forbidden to interfere with their plans. Capt. Payne and several of the colonists crossed the line on the night of the 8th inst.

The Theater Comique, in St. Louis, has been destroyed by fire. Loss, $35,000.... Two men were killed and several others injured by the premature explosion of a blast in the Forman shaft at Virginia City, Nev.... Mrs. [illegible], a German woman of Marquette, Green Lake county, Wis., killed her babe by cutting its throat. She then cut her own throat. It is thought she was insane.... A great furore was created in San Francisco by the refusal of the commander of the Mexican gunboat Democrata to obey a writ of habeas corpus and produce a felon in his charge. The court sent the sheriff and posse to the vessel with warrants for the arrest of the original criminal and the commander, but the Mexican officer refused to submit. Soon afterward, however, the prisoner was surrendered at the city prison by the Mexican Consul.

THE SOUTH.

Mrs. Gertrude Neal, of Milton, N. C., knelt in prayer before the grate in her bedchamber, when her clothing ignited, and she was burned to death.

Charles Henderson (colored) was hanged at Friar's Point, Miss., for the murder one year ago of Thomas King, a white man.... The Piedmont and Arlington Life Insurance Company, of Virginia, has made an assignment because of extraordinary mortality among the policy-holders.

The road agents have been at work in Texas again, their latest job consisting in stopping a stage near Brownwood, relieving the passengers of their cash and plundering the mails.

The three negroes—one woman and two men—who murdered Mrs. Kennedy in Clarendon county, S. C., were captured and hung on the nearest tree to the place of the murder that would hold them.

GENERAL.

Advices from Chihuahua, Mexico, bring appalling particulars of the devilment being wrought by the desperate remnant of Victorio's band in the neighborhood of Guadaloupe. In that section from twenty to thirty men, women and children are known to have been murdered and mutilated in the most horrible manner. A detachment of ten returning with Gen. Terrazas, after the abandonment of Victorio's camp, were attacked by about thirty Indians a few days after and [illegible] one man escaped.

WASHINGTON.

Gen. William B. Hazen has been appointed Chief Signal Officer of the army. This promotion advances Gen. McCook to the Colonelcy of the Sixth Infantry. Gen. Ord having been retired, Gen. Augur will take the Department of Texas. It is reported that Gen. O. O. Howard will take command of the Military Academy and Gen. Schofield be sent to California.

Capt. Howgate has resigned his position in the army, presumably because he was disappointed in not being made Chief of the Signal Service.

POLITICAL.

Judge Houston, Republican candidate for Congress in Delaware at the late election, has served a notice of his purpose to contest the seat of Edward L. Martin in the Forty-seventh Congress.

Nicholas Ford, Republican-Greenbacker, received the certificate of election as a member of Congress from the Ninth district of Missouri. The vote, as canvassed by the Secretary of State, shows 21,770 for Ford and 21,768 for Craig, Democrat, giving the former a majority of 2 votes.

FOREIGN.

The British Government has aimed a blow at the Irish press which is destined to add many recruits to the army of the Land League. Proceedings are to be commenced against the proprietor of the Sligo Champion for publishing a notice calling upon a tenant to relinquish his farm.... The allied squadron which sailed the Mediterranean to "demonstrate" in such fashion as to settle the Eastern question, and absolutely refrained from doing anything of the sort, has been formally dissolved. The British fleet sails for Malta, the French for Toulon. And in the future, as pending their alliance, the fleets that made up the squadron will doubtless continue to neutralize each other.... The President of Buenos Ayres offers free lands to 50,000 Irish emigrants.... It is officially proclaimed in Dublin that the County Leitrim is in a state of disturbance requiring additional police. A fund of £3,000 for the defense of the Land-Leaguers has been subscribed. Boycott's farm is described as a complete wreck. It is said that there is almost a universal suspension of the payment of rent.

There was an immense Land League demonstration at Waterford, Ireland, on Sunday. Parnell was escorted through decorated streets to the speakers' stand. In the immediate vicinity were 400 police, 200 infantry, and 100 cavalry.... A dispatch from Paris states that the Panama canal subscription is more than covered already.... Cable dispatches state that anarchy and terrorism are on the increase in Ireland. The leaders of the Land League are endeavoring to prevent bloodshed, and to limit the terrorism to threatening, "Boycotting," and the reduction of rents to Griffith's valuation. They not only fear that bloodshed would bring about immediate coercion, but that it would also check the half-concealed desire of the Government to drop the state prosecutions. In the Queen's Bench Division at Dublin the application by Parnell, Biggar, T. D. Sullivan, Sexton and Dillon for the postponement of the state trials until Jan. 26, on the ground that the date fixed will interfere with their constitutional rights to be present when Parliament meets, was opposed by the Attorney General and refused by the court, with costs. The Chief Justice, in giving judgment, strongly denounced the state of anarchy existing in the country.... Dr. Thomas Grimshaw, Registrar General of Ireland, received a threatening letter for refusing to dismiss his gardener, a pensioner. He has obtained police protection.... Siemens Brothers, of London, have taken a contract to construct and lay two new cables across the Atlantic, at a cost not exceeding £1,500,000.

The work of dispersing Irish Land-League meetings by troops of dragoons was inaugurated the other day at Brookborough, County Fermanagh. The 5,000 people who assembled were driven from the meeting by the soldiers, and three who resisted were arrested.

While the Crown prosecutor was leaving the court-room in Limerick, Ireland, he was assaulted by a street mob because he defended a man to whom the Land League is opposed, but he managed to escape with slight personal injury. Mulholland, a bailiff who attempted to execute a decree against a non-rent-payer in County Tipperary, was attacked by a man named Graham, who shot him dead after a few words of argument. Graham made his escape. At the Omagh Assizes a farmer was sentenced to thirty years' penal servitude for firing at his landlord.... Four Socialists have been jailed at Darmstadt on charge of high treason, and six persons are in prison at Pforzheim for circulating revolutionary publications.

The Bank of England has advanced its rate of discount from 2½ to 3 per cent. This was in consequence of the continued drain upon its specie reserve for shipment to the United States. It indicates that these cannot be expected to continue uninterrupted.... Over 40,000 shares of De Lesseps' Panama canal stock have been bought in Spain already. The Spaniards think the canal will benefit the Spanish West Indies.... The British Admiralty has abolished flogging in the English navy.

CONGRESSIONAL SUMMARY.

The second session of the Forty-sixth Congress assembled at the Capitol in Washington on Monday, Dec. 6. The Senate was called to order at high noon, and prayer was offered by Chaplain Bullock. James L. Pugh, of Alabama, and Joseph E. Brown, of Georgia, were sworn in as Senators, and the credentials of Senator Edmunds, of Vermont (re-elected as his own successor), were read. A committee was appointed to notify the President that the Senate was ready for business. After a brief recess the Senate reassembled, the message was read, and an adjournment voted. The House was called to order by Speaker Randall at precisely 12 m. The roll-call showed 237 members present. The customary committee to notify the President that the House was ready for business was appointed, after which there was a call of the States for bills [illegible]. Mr. Cox, of New York, offered a resolution calling upon the President to communicate to the House the new treaty with China. Mr. Hurd, of Ohio, offered a joint resolution declaring that a tariff for protection (so called) does not, in truth, protect the interests [illegible] wages of workingmen [illegible] the President's message was received and read.

In the Senate, on the 7th inst., Mr. McDonald introduced a bill to authorize local taxation of treasury notes, and Mr. Ingalls a resolution calling upon the President for information in regard to the threatened invasion of Indian Territory. Mr. Jonas, of Louisiana, presented the credentials of the Hon. Thomas C. Manning, the new contestant for Senator Kellogg's seat, and they were read and filed. In the House, Mr. Belford offered a resolution asking the Secretary of the Interior to state the authority for imprisoning at Fort Leavenworth Sub-Chief Douglas, of the Ute tribe, charged with complicity in the murder of Indian Agent Meeker. The Senate resolution relative to counting the electoral vote was called up by Mr. Bicknell. After prolonged debate, the Speaker decided it a matter of privilege. The previous question was then called, and the Republican members refused to vote, upon which Mr. Bicknell withdrew his demand for the previous question.

Mr. Ingalls introduced a bill in the Senate on Wednesday, the 8th inst., providing for the issue of $10,000,000 of fractional currency of the denomination of 10, 25, and 50 cents. Mr. Teller presented a bill to provide certain regulations concerning the manner of conducting elections for Representatives in Congress, and to punish violations thereof. A bill for the erection of a public building at Quincy, Ill., was presented by Mr. Davis. Mr. Morgan presented a constitutional amendment giving Congress authority to make rules for opening the votes of the Electoral College, having been counted by the two houses [illegible] a bill for a State Government [illegible] Dakota. In the House, Mr. [illegible] introduced a joint resolution [illegible] U. S. [illegible] retired list of the army, with the rank and pay of General. The day was mainly devoted to debate on the Senate resolution concerning the counting of the electoral vote. Mr. [illegible] offered a substitute providing that the two Houses, in joint session, the Vice President presiding, ascertain and declare the result of Presidential elections.

In the Senate, on the 9th inst., very little business was transacted, and that body adjourned to Monday. The civil-service portion of the President's Message was referred to a special committee with instructions to report at an early day. On motion of Mr. Paddock, the bill providing for the sale of the remainder of the reservation of the confederated Otoe and Missouri tribes of Indians in Nebraska and Kansas, and for other purposes, was passed. Mr. Pendleton introduced a joint resolution to obtain the privilege of opening a highway through British Columbia to Sitka and Fort Wrangell, Alaska. In the House, the Fortification Appropriation bill was reported and recommitted. It appropriates $100,000 for fortifications and $50,000 for torpedoes. Mr. Kelley introduced a bill repealing the tax on bank checks, friction matches, bank capital and deposits. Mr. Aldrich, of Illinois, introduced a bill amending the law in relation to the tax on savings banks. Mr. McLane then led off in debate on the electoral-vote resolution, on which the rest of the day was spent.

Report of the Director of the Mint.

The annual report of the Director of the Mint shows the work of the year performed at the institutions under charge of the Mint Bureau has been unusually heavy. The deposits of gold bullion at the mints and assay offices have been, both in number and value, greater than in any previous year—$98,835,096—and exceeding by nearly $30,000,000 the highest previous deposit of 1861. This gain was not the result of increased deposits of domestic production, of which $35,821,705 were received, as against over $38,500,000 for the previous year. The deposits of plate, jewelry and worn coin were about $250,000 greater than 1879, amounting to $1,386,834, and receipts of foreign coin and bullion increased nearly $60,000,000, being $61,627,556, out of a total import of $62,550,857. The deposits of silver and deliveries upon purchases were only exceeded during the coinage of fractional silver and trade dollars in 1877 and 1878. The receipts of domestic silver bullion were $32,183,756; foreign coin and bullion, $2,210,105; plate, jewelry and American coin, $2,666,001; total, $34,140,522.79. Of these deposits $36,141,366 in gold and $2,574,225 in silver were transferred or withdrawn from the assay offices or mints, and again deposited, making the total amount received and operated upon of both gold and silver $172,106,221. The coinage of gold, although heavier than in any previous year, could not keep pace with the deposits, and $33,468,874 in gold bullion remained uncoined at the New York Assay Office and Philadelphia Mint at the close of the fiscal year. The mints, however, augmented the circulation $84,370,144, adding $56,157,735 in gold, $27,942,437 in silver, and $269,971 in minor coins.

The total purchase of silver bullion during the year amounted to 4,426,267,138 standard ounces, at a cost of $24,972,461, being an average purchase of $2,081,013 worth of silver bullion per month. The average Treasury Department price of silver bullion of the British standard during the year was 52 7-16d. The total coinage of the standard silver dollar has been $72,847,750. The amount on July 1, 1879, was $7,653,649, and on July 1, 1880, $19,309,435, an increase in the circulation during the year of $11,655,786. The circulation was further increased to November 1, 1880, by the issue of $6,453,856, making the total circulation at that date $25,763,291. The remainder of the coinage, $48,084,459, was in the treasury, $19,706,241 being held for the redemption of silver certificates, and $28,304,218 for distribution. Of the latter, $12,918,505 was still in the mints.

The production of gold and silver in the United States during the fiscal year is estimated at $36,000,000 of gold and $37,700,000 of silver. It is estimated that probably $5,500,000 of gold and $4,000,000 of silver of domestic production, together with $2,500,000 gold and $600,000 of silver United States coin were used in the manufactures and arts, beside the melting up of plate, jewelry, foreign coin and bullion sufficient to make a total consumption in the United States of $10,000,000 in gold and $5,000,000 in silver. The most interesting portion of the report of the Director of the Mint relates to the coin in circulation. The estimates, starting with $135,000,000 in gold and $6,000,000 silver coin in 1873, have been continued to Nov. 1, 1880, by adding yearly coinage, less recoinage, and coin imports, less exports, show an increase in coin circulation for the whole period of $240,323,881 in gold and $147,277,544 in silver coin.

The gain in coin in the country and of bullion in the mints since Jan. 1, 1879, the date fixed for resumption, amounts to $227,399,428, of which $175,701,904 is in gold and $51,697,524 silver. On June 30, 1880, the amount of gold coin in the country was $358,958,691 and of silver coin $142,597,691. These amounts were further increased by Nov. 1, 1880, by net coinage and import of $16,365,190 in gold and $9,680,254 in silver, making the total amount of United States coin at the latter date $527,601,435, of which $375,323,881 was gold and $152,277,544 silver. The mints and assay offices held in addition bullion, which is being coined as rapidly as the facilities will admit, to the amount of $18,558,811 gold and $6,049,567 silver, making a grand total of coin in circulation and bullion available for coinage on the 1st of November of $512,203,605, $453,882,692 of which is gold and $158,320,911 silver. Of the amount of United States gold coin in the country Nov. 1, $62,187,141 was in the treasury, $112,777,802 held by the banks and $200,379,138 in private hands. Of the silver coin, $47,084,459 standard dollars, and $24,629,439 in fractional silver were held by the treasury. The national banks report $5,330,357 as the amount of silver held by them, leaving $75,283,289 in other banks and in general circulation. By a comparison of these figures with the statement made by the Director of the Mint the 1st of November, 1879, it will be seen that the treasury gold reserve has diminished to the amount of $57,738,539 in coin, but holds over $78,000,000 in bullion. The silver coin in the treasury has increased to the amount of $21,324,345. The banks have increased their stock of coin to the amount of $59,147,384 in gold and $411,014 in silver, and the amounts in private hands have been increased by $38,179,030 in gold and $9,065,828 in silver.

They Learned the Lesson.

A schoolmaster endeavors to instill into the minds of his pupils the great truth that you should always count a hundred slowly before you speak, and five hundred if it is anything very important.

He then takes his stand near the stove, and after some minutes observes that the lips of all his scholars are moving slowly and noiselessly.

Presently and simultaneously they all break out:

"Four hundred and ninety-five, five hundred! Say, teacher, your coat tails are all on fire!"

It is the opinion of A. Bronson Alcott "that the man who cannot govern children, or men either, by moral means, by the power of his eye, the charm of his manners, the resources of his intelligence, is not worthy to control his fellow-creatures." If A. Bronson Alcott will only come and govern a boy who stands on his head on the roof adjacent to our winter palace, and gets up campaign processions by means of a broom lighted with kerosene—by the power of his eye, we offer him free board and a new suit of clothes.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

REPORT OF THE SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY.

Secretary Sherman, in his annual report, says the ordinary revenues, from all sources, for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1880, were $333,526,610.98; the ordinary expenditures for the same period were $267,642,957.78, leaving a surplus revenue of [illegible], which, with an amount drawn from the cash balance in treasury of $8,08[illegible]434.21, making $73,96[illegible]7.41.

The amount due the sinking fund for the year was $37,931,643.55. There was applied thereto, from the redemption of bonds and fractional currency, the sum of $73,904,617.41, an excess of $35,972,973.86 over the amount actually required for the year.

The expenditures show an increase over the previous year of $25,190,360.48.

For the present fiscal year the revenue, actual and estimated, is as follows: Total receipts, actual and estimated, $350,000,000; total expenditures, actual and estimated, $260,000,000; estimated amount due the sinking fund, $39,801,884.48; leaving a balance of $50,198,115.52.

The revenues of the fiscal year ending June 30, 1882, estimated upon the basis of existing laws, will be $350,000,000; the estimates of expenditures for the same period, received from the several Executive Departments, are, including sinking fund, $301,554,722.28; or an estimated surplus of $48,445,277.72. Excluding the sinking fund, the estimated expenditures will be $259,914,882.08, showing a surplus of $90,085,117.92.

The surplus revenue, actual and estimated, for the fiscal years 1880, 1881 and 1882, after providing for the sinking fund for each year, is as follows: For the year ended June 30, 1880, $27,952,009.65; for the year ending June 30, 1881, $50,198,115.52; for the year ending June 30, 1882, $48,445,277.72.

The requirements of the Sinking Fund law have been substantially observed, and the principal of the public debt, less cash in the treasury and exclusive of accruing interest, has been reduced from $2,756,431,571.43, its highest point, which it reached on Aug. 31, 1865, to $1,890,025,740.89, on Nov. 1, 1880—a reduction of $866,405,830.54.

Compared with the previous fiscal year, the receipts for 1880 have increased $62,629,438.23.

Upon the subject of the operation of the Resumption laws the Secretary says:

Nothing has occurred since my last annual report to disturb or embarrass the easy maintenance of specie payments. United States notes are readily taken at par with coin in all parts of this country and in the chief commercial marts of the world. The balance of coin in the treasury available for their redemption on the 1st day of November last was $141,597,015.61, and the average during the year has not materially varied from that sum. The only noticeable change in the reserve is the gradual increase of silver coin caused by the coinage of the silver dollar and the redemption of fractional silver coin, more fully stated hereinafter.

All the requirements of the Resumption act have thus far been executed, and its wisdom has been fully demonstrated. It only remains to inquire whether any further measures are necessary or expedient to secure the maintenance of resumption. The Secretary expresses the utmost confidence that without new legislation the entire amount of United States notes now authorized and outstanding can be easily maintained at par in coin even if the present favorable financial condition should change; but, in order to accomplish this, the coin reserve must be kept unimpaired except by such payments as may be made from it in redemption of notes. Notes redeemed should be temporarily held in place of the coin paid out, especially if it appears that the call for coin is greater in amount than the coin coming in due course into the treasury or the mints. Ordinarily the superior convenience of notes will, as at present, make a greater demand for them than for coin; but, in case of an adverse balance of trade or a sudden panic, or other unforeseen circumstances, the ample reserve of coin on hand becomes the sure safeguard of resumption, dispelling not only imaginary fears, but meeting any demand for coin that is likely to arise. In a supreme emergency, the power granted to sell bonds will supply any possible deficiency.

It is suggested that Congress might define and set apart the coin reserve as a special fund for resumption purposes. The general available balance is now treated as such a fund, but, as this balance may, at the discretion of the Secretary of the Treasury, be unduly drawn upon for the purchase or payment of bonds, it would appear advisable that Congress prescribe the maximum and minimum of the fund.

United States notes are now, in form, security, and convenience, the best circulating medium known.

The Secretary devotes a lengthy chapter to the standard silver dollar. He says:

Unlike gold coin or United States notes, it [the silver dollar] does not, to the same extent, form a part of the permanent circulation, everywhere acceptable, and, when flowing into the treasury, easily paid out with little or no cost of transportation. The reasons for this popular discrimination against the silver dollar are:

1. It is too bulky for large transactions, and its use is confined mainly to payments for manual labor and for market purposes or for change. The amount needed for these purposes is already in excess of the probable demand.

2. It is known to contain a quantity of silver of less market value than the gold in gold coin. This fact would not impair the circulation of such limited amount as experience shows to be convenient for use, but it does prevent its being held or hoarded as reserves, or exported, and pushes it into active circulation, until it returns to the treasury, as the least valuable and desirable money in use.

For these reasons the Secretary respectfully but earnestly recommends that the further compulsory coinage of the silver dollar be suspended, or, as an alternative, that the number of grains of silver in the dollar be increased so as to make it equal in market value to the gold dollar, and that its coinage be left as other coinage to the Secretary of the Treasury or the Director of the Mint, to depend upon the demand for it by the public for convenient circulation.

The Life-Saving Service.

S. I. Kimball, Superintendent of the Life-Saving Service, in his annual report, shows that at the close of the last fiscal year the establishment embraced 179 stations, of which 139 were on the Atlantic, thirty-four on the lakes, and six on the Pacific. The record of the service surpasses any yet made. While the weather of the year was generally milder than usual, it was marked by numerous storms of exceptional severity, resulting in a much larger number of casualties within the sphere of station operations than in any previous year, and the total loss of a greater number of vessels. The highest former number of disasters was that of the year preceding, having been 219. This year the number aggregates 300. The highest number of vessels totally lost in any preceding year was fifty-four. The number last year was sixty-seven. The number of persons on board the 300 vessels involved was 1,989, of whom 1,980 were saved and only nine lost. There were succored at stations 449 shipwrecked persons, 1,303 days' relief being afforded them.

The number of persons brought ashore from wrecked vessels by the life-saving appliances of the stations was 706. In addition, life-saving crews assisted off when stranded, got out of dangerous positions and piloted to places of safety 128 vessels, sometimes working in conjunction with other wrecking agencies, but generally by themselves and the ships' companies alone. In many of these instances, but for their aid vessels and crews would have been lost. Beside, quite a number of vessels in dangerous positions were warned off and saved from stranding by burning danger-signals in the hands of patrolmen at night. The estimated value of the whole number of vessels involved was $2,616,340, and of their cargoes $1,195,368, making the total value of property in peril $3,811,708, being nearly $1,000,000 more than the year preceding. Of this amount, $2,619,807 were saved, and $1,191,901 lost, the loss being $250,909 less and the saved $1,174,721 greater than in the previous year.

The service upon the lakes, which the report shows has reached the highest state of efficiency, has recently come in alarming danger of sudden paralysis on account of inadequate compensation, the surfmen being rapidly withdrawn from the stations by higher wages offered in private enterprise. In one of the lake districts the regular crews of which [illegible] place this season on this account, and vacancies have to be filled by [illegible] and such as can be picked up for the pay. The same danger is also beginning to develop itself upon the Atlantic coast. To avert this calamity, the Superintendent asks that the restriction upon the pay of surfmen to $40 per month, which has been imposed in making the appropriations, be omitted, and that the regulation of wages be left to the discretion of the General Superintendent within the limits of the appropriation contemplated by the act of June 18, 1878.

Report of the Auditor of Railroad Accounts.

The annual report of Theophilus French, Auditor of Railroad Accounts, is mainly devoted to the condition of the land-grant railroads in whole or in part west, north, or south of the Missouri river. Mr. French says that during the past year the condition of all railroad property in the United States has been much improved, more especially that of the railroads west of the Mississippi; that among those railroads lying west of the Mississippi the most marked improvement has been on the great trunk line of the Union and Central Pacific Companies, and of which the United States Government is a creditor to the amount of nearly $80,000,000. Stability of rates, even though rates have been reduced, has given larger earnings, which, in turn, have enabled liberal expenditures to be made for maintenance and improvement, to the manifest advantage of the traveling public and shippers as well as of the properties themselves. As to the Pacific railroads proper, he says that branch lines have been and are in process of construction, and still more are projected. Steel rails are being largely substituted for iron rails; ties are kept well renewed; grades are being reduced, and bad sections remedied; trestles are being filled and road-beds widened and ballasted; shops and station-houses are being enlarged, new and improved machinery has been purchased, equipment has been increased so as to meet the requirements of the traffic, and in all this, while economy has been studied, safety of travel and public convenience have not been overlooked. At no previous time in the history of these great enterprises has the value of the properties been so assured, or their prospects been so good for benefiting their owners, paying their debts and serving the people better and more cheaply.

One chapter of the report is devoted to a history of accidents, from a summary of which it appears that of the passengers who travel by railroad in the United States, including employes on trains, in every 1,500,000 carried one is killed and four are injured, or, to state it differently, that in every 40,000,000 persons carried one mile one is killed and four are injured. The figures also show that about one-fourth of the train accidents are the results of defects in property, while more than one-half are the result of carelessness, lack of discipline, or defective management.

The continued improvement in the business of railroads is noted by the fact that for the calendar year 1879, as compared with 1878, the gross earnings of nearly all the railroads in the United States show an increase of $40,000,000, or about 9 per cent. The working expenses show an increase of $7,500,000, or about 2½ per cent., and the net earnings show an increase of $32,500,000, or more than 17 per cent., while the increased mileage has been about 3 per cent., or nearly 4,300 miles.

A noticeable feature of this increased business is that it has occurred nearly altogether on the railroads of the Middle, Western and Southwestern States, the business of those in the Pacific, New England and Southern States not having materially improved.

Mr. French draws the following conclusions from a comparison of the Eastern and Western railroads: First, that while the ratio of operating expenses to gross earnings on these Western roads is, say, 52 per cent., and on the Eastern roads 63 per cent., the Eastern roads have done three times the work at only double the cost. Second, that both these Eastern and Western railroads have reduced their rates per ton per mile 14 per cent. and passenger rates about 7 per cent. on an average. Third, that the average haul, both of freight and passengers, on the Western, is nearly double that on the Eastern roads. Fourth, that the average rate per ton per mile on the Eastern roads is down to the very low price of less than nine-tenths of a cent, and the rate for passengers per mile to 2¼ cents.

As to the Northern Pacific, the Auditor thinks that no other company is believed to have a straighter or a more honest and honorable record than their books exhibit; but he criticizes the company for have donated such a large amount to preferred stock at par value in order to place a loan of $2,500,000 upon the two divisions of its road.

Mr. French devotes comparatively little space to the important questions of inter-State transportation. As a substitute for the Reagan and all other pending bills upon that subject, he proposes a law which shall embody the following principles: That all common carriers engaged in transporting passengers and freight from one State or Territory to another State or Territory of the United States are hereby authorized to charge and receive for said service such compensation as they may fix from time to time, provided that no discrimination of any kind whatever shall be made; that the possible service and facilities shall be furnished on the same day, at the same price, for all freight offered, and, in case any common carrier evades or breaks this provision, the party injured shall have his remedy in any United States court having jurisdiction.

THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK.
Beeves	$7 00	@	12 00
Hogs	4 10	@	4 90
Cotton	12	@	12¼
Flour—Superfine	3 40	@	4 00
Wheat—No. 2 Spring	1 18	@	1 22
Corn—Ungraded	57	@	60
Oats—Mixed Western	41	@	44
Rye—Western	1 00	@	1 04
Pork—Mess	13 75	@	15 00
Lard	8½	@	9
CHICAGO.
Beeves—Choice Graded Steers	5 10	@	6 10
Cows and Heifers	2 25	@	3 80
Medium to Fair	4 20	@	4 75
Hogs	3 50	@	4 90
Flour—Fancy White Winter Ex.	5 75	@	6 25
Good to Choice Spring Ex.	5 00	@	5 50
Wheat—No. 2 Spring	1 05	@	1 06
No. 3 Spring	88	@	90
Corn—No. 2	40	@	41
Oats—No. 2	30	@	32
Rye—No. 2	87	@	88
Barley—No. 2	1 00	@	1 02
Butter—Choice Creamery	32	@	35
Eggs—Fresh	25	@	27
Pork—Mess	12 00	@	13 50
Lard	8½	@	8¾
MILWAUKEE.
Wheat—No. 1	1 08	@	1 09
No. 2	1 03	@	1 04
Corn—No. 2	40	@	41
Oats—No. 2	32	@	33
Rye—No. 1	84	@	85
Barley—No. 2	78	@	80
ST. LOUIS.
Wheat—No. 2 Red	1 03	@	1 04
Corn—Mixed	42	@	43
Oats—No. 2	33	@	34
Rye	87	@	88
Pork—Mess	13 00	@	13 25
Lard	8½	@	8¾
CINCINNATI.
Wheat	1 04	@	1 05
Corn	45	@	46
Oats	37	@	38
Rye	[illegible]	@	[illegible]
Pork—Mess	13 50	@	13 75
Lard	8½	@	8¾
TOLEDO.
Wheat—No. 1 White	1 05	@	1 06
No. 2 Red	1 04	@	1 05
Corn—No. 2	42	@	43
Oats—No. 2	33	@	34
DETROIT.
Flour—Choice	5 25	@	5 75
Wheat—No. 1 White	1 04	@	1 05
Corn—No. 1	[illegible]	@	[illegible]
Oats—Mixed	[illegible]	@	[illegible]
Barley (per cental)	[illegible]	@	[illegible]
Pork—Mess	[illegible]	@	[illegible]
INDIANAPOLIS.
Wheat—No. 2 Red	1 01	@	1 03
Corn	42	@	43
Oats	33	@	34
Pork—Clear	13 75	@	15 00
EAST LIBERTY, PA.
Cattle—Best	[illegible]	@	[illegible]
Fair	[illegible]	@	[illegible]
Common	[illegible]	@	[illegible]
Hogs	[illegible]	@	[illegible]
Sheep	[illegible]	@	[illegible]

VEGETINE.

Kidney Complaints.

DISEASE OF THE KIDNEYS.

[illegible]

KIDNEY COMPLAINTS.

CINCINNATI, O., March 29, 1877.

H. R. STEVENS:

Dear Sir—I have used your VEGETINE for some time and can truthfully say it has been a great benefit to me, and to those suffering from disease of the kidneys I cheerfully recommend it.

Respectfully, C. E. SMITH.

Attested to by E. B. Ashfield, Druggist, corner Eighth and Central Avenues.

CINCINNATI, O., April 29, 1877.

MR. H. R. STEVENS:

I have suffered several years with the kidney complaint, and was induced to try VEGETINE. I have taken several bottles of your preparation, and am convinced it is a valuable remedy. It has done me more good than any other medicine. I can heartily recommend it to all suffering from kidney complaints.

Yours respectfully, J. S. McMILLEN,

First Bookkeeper for Newhall, Galt & Co., Flour Merchants, No. 32 West Front Street, Cincinnati, O.

VEGETINE has restored thousands to health who had been long and painful sufferers.

Vegetine is Sold by all Druggists.

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED

STOMACH BITTERS

There is no civilized nation in the Western Hemisphere in which the utility of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, as a tonic, corrective and anti-bilious medicine, is not known and appreciated. While it is a medicine for all seasons and all climates, it is especially suited to the complaints generated by the weather, being the purest and best vegetable stimulant in the world.

☞ For sale by Druggists and Dealers, to whom apply for Hostetter's Almanac for 1881.

KIDNEY-WORT

THE ONLY MEDICINE

That Acts at the Same Time on

THE LIVER, THE BOWELS, and the KIDNEYS.

These great organs are the natural cleansers of the system. If they work well, health will be perfect; if they become clogged, dreadful diseases are sure to follow with TERRIBLE SUFFERING.

Biliousness, Headache, Dyspepsia, Jaundice, Constipation and Piles, or Kidney Complaints, Gravel, Diabetes, Sediment in the Urine, Milky or Ropy Urine; or Rheumatic Pains and Aches, are developed because the blood is poisoned with the humors that should have been expelled naturally.

KIDNEY-WORT

will restore the healthy action and all these destroying evils will be banished; neglect them and you will live but to suffer. Thousands have been cured. Try it and you will add one more to the number. Take it and health will once more gladden your heart. Why suffer longer from the torment of an aching back? Why bear such distress from Constipation and Piles? Why be so fearful because of disordered urine? Kidney-Wort will cure you. Try a pack age at once and be satisfied.

It is a dry vegetable compound and One Package makes six quarts of Medicine.

Your Druggist has it, or will get it for you. Insist upon having it. Price, $1.00.

WELLS, RICHARDSON & CO., Proprietors, Burlington, Vt.

HOP BITTERS.

(A Medicine, not a Drink.)

CONTAINS

HOPS, BUCHU, MANDRAKE, DANDELION,

AND THE PUREST AND BEST MEDICAL QUALITIES OF ALL OTHER BITTERS.

THEY CURE

All Diseases of the Stomach, Bowels, Blood, Liver, Kidneys, and Urinary Organs, Nervousness, Sleeplessness and especially Female Complaints.

$1000 IN GOLD.

Will be paid for a case they will not cure or help, or for anything impure or injurious found in them.

Ask your druggist for Hop Bitters and try them before you sleep. Take no other.

D I C is an absolute and irresistible cure for Drunkenness, use of opium, tobacco and narcotics.

SEND FOR CIRCULAR.

All above sold by druggists.

Hop Bitters Mfg. Co., Rochester, N. Y., & Toronto, Ont.

TEAS.—[illegible]

ROB'T WELLS, 43 Vesey st., N. Y. P. O. Box 1287.

Iowa Farms

Over 1,000,000 Acres of Choice Farming Lands in the Near West.

For sale by the Iowa R. R. Land Co., Cedar Rapids, Iowa. Branch Office, 92 Randolph St., Chicago, Ills.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR.

A pure wash for the delicate skin of infants is made by obtaining maple twigs. Put a small lump of alum in and boil with the twigs. Wash the tender places with this in lieu of water.

Colds in the head are always in order. Some one recommends as an easy cure, if attended to promptly, a teaspoonful of pulverized borax dissolved in a pint of hot water; when tepid snuff some up the nostrils two or three times a day, or use the dry powdered borax like snuff, taking a pinch as often as required.

For cuts, wounds and sores: Surgeon's solution of carbolic acid and pure glycerine, mixed in equal parts, and applied on soft lint or linen cloth. Other remedies, ready-prepared, can also be bought at the drug stores. It is wise to always have some kind of remedy on hand, as a bad cut or wound, taken in time, may heal quickly, but neglected and exposed a short time a cold may settle in it, and produce painful, if not serious, results.

Mrs. Thompson, in the Evangelist, says the best remedy for sleeplessness is to wet a towel, apply it to the back of the neck, pressing it toward the base of the brain and fasten the dry half of the towel over, so as to prevent too rapid exhalation. The effect is prompt and pleasant, cooling the brain and bringing on a sweet slumber. Warm water is better than cold. To all suffering from overwork, excitement or anxiety, this remedy must prove a blessing.

For burns: Lime water, olive oil and glycerine, equal parts, applied on lint. Good remedies, and ready-prepared, can also be obtained at any drug store, and should be kept constantly in the house and in factories where persons are exposed to burns. If none of these are handy, apply, quickly, flour and lard, mixed. Keep the wound from exposure to the air. A good liniment for burns, after the above application, is made of three ounces each of tincture of opium, camphorated oil and soap liniment. A good salve for cuts and burns is one-half pound of sweet lard, one-fourth pound beeswax, one-fourth ditto resin; beat all together till well mixed, and put up in a tin box or wide-mouthed bottle. Apply to the wound on soft cotton or lint.

To stop bleeding: Apply wet tea leaves, or a paste of flour and vinegar, or a cold bandage. If an artery, bandage tightly above the wound, so as to make the knot press hard upon the artery and stop the circulation until a physician can be summoned. If an arm or leg is cut, elevate it so that the force of gravity will aid in restraining the flow of blood instead of accelerating it. To stop bleeding at the nose, bathe the feet in hot water, making at the same time some cayenne tea. Sometimes a piece of paper or cloth folded to several thicknesses and saturated in very cold water, and placed between the upper lip and jaw, pressed up as far as it will go, is beneficial. It is easily tried. A bit of ice wrapped in paper would answer the same purpose. The cold and the pressure of the parts produce the desired effect. Holding the arms above the head is also recommended. If the bleeding continues, despite the efforts to check it, summon a physician at once. Sometimes the ailment proves fatal.

One Experience from Many.

"I had been sick and miserable so long and had caused my husband so much trouble and expense, no one seemed to know what ailed me, that I was completely disheartened and discouraged. In this frame of mind I got a bottle of Hop Bitters and used them unknown to my family. I soon began to improve and gained so fast that my husband and family thought it strange and unnatural, but when I told them what had helped me, they said 'Hurrah for Hop Bitters! long may they prosper, for they have made mother well and us happy.'"—The Mother.—Home Journal.

Something Nice for Breakfast.

A cadaverous, hollow-eyed, "lean and hungry," Cassius-like man is the victim generally to a "pick-up" breakfast, "stale, flat, and unprofitable;" he goes forth hungry, ill-disposed for business, rebellious and dyspeptic; hideous and beggarly ideas get into his head; his brain is filled with suspicious chimeras. If he must eat hash it need not be the abominable melange which might be called a general postoffice where letters of all descriptions are thrown in—scraps of tasteless beef, the other table-scraps innocent of condiment; but there is a hash that will satisfy: Cut some beef in nice little slices from the bone, removing all the hard parts and skin; put the gravy in a saucepan with a pint of water, three table-spoonfuls of catchup, a desert-spoonful of minced savory herbs, an onion chopped fine, half a teaspoonful of salt, and a third of cayenne; take out a cupful of the liquid and rub into it a table-spoonful of flour; stir it well into the stewpan again and stew for ten minutes longer. Strain it through a sieve, return it to the pan, place the slices of beef in it, and keep the saucepan on the side of the range until the meat is heated through—not to boil, or it will become hard. A few minutes before serving add half a wine-glass of tarragon vinegar. Arrange some toasted sippets round a very hot dish, and serve the hash immediately after it is cooked. An excellent condiment for breakfast is potted tomatoes. The ripe tomatoes must be scalded and skinned, passed through a sieve to remove the seeds from the pulp, and heated gently in a stewpan; add salt, a little horseradish, some white vinegar, some onions to taste, minced very fine; when cold, put it in small pots and cover with melted butter; tie up in stout paper. A simple but delicate way of preparing potatoes is a favorite breakfast-dish in the West Indies: Two pounds of peeled potatoes are washed and grated; four ounces each are added of sugar and butter melted; one teaspoonful each of salt and pepper, mixed well together; placed in a baking-dish, and put into a brisk oven until done and shows a delicate brown color. Another mode of preparing potatoes by the French, after the potatoes are boiled in their jackets, is to peel and mash them with a fork; put them in a stewpan with some butter and salt, moisten through with cream, and let them grow dry while stirring them over the fire; add more cream, and continue adding for nearly an hour; turn them into a dish, and brown them on the top with a salamander.—New York Evening Post.

Correct Speech.

Correct speech is such an indisputable mark of a lady or a gentleman that it cannot be too often repeated that the true standard of pronunciation is one in which all the marks of a particular place of birth and residence are lost, and in which nothing appears to indicate any habits of intercourse other than with the well-bred and well-informed wherever they may be found. In the matter of accent, the aim ought to be to avoid all that is local, affected or vulgar. Let no transgressors imagine that they can escape with impunity. Their speech will betray them, and even well-educated children will be merry and satirical over them behind their backs.

Visiting.

When guests arrive in response to an invitation, the mistress and master of the dwelling, whether a mansion or a cottage, should spare no pains to make the visit an agreeable one. Many well-meaning people, from over anxiety to do so, alter the entire arrangement of their households, and, in consequence, fail to achieve their object; for if a visitor perceive—and he is almost certain to do so—that you have changed your ordinary routine of living, an uncomfortable feeling that you are—to use a homely phrase—"putting yourself very much out of the way" will prevent any true enjoyment from being felt. Therefore, the host's first care should be to make a visitor aware that his presence is not a disturbing element, and that the action of the domestic machinery will not be disarranged in consequence. This is the truest courtesy, and a course that never fails to put the visitor at his ease. Let whatever is performed be done without apparent effort, so that the effect produced may be that the visitor finds himself a sharer of your own home enjoyments—not that you have to tax your energies to afford him entertainment.

There should, however, be no sort of neglect on the part of either host or hostess, and the comfort of a visitor should be carefully studied. For instance, the guest's room should be made as comfortable and pleasant as possible. If the weather is cold, a fire in the grate will be felt as a most welcome attention. Do not think it sufficient to ask, "Would you like a fire in your bedroom this evening?" Such an inquiry could hardly fail to have a chilling effect, and a negative reply would most probably be given. It is quite easy to judge whether the weather is sufficiently cold to make a fire an agreeable addition.

Pens, ink, paper, envelopes, matches, and a few books and flowers should find a place. Generally visitors bring their own writing materials; but, should these by chance be forgotten, it is pleasant for them to find their wants have been anticipated. For the same reason a properly-furnished work-box, with buttons, scissors, etc., should be provided, and especially if the visitor is a lady. It would be impossible to enumerate all these little conveniences, so much depending upon circumstances; but it is just these little things which have the most to do in making a visit an enjoyable one.

While visitors are with you do not, if anything occurs to annoy you, trouble them with the details of what has gone amiss. Such a course only tends to make them feel that they are putting you to some inconvenience.

On the other hand, the guest, perceiving something to be wrong, should abstain from making any remark upon it—should appear, indeed, not to have seen it. Equally reprehensible is it to suggest changes and alterations to the host—to criticise his taste or call his judgment into question. Or, if his children should be fractious or rude, it is out of place for the guest to remark upon it, or to find fault with what they say or do, if the parents do not see fit to interfere.

From first to last a rigid observance of the law "bear and forbear," by host and guest, will be found essential to the preservation of harmony and enjoyment.

A Good Chance for Solitude.

Far out in the Atlantic, 184 miles very nearly due west of St. Kilda, and 290 miles from the nearest part of the main land of Scotland, there is a granite stack, which rises to a height of seventy feet above the sea, and at a distance has been mistaken for a vessel under sail. The upper part is inhabited by vast numbers of sea fowl. The name of the stack is Rockall. The great sand bank from which it rises abounds with cod. For nearly two years a man, through the columns of the London Spectator, has been calling the attention of various scientific societies and individuals to the suitability of Rockall for a meteorological station, and has been offering, under certain conditions, to reside there alone for a twelve-month, and take a series of observations. With a foundation of seventy feet above the sea, or even less, he says, there would be no difficulty in fixing a house upon Rockall that would laugh at the wind and spray. One chamber would do, and it could be made of stout timber locked to ringbolts, or to be built of concrete. If connected by telegraph to the main land, Rockall would, this person thinks, be an agreeable residence; and even in its isolated state it would be endurable enough if the occupant were cheered by the reflection that he was a pioneer in a noble cause. A little money would be well spent in trying to make storm warnings more reliable than they have been of late. Besides meteorological observations, an observer posted on Rockall might, if properly instructed, be able to throw a little light on oceanic circulation, temperature, &c.

Thick with the Nobility.

Two Gascon soldiers are boasting to each other of their conquests in the lists of love. "I tell you, old boy," says one, "there's a little baroness that just dotes on me." "Baroness?" says the other, disdainfully. "I tell you, the other day I called on a Duchess that is soft on me, and no sooner had I entered her boudoir, when—bang! in comes the old Duke with an ax-handle, and while I was bolting out I stumbled and fell right into a kettle of soft-soap she had been boiling that afternoon."

In the town of Portage, N. Y., a man was out hunting squirrels, recently, shot at what he supposed to be a red squirrel, lying on a limb in a chestnut tree. The squirrel did not drop, but yelled outright, and was found to be a boy who had on red stockings.

The greatest effects have sometimes the smallest cause. Life is constantly sacrificed by neglect of Coughs and Colds, when a 25-cent bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup would save the sufferer.

Statistics of Suffrage in Europe.

The relative degree of practical development attained by the principle of popular representation in the various countries of Europe may be seen from the following figures: In France, there are 9,691,261 electors, viz., 26 3-10 per cent. of the inhabitants; in Switzerland, 642,553 electors, viz., 24 2-10 per cent. of the inhabitants; in Germany, 8,528,446 electors, viz., 20 2-10 per cent. of the inhabitants; in England, 2,719,590 electors, viz., 11 5-10 per cent. of the inhabitants; in Austria, 1,242,946 electors, viz., 5 9-10 per cent. of the inhabitants; in Portugal 216,688 electors, viz., 5 4-10 per cent. of the inhabitants; in Italy, 605,007 electors viz., 2 2-10 per cent. of the inhabitants, and in Belgium, 68,278 electors, viz., 1 8-10 per cent. of the inhabitants. The French republic thus counts a larger proportion of electors than Switzerland, the country which was the first to adopt universal suffrage. This is partly explained by the consideration that the proportion of children to adults is smaller in France than in Switzerland. The relative number of foreigners having to vote may also possibly be larger in the latter country. The franchise shows an equal development in Germany. The difference between Germany and England is almost two to one in favor of the former country. The electoral body is also larger in Portugal, a country of pure monarchy, than in Italy or Belgium. Another fact worthy of attention is the extent to which the franchise is actually exercised by the electoral population in each of the countries mentioned, respecting which we have the following figures: France, 1876, 7,366,682, or 76 per cent.; Germany, 1874, 5,291,593, or 62 per cent.; Austria, 1873, 153,155, or 66 per cent.; Portugal, 1867, 66 per cent.; Italy, 1876, 368,750, or 59 per cent.; Belgium, 1874, senate, 36,082, or 69 per cent.; deputies, 45,184, or 71 per cent.

European Rapacity—Chinese Moderation.

If Europeans, in truth, understood the duties resulting from the five relationships, then we should discern the effects in their lives. Love between prince and minister, father and son, elder and younger brothers, husband and wife, friend and friend would bring due subordination and careful fulfilment of relative duties; peace and order would reign supreme; there would be no angry rivalry or unrestrained greed, making use of deadly weapons to bring destruction on mankind. But do we see these results in Western countries? No, indeed! Their whole energy is centred in the manufacture of different kinds of machines—steam vessels and locomotives to bring rapid returns of profit, guns and rifles to slay their fellow-men. They rival one another in greed and in cunning methods of acquiring wealth; they say they are rich and mighty; and put it all down to their true knowledge, forsooth! But from the time when the heavens were spread out and the earth came into existence China can boast a continuous line of great men; so that man's wants have been better supplied each day than the one before it, and our language immeasurably excels those of Europe in strength and depth. Property is wealth to the foreigner; moderation in his desires to the Chinese; material power is might to the foreigner; to live and let live is might to the Chinese. But the heaping up of words will not explain these principles. China forbids strange devices (machinery) in order to prevent confusion; she encourages humanity and justice as the very foundation of good government; and this will be her policy forever. Yet foreigners say that such principles are profitless. Profitless, indeed! Profitable, rather, beyond expression!—Diary of Liu Ta-Jen, in the Nineteenth Century.

Decorative Art.

The one unfortunate thing in house decoration nowadays, in the opinion of Mr. R. W. Edis, is the everlasting seeking after some novelty in papers, curtains, or other hangings. Everybody wants to have a room different from their neighbor. Decoration is being done as a fashion, not from any real love for it. Of course, we should not like to see room after room repeating itself in decoration, but why a few really good papers should not be the ground-work of true artistic decoration—when the narrowness of worldly circumstances prevents the more elaborate and more extensive hand decoration in paint or distemper—and let the rest follow from the design, there is no good reason. If that suggestion should be adopted there might be hope for real art decoration instead of the cold formality and everlasting interchange of two or three colors. As a critical writer on art decoration has said: "If the papers on our walls and the curtains we hang in our rooms were, even at second-hand, but the record of the fresh impressions and the graceful fancies of artists of our own day instead of being encumbered with mechanical pattern work struggling to be artistic, it would be better than all the present miserable striving after novelty." Not to have what your neighbor possesses is the bane of decorative art.—New York Times.

French Way of Washing Clothes.

A system of washing clothes in vogue in some French towns is worthy of special mention. Its economy is so great as to greatly reduce the cost. This is the process: Two pounds of soap is reduced with a little water to pulp, which having been slightly warmed is cooled in ten gallons of water, to which is added one spoonful of turpentine oil and two spoonfuls of ammonia; then the mixture is agitated. The water is kept at a temperature which can be borne by the hand. In this solution the white clothes are put in and left there for two hours before washing them with soap, taking care in the meantime to cover the tub. The solution may be warmed again and used once more, but it will be necessary to add a half spoonful of turpentine and another spoonful of ammonia. Once washed with soap the clothes are put in hot water, and the blue is applied. This process, it is obvious, saves much time, much labor and fuel, while it gives to the clothes a whiteness much superior to that obtained by any other process and the destructive use of the washboard is not necessary to clean the clothes from the impurities which they contain.

Protection for Trees.

Trees, shrubs and roses should be protected by putting long straw around the body and branches, tied well with cord, so as to prevent growth in the month of March, or warm weather toward spring. In this country the cold weather after a commencement of growth destroys more trees and roses than colder weather in the earlier part of winter. Those who observe the above directions will be very certain to keep their trees and shrubbery alive, and it is only a few minutes' work in proportion to the investment. Trees recently set are not in so much danger from severe cold weather as the sudden changes, and protection until acclimated is absolutely necessary.

Feeble Ladies.

Those languid, tiresome sensations, causing you to feel scarcely able to be on your feet; that constant drain that is taking from your system all its elasticity; that continual strain upon your vital forces, rendering you irritable and fretful, can easily be removed by the use of that marvelous remedy, Hop Bitters. Irregularities and obstructions of your system are relieved at once, while the special cause of periodical pain is permanently removed. Will you heed this?—Cincinnati Saturday Night.

Comparative Value of Wood.

It is a great convenience to know the comparative value of different kinds of wood for fuel. Shellbark hickory is regarded as the highest standard of our forest trees, and calling that 100, other trees will compare with it for real value as fuel for house purposes, as follows: Shellbark hickory, 100; pignut hickory, 92; white oak, 84; white ash, 77; dogwood, 75; scrub oak, 73; white hazel, 72; apple tree, 70; red oak, 67; white beech, 65; black birch, 62; yellow oak, 60; hard maple, 59; white elm, 58; red cedar, 56; wild cherry, 55; yellow pine, 50; chestnut, 52; yellow poplar, 54; butternut and white birch, 43; white pine, 30. It is worth bearing in mind, that in wood of the same species there is a great difference according to the soil on which they grow. A tree that grows on a wet, low, rich ground will be less solid and durable for fuel, and therefore of a less value than a tree of the same kind that grows on a dry and poor soil. To the ordinary purchaser, oak is oak and pine is pine, but for house use the tree grown on dry upland, and standing apart from all others, is worth a great deal more.

There has been an extraordinary increase of suicide in Switzerland. In 1876 there were 540 suicides; in 1877, 590; in 1878, 642; and in 1879, 701. The list gives one in every 4,000 of the population. The hard times are probably the cause.

A Pastor Made Happy.

I have been greatly troubled with my kidneys and liver for over twenty years, and during that entire time I was never free from pain. My medical bills were enormous, and I visited both the Hot and White Springs, noted for the curative qualities of the water. I am happy to say I am now a well man, and entirely as the result of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure. With such glorious results I am only too glad to testify regarding the remedy which has made me so happy.

(Rev.) P. F. HARKLER.
Coal Run Crossing, Arkansas.

A woman—a lovely woman it is to be supposed—had her first political trouble at Port Jarvis. A horrid and wicked man challenged her as not being twenty-one years old, and instead of swearing her vote in she commenced to weep bitterly and tore her ballot to tatters. If a woman has got to swear to her age before she can vote, the knell of female suffrage is already sounded.

The Epizootic

Has again made its appearance in various parts of the country. As prevention is better than cure, the attention of owners of stock is called to UNCLE SAM'S CONDITION POWDERS. These celebrated powders stand unrivaled for their excellency as a preventive from disease. By mixing with the feed they will keep the animal in the best general health, toning up the system and keeping the digestive organs and blood in a healthy condition.

The Powders are warranted to give perfect satisfaction. Prepared by the Emmert Proprietary Co., Chicago, Ill. Put up in 25 and 50-cent packages, and sold by all druggists.

Science in Aid of the Housewife.

Mending of all kinds of clothing, table and bed linen, etc., and elegant embroidery, is now done on the Wilson Oscillating Shuttle Sewing Machine, without an attachment. Wonders will never cease in this age of progress.—Scientific American.

Dr. C. E. Shoemaker, the well-known aural surgeon of Reading, Pa., offers to send by mail, free of charge, a valuable little book on deafness and diseases of the ear—especially on running ear and catarrh, and their proper treatment—giving references and testimonials that will satisfy the most skeptical. Address as above.

Malarial fevers can be prevented, also other miasmatic diseases, by occasionally using Dr. Sanford's Liver Invigorator, the oldest general Family Medicine, which is recommended as a cure for all diseases caused by a disordered liver. Eighty-page book sent free. Address Dr. Sanford, 162 Broadway, New York.

Vegetine is nourishing and strengthening, purifies the blood, regulates the bowels, quiets the nervous system, acts directly upon the secretions, and arouses the whole system to action.

For a pamphlet on Electric Treatment of chronic diseases with Electricity, which will be sent free, address the McIntosh Electric Belt and Battery Co., 192 & 194 Jackson St., Chicago, Ill.

Young men who attend H. B. Bryant's Chicago Business College have the highest advantages that are to be found for practical education in the country.

Daughters, Wives and Mothers.

DR. MARCHISI'S UTERINE CATHOLICON will positively cure Female Weakness, such as Falling of the Womb, Whites, Chronic Inflammation or Ulceration of the Womb, Incidental Hemorrhage or Flooding, Painful, Suppressed and Irregular Menstruation, &c. An old and reliable remedy. Send postal card (for a pamphlet, with treatment, cures and certificates from physicians and patients, to HOWARTH & BALLARD, Utica, N. Y. Sold by all Druggists—$1.50 per bottle.

The Voltaic Belt Co., Marshall, Mich., Will send their Electro-Voltaic Belts to the afflicted upon thirty days' trial. See their advertisement in this paper, headed, "On Thirty Days' Trial."

One pair of boots or shoes can be saved every year by using Lyon's Patent Heel Stiffeners.

D^R^ BULL'S
COUGH
SYRUP

PISO'S CURE for Consumption is also the best cough medicine.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. Address STINSON & Co., Portland, Me.

WANTED—Gentleman or lady to address envelopes in every town. Send stamp. F. Brigham & Co., New York.

$72 a week. $12 a day at home easily made. Costly Outfit free. Address TRUE & Co., Augusta, Me.

AGENTS Send 10 cents for article worth 50c. Rare chance. L. LUM, 717 Sansom St., Phila.

$17.50 A DAY made by one agent. Address REV. S. T. BUCK, Lewisburg, Pa.

$66 a week in your own town. Terms and $5 Outfit free. Address H. HALLETT & Co., Portland, Me.

YOUNG MEN Learn Telegraphy and earn $40 to $100 a month. Every graduate guaranteed a paying situation. Address VALENTINE BROS., Managers, Janesville, Wis.

$350 A MONTH! Agents Wanted! 75 Best-Selling Articles in the world; 1 sample free. JAY BRONSON, Detroit, Mich.

$777 A YEAR and expenses to agents. Outfit Free. Address P. O. VICKERY, Augusta, Maine.

OPIUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till Cured. DR. J. STEPHENS, Lebanon, Ohio.

EMPLOYMENT—LOCAL OR Traveling. [illegible] SALARY per month. ALL EXPENSES advanced. WAGES promptly paid. SLOAN & Co. 306 George St. Cincinnati, O.

WANTED—Agents everywhere to sell our goods by sample, to families. We give attractive presents and first-class goods to your customers; we give you good profits; we prepay all express charges; we furnish outfit free. Write for particulars. PEOPLE'S TEA CO., Box 5025, St. Louis, Mo.

TRUTH IS MIGHTY! [illegible]

A BEAUTIFUL HOLIDAY GIFT. I will send, on receipt of One Dollar, a Handsome Coral Pin and Ear Drops, with fine gold-plated trimmings; also a pair of Coral Bracelets, which cannot be bought of any jeweler for $2.50. Money returned if not satisfactory. E. A. PALMER, Manufacturer, 363 Broadway, New York.

FOR SALE—A BEAUTIFUL KENTUCKY FARM containing 1,000 acres—[illegible] in cultivation. This farm is immediately on the Louisville and Paducah Railroad, within one mile of a county seat. Has upon it a good frame farm house, some 8 or 10 tenant houses, with barns, etc., required; a fine coal bank and fences in good condition. Price, $15,000. Apply to JAMES WEIR, Pres't Deposit Bank, Owensboro, Ky.

ON 30 DAYS' TRIAL.

We will send our Electro-Voltaic Belts and other Electric Appliances upon trial for 30 days to those afflicted with Nervous Debility and diseases of a personal nature. Also of the Liver, Kidneys, Rheumatism, Paralysis, &c. A sure cure guaranteed or no pay. Address Voltaic Belt Co., Marshall, Mich.

AGENTS! Here is YOUR GOLD MINE!
DIGGING GOLD [illegible]
By a U. S. Mineral Surveyor. Complete scientific description of every part of the great gold and silver fields. The precious stuff: where they find it, how they find it, how they mine it. Exciting adventures of wild Camp Life. Streams filled with Fish. Forests filled with Game. Mountains filled with Silver and Gold. For Circulars and Special Extra Terms, address HUBBARD BROS., Chicago, Ill.

DAVENPORT
Business College
The Largest and Best; Established 1861; 300 Students the past year; Eight Professors. Good Board, $2.50 per week. Send for Circular. LILLIBRIDGE & VALENTINE, Davenport, Iowa.

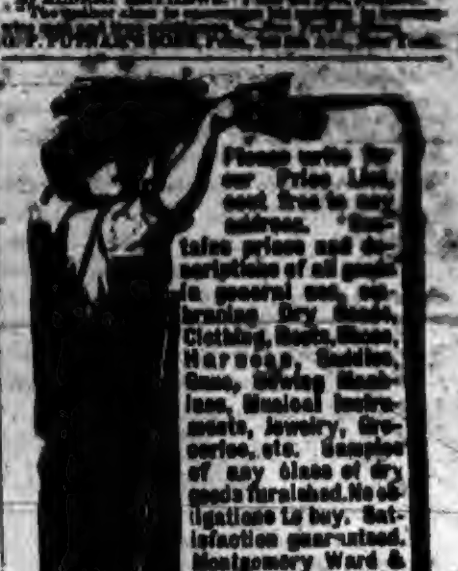
CRISTADORO'S Hair Dye is the SAFEST and BEST; it acts instantaneously producing the most natural shades of Black or Brown; does NOT STAIN the SKIN, and is easily applied. It is a standard preparation, and a favorite on every well-appointed toilet for Lady or Gentleman. Sold by Druggists and applied by Hair-Dressers. Depot, 93 William St., New York. C. N. CRITTENTON, Ag't.

SAPONIFIER
Is the "Original" Concentrated Lye and Reliable Family Soap Maker. Directions accompany each Can for making Hard, Soft and Toilet Soap quickly. It is full weight and strength. Ask your grocer for SAPONIFIER, and take no other.
Penn'a Salt Manufact'ng Co., Phila.

NATRONA BI-CARB. SODA
Is the best in the World. It is absolutely pure. It is the best for Medicinal Purposes. It is the best for Baking and all Family Uses. Sold by all Druggists and Grocers.
Penn'a Salt Manufact'ng Co., Phila.

RED RIVER VALLEY
2,000,000 Acres
Wheat Lands
best in the World, for sale by the
St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba R.R. CO.
Three dollars per acre allowed the settler for breaking and cultivation. For particulars apply to
D. A. McKINLAY,
Land Commissioner, St. Paul, Minn.

A BUNDLE of PAPERS



Please write for our Price List, sent free to any address. Contains prices and descriptions of all goods in general use, embracing Dry Goods, Clothing, Boots, Shoes, Harness, Saddles, Guns, Sewing Machines, Musical Instruments, Jewelry, Groceries, etc. Samples of any class of dry goods furnished. No obligations to buy. Satisfaction guaranteed. Montgomery Ward & Co., 227 & 229 Wabash av., Chicago, Ill.

CELLULOID EYE-GLASSES.
Representing the choicest selected Tortoise-Shell and Amber. The lightest, handsomest and strongest known. Sold by Opticians and Jewelers. Made by the SPENCER OPTICAL M'F'G CO., 13 Maiden Lane, New York.

AGENTS! AGENTS! AGENTS!
JOSIAH ALLEN'S WIFE
HAS "WROTE" A NEW BOOK.
THE BEST AND FUNNIEST OF ALL.
"My Wayward Pardner."
AGENTS WANTED in every Town. Don't miss it, but send for Circular at once, and secure territory. Address H. N. HINCKLEY, Chicago, Ill.

FRAZER AXLE GREASE.
Best in the World. Made only by the Frazer Lubricator Company, at Chicago, New York, and St. Louis. SOLD EVERYWHERE.

PETROLEUM VASELINE JELLY.
Grand Medal at Philadelphia Exposition.
This wonderful substance is acknowledged by physicians throughout the world to be the best remedy discovered for the cure of Wounds, Burns, Rheumatism, Skin Diseases, Piles, Catarrh, Chilblains, &c. [illegible]

$5.00 PER DAY Made Selling Our New PLATFORM FAMILY SCALE.
[illegible] ROOM FOR AGENTS. [illegible] DOMESTIC SCALE CO., [illegible] Cincinnati, O.

ENCYCLOPÆDIA OF ETIQUETTE AND BUSINESS
[illegible] Agents Wanted. [illegible] NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO., Chicago, Ill.

IF YOU ARE SUFFERING From CATARRH
[illegible]

PENSIONS!
New Law. Thousands of Soldiers and heirs entitled. Pensions date back to discharge or death. [illegible]
GEORGE E. LEMON, P. O. Drawer 325, Washington, D. C.

LITERARY REVOLUTION
3 CENTS [illegible]
5 CENTS [illegible] AMERICAN BOOK EXCHANGE, John B. Alden, Manager, Tribune Building, New York.

DANIEL F. BEATTY'S
ORGANS!
14 STOPS, SUB-BASS & OCT. COUPLER.
FOUR SETS REEDS
PIANOS $125 up.
ONLY $65
[illegible] DANIEL F. BEATTY, Washington, New Jersey.

C. GILBERT'S STARCH

C. N. U. No. 50

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS, please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

M&H ORGANS
VIENNA 1873
SANTIAGO 1875
PHILAD 1876
PARIS 1878
PARIS 1867
MATCHLESS UNRIVALED FRANZ LISZT
HIGHEST AWARDS
AT ALL GREAT WORLD'S EXHIBITIONS
FOR THIRTEEN YEARS
THE BEST
THEO. THOMAS

THESE ORGANS ARE CERTAINLY UNRIVALED IN EXCELLENCE, WHILE THE PRICES ARE NOT MUCH HIGHER THAN THOSE OF VERY INFERIOR INSTRUMENTS.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGAN CO.,
154 Tremont St., BOSTON; 46 East 14th St. (Union Square), New York; 149 Wabash Ave., CHICAGO.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, IND., DECEMBER 16, 1880.

GARFIELD'S mail at Mentor is said to be far too large for the storage capacity of the village postoffice. Nine-tenths of the letters are from office-seekers.

* * *

THE total receipts of Bernhardt's twenty-four nights in New York were $98,962. Twenty-five thousand people witnessed the performances of the divine Sarah. The largest house was $7,000, and the smallest $3,000. The receipts of the second and last weeks were the largest, being $24,969 and $27,965 respectively.

* * *

MISS BELVA LOCKWOOD, the only woman ever admitted to practice in the United States court, delivered her maiden speech before that tribunal the other day. We are told she spoke twenty minutes, and commanded the earnest attention of the court. She should congratulate herself. The court usually goes to sleep during the argument of counsel.

* * *

ONE hundred years ago from Thursday last, the following marriage notice appeared in an Albany,(N. Y.,) newspaper: "Married, on Dec. 9, at the residence of the bride's father, by Rev. Eliardus Westerlo, D. D., Alexander Hamilton, lieutenant-colonel in the Revolutionary war and aid-de-camp to George Washington, to Elizabeth, daughter of Major-General Philip Schuyler."

* * *

IN spite of the production of coal to the enormous amount of 6,300,000 in Illinois and Indiana, the demand is outstripping the supply. This is,to considerable extent, caused by the large increase of manufacturing industries in this and other cities. Chicago requires at this time of the year 150,000 tons per month of soft coal, and 30,000 tons of anthracite. It will readily be perceived what an injury the threatened coal famine will do the great industries of this city and the country generally.

* * *

JUDGE STRONG has written his resignation as associate judge on the supreme bench of the United States, and it will be transmitted to the president at an early date through Chief Justice Waite. Justice Bradley, who resides in New Jersey, and is now on the southern circuit, will probably be assigned by the chief justice to the Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Deleware circuit. It is considered most likely that Attorney General Devens will be appointed to the vacancy on the supreme bench caused by Justice Strong's resignation.

* * *

A DISPATCH from St. Louis of Dec. 14, announces that Thomas Allen accepted Jay Gould's proposition this afternoon, and will leave for New York to-morrow morning to make the transfer of his stock and definitely adjust all other matters connected with the transaction. The stock sold by Mr. Allen is nearly 40,000 shares, and the purchase money amounts to but a trifle less than $2,000,000. H. G. Marquland also disposed of 20,000 shares of stock, about one-half his interest in the road, to Mr. Gould. Mr. Allen retains his interest in the funded security of the road; also his land along the line, and will remain president of the road until the next annual meeting of the company, early in March.

* * *

JUDGE LYNCH held court in Brazil, Indiana, Monday, and dispatched the spirit of George Scott (colored) to the place where good negroes don't go. The negro brutally outraged a white lady, the wife of the man for whom he was working. After committing the outrage, he took from the lady, whom he had almost killed with an axe, a gold watch and chain worth about $75, besides some money that was about the house, and left for parts unknown. The husband of the outraged woman set about to capture the villain, and telegraphed to the several sheriffs and marshals throughout the state, offering $50 reward for his arrest. On the early train yesterday morning Mr. Fort, marshal of Marion, Grant county, who had captured him, brought him and delivered him to the sheriff. There were 120 of the lynchers who broke the jail open and took the negro and hung him to a tree. While it was desired that the law should take its course, all think the negro got his just deserts.

* * *

—A person who is courteous to others feels the happier for his courtesy; and it creates sunshine and happiness around. We feel drawn involuntarily towards a person who treats us with courtesy and speaks kindly to us. If we think a brother is in error, and desire to convince him of his error; if we wish him to receive any view of divine truth which we have formed ourselves; if we wish him to adopt any line of conduct in preference to the one he is now pursuing, a courteous and respectful bearing will enable us the better to accomplish our end. We cannot lose anything by elegance of manners; we may gain a great deal. A man with a disrespectful manner and with rough and hasty words, damages the cause he wishes to promote. Study to be respectful. Study to be easy, graceful, kind in your general demeanor. You will find in passing through a world like this that it will pay well to be courteous.

TAX LIST FOR 1880.

To the Tax-Payers of DeKalb County:

In compliance with the laws of the state of Indiana, I, L. J. MILLER, treasurer of said county, hereby notify the tax-payers thereof that the rates of taxation for the year A. D. 1880, are correctly stated in the following table, showing the am'n't of tax in cts. levied upon each one hundred dollars valuation and on each poll, in the several townships and incorporated villages in said county, as the same appears on the tax duplicate of DeKalb county, for said year.

TOWNSHIPS AND TOWNS.	STATE HOUSE TAX.	STATE TAX.	SCHOOL TAX.	COUNTY TAX.	TOWNSHIP TAX.	ROAD TAX.	COM. SCHOOL TAX.	SPC'L SCHOOL TAX.	ADDITIONAL SPC'L SCHOOL TAX.	INT. ON BONDS.	CORPORATION TAX.	TOTAL TAX.
Buter Township	2	12	16	60	15	20	5	20		10		160
Poll		50	50									100
Jackson Township	2	12	16	60	10	15	5	25		10		155
Poll		50	50					50				150
Concord Township	2	12	16	60	5	20	10	35		10		170
Poll		50	50					100				200
Newville Township	2	12	16	60	15	15		20		10		150
Poll		50	50									100
Stafford Township	2	12	16	60	5	10	5	10		10		130
Poll		50	50									100
Wilmington Township	2	12	16	60	10	15	5	10		10		140
Poll		50	50									100
Union Township	2	12	16	60		20		5		10		125
Poll		50	50					50				150
Richland Township	2	12	16	60	5	15	5	30		10		155
Poll		50	50									100
Fairfield Township	2	12	16	60	10	15	5	25		10		155
Poll		50	50					25				125
Smithfield Township	2	12	16	60	10	10	5	15		10		140
Poll		50	50					50				150
Franklin Township	2	12	16	60	15	15	5			10		135
Poll		50	50									100
Troy Township	2	12	16	60	15	15	5	35		10		170
Poll		50	50									100
Keyser Township	2	12	16	60	5	15	5	30		10		155
Poll		50	50					50				150
Auburn Town	2	12	16	60		20	25	15	50	10		210
Poll		50	50				25	25	25			175
Waterloo Town	2	12	16	60		20	10	40		10		170
Poll		50	50					100				200
Butler Town	2	12	16	60	10	15		30	50	10		205
Poll			50						25			125
Garrett Town	2		16	60	5	15	25	50	50	10	50	295
Poll		50	50				25	100	100		25	350

Also $1 for one dog, $2 for each female dog, and $2 for each additional dog, for the collection of which I may be found at the county treasurer's office, in the town of Auburn, on and after December 15, 1880.

Taxes may be paid in full or in two installments. The first installment, including all road taxes, can be paid on or before the third Monday in April, 1881; the second installment, on or before the first Monday in November, 1881. If the first installment is not paid when due, both installments become delinquent, ten per cent. will be added, and I shall at once proceed, as the low requires, to collect the same, together with the costs that may accrue by distress and sale of personal property.

Road receipts will not be received after the third Monday in April, only on delinquent taxes. No road receipts will be received on the November installment.

Examine your receipts before leaving the office, and see that all your property is included.

No county order will be paid to any person owing delinquent taxes.

The annual sale of lands and lots for delinquent taxes will occur on the second Monday in February, 1881.

Come early and avoid the rush of the last few days.

The books will positively be closed on the evening of the third Monday in April, and no one will be allowed to pay after that date without penalty.

Parties sending by others, or by letter, to pay tax, should not fail to send description of their lands and lots.

No receipt will be made out hereafter, for any party, until they are ready to pay for the same.

A WASHINGTON dispatch of December 13, says: "Secretary Thompson this morning requested President Hayes to name his successor, as he will resign on the 20th inst. The president designated Secretary of War Ramsey to act as secretary of the navy in addition to his other duties, on and after the date above mentioned. The attention of Secretary Thompson was to-day called to an account of an interview between himself and General Grant, relative to Panama canal matters. He stated that he had no conversation with the general in regard to his relation with the canal project. The secretary's attention was also called to the fact that a discussion had arisen regarding the application of the Monroe doctrine to the canal enterprise. He said 'that when it came to a question of absorbtion of the slightest portion of any territory of the central American states, he would go as far as any one to prevent it, and would be in favor of using all the power of the United States to that end.' He added 'that the construction of the Panama canal involved no antagonism to the traditional policy of this country, nor necessarily any contest for control of the route. The protest is one of a private enterprise only, and there can be no more reasonable objection to the bulk of this capital, or even all of it, being subscribed by citizens of European countries, than there is to use foreign capital in other enterprises.'"

* * *

Agents.

All persons, either ladies or gentlemen, who desire good, profitable employment, and the pleasantest kind of work at their own homes, should send address to J. J. KENNEDY, Williamantic, Conn.

51-4t.

* * *

Useful as Well as Ornamental.

A fine stock of gold pens, pencils, tooth-brushes, charms, etc, fully warranted, just received at the Physicians' drug-store. Just the thing for holiday presents.

Notice.

Parties wishing to purchase cutters should not fail to call on J. W. Shaffer. He has a full lot on hand.

* * *

—We learn that a robbery was committed in Bryan, Ohio, last night. Two men broke into the residence of a grain dealer and secured $9,000.

* * *

—It is proposed to reduce the postage on letters from three to two cents.

Final Settlement.

Notice is hereby given that Robert Arford administrator of the estate of David Flickinger deceased, has filed his final settlement report in my office, and the same will be heard at the next term of the DeKalb circuit court.

JOHN W. BAXTER, Clerk.

December 14, 1880. 51-t

Notice of Administration.

Notice is hereby given that the undersigned has been appointed by the judge of the DeKalb circuit court of the state of Indiana, administrator of the estate of Wm. Wyatt, deceased, late of said county. Said estate is supposed to be insolvent.

ELMON Y. WYATT, Administrator.

51-3t

Petition to Sell Real Estate.

State of Indiana, DeKalb county.—in the DeKalb circuit court.

Notice is hereby given that Maria Dove, administrator of the estate of Henson Dove, deceased, has filed a petition to sell the real estate of the decedent, the personal being insufficient to pay its debts; and that said petition will be heard at the next term of said court.

Attest: JOHN W. BAXTER, Clerk.

Dec. 14, 1880. 51-3t

TO THE AFFLICTED.

Since the introduction of Kellogg's Columbian Oil, it has made more permanent cures and given better satisfaction on kidney complaints and rheumatism than any known remedy. Its continued series of wonderful cures, in all climates, has made it known as a safe and reliable agent to employ against all aches and pains, which are the forerunners of more serious disorders. It acts speedily and surely, always relieving suffering and often saving life. The protection it affords by its timely use on rheumatism, kidney affection, and all aches and pains, wounds, cramping pains, cholera morbus diarrhoea, coughs, colds, catarrh, and disorders among children, makes it an invaluable remedy to be kept always on hand in every home. No person can afford to be without it, and those who have once used it never will. It is absolutely certain in its remedial effects, and will always cure when cures are possible. Call Casebeer & Matheny's and get a memorandum book giving more full details of the curative properties of this wonderful medicine. 51-1y

$100 Reward

For any case of

CATARRH

That cannot be cured with

HALL'S CATARRH CURE.

This is no humbug. No nasal douche. No snuff. Nothing to irritate the nasal cavity or distroy the sense of smell. It is an INTERNAL REMEDY ACTING UPON THE BLOOD, cleansing it from its impurities, causing the puriform matter to be carried off through the natural channels. It is a scientific preparation used and prescribed for years by one of the ablest practitioners in this country, and has never failed to cure when used according to direction.

WE MAKE THIS PROPOSITION:

If any person, after taking one dozen of HALL'S CATARRH CURE is NOT CURED OR BENEFITED more than four times its cost, we will refund the money paid. If it does you good you are willing to pay for it. If it does no good it costs you nothing.

PRICE 75 CENTS PER BOTTLE.

Manufactured by F. J. CHENEY & Co., Druggists, Toledo, O.

11-1 yr. For Sale by all Druggists

GARLAND
MICHIGAN
STOVE CO.
STOVES & RANGES

ROOT & COMPANY

As usual, for the

HOLIDAY SEASON!

Are displaying an immense assortment

ATTRACTIVE GOODS!

—IN—

EVERY DEPARTMENT!

Special sale of Black and Colored Satin DeLyon, at $1, $1.15 and $1.50.

PLAIN SILKS

At 75c., 90c., $1 and $1.25c., reduced from $1, $1.25 and $1.50. Changeable Silks in elegant Quality, and Choice Tints for $1 per yard. All shades of colored 22-inch Satin DeLoin at $1.50 worth $2 peryard.

TRIMMING

Velvets, Satins, Plushes and Brocade Silks in a great variety of color and quantity

OUR DRESS GOODS DEPARTMEMT

Is now complete with new and superior fabrics in the choicest styles, and at the lowest prices.

CLOAKS AND FURS

Our cloaks, shawls, suit and fur department now contain some very choice things in seal, fur-lined and other garments. Also an unusually fine line of ladies' and children's goods of all kinds. Also elegant suits and shawls, and all at our usual low prices. Besides we have an almost endless line of small articles especially for the

HOLLIDAY TRADE

To which we call the attention of the public. Remember our long established motto: "No trouble to show goods, and an inspection of our stock incurs no obligation to purchase."

ROOT & CO., FORT WAYNE, INDIANA.

BIG RUSH

—AT—

Isaac Ochs' Mammoth Store!

THE BOOM INCREASES DAILY.

New Stocks Received Daily!

STUPENDOUS BARGAINS TO BE HAD IN ALL CLASSES OF GOODS.

THE BOTTOM KNOCKED CLEAR OUT OF

BOOTS, SHOES AND RUBBER GOODS.

Selling piles of them cheap; cheaper than anybody.

Immense Trade in Clothing, and Why?

Because I have an immense stock, and am selling cheaper than anybody. Biggest line of Ladies' Dress Goods, and Cloaks, and Dolmans in town, at prices

WAY DOWN! WAY DOWN!

STAPLES ALMOST GIVEN AWAY. Come all ye that want bargains, and I will give them to you.

JOIN THE CROWD AND COME AND SEE Us, COME EVERYBODY!

ISAAC OCHS, Auburn, Ind.

CLOCKS, CLOCKS,

WHELLERY
1071075
WALTHAM, MASS.

GOLD

—AND—

Silver Watches

Rodgers & Brother's PLATED WARE,

SPOONS, KNIVES and FORKS.

Rings, Necklaces, Vest Chains Ladies Gold Chains, Castors, Everything in the Jewelry line.

Violins, Guitars, Banjos, Accordeons, Violin Strings.

Special attention given to repairing fine watches

All Work Warranted.

No charge for mending silver ware sold at

JOE ABRIGHTS,

Second door north of Postoffice, Auburn, Ind

SUPERIOR TO ALL OTHERS!

Largest and Most Complete Line Manufactured.

ADAPTED FOR BURNING ALL KINDS OF FUEL.

EVERY STOVE WARRANTED A SUCCESS

None their Equal—Acknowledged Favorites.

ALWAYS AWARDED FIRST PREMIUM.

Buy the Best.

Sold by W. H. KIBLINGER & CO

BEFORE BUYING YOUR

HOLIDAY PRESENTS

Do not forget to examine our well selected stock of

TOYS, CANDIES

—AND OTHER—

HOLIDAY GOODS,

Which have just been received.

Children's Toys, 1c., 5c., 10c.

Pure Mixed Candy, 12 1-2c lb.

—AT—

ENSLEY & HARTER'S.

—County orders are at par.

—Mrs. Tess is convalescent.

—New school-books are arriving.

—The Bodine property is vacated.

—Mr. Lyman Chidsey is no better.

—Chuck the corn into the gobbler.

—Remember the hop Christmas eve.

—The swimming was good this week.

—The attorneys are lively this week.

—Billy Stimely is clerking for Hollister.

—The wood market is crowded every day.

—Judge Tousley is holding court this week.

—Billy Little has purchased a new horse.

—Wheat looks discouraging says the farmer.

—Winninghoff left town on a "flying trapeze."

—The Jackson time card has been changed.

—Mays will go west again after the holidays.

—The Auburn band wants a bass-drummer.

—One week from Saturday will be Christmas.

—[illegible] is the latest plague among the children.

—Silk handkerchiefs for the holidays, at Yesbera's.

—The best place to deal is at Schaab, Beugnot & Co's.

—Chas. Picker is going to Garrett to work this winter.

—The show windows are loaded full of holiday goods.

—Verge DeWitt broke his wagon down last Friday.

—The owners of the stolen horses have been found.

—The B. & O. road will make a connection at Toledo.

—The county commissioners will adjourn to-morrow.

—The Wabash road will build her shops at the Junction.

—The town is alive with people this week attending court.

—Drop in at Schaab, Beugnot & Co's. and price their clothing.

—Jim Rhodenbaugh is walking policeman on the avenue.

—The grand jury hold night sessions. Faithful boys, are they.

—The delinquent taxes are paid, and Jacob Hoover is at rest.

—New butcher shop in Martin's old building at the north end.

—Alf. Carter has again resumed his labor at the St. Nicholas.

—Fur caps, very elegant and cheap, can be found at Yesbera's.

—John Kreguer has bought Ike Jones' celebrated running mare.

—Mr. Veeley is a long time getting that saw-mill in operation.

—Emilie Gavin at the Methodist church to-morrow evening.

—A large lot of nobby neck-ties can be found at Yesbera's.

—Whittmer Bros. have formed a partnership in the building line.

—Billy Ryan has the mumps. They are delicate things to nurse.

—Call on J. W. Shaffer and see those elegant gutters at low prices.

—Wild turkeys are said to be plenty in the big swamp east of town.

—Clarence Scott, of Bryan, Ohio, is making his brothers here a visit.

—Mr. J. [illegible] McIntyre is confined to his room with sickness this week.

—Mr. Dennis Lanham, living east of town, is suffering with weak eyes.

—Don. Lawrence, of Garrett, took an excursion trip down here Monday.

—Charley Klotz and Sam. Puff were running a slaughter-house to-day.

—A protracted meeting is going on at the Methodist church at Corunna.

—Sheriff Leas had a delegation of his German friends visiting him Sunday.

—Johnny Picker has moved between here and Fort Wayne, on Cedar street.

—The Corunna people are in town this week attending the trial of their warrior, D. Cullicost.

Jim. Rose, he of hotel fame, is sick with lung fever. John Beard smashes trunks during his illness.

—The afternoons are one minute longer now. After the first of January the days will lengthen at both ends.

—Pete Eldridge writes home that he likes the west and enjoys himself hugely.

—Frank Miller, of Waterloo, is learning the telegraph business at the junction.

—There are talk of an auction room being established here. It would pay well.

—A lot of fruit-tree men are stopping at the Auburn House. They drive nice rigs.

—Frand Hoff, with a shot-gun loaded with salt, watched for tramps, Monday night.

—The stave factory men will buy standing timber and hire men to work it into bolts.

—There is a jolly set of boys at work in the cooper-shop, opposite the Auburn House.

—The building on Jackson street, formerly used for the hay press, is being enclosed.

—The baby crop is simply immense. About two democrats to one republican is the average.

—The stave-factory men have made their arrangements to begin work after the holidays.

—Charley Groscop has the contract for hauling the brick for Dave Snyder's new residence.

—The teachers of Jackson township held an institute at Shugar's school-house last Saturday.

—Ed. Picker and his little son, from the far west, are expected to visit here during the holidays.

—Kenny Rush is breaking out with the Kansas fever and will return again to that country soon.

—H. C. Peterson, prosecuting attorney elect, will not perform the duties of his new office for a year.

—Gee Line has given up the poultry speculation. He would rather pick the bones than the feathers.

—Don't judge a man by his failure in life, for many a man fails because he is too honest to succeed.

—J. C. Henry is making quite a lengthy stay at home this time, sickness in his family is the cause of it.

—There has been considerable money expended on sleighs this winter, but we have had little use for them as yet.

—The McClellan school-house three miles southeast of town was considerably damaged by fire last Friday morning.

—The morning train from Butler, is well filled with people, each morning, who have legal business here at the capital.

—There is to be a new bank started in Butler December 30. Mr. Wm. H. Becker, late of Indianapolis, will be the cashier.

—Neal Decker, of the Garrett livery, drove a pair of fancy greys about town Tuesday. Neal knows when he has a good team.

—If you want to purchase underwear of the best quality and very cheap, call at the tailoring establishment of G. H. Yesbera.

—Hank Little lost a brass pad-lock key, somewhere in this state, which the finder will confer a favor by leaving it at this office.

—It is just as sensible for sportsmen to pull a gun over the fence by the muzzle as it is to lead a mule out of a stable by the tail.

—The hay-packers seem to be doing a rushing business. Some of the boys say that Joe. Ruffner has purchased an interest in the press.

—Married, Thursday Dec. 9, by Rev. W. L. Meese, at his residence in Auburn, Mr. John M. Brown, and Matilda Stafford, both of this county.

—"Who's bin here since I'se bin gone?" ejaculated Tom. Mays, on his return from the west, when he found at his home a pretty girl baby.

—It cost Mr. Back, of Harrodsburg, Ky., $100 to kiss Miss Barton against her will. Most girls would have said, put that back where you got it.

—A medical writer asks: "Does position effect sleep?" Well, rather; if you're hung up by your trowsers on a spiked fence, you won't sleep very soundly.

—The finest and most complete line of trusses, shoulder-braces, etc., ever brought to Auburn, at Casebeer & Matheny's drug-store, all of the latest improvement. No charge for fitting.

—A favored few, numbering about eleven, spent a pleasant evening at the residence of John L. Davis last Friday.

—The Fort Wayne Fruit House has made a reduction on sugars this week. Examine their advertisement in this paper.

—Will the ladies of Auburn "keep open house" on New years day? We will gladly publish the names of those intending to do so.

—Dry Houghton, that lively, loud-talking Dry, has a boy baby at his house. He will make more noise than ever now—Dry, not the baby.

—Dave Hampton and his sister, Mrs. Mattie Birdsall, attended the hop at Waterloo last evening. Also Fred. Davis, who reports a good time.

—The "long-felt want" for coal in this place will probably be supplied as spring approaches. We actually saw a whole wagon-load on the street this week.

—The cheapest dry-goods and clothing house in DeKalb county is Schaab, Beugnot & Co's. This is acknowledged by all, and what everybody says is generally true.

—Those of our citizens who appreciate a good thing, of a literary nature, should be sure and hear Miss Emilie Gavin, at the Methodist church to-morrow evening.

The Presbyterian social will be entertained in the basement rooms of the church on next Wednesday afternoon and evening. Refreshments served at the usual hour.

—Tom. Scott & Bro., our popular express men had a break-down last week. When they go after anything it must come in, if the vehicle can stand up under the pressure.

—Our clever young friend, Howard McCord can be found behind the counters of the Physicians' drug-store, where he has entered for the purpose of studying pharmacy.

—Our young medicine dispenser, Dr. Allyn, is yet compelled to use crutches to enable him to go about his duty. We are somewhat considerate for the doctors welfare and hope he may soon recover.

—Frank Copper left to assume his duties at Albion yesterday. Mrs. Copper, who has been sick for some time past, has gone to her mother, in Fostorio, Ohio, to spend a short time.

—Col. Miller has moved back from Garrett. The officers of the road didn' suit him and he withdrew. We may have this slightly mixed, but for valuable information call on Dr. Cowan.

—Miss Sadie Hare has her Sunday-school class under training for the concert, to be given in about two weeks. Sadie is an able teacher and greatly appreciated by both parents and scholars.

—Johnny Spacht is now running a restaurant on Eight street, in the building recently vacated by Mr. Winninghoff. Johnny is adapted to this business, and will undoubtedly make a success of it.

—J.C.Loveland and his sister, Mollie, gave us a pleasant call Wednesday. By-the-way, Joe is one of our liveliest and best local editors, and the patronage of the Headlight is steadily gaining ground.

—It's funny that a fellow who is going to leave town, never thinks about buying any cigars until he is shaking good-bye with the editor. It strikes him all at once then, but his time is too much limited now.

—A nice little party, composed of our young boys and girls, who are just "launching out upon love's great boat," assembled at the residence of Marshal Scott, Wednesday evening, and passed a few hours in a pleasant manner.

—Johnny Schaab, of the firm of Schaab, Beugnot & Co. informs us that this mammoth establishment will cut down the prices of overcoats and winter clothing of all kinds to suit everybody. Call in and price their goods.

—The baby elephants, better known as Miss Metta Farris and Miss Ada McFarland, left for their respective homes in Fostoria and Mt. Vernon, Ohio, Tuesday, and Dave Hampton, Will. Shaffer, Fred. Clark and Fred. Davis are sad and lonely.

—School will commence again next week, and then the average school boy can hide his books under a log, borrow a pair of skates and after breaking through the ice several times make his fond mother believe that Jim Jones threw him down at recess.

—Court commenced last Monday with Judge Tousley on the bench. His health failed and he went home yesterday, and Judge Best will preside the remainder of the week. Judge Woodhull will hold court here next week, and Judge Lowry the week following.

—Os. Allen, he of livery fame, was out back of the barn, Monday, cracking a four-horse whip, until he was entirely exhausted. His friends surrounded him, spoke words of consolation to him, but all to no purpose. When he came to, he explained things by crying aloud: "It's a boy!"

—Twelve or fifteen tramps struck Auburn Tuesday evening, and our citizens were apprehensive that they would want to "borrow" something to eat and wear, and a watch was kept at a number of the business houses. The tramps quartered for the night in the old jail building, and did not attempt to commit any depredations.

—There is a post standing in the middle of the road, east of the Seventh street bridge, that some of these dark nights will jerk off a buggy wheel and probably be the cause of a general smash-up. The county commissioners had it placed there and the c. c. should take it away.

—The first of a series of lectures contemplated this winter, will be at the Methodist church to-morrow evening by Miss Emilie Gavin. This lady comes highly recommended as a humorist and Shakespearian delineater, and our people can count on having a good entertainment.

—The skating is good. Why not have a party of boys and girls out some afternoon—there is nothing more interesting than to see a timid, bashful girl in the center of a pond trying to get to the bank with a pair of smooth-bottom skates on her feet. The "Saint-Anthony dance" is no comparison to her movements.

—Mr. Sprott, of Williams county, O., is partially insane over the loss of his team, and not over any transaction concerning the election, as the crazy republican editors of this county would like to make it appear. We get our information from the Hicksville News, a republican organ, published near the home of Mr. Sprott.

—D. D. Snyder will build a new brick residence, on the lots that he recently purchased of James Draggoo, early next spring. Brick are now being delivered and the work will be pushed through as rapidly as possible. The old structure that now stands there will be moved away, and when all is completed, D. D. will have one of the finest homes in Auburn.

—In the issue of the COURIER of Dec. 2, we spoke of John and Perry Smurr as the murderers of Meyers, at the Bloomingdale brewery in Fort Wayne some months ago. The name should have been Snurr, and we make the correction in justice to John and Perry Smurr, sons of J. C. and Nelson Smurr, who are among our most worthy citizens, and residents of Wilmington township.

—Miss Emilie Gavin will lecture at the Methodist church, to-morrow evening. This lady comes highly recommended by the lecture bureau, and has been secured by a special effort of a few of our enterprising citizens, and we hope the people of Auburn will show their appreciation of this effort to furnish us with firstclass entertainments by turning out on the occasion.

—It will be remembered by our readers that some time ago Benj. Gaskill took up his "bed and board" at our county jail, charged with having burned a barn near Waterloo. We learn that Mr. Gaskill is in possession of the facts concerning the burning of the barn and saw mill near the same place. He will now bring the facts before the grand jury and have his character restored.

—From Mr. W. L. Meese, insurance agent, we learn that the loss by the burning of the college, has been appraised and allowed, as follows: The Royal insurance company, of Liverpool, $3,819,84; the Watertown, of N. Y., $3,000; the Niagra, represented by Mr. T. H. Sprott, $819.82. It is thought that an effort will be made to re-build on the old site as soon as practicable.

—Now is the time of year when the inconsiderate farmer and the fancy town snob agree on one question, and that is to tie their horses to a post or fence without cover or shelter to freeze, whilst they sit comfortably in the store, in the tavern or in the church. The kind and benevolent man will either cover his horses with blankets or robes or have them put into a stable until he is ready to start. "Man's inhumanity to man" is very often also turned against the poor dumb brutes.

—Another smash-up is recorded on the B. & O. Last Saturday five sections were following each other, and when the head engine reached Breeman, Ind., she gave out, and it was impossible to raise steam enough to "pull ahead." Bang! came the second train against the caboose and set fire to the same, destroying its contents, among which were several suits of clothes belonging to the train-men. We learn from a reliable source that all the worn-out engines from the main line are sent over to this division, and it is almost impossible to handle them with any satisfaction.

—We are glad to learn that Rev. H. Johnson is well pleased in his new home, and rapidly gaining in favor with that people. In a recent issue of a Grand Haven paper is this notice: "The Rev. Henry Johnson, of Auburn, Ind., the newly installed pastor of the Presbyterian church, has arrived in the city, and occupied the pulpit of that church on Sunday last. Mr. Johnson is an eloquent, logical speaker, and, although a young man, it may already be safely assumed that the First Presbyterian church has secured a worthy successor to the Rev. Jno. R. Sutherland.

—A barber ought to be able to hold his hone.—Ex.

Yes, he should razor stake when he is strapped, and do it by the shear force of will.—New Orleans Times.

Or failing in that, to cut and comb—Ind. Journal.

If this isn't close shaving we don't know what it is—Kokomo Gazette.

He ought to win the cup, as he has the pole.—Wabash Courier.

The above is a barb'rous play on words.

—We take the following from the Elkhart Democrat: "It seems a novel proceeding to accompany a proposition for marriage with a mortgage on all the real and personal property to the young lady. Such is rarely the case, and shows a devotion and confidence highly commendable. We have heard of a proposal coming in this shape to one of Elkhart's bright-eyed beauties, and are a little curious to see how it will terminate.

—"Mr. Bunch stand up and be sworn." "This Irishman, at my right," says the court, "swears that he lifted you on the proboso in, and that you grabbed up your linen and dusted bias-wise across a five acre field, never stopping to let down fences or open bars, yelling, kavy, kavy!" "Your honor," says Mr. Bunch, "I raised my right arm and let it drop gently against said Irishman and about two hours afterward I noticed a small object, about three miles high, with outstretched arms, soaring over my mansion and I took it to be the Irishman. The case was dismissed.

—Theron P. Keator, of the Wabash Plain Dealer, is gaining reputation in the lecture field. At Warsaw the people were delighted with him, and the Indianian said: "It is quite likely that Mr. Theron P. Keator, of the Wabash Plain Dealer, will be requested by the people of this place to repeat his lecture 'Around the World' at some future time. It was the general impression of all who heard it, that it was the very best ever delivered in this place." Mr. Keator's lecture is spoken of very highly by many of the papers, and as our citizens intend having a course of lectures here this winter, we suggest that this gentlemen be invited to lecture here.

—At this season of the year our Sunday-schools are generally filled to their full capacity. If there ever was a time more than another that the juvenile loves Sunday-school, it is just before Christmas. His whole heart and soul is wrapped up in anticipation of the many beautiful presents that will dangle from the branches of the sabbath-school Christmas tree. Let it be arranged then so that each scholar will receive a present, no matter how trifling it may be, it will have a tendency to satisfy that little heart and make it rejoice. If one should be missed words, would fail to describe the pain and sorrow that would fill this little breast, and we hope the managers of each Christmas tree will consider this particular point.

—An insurance paper thinks that the most efficient fire protection to be an organization for the use of buckets. These may be of rubber or leather, as fancy or expediency may indicate. The cost is moderate, and the buckets may be supplemented by a hook-and-ladder company as auxiliary. For the purpose of uniformity, the bucket brigade may be equipped with hat and belt, but the essential value in the bucket company lies in its instant and always effectiveness. When the alarm of fire is given, it frequently happens that a single bucket of water will extinguish it. The fire bucket being always filled and in readiness, there is no delay. Every man, woman and child who can handle a bucket is a fireman, and is at once in line. The paper says that fire-engines in small towns are not efficient, as they generally are got around too late to do any good.

Neighborhood Nippings.

Donavin's Tennesseans are in Steuben county this week.

Hiram Platt, of Kendallville, was killed by the falling of an over-hanging limb while cutting wood Tuesday of last week.

Saturday, November 27, old Dr. Shutts fell on the track of a railroad in Whitley county, and was run over and killed.

The democratic friends of Lee Linn, of the Wabash Courier, presented him with a purse of $200, as a testimonial of their appreciation of his services as an editor.

The South Bend Herald thinks the Grand Trunk railway shops will be established where the company believe their interest will be best served, regardless of donations, and without requesting such inducements.

"It would be pretty safe to bet that there is not a dozen republicans in this city who would fail to 'collar' the post-office if it should come whisking around where they could 'catch on' to it." The same remark, possibly in a modified sense, would apply to Ligonier. It would be the easiest thing in the world to point to a small army of "loil patriots" who flatter themselves with the idea that they ought to serve Uncle Sam in a postal capacity.—LaPort Argus.

A barn owned by Daniel Wort, living nine miles north of this city, was destroyed by fire last Friday night. Loss, $1,400; insurance, $300. The barn contained two horses, a yoke of oxen, a separator and a quantity of grain, all of which were consumed by the fire. The oxen and separator were the property of Mr. Ackerman, who had been hulling clover-seed for Mr. Wort on Friday. It is supposed that the fire was caused by a lighted cigar.—Kendallville Standard.

—In a paper published in Rhode Island in 1863 the following account of protracted drouth is given: "Our cows are drying up, our pumps are dry, there is no water, and the minister of the Baptist church is dead."

Business Enterprise.

Few towns in Indiana the size of Auburn can boast of as many substantial brick business rooms as Auburn. The last one finished is that of Mich. Houston & Co., which is located in the business center of the town, and finished with a view to convenience for the business in which they are engaged. This firm is one of our most enterprising business establishments and conduct the business to the satisfaction of all who patronize their extensive meat market. Their establishment is supplied with every convenience, including steam-power for running their meat-choppers, etc. Beside furnishing fresh and salt meats of all kinds, they have constantly on hand choice dressed poultry, all of which they sell at the lowest prices possible. Our farmers who have fat cattle, hogs, sheep and poultry to sell will find it to their advantage to give this firm a call before selling. They also pay the highest market price for green and dry hides and pelts.

—If General Hancock lives to see 1884 he will be the president for the next four years thereafter, unless republican bayonet rule and a destruction of our free government should take place before that time. Nero fiddled at the burning of Rome. Corruption, dishonesty when it has made serfs of the people by buying votes to perpetuate its power, may likewise have a grand jubilee over the result of its perfidy. It now glories over the defeat of the most virtuous and patriotic General of the present day, General Hancock. What it may do in the future, time can only tell.—Stark Co. Ledger.

—Anderson Bros. will sell buggies for $15 less than any other shop in the state that has first-class material. Call and look at our large stock of wheels and second-growth hickory trimmings. We have rented the Duck building, which we will use for a show room. Do not buy until you examine our stock, for we will not be undersold. Remember the place, three doors north of the postoffice. All work warranted for two years.

ANDERSON BROS.,
Auburn, Ind.

51 4t

—Notice is hereby given, that on Friday evening, Dec. 31, Union lodge No. 1,486 Knights of Honor, Waterloo, Ind., will hold a meeting for the election of the necessary officers for the ensuing term, in accordance with the laws governing said order.

WM. H. LEAS, Reporter.
D. Y. HUSSELMAN, Dictator.

Report of School No. 4.

The following is the names of scholars neither absent nor tardy during the month ending Dec. 10, 1880: Mary Clark, Harvey Embrey, Clyde Fortner and Elmer Clark. Names of those who were absent no more than one-half day during the month: [illegible] Bell, Dora Jackson, Otho [illegible], Robert Bell and Odd Clark. Parents please assist in having a full attendance.

J. B. SCOTT, Teacher.

School Report.

The following is the report of the names of pupils of the St. Johns school, neither absent nor tardy for the month ending December 10, 1880: Carlton Fair, Elmer Knott, Inlo Fair, Elmer Wilderson, Andrew Fair, Eliza Housal, Blanche Fair, Clyde Wilderson, Nina Quince, Willie Matthews. The parents are cordially invited to visit the school.

JAS. A. QUINCE, Teacher.

School Report.

Of district 6, Fairfield township, for the month ending December 10, 1880. The following are the names of those who were not tardy: Ida Husselman, Alma Husselman, Emma Husselman, Ada Freed, Willie Freed, Etta Knepper, Manda Stahl, Mama Stahl, Altman Ding, Amanda Parnel, Emma Parnel, Emma Gonser, Willie Gonser, Ida Coyl, A. E. Rowe, C. Rowe, Emma Rowe, Mary Rowe, Jacob Rowe, J. H. Urey, Sam Urey, Laura Bickel, Wm. Cline.

The school is pleasant and interesting to me, and I feel sincere gratitude to the parents and children for the kindness they manifest toward me, and the interest they take in the school. The parents are kindly invited to visit the school.

J. P. KANDAL, Teacher.

Truel Treat.

[Columbia City Post.]

When the masses are educated to a higher idea of the true relations which should exist between the ruled and their rulers, and the mere spoils of office are left out of the contest, then, and then only, will politics be purified.

The Post has confidence in the people. Fraud, coercion and the corrupt use of money may nullify their will, but at last the right will prevail. It believes that every graft of imperialism on the constitution, put there by the advocates of federalism, ought to be stricken out. Make this republic a pure democracy, where the voice of the people is supreme.—Ibid.

—There is nothing like a fair quantity of what is called backbone.—Ligonier Banner.

We are well supplied in that respect. Tom Gross, the proprietor of the Central house, has just killed his hogs.

—The Auburn Historical Society will meet at Gordon's art gallery on Tuesday evening, December, 21, 1880. All members are requested to be present. There will be reading and declamations as usual.

MRS. M. B. WILLIS, Sec'y.

AUBURN COURIER.

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 16, 1880.

STATE OF THE COUNTRY.

The President's Annual Message.

Fellow-Citizens of the Senate and House of Representatives:

I congratulate you on the continued and increasing prosperity of our country. By the favor of Divine Providence we have been blessed during the past year, with health, with abundant harvests, with profitable employment for all our people, and with contentment at home, and with peace and friendship with other nations.

The occurrence of the twenty-fourth election of Chief Magistrate has afforded another opportunity to the people of the United States to exhibit to the world a significant example of the peaceful and safe transmission of the power and authority of Government from the public servants whose terms of office are about to expire, to their newly-chosen successors. This example cannot fail to impress profoundly thoughtful people of other countries with the advantages which republican institutions afford. The immediate, general and cheerful acquiescence of all good citizens in the result of the election gives gratifying assurance to our country and to its friends throughout the world that a Government based on the free consent of an intelligent and patriotic people possesses elements of strength, stability and permanency not found in any other form of Government.

Continued opposition to the full and free enjoyment of the rights of citizenship, conferred upon the colored people by the recent amendments to the constitution, still prevails in several of the late slave-holding States. It has, perhaps, not been manifested in the recent election to any large extent in acts of violence or intimidation. It has, however, by fraudulent practices in connection with the ballots, with the regulations as to the place and manner of voting, and with counting, returning, and canvassing the votes cast, been successful in defeating the exercise of the right preservative of all rights, the right of suffrage, which the constitution expressly confers upon our enfranchised citizens.

It is the desire of the good people of the whole country that sectionalism as a factor in our politics should disappear. They prefer that no section of the country should be united in solid opposition to any other section. The disposition to refuse a prompt and hearty obedience to the equal-rights amendments to the constitution is all that now stands in the way of a complete obliteration of sectional lines in our political contests. As long as either of these amendments is flagrantly violated or disregarded, it is safe to assume that the people who placed them in the constitution, as embodying the legitimate results of the war for the Union, and who believe them to be wise and necessary, will continue to act together, and to insist that they shall be obeyed. The paramount question still is as to the enjoyment of the right by every American citizen who has the requisite qualification to freely cast his vote and to have it honestly counted. With this question rightly settled, the country will be relieved of the contentions of the past; bygones will indeed be bygones, and political and party issues with respect to economy and efficiency of administration, internal improvements, the tariff, domestic taxation, education, finance and other important subjects will then receive their full share of attention; but resistance to and nullification of the results of the war will unite together in resolute purpose for their support all who maintain the authority of the Government and the perpetuity of the Union, and who adequately appreciate the value of the victory achieved. This determination proceeds from no hostile sentiment or feeling to any part of the people of our country, or to any of their interests. The inviolability of the amendments rests upon the fundamental principles of our Government. They are the solemn expression of the will of the people of the United States.

The sentiment that the constitutional rights of all our citizens must be maintained does not grow weaker. It will continue to control the Government of the country. Happily, the history of the late election shows that in many parts of the country where opposition to the Fifteenth amendment has heretofore prevailed it is diminishing, and is likely to cease altogether, if firm and well-considered action is taken by Congress. I trust the House of Representatives and the Senate, which have the right to judge of the elections, returns and qualifications of their own members, will see to it that every case of violation of the letter or spirit of the Fifteenth amendment is thoroughly investigated, and that no benefit from such violation shall accrue to any person or party. It will be the duty of the Executive, with sufficient appropriations for the purpose, to prosecute unsparingly all who have been engaged in depriving citizens of the rights guaranteed them by the constitution.

It is not, however, to be forgotten that the best and surest guarantee of the primary rights of citizenship is to be found in that capacity for self-protection which can belong only to a people whose right to universal suffrage is supported by universal education. The means at the command of the local and State authorities are, in many cases, wholly inadequate to furnish free instruction to all who need it. This is especially true where, before emancipation, the education of the people was neglected or prevented, in the interest of slavery. Firmly convinced that the subject of popular education deserves the earnest attention of the people of the whole country, with a view to wise and comprehensive action by the Government of the United States, I respectfully recommend that Congress, by suitable legislation and with proper safeguards, supplement the local educational funds in the several States where the grave duties and responsibilities of citizenship have been devolved on uneducated people, by devoting to the purpose grants of the public lands, and, if necessary, by appropriations from the treasury of the United States. Whatever Government can fairly do to promote free popular education ought to be done. Wherever general education is found, peace, virtue and social order prevail, and civil and religious liberty are secure.

In my former annual messages, I have asked the attention of Congress to the urgent necessity of a reformation of the civil service system of the Government. My views concerning the dangers of patronage, or appointments for personal or partisan considerations, have been strengthened by my observation and experience in the Executive office, and I believe these dangers threaten the stability of the Government. Abuses so serious in their nature cannot be permanently tolerated. They tend to become more alarming with the enlargement of administrative service, as the growth of the country in population increases the number of officers and placemen employed.

The reasons are imperative for the adoption of fixed rules for the regulation of appointments, promotions and removals, establishing a uniform method, having exclusively in view, in every instance, the attainment of the best qualifications for the position in question. Such a method alone is consistent with the equal rights of all citizens, and the most economical and efficient administration of the public business.

Competitive examinations, in aid of impartial appointments and promotions, have been conducted for some years past in several of the Executive Departments, and by my direction this system has been adopted in the Custom Houses and Postoffices of the larger cities of the country. In the city of New York over [illegible] positions in the civil service have been subject, in their appointments and tenure of place, to the operation of published rules for this purpose, during the past two years. The results of these practical trials have been very satisfactory, and have confirmed my opinion in favor of this system of selection. All are subjected to the same tests, and the result is free from prejudice by personal favor or partisan influence. It secures for the position applied for the best qualifications attainable among the competing applicants. It is an effectual protection from the pressure of importunity, which, under any other course pursued, largely exacts the time and attention of appointing officers, to their great detriment in the discharge of other official duties, preventing the abuse of the service for the mere furtherance of private or party purposes, and leaving the employe of the Government, freed from the obligations imposed by patronage, to depend solely upon merit for retention and advancement, and with this constant incentive to exertion and improvement.

These invaluable results have been attained in a high degree in the offices where the rules for appointment by competitive examination have been applied.

A method which has so approved itself by experimental tests at points where such tests may be fairly considered conclusive should be extended to all subordinate positions under the Government. I believe that a strong and growing public sentiment demands immediate measures for securing and enforcing the highest possible efficiency in the civil service, and its protection from recognized abuses, and that the experience referred to has demonstrated the feasibility of such measures.

The examinations in the Custom Houses and Postoffices have been held under many embarrassments, and without provision for compensation for the extra labor performed by the officers who have conducted them, and whose commendable interest in the improvement of the public service has induced this devotion of time and labor without pecuniary reward. A continuance of these labors gratuitously ought not to be expected, and without an appropriation by Congress for compensation it is not practicable to extend the system of examinations generally throughout the civil service. It is also highly important that all such examinations should be conducted upon a uniform system and under general supervision. Section 1,753 of the Revised Statutes authorizes the President to prescribe the regulations for admission to the civil service of the United States, and for this purpose to employ suitable persons to conduct the requisite inquiries with reference to "the fitness of each candidate, in respect to age, health, character, knowledge, and ability, for the branch of service into which he seeks to enter;" but the law is practically inoperative for the want of the requisite appropriation.

I therefore recommend an appropriation of $25,000 per annum to meet the expenses of a commission, to be appointed by the President in accordance with the terms of this section, whose duty it shall be to devise a just, uniform and efficient system of competitive examinations, and to supervise the application of the same throughout the entire civil service of the Government. I am persuaded that the facilities which such a commission will afford for testing the fitness of those who apply for office will not only be as welcome a relief to members of Congress as it will be to the President and heads of departments, but that it will also greatly tend to remove the causes of embarrassment which now inevitably and constantly attend the conflicting claims of patronage between the Legislative and Executive departments. The most effectual check upon the pernicious competition of influence and official favoritism in the bestowal of office will be the substitution of an open competition of merit between the applicants, in which every one can make his own record, with the assurance that his success will depend upon this alone.

I also recommend such legislation as, while leaving every officer as free as any other citizen to express his political opinions and to use his means for their advancement, shall also enable him to feel as safe as any private citizen in refusing all demands upon his salary for political purposes. A law which should thus guarantee true liberty and justice to all who are engaged in the public service, and likewise contain stringent provisions against the use of official authority to coerce the political action of private citizens or of official subordinates, is greatly to be desired.

The most serious obstacle, however, to an improvement of the civil service, and especially to a reform in the method of appointment and removal, has been found to be the practice, under what is known as the spoils system, by which the appointing power has been so largely encroached upon by members of Congress. The first step in the reform of the civil service must be a complete divorce between Congress and the Executive in the matter of appointments. The corrupting doctrine that "to the victors belong the spoils" is inseparable from Congressional patronage as the established rule and practice of parties in power. It comes to be understood by applicants for office, and by the people generally, that Representatives and Senators are entitled to disburse the patronage of their respective districts and States. It is not necessary to recite at length the evils resulting from this invasion of the Executive functions. The true principles of government on the subject of appointments to office, as stated in the National Conventions of the leading parties of the country, have again and again been approved by the American people, and have not been called in question in any quarter. These authentic expressions of public opinion upon this all-important subject are the statement of principles that belong to the constitutional structure of the Government.

"Under the constitution the President and heads of departments are to make nominations for office. The Senate is to advise and consent to appointments, and the House of Representatives is to accuse and prosecute faithless officers. The best interest of the public service demands that these distinctions be respected; that Senators and Representatives, who may be judges and accusers, should not dictate appointments to office." To this end the co-operation of the Legislative Department of the Government is required, alike by the necessities of the case and by public opinion. Members of Congress will not be relieved from the demands made upon them with reference to appointments to office until, by legislative enactment, the pernicious practice is condemned and forbidden.

It is therefore recommended that an act be passed defining the relations of members of Congress with reference to appointments to office by the President, and I also recommend that the provisions of section 1,767, and of the sections following, of the Revised Statutes, comprising the Tenure-of-Office act, of March 2, 1867, be repealed.

Believing that to reform the system and methods of the civil service in our country is one of the highest and most imperative duties of statesmanship, and that it can be permanently done only by the co-operation of the Legislative and Executive Departments of the Government, I again commend the whole subject to your considerate attention.

It is the recognized duty and purpose of the people of the United States to suppress polygamy where it now exists in our Territories, and to prevent its extension. Faithful and zealous efforts have been made by the United States authorities in Utah to enforce the laws against it. Experience has shown that the legislation upon this subject, to be effective, requires extensive modification and amendment. The longer action is delayed, the more difficult it will be to accomplish what is desired. Prompt and decided measures are necessary. The Mormon sectarian organization which upholds polygamy has the whole power of making and executing the local legislation of the Territory. By its control of the grand and petit juries, it possesses large influence over the administration of justice. Exercising, as the heads of this sect do, the local political power of the Territory, they are able to make effective their hostility to the law of Congress on the subject of polygamy, and, in fact, do prevent its enforcement. Polygamy will not be abolished if the enforcement of the law depends on those who practice and uphold the crime. It can only be suppressed by taking away the political power of the sect which encourages and sustains it. The power of Congress to enact suitable laws to protect the Territories is ample. It is not a case of half-way measures. The political power of the Mormon sect is increasing; it controls now one of our wealthiest and most populous Territories. It is extending steadily into other Territories. Wherever it goes it establishes polygamy and sectarian political power. The sanctity of marriage and the family relation are the corner-stone of our American society and civilization. Religious liberty and the separation of church and state are among the elementary ideas of free institutions. To re-establish the interests and principles which polygamy and Mormonism have imperilled, and to fully reopen to intelligent and virtuous immigrants of all creeds that part of our domain which has been, in a great degree, closed to general immigration by intolerant and immoral institutions, it is recommended that the Government of the Territory of Utah be reorganized.

I recommend that Congress provide for the government of Utah by a Governor and Judges, or Commissioners, appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate—a government analogous to the provisional government established for the territory northwest of the Ohio, by the ordinance of 1787. If, however, it is deemed best to continue the existing form of local government, I recommend that the right to vote, hold office, and sit on juries in the Territory of Utah be confined to those who neither practice nor uphold polygamy. If thorough measures are adopted, it is believed that within a few years the evils which now afflict Utah will be eradicated, and that this Territory will in good time become one of the most prosperous and attractive of the new States of the Union.

Our relations with all foreign countries have been those of undisturbed peace, and have presented no occasion for concern as to their continued maintenance.

My anticipation of an early reply from the British Government to the demand of indemnity to our fishermen for the injuries suffered by that industry at Fortune bay, in January, 1878, which I expressed in my last annual Message, was disappointed. This answer was received only in the latter part of April in the present year, and, when received, exhibited a failure of accord between the two Governments, as to the measure of the inshore-fishing privilege secured to our fishermen by the treaty of Washington, of so serious a character that I made it the subject of a communication to Congress, in which I recommended the adoption of the measures which seemed to me proper to be taken by this Government in maintenance of the rights accorded to our fishermen under the treaty, and toward securing an indemnity for the injury these interests had suffered. A bill to carry out these recommendations was under consideration by the House of Representatives at the time of the adjournment of Congress in June last.

Within a few weeks I have received a communication from her Majesty's Government, renewing the consideration of the subject, both of the indemnity for the injuries at Fortune bay, and of the interpretation of the treaty in which the previous correspondence had shown the two Governments to be at variance. Upon both these topics the disposition toward a friendly agreement is manifested by a recognition of our right to an indemnity for the transaction at Fortune bay, leaving the measure of such indemnity to further conference, and by an assent to the view of this Government, presented in the previous correspondence, that the regulation of conflicting interests of the shore fishery of the provincial seacoasts, and the vessel fishery of our fishermen, should be made the subject of conference and concurrent arrangement between the two Governments.

I sincerely hope that the basis may be found for a speedy adjustment of the very serious divergence of views in the interpretation of the fishery clauses of the treaty of Washington, which, as the correspondence between the two Governments stood at the last session of Congress, seemed to be irreconcilable.

In the important exhibition of arts and industries, which was held last year at Sydney, New South Wales, as well as in that now in progress at Melbourne, the United States have been efficiently and honorably represented. The exhibitors from this country at the former place received a large number of awards in some of the most considerable departments, and the participation of the United States was recognized by a special mark of distinction. In the exhibition at Melbourne, the share taken by our country is no less notable, and an equal degree of success is confidently expected.

The state of peace anp tranquillity now enjoyed by all the nations of the continent of Europe has its favorable influence upon our diplomatic and commercial relations with them. We have concluded and ratified a convention with the French republic for the settlement of claims of the citizens of either country against the other. Under this convention a commission, presided over by a distinguished publicist, appointed, in pursuance of the request of both nations, by His Majesty, the Emperor of Brazil, has been organized and has begun its sessions in this city. A congress to consider means for the protection of industrial property has recently been in session in Paris, to which I have appointed the Ministers of the United States in France and in Belgium as delegates. The International Commission upon Weights and Measures also continues its work in Paris. I invite your attention to the necessity of an appropriation to be made in time to enable this Government to comply with its obligations under the Metrical Convention.

Our friendly relations with the German empire continue without interruption. At the recent International Exhibition of Fish and Fisheries, at Berlin, the participation of the United States, notwithstanding the haste with which the commission was forced to make its preparations, was extremely successful and meritorious, winning for private exhibitors numerous awards of a high class, and for the country at large the principal prize of honor offered by His Majesty, the Emperor. The results of this great success cannot but be advantageous to this important and growing industry. There have been some questions raised between the two Governments as to the proper effect and interpretation of our treaties of naturalization, but recent dispatches from our Minister at Berlin show that favorable progress is making toward an understanding, in accordance with the views of this Government, which makes and admits no distinction between the rights of a native and naturalized citizen of the United States. In practice, the complaints of molestation suffered by naturalized citizens abroad have never been fewer than at present.

There is nothing of importance to note in our unbroken friendly relations with the Governments of Austria-Hungary, Russia, Portugal, Sweden and Norway, Switzerland, Turkey and Greece.

During the last summer several vessels belonging to the merchant marine of this country, sailing in neutral waters of the West Indies, were fired at, boarded, and searched by an armed cruiser of the Spanish Government. The circumstances, as reported, involve not only a private injury to the persons concerned, but also seemed too little observant of the friendly relations existing for a century between this country and Spain. The wrong was brought to the attention of the Spanish Government in a serious protest and remonstrance, and the matter is undergoing investigation by the royal authorities, with a view to such explanation or reparation as may be called for by the facts.

The commission sitting in this city for the adjudication of claims of our citizens against the Government of Spain is, I hope, approaching the termination of its labors.

The claims against the United States under the Florida treaty with Spain were submitted to Congress for its action at the late session, and again invite your attention to the long-standing question, with a view to the final disposition of the matter.

At the invitation of the Spanish Government, a conference has recently been held at the city of Madrid to consider the subject of protection by foreign powers of native moors in the empire of Morocco. The Minister of the United States, in Spain was directed to take part in the deliberations of this conference, the result of which is a convention signed on behalf of all the powers represented. The instrument will be laid before the Senate for its consideration. The Government of the United States has lost no opportunity to urge upon that of the Emperor of Morocco the necessity, in accordance with the humane and enlightened spirit of the age, of putting an end to the persecutions, which have been so prevalent in that country, of persons of a faith other than the Moslem, and especially of the Hebrew residents of Morocco.

The Consular treaty concluded with Belgium has not yet been officially promulgated, owing to the alteration of a word in the text by the Senate of the United States, which occasioned a delay, during which the time allowed for ratification expired. The Senate will be asked to extend the period for ratification.

The attempt to negotiate a treaty of extradition with Denmark failed on account of the objection of the Danish Government to the usual clause providing that each nation should pay the expense of the arrest of the persons whose extradition it asks.

The provision made by Congress, at its last session, for the expense of the commission which had been appointed to enter upon negotiations with the Imperial Government of China, on subjects of great interest to the relations of the two countries, enabled the Commissioners to proceed at once upon their mission. The Imperial Government was prepared to give prompt and respectful attention to the matters brought under negotiation, and the conferences proceeded with such rapidity and success that, on the 17th of November last, two treaties were signed at Pekin, one relating to the introduction of Chinese into this country, and one relating to commerce. Mr. Trescot, one of the Commissioners, is now on his way home bringing the treaties, and it is expected that they will be received in season to be laid before the Senate early in January.

Our Minister in Japan has negotiated a convention for the reciprocal relief of shipwrecked seamen. I take occasion to urge once more upon Congress the propriety of making provision for the erection of suitable fire-proof buildings at the Japanese capital for the use of the American legation, and the Court House and jail connected with it. The Japanese Government, with great generosity and courtesy, has offered for this purpose an eligible piece of land.

In my last annual message I invited the attention of Congress to the subject of the indemnity funds received some years ago from China and Japan. I renew the recommendation then made, that whatever portions of these funds are due to American citizens should be promptly paid, and the residue returned to the nations, respectively, to which they justly and equitably belong.

The extradition treaty with the kingdom of the Netherlands, which has been for some time in course of negotiation, has, during the past year, been concluded and duly ratified.

Relations of friendship and amity have been established between the Government of the United States and that of Roumania. We have sent a diplomatic representative to Bucharest, and have received at this capital the special Envoy who has been charged by his Royal Highness Prince Charles to announce the independent sovereignty of Roumania. We hope for a speedy development of commercial relations between the two countries.

In my last annual message I expressed the hope that the prevalence of quietude on the border between this country and Mexico would soon become so assured as to justify the modification of the orders, then in force, to our military commanders, in regard to crossing the frontier, without encouraging such disturbances as would endanger the peace of the two countries. Events moved in accordance with these expectations, and the orders were accordingly withdrawn, to the entire satisfaction of our citizens and the Mexican Government. Subsequently the peace of the border was again disturbed by a savage foray, under the command of the Chief Victorio, but, by the combined and harmonious action of the military forces of both countries, his band has been broken up and substantially destroyed.

There is reason to believe that the obstacles which have so long prevented rapid and convenient communication between the United States and Mexico by railways are on the point of disappearing, and that several important enterprises of this character will soon be set on foot which cannot fail to contribute largely to the prosperity of both countries.

New Envoys from Guatemala, Colombia, Bolivia, Venezuela and Nicaragua have recently arrived at this capital, whose distinction and enlightenment afford the best guarantee of the continuance of friendly relations between ourselves and these sister republics.

The relations between this Government and that of the United States of Colombia have engaged public attention during the past year, mainly by reason of the project of an interoceanic canal across the Isthmus of Panama, to be built by private capital under a concession from the Colombian Government for that purpose. The treaty obligations subsisting between the United States and Colombia, by which we guarantee the neutrality of the transit and the sovereignty and property of Colombia in the isthmus, make it necessary that the conditions under which so stupendous a change in the region embraced in this guarantee should be effected—transforming, as it would, this Isthmus, from a barrier between the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, into a gateway and thoroughfare between them, for the navies and merchant ships of the world—should receive the approval of this Government, as being compatible with the discharge of these obligations on our part, and consistent with our interests as the principal commercial power of the Western hemisphere. The views which I expressed in a special message to Congress in March last, in relation to this project, I deem it my duty again to press upon your attention. Subsequent consideration has but confirmed the opinion "that it is the right and duty of the United States to assert and maintain such supervision and authority over any interoceanic canal across the isthmus that connects North and South America as will protect our national interest."

The war between the republic of Chili on the one hand, and the allied republics of Peru and Bolivia on the other, still continues. This Government has not felt called upon to interfere in a contest that is within the belligerent rights of the parties as independent states. We have, however, always held ourselves in readiness to aid in accommodating their difference, and have at different times reminded both belligerents of our willingness to render such service.

Our good offices in this direction were recently accepted by all the belligerents, and it was hoped they would prove efficacious; but I regret to announce that the measures which the Ministers of the United States at Santiago and Lima were authorised to take, with the view to bring about a peace, were not successful. In the course of the war some questions have arisen affecting neutral rights; in all of these the Ministers of the United States have, under their instructions, acted with promptness and energy in protection of American interest.

The relations of the United States with the empire of Brazil continue to be most cordial, and their commercial intercourse steadily increase, to their mutual advantage.

The internal disorders with which the Argentine Republic has for some time past been afflicted, and which have more or less influenced its external trade, are understood to have been brought to a close. This happy result may be expected to redound to the benefit of the foreign commerce of that republic as well as to the development of its vast interior resources.

In Samoa, the Government of King Malietoa, under the support and recognition of the Consular representatives of the United States, Great Britain and Germany, seems to have given peace and tranquillity to the islands. While it does not appear desirable to adopt as a whole the scheme of tripartite local government, which has been proposed, the common interests of the three great treaty powers require harmony in their relations to the native frame of government, and this may be best secured by a simple diplomatic agreement between them. It would be well if the Consular jurisdiction of our representative at Apia were increased in extent and importance so as to guard American interests in the surrounding and outlying islands of Oceanica.

The obelisk, generously presented by the Khedive of Egypt to the city of New York, has arrived safely in this country, and will soon be erected in that metropolis. A commission for the liquidation of the Egyptian debt has lately concluded its work, and this Government, at the earnest solicitation of the Khedive, has acceded to the provisions adopted by it, which will be laid before Congress for its information. A commission for the revision of the judicial code of the reform tribunal of Egypt is now in session at Cairo. Mr. Farman, Consul General, and J. M. Batchelder, Esq., have been appointed as Commissioners to participate in this work. The organization of the reform tribunals will probably be continued for another period of five years.

In pursuance of the act passed at the last session of Congress, invitations have been extended to foreign maritime states to join in a sanitary conference in Washington, beginning the 1st of January. The acceptance of this invitation by many prominent powers gives promise of success in this important measure, designed to establish a system of international notification by which the spread of infectious or epidemic diseases may be more effectively checked or prevented. The attention of Congress is invited to the necessary appropriations for carrying into effect the provisions of the act.

The efforts of the Department of State to enlarge the trade and commerce of the United States, through the active agency of Consular officers and through the dissemination of information obtained from them, have been unrelaxed. The interest in these efforts, as developed in our commercial communities, and the value of the information secured by this means to the trade and manufactures of the country, were recognized by Congress at its last session, and provision was made for the more frequent publication of Consular and other reports by the Department of State. The first issue of this publication has now been prepared, and subsequent issues may regularly be expected. The importance and interest attached to the reports of Consular officers are witnessed by the general demand for them by all classes of merchants and manufacturers engaged in our foreign trade. It is believed that the system of such publications is deserving of the approval of Congress, and that the necessary appropriations for its continuance and enlargement will commend itself to your consideration.

The prosperous energies of our domestic industries, and their immense production of the subjects of foreign commerce, invite, and even require, an active development of the wishes and interests of our people in that direction. Especially important is it that our commercial relations with the Atlantic and Pacific coasts of South America, with the West Indies and the Gulf of Mexico should be direct, and not through the circuit of European systems, and should be carried on in our own bottoms. The full appreciation of the opportunities which our front on the Pacific ocean gives to commerce with Japan, China and the East Indies, with Australia and the island groups which lie along the routes of navigation, should inspire equal efforts to appropriate to our own shipping, and to administer by our own capital, a due proportion of this trade. Whatever modifications of our regulations of trade and navigation may be necessary or useful to meet and direct these impulses to the enlargement of our exchanges and of our carrying trade, I am sure the wisdom of Congress will be ready to supply. One initial measure, however, seems to be so clearly useful and efficient that I venture to press it upon your earnest attention. It seems to be very evident that the provision of regular steam postal communication, by aid from Government, has been the forerunner of the commercial predominance of Great Britain on all these coasts and seas, a greater share in whose trade is now the desire and intent of our people. It is also manifest that the efforts of other European nations to contend with Great Britain for a share of this commerce have been successful in proportion with their adoption of regular steam-postal communication with the markets whose trade they sought. Mexico and the states of South America are anxious to receive such postal communications with this country, and to aid in their development. Similar co-operation may be looked for, in due time, from the Eastern nations and from Australia. It is difficult to see how the lead in this movement can be expected from private interests. In respect of foreign commerce, quite as much as in internal trade, postal communication seems necessarily a matter of common and public administration, and thus pertaining to government. I respectfully recommend to your prompt attention such just and efficient measures as may conduce to the development of our foreign commercial exchanges and the building up of our carrying trade.

In this connection I desire also to suggest the very great service which might be expected in enlarging and facilitating our commerce on the Pacific ocean were a transmarine cable laid from San Francisco to the Sandwich islands, and thence to Japan at the north and Australia at the south. The great influence of such means of communication on these routes of navigation, in developing and securing the due share of our Pacific coast in the commerce of the world needs no illustration or enforcement. It may be that such an enterprise, useful and in the end profitable as it would prove to private investment, may need to be accelerated by prudent legislation by Congress in its aid, and I submit the matter to your careful consideration.

An additional, and not unimportant, although secondary, reason for fostering and enlarging the navy may be found in the unquestionable service to the expansion to our commerce, which would be rendered by the frequent circulation of naval ships in the seas and ports of all quarters of the globe. Ships of the proper construction and equipment, to be of the greatest efficiency in case of maritime war, might be made constant and active agents in time of peace in the advancement and protection of our foreign trade, and in the nurture and discipline of young seamen, who would, naturally, in some numbers, mix with and improve the crews of our merchant-ships. Our merchants at home and abroad recognise the value to foreign commerce of an active movement of our naval vessels, and the intelligence and patriotic zeal of our naval officers in promoting every interest of their countrymen is a just subject of national pride.

The condition of the financial affairs of the Government, as shown by the report of the Secretary of the Treasury, is very satisfactory. It is believed that the present financial situation of the United States, whether considered with respect to trade, currency, credit, growing wealth, or the extent and variety of our resources, is more favorable than that of any other country of our time, and has never been surpassed by that of any country at any period of its history. All our industries are thriving; the rate of interest is low; new railroads are being constructed; a vast immigration is increasing our population, capital, and labor; new enterprises in great number are in progress; and our commerce with other countries is improving.

The ordinary revenues, from all sources, for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1880, were:

From customs	$186,522,064.60
From internal revenue	124,009,373.92
From sales of public lands	1,016,506.60
From tax on circulation and deposits of national banks	7,014,971.44
From repayment of interest by Pacific railway companies	1,707,367.18
From sinking fund of Pacific railway companies	786,621.22
From customs fees, fines, penalties, etc.	1,148,800.16
From fees—consular, letters patent and lands	2,337,029.00
From proceeds of sales of Government property	282,616.50
From profits on coinage, etc.	2,792,186.73
From revenues of the District of Columbia	1,809,469.70
From miscellaneous sources	4,099,603.88
Total ordinary receipts	$333,526,610.98

The ordinary expenditures for the same period were:

For civil expenses	$15,693,963.55
For foreign intercourse	1,211,490.58
For Indians	5,945,457.09
For pensions, including $19,341,025.20 arrears of pensions	56,777,174.44
For the military establishment, including river and harbor improvements and arsenals	38,116,916.22
For the naval establishment, including vessels, machinery and improvements at navy yards	13,536,984.74
For miscellaneous expenditures, including public buildings, light-houses, and collecting the revenue	34,535,691.00
For expenditures on account of the District of Columbia	3,272,384.63
For interest on the public debt	95,757,575.11
For premium on bonds purchased	2,795,320.42
Total ordinary expenditures	$267,642,957.78
Leaving a surplus revenue of	$65,883,653.20
Which, with an amount drawn from the cash balance in the treasury of	8,084,434.21
Making	$73,968,087.41
Was applied to the redemption—
Of bonds for the sinking fund	$73,652,900.00
Of fractional currency	251,717.41
Of the loan of 1858	40,000.00
Of temporary loan	100.00
Of bounty-land scrip	25.00
Of compound-interest notes	16,500.00
Of 7-30 notes of 1864-'5	2,650.00
Of one and two-year notes	3,700.00
Of old demand notes	495.00
	$73,968,087.41

The amount due the sinking fund for this year was $37,931,643.55. There was applied thereto the sum of $73,904,617.41, being $35,972,973.86 in excess of the actual requirements for the year.

The aggregate of the revenues from all sources during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1880, was $333,526,610.98, an increase over the preceding year of $59,639,426.52. The receipts thus far, of the current year, together with the estimated receipts for the remainder of the year, amount to $350,000,000, which will be sufficient to meet the [illegible] of the year, and leave a [illegible]

It is fortunate that this [illegible] occurs at a period when it may [illegible] plied to the payment of the public [illegible] be redeemable. No public duty [illegible] constantly cherished in the United [illegible] the policy of paying the nation's [illegible] idly as possible.

The debt of the United States, less cash in the treasury and exclusive of accruing interest, attained its maximum of $2,756,[illegible] in August, 1865, and has since that time been reduced to $1,886,019,504.65. Of the principal of the debt $108,758,100 has been paid since March 1, 1877, effecting an annual saving of interest of $6,107,593. The burden of interest has also been diminished by the sale of bonds bearing a low rate of interest, and the application of the proceeds to the redemption of bonds bearing a higher rate. The annual saving thus secured since March 1, 1877, is [illegible]

Within a short period over [illegible] and 6-per-cent. bonds will become redeemable. This presents a very favorable opportunity not only to further reduce the principal of the debt, but also to reduce the rate of interest on that which will remain unpaid. I call the attention of Congress to the views expressed on this subject by the Secretary of the Treasury in his annual report, and recommend [illegible] action, to enable the Treasury Department to complete the refunding of the debt which is about to mature.

The continuance of specie payments has not been interrupted or endangered since the date of resumption. It has contributed greatly to the revival of business and to our remarkable prosperity. The fears that preceded and accompanied resumption have proved groundless. No considerable amount of United States notes have been presented for redemption, while very large sums of gold bullion, both domestic and imported, are taken to the mints and exchanged for coin or notes. The increase of coin and bullion in the United States since Jan. 1, 1879, is estimated at $227,399,428.

There are still in existence, uncancelled, $346,681,016 of United States legal-tender notes. These notes were authorized as a war measure, made necessary by the exigencies of the conflict in which the United States was then engaged. The preservation of the nation's existence required, in the judgment of Congress, an issue of legal-tender paper money. That it served well the purpose for which it was created is not questioned, but the employment of the notes as paper money indefinitely, after the accomplishment of the object for which they were provided, was not contemplated by the framers of the law under which they were issued. These notes long since became like any other pecuniary obligation of the Government—a debt to be paid, and, when paid, to be cancelled as mere evidence of an indebtedness no longer existing. I, therefore, repeat what was said in the annual Message of last year, that the retirement from circulation of United States notes, with the capacity of legal tender in private contracts, is a step to be taken in our progress toward a safe and stable currency, which should be accepted as the policy and duty of the Government and the interest and security of the people.

At the time of the passage of the act now in force requiring the coinage of silver dollars, fixing their value and giving them legal-tender character, it was believed by [illegible] porters of the measure that [illegible] which it authorized, would [illegible] under the operations of the law, of [illegible] value to the gold dollar. There were other supporters of the bill, who, while they doubted as to the probability of this result, nevertheless were willing to give the proposed experiment a fair trial, with a view to stop the coinage if experience should prove that the silver dollar authorized by the bill continued to be of less commercial value than the standard gold dollar.

The coinage of silver dollars, under the act referred to, began in March, 1878, and has been continued as required by the act. The average rate per month to the present time has been $2,276,492. The total amount coined prior to the 1st of November last was $72,847,750. Of this amount $47,084,450 remain in the treasury, and only $25,967,301 are in the hands of the people. A constant effort has been made to keep this currency in circulation, and considerable expense has been necessarily incurred for this purpose, but its return to the treasury is prompt and sure. Contrary to the confident anticipation of the friends of the measure at the time of its adoption, the value of the silver dollar, containing 412½ grains of silver, has not increased. During the year prior to the passage of the bill authorizing its coinage, the market value of the silver which it contained was from 90 to 92 cents, as compared with the standard gold dollar. During the last year the average market value of the silver dollar has been [illegible] cents.

It is obvious that the legislation of the last Congress in regard to silver, so far as it was based on an anticipated rise in the value of silver as a result of that legislation, has failed to produce the effect then predicted. The longer the law remains in force, requiring, as it does the coinage of a nominal dollar, which, in reality, is not a dollar, the greater becomes the danger that this country will be forced to accept a single metal as the sole legal standard of value, in circulation, and this a standard of less value than it purports to be worth in the recognized money of the world.

The constitution of the United States, sound financial principles, and our best interests, all require that the country should have as its legal-tender money both gold and silver coin, of an intrinsic value, as bullion, equivalent to that which, upon its face, it purports to possess. The constitution, in express terms, recognizes both gold and silver as the only true legal-tender money. To banish either of these metals from our currency is to narrow and limit the circulating medium of exchange to the disparagement of important interests. The United States produces more silver than any other country, and is directly interested in maintaining it as one of the two precious metals which furnish the coinage of the world. It will, in my judgment, contribute to this result if Congress will repeal so much of existing legislation as requires the coinage of silver dollars containing only 412½ grains of silver, and in its stead will authorize the Secretary of the Treasury to coin silver dollars of equivalent value as bullion with gold dollars. This will defraud no man, and will be in accordance with familiar precedents. Congress, on several occasions, has altered the ratio of value between gold and silver, in order to establish it more nearly in accordance with the actual ratio of value between the two metals.

In financial legislation every measure in the direction of greater fidelity in the discharge of pecuniary obligations has been found by experience to diminish the rates of interest which debtors are required to pay, and to increase the facility with which money can be obtained for every legitimate purpose. Our own recent financial history shows how surely money becomes abundant whenever confidence in the exact performance of moneyed obligations is established.

The Secretary of War reports that the expenditures of the War Department for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1880, were $39,924,778.[illegible] The appropriations for this department, for the current fiscal year, amount to $41,993,630.40.

With respect to the army, the Secretary invites attention to the fact that its strength is limited by statute (Section 1115, Revised Statutes) to not more than 30,000 enlisted men, but that provisos contained in appropriation bills have limited expenditures to the enlistment of but 25,000. It is believed that full legal strength is the least possible force at which the present organization can be maintained, having in view efficiency, discipline and economy. While the enlistment of this force would add somewhat to the appropriation for pay of the army, the saving made in other respects would be more than an equivalent for this additional outlay, and the efficiency of the army would be largely increased.

The rapid extension of the railroad system west of the Mississippi river, and the great tide of settlers which has flowed in upon new territory, impose on the military an entire change of policy. The maintenance of small posts along wagon and stage routes of travel is no longer necessary. Permanent quarters at points selected, of a more substantial character than those heretofore constructed, will be required. Under existing laws, permanent buildings cannot be erected without the sanction of Congress, and when sales of military sites and buildings have been authorized, the moneys received have reverted [illegible] from the retired list of the army.

Attention is asked to the necessity of providing by legislation for organizing, arming, and disciplining the active militia of the country, and liberal appropriations are recommended in this behalf. The reports of the Adjutant General of the army and the Chief of Ordnance touching this subject fully set forth its importance.

The report of the officer in charge of education in the army shows that there are seventy-eight schools now in operation in the army, with an aggregate attendance of 2,305 enlisted men and children. The Secretary recommends the enlistment of 150 schoolmasters, with the rank and pay of Commissary Sergeants. An appropriation is needed to supply the Judge Advocates of the army with suitable libraries, and the Secretary recommends that the corps of Judge Advocates be placed upon the same footing as to promotion with the other staff corps of the army. Under the existing laws the Bureau of Military Justice consists of one officer, the Judge Advocate General, and the corps of Judge Advocates, of eight officers of equal rank (Majors), with a provision that the limit of the corps shall remain at four, when reduced by casualty or resignation to that number. The consolidation of the Bureau of Military Justice and the corps of Judge Advocates, upon the same basis with the other staff corps of the army, would remove an unjust discrimination against deserving officers, and subserve the best interests of the service.

Especial attention is asked to the report of the Chief of Engineers upon the condition of our national defenses. From a personal inspection of many of the fortifications referred to, the Secretary is able to emphasize the recommendations made, and to state that their incomplete and defenseless condition is discreditable to the country. While other nations have been increasing their means for carrying on offensive warfare and attacking maritime cities, we have been dormant in preparation for defense; nothing of importance has been done toward strengthening and finishing our casemated works since our late civil war, during which the great guns of modern warfare and the heavy armor of modern fortifications and ships came into use among the nations, and our earthworks left, by a sudden failure of appropriations some years since, in all stages of incompletion, are now being rapidly destroyed by the elements.

The two great rivers of the North American continent, the Mississippi and the Columbia, have their navigable waters wholly within the limits of the United States, and are of vast importance to our internal and foreign commerce. The permanency of the important work on the South pass of the Mississippi river seems now to be assured. There has been no failure whatever in the maintenance of the maximum channel during the six months ended Aug. 9 last. This experiment has opened a broad, deep highway to the ocean, and is an improvement upon the permanent success of which congratulations may be exchanged among people abroad and at home, and especially among the communities of the Mississippi valley, whose commercial exchanges float in an unobstructed channel safely to and from the sea.

A comprehensive improvement of the Mississippi and its tributaries is a matter of transcendent importance. These great waterways comprise a system of inland transportation spread like net-work over a large portion of the United States, and navigable to the extent of many thousands of miles. Producers and consumers alike have a common interest in such unequaled facilities for cheap transportation. Geographically, commercially and politically they are the strongest tie between the various sections of the country. These channels of communication and interchange are the property of the nation. Its jurisdiction is paramount over their waters, and the plainest principles of public interest require their intelligent and careful supervision, with a view to their protection, improvement, and the enhancement of their usefulness.

The channel of the Columbia river, for a distance of about 100 miles from its mouth, is obstructed by a succession of bars, which occasion serious delays in navigation, and heavy expense for lighterage and towage. A depth of at least twenty feet at low tide should be secured and maintained, to meet the requirements of the extensive and growing inland and ocean commerce it subserves. The most urgent need, however, for this great water-way is a permanent improvement of the channel at the mouth of the river.

From Columbia river to San Francisco, a distance of over 600 miles, there is no harbor on our Pacific coast which can be approached during stormy weather. An appropriation of $150,000 was made by the Forty-fifth Congress for the commencement of a breakwater and harbor of refuge, to be located at some point between the Straits of Fuca and San Francisco, at which the necessities of commerce, local and general, will be best accommodated. The amount appropriated is thought to be quite inadequate for the purpose intended. The cost of the work, when finished, will be very great, owing to the want of natural advantages for a site at any point on the coast between the designated limits, and it has not been thought to be advisable to undertake the work without a larger appropriation. I commend the matter to the attention of Congress.

The completion of the new building for the War Department is urgently needed, and the estimates for continuing its construction are especially recommended.

The collections of books, specimens and records constituting the Army Medical Museum and Library are of national importance. The library now contains about 51,500 volumes and 57,000 pamphlets relating to medicine, surgery and allied topics. The contents of the Army Medical Museum consist of 22,000 specimens, and are unique in the completeness with which both military surgery and the diseases of armies are illustrated. Their destruction would be an irreparable loss, not only to the United States, but to the world. There are filed in the Record and Pension Division over 16,000 bound volumes of hospital records, together with a great quantity of papers, embracing the original records of the hospitals of our armies during the civil war. Aside from their historical value, these records are daily searched for evidence needed in the settlement of large numbers of pension and other claims, for the protection of the Government against attempted frauds, as well as for the benefit of honest claimants. These valuable collections are now in a building which is peculiarly exposed to the danger of destruction by fire. It is therefore earnestly recommended that an appropriation be made for a new fire-proof building, adequate for the present needs and reasonable future expansion of these valuable collections. Such a building should be absolutely fire-proof; no expenditure for mere architectural display is required. It is believed that a suitable structure can be erected at a cost not to exceed two hundred and fifty thousand dollars ($250,000).

I commend to the attention of Congress the great services of the Commander-in-Chief of our armies during the war for the Union, whose wise, firm and patriotic conduct did so much to bring that momentous conflict to a close. The legislation of the United States contains many precedents for the recognition of distinguished military merit, authorizing rank and emoluments to be conferred for eminent services to the country. An act of Congress authorizing the appointment of a Captain-General of the army, with suitable provisions relating to compensation, retirement, and other details, would, in my judgment, be altogether fitting and proper, and would be warmly approved by the country.

The report of the Secretary of the Navy exhibits the successful and satisfactory management of that department during the last fiscal year. The total expenditures for the year were $12,916,639.45, leaving unexpended at the close of the year $2,141,682.23 of the amounts of available appropriations. The appropriations for the present fiscal year, ending June 30, 1881, are $15,095,061.45; and the total estimates for the next fiscal year, ending June 30, 1882, are $15,953,751.61. The amount drawn by warrant from July 1, 1880, to Nov. 1, 1880, is $5,041,570.45.

The recommendation of the Secretary of the Navy, that provision be made for the establishment of some form of civil government for the people of Alaska, is approved. At present there is no protection of persons or property in that Territory, except such as is afforded by the officers of the United States ship Jamestown. This vessel was dispatched to Sitka, because of the fear that, without the immediate presence of the national authority, there was impending danger of anarchy. The steps taken to restore order have been accepted in good faith by both white and Indian inhabitants, and the necessity for this method of restraint does not, in my opinion, now exist. If, however, the Jamestown should be withdrawn, leaving the people, as at present, without the ordinary judicial and administrative authority of organized local government, serious consequences might ensue.

The laws provide only for the collection of revenue, the protection of public property, and the transmission of the mails. The problem is to supply a local rule for a population so scattered and so peculiar in its origin and condition. The natives are reported to be teachable and self-supporting, and, if properly instructed, doubtless would advance rapidly in civilization, and a new factor of prosperity would be added to the national life. I, therefore, recommend the requisite legislation upon this subject.

The Secretary of the Navy has taken steps toward the establishment of naval coaling-stations at the Isthmus of Panama, to meet the requirements of our commercial relations with Central and South America, which are rapidly growing in importance. Locations eminently suitable, both as regards our naval purposes and the uses of commerce, have been selected, one on the east side of the isthmus, at Chiriqui Lagoon, in the Carribbean sea, and the other on the Pacific coast, at the Bay of Golfito. The only safe harbors, sufficiently commodious, on the isthmus are at these points, and the distance between them is less than 100 miles. The report of the Secretary of the Navy concludes with valuable suggestions with respect to the building up of our merchant-marine service, which deserves the favorable consideration of Congress.

The report of the Postmaster General exhibits the continual growth and the high state of efficiency of the postal service. The operations of no department of the Government, perhaps, represent with greater exactness the increase in population and the business of the country. In 1860 the postal receipts were $8,518,067.40; in 1880 the receipts were $33,315,479.34. All the inhabitants of the country are directly and personally interested in having proper mail facilities, and naturally watch the postoffice very closely. This careful oversight on the part of the people has proved a constant stimulus to improvement. During the past year there was an increase of 2,134 postoffices, and the mail routes were extended 27,177 miles, making an additional annual transportation of 10,804,191 miles. The revenues of the postal service for the ensuing year are estimated at $38,845,174.10 and the expenditures at $42,475,932, leaving a deficiency to be appropriated out of the treasury of $3,630,757.90.

The Universal Postal Union has received the accession of almost all the countries and colonies of the world maintaining organized postal services, and it is confidently expected that all the other countries and colonies now outside the Union will soon unite therewith, thus realizing the grand idea and aim of the founders of the Union, of forming, for purposes of international mail communication, a single postal territory embracing the world, with complete uniformity of postal charges and conditions of international exchange, for all descriptions of correspondence. To enable the United States to do its full share of this great work, additional legislation is asked by the Postmaster General, to whose recommendations especial attention is called.

The suggestion of the Postmaster General, that it would be wise to encourage, by appropriate legislation, the establishment of American lines of steamers by our own citizens, to carry the mails between our own ports and those of Mexico, Central America, South America, and of transpacific countries, is commended to the serious consideration of Congress.

The attention of Congress is also invited to the suggestions of the Postmaster General in regard to postal savings.

The necessity for additional provision, to aid in the transaction of the business of the Federal courts, becomes each year more apparent. The dockets of the Supreme Court and of the Circuit Courts, in the greater number of the circuits, are incumbered with the constant accession of cases. In the former court, and in many instances in the Circuit Courts, years intervene before it is practicable to bring cases to hearing.

The Attorney General recommends the establishment of an intermediate court of errors and appeals. It is recommended that the number of Judges of the Circuit Court in each circuit, with the exception of the Second circuit, should be increased by the addition of another Judge; in the Second circuit, that two should be added; and that an intermediate appellate court should be formed in each circuit, to consist of the Circuit Judges and the Circuit Justice, and that in the event of the absence of either of these Judges the place of the absent Judge should be supplied by the Judge of one of the District Courts in the circuit. Such an appellate court could be safely invested with large jurisdiction and its decisions would satisfy suitors in many cases where appeals would still be allowed to the Supreme Court. The expense incurred for this intermediate court will require a very moderate increase of the appropriations for the expenses of the Department of Justice. This recommendation is commended to the careful consideration of Congress.

It is evident that a delay of justice, in many instances oppressive and disastrous to suitors, now necessarily occurs in the Federal courts, which will in this way be remedied.

The report of the Secretary of the Interior presents an elaborate account of the operations of that department during the past year. It gives me great pleasure to say that our Indian affairs appear to be in a more hopeful condition now than ever before. The Indians have made gratifying progress in agriculture, herding and mechanical pursuits. Many who were a few years ago in hostile conflict with the Government are quietly settling down on farms where they hope to make their permanent homes, building houses and engaging in the occupations of civilized life. The introduction of the freighting business among them has been remarkably fruitful of good results, in giving many of them congenial and remunerative employment, and in stimulating their ambition to earn their own support. Their honesty, fidelity, and efficiency as carriers are highly praised. The organization of a police force of Indians has been equally successful in maintaining law and order upon the reservations, and in exercising a wholesome moral influence among the Indians themselves. I concur with the Secretary of the Interior in the recommendation that the pay of this force be increased, as an inducement to the best class of young men to enter it.

Much care and attention has been devoted to the enlargement of educational facilities for the Indians. The means available for this important object have been very inadequate. A few additional boarding schools at Indian agencies have been established, and the erection of buildings has been begun for several more, but an increase of the appropriations for this interesting undertaking is greatly needed to accommodate the large number of Indian children of school-age. The number offered by their parents from all parts of the country for education in the Government schools is much larger than can be accommodated with the means at present available for that purpose. The number of Indian pupils at the Normal School at Hampton, Va., under the direction of Gen. Armstrong, has been considerably increased, and their progress is highly encouraging. The Indian school established by the Interior Department in 1879, at Carlisle, Pa., under the direction of Capt. Pratt, has been equally successful. It has now nearly 200 pupils of both sexes, representing a great variety of the tribes east of the Rocky mountains. The pupils in both these institutions receive not only an elementary English education, but are also instructed in house-work, agriculture, and useful mechanical pursuits. A similar school was established this year at Forest Grove, Ore., for the education of Indian youth on the Pacific coast. In addition to this, thirty-six Indian boys and girls were selected from the Eastern Cherokees and placed in boarding-schools in North Carolina, where they are to receive an elementary English education and training in industrial pursuits. The interest shown by Indian parents, even among the so-called wild tribes, in the education of their children is very gratifying, and gives promise that the results accomplished by the efforts now making will be of lasting benefit.

The expenses of Indian education have so far been drawn from the permanent civilization fund at the disposal of the Department of the Interior; but the fund is now so much reduced that the continuance of this beneficial work will in the future depend on specific appropriations by Congress for the purpose, and I venture to express the hope that Congress will not permit institutions so fruitful of good results to perish for want of means for their support. On the contrary, an increase of the number of schools appears to be highly advisable.

The past year has been unusually free from disturbances among the Indian tribes. An agreement has been made with the Utes, by which they surrender their large reservation in Colorado in consideration of an annuity, to be paid to them, and agree to settle in severalty on certain lands designated for that purpose, as farmers, holding individual title to their land in fee-simple, inalienable for a certain period. In this way a costly Indian war has been avoided, which, at one time, seemed imminent, and, for the first time in the history of the country, an Indian nation has given up its tribal existence to be settled in severalty, and to live as individuals under the common protection of the laws of the country. The conduct of the Indians throughout the country, during the past year, with but few noteworthy exceptions, has been orderly and peaceful. The guerrilla warfare carried on for two years by Victorio and his band of Southern Apaches, has virtually come to an end by the death of that chief and most of his followers, on Mexican soil. The disturbances caused on our northern frontier by Sitting Bull and his men, who had taken refuge in the British dominions, are also likely to cease. A large majority of his followers have surrendered to our military forces, and the remainder are apparently in progress of disintegration.

I concur with the Secretary of the Interior in expressing the earnest hope that Congress will at this session take favorable action on the bill providing for the allotment of lands on the different reservations in severalty to the Indians, with patents conferring fee-simple title inalienable for a certain period, and the eventual disposition of the residue of the reservations, for general settlement, with the consent and for the benefit of the Indians, placing the latter under the equal protection of the laws of the country. This measure, together with a vigorous prosecution of our educational efforts, will work the most important and effective advance toward a solution of the Indian problem, in preparing for the gradual merging of our Indian population in the great body of American citizenship.

A large increase is reported in the disposal of public lands for settlement during the past year, which marks the prosperous growth of our agricultural industry, and a vigorous movement of population toward our unoccupied lands. As this movement proceeds the codification of our land laws, as well as proper legislation to regulate the disposition of public lands, becomes of more pressing necessity, and I therefore invite the consideration of Congress to the report and the accompanying draft of a bill, made by the Public Lands Commission, which were communicated by me to Congress at the last session. Early action upon this important subject is highly desirable.

The attention of Congress is again asked to the wasteful depredations committed on our public timber-lands, and the rapid and indiscriminate destruction of our forests. The urgent necessity for legislation to this end is now generally recognized. In view of the lawless character of the depredations committed, and the disastrous consequences which will inevitably follow their continuance, legislation has again and again been recommended to arrest the evil, and to preserve for the people of our Western States and Territories the timber needed for domestic and other essential uses.

The report of the Director of the Geological Survey is a document of unusual interest. The consolidation of the various geological and geographical surveys and exploring enterprises, each of which has heretofore operated upon an independent plan, without concert, cannot fail to be of great benefit to all those industries of the country which depend upon the development of our mineral resources. The labors of the scientific men, of recognized merit, who compose the Corps of the Geological Survey, during the first season of their field operations and inquiries, appear to have been very comprehensive, and will soon be communicated to Congress in a number of volumes. The Director of the Survey recommends that the investigations carried on by his bureau, which, so far, have been confined to the so-called public-land States and Territories, be extended over the entire country, and that the necessary appropriation be made for this purpose. This would be particularly beneficial to the iron, coal and other mining interests of the Mississippi valley, and of the Eastern and Southern States. The subject is commended to the careful consideration of Congress.

The Secretary of the Interior asks attention to the want of room in the public buildings of the capital, now existing and in progress of construction, for the accommodation of the clerical force employed, and of the public records. Necessity has compelled the renting of private buildings in different parts of the city for the location of public offices, for which a large amount of rent is annually paid, while the separation of offices belonging to the same departments impedes the transaction of current business. The Secretary suggests that the blocks surrounding Lafayette Square, on the east, north, and west, be purchased as the sites for new edifices, for the accommodation of the Government offices, leaving the square itself intact; and that, if such buildings were constructed upon a harmonious plan of architecture, they would add much to the beauty of the national capital, and would, together with the treasury and the new State, Navy, and War Department building, form one of the most imposing groups of public edifices in the world.

The Commissioner of Agriculture expresses the confident belief that his efforts in behalf of the production of our own sugar and tea have been encouragingly rewarded. The importance of the results attained have attracted marked attention at home, and have received the special consideration of foreign nations. The successful cultivation of our own tea, and the manufacture of our own sugar, would make a difference of many millions of dollars annually in the wealth of the nation.

The report of the Commissioner asks attention particularly to the continued prevalence of an infectious and contagious cattle-disease, known and dreaded in Europe and Asia as cattle-plague, or pleuro-pneumonia. A mild type of this disease, in certain sections of our country, is the occasion of great loss to our farmers, and of serious disturbance to our trade with Great Britain, which furnishes a market for most of our live-stock and dressed meats. The value of neat-cattle exported from the United States for the eight months ended Aug. 31, 1880, was more than twelve million dollars, and nearly double the value for the same period in 1879, an unexampled increase of export trade. Your early attention is solicited to this important matter.

The Commissioner of Education reports a continued increase of public interest in educational affairs, and that the public schools generally throughout the country are well sustained. Industrial training is attracting deserved attention, and colleges for instruction, theoretical and practical, in agriculture and the mechanic arts, including the Government schools recently established for the instruction of Indian youth, are gaining steadily in public estimation. The Commissioner asks special attention to the depredations committed on the lands reserved for the future support of public instruction, and to the very great need of help from the nation for schools in the Territories and in the Southern States. The recommendation heretofore made is repeated and urged, that an educational fund be set apart from the net proceeds of the sales of the public lands annually, the income of which, and the remainder of the net annual proceeds, to be distributed on some satisfactory plan to the States and Territories and the District of Columbia.

The success of the public schools of the District of Columbia, and the progress made, under the intelligent direction of the Board of Education and the Superintendent, in supplying the educational requirements of the District, with thoroughly trained and efficient teachers, is very gratifying. The acts of Congress, from time to time, donating public lands to the several States and Territories in aid of educational interests, have proved to be wise measures of public policy, resulting in great and lasting benefit. It would seem to be a matter of simple justice to extend the benefits of this legislation, the wisdom of which has been so fully vindicated by experience, to the District of Columbia.

I again commend the general interests of the District of Columbia to the favorable consideration of Congress. The affairs of the District, as shown by the report of the Commissioners, are in a very satisfactory condition.

In my annual Messages heretofore, and in my special Message of Dec. 19, 1878, I have urged upon Congress the necessity of reclaiming the marshes of the Potomac adjacent to the capital, and I am constrained by its importance to advert again to the subject. These flats embrace an area of several hundred acres. They are an impediment to the drainage of the city and seriously impair its health. It is believed that, with this substantial improvement of its river front, the capital would be in all respects one of the most attractive cities in the world. Aside from its permanent population, this city is necessarily the place of residence of persons from every section of the country, engaged in the public service. Many others reside here temporarily for the transaction of business with the Government.

It should not be forgotten that the land acquired will probably be worth the cost of reclaiming it, and that the navigation of the river will be greatly improved. I therefore again invite the attention of Congress to the importance of prompt provision for this much-needed and too-long-delayed improvement.

The water supply of the city is inadequate. In addition to the ordinary use throughout the city the consumption by Government is necessarily very great in the navy-yard, arsenal, and the various departments, and a large quantity is required for the proper preservation of the numerous parks and the cleansing of sewers. I recommend that this subject receive the early attention of Congress, and that, in making provision for an increased supply, such means be adopted as will have in view the future growth of the city. Temporary expedients for such a purpose cannot but be wasteful of money, and therefore unwise. A more ample reservoir, with corresponding facilities for keeping it filled, should, in my judgment, be constructed. I commend again to the attention of Congress the subject of the removal, from their present location, of the depots of the several railroads entering the city; and I renew the recommendations of my former messages in behalf of the erection of a building for the Congressional Library, the completion of the Washington Monument, and of liberal appropriations in support of the benevolent, reformatory and penal institutions of the District.

RUTHERFORD B. HAYES.

EXECUTIVE MANSION, Dec. 6, 1880.

Individuality of the Horse.

One thing curious and interesting about the horse is its individuality. This is a characteristic common to all animals, undoubtedly, to a greater or less degree, but surpassingly so, we think, in the case of the horse. How this characteristic varies in horses is well known by any one who has ever intelligently drawn a rein over a good roadster. The individuality of horses varies as much as that of men. Every one has a different mental as well as physical make-up. Some horses seem to have brains, to have sense, are quick to understand and obey the least sign, motion, or word of their master; others are not inaptly termed "lunk-heads," always awkward, lumbering about, difficult to teach, and never "make anything," in a horseological sense. It may be true that these traits in a horse are sometimes due to the habits of his driver or owner, and that the horse itself may not be so much to blame for his ignorance, but however much he may be excused on this score there is a surprising difference in these mental qualities of horses. Some men drive and use horses for years and yet never realize anything, or that there is any more difference between them than there is between so many barrels or saw-logs. Other men who handle horses a great deal, who buy and sell frequently, and who study much their different characteristics, will tell you how wonderful horses are, how much more they know than some men, how much each one has to be driven and handled differently, and how much they will sometimes teach even their drivers! Between a nervous, sensitive, intelligent horse and his considerate owner how large a union of fellowship and sympathy exists! In the stable, on the road if overtaken by an accident, the cool, sensible man is sure to have a quick sympathy for his faithful horse. He trusts his master as his master trusts him. If the master is quiet the horse will be equally so, knowing that everything is safe; if the master blusters, or becomes anxious, or exhibits fear, the horse knows it at once, and seems restive likewise. Oh, that men only knew that horses know much more than they give them credit for, and they would use them more humanely than they now do. Horses are not brutes; they are noble, intelligent, sensible creatures, the most useful animal servant which Divine Goodness has given to man.

A Guaranty of Character.

The primitive Baptists, says the Oglethorpe (Ga.) Echo, make it a rule to expel a member from the church who takes advantage of any relief law or refuses to pay a debt. A few months since one of this class, a pretty rough looking case, entered an Athens store and wanted credit for a few goods until he could sell his cotton. Not knowing his customer, the merchant refused; but about this time a well-known elder of the church entered, and, tapping the farmer on the shoulder, asked: "How are you, Bro. Blank?" "Is that gentleman a member of your church, Uncle D.?" asked the tradesman. "Oh, yes, and a good one, too," was the reply. "Well, then, my friend," continued the dealer, "go through this house, from cellar to garret, and pick out what you want. I will sell you the whole establishment, clerks and all, on credit, with only your religion as security." It turned out that the customer was one of the solid men of Northeast Georgia.

THERE are 1,455,923,500 men, women, and children in the world, and more coming.

INDIANA NEWS.

MAYOR BENNETT, of Richmond, has returned from Florida, greatly improved in health, and with his speech nearly restored.

MRS. R. H. COLEMAN, of Jonesboro, was gored by a bull, and died from the effects of the wounds received in about one hour.

FRANKLIN CHARLES LESLIE, who has been incarcerated at Jeffersonville for two years as a thief, will take the lecture field on his release.

WILLIAM BURRESS, of [illegible], Randolph county, shot his wife dead while she sat at the table with her baby in her arms. Burress had been drinking before the shooting.

REV. J. A. DOBSON, for three years pastor of the Universalist Church of Muncie, has renounced the Universalist faith and connected himself with the Congregationalists.

A TRAMP named Samuel Martin has been sentenced to the penitentiary from Logansport, for four years, for shooting a Wabash railway brakeman, who ordered him off a train.

THE Riverside stave factory, one mile north of Vincennes, owned by J. T. Kelso, was destroyed by fire the other night. Loss, $15,000; insurance probably $9,000. The cause of the fire is not known.

JOHN R. DANIEL, of New Albany, had his left leg broken by a fall from a car, and Dr. Sloan treated the injury. The limb grew so crooked under the operation that Daniel is a bad cripple for life. Hence Daniel has sued the doctor for $10,000 damages.

MRS. MARY DILLON, or, as she was better known, "Old Mother Dillon," died at her home in Logansport last week, at the extraordinary age of 112 years. She was born in County Limerick, Ireland, in the year 1768, and came to this country near the year 1840.

OLIVER, son of Thos. H. Parent, aged about 15 years, residing near Cicero, accidentally shot himself in the abdomen while playing with a revolver, and was found lying in the road where the accident happened. He died from the effects shortly after being found.

COL. ST. JOHN BOYLE, President of the Louisville, New Albany and St. Louis railroad, has gone to New York to complete the arrangements with capitalists of that city for finishing the road through Indiana. Work upon the road will be commenced as early in the spring of 1881 as the weather will permit, and the road will be completed during the year.

DR. LOOP, of Galveston, returned home after ten days in Allen county, this State. The doctor brought with him ten fat and juicy specimens of deer, which he killed during the hunt. He says he could hear the steam whistles in the city of Fort Wayne during the whole hunt, and he thinks it quite an honor to be able to thus kill such highly appreciated game so near the confines of civilization.

ACCORDING to the report of the official Inspector there are 137 coal mines in Indiana now being operated, giving employment to 3,239 miners. During the past twelve months 1,196,490 tons of coal were mined, valued at $1,135,562. The Inspector reports that radical amendments are necessary, as the existing State mining law is very defective.

The expense of collecting internal revenue in Indiana is shown by the following, taken from the report of the Register of the Treasury:

First district	$ 13,387
Fourth district	22,820
Sixth district	15,476
Seventh district	[illegible]
Tenth district	[illegible]
Eleventh district	[illegible]
	$101,850

The Deaf and Dumb.

The Trustees and officers of the Deaf and Dumb Institute have filed their report with the Governor, in which a slight reduction of expenses is indicated. The average expense for maintenance and clothing for the two years 1877 and 1878 was $64,441.80. Last year the current expenses were $48,952.91, and for clothing $1,052.97, a total of $50,005.88—representing an annual saving of $14,435.92. In addition to this, the Trustees say that the clothing account for 1877 and 1878 was paid by the counties, while in 1880 it came out of the institution's funds, so that the saving was really $15,788.39, a trifle over 24 per cent. The clothing account has been reduced from $3,698.51 in 1878 to $1,052.97 in 1880 by requiring parents and guardians, when able, to furnish their children and wards with good clothing. The total annual cost per capita in 1877 and 1878 was $196.89; in 1880, $164.33. The following figures are given, embodying the condition of the institution and the operations for the year:

Value of real property	$407,570.00
Personal	22,831.71
Total	$430,401.71
Appropriation for current expenses	55,000.00
Expenditures	50,005.88
Covered into the treasury	$ 4,994.12
Balance of specific appropriation	6,577.31
Payments	6,488.70
Carried into the treasury	$ 88.61
Earnings of the institution, including balance from 1879	260.11
Total amount carried into the general fund	5,332.61

With reference to the future it is recommended that the general appropriation for 1882 and 1883 be $55,000. Superintendent Glenn reports that the number of pupils admitted during the year was 390, of whom 220 were boys and 170 girls. The number dismissed, including deaths, was forty-one, leaving 349.

DR. BUTTS' DISPENSARY
Established 1847 at 12 N. 8th Street, ST. LOUIS, MO.
[illegible]
INDISCRETION or EXPOSURE
[illegible]
YOUNG MEN
[illegible]
PATIENTS TREATED
[illegible]
DR. BUTTS, 12 North 8th St., St. Louis, Mo.

CENTAUR LINIMENT
always Cures and never Disappoints. The world's great Pain-Reliever for Man and Beast. Cheap, quick and reliable.

PITCHER'S CASTORIA is not Narcotic. Children grow fat upon, Mothers like, and Physicians recommend CASTORIA. It regulates the Bowels, cures Wind Colic, allays Feverishness, and destroys Worms.

MISHLER'S HERB BITTERS
A Compound Tincture of the most valuable remedies known to the medical profession, prepared upon strictly pharmaceutical principles.
[illegible]
NOT A BEVERAGE
But an old reliable Household Remedy, [illegible]
THE MESSENGER OF HEALTH
A large sized paper [illegible] will be mailed free to any address on application to
THE MISHLER HERB BITTERS CO.
Lancaster, Pa.
☞ We strongly recommend to mothers, Prof. Parker's Pleasant Worm Syrup. It never fails, is easy to take, and no after-physic is required. Price, 25 cents.

SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR
ASK the recovered Dyspeptics, Bilious Sufferers, Victims of Fever and Ague, the Mercurial Diseased Patient, how they recovered Health, Cheerful Spirits and Good Appetite — they will tell you by taking
SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR
For DYSPEPSIA, CONSTIPATION, Jaundice, Bilious attacks, SICK HEADACHE, Colic, Depression of Spirits, SOUR STOMACH, Heartburn, &c.
IT HAS NO EQUAL.
This unrivaled Southern remedy is warranted not to contain a single particle of MERCURY, or any injurious mineral substance, but is PURELY VEGETABLE.
If you feel drowsy, debilitated, have frequent headache, mouth tastes badly, poor appetite and tongue coated, you are suffering from torpid liver or "biliousness," and nothing will cure you so speedily and permanently as to take
SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR.
It is given with safety and the happiest results to the most delicate infant. It takes the place of quinine and bitters of every kind. It is the cheapest, purest and best family medicine in the world.
J. H. ZEILIN & CO., Philadelphia, Pa.
SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

AGENTS WANTED [illegible] National Publishing Co., St. Louis, Mo.

PILES fully described with scientific mode of cure. Prof. Harris' illustrated pamphlet sent free on application. HARRIS REMEDY CO., Manf'g Chemists, 8th & Market Sts., St. Louis, Mo.

Book for the Million
[illegible]
"THE PRIVATE MEDICAL ADVISER"
[illegible]
FOR ONE DOLLAR
[illegible]
DR. BUTTS' DISPENSARY
[illegible]
DR. BUTTS, 12 North 8th St., St. Louis, Mo.

Seminal Pastille
[illegible]
HARRIS REMEDY CO. [illegible]
[illegible]

Fruit House Prices
—FOR—
Christmas and New Year.

GREAT DROP ON
Sugar, Coffee, Prunes, Teas, Etc.

All SUGARS reduced 1 cent per pound.
All COFFEES reduced 2 cents per pound.
Turkish PRUNES reduced 4 cents per pound.
TEAS reduced 10 cents per pound.
And for the Holiday trade we have

Toys, Toy Candies, French Candies, German Toys Christmas-Tree Candies, and New-Year Gifts of every Description.

Santa Claus in all His Glory.

SUGARS REDUCED 1 1-2C PER POUND.

Crushed	[illegible]	Coffee A	[illegible]
Powdered Sugar	[illegible]	Coffee C	[illegible]
Granulated	[illegible]	Brown Sugar	[illegible]

COFFEES REDUCED 2C PER POUND.

Choice Rio	14c	Roasted Rio	18c
Best Rio	18c	Best	20c
Old Government Java	[illegible]	This is the lowest coffee has sold since 1861

TEAS DOWN 10C PER POUND.

Our tea trade is simply immense. No secret about it—just the same rule as in Sugars, selling at a small profit, and purchasing direct of the importer; we therefore save the profits of the speculator and wholesale merchant. This profit our customers get the benefit of, and it is from 10c to 15c per pound.

Young Hyson	[illegible]	Good Young Hyson	40c	Best Young Hyson	60c
Imperial	40c	Good Imperial	50c	Best Imperial	60c
Gunpowder	40c	Good Gunpowder	50c	Best Gunpowder	60c
Oolong Black Tea	30c	Good Black Tea	40c	Best Oolong	60c
Uncolored Japan	30c	Good Japan	40c	Best Japan	60c

All our Teas, even the second qualities, warranted to give satisfaction, and the best can't be beat. Our 60c Tea is equal to any dollar tea sold elsewhere.

Christmas and New Year Goods.

Santa Claus Toys, Christmas Tree Candles and a thousand other things for the holidays, such as Bears, Lions, Leopards, Cats, Dogs, Monkeys, Wagons, Hose Carts, Soldiers, Drums, Vases, Albums, Fancy Candies, French Candies, Fruit Candies, Stick Candies 12½c per lb.; French Candies, 18c per pound: Fruit Candies, 20c and 25c per pound, etc., etc.

Fresh Oysters down 5 cents Per Can,

XXX	14c	Family	20c	S & W	30c	Select Frying	[illegible]

Tobacco of All Kinds.

No 1 Fine Cut	75c	Good Fine Cut	40c
Choice Fine Cut	60c	Good Plug Tobacco	40c
Choice Plug Tobacco	60c	Durham	35c
Best No. 1	60c	Uncle Ned
Smoking	25c

Fish Oil, 70c; Neats Foot Oil 70c; Machine Oil, 25c and 30c; Headlight Oil, 20c.

Syrups, Molasses and Maple Syrup.

Extra Golden Syrup, per gallon	45c	Maple Syrup	1
White Sugar Loaf Drips	50c	Best New Orleans	60

FOR CHRISTMAS CAKE.

Citron, per pound	18c	Orange and Lemon Peel	20c	Shelled Almonds	35c

Nuts of all kinds and best Turkish Prunes, 6c

Liquors, Wines Whiskies Scotch Ale, Dublin and London Porter.

Good, new Whisky, per gallon	$1 00	California wine	$1 50
Whisky, one year old	1 25	New England Rum	1 50
Whisky, two years old	1 50	Brandy	[illegible]
Whisky, three years old	2 00	Scotch Ale, per bottle	[illegible]
Sherry Wine	1 25	London Porter	18
Port Wine, per gallon	1 25	Doublin Stout	[illegible]

Fish, Meats, Pork, Lard, Bacon, Spices, &c.

25 Cents on the Dollar you can save at least by purchasing at the
FORT WAYNE FRUIT HOUSE,
FORT WAYNE, INDIANA.

1850. PIONEER 1880

Hardware Store.

Headquarter for Stoves !

The Celebrated Buffalo N. Y. Stoves have been sold in this house for 25 years. A full stock alway on hand.

—A full line of—

BUILDING HARDWARE and SHELF GOODS.
Wagon and Buggy Mterial,
White Lead, Paints, Oils and Varnishes,
Table and Pocket Cutlery,
Silver-Plated Knives and Forks and Spoons,
Granite Iron-Ware,
Oliver Chilled and Bryan Plows.
FARMING IMPLEMENTS
BLACKSMITHS' MATERIALS,
Buffalo Scales, Sash & Doors,
WOOD AND IRON PUMPS, & DRIVE-WELL FIXTURES,
All at prices to suit the times,
Call at the old stand when you want bargains.
JOHN L. DAVIS, Proprietor.

ISAAC HAGUE'S
NEW SHOE STORE!
A NEW STOCK OF
BOOTS AND SHOES

Arriving daily, for spring and summer trade. Fine goods for ladies a specialty. A full line of men's and boy's shoes, of the lates styles, at low prices. Our facilities for buying are such as to enable us to buy at manufacturers prices, thereby saving our customers one or more profits. Call and examine our stock and satisfy yourselves that what we say is true.

MR. CHARLES RAUT

Is associated with me, and as we are both experienced workmen we are prepared to do custom work, either sewed or pegged, on short notice and at reasonable rates. Repairing promptly attended to. Remember the place,— firstdoor east of Mcquiston & Ralstons double store, north of the court house, Auburn, Ind.

16-tf. ISAAC HAGUE

General News.

Austin, Texas, is to have a capital, costing $1,500,000.

The poet Tennyson will spend the winter in Italy.

A large number of Hoosiers are emigrating to Arkansas.

The railroad bridge at St. Louis earns about $40,000 per month.

Forty-three railroads have been started in Arkansas in the last two years.

Old Bob Toombs is "sitting on the river bank and cussing" Joe Brown.

The cold weather damaged the sugar district in Texas about $200,000 worth.

The sugar crop of southern Texas has been damaged fully one-half by the recent storms.

The Louisville and Nashville railroad has decided to bridge the Ohio river at Anderson, Ky.

Late cotton has been damaged fearfully in Cleburne, Longview, McKinney and other points in Texas.

The Libby prison, in Richland, Va., has been sold for $6,000, and will be used as a tobacco factory.

Miss Flora Sharon, the daughter of the Senator, is engaged, it is said, to marry an Englishman of title.

Mr. Warner is the only greenbacker in the Tennessee legislature. There is consequently no danger of a split.

The severest freeze in the memory of the "oldest inhabitants" has been experienced in San Antonio, Texas.

The Nashville American now figures up a democratic majority of six on joint ballot in the Tennessee legislature.

The Indians are committing great depredations near Eagle Pass, Texas. In many places they have killed whole families.

Mile Bernhardt is expected to appear in Atlanta, Ga., shortly. Mr. Abbey required a guarantee of $6,000 from the Atlanta people.

A paper in Mississippi is published in the interest of the negro, and is so loyal to its platform that it refuses to spell negro except with a big N.

Chancellor Crosby has announced himself as in favor of admitting female students to all the privileges of the university of the city of New York.

Sarah Bernhardt is coquetting with Atlanta, Georgia. We warn Sarah against Atlanta. That is where the people live who print the Constitution newspaper.

The late freeze has done considerable damage throughout the sugar plantation in the vicinity of Opelousas, La., but as yet no estimate can be made as to what the loss will be.

General Garfield voted at the recent special election held to elect his successor in the house of representatives. He was received at the polls with cheers from both parties.

A school for the instruction of youths in nautical education is to be established in New Orleans, in order to take advantage of the act of congress placing a training ship at the disposal of that city.

Mr. Wm. Foley, an employe of the Pennsylvania railroad, is under arrest for administering paris-green to Mrs. Foley. We suspect the plea of this wretched man will be that he thought she was a potato bug.

Massachusetts, the home of culture and intelligence, has just received a shock in the death of one of her citizens, Mr. John Colman by name, who went to New York and blew out the gas before going to bed.

At a camp-meeting, lately, a venerable sister began the hymn: "My soul be on thy guard; ten thousand foes arise." She began too high. "Ten thousand," she screeched and stopped. "Start her at five thousand!" cried a converted stock broker present.

Moody and Sankey have stirred up a great revival in San Francisco. Before they quit the city they should move into the Chinese quarter and experiment on John. There is some curiosity to know if a Chinaman will yield to the Moody and Sankey process allee samee Melican man.

Poverty is no bar to political preferment in this country. It is stated on good authority that the real business of Garfield's recent visit to Washington, was to have the time extended on some notes he was unable to meet, to secure the payment of which his Washington residence is mortgaged.

Under the new code of Mississippi, any citizen has the right to arrest or carry before a magistrate or any proper officer the tramp he may find begging about his premises. It is made the duty of the magistrate to commit such tramps to jail, and from the jail he is to be hired out as other convicts are.

Henry Ward Beecher, who has lately discovered that hell is a Scriptural scare-crow, says:

It is my belief that, with an economical wife, who, by her industry, contributes to the family store, and helpful children, who also add to the income, a prudent man could not only support his family, but gradually amass a property.

It will be remembered that Beecher's bill of fare for an American workingman, as set forth in an address during the great Republican famine, was bread and water. Sam Slick once boarded where the diet was dried apples for breakfast, warm water for dinner, and let 'em swell up for supper.

THE ENQUIRER.

The People's Paper—The Greatest Newspaper in the West.

The Enquirer is just closing one of the most prosperous and successful years of its existence. We wish to thank the people and our patrons for their support. Your encouragement has made the task of publishing the best newspaper in the west a possibility.

We ask your aid and support for the year to come, and for the future, and pledge you that we will spare no expense to make the Enquirer for the ensuing year not only the best newspaper in the west, but the rival of any in America.

The world's news, recorded by a corps of fifteen hundred correspondents in all sections of the globe, will be found in the Enquirer every day in the year.

The history of each day's events will be faithfully and fearlessly told, exposing fraud, rebuking corruption, and upholding the right. The facts of the world belong to the people, and will be presented to them by the Enquirer free of malice and undistorted for political or personal purposes.

In short, the Enquirer will continue to be a newspaper.

In the future, as in the past, the Enquirer will be found advocating the rights of the people of the states; the rights of communities, and the fullest liberty to individuals compatible with the general order and welfare of society.

All questions and parties shall be treated with candor and fairness, but the truth shall never be perverted.

The year 1881 will be an eventful one in the history of the state and republic. The inauguration of a new administration, with new men and new purposes, are themes of the gravest interest to all citizens who love their country. Upon all these topics the Enquirer will contain the fullest and most reliable information from its corps of able and faithful correspondents.

THE WEEKLY ENQUIRER

will be a paper that ought to be in the hands of every farmer, every mechanic, and every toiler in the land. As an agricultural paper, full of fresh, valuable and reliable information, it will be without a rival! A corps of contributors has been retained whose practical and theoretical knowledge in al branches of good farming is unsurpassed.

TERMS OF WEEKLY ENQUIRER.

For one year	$1 15
For six months	65

A free copy given to any one sending a club of seven names with $8 05.

TERMS OF DAILY ENQUIRER.

	With Sunday	With Sunday Issue.
One year	$12 00	$14 00
Six month	6 00	7 00
Three months	3 25	3 75
One month	1 25	1 50
Sunday's issue alone, per year		2 00
Any two days' issue, per year		4 00
Any three days' issue, per year		6 00

Send for sample copies.

FARAN & MCLEAN, Publishers.
Cincinnati, Ohio, December 1, 1830.

1881.

HARPER'S BAZAR.

[ILLUSTRATED.]

This periodical, by its able and scholarly discussions of the questions of the day, as well as by its illustrations—which are prepared by the best artists—has always exerted a most powerful and beneficial influence upon the public mind.

The weight of its influence will always be found on the side of morality, enlightenment and refinement.

HARPER'S PERIODICALS.

Harper's Bazar one year	4 00
" Weekly one year	4 00
" Magazine one year	$4 00
The three above publications	10 00
Any two above named	7 00
Harper's Young People 1 year	1 50

Postage free to all subscribers in the United States or Canada.

The volumes of the Weekly begin with the first number for January of each year. When no time is mentioned it will be understood that the subscriber wishes to commence with the number next after the receipt of order.

The last eleven annual volumes of Harper's Weekly, in neat cloth binding, will be sent by mail, postage paid, or by express, free of expense (provided the freight does not exceed one dollar per volume), for $7.00 each.

Cloth cases for each volume, suitable for binding, will be sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of $1.00 each.

Remittances should be made by post-office money-order or draft, to avoid chance of loss.

[Newspapers are not to copy this advertisement without the express order of Harper & Brothers.]

Address, HARPER & BROTHERS,
New York.

TO THE AFFLICTED.

Since the introduction of Kellogg's Columbian Oil, it has made more permanent cures and given better satisfaction on kidney complaints and rheumatism than any known remedy. Its continued series of wonderful cures, in all climates, has made it known as a safe and reliable agent to employ against all aches and pains, which are the forerunners of more serious disorders. It acts speedily and surely, always relieving suffering and often saving life. The protection it affords by its timely use on rheumatism, kidney affections, and all aches and pains, wounds, cramping pains, cholera morbus, diarrhoea, coughs, colds, catarrh, and disorders among children, makes it an invaluable remedy to be kept always on hand in every home. No person can afford to be without it, and those who have once used it never will. It is absolutely certain in its remedial effects, and will always cure when cures are possible. Call at Casebeer & Matheny's and get a memorandum book giving more full details of the curative properties of this wonderful medicine. 34-ly

---

1881
THE STEADFAST WATCHMAN
—of—
PUBLIC INTELLIGENCE,
and Exponent of
American Democracy.
THE INDIANA
STATE SENTINEL!

Has again been enlarged. It will hereafter be a

56 Column Quarto,

Making a growth in size of over twenty per cent., or an addition of reading during the year of 416 Columns.

This makes the Sentinel the largest and most desirable weekly paper in the United States, placing it ahead of all its rivals. Every Indian should be proud of it.

Price Per Year, Single Copy, $150
Special Rates To Clubs.

Persons wishing to become agents send for private circulars and sample copy. Liberal cash commission to agents, also first-class list of special premiums offered.

Address
SENTINEL COMPANY,
Indianapolis, Indiana

RAILROADS

Wayne Ft. & Jackson Railroad.
SHORT LINE
Time-Card takes effect Dec. 6, 1886.
(CHICAGO TIME.)
GOING NORTH.

Leave Auburn:

4:13 A. M.—From Fort Wayne 1:50 a. m.; arrive at Waterloo 4:40; Pleasant Lake, 5:25; Angola, 5:45; Fremont, 6:30; Reading, 7:25; Bankers, 8:00 (connecting closely with D. H. & S. W. R.;) arriving at Hillsdale 8:00 a. m.; Ypsilanti 10.40 a. m.; Detroit 11:30 a. m.; Jonesville, 8:30; connecting with the Lake Shore & South railroad for points west Jackson, 10:30 a. m. there connecting for points west on Michigan Cent. and Grand River valley Ry.

12:31 P. M.—From Fort Wayne 11:20 a. m., Academie, 11:40; Huntertown, 11:56; New Era, 12:19 p. m.; Auburn Junction, 12:30; arrive at Waterloo 12.42, connecting with L. S. & M. S. train east and west; Summit, 12:52; Pleasant Lake, 1:00; Angola, 1:10; Fremont, 1:25; Reading, 2:05; Bankers, 2:15, making close connection with D. H. & S. W. R. R.; Jonesville, 2:35 (making connection with L. S. & M. S. for points east; Hillsdale, 2:55; Adrian 4:35; Toledo, 6:25, p. m.), Jackson, 3 40 p. m., making close connection for Ann Arbor, Detroit, Lansing, Ionia, Saginaw, Grand Rapids, Battle Creek, etc.

6:01 P. M.—From Fort Wayne, 5:00 p. m.; New Era, 5:30 arrive at Waterloo 6:13; Summit, 6:25; Pleasant Lake, 6:35; Angola, 6:47; Fremont, 7:00; Reading, 7:35; Jonesville, 8:25; Jackson, 9:25 p. m., connecting closely with Michigan Central railroad; fast train arriving at Detroit at 11:30 p. m.; Buffalo, 6:00 a. m.; and New York, 10:00 p. m.; also Chicago, Grand Rapids, etc.

GOING SOUTH.

Leave Auburn:

9:17 A. M.—From Jackson, 6:05 a. m.; closely connecting from Chicago; Jonesville, 6:45; connecting from Chicago, Sturgis, Coldwater, etc.; Reading, 7:40; Montgomery, 7:54; Fremont, 8:12; Angola, 8:30; Pleasant Lake, 8:40; Summit, 8:52; Waterloo, 9:05; arrive at St. Johns, 9:28; New Era, 9:28; Huntertown, 9:55; Academie, 10:08; Ft. Wayne, 10:20 a. m. connecting closely with Indianapolis, Louisville, Cincinnati, etc.

3:23 P. M.—From Jackson 12:50 p. m.; (connecting from Detroit 9:35 a. m., Ann Arbor, Saginaw, Lansing, Grand Rapids, etc;) Jonesville, 1:18, close connection from Toledo; Bankers, 1:33; Reading, 1:45; Montgomery, 1:55; Fremont, 2:15; Angola, 2:40; Pleasant Lake, 2:50; Summit, 3:00; Waterloo, 3:12; arrive at Auburn Junction, 3:2[illegible]; St. Johns, 3:37; New Era, 3:43; Stoner's, 3:55; Huntertown, 3:58; Academie, 4:20 Fort Wayne, 4:30 p. m., connecting for Indianapolis, Louisville, Cincinnati, and all points east via P. F. W. and C. railroad fast express.

11:56 P. M.—From Grand Rapids 11:00 a. m., Kalamazoo, 1 40 p.m.; Jackson, 5:40 p. m.; Jonesville, 7:30; Bankers 8:10 p. m.; from Detroit 4:05 p. m., Hillsdale 8:00 p. m.; Reading 8 40; Fremont 9 37; Angola 10 07; Pleasant Lake, 10 2[illegible]; Waterloo, 11 07; arrive at New Era 12 20 a. m.; Fort Wayne 1 20 a. m., connecting with early trains west, south and east.

4 16 a. m. train run daily. All other trains daily except Sundays.

M. D. WOODFORD, Gen'l Supt.
H. BROMLEY, Gen'l Frt. & Pass'r Agent.

Fort Wayne, Muncie and Cin.
—AND—
White Water Railroads.

Time Card in effect November 10, 1879.

STATIONS.	GOING SOUTH. 1. Mail.	3 Express.
FORT WAYNE	10 40 am	5 40 pm
Bluffton	11 52 am	6 55 pm
Montpelier	12 21 pm	7 27 pm
Hartford	12 57 pm	8 06 pm
MUNCIE	1 48 pm	9 00 pm
Newcastle	2 30 pm
Cambridge City	3 14 pm
Connersville	3 46 pm
Cincinnati	6 55 pm
INDIANAPOLIS	5 25 pm	10 55 pm
Louisville
Terre Haute
St. Louis

STATIONS.	GOING NORTH. 2 Mail.	4 Express	6 Accom.
St. Louis
Terre Haute
Louisville
Indianapolis	11 30 am	5 40 pm	4 05 am
Cincinnati	6 40 am
Connersville	[illegible] 51 am
Cambridge City	12 26 pm
New Castle	1 10 pm
Muncie	2 20 pm	8 20 pm	6 45 am
Hartford	3 09 pm	10 08 pm	7 47 am
Montpelier	3 34 pm	10 32 pm	8 19 am
Bluffton	4 10 pm	11 09 pm	9 10 am
Fort Wayne	5 15 pm	12 15 am	11 00 am

Trains Nos. 1 and 2 run through between Fort Wayne and Cincinnati without change.

Through cars are attached to trains Nos. 1 and [illegible] and run between Fort Wayne and Indianapolis, via Muncie.

All trains daily except Sunday.
Trains run on Columbus time.

GEO. W. MULLEN, Act'g Gen. Tick. Ag't.
W. W. WORTHINGTON, Gen. Supt.

WABASH
St. LOUIS AND PACIFIC
R'Y.

The Great Through Car Route to
Missouri, Kansas,
Nebraska, Iowa.

TRAINS LEAVE AUBURN.

EAST.		WEST.
Mail	12:34 p. m.	Mail	[illegible]
Accom'n	12:57 a. m.	Accom'n	6:37 a. m.
Local F't	4:15 p. m.	Local F't	6:30 a. m.
M'l tr'n arrives at Butler	1:00 p. m.	M'l tr'n arr. at Logansport	6:15 p. m.

No Change of Cars From
TOLEDO OR FT WAYNE TO St. Louis, Kansas City St. Joseph, Hannibal, Quincy and Atchison.

No Change of Cars From
St. Louis To Kansas City, St. Joseph Omaha and Ottumwa.

Remember that the
Wabash, St. Louis and Pacific
Has No Emigrant Cars.

Everybody rides in Elegant Parlor Coaches—nicely upholstered and carpeted. Baggage checked through to destination.

Don't forget the above inducements given only by this great line, and when you go

West Southwest, North or Northwest

Don't accept any ticket unless it reads over the

Wabash, St. Louis & Pacific R'y.

For Routes, Rates, Elegant Maps of the Western Country, and any information you may desire in regard to going West, please address,

J. C. GAULT, Gen. Manager,
H. C. TOWNSEND, Gen. Passenger Agent,
St. Louis or
LOUIS JOHNSON, Ticket Ag't, Auburn, Ind.

Baltimore & Ohio R. R.

CHICAGO DIVISION.

IN EFFECT FROM JUNE 20, 1880.

GOING EAST.

STATIONS.	No. 1 Fast.	No. 3 Ex.	No. 5 Mail.
Chicago lv.	5 15pm		[illegible]
Walkerton Junction	8 [illegible]		[illegible]
Milford Junction	9 [illegible]		[illegible]
Syracuse	*		[illegible]
Cromwell	*		[illegible]
Albion	*		[illegible]
Avilla	9 50		[illegible]
Garrett	10 30	3 15am	1 [illegible]
Auburn Junction	10 37	4 08	1 [illegible]
St. Joe	*	4 25	1 10
Hicksville	*	4 43	[illegible]
Defiance	11 34	5 27	[illegible]
Deshler	12 25am	6 25	[illegible]
Fostoria	1 08	7 [illegible]	[illegible]
Tiffin	1 30	7 [illegible]	[illegible]
Chicago Junction ar.	2 15	9 [illegible]	[illegible]

GOING WEST.

STATIONS.	No. 10 Mail.	No. 2 Ex.	No. 6 [illegible]
Chicago Junction lv	9 [illegible]am	6 40pm	11 [illegible]
Tiffin	10 05	7 45	12 [illegible]
Fostoria	10 33	8 25	[illegible]
Deshler	11 44	9 22	1 [illegible]
Defiance	12 45pm	10 32	1 [illegible]
Hicksville	1 [illegible]	11 [illegible]	*
St. Joe	2 10	11 38	*
Auburn Junction	2 28	11 46	3 07
Garrett	2 40	12 05am	3 2[illegible]
Avilla		12 20	3 [illegible]
Albion		12 45	3 45
Cromwell		1 10	4 15
Syracuse		1 30	4 [illegible]
Milford Junction		1 40	4 [illegible]
Walkerton Junction		2 [illegible]	[illegible] 40
Chicago ar.		6 10	[illegible]

C. K. HUDSON, Superintendent Trains, Chicago Division, Chicago, Ill.
J. J. MARTIN, Agent, Auburn Junction.
* Trains do not stop.

Pittsburg, Ft. W. & C. R. R.

ON AND AFTER JUNE 27, 1880,

Condensed time card.

GOING WEST.

Stations.	No. 1 Fast Ex.	No. 7 Pacific Ex.	No. 3 Night Ex.	[illegible]
Pittsburgh lv.	12 05	9 15am	1 50pm	7 30pm
Rochester	1 18	10 10	2 55
Alliance	3 30	1 20pm	5 35	10 [illegible]
Orrville	5 00	3 18	7 13
Mansfield	6 55	5 40	9 20
Crestline ar.	7 35	6 15	9 45	1 [illegible]
Crestline lv.	7 50am	6 35pm	9 [illegible]	1 [illegible]
Forest	9 25	8 15	11 [illegible]
Lima	10 40	9 30	12 [illegible]am
Ft. Wayne	1 15pm	12 05am	2 [illegible]	[illegible]
Plymouth	3 46	2 50	4 55	[illegible]
Chicago ar.	7 00	6 00	8 00	[illegible]

GOING EAST.

Stations.	No. 2 [illegible]	No. 6 [illegible]	No. 4 Atl. Ex.	[illegible]
Chicago lv.	9 10am	[illegible]	5 15pm	[illegible]
Plymouth	11 53		[illegible]	[illegible]
Ft. Wayne	2 50pm	6 35	12 15am	[illegible]
Lima	4 28	*	[illegible]	[illegible]
Forest	5 48		[illegible]	[illegible]
Crestline ar.	7 10	12 35	5 30	[illegible]
Crestline lv.	7 30pm	12 40pm	6 40am	[illegible]
Mansfield	8 03	1 15am	7 [illegible]	[illegible]
Orrville	10 06	2 57	9 [illegible]	[illegible]
Alliance	11 45	4 25	11 [illegible]	[illegible]
Rochester	2 01am		[illegible]	[illegible]
Pittsburgh ar.	3 15	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]

Nos 2 and 6, and 3 and 4 run daily. No. [illegible] leaves Pittsburgh daily, except Saturday. No. 9 leaves Chicago daily except Saturday. All others daily except Sunday.

F. R. MYERS, Gen. Pass. and Ticket Agent.

Notice of Sale of Real Estate.

Notice is hereby given that by virtue of an order of the DeKalb circuit court, the undersigned administrator of the estate of [illegible] Whittington, deceased, will offer for sale on the premises, on Friday the [illegible] day of [illegible] 1880 the following real estate to-wit: Lot six in the original plat of the town of Auburn Junction, Dekalb county, Indiana.

Terms: One-third cash; the residue in equal payments at twelve and eighteen months, with notes and interest, waiving valuation laws, with approved personal security. Sale to be at [illegible] o'clock, p. m. W. H. DILLS, Administrator.
30 3t

Recorders Office

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Devoted to the Interests of the Democratic Party and to the Collection of Local and General News.

Volume 10. AUBURN, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, DECEMBER 23, 1880. Number 52.

The Auburn Courier

PUBLISHED BY THE

COURIER COMPANY.

BUSINESS CARDS.

Cards not exceeding five lines each will be inserted under this head for $5.0 per annum. For each additional line 50 cents extra will be charged.

ATTORNEYS.

D. D. Moody,

ATTORNEY AT LAW AND NOTARY public. Also Prosecuting attorney for DeKalb County. Office in Court House. Auburn, Ind.

PHYSICIANS.

J. J. Littlefield,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. OFFICE AND residence on 10th St., opposite S. W. Ralston's. All calls promptly attended to, day or night. Auburn, Indiana. 24 ly

HOTELS.

Central House,

TENTH STREET, EAST OF MAIN. GOOD Sample rooms, and low rates.
T. D. Gross. Prop'r Auburn, Ind.

BUTT'S HOTEL

FREE OMNIBUS TO AND FROM ALL trains. Good sample rooms on first floor. John Butt, Proprietor, Waterloo, Indiana.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Thomas Baldock,

PROPRIETOR of Stuart's patent compound Asphalt roofing, for DeKalb county, Ind., manufactured at Charlotte, Michigan. Consult or address at Auburn Indiana. 22-1f

THE ENQUIRER.

The People's Paper—The Greatest Newspaper in the West.

The Enquirer is just closing one of the most prosperous and successful years of its existence. We wish to thank the people and our patrons for their support. Your encouragement has made the task of publishing the best newspaper in the west a possibility.

We ask your aid and support for the year to come, and for the future, and pledge you that we will spare no expense to make the Enquirer for the ensuing year not only the best newspaper in the west, but the rival of any in America.

The world's news, recorded by a corps of fifteen hundred correspondents in all sections of the globe, will be found in the Enquirer every day in the year.

The history of each day's events will be faithfully and fearlessly told, exposing fraud, rebuking corruption, and upholding the right. The facts of the world belong to the people, and will be presented to them by the Enquirer free of malice and undistorted for political or personal purposes.

In short, the Enquirer will continue to be a newspaper.

In the future, as in the past, the Enquirer will be found advocating the rights of the people of the states; the rights of communities, and the fullest liberty to individuals compatible with the general order and welfare of society.

All questions and parties shall be treated with candor and fairness, but the truth shall never be perverted.

The year 1881 will be an eventful one in the history of the state and republic. The inauguration of a new administration, with new men and new purposes, are themes of the gravest interest to all citizens who love their country. Upon all these topics the Enquirer will contain the fullest and most reliable information from its corps of able and faithful correspondents.

THE WEEKLY ENQUIRER will be a paper that ought to be in the hands of every farmer, every mechanic, and every toiler in the land. As an agricultural paper, full of fresh, valuable and reliable information, it will be without a rival! A corps of contributors has been retained whose practical and theoretical knowledge in all branches of good farming is unsurpassed.

TERMS OF WEEKLY ENQUIRER.

For one year........................$1 15
For six months........................65

A free copy given to any one sending a club of seven names with $8 05.

TERMS OF DAILY ENQUIRER.

	With Sunday	With Sunday Issue.
One year	$12 00	$14 00
Six month	6 00	7 00
Three months	3 25	3 75
One month	1 25	1 50

Sunday's issue alone, per year.... 2 00
Any two days' issue, per year,.... 4 00
Any three days' issue, per year....6 00
Send for sample copies.

FARAN & McLEAN, Publishers.
Cincinnati, Ohio, December 1, 1880.

Try the COURIER for 1881—the leading paper of the county.

Reason in Dogs.

I knew a Skye terrier which, upon being told to carry a fishing-rod, carefully experimented along its length to find its center of gravity, then carried it on until his master came to a narrow path through a wood. Here Skye considered, dropped the rod, took it by the end, and dragged it under him lengthwise until the open road was gained, when he took the rod by the center of gravity again, and went on. This could not be a copy of human actions, but the result of original reasonin.

Mr. Henry Cecil gives the following on the authority of the late Mr. Dawes, the astronomer: "Being busy in his garden, and having a large bunch of keys in his hand, he gave it to a retriever to hold for him till he was at liberty. Going into the house soon after, he forgot to reclaim the keys. The remembrance of what he had done with them only returned to him when he required to use them in the evening. He then recalled that he had given them to the dog and forgotten to take them again. Calling him, and looking impressively in his face, he said: 'My keys! bring my keys. The dog looked wistful and puzzled for a moment, and then bounded off to the garden, his master following. He went straight to the root of an apple tree, scratched up the keys and brought them. May we not fairly put into words the dog's train of reasoning, thus: 'My master has given me these keys to hold; he has forgotten them; I cannot carry them all day, but I must put them in safety where I can find them again.'" Mr. R. Howson sends us the story of a terrier-like dog, of no particular breed, named Uglymug, that had a poodle for a companion. Whenever Uglymug saw signs of a family meal being laid out, he inveigled the poodle into a labyrinthine shrubbery, under the pretence of seeking for rats, and, when the latter was fairly intent on its game, Uglymug sneaked back to enjoy, all by himself, what he could get from the family table.—Nature.

Put Life Into Your Work.

A young man's interest and duty both dictate that he should make himself indispensable to his employers.

It is a great mistake to be over-nicely fastidious about work. Pitch in readily and your willingness will be appreciated, while the "high-toned" young man who quibbles about what it is, and about what it not his place to do, will get the cold shoulder. There is a story that Geo. Washington once helped to roll a log that one of his corporals would not handle, and the greatest emperor of Russia worked as a shipwright in England—to learn the business. That's just what you want to do. Be energetic, look and act with alacrity, take an interest in your employer's success, work as though the business was your own, and let your employer know that he may place absolute reliance in your word and on your act. Be mindful; have your mind in your business; because it is that which is going to help you, not those outside attractions which some of the 'boys' are thinking about. Take a pleasure in work, do not go about it in a listless, formal manner, but with alacrity and cheerfulness and remember that while working thus for others you are laying the foundation of your own success in life.

The Nervous Man.

'I had my misgivin's, boss,' the waiter said to the landlord who was questioning him about his conduct toward the tall gentleman in blue clothes who sat at the third table from the door, "I had my suspicions when he sat down dat he was carryin' mo' whisky dan was good fo' him, but he was puffekly quiet an' behave himself well 'nuff, an' I didn't pay no 'tention to it until he pick up a baked potato an' hole it keerfully ober de aig glass wid his lef' han' an' begun to tap de en' of de potato wid his spoon. He hit it right smawt three or fow times, an' den he whack it once or twice on de aige of his plate, an' lookin' solemn as a owl all de time, he call me up to him an' say just as p'lite and dignified as a president, "waitah," he says, 'I wish you would jest fix dis biled aig fo' me, if you please; I've loss a good deal of sleep las' night an' I'm a little narvous dis mawnin', he says: an know I had'nt done orter laff, boss, but I hope to die, boss, if I could help it." The landlord did not discharge him under the circumstances.

A farmer writing to a friend to whom he felt under obligations for introducing a variety of swine, thus unbosomed himself: 'Respected sir—I went yesterday to the fair at Monson. I found several pigs of your species. There was a great variety of beasts, and I was astonished at not seeing you there."

The Standard oil company is reported to have cleared $19,000,000 in nineteen months.

They now say of a liar. "He can tire out a fact quicker than any newspaper writer living, by the simple process of harnessing it up to his imagination.'

Father Benoit, one of the most respected of the Catholic priests in this state, died in Fort Wayne last week of apoplexy while coming down stairs to his breakfast.

A female correspondent complains that her husband eats onions and snores. Now, a man who would snore with an onion-flavored breath should go somewhere and start a desert.

A colored man came into a Galveston newspaper office and wanted to take the paper. 'How long do you want it?' asked the clerk. 'Jess as long as it is boss. Ef it don't fit de shelves I kin t'ar a piece off myself."

A darkey who was stopping to wash his hands in a creek, didn't notice the peculiar actions of a goat just behind; so when he scrambled out of the water and was asked how it happened he answered "I dunno 'xactly, but 'pears as if de shore kinder histed and frowd me."

Carelessness of letter-writers and package-senders sent 3,353,651 letters and packages to the dead letter office last year. Of these, 360,000 had the wrong address, and 9,000 were left blank. The money letters missent contained nearly $1,000,000. A little care in mailing matter would prevent all this.

Beware of inflammable combs! A little daughter of a man in Portland, Maine, while combing her hair before a mirror the other day, brushed a gas jet with her hand. In an instant the celluloid comb was in flames and the child's hand and cheek were severely burned. The comb was consumed as quickly as a piece of paper would have been.

Whatever you do, do it well. The slighting of a task because it is apparently unimportant leads to habitual neglect, so that men and woman degenerate insensibly into bad workers. Training the hand and the eye to do the work well leads persons to form correct habits in other respects, and a good workman is, in most cases, a good citizen.

A sentimental poetess asks: "Is there nothing for me to do?" Oh, you bet there is. Return the flour you borrowed from the woman next door, patch up your husband's old clothes, let poetry severely alone, and turn up that old, last year's bonnet. There's plenty of work for you to do in this world. When you wish for advice, inclose a stamp.

Mrs. Lucia A. Noyes, wife of a prominent lawyer of Warren, Pa., died on the 21st inst., and was cremated in Dr. Lemoyne's crematory furnace on the 25th. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Dr. Hays, and the sacred ashes preserved in a memorial urn. This method of disposing of the dead is growing in favor quite rapidly in England and also slowly in this country.

The St. Paul papers give an account of the sudden death of Miss Annie Shea, a well known young lady of Cincinnati, who went to Minneapolis to meet and marry a lover. Her lover was called to New York, and during his absence, while Miss Shea was out for a walk one day, she imagined she saw the ghost of her affianced. The strange hallucination so worried the love worn girl that she lost her mind, and a few days after swallowed a dose of poison and died of convulsions soon after.

—President Garfield will be the first President of the United States to enjoy the unique pleasure of entering the White House accompanied by his mother as well as by his wife. A proud moment for that mother! She is now 79. It has been one of Gen. Garfield's peculiarities to attend all the great base ball matches played within easy distance of him. At Washington he used to slip out of the House late on afternoon sessions in order to be in at the finish of a game. Unlike Sir Edward Thorton, who used to view the sport in the outfield from his carriage, Gen. Garfield went straight to the front row of seats in the grand stand, and kept tally for himself, watching the game as intently and getting as much interested in it as if he had thousands on the result.

Mahone.

[Muncie (Ind.) Times.]

General Mahone, of Virginia, is like lightning, you can't tell where he will strike.

Measuring Corn.

A number of rules for measuring corn have been published. As a multiplicity of rules tend to confuse, the question arises, why can we not have one good rule? The reason is obvious. New corn will not measure as many bushels to the foot or inches as old corn on account of shrinkage. A crib of corn measured in the fall will not yield as many bushels to the cubic foot as when measured in the spring or summer. Corn in wagon, when first put in, will not measure as much to the foot as when hauled several miles. Hence the necessity of working by different rules under different circumstances. All rules are based upon the number of cubic inches in a bushel of shelled corn, which is 2150.4. If all corn shelled out the same, under all circumstances, it would be very easy to have one rule. As near right as any rule I have tried is twelve cubic feet to the barrel for corn in crib in the fall of the year, eleven and a half feet in spring time and about eleven feet in summer; twelve feet as thrown in wagon in the field and eleven and a quarter hauled four or more miles.

The Reason Why.

'Experience is the best teacher,' and practical butter makers have been taught that, although they may keep the best cows, have the best food and use the latest and most improved machinery, yet in order to make the best butter they must use the best salt.

The reason why the gilt edged butter makers now use Higgin's salt is because by the patent process the pan scales and impurities are taken out and the grains being fine and of perfect uniformity they dissolve evenly and allow of the butter being packed in but a few hours after churning. As the sweetest and most delicate aroma to the, it is important that it be packed as soon as it can be properly done.

The invention of Thos. Higgin, of Cheshire, England, some four years ago marked a new era in the salt trade, and his pure sifted salt has proved of great benefit to butter and cheese makers in this country.

The following is an extract from a private letter recently written to a western friend by Gen. Mahone, of Virginia It will be read with interest by those who wish to know exactly the General's position:

"It may be a very difficult thing to give up all the preconceived notions of a whole life on the downward track to adopt new views and pursue new lives; yet wisdom tells us of the folly of catching at bubbles while the very air is full of choicest blessings awaiting our grasp. The south is weak, and stands in need of the capital energy of the north to give a prosperous motion to her interests; but at the same time the North needs the southern products, and the wide fields of hidden and idle wealth with which to utilize her capital. Here there can be common ground on which to advance truly separate interests, but at the same time cement the bonds of common union in the promotion of a general welfare, productive of a policy which protects the one against the other. The bond of interest—self, if you will—will then unite the several sections by a common tie, whose perpetuity will insure fraternity and union."

Just the Truth.

[Christian at Work.]

General Grant has been fully and more than amply repaid for his military services; as president he received a larger salary than any president before him; he has had gifts innumerable, and is now in receipt of a handsome income. But, apart from this, the office is not at all necessary to the preservation of the general's dignity, as is claimed. Money and emoluments may be necessary to support the dignity of an exalted office, but are never a factor in securing the dignity of the individual—a man who cannot be dignified without money cannot buy dignity with money. Besides, it is not the province of government to conserve the dignity of individuals—every man must look out for his own dignity. Such an office was not necessary for Washington, and Coriolanus returned to his plough without loss of dignity.

What Troubles Boston.

[Boston Post.]

It is easy to understand why a good actress in a play morally bad will draw better than a poor actress in a play morally good. But why a good actress in a play morally good, will not draw as well as a good actress in a play morally bad—in Boston, too—is a question which should be handled as gently as possible, unless one wishes to get himself disliked.

Ben's Grip.

(Lafayette Journal.)

Harrison's grip on the senatorship is not quite so secure as it seems.

The Power of Thought.

Thought is the motive power of human progress. Without it, man is a clod, and improvement impossible. The historian discovers in every age, men whose thought took hold of the future possibilities yet unrealized. These were the enthusiasts of their times, whose advanced ideas were regarded in the light of visionary speculations by their contemporaries, yet though they were few, and usually poor, and their revilers many and often rich, their thoughts died not with them at the stake, in the dungeon, or in exile, but embodying themselves in the hearts of their disciples, they have never ceased to move the world on toward the ideal of the great souls that gave them birth. Human thought is God's most potent means for redeeming the world from ignorance and the evils that grow out of it, and in proportion to its increased activity does society become wiser, better and happier. The sages of Persia, the philosophers of Greece, and the prophets of Judea, have all recognized the potency and undying influence of great truths, which were but great thoughts expressed in human language.

It was a maxim of the ancient sages:
"No noble human thought,
However buried by the dust of ages,
Could ever come to naught."

Unfortunately for the world's rapid progress, the means of communicating thought from mind to mind, were, until recently, exceedingly limited. Socrates could gather about him his group of disciples in the market place, and each member of this favored class could write the wise sayings that fell from the lips of this matchless sage, to read to his friends, and at death bequeath to his sons. But no means existed by which the great mass of the people could be reached by those sublime truths, and hence the great world outside of Athens lived and died utterly ignorant of them.

Thanks to the happy thoughts of Faust, Guttenbuerg, Watt, Morse, Hoe and other great minds, a new era has dawned upon the world, and the thought treasures so carefully preserved and highly prized by the favored few of the olden times are within the easy reach of all. Ignorance was excusable when knowledge was beyond the grasp, but now it is a sin of the greatest magnitude—an unpardonable sin—with only this palliation, that until the cup of wisdom has once been raised to the lips of an individual, he or she knows naught of its redeemable quality, and cannot, therefore, be expected to seek it voluntarily. Reader, do you know of any who, on account of such stupid ignorance, needs that this cup be pressed upon them? If so, it is your impertaive duty to urge it upon them with earnestness, patience, and in a spirit of brotherly love.

This is a duty you cannot ignore and remain true to yourself, to God, and to humanity. The questioning excuse, "am I my brother's keeper?" will not answer either to God, or to your own enlightened conscience. Yes, you are your brother's keeper, in a certain sense, and that a very important one. Humanity is united by the bonds of a common brotherhood, and society by the ties of interest. The first you can not ignore without becoming an outlaw, and to disregard the other is the very height of folly.

An ancient apostle of christianity has said that "he that has of this world's goods, and sees his brother in need without ministering to his wants, has not the love of God in his soul."

And we affirm that no truly enlightened and civilized man can permit ignorance to exist where it is reasonably possible for him to dissipate it.

The claims of humanity and the promptings of self-interest combine to demand that you strive to lift your neighbor up to your level. In proportion to your success in this work will your social intercourse with others bring happiness, your plans for general improvement be concurred in, and general prosperity, happiness and good feeling prevail throughout the sphere of your influence.

A man once said to the writer: "My farm is exceedingly rich, but it is also very wet; my crops are, therefore, at the mercy of the seasons. I cannot drain it, because I have no outlet. Naught but a general system will drain our section, and my neighbors, though suffering as much as I, refuse to join me in this improvement."

We said, it is your duty to enlighten them.

To build up schools, establish libraries and organize lyceums, are among the prominent duties of enlightened citizens. But the truly earnest man or woman will find many other means of increasing the general information of his or her associates. Induce them to purchase books and subscribe for papers, if you can, and if you fail in this, lend them yours; or, if they are too indifferent to read them, seek opportunities to read to them, and, by means of conversation, instill into their minds thoughts that will force reflection, and ere long you shall see the fruits of your labor in the increased interest in intellectual matters, and the improvement of all their habits.

A minister recently located in a western city, was met on the street one day by a man forty years of age, who asked his way to a certain part of the city. The preacher told him the number.

"I cannot read," replied the man, "and will not know the figures."

"Forty years old and cannot read? Where have you been living all this time? Surely not in a civilized community."

"Yes, I was born in this state, and for the past ten years I have lived in this city."

"Can it be possible? And did no one ever offer to teach you to read?"

"No," said he, surprised at the questions and manner of this true preacher.

"Then come to me, and I will teach you."

Well might this earnest man ask what were the fifty preachers of the city doing all this time, that they could not prevent such gross ignorance as this, continuing in their midst.

We wish to impress upon the minds of our readers, who represent the advanced minds of this country, the importance of promoting intelligence among their neighbors.

Every ignorant man is a dead weight upon progress; a stumbling block in the road to prosperity and general improvement.

Took His Work for It.

A consumptive-looking man, lame and feeble, and carrying a pint bottle full of something, halted a pedestrain on Bates street yesterday and said:

"I found this bottle on the corner back there, and I wish you'd tell me what's in it."

The other took it removed the cork and snuffed in a full breath. The next instant he staggered against a wall, clawing the air and choking and grasping, and it was full minute before he blurted out:

'Why, you infernal idot, that's hartshorn.'

'Well, I'm perfectly willing to take your word for it without extra insults," observed the invalid in an injured voice and he took his bottle and walked off like a man who had been abused without the least excuse.

Gen. Grant tell a story of a woman who sold apples and cakes from a small booth near the gate of one of the Departments in Washington during his two terms of the Presidency, and whom he met in Milan, when he was on his tour, she being well dressed and prosperous looking. Says the Gen.: I asked what she was doing in Milan, and her reply was that her son had shown great musical talent, and she was here to give him the best instruction that Italian masters could afford. Now this woman came to Washington with probably a dollar or two in her pocket, and yet had been able to lay up money enough from such an apparently small occupation to give her son such an education as those American fathers who have paid their children's instruction in Itally can appreciate."

Sherman's True Greatness.

[Detroit Free Press.]

Secretary Sherman's "exalted services" to the country—and his party—have long been the theme of republican eulogy. One would suppose that a republican legislature, like that of Ohio, would jump at the chance of rewarding him, and linking itself thereby to undying fame. But neither Sherman nor his friends seem to have any confidence that the legislature will so jump. On the contrary, they have lively fears that it will jump the other way. Is the Ohio legislatnre incapable of appreciating true greatness? Or has the party at large overestimated Sherman?

Justice and Smoke-Consumers.

(Chicago Inter-Ocean.)

Cincinnati authorities better apply their new "smoke-consumers" to their court-house. If lawyers are to be believed, justice shines with a dim light through the smoke and gas of Cincinnati courts.

All the Same.

(Chicago Times.)

It was announced that John W. Hogg, chief clerk of the naval department, would be Thompson's successor. It wasn't Hogg, it was Ramsey—but it's all the same.

Bad for Talmage.

Commercial Advertiser.

Mr. Talmage, we fear, is a heretophemist.

AUBURN COURIER.

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 23, 1880.

WEEKLY NEWS REVIEW.

THE EAST.

A third member of the coffee syndicate has reached financial breakers. Bowie, Dash & Co., a New York importing house, with liabilities of $1,400,000, has suspended payment, but no assignment will be made....The anthracite coal producers have agreed to shut down three days in each week during the remainder of the winter.

Jay Gould's magnificent conservatory at Irvington, on the Hudson river has been burned. Loss, 100,000.....Agents of the secret service have arrested, in New York and Brooklyn, nine men who have been manufacturing and circulating counterfeit silver coin.....At Lawrence, Mass., Miss Pinkham was shot and instantly killed by her paramour, Mr. Wardman, a married man with a family. Wardman subsequently shot himself, and is not likely to recover. Jealousy.

The large manufacturing establishment of T. F. Adams & Co., at Erie, Pa., has been burned. Two firemen were killed and several injured by a falling wall....Edison is still working hard and hopefully on the electric light. He claims to have proved that its subdivision is not an impossibility, and asserts that his invention will soon be perfected. The cost of lighting the city of New York by his method will, he says, be something like $2,000,000.

By an accident to a Central Vermont train, near Wallingford, Vt., Conductor Campbell was fatally injured, and seventeen passengers in a sleeping-car more or less hurt....A woman and two children were burned to death at Olean, N. Y....Two men were killed by the explosion of a boiler at Latrobe, Pa.

Sarah Bernhardt had a narrow escape from death at the Boston Theater. As she lay on a lounge in the death scene in "Camille," a large and heavy mantel began to totter toward her. She quickly rose to her feet, when the lounge was crushed by the falling properties. The play was quietly finished from the point of interruption....Charles A. Burt, a brewer and maltster of Albany, shot his mistress and then committed suicide....Joseph Brown & Brothers, wholesale dry-goods dealers in New York, have failed, their liabilities being $92,000....The Alabama and Great Southern Railroad Company are about to tunnel Lookout mountain in order to connect their road, which has its present terminus at Wauhatchie, with Chattanooga, about five miles distant.

THE WEST.

Colored emigrants from North Carolina, who have settled in Indiana, held a convention at Greencastle and adopted an address urging that one-half the negroes of the South emigrate to Northern farms....The jury in the case of Dr. Earll, of Chicago, charged with the murder of Etta Carl, by abortion, reached a verdict of guilty, and fixed the punishment at five years in the penitentiary.

At a fire in a building occupied by the Crown Manufacturing Company, in Cincinnati, five firemen lost their lives by being overcome by smoke. The property was damaged to the extent of $40,000....John Dilley and wife, residing in Henry county, Ill., were murdered in their bed by a burglar, who obtained only two watches. Awakened by the groans of their mother, a young girl and two small boys went nearly a mile to arouse the neighbors....Rev. Dr. Goodell was assaulted in the streets of St. Louis by ruffians, and badly beaten and cut before he could summon assistance....They have been having some severe weather in Colorado. Parties crossing the Sangre-de-Cristo range have died from cold, and the cattle herds have suffered immense loss. Three deaths by freezing are reported from Rosita, and two travelers arriving at that place lost all four limbs of their bodies....A half-breed Indian named George Scott was lynched by masked men, at Brazil, Ind., for an outrage on the wife of his employer.

Dispatches of the 15th inst., from Hunnewell, Kan., state that affairs of the Oklahoma raiders were rapidly approaching a crisis. Great dissatisfaction was caused by a report that large numbers were entering the Indian Territory at other points, and the settlers declared they would wait no longer. The officers, realizing that something must be done at once, called a meeting, at which Dr. Robert Wilson, of Texas, was appointed a committee to go to Washington and confer with the President and Congress....Utah has a population of 143,907, of which 69,436 are females, and 43,933 of foreign birth....W. T. Holbrook, agent of the American Express Company at Dubuque, Iowa, killed his little daughter and then shot himself. All his friends unite in pronouncing the man insane when he committed the terrible deed. He was about 40 years of age and a very popular man....Medicine Bull, a well-known Indian chief of the Brule tribe, was killed at the Lower Brule Agency by the accidental discharge of a pistol in the hands of Indian Agent Beveridge....An association, of which Horace Rublee is the head, has purchased the Milwaukee Daily News, and it will, after the 1st of January, be run as a Republican newspaper.

Two men engaged in digging a well near Arcade, Ill., were overcome by gas and died before they could be rescued....Another family has been prostrated in Chicago from the effects of raw pork garnished with trichinæ....Mrs. James Jones, the wife of a farmer living near Napoleon, Mo., tried to fill a lighted lamp with coal-oil. The inevitable explosion followed, and Mrs. Jones and her two children, aged respectively 6 years and 6 months, are the victims....In Oakland, Cal., Miss Elizabeth Tyler, aged 18 years, was shot dead at the gate of her residence by the accidental discharge of a pistol in the hands of her affianced, John Sectohler.

A boiler exploded with frightful effect in a Garrettsville (Ohio) factory. The boiler was blown twenty rods, cutting down in its flight trees of considerable size. Several operatives were injured, but only two fatally....John C. Armstrong, a farmer of Carrollton, Ill., quarreled with his brother Clinton about a buggy trade. The latter struck the former with a wagon yoke, killing him instantly....The bonded debt of Missouri, as shown by official reports, is $16,258,000, not including $3,000,000 of bonds issued to the Hannibal and St. Joseph railroad, for which that road is responsible, and $250,000 revenue bonds. Of this debt only about $800,000 can be refunded at a lower rate of interest than it now bears....Two more companies of Federal cavalry have reached Caldwell, Kan., to keep watch of the Oklahoma colonists.

A dispatch from Rawlins, Wyoming, says the infamous road agent and murderer, George Parrott, alias "Big-Nosed George," has been sentenced to be hanged next April. George is the last but one of the worst band of road agents and robbers that ever infested Wyoming. The last act of the gang was an attempt to turn a Union Pacific passenger train into a chasm 150 feet deep at Big Springs in 1878. Two Deputy Sheriffs pursued the gang and were killed. George confessed his crime, desiring to be hanged in expiation....At Eufaula, in Indian Territory, two full-bloods went to the house of Elias McVeigh and shot him dead, afterward inflicting mortal wounds on a man named Barrett with an ax.

THE SOUTH.

Near Huntsville, Ala., a party of Deputy Marshals and a deputy revenue collector came upon four illicit distillers for whom they had warrants. Deputy Marshal John B. Hardie was killed by Jefferson Culbreath, a moonshiner, and Deputy Collector Horace J. Bone was wounded in the side. A force for the capture of the murderer was immediately organized. Commissioner Raum orders the seizure of every illicit distillery in the district and the arrest of every moonshiner.

"Will some one help me get on my horse?" archly asked Miss Estelle Snyder, the belle of Mitchell county, N. C., while standing in front of a country store. Charles Posten started eagerly forward to help her, but William Springs, who was standing near, reached her first and helped her on the horse, receiving a sweet smile and thanks from the fair equestrienne. As the young woman started to go, Springs went up to Posten and in emphatic language complained of his interference. The remark enraged Posten, who drew a revolver and deliberately fired all five balls through the body of Springs, killing him in the presence of the young woman. Posten then flung down his revolver and fled....James Davis, Deputy Revenue Collector, was killed, and G. W. Campbell, United States Commissioner, beaten nearly to death in a fight with illicit distillers, near Cookeville, Tenn....Pensacola has suffered the loss of seventy-five buildings by fire, including the Custom House and its records. The only steam fire-engine in the city was so disabled that two hours were required to repair it, while the flames were raging. The estimated loss is $500,000.

Three negroes, who for some time have been charges on the county of Bedford, Va., were last week sold at auction for $4, under an old vagrant law. The purchaser will have their labor for three months.

A boiler explosion made a total wreck of Fabel's soap factory at Louisville. The carpenter and engineer were blown fifty feet, and are fatally injured, and a girl named Lottie Ott cannot survive. The loss is $50,000.

GENERAL.

Delegate Cannon, of Utah, has been interviewed in regard to the President's broadside. He said the Mormons had faith in the Lord. He declared that the Message perverted plain facts in the declaration that zealous efforts had been made by the United States authorities to enforce the law against polygamy. He claimed for Mormon juries the credit of several convictions for polygamy, but asserted that the Mormons would not abandon plural marriages....Secretary Thompson has definitely accepted the Chairmanship of the American committee of the Panama Canal Company. The subscriptions to the enterprise in the different countries are more than double the amount required.

Capt. Howgate still hopes to start his Arctic expedition next spring on a staunch steamer thoroughly equipped....Twenty-two persons were lost by shipwreck in Pleasant bay, off the coast of Nova Scotia, during a recent gale.

Advices from Mexico report an unwholesome condition of affairs in that republic. President Gonzalez is unpopular. His inauguration, which occurred recently, was witnessed with extreme indifference by the people, while ex-President Diaz was loudly cheered when he left the palace after delivering the executive departments to his successor....Seidenberg & Co., the well-known cigar manufacturers of New York and Key West, have failed with liabilities of $500,000....The negro rebellion in Cuba has been checked and the leaders executed.

A Chilian fleet of eighteen vessels attacked and captured the Peruvian town of Pisco, and burned the rolling-stock of a railroad belonging to English capitalists. The Peruvians lost 150 men and the Chilians 400. A force of 10,000 then landed from the fleet, and took up its march through the Yea valley for Lima, a distance of 126 miles. The Peruvians have sent out three divisions to check the invaders....The National Board of Trade has adopted the draft of a bill to prevent the adulteration of food and drugs, as also a resolution that the coinage of silver be left to the discretion of the Secretary of the Treasury....The Western Union Telegraph Company has reduced its rates an average of 15 per cent. to all points where it comes into competition with the American Union Company....The growth of railroad traffic in this country has been marvelous. In 1857 the gross earnings of all roads was $39,456,358; in 1861 the earnings had reached $130,000,000; in 1871, $403,329,208; and last year the earnings amounted to $529,012,999.

WASHINGTON.

The annual report of the Commissioner of Education puts the total school population in 1878 at about 14,500,000. The number enrolled in public schools was 9,294,316, and the average daily attendance (seven States not reporting) was 5,093,298. In the Southern States the total school population was 5,187,584, and the number of scholars enrolled was 2,710,495. It appears, therefore, that the whole number of children growing up in ignorance in the year mentioned was 4,114,077, of whom 2,472,089, or considerably more than one-half, were in the late slave States. About 900,000 were negroes....Secretary Thompson has resigned the Navy portfolio. Mr. Thompson leaves the Cabinet to take charge of the American branch of De Lesseps' canal project....Gen. Walker is only waiting for returns from one of the fourteen districts of Texas before reporting the total of the census of each State and Territory....Justice Strong, of the United States Supreme Court, has concluded to retire from the bench and enter the service of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company as its chief legal adviser.

The President has appointed Edgar Stanton, of Illinois, Consul General at St. Petersburg, Russia.

Gen. O. O. Howard having been appointed to the command at West Point, it is understood that a new military division will be created for Gen. Schofield, with headquarters at New Orleans.

The confirmation by the Senate of Gen. Hazen to be Chief of the Signal Service did not meet with that opposition which some had predicted, and it was followed by the unanimous confirmation of Col. Nelson A. Miles to be Brigadier General....Cadet Whittaker has applied to President Hayes for trial by court-martial. Whittaker asserts that he is innocent of every charge made against him....The President has nominated Judge William B. Woods to succeed Justice Strong on the Supreme bench. Judge Woods is a native of Ohio, but he has been presiding over the Fifth circuit, which comprises Alabama, Georgia, Florida, Louisiana, Mississippi, and Texas.

The annual report of the Chief of the Bureau of Statistics, Mr. Nimmo, Jr., shows the value of American bread and breadstuffs exported for the year ending June 30 to be $288,036,835, of cotton $211,535,905, provisions $127,043,242, mineral oils $36,218,625, tobacco $18,442,237.

POLITICAL.

The Irving Hall and Republican coalition in the New York Board of Aldermen have defeated John Kelly and the Tammany faction. Allen Campbell was confirmed as Comptroller, to succeed Kelly.

A national convention of colored men has been called to meet at St. Louis on the 2d of March. The object of the convention, as stated in the call, is to secure for the negro proper representation in the distribution of Governmental patronage.

Campbell, the Gentile candidate for delegate in Congress from Utah, protests against a certificate being issued to Cannon, on the ground that the latter is a subject of Great Britain and a polygamist.

FOREIGN.

Baron Fitzgerald, one of the Justices of the Irish Court of Exchequer, is the latest recipient of threatening letters. They convey the cheering information that if his charges in the Limerick cases are not fair he shall be murdered....An explosion in the Pengyrig colliery, in Wales, shook the ground for miles around. Over eighty miners perished. Four men were rescued, but thirty-four corpses were discovered by an exploring party....The Governor of Albania is taking steps to disarm the people, and has compelled certain leaders to pledge obedience to the Sultan.

Later estimates of the loss of life by the coal-mine explosion in Wales make the number of persons perished at 100. Twenty-two bodies have been recovered so far....The municipality of the city of Rome, in spite of the opposition of the clerical members, has granted a site in the public cemetery to the Cremation Company....The British Government has placed two more regiments at the disposal of the Irish Executive. Capt. Stackpole, a wealthy farmer, made a vain attempt to sell some horses in Limerick, as a Land-League bellman paraded the streets forbidding people to purchase. A landlord, named De Courcy Harris, was Boycotted out of the hunting field at Charleville. The Claremorris police patrol fired on a party of suspected men and captured one of them....Baudry d'Asson, the French irreconcilable, has brought both civil and criminal actions against Gambetta and the questors of the Chamber of Deputies for his recent expulsion....Madame Thiers, widow of the late President of the French republic, is dead.

A Cabinet council, summoned to consider measures for the restoration of peace and order in Ireland, was in session at London, last week. It was agreed that if the crisis shall not have passed before the 6th of January, Parliament will be asked to grant extraordinary powers, including the suspension of the habeas corpus. Arrangements are being made to reinforce the troops in Ireland by 5,000 men.

Baron Dowse, holding court at Galway, has received a letter threatening him with death should any Land Leaguer be convicted....The Irish Land League has adopted a manifesto which condemns outrages and threatening letters as harmful to the cause of land reform. It insists, however, that there shall be no compromise with landlordism....In its efforts to bring its disbursements within its receipts, Japan has ordered the sale of various factories established to stimulate the industries of the people, and proposes to recall the Ministers to Italy, Holland and Australia....The Progressists and Democrats of Germany have obtained a tremendous victory in the late elections. This is partly owing, to the new Corn laws.

Parnell, Davitt and Dillon report having received letters threatening them with death. A merchant of Dublin has been summoned by the Clare Land-League to justify an eviction. Commercial travelers, summoned as jurors in the state trials, have received warnings from customers against voting to convict. John Power, one of the party who slit the ears of a bailiff near Tralee, although identified by the victim, has been acquitted. William Bence Jones, a land-owner of County Cork, has been warned that his grave will be dug opposite his door. Healy and Walsh, indicted Land Leaguers, were acquitted at Cork, and received a serenade....There are rumors in Paris about Rochefort's sanity. Rochefort, in his journal, calls Gambetta a liar, robber, forger, false Genoese, and a wretch worse han Thiers or MacMahon....Josiah Caldwell, of London, a railway contractor, has suspended, with liabilities of £500,000....A dispatch from Paris announces the founding of the Panama Bank with a capital of 14,000,000 francs, and the Commercial Panama Company, for food supply, with a capital of 2,000,000 francs.

Emigration is said to be one of the measures contemplated by the British Government to settle the Irish land problem. It is the intention to send many farmers to Manitoba at the public expense.

CONGRESSIONAL SUMMARY.

The Senate was not in session on Friday, Dec. 10. In the House of Representatives, Mr. Hubbell reported the Pension Appropriation bill. It provides $48,000,000 to pay army pensioners, $1,110,000 for the pay of navy pensioners, $250,000 for examining Surgeons, and $25,000 for salaries, etc. Mr. Shelley reported a bill for lines of mail steamers to Mexican and Central and South American ports. The Speaker presented a communication from M. Gambetta, President of the French Chamber of Deputies, in relation to the exchange of documents. The House refused to consider the concurrent resolution on the electoral vote, and adjourned to Monday.

The proposed restoration of Fitz-John Porter to the rolls of the army was the occasion of an all-day debate in the Senate on Monday, Dec. 13. Mr. Edmunds made a vain attempt to limit the effect of the bill to one year. Mr. Carpenter held that Porter must be pardoned by the President. Nearly 100 bills and resolutions were introduced in the House. A resolution by Mr. Crapo declares that the construction of the Panama canal by foreign capital, through a charter from any European government, cannot be sanctioned by the United States. Mr. Meyers offered a resolution calling upon the Secretary of the Treasury for a detailed statement of the moneys paid U. S. Grant from 1861 to 1877. Mr. Calkins secured the passage of an expression of sympathy with the unhappy laboring classes of Ireland. Mr. McCoid presented a bill to regulate commerce by railroad, providing for a uniform rate of fare and freightage, and for a Congressional Committee of Inquiry and Enforcement. Mr. Deuster introduced a bill to terminate existing treaties between the United States and the North German Confederacy; Mr. Warner one providing for a commission of five Representatives, four Senators and five experts, to revise and readjust the tariff. Mr. Willis offered a bill to reduce the postage on letters and letter-matter to 2 cents for each one-half ounce or fraction thereof; also, to reform the civil service of the United States. The latter provides that all persons who have been in office four years shall retain their places during good behavior; that all future appointments be made from among those who make the best showing at competitive examinations; there shall be no preferences for any class of citizens, but soldiers and sailors. The President will be entitled to ten places in each department for such as he may choose. The credentials of Mr. Taylor, elected as the successor of Gen. Garfield, were presented. Objection was made to admitting him to a seat, the opposition claiming that, the State having been apportioned into new Congressional districts, the district was reconstructed, and was not the same as that which Gen. Garfield represented. Mr. Taylor qualified, and the credentials were referred to the Committee on Elections.

Senators Beck, Kernan and Morrill were appointed on Tuesday, Dec. 14, a sub-committee to consider a bill which provides for the free purchase and register of foreign-built ships by American citizens. Mr. Williams introduced a bill providing for an appropriation of $1,000,000 to be used in preventing the dissemination or introduction of infectious or contagious diseases among domestic animals in the United States. Mr. Morrill offered a resolution virtually declaring that the existing telegraph lines interfered greatly with the business of the Postoffice Department, and inquiring whether the telegraphic service should not be placed exclusively in the hands of the Government. The bill for the relief of Fitz John Porter was passed, being amended to provide that within eighteen months the President may appoint him to a Colonelcy on the retired list, without pay for the time intervening since his dismissal. In the House, Mr. Morgan introduced a bill for the incorporation of the Maritime Canal Company of Nicaragua. Among the incorporators appear the names of Gen. U. S. Grant, E. D. Morgan, H. J. Jewett, Solon Humphreys, William Dennison, Howard Potter and others. This bill proposes that the capital stock shall consist of not less than 500,000 nor more than 1,000,000 shares of $100 each. Mr. Bicknell announced that he would let the electoral-count resolution go over the holiday adjournment. A. W. C. Nowlain was appointed Postmaster of the House. An hour was spent in committee of the whole in hearing various propositions for refunding the bonds maturing next year. Messrs. Kelley, Buckner, Gillette, and McMillan offered amendments. The Consular and Diplomatic Appropriation bill was reported, calling for $1,190,435; as was the Military Academy Appropriation bill, which appropriates $322,135. Mr. Young introduced a bill to encourage American seamen, and to provide a home for permanently disabled seamen. Among the appointments sent to the Senate were the following: James Monroe, of Michigan, to be Marshal for the Western district of Michigan; Ezekiel S. Turner, of Tennessee, to be United States Judge for the Western district of Tennessee; Alexander Hughes, of Dakota, to be Receiver of Public Moneys at Yankton, D. T.

A bill was simultaneously introduced into the Senate and House, by Senator Hill and Mr. Belford, of Colorado, on Wednesday, Dec. 15, for the gradual retirement of all greenbacks less than $5. The bill to devote to public education a part of the proceeds of the sales of public lands was supported by Messrs. Burnside and Morrill, and warmly advocated by Mr. Brown, of Georgia. Mr. Pendleton introduced a Civil Service Reform bill. It provides that admission to the service be determined by competitive examination, and that promotion shall be governed by examination, efficiency, and experience. Mr. Pendleton has also introduced a bill to protect Government employes from political assessments. The Senate unanimously confirmed the nominations of Gen. Hazen as Chief Signal Officer and of Gen. Miles as Brigadier General. The House passed the Senate bill granting a pension of $100 per month to the widow of President Tyler. While the House was in committee of the whole on the Fortification bill, which finally passed, Mr. Baker, of Indiana, called attention to the fact that a foreign man-of-war could reach the docks in New York without injury from our defenses. Mr. Gibson reported a bill appropriating $1,800,000 for the improvement of the Mississippi river.

A bill authorizing the President to enter the name of Gen. Ord on the retired list with his brevet rank of Major General was introduced in the Senate on the 16th inst., by Mr. Maxey. The appearance of Gen. Grant caused a recess of ten minutes. Mr. Saunders presented a bill for the sale of part of the reservation of the Omaha Indians, in Nebraska, and Mr. Hoar a petition for woman suffrage in the Territories. Prolonged debate took place on the Educational bill, which went over. In the House, Fernando Wood presented a concurrent resolution for a holiday recess of two weeks from the 22d, which was adopted. The pension appropriation was discussed in committee of the whole, and subsequently passed. Nearly all the members of the House came to the Speaker's desk and greeted Gen. Grant. Mr. Bland, of Missouri, introduced a bill to take from the treasury $100,000,000 in coin, and discharge that amount of interest-bearing debt at its maturity. The President nominated Theodore F. Singiser, of Pennsylvania, to be Secretary of Idaho Territory, and Edward P. Champlin, of Michigan, to be Receiver of Public Moneys at Deadwood, D. T.

ALL SORTS.

The "caterpillar" fringe is the latest thing in dress trimming.

The newest color is a soft silver-green, and is called "moonbeam."

Black kid gloves are in favor for evening wear as well as for day use.

Richard Grant White is large and strong, with mutton-chop whiskers and long, brownish hair, parted in the middle.

Mr. A. W. Campbell, the editor of the Wheeling Intelligencer, and the Chairman of the West Virginia delegation to the Chicago Convention, is the nephew of that Alexander Campbell who was the founder of the "Campbellite" or "Disciples" church, to which Gen. Garfield belongs.

Mrs. Scott Siddons says she was told by the Princess Louise that the Princess of Wales is so even tempered that trouble flies from her. She is to be congratulated on the possession of this admirable trait, as, if all reports be true, the Prince gives her plenty of opportunity to test her equanimity.

A man in a prayer meeting at Great Springs, Ga., declared that he was ready to die, and awaited the summons with impatience. He had barely uttered the sentiment when a bullet crashed through the window and grazed his ear. A neighbor, whom he had sued for debt, had taken him at his word. He hastily hid himself under a bench.

Lord Beaconsfield's new novel, "Endymion," is little else than a self-made portrait of its author. It is purely a political novel, and will be read with more than ordinary interest. Cobden is called Job Thornberry; Palmerston, Lord Rokehampton, and Louis Napoleon, Prince Florestan. It is full of flashy writing and satirical squibs.

A movement is on foot in India to abolish the Zenana system and to induce the Hindoos to bring out their wives and sisters into society in the European fashion. The movement is opposed by the native papers, oddly enough, on the ground that the Hindoo young gentlemen are not as yet moral enough to be allowed to associate with unmarried Hindoo ladies.

A fashionable Galveston young man has acquired considerable fame as a musical bore on the violin. One night at a social gathering he announced that he was going to send for a violin and draw a few of Beethoven's immortal symphonies out of it by the tail, as it were. To his amazement all the gentlemen present volunteered to go for the fiddle, and up to date none of them have got back with it. For dispersing a crowd no implement of war has yet been invented to rival the fiddle.

The Grand Duke Constantine, of Russia, is said to be a very agreeable man in society, having pleasant words and compliments for all sorts of persons; but in private he is curt in speech, and uses words not found even in the Apocrypha. He was married young to the handsomest Princess in Germany, but they are only on "terms of respectful tenderness," as Toodles was with his wife, he traveling abroad by himself and she by herself. In his private affairs he is orderly, thrifty, and makes good investments.

Ralph Waldo Emerson (says the Springfield Republican) continues in the same measure of health that has been his of late years; goes down from Concord to Boston for a day now and then, and takes his long country walks in all sorts of weather, as he always has; the knower of nature and of what awaits, not departing, as one unawares, but still Star by star his world resigning.

Judge Montgomery Blair, who was a member of Mr. Lincoln's Cabinet, resides in Washington, where he is held in high personal respect. His habits are of the simplest character, his manner very kindly and winning. He is tall and thin, and has a fine head. His family consists of his wife, a daughter of Levi Woodbury, of New Hampshire, and four children—three sons and an unmarried daughter. The eldest son, Woodbury, is a lawyer, and a favorite in society. The younger sons are law students. Judge Blair has no brother living, and but one sister, the wife of Admiral Lee.

Misjudged.

It is well known that elephants frequently kill their keepers, or the mahouts who ill-use them. Why not? The elephant drivers are a drunken set of men, and sometimes, while drunk, will treat their charge unmercifully, and the elephant itself is an animal which bears grudges—the result being that nearly all elephant keepers are sooner or later killed. It is a simple case of cause and effect.

Determined to Have a Peep.

A lady of rather a positive turn of mind once gave a tea-party to some lady friends in her bedroom. "John," she said to her husband, as she heard the company coming, "get under the bed!" John tried to resist, but finally succumbed. Every now and then he would make an effort to peep out as the ladies laughed and made merry, but he was mercilessly driven back by his angered wife. At length, after a good joke had exploded among the party, John put his head away out. "Get in there, will you?" whispered his wife as she nudged him. "No!" shrieked John; "as long as I have the spirit of a man left in me, I will take a peep!"

METEOROLOGY.

The Future of Weather Foretelling.

(Atlantic Monthly.)

In no other part of her wide realm has Science done so little for the good of man or her own fame as in the department of meteorology. In the solid earth her prophecies have long had a high value, in the far-off heavens her empire is affirmed, but in the unstable air between these two well-possessed provinces there is a region that is not yet subjugated. Around the border of the domain of meteorology some gains to the cause of law and order have indeed been made; we control the lightning, we are able to track a clearly defined storm for days on its path, and can help the sailor to knowledge that often enables him to escape its clutches when it assails him on the deep sea; but as for foretelling the weather in any proper sense, we have not yet attained to it. Is it attainable? Can we hope to compass the condition of our days so that we may sow, reap, travel, feast or make war in weather of our own choice? This is, after all, perhaps the most interesting of the question that the future history of science must determine. But though the perfect answer is not to be given at present, there are some things in the existing conditions of our science that makes us hopeful that we are but at the beginning of the work of weather forecasting.

There have been two distinct scientific efforts at weather foretelling, as distinguished from the current survival of the modes of thought of ancient ages that are introduced in our ordinary weather prophecies; that undertaken by Admiral Fitzroy, in England, and that begun in this country by the United States Signal Corps, under the control of the late General Myer. Both of these have made their basis of the simple principle that weather always has a history; that it means conditions that pass from one region to another by certain laws of movement and at a certain rate. This general fact was long ago recognized by meteorologists, but it was not until the telegraph enabled knowledge to outstrip the storms that it was possible to make any use of it in foretelling the weather. By the admirable labors of the United Signal Service this method of announcing the weather that is journeying toward any locality has been brought to a high point of perfection, but it has not to any extent helped us to foretell the creation of weather. When a weather area forms in the far West, it is now traced as clearly as the path of an army, until it passes away. Sometimes the state of the barometer will tell something about storms that have not yet gathered themselves for their eastward march, but beyond this there have as yet been no means of foreseeing. The weather bureau is of no more use than a ground-hog, or a goose-bone for telling us whether our coming spring or summer is to be warm or cold, rainy or dry. Is this the end of our advance? Can we hope to do more than take the storms we find afloat, and trace them on their courses; or can we hope to look behind them to the conditions of their origin so clearly that we can foretell their time and place of working?

What It Means.

Felicia's pretty cousin wants to know what it means when a man tells her that he regards lace and ribbons, and a hundred other things in which she takes an innocent pleasure, as useless frippery. It means, young lady, that he will have the same opinion after marriage, and if you are wise you will leave it to some other woman to hear him say "No" when asked to open his pocket-book for the "useless" things.

A bright little boy, who had been engaged in combat with another boy, was reproved by his aunt, who told him he ought always to wait until the other boy pitched upon him. "Well," exclaimed the little hero, "but if I wait for the other boy to begin, I'm afraid there won't be any fight."

THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK.
Beeves	$7 00	@11 50
Hogs	4 70	@ 4 90
Cotton	11¾	@ 12¼
Flour—Superfine	3 50	@ 4 00
Wheat—No. 1 Spring	1 15	@ 1 21
Corn—Ungraded	55	@ 60
Oats—Mixed Western	41	@ 44
Rye—Western	1 03	@ 1 04
Pork—Mess	13 50	@13 75
Lard	8¾	@ 9
CHICAGO.
Beeves—Choice Graded Steers	5 40	@ 6 50
Cows and Heifers	2 50	@ 3 75
Medium to Fair	4 35	@ 4 85
Hogs	3 50	@ 5 00
Flour—Fancy White Winter Ex	5 75	@ 6 25
Good to Choice Spring Ex	5 00	@ 5 50
Wheat—No. 2 Spring	1 01	@ 1 03
No. 3 Spring	86	@ 88
Corn—No. 2	39	@ 40
Oats—No. 2	32	@ 33
Rye—No. 2	87	@ 90
Barley—No. 2	1 15	@ 1 17
Butter—Choice Creamery	32	@ 33
Eggs—Fresh	27	@ 28
Pork—Mess	11 65	@12 00
Lard	8¼	@ 8½
MILWAUKEE.
Wheat—No. 1	1 06	@ 1 12
No. 2	1 00	@ 1 01
Corn—No 2	40	@ 41
Oats—No. 2	32	@ 33
Rye—No. 1	86	@ 87
Barley—No. 2	86	@ 89
ST. LOUIS.
Wheat—No. 2 Red	1 01	@ 1 02
Corn—Mixed	41	@ 42
Oats—No. 2	33	@ 34
Rye	80	@ 84
Pork—Mess	12 75	@13 00
Lard	8	@ 8¼
CINCINNATI.
Wheat	1 01	@ 1 03
Corn	45	@ 50
Oats	36	@ 37
Rye	97	@ 98
Pork—Mess	13 00	@13 25
Lard	8¼	@ 8½
TOLEDO.
Wheat—No. 1 White	1 03	@ 1 04
No. 2 Red	1 02	@ 1 03
Corn—No. 2	41	@ 42
Oats—No. 2	34	@ 35
DETROIT.
Flour—Choice	5 00	@ 6 75
Wheat—No. 1 White	1 02	@ 1 04
Corn—No. 1	46	@ 49
Oats—Mixed	36	@ 37
Barley (per cental)	1 70	@ 2 25
Pork—Mess	13 75	@14 00
INDIANAPOLIS.
Wheat—No. 2 Red	1 02	@ 1 03
Corn	41	@ 43
Oats	32	@ 35
Pork—Clear	15 75	@16 00
EAST LIBERTY, PA.
Cattle—Best	5 00	@ 5 40
Fair	4 20	@ 4 90
Common	3 65	@ 4 00
Hogs	4 40	@ 4 85
Sheep	3 00	@ 5 50

VEGETINE.
The Barks, Roots and Herbs
FROM WHICH VEGETINE IS MADE
In Powder Form,
SOLD FOR
50 Cents a Package.

VEGETINE
For Kidney Complaint and Nervous Debility.

Islesboro, Me., Dec. 28, 1877.

Mr. Stevens:
Dear Sir—I had had a cough for eighteen years, when I commenced taking the Vegetine. I was very low; my system was debilitated by disease. I had the Kidney Complaint, and was very nervous—cough bad, lungs sore. When I had taken one bottle I found it was helping me; it has helped my cough, and it strengthens me. I am now able to do my work. Never have found anything like the Vegetine. I know it is everything it is recommended to be.
Mrs. A. J. PENDLETON.

Dr. W. ROSS Writes:
Scrofula, Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia, Rheumatism, Weakness.

H. R. Stevens, Boston:
I have been practicing medicine for twenty-five years, and as a remedy for Scrofula, Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia, Rheumatism, Weakness, and all diseases of the blood, I have never found its equal. I have sold Vegetine for seven years, and have never had one bottle returned. I would heartily recommend it to those in need of a blood purifier.
Dr. W. ROSS, Druggist,
Sept. 18, 1878. Wilton, Iowa.

Vegetine in Powder Form is sold by all druggists and general stores. If you cannot buy it of them, inclose fifty cents in postage stamps for one package, or one dollar for two packages, and I will send it by return mail.

VEGETINE
PREPARED BY
H. R. STEVENS, Boston, Mass.

HOSTETTER'S
CELEBRATED

STOMACH
BITTERS

There is no civilized nation in the Western Hemisphere in which the utility of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, as a tonic, corrective and anti-bilious medicine, is not known and appreciated. While it is a medicine for all seasons and all climates, it is especially suited to the complaints generated by the weather, being the purest and best vegetable stimulant in the world.

☞ For sale by Druggists and Dealers, to whom apply for Hostetter's Almanac for 1881.

70,000 SOLD YEARLY.
The growing popularity and usefulness of CABINET or PARLOR ORGANS is shown by the fact that Seventy Thousand are sold yearly in the United States. The best are the MASON & HAMLIN
ORGANS,
which have been awarded HIGHEST DISTINCTIONS FOR DEMONSTRATED SUPERIORITY at EVERY ONE of the GREAT WORLD'S Industrial Exhibitions for thirteen years, without one single exception.
NEW STYLES
are ready this season with important improvements. FOR LARGE CHURCHES, splendid organs, with great power and variety, at $570, $480, $390 and less prices; FOR SMALLER CHURCHES, SCHOOLS, &c., $84 to $200 and upwards. SUPERB DRAWING-ROOM STYLES at $200 to $510, and upwards; A GREAT VARIETY of SMALLER ORGANS of equal excellence, though less capacity, or in plain cases, at $51 to $200 and upwards. Also furnished FOR MONTHLY or QUARTERLY PAYMENTS, $5 and upwards.
These organs are certainly unrivaled in excellence, while the prices are not much higher than those of very inferior instruments.
Before purchasing any organ send for latest Illustrated Catalogue (32 pp. 4to), containing full descriptions and prices, including new styles, and much useful information for the purchaser of any organ, which will be sent free and postpaid. MASON & HAMLIN ORGAN CO., 154 Tremont Street, BOSTON; 46 East 14th Street, NEW YORK; 149 Wabash Avenue, CHICAGO.

HOP BITTERS.
(A Medicine, not a Drink.)
CONTAINS
HOPS, BUCHU, MANDRAKE, DANDELION,
AND THE PUREST AND BEST MEDICAL QUALITIES OF ALL OTHER BITTERS.
THEY CURE
All Diseases of the Stomach, Bowels, Blood, Liver, Kidneys, and Urinary Organs, Nervousness, Sleeplessness and especially Female Complaints.
$1000 IN GOLD.
Will be paid for a case they will not cure or help, or for anything impure or injurious found in them.
Ask your druggist for Hop Bitters and try them before you sleep. Take no other.
D I C is an absolute and irresistible cure for Drunkenness, use of opium, tobacco and narcotics.
SEND FOR CIRCULAR.
All above sold by druggists.
Hop Bitters Mfg. Co., Rochester, N. Y., & Toronto, Ont.

$72 a week. $12 a day at home easily made. Costly Outfit free. Address True & Co., Augusta, Me.

DANIEL F. BEATTY'S
ORGANS!
14 STOPS, SUB-BASS & OCT. COUPLER.
FOUR SET REEDS
ONLY $65
PIANOS $125 up.
Sent on Trial, Warranted. Catalogue Free. Address DANIEL F. BEATTY, Washington, New Jersey.

NATRONA BI-CARB. SODA
Is the best in the World. It is absolutely pure. It is the best for Medicinal Purposes. It is the best for Baking and all Family Uses. Sold by all Druggists and Grocers.
Penn'a Salt Manufac'ing Co., Phila.

$5.00 PER DAY Made Selling Our New
PLATFORM FAMILY SCALE.
Weighs accurately up to 25 lbs. Its handsome appearance sells it at sight. Retail price, $1.50. Other Family Scales weighing 25 lbs. cost $8.00. A Regular
BOOM FOR AGENTS.
Exclusive territory given free. Terms and rapid sales surprise old Agents.
DOMESTIC SCALE CO.,
No. 185 W. Fifth St., Cincinnati, O.

AUBURN COURIER.

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 23, 1880.

DAKOTA has a larger population than Rhode Island, New Hampshire, Delaware, or Florida, and wants to be a State.

GEN. ARTHUR, the new Vice President, will spend most of the winter in Washington studying parliamentary practice, with which he is unfamiliar, so as to qualify himself for presiding over the Senate.

THE price which England is to be called upon to pay out of the pockets of the English, Scotch and Welsh taxpayers, in order to settle forever the disquieting Irish land question, is, according to the Statist, the very modest amount of $1,500,000,000.

CENSUS returns from all but a small strip of Alaska show that we have bagged more Indians, if less ice, than was expected. Out of a population reaching 30,000, there are 300 white males and 4 females. Those of mixed Russian and Aleut blood number 1,500.

IN the United States Circuit Court at Omaha the Ponca tribe of Indians has obtained judgment against Red Cloud and the Sioux nation for possession of the islands in the Niobrara river and other lands contiguous, from which the Poncas have been unlawfully excluded by their red brethren.

COL. GORDON, of Egyptian fame, who has lately visited Ireland, says the condition of its people is worse than that of any other people in the world. He says that their condition is attributable to landlordism. He recommends the Government to buy out the landlords of the distressed districts, and resell to the tenants on easy payments.

THE intolerance shown in Ireland to obnoxious landlords is instanced by the way in which the family of Boycott, who has lately come into such notice, as well as himself, have been treated. His niece, even, who went into Ballinrobe and asked a jeweler to put a new crystal in her watch, was refused, with the remark that nothing would be done for her or for any one else in the family.

THE terms of the bargain recently made by the Dominion Government of Canada with the syndicate formed to build the Canadian Pacific railroad have been published. Put in tabular form, the statistics of the cost and the land-grant for the different sections are as follows:

		Acres.
Lake Superior	$12,000,000	12,000,000
Red river to Rocky mountains	6,400,000	5,000,000
British Columbia	6,600,000	8,000,000
Total	$25,000,000	25,000,000

The whole of the land is to be taken it is stated, from the fertile land in the Northwest.

MRS. WATSON, during the lifetime of her husband, the astronomer, was his devoted and enthusiastic assistant in all his scientific studies and researches. She accompanied him to China, and was there of great help to him in his work. That his will should have apparently slighted her has been the cause of unpleasant comments in many journals. It is now explained that Mrs. Watson has a considerable property of her own, and that, being childless, she and her husband had long ago determined to bequeath their worldly goods to scientific objects.

A SAD and dramatic eviction took place in County Wicklow. An old man named Arthur Kavanagh, in feeble health, who had a cabin on the property of Earl Fitz William, had fallen behind in his rent. A decree of ejectment was obtained by the Earl, and his gamekeeper, with two bailiffs, went to execute the decree. They had to carry Kavanagh out of the house, and, as he was crossing the threshold of his cabin, the poor old man gave one gasp and died in the gamekeeper's arms. His body was laid by the roadside. Over it for hours sat his only mourner—a granddaughter. Kavanagh was formerly in a good position. He had been unable to work for two years, and was bedridden for some time.

THE following table contained in the annual report of the Commissioner of Agriculture shows the value of the most important of our agricultural products during the last two years, and the value of exportations thereof for the same period:

Breadstuffs, animals, animal matter, etc., for 1879	$1,919,934,397
For 1880 (estimated)	2,000,000,000
Value of agricultural exports for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1879	146,641,233
For 1880	166,400,420
Breadstuffs, etc., for 1879	210,391,066
For 1880	288,0 0,201
Cotton, etc., for 1879	178,158,200
For 1880	221,517,373
Wool, etc., for 1879	20,122,907
For 1880	22,000,000
Miscellaneous, 1879	33,843,026
For 1880	49,000,000
Total for 1879	$ 604,156,492
Total for 1880	746,967,982
Total exports of all kinds for 1879	717,093,777
For 1880	823,946,353

"POOR'S MANUAL" states the net earnings of all the railroads in the country last year to have been $319,916,274. So far as reported this year it appears that the percentage of increased earnings on the trunk lines is smaller than that on the other lines; yet the former will divide among their shareholders some $55,000,000 more than the year previous, which is about 2¼ per cent. additional on the total railroad capital existing in the country at the close of the year. A steady increase of earnings continues to be reported, and the working capacity of the railroads is put to its utmost service. We have had no such year of railroad activity before as we have had this year. The reasons for it are not far to seek. The crops have been unprecedentedly large; immigration has steadily poured in upon us at a rate that is unparalleled; our manufactures have awakened from their long slumber of years, and industry in all its branches has taken on an activity that is truly surprising.

IF the electoral vote had been at all close, there would have been three chances for a row. First, the defeat of a California elector, which would have been set down to Republican partisan zeal; next, the defeat of an Indiana elector, which the Democratic Canvassing Board would certainly have accomplished if the vote would have made a difference; and thirdly, the stupid failure of the Georgia Electoral College to vote on the day appointed. The occurrence of these blunders, likely to be repeated every four years under our complicated system, should teach Congress the necessity of amending the method of electing the President, so that escape from revolution quadrennially may not be considered a signal mark of divine mercy.

MACEDONIA is said to be in a terrible condition. Bands of brigands, strong in numbers and well armed, are infesting almost all parts of the country, taking advantage of the weakness of the authorities, and enriching themselves by the indiscriminate plunder of the inhabitants without distinction of race or creed. Beys and other high dignitaries are being seized, and there are even cases in which all the members of Provincial Councils have been carried off in a body and sent into the mountains. One of the bands demands the sum of £5,000 sterling as ransom for the liberation of two Turkish dignitaries and three Christians who hold the rank of Councillors. Communication is everywhere interrupted. In Epirus incredible atrocities are reported to have been perpetrated. In one case two women are said to have been thrust alive into an oven. The inhabitants are powerless to defend themselves, and are looking for pity and protection from the West.

IN "Some Recollections of Merchants of New York," the Dry Goods Bulletin mentions a curious circumstance connected with lotteries. J. A. Moore, of Hinton & Moore, had a brother George in the lottery business, then legitimate in New York. George, as the agent, had a certain number of tickets placed in his hands. Those unsold had to be returned by a certain time or paid for. One evening he found that he had accidentally omitted to return to Virginia a $20 ticket. He was very hard up, and begged his sister-in-law (his brother being at the time rich) to take it. She rather reluctantly did so, and did not say a word to her husband. The ticket won $100,000. Not long afterward J. A. Moore failed. His creditors sued him for the lottery money, asserting that it really was his. After considerable litigation Chancellor McCoun decided that the money unquestionably belonged to Mrs. Moore, and that payment—hitherto restrained by injunction—must be therefore made to her.

Tom Ochiltree and Jem Mace.

It was some seven or eight years ago, just after the Coburn-Mace fiasco, and the latter was still in the city. As he was leaning against the bar a number of gentlemen and Tom Ochiltree were discussing politics and prize fights in another part of the room. Mace's wonderful expertness in the use of his hands came up, and some one offered to bet a basket of champagne that no man, unless a professional, could get in a blow on Mace's face. Ochiltree took the bet, and walked deliberately over to Mace and slapped his jaws. The astonished prize fighter looked at Tom for a moment and then lit out from the shoulder. A mass of red hair, a corpulent body, legs and boots all mingled in indescribable confusion, flew through the door and rolled out over the brick banquette into the street. While sympathetic bell boys and laughing friends were straightening Tom out and patching his fragments together, some of the gentlemen explained to Mace the circumstances of the bet.

"Oh! it was that way, was it? If I'd known it I wouldn't 'ave cared," said he, "an' I'm bloody glad now I didn't 'it 'im 'arder."

Tom thought it was a quite sufficiently "ard 'it." If the blow had struck him anywhere else but on the cheek it would have killed him.—Washington Capital.

A Wedding Present.

It was the day of the signing of the marriage contract. A friend of the family says to the father of the young lady:

"I have a surprise for your daughter."

"You are very kind."

"I shall put a bottle of oil of vitrol among the wedding presents."

"Horrors!"

"The husband will understand—and he will never dare deceive her."

IT is said that the Editor's Drawer, in Harper's Magazine, is made up by a woman. So are a great many editors' drawers.—Mt. Vernon (O.) Banner.

FARM NOTES.

PIGS that have been raised on milk, grass, clover, tubers, and roots, till they weigh 150 or 200 pounds, are generally healthy. They are then in good condition to fatten.

PLASTER scattered over the floors of the chicken house is a powerful absorbent, preventing the smell which arises from the droppings.

THERE are one hundred and fifty named and described varieties of wheat, and yet one-half the people who grow the grain don't know the difference—such is the lack of training in the natural history of plants.

MILKING.—The best time for this is either before or after feeding. Never milk while the cow is eating. When a cow has once acquired the habit of feeding at milking time she will often refuse to let down her milk unless food is before her.

WHEAT IN THE WEST.—The continuous wheat growing in the West, followed as it is by burning the straw, is certain, sooner or later, to result in exhaustion of the soil. A crop of Indian corn, when wheat shows signs of flagging, is generally sufficient to restore the fertility.

THE New England Farmer remarks that cider made late in the season and stored in a cold place, will keep sweet because active fermentation is prevented. If it is rich and sweet when it comes from the press, and care is exercised in making it from good, sound apples, it will not become sour if kept in a moderately cool cellar, in a tight cask or in bottles.

A NERVOUS, excitable steer is not as profitable to feed as a lymphatic one with a broad, deep, chest, for this last is seldom disturbed by anything—he feeds well, sleeps well, and fats well. It is just thirty years since the first Jerseys were brought to this country. They are making a great change in our dairy interests and the good results will become more apparent in the ensuing year.

THE CABBAGE WORM.—To save his cabbages, and as an experiment, Mr. Howard tells the Fruit Record that he mixed four quarts of air-slacked lime, one quart of fine salt, and a quarter of a pound each of red and black pepper. When the dew was on he applied this mixture by means of a large-sized tin pepper-box to 400 cabbages, that were doubtless as wormy a lot as could be found. He gave them but one dose, but it did its work so effectually that there has been no further trouble on account of these destructive pests.

CORN STUBBLE.—Fields that have been cleared in time should be plowed in readiness for early sowing of oats in spring. If roots are to follow the corn the stubble may be plowed at once and sown with rye. Three or four bushels should be sown to the acre. This rye will furnish a heavy crop of green fodder next May or an excellent early pasture in the spring, or may be plowed under as a green manuring. In either case the expense of the seed, which is the only outlay, will be many times repaid in the increase of the following crop.

SHEEP IN WINTER.—Sheep need freedom of action and variety of food more than any of our domestic animals. In winter they require shelter only against heavy rains and melting snows, as even a cold storm is better than a heated barn, at least for Cotswolds. A rough shed, facing the south and capable of being closed during the rain and snow storms, is quite sufficient. They should then be kept in small flocks, have spacious yards to roam in, and at all times, except during the storms, fed in racks out of doors in ordinary weather. Where cold storms are rare, and the ground is free from heavy snow, artificial shelter is hardly necessary, for Cotswolds at any rate.

HOW TO FEED.—The trouble with most persons who keep horses, no matter whether on a farm for farm work or for driving purposes, is they feed too much hay; and to this can be attributed the general sluggishness often manifested by the horses until they have been working a couple of hours, while their wind is also much impaired. Night is the only time when hay should be fed, especially to animals used for quick work; even the slow plow team should have but little hay at the morning and noon feeds, but give them a generous supply at the evening meal. By doing this your horses will keep in better spirits and condition, and free from any tendency to "pot belly," which horsemen so much dislike to see.

REMEDY FOR BLIGHT.—Josiah Hoopes, Weschester, Pa., a veteran author, fruit grower and experimenter, in the American Garden, says: "No sure remedy can be suggested to prevent the blight in the pear nor the yellows in the peach, but the following are not injurious and are certainly beneficial: Wash the bodies of the trees as well as the larger branches with ordinary thin whitewash or soap suds. Top-dress the soil beneath with weak lime, good rich compost, unbleached wood ashes, &c., any refuse decaying vegetable matter, in fact, that will furnish food for your trees. A slight dressing of salt used sparingly also answers an excellent purpose, and some cultivators recommend ground bones and others iron filings. A heavy mulching with muck is beneficial to all young trees.

USES FOR SALT.—A writer in the Rural New Yorker says that the salt question is always on the carpet, and while it is very certain that salt is not a manure it is equally certain that its application is a decided benefit. The retardation and often complete ruin of crops by insect depredation is well known, but it is not at all appreciated to its full extent. Salt can act but in three ways beneficially. It attracts moisture and hence is useful in dry seasons; it drives away insects, and therefore, is useful in all seasons, and when thoroughly dissolved by heavy rains it acts by assisting inert or insoluble material to become fit for plant food. The first mode is a slight gain, not enough, though, to pay for the salt; the second is very valuable, paying for the salt and the trouble of application from ten to one hundred times over, according to the prevalence and destructiveness of the insects; the third mode is of but little value because insolubles are generally proof against its feeble action. If we sum up the gain from the three modes of action we perceive such a very decided gain that one fair trial is sufficient to convince the most sceptical. The only danger is an excess, but as five bushels per acre can do no harm the danger is not likely ever to be alarming, as few farmers can afford to waste salt anywhere.

HOUSEKEEPERS' HELPS.

WAFFLES.—One pint milk, one pound flour, four eggs, one cupful yeast, quarter pound butter. Let them rise three or four hours before baking.

CUCUMBER CATSUP.—Three full-grown green cucumbers, peeled and grated; one onion, chopped fine; one teaspoonful of ground black pepper, one tablespoonful of salt and a pint of vinegar. Bottle and seal cold without cooking.

PUFF PUDDING.—Four eggs, yolks and whites beaten separately. To the yolks add three cups of sweet milk, a tablespoonful of melted butter and three cups of sifted flour. Stir in the whites the last thing. Bake in buttered cups—I use 10 teacups. Eat hot, with sauce.

BREAD GRIDDLE-CAKES.—Take a small bowl of bread and soak it over night in milk. In the morning take one quart of milk, three eggs and a bit of salt, beaten up together with half cupful flour and one and a-half teaspoonfuls baking powder. It wants to be a thick and a very light batter, and then it is delicious.

LEMON PUDDING.—Grate the rind of two lemons, mix with the yolks of four eggs, one pint of fine bread crumbs, one quart of milk, half cup of sugar, pinch of salt; bake twenty minutes; beat to a froth the whites of four eggs, juice of two lemons, half cup of sugar; spread over top of pudding and bake five minutes.

TURKISH PILAF.—To one gill of rice add three gills of broth and some salt; let it boil gently until the rice has absorbed all the broth, then brown about a quarter of a pint of butter in a saucepan, pour it over the rice, cover up and leave it stand before the fire for a few minutes. It takes about an hour to cook, must never be stirred, and when dished up must only be touched lightly with a fork. If properly done, each grain of rice should be soft and perfectly whole. A little tomato may be added, if liked.

BEEFSTEAK CAKE.—One and one-half cup of sugar, one cup of butter, one cup of sweet milk, three eggs, two teaspoonfuls of cream-of-tartar, one teaspoonful of soda, three and one-fourth cups of flour. Divide equally. To one-half add one-half cup of chopped raisins, cinnamon and cloves to taste. This makes four round tins. Put together in alternate layers of dark and light, with jelly between each layer, or an icing made of the whites of two eggs beaten to a stiff froth, and mixed with four tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar. Put this between the layers while they are hot.

BUTTERMILK BREAD.—Two quarts of buttermilk, come to a boil, poured over two quarts of flour, stirring it rapidly, or it will be lumpy; then add cold water until it is thin enough (it should be as thin as it could be stirred); if it is not cool enough for the yeast by this time, set the pail in which it is in the water pail, stirring it all the while, which soon cools it. Then stir in the yeast, which is already soaked, and empty it all in the bread pan, where the flour is already warmed, with a hole in the middle. Then cover it tight, and set it where it will keep warm all night

Rare Elephants.

There are now on exhibition in New York two peculiar elephants brought from the mountains of the Malay Peninsula, about 800 miles from Singapore. They are remarkable for their small size, being respectively twenty-eight and thirty-six inches tall; and for being covered with a thick coat of bristly hair or wool. They are supposed to be from 5 to 7 years old. In size they resemble the extinct elephants of Malta, and in covering those of Siberia. Their wooly coat is attributed to the circumstance that they live high upon the mountains where the climate is cold. The species appear to be all but unknown to naturalists, this pair being the first that have survived the passage through the heated low country to the coast and the subsequent journey by sea. They are described as playful and harmless, and they keep their little trunks stretched out to strangers to be petted. They love to be scratched on the under side of the trunk close to the mouth, and they hold their trunks curled back over their heads as long as any one scratches them. Like elephants of large growth, they keep up a swaying motion, either sideways or forward and backward. When a visitor lets one of the little fellows take his hand he delicately curls his proboscis around it and carries it gently to his mouth. Then he trumpets his satisfaction.

How They Build Sewers in Paris.

"I watched them building sewers, near the Seine, in Paris," said a Chicago capitalist to a local reporter. "It was splendid work. But let me tell you it costs money. The sewer I saw constructed cost $50 per lineal foot."

"What was the process?"

"In the first place, the trench was twenty feet deep and eight or ten feet wide. The sewers are made five feet in diameter. When the trench is dug they put in a wooden pattern—something like if you were to go to work and start with a bunghole and build a barrel around it. Around this wooden pattern they pack stones and fill in with cement. Nothing more. Anybody can do this. They employ the commonest kind of unskilled labor. The stone that is used is itself a kind of cement, and when packed with cement it makes a solid rock foundation. When completed the wooden pattern is taken out, and what is left is a five-foot hole through a solid rock, that will outlast time itself."

French Beggars.

Mendicancy is forbidden in Paris and the neighboring villages. But under various pretenses it seems to be more prevalent than it has been known for a long time. Some of the persons who beg in Paris have known better days, and are dainty in their language. A gentleman said to an outstretched palm:

"I have not a sou about me."

"Sir," exclaimed the worthy mendicant with a sneer, "I have not specified the species of coin."

A DOG in the Ninth Ward mistook a skunk for a cat, and gave chase. The skunk stood at bay and gave the dog a practical lecture upon manners. The dog was so mortified at his mistake that he crawled under a barn floor and died. —Kingston Freeman.

INDIANA NEWS.

IT cost about $700 to liquidate the expenses of the Indiana Electoral College.

HOMER KELLY, of Sullivan, was caught by a falling window and almost choked to death.

THE public schools of Crawfordsville were closed the other day on account of the prevalence of scarlet fever.

THE body of a dead man, found near a haystack two miles from Bruceville, Knox county, was partially eaten by hogs.

OUT of 1,272 school corporations in the State, Supt. Smart reports over 1,000 of them entirely without indebtedness.

DURING the last six weeks fourteen deaths have occurred in Dublin, Wayne county, mostly from diphtheria and scarlet fever.

SEVERAL saloon men at New Albany are to be prosecuted for selling liquor to persons to whom they had been forbidden to sell.

THE new starch-works at Franklin are almost ready for beginning operations. The works will furnish employment to about fifty hands.

GOV. JAMES D. WILLIAMS, it is said, left an estate of 4,000 acres of land and $25,000 in money. There is a will but it has not been probated.

IT is estimated that the expenses of the funeral of the late Gov. Williams, which will be borne by the State, will total up something over $1,000.

GRANDMOTHER HANNAH GWYNN, relict of Charles Wwynn, a soldier of the War of 1812, aged 91 years, died near Cambridge City, the other night. She was sick but a short time.

GOV. GRAY issued his first pardon, the other day, to a young man named Clark, from the Governor's own county, Randolph, sentenced to one year's imprisonment for the theft of a $6 pistol.

FRANCIS G. MORGAN, an old and highly-esteemed citizen of Randolph county, died at his home in Spartansburg, of a cancerous affection, a short time ago. Mr. Morgan was formerly Commissioner of the county, and was 52 years old.

THE last Legislature of Indiana neglecting to vote an appropriation for the expense necessarily attending the meeting of the Legislature in January next, the Attorney General of the State has been asked for his opinion if there is any way out of the dilemma.

MR. THOMAS LYONS, an old and prominent citizen, died last week, at his residence, near Covington. Mr. Lyons was Sheriff of Fountain county from 1858 to 1862. In 1866 he was Republican candidate for County Treasurer, and in 1876 he ran on the same ticket for Recorder.

GEN. JOHN SCOTT, a resident of Vigo county for the past fifty-five years, died recently. He was born in New York in 1793, and was pensioned for service rendered at the battle of Sackett's Harbor in the War of 1812. Gen. Scott came to this State in 1826. He was 88 years old at the time of his death.

MARTHA LOCKHART, a young woman who worked in the family of John McNelly at Seymour, accidentally set fire to her clothing, and was so severely burned that she died. She lighted a fire and threw a burning paper on the floor, and while in the act of stamping out the flames set her clothing on fire.

PROF. LEWIS PROUGH, principal of Vincennes University, died last week, of erysipelas. Prof. Prough took charge of the university in December, 1872. He was born in Summerfield, Ohio, March 5, 1840; graduated at Antioch College in 1861, with high honors. As an educator he had few equals in the State.

WILLIE EDWARDS, aged 12 years, died a few days since of lockjaw, in the New Albany poor-house. Willie had no father or mother, and, like Topsy, he just grew up and happened in at the county poor-house, where he has boarded for three years past. Not long since he was sent out on a bleak day to husk corn, and was found nearly frozen to death.

THE citizens of Bluffton have been greatly excited by the decision of the Supreme Court, annulling and setting aside the amended charter of Bluffton passed by the Legislature some eight years ago, greatly extending and increasing their powers and jurisdiction. The decision is far-reaching, and will also affect many other towns and cities. The Supreme Court take the position that the Legislature has no power to grant special power and extend the jurisdiction of incorporated towns and cities by special enactment. The sum involved in this decision will amount to about $20,000 taxes to be returned to property-owners illegally collected since 1872.

AN Indiana newspaper correspondent has been shown a rare relic, in the shape of an Indian tomahawk and hatchet combined. It was near the shape of a plasterer's lath-hatchet, with the bowl of the pipe in the "pole," and the handle serving as the pipe-stem. The body of the instrument is brass, the sharp edge steel, the latter being brazed into the other metal in a very artistic style. The instrument was found recently by a little girl, named Faulkner, in Owen county, Ky. The little girl and some other children were digging in a small mound when they found the relic. They also found a human bone, which frightened them so that they quit digging. On one side of the tomahawk the figures "1673" are visible, they having been scratched in the brass by a sharp-pointed instrument. It is supposed to have been traded by the Spaniards to the Indians.

DR. BUTTS' DISPENSARY

Established 1847 at 12 N. 8th Street, ST. LOUIS, MO.

INDISCRETION—EXPOSURE

YOUNG MEN

PATIENTS TREATED

DR. BUTTS, 12 North 8th St., St. Louis, Mo.

Children

CRY

FOR

Pitcher's

Castoria.

Mothers like, and Physicians recommend it.

IT IS NOT NARCOTIC.

CENTAUR LINIMENTS; the World's great Pain-Relieving remedies. They heal, soothe and cure Burns, Wounds, Weak Back and Rheumatism upon Man, and Sprains, Galls, and Lameness upon Beasts. Cheap, quick and reliable.

MISHLER'S HERB BITTERS

A Compound Tincture of the most valuable remedies known to the medical profession, prepared upon strictly pharmaceutical principles.

NOT A BEVERAGE

But an old reliable Household Remedy, thoroughly adapted to assist nature.

Highly commended as a General Tonic and Appetizer. Sold by Druggists everywhere.

THE MESSENGER OF HEALTH

A large sized paper descriptive of disease, its origin and cure, will be mailed free to any address on application to

THE MISHLER HERB BITTERS CO.

Lancaster, Pa.

We strongly recommend to mothers Prof. Parker's Pleasant Worm Syrup. It never fails, is easy to take, and no after-physic is required. Price, 25 cents.

THE SYMPTOMS

of Liver Complaint are a bitter or bad taste in the mouth; Pain in the Back, Sides or Joints, often mistaken for Rheumatism; Sour Stomach, Loss of Appetite, Bowels alternately costive and lax; Headache, Loss of Memory, with a painful sensation of having failed to do something which ought to have been done; Debility, Low Spirits, a thick yellow appearance of the Skin and Eyes, a dry Cough often mistaken for Consumption.

Sometimes many of these symptoms attend the disease, at others very few; but the LIVER, the largest organ in the body, is generally the seat of the disease, and, if not regulated in time, great suffering, wretchedness and DEATH will ensue.

AS AN UNFAILING SPECIFIC

For DYSPEPSIA, CONSTIPATION, Jaundice, Bilious Attacks, SICK HEADACHE, Colic, Depression of Spirits, SOUR STOMACH, Heart Burn, etc., etc.,

Take Simmons' Liver Regulator.

This justly-celebrated medicine Regulates the Liver, promotes digestion and fortifies the system against malaria.

CAUTION.

See that you get the Genuine, in clean, white wrapper, with large red "Z." Prepared only by

J. H. ZEILIN & CO.

Sold by All Druggists.

AGENTS WANTED for the Best and Fastest Selling Pictorial Books and Bibles. Prices reduced 33 per ct. National Publish'g Co., St. Louis, Mo.

PILES fully described with scientific mode of cure. Prof. Harris' illustrated pamphlet sent free on application. HARRIS REMEDY CO., Mfg Chemists, 8th & Market Sts., St. Louis, Mo.

Book Million

THE PRIVATE MEDICAL ADVISER

FOR ONE DOLLAR

DR. BUTTS' DISPENSARY

DR. BUTTS, 12 North 8th St., St. Louis, Mo.

Seminal Pastille

HARRIS REMEDY CO. MF'G CHEMISTS, Market and 8th Streets, ST. LOUIS, MO.

Unsolicited testimony to the Efficacy of Prof. Harris' Seminal Pastille, taken from Letters received from Patrons:

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, IND., DECEMBER 23, 1880.

SALUTATORY.

On assuming control of the COURIER, it would seem proper to address a few words to its patrons. In the first place, then, let us say, we are not unmindful of the difficulties and responsibilities of the position. Still, we come to you, not as strangers, but as acquaintances and friends. With nearly every subscriber on the books, one or the other of the publishers can claim an acquaintance of greater or less duration. We hope that the pleasure of this renewed acquaintance will be mutual and lasting; and, while we have no promises to make, it is our earnest wish that the COURIER may continue to deserve your patronage, and its publishers be found worthy your respect. This paper will continue to advocate, heretofore, the principles of the democratic party. We believe these principles to be right and just to all men, and that we should at all times, and under all circumstances, be ready to give our reasons for the faith that is in us.

To the business men of the county, we would say, that it is our wish to assist and encourage you in your business enterprises, and to receive assistance and encouragement in return.

To the newspaper fraternity, we can only say, we hope our relations with you may always be pleasant, and promise that the courtesies usually extended to the craft shall be appreciated. Respectfully,

JAMES A. BARNS,
D. Y. HUSSELMAN.

JOHN KELLY'S fall, says the Courier-Journal, will cause more satisfaction to all parties in this country than could be evoked by any event of a personal description; and yet there have been worse men than John Kelly. It nowhere appears that he is a thief. In private life he clean and decent. But, like poor old George the Third, of England, he an honest, self-willed bigot, bent on having his own way and using ill means to get it. A man of ordinary capacity, he owed his rise to his force of character solely. Once in power, he resolved to be an autocrat, and surrounded himself with slaves and tools of the smaller caliber. He became as inaccessible as a nabob. Meanwhile, his schemes were ambitious and his minions odious. Neither so able nor so bad as Tweed, he still stuck to Tweed's system. Made desperate, he resolved to rule or ruin, and, carrying out this wicked purpose, he produced a state of affairs which cost his party the loss of New York, and eventually the loss of the presidency. He owes his fall, however, not directly to retributive justice; for it has come about partly through the republicans, who are not interested in avenging the internecine democratic quarrels. The time for democrats to punish John Kelly was at Cincinnati. Instead of doing this, the national convention which assembled there gave him an ovation. His triumph was short-lived. His overthrow is complete and final. It disposes of a very obstructive and obstreperous person, puts a most offensive boss out of the way, and lays an iniquitous system low. What shall succeed this, or whether the public interest involved may not, as far as mere money administration goes, jump from the frying-pan into the fire, remains to be seen. In a general way it may be said that few things could be worse than John Kelly and his system. Yet Conkling and his system would be worse, and, if Kelly's fall is by any chance to play into Conkling's hands, as Kelly's reign has done, the result will be one to produce little to speak of, except a transfer of power from one bad lot to another.

IT is quite interesting to note how frequently the democratic party has been killed since 1797. The New Jersey democrat says:

It was killed when John Adams beat Jefferson in 1797.

It was killed in 1828 when Andrew Jackson was defeated by the coalition between the friends of John Quincy Adams and Henry Clay.

It was killed in 1840 by the "Hard Cider Campaign" of General Harrison.

It was killed by the election of Abraham Lincoln in 1860.

It was killed by the re-election of Lincoln in 1864.

It was killed by the election of Grant in 1868.

It was killed very dead by the re-election of Grant in 1872.

It was killed by the "counting out" process in 1876.

It was killed by the "counting in" process in 1880.

It may be killed again, but the time will come, and at no distant day, when the democratic party will be counted in permanently. The will of the people will not always be disregarded.

JAY GOULD, just now, is a "bigger man than old Grant." He seems to be ubiquitous. The St. Louis Globe-Democrat, of Thursday, says: "Jay Gould continues his purchasing designs upon the state of Missouri. He yesterday bought the Jefferson City, Lebanon and Southwestern road, the ultimate destination of which is to make another connection with the Missouri, Kansas & Texas. Work is to be pushed on this new road." St. Louis claims that Gould is a St. Louis man, and contradictory opinions are entertained as to the effect of his movements and influence. But it does not appear to be settled that this king of kings has let go his hold upon New York. A Washington correspondent of the New York Evening Post, writes: "I am told, and on good authority, that Jay Gould is planning to get control of the New York Associated Press. He owns the express, the World and the Tribune, and is negotiating for either the Journal of Commerce or the Commercial Bulletin. He has recently bought out Marshall O. Robert's thirty-five shares in the Sun, at $4,500. There are 275 shares, I believe, in all, the par value being $1,000 each. The control of four franchises gives him control of the Associated Press. I give this to you just as it comes to me, and do not guarantee its entire accuracy. Jay Gould is the Napoleon of trade. Is there any way of getting him to St. Helena?" This man Gould has forced the Western Union Telegraph Company to reduce its rates from 15 to 40 per cent., thereby contributing immensely to the commercial interests of the country. In possession of the railroads, the newspapers and the telegraph wires, it is difficult to estimate the influence of this wonderful man upon public affairs. He has great wealth, great energy, great powers of combination, but so far, he does not appear to be dangerous. St. Louis is taking to him kindly, and it is quite likely that at an early day he will own a controling interest in the press of the "Future Great"—at any rate, it is worth while for the public to keep its eye on Jay Gould

Obituary.

Died, December 5, 1880, at the residence of her son, John Henderson, in Jackson township, DeKalb county, Indiana, Mrs. Letty Henderson, in the seventy-sixth year of her age. Mrs. Henderson was born in Westmoreland county, Pennsylvania, May 9, 1805. When ten years of age she moved with her parents to Harrison county, Ohio, thence, a few years later, to Richland county, Ohio. In her eighteenth year she was married to Samuel Henderson, and fourteen years after moved to DeKalb county, Indiana, where she remained until the day of her death. When but a child she united with the Methodist church. Later in life she joined the Lutheran church, thus changing her denomination, but never her earnest, gentle, christian life. Mrs. Henderson was the mother of fourteen children, nine of whom are living. It had been her prayer that she might live as long as her children needed her care and protection; that prayer was granted, and for many years she has been waiting for the Master's call, ready and willing to go whenever it should please Him to send His messenger for her. Seldom do you find an aged person so universal a favorite with both old and young as was Mother Henderson. The sweetness of her disposition made her loved by all who knew her, while the quiet grace and beauty of her manner instinctively attracted strangers. She was always a most welcome visitor at the homes of her children, where her coming was hailed with delight, by both children and grand children, and her departure with sorrow and regret. The earlier part of her life had many hardships, but her labor was cheerfully performed, and her trials borne with christian fortitude. She was one of those of whom it may be truly said: "Her last days were her best days." They were days of comfort, rest and peace, the well-earned reward of an hitherto laborious life. She was ill only a few days, and her mental faculties, which were extraordinary, remained unimpaired until the beginning of her last illness. Her death was quiet and peaceful, a beautiful close to a beautiful life, and the look of peace and rest on her face, whose beauty, age and death seemed only to have enhanced, made the sorrow of her stricken children and grand-children, as they looked upon her in the coffin, seem a selfish one. They could but feel that the loss was only their own—the gain all her's. That while they had lost a dearly-loved and honored mother and grandmother, she had found the rest and perfect happiness which has been prepared for the true and faithful servants of the Lord Jesus.

332 Trains Daily.

[The Railway Age.]

No less than 332 regular passenger trains arrive at, and depart from, Chicago every twenty-four hours, as we find by counting up from the time-tables. This gives an average of nearly fifteen every hour, day and night, but as between midnight and 6 o'clock a. m., passenger trains are particularly suspended, the average for the remaining eighteen hours would be nearly twenty trains per hour, or almost one every three minutes. This, of course, does not include the numerous freight trains and the innumerable movements of switch engines from yard to yard, and from road to road.

Highly Complimentary.

Theron P. Keator, of the Wabash Plain Dealer, is fast gaining an enviable reputation as a lecturer. The press is loud in its praise of his lecture, "My Trip Around the World," and everywhere it has been delivered the people have been more than satisfied. Now that Auburn is to have a course of lectures, we hope the gentlemen having the matter in charge will make an effort to have Mr. Keator deliver his lecture here. The following are a few of the many notices by the press of the lecture:

Middlebury Record: "The hall last Friday evening was well filled with an intelligent and appreciative audience to listen to Mr. Theron P. Keator's lecture entitled "My Trip Around the World." The lecture was delivered in an interesting style, and the audience was soon wrapped up in the subject. It was pronounced by all to be the best and most interesting lecture the association has given the people, and this is saying much, for we have had eminent lecturers here. At the close of the lecture, a simultaneous burst of applause greeted the speaker from every one in the hall, which surely was abundant proof that the audience was greatly satisfied. The next day you could hear nothing but praises of it from all who heard it, and it was unanimously voted that, should the association be successful in reoganizing, Mr. Keator should be engaged for another night. If lecture committees in other towns want a first-class lecturer and one that will be entertaining as well as educating, we advise them to employ Mr. Keator. Our people are loud in his praise, and were more than satisfied with the lecture.

Goshen Democrat: We received a call last Saturday from Mr. T. P. Keaton of the Wabash Plain Dealer, and Rev. Mr. Blakemore, of Middlebury. Mr. Keater delivered his popular lecture entitled "Around the World," at Middlebury on Friday evening, and will deliver it at Elkhart on the 4th of Jan. at which time, we hope our people will engage him to come to Goshen. It is positively the most entertaing lecture we have heard for years, and Mr. Keator tells it well.

Warsaw Indianian: Mr. Theron P. Keator of the Wabash Plain Dealer, passed through this place this morning, (Wednesday), on his way to Pierceton, where he lectures to night, "Around the World," a lecture replete with information, and interesting from the first to the closing word.

Pierceton Correspondence Warsaw Republican: The lecture "Around the World" by Mr. Keator, of the Wabash Plain Dealer, was well attended, and everbody was delighted with the trip. The lecture is rendered chiefly interesting on account of its commendable simplicity, and the fact that Mr. Keator was permitted to penetrate the Japanese and Chinese Empire farther than most travelers are privileged to do. Mr. Keator evidently made the most of this advantage, and can take an audience around the world in two hours without weariness or sea-sickness. We have heard this delightful lecturer twice and want to hear him twice more.

Pierceton Independent: The lecture "Around the World," by Mr. Keator, on Wednesday evening last, was pronounced by all to be the finest thing ever delivered in this place. After listening for two hours, a number of ladies and gentleman remarked that they could have listened to it all night, and that they would not have missed it for four times the cost of admission. Everybody is speaking of it in the highest terms.

TAX LIST FOR 1880.

To the Tax-Payers of DeKalb County:

In compliance with the laws of the state of Indiana, I, L. J. MILLER, treasurer of said county, hereby notify the tax-payers thereof that the rates of taxation for the year A. D. 1880, are correctly stated in the following table, showing the am't of tax in cts. levied upon each one hundred dollars valuation and on each poll, in the several townships and incorporated villages in said county, as the same appears on the tax duplicate of DeKalb county, for said year:

TOWNSHIPS AND TOWNS.	STATE HOUSE TAX.	STATE TAX.	SCHOOL TAX.	COUNTY TAX.	TOWNSHIP TAX.	ROAD TAX.	COM. SCHOOL TAX.	SPC'L SCHOOL TAX.	ADDITIONAL SPC'L SCHOOL TAX.	INT. ON BONDS.	CORPORATION TAX.	TOTAL TAX.
Buter Township	2	12	16	60	15	20	5			10		160
Poll		50	50									100
Jackson Township	2	12	16	60	10	15	5	25		10		155
Poll		50	50					50				150
Concord Township	2	12	16	60	5	20	10	35				170
Poll		50	50					100				200
Newville Township	2	12	16	60	15	15		20		10		150
Poll		50	50									100
Stafford Township	2	12	16	60	5	10	5	10		10		130
Poll		50	50									100
Wilmington Township	2	12	16	60	10	15	5	10		10		140
Poll		50	50									100
Union Township	2	12	16	60		20		5		0		125
Poll		50	50					50				150
Richland Township	2	12	16	60	5	15	5	30		10		155
Poll		50	50									00
Fairfield Township	2	12	16	60	10	15	5	25		10		175
Poll		50	50					25				5
Smithfield Township	2	12	16	60	10	10	5	15		10		140
Poll		50	50					50				150
Franklin Township	2	12	16	60	15	15	5			10		135
Poll		50	50									100
Troy Township	2	12	16	60	15	15	5	35		0		170
Poll		50	50									100
Keyser Township	2	12	16	60	5	15	5	30		10		155
Poll		50	50					50				150
Auburn Town	2	12	16	60		20	25	15	50	10		210
Poll		50	50				25	25	25			175
Waterloo Town	2	12	16	60		2	10	40		0		170
Poll		50	50					100				200
Butler Town	2	12	16	60	10	15		30	50	10		205
Poll		50	50						25			125
Garrett Town	2	12	16	60	5	15	25	50	50	10	50	295
Poll		50	50				25	100	100		25	350

Also $1 for one dog, $2 for each female dog, and $2 for each additional dog, for the collection of which I may be found at the county treasurer's office, in the town of Auburn, on and after December 15, 1880.

Taxes may be paid in full or in two installments. The first installment, including all road taxes, can be paid on or before the third Monday in April, 1881; the second installment, on or before the first Monday in November, 1881. If the first installment is not paid when due, both installments become delinquent, ten per cent. will be added, and I shall at once proceed, as the law requires, to collect the same, together with the costs that may accrue by distress and sale of personal property.

Road receipts will not be received after the third Monday in April, only on delinquent taxes. No road receipts will be received on the November installment.

Examine your receipts before leaving the office, and see that all your property is included.

No county order will be paid to any person owing delinquent taxes.

The annual sale of lands and lots for delinquent taxes will occur on the second Monday in February, 1881.

Come early and avoid the rush of the last few days.

The books will positively be closed on the evening of the third Monday in April, and no one will be allowed to pay after that date without penalty.

Parties sending by others, or by letter, to pay tax, should not fail to send description of their lands and lots.

No receipt will be made out hereafter, for any party, until they are ready to pay for the same.

L. J. MILLER, Treasurer of DeKalb County.

BIG RUSH
—AT—
Isaac Ochs' Mammoth Store!

THE BOOM INCREASES DAILY.

New Stocks Received Daily

STUPENDOUS BARGAINS TO BE HAD IN ALL CLASSES OF GOODS.

THE BOTTOM KNOCKED CLEAR OUT OF

BOOTS, SHOES AND RUBBER GOODS.

Selling piles of them cheap; cheaper than anybody.

Immense Trade in Clothing, and Why?

Because I have an immense stock, and am selling cheaper than anybody. Biggest line of Ladies' Dress Goods, and Cloaks, and Dolmans in town, at prices

WAY DOWN! WAY DOWN!

STAPLES ALMOST GIVEN AWAY. Come all ye that want bargains, and I will give them to you.

JOIN THE CROWD AND COME AND SEE Us, COME EVERYBODY!

ISAAC OCHS, Auburn, Ind.

ROOT & COMPANY

A usual, for the

HOLIDAY SEASON!

Are displaying an immense assortment

ATTRACTIVE GOODS!

—IN—

EVERY DEPARTMENT!

—:o:—

Special sale of Black ank Colored Satin DeLyon, at $1, $1.15 and $1.50.

PLAIN SILKS

At 75c., 90c., $1 and $1.25c., reduced from $1, $1.25 and $1.50. Changeable Silks in elegant Quality, and Choice Tints for $1 per yard. All shades of colored 22-inch Satin DeLoin at $1.00 worth $2 peryard.

TRIMMING

Velvets, Satins, Plushes and Brocade Silks in a great variety of color and quantity

OUR DRESS GOODS DEPARTMEMT

Is now complete with new and superior fabrics in the choicest styles, and at the lowest prices.

—:o:—

CLOAKS AND FURS

Our cloaks, shawls, suit and fur department now contain some very choice things in seal, fur-lined and other garments. Also an unusually fine line of ladies' and children's goods of all kinds. Also elegant suits and shawls, and all at our usual low prices. Besides we have an almost endless line of small articles especially for the

HOLLIDAY TRADE

To which we call the attention of the public. Remember our long established motto: "No trouble to show goods, and an inspection of our stock incurs no obligation to purchase."

ROOT & CO., FORT WAYNE, INDIANA.

BEFORE BUYING YOUR

HOLIDAY PRESENTS

Do not forget to examine our well-selected stock of

TOYS, CANDIES

—AND OTHER—

HOLIDAY GOODS,

Which have just been received.

Children's Toys, 1c., 5c., 10c.

Pure Mixed Candy, 12 1-2c lb.

—AT—

ENSLEY & HARTER'S.

Auburn Courier.

Local and Miscellaneous

—A contributor to the Zanesville Courier explains the origin of the name "Camelback," which is applied to a certain kind of freight engines used on the Baltimore & Ohio, and especially adapted to climbing mountains. It was invented by Mr. Winans, of Baltimore, who, in personal appearance, was a small, spare built man, with a tremendous hump on his back, and the workmen in the several shops had "dubbed" him "old Camelback," because of the supposed resemblance of his deformity to the hump on a camel's back. Young Mr. Winans, upon his arrival in the presence of the commissioner of patents, was informed that all that was wanting in the proceedings was simply to give the invention a name. The son, being familiar with the soubriquet applied to his father by the workmen in the shops, at once thought here is a good opportunity for a joke on the old man, and he at once directed the patent officers to call the engine "Camelback," which was done. Some days after the son returned, his father received the letters patent, giving the effort of his life the nick-name of his infirmity. The old gentleman was at first greatly enraged at the indignity, until he finally thought better of it, and took the cognomen as a nick-name that was making him famous.

—The value of a man's leg has been differently estimated by juries at $20,000, $36,000 and $45,000, the price increasing each time very heavily. The case was this: "Some two or three years ago a Chicago commercial traveler, named C. H. Worthen, was injured at the Grand Trunk junction. He was going to Detroit on a Grand Trunk train, and when approaching the junction, stepped out upon the platform. A slight collision occurred, and he was thrown between the cars and so injured as to lose one of his legs. He brought suit against the company in Boston, and got a verdict of about $20,000. Upon the second trial the jury gave him $36,000. The railway company took the case up into New Hampshire for a third trial, and the jury gave the plaintiff a verdict of $15,000, and this verdict has been sustained by the court.

—Our popular townsman, Tom. C. Mays, Esq., has fully made up his mind to locate in the west. He is now at Chicago, purchasing new material and will establish a printing office at Independence, Mo. Mr. Mays was the founder of the COURIER and has been associated with other papers throughout the state. He has proved to be a superior newspaper man in every respect, a wide-a-wake, enterprising citizen and a man who takes a deep interest in the welfare and success of the town in which he resides. Independence may congratulate herself, and can safely boast of one of the best papers in the state. We hope that his enterprise and ability will be appreciated and that financially he may become a second Jay Gould.

—Swearing-off time is near at hand. All the b'hoys who are financially embarrassed will sign the pledge. They will throw away the tobacco-box, fling the euchre-deck to the winds, give the wine-cup a wide birth, and live in "the sweet bye and bye," as only noble manhood should. Pat your fellow on the back, young lady—say bravo, and hug him as hard as ever you can, repeat the performance at every opportunity, and we will guarantee a reformed man, for at least three weeks.

—Conjugal Conversation—Time—Every evening during the holidays. Scene—The Domestic Hearth—"And, oh! Charles, I've seen such lovely things!" "Huh!" "And they are so cheap," "Huh!" "And I want you to buy a—, and a—, and a—, for dear mother and the girls." "Huh!" "And some things for the children." "Huh! "And there are some bargains in house-keeping things," "Huh!" "And I want to buy a little gift for you Charles." "Well, how much money do you want?"

—A great big buck nigger and a white woman were traveling together Tuesday. They were quite loving while waiting for a train at the Saginaw depot. How anyone can be so lost to decency and womanhood is beyond our comprehension.

—Merry Christmas to all.

—Mrs. J. C. Henry is sick.

—Peggy is on the grand jury.

—Howard Griswold is home.

—Donavin's troupe is coming.

—Mike Long is home this week.

—Still putting up frozen water.

—The Republican annual was passable.

—Wanted, sleighing for the holidays.

—D. S. Ober is into the wood business.

—Our real estate transfers are quite large.

—Hank Altenburg is laying off this week.

—Mr. Bashelier went to Fort Wayne Monday.

—Joe. Ruffner has his foot in a sling—its sore.

—The COURIER will issue 53 numbers this year.

—Jink. Eldridge is learning the printing trade.

—Frank Beard comes to town to buy his chickens.

—Mr. Teeters, of Hudson, was in town this week.

—Fred. Clark will spend his Christmas at Wabash.

—Ed. Orr and wife, of Corunna, was in town Monday.

—Fort Wayne citizens are enjoying a run of sleighing.

—Mr. Davis, of Wabash, is visiting with his cousin Fred.

—Mrs. John Britton will return to her western home soon.

—Mrs. T. C. Mays is quite sick with erysipelas in the face.

—Judge Tousley returned to his court duties again Monday.

—Darn the stocking that won't hold a Christmas present.

—Donavin's troupe will show at Waterloo, Monday night.

—There will be no services at the M. E. church next Sunday.

—Billy Bittenger is learning the art preservative of all arts.

—Christmas tree to-morrow evening at the Presbyterian church.

—A large number of bolts are being taken to the stave factory.

—Joe Beugnot made a business trip to Toledo last Wednesday.

—Bob McClellan will be at home this week to spend the holidays.

—Next week the paper will appear under its new management.

—Stamets sold twenty-one numbers at the dance Tuesday night.

—The butter packers are keeping the market pretty well cut down.

—We are moving the office over Kiblinger's hardware store this week.

—Mrs. Juke Picker has made a big speculation in mittens this winter.

—Tom. Gross and John McClellan have had their trial. John got left.

Mrs. F. Kline, of Corunna, is clerking for M. B. Willis during the holidays.

—Cook Reed and sister, of Ohio, were visiting with Mr. J. C. Henry Sunday.

—Chas. Schaab is dealing largely in pop-corn. Henry McIntyre assists him.

—Mrs. Mott is putting a new addition to one of her houses, over in Mott-town.

—The weather for the last several months certainly makes us a solid north.

—Dr. Cowan and John Robbins went to Garrett last Sunday, to attend church we suppose.

—It's strange how some exceedingly pious men can act when they get away from home.

—Little boy and girl, don't forget to hang that stocking up near the chimney Saturday night.

—We would like to have a number of new subscribers at the beginning of the next year.

—Charley Ross, the fellow that came to town and forgot the way home, is working for Tarney.

—A patent gate man—dead busted—was making an extra effort to sell a $3 revolver for $10, last night.

—We are authorized, by the board of school directors, to state that school will commence next Monday.

—A little two-year-old boy, of Mr. Philip Meyers died last Sunday and was buried Monday evening.

—Court is progressing gradually and considerable interest is manifested by both attorneys and spectators.

—We are always glad to hear from Rev. H. Johnson, as are also his many friends here, for the benefit of whom we clip the following from the Grand Haven News Journal:

"The reception given by Rev. Henry Johnson and his estimable wife, at the Presbyterian parsonage last Thursday evening, was a very enjoyable affair. A large number of citizens availed themselves of the opportunity to make the acquaintance of Mr. and Mrs. Johnson, and to wish them happiness and success in their new sphere of labors. Mr. Johnson, seems to give unbounded satisfaction, both in and out of the pulpit, and we cannot help congratulating our Presbyterian friends in securing the services of such an able minister as the successor of Dr. Sutherland. Nevertheless, the inclemency of the weather last Sabbath, the church was filled with a most appreciative audience, morning and evening.

—Here is a good receipt for tattlers. Those that are ailing will find it a sure cure: Take a handful of weed called Run-about, the same quantity of root called Nimble-tongue, a sprig of the herb Backbite, (either before or after dog days) a tablespoonful of Don't you tell it, six drachms of Malice, a few drops of Envy, which can be purchased at the shops of Miss Tabitha Tea Table and Miss Nancy Night-Walker. Stir them well together, and simmer them half an hour over the fire of discontent kindled with a little Jealousy; then strain it through the rag of Misconception, cork it up in a bottle of Malevolence, and hang it upon a skein of street Yarn; shake it occasionally for a few days, and it will be fit for use. Let a few drops be taken before walking out, and the subject will be able to speak all manner of evil, and that continually.

—If all signs are true the present winter will be a severe one, colder in fact than it ever has been since the north pole swept down on the coast of Newfoundland. Squirrels have laid in their winter coal, beavers have put heaters in the basement of their lodges, bees have killed off all their drones and lined their hives with sheet iron, muskrats have crawled into their holes and pulled their holes in after them, wild ducks are committing suicide, groundhogs are flying south, the goose-bone is back 16 inches deep, editors are soliciting wood on subscription, poor families are buying an extra dog, each and everything looks favorable for a long, hard winter.

"Picture books, crying dolls and toys,
And other things for girls and boys."

The happy Christmas time is at hand and every heart is light and happy in anticipation of the beautiful presents. The little child's heart is longing for the opening dawn of Saturday morning and to grasp the little stocking filled with candies. Every parent, rich and poor, should make an effort to please the little ones by giving them a present of some kind. It is the duty of every parent to make an extra effort in this direction.

—Anderson Bros. will sell buggies for $15 less than any other shop in the state that has first-class material. Call and look at our large stock of wheels and second-growth hickory trimmings. We have rented the Duck building, which we will use for a show room. Do not buy until you examine our stock, for we will not be undersold. Remember the place, three doors north of the postoffice. All work warranted for two years.

ANDERSON BROS.,
Auburn, Ind.

51 4t

—The COURIER will be ten years old the first of next January. It is, and always has been, the leading paper of the county; its circulation is the largest and its job department the most complete of any in Northern Indiana. It starts out at the beginning of the new year with the most brilliant prospects and gurantee the patrons of this office a wide-a-wake, lively paper in the future. Wishing you all a merry Christmas and a happy New year we will leave you for the present.

—An old tract says the jury of twelve was adopted because the prophets were twelve, the apostles were twelve, there were twelve Jewish judges, twelve pillars of the temple, twelve patriarchs, twelve tribes of Israel, twelve stones in Aaron's breast-plate, twelve gates of Jerusalem, twelve months in the year and twelve signs in the zodiac. In all times the number twelve has been regarded as an important number. In the early ages the oath of twelve persons was necessary to convict.

—On Tuesday last Benj. Farrington shot a bald eagle, on his farm, near Waterloo. The bird is said to be a fine specimen of its kind, measuring over seven feet from tip to tip of wings. It is now in possession of R. Wes McBride, of Waterloo, who will no doubt have it properly prepared and placed in his already fine collection of birds.

—On Tuesday of this week while Geo. Dunn was unloading a load of wood, at the residence of Chas. Bassett, at Waterloo, he unloaded the front end of the wagon first, which caused his wood-rack to tip up and his team taking fright ran west to the Saginaw railroad, where team, wagon and all tumbled down the bank into the ditch. They were finally got out when it was ascertained that but little damage was done.

—Mrs. Bashelier returned a few days since from a two weeks' visit with her mother in Bryan, Ohio.

—Billy Stimely came to town with a bran new valise to-day. He is going west.

—Dry Houghton had the misfortune to lose his two-year-old colt Tuesday night.

—The scabs that run the Republican are in a sad condition—the devil has gone west.

—The best way to get a well-filled stocking for Christmas is to marry some plump girl.

—The leading republicans of the town are ashamed of their organ. Who would'nt be?

—Wes. Weyer, who has been west for several years, is shaking hands with his friends here.

—An umbrella is mentioned by the Philadelphia Sun as one of the ups and downs of life.

—The gentlemen from Butler, who had a razor drawn over his face, will prosecute his case to-day.

—Johnny Picker had a "thanksgiving" dinner last Sunday. The relatives of the family were present.

—The soldiers of this place, are making arrangements to establish a reading room in Ensley's block.

—An Auburn man has come to the conclusion that the only way to make a sure thing on betting is not to bet.

—On these long Sunday evenings the swain goes to see his sweetheart early, in order that he may go home late.

—Edison is again about to put the sun out of countenance with the steady glow of his perfected electric light.

—We noticed a double-barrelled shot gun walking off with Dr. Tritch Tuesday. This must mean no cure, no pay.

—Joe. Bender, everybody knows Joe. Well, Joe was fooling with an engine at Fort Wayne, and got his arm fractured.

—For fear that some of our young readers will forget it, we will mention the fact that next Saturday is Christmas.

—Alf. Carter has purchased the St. Nicholas. Alf. is a good saloon man, and with his large experience will do well.

—Rev. J. D. McCord, of Buchanan, Mich., will preach in the Presbyterian church next sabbath morning and evening.

—George Washington Weamer was just about as much intended to run a newspaper as a jackass was to draw a phaeton.

—One of the best horses in Buck Allen's livery stable died Tuesday morning. The cause of his death is not known.

—The assult and battery case, of parties living at Fairfield Center, created some excitement in court circles Tuesday.

—One week from next Friday W. H. Dills will sell the property belonging to John Whittington, deceased, to the highest bidder.

—Dr. Gloughner, wife and daughter, of Dakota Teritory, were the guests of Dr. T. G. Matheny and family, last Saturday and Sunday.

—Mr. Thompson, aged seventy-six, one of the old citizens of the county, living near Garrett, was buried in the Auburn cemetery Sunday.

—Dr. Mich. Dorlan, one of the old typos of the COURIER, and who has been out west for some time, dropped in to shake with us Tuesday.

—A Noble county pork buyer is out $200 by becoming too intimate with a rascally set of three-card monte men. He will know better next time.

—The town board is discussing the fire engine question. Beautiful thoughts indeed. If there ever was a town that needed a fire protector, it is Auburn.

—A new book is out entitled "Links in Rebecca's Life." Rebecca was probably a sausage-maker's daughter. What an eventful and mysterious life she must have led.

—Geo. Foster came in town Monday to spend the holidays, and left his "family" at home to do the chores. George is looking very fine and anticipates a good time while in the city.

—Monkey Weamer advertised some peculiar goods for sale, at one of our fancy stores, last week. There is no excuse for any such blunders, unless it is for the want of brains.

—Miss Annis Cowan, one of Auburn's fairest and most accomplished young ladies, was in town last week.—Butler Record.

Correct, Mr. Record; Annis is the belle of the ball.

—Through our neglect, we forgot to mention the pleasant party at the residence of C. C. Shaffer, last week. It was one of the events of the season and one and all said it was good to be there.

—Frank McDowell, Wilce McClellan, Sam. Snyder and Josiah Shull have returned from Ann Arbor, Mich., where they have been attending school, to spend the holidays.

DIED.—Thursday, Dec. 23, 1880, of membranous croup, at 7 clock, a. m. Gertrude, only child of Frank P. and Emma Day, of Waterloo, aged 11 months and 2 days. Our sympathies are extended to the parents in this their great bereavement.

—Thieves made an attempt to gain an entrance into Schaab, Beugnot & Co's. store last Friday night, and probably would have been successful had it not been for Mr. Hulsenbeck, who heard the racket and put the light-fingered foe to flight.

Wouldn't it be Funny to See

Yesbera's tailor brace up.

Chrs. Beldock without a dog.

Frank Davenport with a Quaker's hat on.

Doc. Cowan with his pants out of his boots.

Eliza Shaffer, to laugh with his eyes open.

Sim. Tarney at his "cousins" wedding.

John Robbins without several pencils over his ears.

The man who does not think he can run a newspaper.

Geo. Weamer With a sensible expression upon his countenance.

The woman, who goes to church and fails to inspect all the bonnets.

And last, but not least, the case that any patent medicine advertised will not cure.

—Dr. Cowan lost a fur glove between his residence and office. The finder will be rewarded in either money or pills, by leaving the same, at his office, in Case's block.

—Dave Hampton, Fred. Clark, Sam. Gibson and Dave Cochurn furnished sweet strains from feline intestines at a rural hop-up-and-down last Tuesday evening.

—One man is not as good as another in law. Law says that a man who is educated and cultured, and given to society should have five times as much damages for a broken nose as a hod-carrier.

—Dr. J. H. Ford shot thirty-one quail and four rabbits in one day, last week. His bird dog made a point upon the second quail with the first one in his mouth, which is, a rare occurence among bird-dogs.

—That fellow with a receding forehead, and his "phis" shaped similar to a duck egg, would please the patrons of the Republican if he would have a little original matter in that forlorn and neglected sheet.

—Mixed candies at 12½ cents a pound, at McQuiston & Ralston's.

—We came near having another fire in rear of the COURIER office last Friday. Some old papers and rags near a wood-pile were ignited in some way, and would have made things warm if it had not been discovered in time.

—Dr. J. B. Casebeer and Joe. Ruffner have purchased Cool's livery stable and, we suppose, Joe will be the "big injun" of the institution. He loves a horse better'n anybody, and while the hay-press will lose a faithful servant, the livery-barn will be the gainer of one.

—The Hicksville News remarks: Mr. Charles Shephard is going to remove to Auburn about the first of January, and go into the insurance business. He is a good agent, square and honest business man, and Auburn will gain a good citizen.

—The Republican devil has the publishers note for $70, payable at the town pump. Willie is going west and this little piece of paper should be put away into his scrap-book to remind him of his happy days while in Auburn, "loviest village of the plaine."

—Sherm. Hollister, our popular restaurant man, will put two cases of oysters in the center of his ice house and not open them until next Fourth of July. Lovers of this dish can have their wants supplied if no preventing providence occurs.

—Two men rode up on harnessed horses to a circus ticket wagon at Leadville, hitched the beasts to it, and dashed off with the vehicle, in which were the treasurer and $1,500. The showmen gave quick chase, and regained the treasure, but the robbers escaped.

—Boys' overcoats from $2.50 to $8.00, men's coats at bargains, at McQuiston & Ralston's.

—Mr. Jas. McClellan, of this place, is in possession of a paper published in the west, wherein is stated that Howard Griswold, well known in this community, has struck a streak of luck which will give him a fortune. We are not informed in what manner he has obtained his wealth.

—Self-made men are more certain than others of success in life, for the reason that, so to speak, they are more thoroughly made. That is to say, with them the foundation of character is more solid because it is the result of severe discipline, of a determined will of a settled purpose.

—If we had no more dignity nor manhood about us than to have the devil figure as the conspicuous figure in our printing office, we would shut up the shop. The Republican "editors" would leave a better impression upon the community if they would harp less about wood-choppers, &c., and get some local matter into that delectable sheet.

—The justice mill, with Judge Best at the hopper, has been grinding away during the week. The judge has dispatched business with considerable rapidity, and to the satisfaction of all, having disposed of all cases, excepting such as he himself was interested in as counsel. Thomas Hissong, charged with larceny, was acquitted, Frank Smith was convicted of burglary and sentenced to one year in the penitentiary, Canode, charged with house-breaking, was tried yesterday and acquitted.

—For dress goods, velvets, trimming silks, fringes, table linens, napkins, nubias, scarfs, men and boys' caps, go to McQuiston & Ralston's.

THE MILKY-WAY FOR FARMERS TO STUDY.

A Few Figures Showing the Value of Cows (when) Properly, Taken Care of.

EDITORS COURIER.—Please allow me, through your columns, to call the attention of farmers, to keeping of cows and sale of milk. As nearly all who will read this article, will know that I am directly interested in the dairy business in this county, I will give a few facts and figures of what has been done the past season.

Mr. Elias Stofer has been furnishing milk to us for the three past seasons. This season he has kept six ordinary cows with common care, and from April 8, to December 1, he delivered 21,333 pounds of milk, for which I paid $152.83, being $25.47 for the use of one cow for a little less than seven months.

W. H. Forrest kept three cows; they run out the greater part of the time. From May 5, to December 3, he delivered 9,645 pounds of milk, for which I paid him $69.85, being $23.28 for the use of one cow for less than six months. Besides this, they will have the use of their cows before and after the time I bought their milk. With proper care and feed, the yield of milk from said cows might have been materially increased, but the result has been satisfactory with them, and taking in the account the price that butter brought during the summer, who can show as satisfactory results?

We all keep cows for the money we can make from them.

J. E. THOMPSON.

—As will be seen from the salutatory on the editorial page, Messrs. Barns & Husselman of Waterloo, have purchased this office, and will in the future be editors and proprietors of the COURIER. They are known by almost everybody in this section, and are esteemed as gentlemen of honor and enterprise. Under their management the patrons will have a progressive newspaper, and one worthy of the continuance of their liberal patronage. The office after this week will be found upstairs in the Kiblinger building, on the corner of Main and Seventh streets. The rooms in this new building are elegant and commodious, and in its new quarters the COURIER will be one of the neatest printing establishments in northern Indiana.

—Bargains in flannels, waterproofs blankets, jeans, shawls at McQuiston & Ralston's.

—For cloaks, skirts and nubias, go to McQuiston & Ralston's.

A Big advertisement in a few words.

I Will not be

UNDERSOLD

By any firm in the County.

Bear this in Mind.

ISAAC OCHS'

NOTICE TO HEIRS OF PETITION TO SELL REAL ESTATE.

State of Indiana, DeKalb county—In the DeKalb circuit court.

Notice is hereby given, that Malinda Kessler, administratrix of the estate of Eli Kessler, deceased, has filed a petition to sell the real estate of the decedent, the personal being insufficient to pay his debts, and that said petition will be heard at the next term of said court.

Attest: JNO. BAXTER, Clerk.

December 20, 1880. 52-3w.

Notice of Administration.

Notice is hereby given, that the undersigned has been appointed by the judge of the DeKalb circuit court of the state of Indiana, administrator of the estate of Wm. Wyatt, deceased, late of said county. Said estate is supposed to be insolvent.

ELMON Y. WYATT. Administrator.

52 3t

A. J. Baxter, Attorney.

NOTICE TO NON-RESIDENTS.

State of Indiana, DeKalb county—In the DeKalb circuit court, February term, 1881.

Leonard Hartle is hereby notified that an action has been commenced against him in said court, in attachment. John Barrett, administrator of the estate of Adam P. Hartle, deceased, and that the same will be heard and determined on the 2d juridical day of the next term of said court, which commences Feburary 28, 1881.

Witness, The clerk of said court, this 21st of December, 1880.

52-3w JOHN W. BAXTER, Clerk.

ESTRAY NOTICE.

Taken up by Dr. Henry Lahman, at Fairfield Center, DeKalb county, Indiana, an estray, described as follows:

"A white cow with yellow skin, long tail right ear partly torn off, has long smooth horns, about six years old, and will weigh about 850 pounds, appraised and reported to Christian Smith, justice of the peace of Fairfield township, December 14, 1880."

Dated this 18th day of December, 1880.

JOHN W. BAXTER, Clerk.

ESTRAY NOTICE.

Taken up by John S. Boots, of Jackson township, DeKalb county, Indiana, five fat hogs, two black and three white, of an average weight of 180 pounds, and of the appraised value of thirty-six dollars ($36), as reported to me by John Henderson, a justice of the peace of said township, on the 16th day of December, 1880.

JOHN W. BAXTER, Clerk.

December 20, 1880.

Final Settlement.

Notice is hereby given that Robert Arford administrator of the estate of David Flickinger deceased, has filed his final settlement report in my office, and the same will be heard at the next term of the DeKalb circuit court.

JOHN W. BAXTER, Clerk.

51-3

December 14, 1880.

Agents.

All persons, either ladies or gentlemen, who desire good, profitable employment, and the pleasantest kind of work at their own homes, should send address to

J. J. KENNEDY,
Williamantic, Conn.

51-4t.

THOSE CHRISTMAS BILLS.

Those Christmas bills! those Christmas bills!
How many a heart with anguish fills,
When knocks, and rings, and postman's feet
Make echoing noises through the street;

And passing round from door to door,
Leave horrid notes which thus "implore
Your kind attention; please to pay;
Our books are closed on New Year's day."

The wine we bought is all used out
And left no trace (except the gout),
Yet port and sherry, pale and brown,
In hideous columns are put down—

The butcher, too! It can't be that
So many joints of lean and fat
Were all consumed within this house,
Which cook asserts would starve a mouse.

I'll not believe it, nor that tea
Could such a source of ruin be;
And surely this can't be the price
Of figs and almonds, prunes and spice!

We haven't lived on lard and cheese,
Yet rows of figures stand for these.
And here's the draper! Now my wife
Has gone in debt, I'll bet my life.

If Eve in Eden stole the fruit,
At least she wore no silken suit,
And Adam had no bills of hers
For gems, or lace, or sealskin furs.

Oh, happy time! oh, peaceful hours!
Of making love and tending flowers;
The simple blessings Heaven grants—
Good gracious, here's a bill for plants!

I'll read no more, they'd drive me wild;
I'll have my own "petition filed."
We've ridden at the "pace that kills—"
I cannot pay these Christmas bills.

"T'OTHER DEAR CHARMER."

I was in a quandary, as I think you will admit when I have stated my case, and it was exceedingly provoking to be conscious that I was looked upon by all my acquaintances as the luckiest man in town, while I bore in my bosom the inward conviction that I was the most involved and bothered being in existence. Up to a month back, I suppose I might, with some show of reasonableness, have been called lucky, for Miss Clara Alden, the recognized belle of the season, smiled upon me, and the current impression prevailed that, if I would go in, I'd win.

Well, I did go in. That's the mischief of it. I went in just far enough to commit myself to the contest, but, before I had sighted the winning post, something happened to give me pause.

We were at the skating-rink one night, a large party of us, Miss Alden being of the number. Her special escort was a young foreigner, who was being a good deal lionized in society just then, and Clara seemed to take a marked interest in him. It did not concern me in the least to observe this, for since I had fancied myself to be in love with Clara Alden I had had reason to congratulate myself upon the assurance that I was not of a jealous temperament. I intended pretty soon to tender to Miss Alden a good-sized heart and a good-sized hand and a fairly good-sized fortune, and I sincerely hoped she would accept them. Until then, and indeed after then, always within the limits of good taste, she was free to receive the attentions of any man or woman whose society gave her pleasure. I think Miss Alden and I understood each other perfectly. We were very old friends, and the suitability of an alliance between us had been frequently suggested to each ever since we could remember. I was quite contented with this condition of affairs, and even supposed myself to be very happy.

Well, this night at the rink I had seen Clara skate off with her Englishman, and with an unperturbed spirit I was skimming around the rink alone when, just behind me, I heard a little scream and a little scramble and somebody fall. The next instant, as I turned, I met a pair of imploring and beautiful eyes, and an imploring and beautiful voice cried out:

"Oh, won't you please pick me up?"

I eagerly clasped the little hands and drew the prostrate young lady to her feet. I was just in time, for half a dozen other men had hurried to the spot, among whom she recognized an acquaintance. She made her bow to me and said her "thank you" very prettily, and then she accepted the proffered hand of her friend and glided away from me. And do you know I did not like it? I felt distinctly vexed, for you see she was bewitchingly lovely and the glimpse I had of her was merely tantalizing.

I met her after that many times, always with the same man whom I was rather provoked to recognize as a stranger. I now found myself always watching for that one little figure and following it through all the labarynthine mazes of the surging crowd upon the rink. I forgot to speak to my acquaintances as they passed, and, although there were half a score of young ladies who had a right to expect me to join them and convoy them around the rink, I skated on alone, in utter disregard of every social and moral obligation to that effect. Every now and then I chanced upon Miss Alden, but I felt too preoccupied to join, or even to observe her especially, when suddenly something occurred that invested her with a lively interest. She had been stopping to speak to some friends who sat without the railing looking on, and as she and her escort were about starting out again she suddenly came face to face with my little beauty. There was a gleam of recognition on both faces, and then Miss Alden exclaimed:

"Why, Daisy, where have you dropped from? Who would have thought of seeing you, of all people, here?"

There was rather a warm greeting between the two before Daisy explained:

"I have come for the winter and have been wanting to look you up, but I only arrived yesterday. I am so glad to have met you here."

After that I heard no more, for the two friends joined hands and skated off together. I hung about them a little way off, pretending to be talking to some men who were lounging about, and when I thought my presence would not prove an unpleasant interruption I strolled toward Clara and greeted her cordially, asking her where she had been this long time. She saw through me in a moment and showed me that she did by disregarding my question entirely and presenting me at once to her friend, Miss Lyle. I had seen a great many masculine eyes regarding Miss Lyle with interest during the evening, and I now perceived the owner of one pair of these approaching Miss Alden with what I divined to be the same intention that had brought me hither a moment before; so while he was stopping to shake hands with Clara I offered my hands to Miss Lyle and we glided off together. A few adroit questions on my part elicited the fact that Miss Lyle and Miss Alden had been schoolmates, who had not met for some years, and I furthermore discovered that Miss Lyle was stopping in town with relatives who happened to be old acquaintances of mine. So, after we parted that night, Miss Lyle and I met often, and we were together so much at the rink that people had begun to remark it.

And this brings me to the period of the quandary with which I started out. Here was I, supposed by everybody to be the favored adorer of one lovely girl, while in reality I was head over heels in love with another. For I had no doubt about my feeling in this matter; it was unmistakable. I smiled grimly now when I remembered the days in which I had boasted of not possessing a jealous temperament. Why, I was jealous of every one who went near Daisy. I was infuriated if she danced and skated with any one but me, and when I saw some awkward, clumsy man run against her once at the rink I felt like choking him when she smiled at his apology. To tell the truth I was positively wretched. If Daisy had never come I could have got along very well with Clara, I told myself. There had been a tacit, if not an expressed, understanding on the score of our relationship among all our friends, and I would have been a very cheerful and attentive spouse to Clara if I had never seen Daisy; and, on the other hand, if I had never seen Clara, I might now perhaps succeed in winning Daisy's hand, and with it everlasting happiness. It was just a case of

How happy could I be with either,
Were t'other dear charmer away.

I sometimes wondered whether Clara did not partly see through me. She had such an odd way of looking at me sometimes with such a shrewd smile; but she treated me better than ever. She was really a splendid creature, and, under imaginable circumstances, I might have learned to love her very much, in a certain way. So things drifted on until Christmas came. On Christmas night there was to be a grand, fancy-dress ball at the rink. Daisy was going and so was Clara, and it goes without saying that I was on hand. My perplexities were at their height. I was more in love with Daisy than ever, but fully alive to the matter of my duty in another quarter. It was beginning to wear on me terribly and I concluded to call in the advice of my friend Porter, a prudent and sagacious fellow, in whose judgment I had unlimited confidence. How fondly I hoped he might decide that I was under no obligation to Miss Alden. And how differently he did decide! He was perfectly astounded at my confession. Miss Alden, he said, was one woman picked out of 10,000, much handsomer, much richer, much more distinguished than Miss Lyle; I must be out of my senses. In short, he wound up by saying that I was in honor bound to address Miss Alden, though, for his part, he began to doubt whether that splendid creature could consent to marry a man who was so preposterously blind as not to see that she was second to no woman in existance. This was on Christmas day. I had been to Porter's room to have a talk with him, knowing he would be at leisure, and the result was that he entirely convinced me of what I ought to do. Still it was very hard to make up my mind to it.

I had been invited to dine with the Aldens that day—quite en famille, as usual. It gave me a sneaky feeling of late whenever I got one of these kind invitations, but I had seen no way out of the matter but to accept, and so I had accepted. When I left Porter's room I turned my face in the direction of the Aldens with a very heavy heart. Before dinner I had no opportunity to see Clara alone, if I had desired it; but I had ample opportunity for watching her, and I had to acknowledge that I had never seen her look better. She played, too, and sang more brilliantly than any woman I had ever seen. I could have been very proud of such a wife, I reflected, if—

The other guests left early, but I lingered. I knew perfectly well what I ought to do, and I had been slowly making up my mind to do it if the opportunity occurred, and the opportunity did occur. Toward nightfall every one else had withdrawn, and Clara and I were left alone. I took a seat very near her, and told her I had something of a very confidential nature to say to her. To my surprise she rose and walked across the room, touched the bell, waited until the servant came, and then ordered lights. This was a little disconcerting; but when the servant had lighted the room and departed she came back to the sofa, and in the coolest and most matter-of-fact manner asked me to go on.

"Clara," I began rather timidly, "you will be perfectly prepared for what I am going to say. You have so much discernment that you must have seen that this moment would come. I have always had the greatest admiration and regard for you. I value your worth most deeply. I feel—"

Here I paused, confused and miserable.

"Never mind what you feel," said Miss Alden, coolly. "Let's come to the point. The upshot of it all is—what?"

"That I want to ask you to marry me. I will do my best to make you happy, if I can. I know I don't deserve you; but, will you marry me?"

"Most certainly not." The answer came cool, calm, determined. I was startled and murmured confusedly:

"What do you mean?"

"I mean that you might have saved yourself some trouble if you had asked me this question a good deal sooner," she said, "and I am not conscious of feeling particularly flattered at the offer of a hand so distinctly and widely separated from the heart. However, the point is that I have refused you; so you may make the most of that. You needn't wait now. I know you are impatient, as it is time to prepare for the rink. I have declined to marry you, but I feel enough interest in you to wish you success. Perhaps to-night I shall be able to offer my congratulations."

She offered her hand, and I took it in a sort of daze, which lasted all the while I was walking home and dressing, and until I reached the rink. When I entered the room was full. What a beautiful scene it was! All those gayly clad men and girls, floating along on the polished surface to the sound of entrancing music, made the place look like fairyland. It was the merriest and prettiest Christmas scene I had ever witnessed. There were evergreen garlands hanging around, with holly bushes about here and there, and many of the characters had been gotten up in dresses appropriate to the season. There were four great cedars in the corners stuck full of candles which were now being lighted, and the band was playing such inspiring Christmas music. I felt intoxicated with the beauty and brilliancy of the scene, and, putting on my skates, I was skimming around in an aimless sort of way, when I came face to face with the bonniest little vision mortal eyes were ever permitted to see. It was Daisy, dressed as Christmas, in a dress which looked as if it were made of snow and trimmed with icicles. I don't know how the very cleverest imitative art could have devised such a thing. She had a wreath of holly leaves and berries on her hair, and bunches of the same about her dress. She was skating with a young man dressed as Santa Claus, who, however, gave way when I glided up, and we skimmed away together. I was too happy to speak, the glorious possibility of what might be awaiting me burst upon me with such vividness. But presently I became conscious that she was speaking to me. She was praising my costume, which opened up to me an opportunity which you may be sure I made the most of. She blushed with pleasure at my praise, and so, both of us in a conscious flutter, we came upon Clara Alden, joyously dressed and escorted by her Englishman. They stepped in front of us, Miss Alden saying as they did so:

"Have you been to the little sitting-rooms curtained off at that end? No one seems to have discovered them yet, though they are one of the features of the evening. I think it is such a good idea, and they are beautifully decorated; but when we looked in just now both of them were empty. However, as soon as somebody leads, they will be full enough. Suppose you two lead."

She skated off then with her companion, and Daisy and I went to obey her behest. But into that little curtained apartment you are forbidden to enter. Suffice it for you that, when presently Daisy and I emerged, we encountered Miss Alden at once, and when she leaned toward me and whispered: "Am I to congratulate you?" I bowed my head in happy assent.

Bread.

A large meeting lately was held at the Town Hall, Kensington, in England, under the auspices of the Bread Reform League, to advocate the universal use of what is technically known as "wheat meal bread." Dr. B. W. Richardson, the well-known authority on hygiene, presided. One of the speakers maintained that the bread in common use was 40 per cent deficient in sustaining qualities. An entire grain of wheat contained everything that was required for nourishing purposes, and yet the better half of it was wasted, and this half was a much healthier food, especially for children. A white loaf, in fact, was only half a loaf, for a large portion of the material that formed muscular flesh, and nearly all that formed bone, were taken from it. Children fed on white bread were very liable to suffer rickety bones, consumption, and bad teeth, because their food did not nourish them properly. The outward whiteness of the flour might be considered an outward sign of the starvation within. One shilling's worth of wheat meal bread contained three times the flesh-forming, seventy times the heat-producing, and three times the bone-forming material to be found in a shilling's worth of beefsteak. Dr. Richardson maintained that if the mothers of the United Kingdom were to give their families whole meal, which contained the structure of the skeleton, in from three to four generations all the deformities of children, not caused by accident, which they now saw, would pass away, as by the hands of an invisible enchantress.

"Give Me Raggles."

A well known lady artist, resident in Rome, relates that while standing one day near the statue of the Apollo Belvidere, she suddenly became aware of the presence of a country-woman. The new comer a well-to-do-looking American woman, introduced herself as Mrs. Raggles, of —, Missouri, and then asked:

"Is this the Apollo Belvidere?"

Miss H— testified to the identity of the work, and the tourist then said:

"Considered a great statue?"

The interrogated lady replied that it was generally thought to be one of the masterpieces of the world.

"Manly beauty, and all that sort of thing?" said the lady from the land of the setting sun.

"Yes," responded the now amazed artist. "It is said to be one of the noblest representations of the human frame."

"Well," exclaimed Mrs. Raggles, closing her Badeker, and with arms akimbo, taking a last and earnest look at the marble, "I've seen the Appollo Belvidere and I've seen Raggles, and give me Raggles."—Boston Commercial Advertiser.

A Singular Asset.

"I am a peaceable man," said the intruder, grasping his club with both hands, "but if you don't come down with $17.50 damages for my lascerated feelings the bombardment will begin at once?"

The owner of the dog paid down the money, as he was afraid the other fellow might exasperate him if he hit him with a club of that size. The owner of the dog also said that he was sorry the dog had bitten the intruder's son.

"Why, he ain't my son," said the intruder.

"Whose son is he, then?" asked the astonished owner of the dog.

"He is the son of a friend of mine who owed me $17.50, but he is poor, and the only available assets he has was these dog bites on his body, which he turned over to me for collection."

"Well, I'll be blowed."

"Oh, you needn't complain; you are getting off dog cheap. I ought to make you pay in advance for the next time that boy is going to be bit."—Galveston News.

Didn't Wear Rubbers.

Charley was saying that he didn't wear rubbers, because they drew his feet so. "Very thoughtful in you, Charley," said Bill; "it would be rather overworking the rubbers to oblige them to draw them feet."

MARKETING TITLES.

A Few Facts Regarding Such Marriages.

[Paris Cor. Philadelphia Telegraph.]

Now, without entering into any further argument on this much discussed topic, I shall briefly sketch the results of a few of these unions as they came under my own observation.

Case No. 1 is that of a titled gentleman who espoused, after the usual preliminaries of dowry and settlements, the daughter of a celebrated American financier. After a few years of marriage the lady died, leaving for her spouse the father of an only child—a daughter. Time passed on, and the husband consoled himself with one of the most beautiful and notorious members of the demi-monde of Paris, and finally ended by marrying her. The family of the first wife were naturally anxious to rescue the little girl from the contamination of her step-mother's influence and training. But the titled papa set so extortionate a pride on the possession of his child that her grandparents were forced to oppose a negative to his demands. Consequently the daughter of the American belle remains in the hands of a woman who was famed for her depravity, ever among the depraved women of the class from which she sprung.

Case No. 2 opened with a fair prospect of happiness on the part of the newly-wedded pair. The bride was beautiful, gentle, intelligent, accomplished, a devout Catholic, and passionately in love with her husband. He, on the other hand, was young and handsome, and though he had sown his wild oats rather profusely, and reaped therefrom a plentiful crop of debts, there was every hope that under the influence of his fair bride and in the enjoyment of a fixed and settled income he might see the error of his ways and settle down into a steady member of society. As regards the fortune, he displayed, as is usual in such cases, a vast amount of anxiety respecting it, refusing even to drive out with his betrothed and her mother before all financial preliminaries were arranged, for fear of compromising himself. Nor could he well forgive his future father-in-law for so tying up the young wife's dowry that it could not be squandered. However, their wedded life began smoothly enough. Then came rumors of the conjugal infidelities on the husband's part, of gross neglect, and finally of actual corporal ill-usage inflicted on his charming wife. In the language of my information, "he used to beat her like a sack." He, the representative of one of the oldest and noblest houses of Europe, did not disdain to lift his hand against the hapless lady who, for her own sorrow, had bought him and paid for him with a price. The end of the whole matter is a legal separation. The husband has gone off to his lady-love, and the wife, not yet thirty and in the very fullness and perfection of her womanly charms, has taken refuge once more under the parental roof.

Case No. 3 is that of an American girl who became the wife of a noble of long descent a few years ago, and who instantly "cut" every one of her former acquaintances, avowing her intention of henceforward associating only with "the aristocracy." Of late she has had no chance to associate with the particular specimen of the aristocracy who became her husband, as they are legally separated, and while she resides in Paris in a rather modest style, he is to be seen at half the prominent watering-places of Europe driving the most dashing members of the demi-monde on the public promenades, in his open carriage.

Only Once.

Of the 15,000 words in Shakspeare, about 5,000 of them appear only once; of words beginning with a, 364 appear only once; and with m, 310. Among those beginning with m that occur but once are, "magical, mirthful, mirth-moving, moss-grown, moonbeams, mattin, mural, magnificence, meander, master-piece, marrowless, martyred, mellifluous." Some, like "mechanics, mission, maxim, magnify, malcontent, marsh, manna, maritime, metropolis, medal, metaphysics, motherwit," and a score of others, are so familiar it seems impossible that Shakspeare should not have needed them more than once, often so beautiful and poetical that one wonders they could fail to be his favorites again and again. "They remind me," says the essayist, "of the exquisite crystal bowl from which I saw a Jewess and her bridegroom drink in Prague, and which was then dashed in pieces on the floor of the synagogue, or of the Chigi porcelain painted by Raphael, which, as soon as it had been once removed from the Farnesina table, was thrown into the Tiber." His explanation is that Shakspeare's forte lay in characterization, and that endlessly diversified. But when he sketched each several character it seems that he was never content till he had either found or fabricated the aptest words possible for representing its form and pressure most true to life. No two characters being identical in any particular more than two faces are, no two descriptions, as drawn by his genius, could repeat many of the self-same characteristic words. Each of his vocables thus became like those of the 7,000 constituents of a locomotive, which fits the one place it was ordained to fill, but everywhere else is out of place, and even dislocated. On every average page of Shakspeare you are greeted and gladdened by at least five words that you never saw before in his writings, and that you never will see again, speaking once and then forever holding their peace—each not only rare, but a nonesuch—five gems just shown, then snatched away. Each page is thus studded with five stars, each as unique as the century-flower, and, like the night-blooming cereus, "the perfume and suppliance of a minute." The mind of Shakspeare was bodied forth as Montezuma was apparalled, whose costumes, however gorgeous, were never twice the same.—Lippincott's Magazine.

The Load of a Freight Car.

A rapid increase has been going on during recent years in the amount of freight regarded as the maximum load of a car. Formerly 20,000 pounds was the limit; now, according to the Western Weighing Association, the average of the different classes of freight, as determined by the weights of 50,000 car, weighed during a period of six weeks was from 23,750 for machinery to 29,925 for ore, the maximum in nearly all cases exceeding 30,000 pounds. Certain classes of freight reached, respectively, as high as 35,000, 37,750, 39,800, 39,600 and even, in the case of ore, to the enormous weight of 48,500 pounds, or more than 24 tons. The Superintendent of the association is satisfied that the various articles of freight enumerated, twenty-three in number, will average fully 27,000 pounds per car, and the whole will not average less than 25,000 pounds per car. The fact that such loads can be safely carried now is due to the vastly improved condition of tracks as well as to the heavier construction of the car.

USEFUL HINTS.

A very warm bed-quilt may be improvised by pinning newspapers between two sheets.

Those who ought to know say that poultry thrives upon cooked food, and like their corn boiled.

Do not keep rubber shoes or sandals on the feet longer than necessary. They should never be worn in the house.

For soft corns dip a piece of linen cloth in turpentine and wrap it around the toe on which the corn is situated night and morning. The relief will be immediate, and, after a few days, the corn will disappear.

Lip Salves.—One gill sweet oil, one ounce white wax, three-quarters of an ounce spermaceti. Dissolve them over the fire and stir till cool. Another—Oil of sweet almonds, eight ounces; white wax, three ounces; spermaceti, three ounces; rhodium, fifty drops, and white sugar candy form an excellent lip salve.

Ants.—Red ants may be banished from a pantry or store-room by strewing the shelves with a small quantity of cloves, either whole or ground. We use the former, as not being so likely to get into the food placed upon the shelves. The cloves should be renewed occasionally, as after a time they lose their strength and efficacy.

Mosquitoes, says somebody, love beef blood better than they do any that flows in the veins of human kind. Just put a couple of generous pieces on plates near your bed at night, and you will sleep untroubled by these pests. In the morning you will find them full and stupid with the beef blood, and the meat sucked as dry as a cork.

Stains.—Remove ink-stains from carpets with milk, and afterward wash with fine soap, a clean brush, and warm water. For grease spots use powdered magnesia, fuller's earth, or buckwheat. Sprinkle on the spot, and let lie until all the grease is absorbed; renew the earth, magnesia or buckwheat until all the grease is removed. Time and patience will in this way remove the worst of grease spots.

To Detect Genuine Coffee.—Those foolish persons who buy ground coffee may find out whether what they buy is genuine coffee or not by the following method: Take a wine glass or a tumbler full of water, and gently drop a pinch of the ground coffee on the surface of the water, without stirring or agitating; genuine coffee will float for some time, whilst chicory, or and other sweet root, will soon sink; and chicory or caramel will cause a yellowish or brown color to diffuse rapidly through the water, while pure coffee will give no visible tint, under such circumstances, for a considerable length of time.

Starch Polish.—The old receipt of stirring the starch with a bit of wax candle is not nearly so good, in the opinion of an experienced laundress, as a much cheaper plan. She uses mutton suet instead of wax; it makes the starch firmer. Before roasting or boiling your joint of mutton, cut off whatever suet you want from it. "Render" it in a tin cup and set it aside in a jar; it will keep six months or longer. The fat about the kidney in a hind quarter is the firmest and best. When you want thick starch for collars and shirt bosoms, take four table-spoonfuls of starch to one quart of water, and a piece of the clear suet about the size of a walnut. This makes a good quart of starch.

French Way of Washing Clothes.

A system of washing clothes in vogue in some French towns is worthy of special mention. Its economy is so great as to greatly reduce the cost. This is the process: Two pounds of soap is reduced with a little water to pulp, which having been slightly warmed is cooled in ten gallons of water, to which is added one spoonful of turpentine oil and two spoonfuls of ammonia; then the mixture is agitated. The water is kept at a temperature which can be borne by the hand. In this solution the white clothes are put in and left there for two hours before washing them with soap, taking care in the meantime to cover the tub. The solution may be warmed again and used once more, but it will be necessary to add a half spoonful of turpentine and another spoonful of ammonia. Once washed with soap the clothes are put in hot water, and the blue is applied. This process, it is obvious, saves much time, much labor and fuel, while it gives to the clothes a whiteness much superior to that obtained by any other process and the destructive use of the washboard is not necessary to clean the clothes from the impurities which they contain.

Deer's Calves.

Deer begin to breed at the end of three years; and the female, as a rule, has one calf only at a time, although doublets have been seen occasionally. Many of the calves die a natural death or are killed by enemies; but, as a rule, the mothers are extremely careful, and protect their young ones with vigor and determination. At the age of 6 or 7 months a young deer is pretty well able to look after itself; it is while they are from a day to 4 weeks old that danger chiefly threatens from the vermin which are always prowling among the heather in search of prey.—St. James Gazette.

Some months ago Mr. Leander McCormick, a resident of Chicago, but a native of Virginia, gave to the University of Virginia $50,000 for a telescope, on condition that a suitable observatory was erected for it. Mr. William H. Vanderbilt gave $25,000 for the observatory on condition that an endowment of $50,000 was raised, and all of this sum, except about $8,000, has been secured, and an active effort is now making to secure the rest.

FAME.

BY [illegible]

Once I knew a poor old poet,
Aged with work and want and care,
And the home that most he longed for
Answered not his life-long prayer.
Famishing, he bore his burden
Bravely, as the poor can;
Hungry for some approbation
From his selfish fellow-man.

By-and-by he died. When caring
Nothing more for love or fame,
Men began to wreathe a laurel
Round the poor old poet's name,
And they built a [illegible] of marble
His last resting-place above—
Shutting out the rain and sunshine,
And the flowers poets love.

Yesterday, as I was going
Slowly down a crowded street,
More than once I heard some children
A sweet verse of his repeat.
"When I see the man who wrote it,"
One looked up to me and said;
"I shall tell him that I love him."
"Ah," I answered, "he is dead!"

Passing by the dead's still city,
Saw I where a people's pride
Reared a pile of dreary marble
O'er the heart that starved and died.
"Ah," I thought, "the poor old poet,
If the children's words are known,
Counts them as the sweetest tribute.
Asked for bread, men gave a stone!"

SHIOCTON, WIS.

PITH AND POINT.

Said he, "Let us be one." And she was won.

Can a man intoxicated by music be said to be air-tight?

What an irascible father says: "As the twig is bent, the boy is inclined to shoot out at the door."

Josh Billings: "Natur hav phun; if she doesn't she never would have made a munky."

Large mouths are now fashionable among women. They are worn open, of course, as heretofore.

"A kiss," said young Charles, "is a noun, we allow; but tell me, my dear, is it proper or common?" Lovely Mary blushed deep and exclaimed, "Why, I vow, I think that a kiss is both proper and common."

A darky who was stopping to wash his hands in a ditch didn't notice the peculiar actions of a goat just behind; so when he scrambled out of the water, and was asked how it happened, he answered: "I dunno 'xactly, but 'peared as if de shore kinder h'isted and frowd me."

"We don't want all this, we don't want it," said a solicitor, to a voluble old lady in the witness box; "it is irrelevant." But the witness paid no heed, and talked on, finishing with, "There, you've got it, whether you want it or not; and it isn't irreverent, either!"

A member of the North Carolina Legislature, dining at a Raleigh hotel, saw a pod of red pepper on a dish near at hand. He thought it was a new kind of fruit and took a bite. The tears streamed down his cheeks as he put the pod down, saying: "Dash you, lay there and cool."

"Father," said the elder heir, "is it proper to say 'we is rich,' or 'we am rich?'" The old man worked carefully down into the hollow of his boot under the instep, remaining a long time in thoughtful meditation, and then slowly replied: "Well, I should say it would come nigher to the truth to say we hain't rich."

"Thrashing by steam," murmured a fond mother, as she glanced at an article in an agricultural paper. "What git-ups they do have nowadays. If I had had one of those steam thrashers for my four boys, my arms wouldn't have been as rheumaticky as they are to-day," and she dreamily thought of the past as it might have been.

A fashionable Galveston young man thinks he is great as an elocutionist. His strong card is reading the ghost scene in Shakspeare. After hearing him recite, an elderly gentleman was asked what he thought of him. "Well," said the old gentleman, "I think he ought to have given up the ghost long ago."—Galveston News.

A receipt for making soup: Take a pail of water and wash it clean, then boil it till it is brown on both sides; pour in one bean; when the bean begins to worry prepare to simmer. If soup won't simmer it's too rich; pour in more water; dry the water with a towel before you put it in; the dryer the water the sooner it browns. Serve hot.

Recorder—"What excuse have you for climbing over into this gentleman's garden and trespassing on his property?" Prisoner—"The best excuse in the world, Judge. I went over by mistake." "How so?" "Well, you see, I thought those oranges in his garden were sweet oranges, but after I had tried 'em I found they were the bitter kind, so you see I went over by mistake."—Galveston News.

A sad-looking man went into a Burlington drug-store. "Can you give me," he asked, "something that will drive from my mind the thoughts of sorrow and bitter recollections?" And the druggist nodded and put him up a little dose of quinine, wormwood and rhubarb, epsom salts and a dash of castor-oil, and gave it to him; and for six months the man couldn't think of anything in the world except new schemes for getting the taste out of his mouth.—Burdette.

For broken panes the glazier comes,
For inward pains the doctor;
But none can the expertness show
Of the bilious concoctor.

"Is there a letter here in a scented envelope for my wife?" he asked the Postmaster, while the green fire from his eyes made the office look like a leafy forest. "Yes, sir," answered the Postmaster, as he handed it out. The jealous man tore it open at once, when, lo and behold! it was the milliner's bill for $100. The end.

A Jersey, like a coat of mail,
The shapely form incases,
And to a dainty waist can't fail
To add developed graces;
To draw it on requires a knack
Quite easy to attain,
But what a business 'tis, good lack,
To get it off again!

Doubtful Compliment.

A young minister and his wife visited the congregation where his father was previously the pastor. He preached on the Sabbath, and after service one of the venerable elders, speaking with the young minister's wife, said: "Your husband preached from the same text that his father had the last time he was in that pulpit." "Indeed!" replied the lady. "I hope it was not the same sermon, too." "Oh, no," said the good elder, "his father was a dreadful smart man."

THE FAMILY DOCTOR.

A NEW wash for the delicate skin of infants is made by obtaining maple twigs. Put a small lump of alum in and boil with the twigs. Wash the tender places with this in lieu of water.

COLDS in the head are always in order. Some one recommends as an easy cure, if attended to promptly, a teaspoonful of pulverized borax dissolved in a pint of hot water; when tepid snuff some up the nostrils two or three times a day, or use the dry powdered borax like snuff, taking a pinch as often as required.

FOR cuts, wounds and sores: Surgeon's solution of carbolic acid and pure glycerine, mixed in equal parts, and applied on soft lint or linen cloth. Other remedies, ready-prepared, can also be bought at the drug stores. It is wise to always have some kind of remedy on hand, as a bad cut or wound, taken in time, may heal quickly, but neglected and exposed a short time a cold may settle in it, and produce painful, if not serious, results.

MRS. THOMPSON, in the Evangelist, says the best remedy for sleeplessness is to wet a towel, apply it to the back of the neck, pressing it toward the base of the brain and fasten the dry half of the towel over, so as to prevent too rapid exhalation. The effect is prompt and pleasant, cooling the brain and bringing on a sweet slumber. Warm water is better than cold. To all suffering from overwork, excitement or anxiety, this remedy must prove a blessing.

FOR burns: Lime water, olive oil and glycerine, equal parts, applied on lint. Good remedies, and ready-prepared, can also be obtained at any drug store, and should be kept constantly in the house and in factories where persons are exposed to burns. If none of these are handy, apply, quickly, flour and lard, mixed. Keep the wound from exposure to the air. A good liniment for burns, after the above application, is made of three ounces each of tincture of opium, camphorated oil and soap liniment. A good salve for cuts and burns is one-half pound of sweet lard, one-fourth pound beeswax, one-fourth ditto resin; beat all together till well mixed, and put up in a tin box or wide-mouthed bottle. Apply to the wound on soft cotton or lint.

TO STOP bleeding: Apply wet tea leaves, or a paste of flour and vinegar, or a cold bandage. If an artery, bandage tightly above the wound, so as to make the knot press hard upon the artery and stop the circulation until a physician can be summoned. If an arm or leg is cut, elevate it so that the force of gravity will aid in restraining the flow of blood instead of accelerating it. To stop bleeding at the nose, bathe the feet in hot water, making at the same time some cayenne tea. Sometimes a piece of paper or cloth folded to several thicknesses and saturated in very cold water, and placed between the upper lip and jaw, pressed up as far as it will go, is beneficial. It is easily tried. A bit of ice wrapped in paper would answer the same purpose. The cold and the pressure of the parts produce the desired effect. Holding the arms above the head is also recommended. If the bleeding continues, despite the efforts to check it, summon a physician at once. Sometimes the ailment proves fatal.

A Lady's Wish.

"Oh, how I do wish my skin was as clear and soft as yours," said a lady to her friend. "You can easily make it so," answered the friend. "How?" inquired the first lady. "By using Hop Bitters, that makes pure, rich blood and blooming health. It did it for me, as you observe." Read of it.—Cairo Bulletin.

Was There a Glacial Man in America?

But was there any Glacial man in America? To this question the answer is distinct, though given with the reserve which the subject justifies. For the best that is known, we are chiefly indebted to Dr. C. C. Abbott, who was the first to call attention to the stone implements found in the glacial deposits of the Delaware valley. These implements are chiefly of argellite, though examples of flint occur at higher levels. They have been found at the bluffs near Trenton, both in position where deposited and among the debris at the base. Dr. Abbott says: "Perhaps it is a wise caution that is exercised, in but provisionally admitting the great antiquity of American man, but were these rude implements not attributed to an inter-glacial people, their co-equal age with containing beds would never have been questioned." On this point the curator of the Peabody Museum at Cambridge observed, in his tenth annual report: "Dr. Abbott has probably obtained data which show that man existed on our Atlantic coast, during the time of, if not prior to, the formation of the great gravel deposit which extends toward the coast from the Delaware River, near Trenton, and believed to have been formed by glacial action. From a visit to the locality with Dr. Abbott, I see no reason to doubt the general conclusion he has reached in regard to the existence of man in glacial times on the Atlantic coast of North America."—B. F. De Costa in Popular Science Monthly.

Too Much Enterprise.

An eagle, flying down from his eyrie on a lofty rock, seized a lamb and carried him aloft in his talons. A jackdaw, witnessing the capture of the lamb, was stirred with envy, and said to himself: "Why, that looks to be as easy as starting a big newspaper," and he determined to emulate the strength and flight of the eagle. He flew around with a great whirr of his wings, and finally settled upon a large ram, with the intention of carrying him off, anyhow; but, his claws becoming entangled in the fleece, he was not able to release himself, although he fluttered with his wings as much as he could. The shepherd, seeing what had happened, ran up and caught him, and, clipping his wings, took him home for the children to play with. On their asking, "Father, what kind of a bird is this?" he replied, "To my certain knowledge he is a daw; but he will have it that he is an eagle."

This fable teaches a great many things, and, among others, that starting a big newspaper is an undertaking that should be seriously considered in advance.—Galveston News.

The Grandest Canyon in Colorado.

The grand canyon of the Gunnison, which begins only a short distance from town, is equal in grandeur and wildness of scenery to the canyon of the Colorado and throws the canyon of the Arkansas into the shade. It is upward of forty miles long and the mountains rise on either side to the height of upward of 5,000 feet.—Gunnison News.

President Garfield's Children.

The children are two boys, one girl, and two more boys. Their first child was a girl, which died when a few months old. The last one was a boy, that died when about two years old. Harry, the oldest living, is sixteen; Abram, the youngest, is eight; "Jim" is fourteen; Molly, twelve, and Irvin, ten years old. Harry is a quiet, steady boy, very obedient and dutiful, particularly respectful towards his parents and grandmother. The writer had an opportunity of seeing a characteristic letter which he wrote to his mother, shortly after the Chicago Convention, he and "Jim" being in school at Concord, N. H., at the time. He spoke of the fact that some of his schoolmates had manifested a great deal more interest in himself and "Jim" since their "pa" was nominated for President. He evidently thought this a little snobby, and said he didn't consider that they were a bit bigger or better than they were before, and that he would respect his father just as much "even if he were nothing but a Congressman all his life." He didn't seem to think it a very big thing to be a Congressman.

Jim is what is called a rollicking boy. He is never known to be still unless asleep. Both physically and intellectually he is very strong and very quick. He masters his studies almost without effort and in an incredibly short time. At school he likes the gymnasium; he excels on the trapeze and the springboard. At home he stands on his head, walks on his hands with his heels up, turns handsprings and somersaults, and jumps the fence in preference to opening the gate. He is good-natured, kind-hearted and accommodating, and famous for boyish devilment. Molly is a rather quiet girl, with remarkable good sense for her years; she keeps her lessons pretty close and plays the piano very well. Irvin is the queerest genius of the family, though I don't know how to describe him. "Abe" is an artist. He is always making pictures, and seems to prefer drawings of machinery. A train of cars is one of his favorite drawings, and he will have the engine, baggage, and mail cars, the coaches and sleepers, all so perfect that it would take an expert to find a part left out.—Sketch of the Garfield Family, by T. L. Nichol.

Idaho's Mineral Wealth.

Hon. John B. Neil, the Governor of Idaho Territory, has reported to the Secretary of the Interior the condition and progress of that Territory, particularly with reference to its agricultural and mineral resources. The report states that there are now from twelve to fifteen million acres of land in the Territory; capable of being reclaimed by irrigation, from ten to twelve million acres; used for pasturage and grazing lands, five million acres; timber land, ten million acres; mineral lands, eight million acres; and about five million acres arid desert and volcanic. The yield of wheat to the acre is sixty-five to seventy bushels, and oats sixty to seventy bushels. Within the past year nearly 500,000 acres have been taken up under laws for the disposal of public lands. The census of 1880 gives the population at 40,000, including Indians. The most important mineral region is the Salmon River and Wood River districts. The mineral belt is fifty-two miles in length and ten in width. The ores are silver, principally native, brittle, and sulphurate of silver and galena ore. Shipments have been made to Salt Lake City which average from $150 to $200 per ton. The galena ores carry from forty to sixty per cent. lead, and from $80 to $250 in silver. The discoveries in the Salmon River District are immensely rich, some veins being from five to fourteen feet thick, from which are taken averages from $500 to $1,700 per ton. The annual yield of gold is very large. Free gold ore gives from $15 to $40 per ton. In the Kinnikinnick District the mills turned out in the last year over $100,000 in bullion. Since the first discovery of gold and silver in the Territory, in 1852, its mines have contributed not less than $75,000,000. The output for the past year may not exceed $500,000.

Cause and Effect.

The main cause of nervousness is indigestion, and that is caused by weakness of the stomach. No one can have sound nerves and good health without using Hop Bitters to strengthen the stomach, purify the blood, and keep the liver and kidneys active, to carry off all the poisonous and waste matter of the system. See other column.—Advance.

Do London Fogs Kill?

It has often been disputed whether London fogs, though they certainly depress vitality, do actually kill. The question seems to be settled by Dr. Arthur Mitchell, who, in the Scottish Meteorological Journal, shows that during the fog, which lasted from November, 1879, to February, 1880, and which was one of the most remarkable fogs on record, the deaths from certain diseases increased in a striking degree, while the ordinary death rate from other causes did not decline. The fogs made bronchitis, pneumonia and whooping cough more deadly, but raised asthma to the rank of an immediately dangerous disease. The deaths rose from this cause through December to 43 per cent. above the average, and in January to 220 per cent.; while in February, when the fog cleared away, the rate sank to 30 per cent. below the normal level. The remaining great towns of the island were remarkably free from fog, and the death rate from asthma did not increase. There is every apparent probability of a similar fog this year. London having been dark with fog in the upper air almost throughout the week, and this in spite of unusually brilliant weather all round. Some oculist of standing should publish a report on the effect of the special absence of light in London upon the eyesight of the population.—London Spectator.

IN a restaurant—A gentleman and a scrub are seated at the same table. The scrub is just finishing his dinner, the gentleman is just beginning his. Scrub lights a cigar and blows a cloud of smoke over his coffee. The gentleman rises and says in his politest tone: "Excuse me, sir, will it annoy you if I eat while you are smoking?"

BAD habits are easily contracted; so are Colds, and both are very hard to get rid of. The Colds are quickly and surely cured by Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

A Good Card for the Country Where He Lived.

A village merchant from up the country had concluded his purchases, and was ready to go, when he suddenly remembered something, and said:

"I want your help to bring out an idea. I've got tired of advertising after the old fashion, and I want to strike something new."

"Did you ever try the dodge of giving away a chromo to customers?"

"Yes. Played that out two years ago. Folks don't take to chromos as they did."

"Have you offered a silk apron to the lady making the heaviest purchase at one time?"

"I have. And I had to give it to an old woman who purchased an old bed-tick and half a pound of tea."

"How would it do to give away, say ten half-pound packages of tea during the day?"

"I tried that dodge, and those who didn't get the tea wouldn't trade with me again. I've given away oysters, sardines, butter, rolling-pins, washboards, and almost everything else, and now I must have something new. I keep all kinds of goods and want all kinds of customers."

Two members of the firm and the gray-headed old book-keeper went into committee of the whole with the merchant, but he resisted every suggestion. The "convention" was in despair, when the customer suddenly slapped his leg, smiled all over, and broke out with:

"I've got it—biggest draw yet! I want a pair of the finest kid shoes in this city—about No. 3's. I'll take 'em home and advertise to give 'em to the first lady customer who can wear 'em. The catch will be to keep back the size."

"You won't have 'em on your hands long."

"Won't I? Say, I've lived in —— over forty years, and I'll bet a silk hat against a codfish that we haven't got a female above 12 years old who doesn't have to tie a towel around her head to get her feet into No. 5's. You ought to come up there and see the tracks in the sand after a smart shower. When I throw out my dodge and they come in after the shoes, they'll turn whiter than ghosts at the first look, and every blessed soul of 'em will be glad to take a 3-cent cake of soap and keep still about it."—Wall Street News.

An Indiana Sportsman's Experience.

[From the Valparaiso (Ind.) Messenger.]

One of the finest kennels in this country, and the purest in the West, is owned by Mr. W. H. Holabird—The Sportsman's Clothier of Valparaiso, Indiana. He says: "We use St. Jacobs Oil in our family in preference to all other liniments; I have also tried it in my kennel with wonderful results."

Ships That Have Never Been Heard From.

The following European steamers have never been heard of after leaving port: The President, which sailed from this port on March 11, 1841, had among her passengers Tyrone Power, the famous Irish comedian, and a son of the Duke of Richmond. The Great Britain was lost in a storm on the coast of Ireland; left Sept. 22, 1846. The City of Glasgow was never heard of after leaving Glasgow in the spring of 1854; 480 lives were lost. The Pacific was never heard from after Jan. 23, 1856, when she left Liverpool; 200 lives lost. The Tempest was never heard from after she left New York on Feb. 26, 1857. The Connaught burned off the coast of Massachusetts Oct. 7, 1860. The United Kingdom left New York April 17, 1869; was never heard from; eighty lives lost. The City of Boston left New York Jan. 25, 1870, and was never afterward heard from; about 160 lives lost. The Hibernia foundered off the Irish coast Nov. 29, 1868, but was heard from. The Carolina was wrecked on the Irish coast Nov. 29, 1868, and fifty lives lost. The Ismalia left New York Sept. 29, 1873, and is yet unheard of. The St. George was destroyed by fire at sea Dec. 24, 1852.—New York Dispatch.

A Caution About Shot in Game.

The London Lancet publishes the following: This being the season when game killed by shot, and probably containing the pellets, is eaten, it may be worth while to caution those who consume the flesh of birds with avidity that the proportion of instances in which shot is found is probably small in comparison with the number of cases in which the pellets are unwittingly swallowed. It is a matter of speculation how much mischief a shot may do, when it is passed into the intestines, but the fact that anomalous diseases have been set up by the presence of very small bodies which have been entangled in the folds of the mucous membrane renders it desirable to put the public on their guard. Occasionally the most disastrous results have followed such small causes. We have in recollection the case of a physician who died after prolonged and unexplained sufferings from the impaction of a very small nail which had found its way into a pudding, and was inadvertently swallowed. A little care will avoid this contingency; but, remembering the bird had been shot, some pains ought certainly to be taken to avoid swallowing the missile.

Cheap Telegraphy.

In Switzerland, if one wishes to send a telegraph message, he must pay six cents to begin with, and then for one-half cent a word he can send a message to any part of the country. For instance, one may send a message of five hundred words from Genoa to Constance—a distance of nearly two hundred miles—for $2.56. Or, if a message of ten words will suffice, it will cost him only eleven cents. Yet, even at these low rates the net profits of the Swiss telegraph department last year were about $100,000. The English Government, when it took over the private telegraph companies and made them an adjunct of the Post-office Department, paid liberal and in many cases extravagant prices to the companies. But one may now send a message of twenty words to any point in the United Kingdom for one shilling—twenty-four cents—and postal telegraph is making money for the government.

A NEW Baptist convert wished very much to be baptized by one minister and to join the church of another. She went to the first and asked if it could be done. "Yes," he replied; "I could do it, but I don't take in washing."

Two Eccentric Men.

As a Griswold street lawyer had just finished tacking up a sign of "Shut this door" where he thought it would do the most good an oldish man, having a sourish expression on his face, came up stairs. The instant he saw the sign he said:

"All bosh, sir—all bosh. I never pay any attention to such signs."

"But other people do," replied the lawyer.

"Let 'em do so then. I am just eccentric enough to leave your door open when I go out."

And so he did. He walked once or twice around the room, made a few inquiries, and left the door wide open, as he walked out. When he had reached the street a boy overtook him and asked him to return to the room on important business. He climbed up stairs, and the lawyer asked him:

"Did you leave your gold-headed cane here?"

"No, sir—here it is," replied the caller, as he held it up.

"Ah! so it is. I was just eccentric enough to think that this stove-poker was your gold-headed cane. All right—no harm done—good by!"

When the stranger went down stairs he left the prints of his heels on every step.—Detroit Free Press.

MONEY IN IT.

[From the St. Louis Times.]

The best investment is in that which will maintain health. From a letter of Mr. C. W. Eck, No. 12 S. 5th St., St. Louis, Mo., it is learned that the clerk of the Money Order Dept. at the postoffice in Alton, Ill., Mr. J. B. Kuhn, suffered for some time with indigestion and all its accompanying evils—a headache, loss of appetite and despondency, and was surely becoming a hypochondriac. He commenced the use of Hamburg Drops and is now well and strong again.

Our Waking Dreams.

How much is our wakeful life interwoven with dreams! How largely we live in the lights and shadows of the imagination! Man anticipates his morrows! His to-days are mantled in the memories of his yesterdays, and though he moves and acts his to-day, these yesterday memories and the schemes and projects of the morrow furnish the pictures that please or depress—the light in which he lives: and so, absorbed in the contemplation of these, he is lost to the present. Life is not breath: it is thought. Our thoughts are our years. Activity is age. He lives longest who thinks most. Thought is the meter that measures our moments. And much of waking thought is but waking dream. Indeed our transit through this sphere may be but a dream—a long dream with its lights and shadows, its joys, its sorrows, its hopes its disappointments, its pains, its pleasures, which at last ends in the sleep that knows no waking. And then we sleep indeed, but dream no more forever.—Seymour (Ind.) Times.

NO REMEDY for kidney diseases heretofore discovered can be held for one moment in comparison with Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure.—C. A. Harvey, D. D., Washington, D. C.

Good Advice.

Daniel Webster was once an outside passenger on a stage-coach during a prolonged shower. A dandified fellow who sat next to him kept bemoaning the fact that his brand new lavender pantaloons would be ruined by the wet, until Webster, tired out with listening, grunted:

"Then why the devil don't you keep them dry?"

"But how can I?" queried the dandy.

"Take them off and sit on them."

Our orator made the remainder of his journey in peace.

The Epizootic

Has again made its appearance in various parts of the country. As prevention is better than cure, the attention of owners of stock is called to UNCLE SAM'S CONDITION POWDERS. These celebrated powders stand unrivaled for their excellency as a preventive from disease. By mixing with the feed they will keep the animal in the best general health, toning up the system and keeping the digestive organs and blood in a healthy condition. The Powders are warranted to give perfect satisfaction. Prepared by the EMMERT PROPRIETARY Co., Chicago, Ill. Put up in 25 and 50-cent packages, and sold by all druggists.

The Voltaic Belt Co., Marshall, Mich., Will send their Electro-Voltaic Belts to the afflicted upon thirty days' trial. See their advertisement in this paper, headed, "On Thirty Days' Trial."

MALARIAL fevers can be prevented, also other miasmatic diseases, by occasionally using Dr. Sanford's Liver Invigorator, the oldest general Family Medicine, which is recommended as a cure for all diseases caused by a disordered liver. Eighty-page book sent free. Address Dr. Sanford, 162 Broadway, New York.

VEGETINE in Powder Form is sold by all druggists and general stores. If you cannot buy it of them, inclose 50 cents in postage stamps for one package, or $1 for two packages, and I will send it by return mail. H. R. Stevens, Boston, Mass.

FOR a pamphlet on Electric Treatment of chronic diseases with Electricity, which will be sent free, address the McIntosh Electric Belt and Battery Co., 192 & 194 Jackson St., Chicago, Ill.

EVERY farmer and teamster should know that Frazer axle grease cures sore necks and scratches on horses.

A THOROUGH practical education can be had at H. B. Bryant's Chicago Business College and English Training School. Write for circulars.

CORRECT your habits of crooked walking by using Lyon's Patent Metallic Heel Stiffeners.

Dr. BULL'S
COUGH
SYRUP

[illegible] edits "United Irishman," N. York. ½ year $1.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. Address STINSON & CO., Portland, Me.

PISO'S CURE for Consumption is also the best cough medicine.

$17.50 A DAY made by one agent. Address REV. S. T. BUCK, Leesburg, Pa.

$66 a week in your own town. Terms and $5 Outfit free. Address H. HALLETT & CO., Portland, Me.

BIG WAGES, summer and winter. Samples free. National Copying Co., 300 West Madison st., Chicago.

Franklin's Maxims.

Plow deep while sluggards sleep, and you shall have corn to sell and keep.

Pride is as loud as want, and a great deal more saucy.

Silks and satins, scarlets and velvets, put out the kitchen fire.

Diligence is the mother of good luck.

Pride breakfasted with plenty, dined with poverty, and supped with infamy.

Extravagance and improvidence end at the prison door.

It is easier to build two chimneys than to keep one in fuel.

If you would know the value of money, go and try to borrow some.

What maintains one vice would bring up two children.

He that goes a-borrowing returns sorrowing.

Rather go to bed supperless than rise in debt.

Sloth, like rust, consumes faster than labor wears.

A life of leisure and a life of laziness are two different things.

Creditors have better memories than debtors.

The rolling stone gathers no moss.

If you would have your business done, go; if not, send.

It is foolish to lay out money in the purchase of repentance.

PROF. HUXLEY, in writing upon water, a subject of which but comparatively little is known, says that "water may be pure as can be as regards chemical analysis, and yet, as regards the human body, be as deadly as prussic acid; and on the other hand may be chemically gross and yet do no harm to any one." Organic matter, such as has been shown to exist largely in river water, may therefore not only be harmless but positively beneficial, and save something on a man's board. Chemists who have been presenting a startling array of figures showing the large amount of organic substance in the water, should now analyze the solid matter and ascertain the relative quantity of nutriment there is. It may be that the river is one vast storehouse of groceries and provisions.

RHEUMATISM
ABSOLUTELY CURED.
BY THE USE OF
DR. BOSANKO'S
RHEUMATIC CURE,
THE GREAT
ALKALINE REMEDY.
TRY IT AND BE CURED.
PRICE, 75 Cents.
ASK YOUR DRUGGIST FOR IT.
Address THE DR. BOSANKO MEDICINE CO.,
PIQUA, O.

$777 A YEAR and expenses to agents. Outfit Free. Address P. O. VICKERY, Augusta, Maine.

YOUNG MEN Learn Telegraphy and earn $40 to $100 a month. Every graduate guaranteed a paying situation. Address VALENTINE BROS., Managers, Janesville, Wis.

OPIUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till Cured. DR. J. STEPHENS, Lebanon, Ohio.

JOHN B. PAGE & SON Poultry, Game, Furs, etc., 120 Park Place, N.Y.

$350 A MONTH! Agents Wanted! 75 Best-Selling Articles in the world; 1 sample free. JAY BRONSON, Detroit, Mich.

RED FOX, Skunk, Raccoon, Muskrat, bought for Cash; Highest Prices. Send for Circular, full particulars. E. C. BOUGHTON, 5 Howard St., New York.

DROHAN & CO., Receivers of POULTRY and GAME. Thirty years in Washington Market, N. Y.

WHITALL'S MOVABLE PLANISPHERE and the LITTLE GIANT TELESCOPE are the best helpers in self or class instruction in Astronomy. Furnished by HENRY WHITALL, Phillipsburg, N. J., or J. H. NICHOLS, Easton, Pa. Send stamp for circulars.

BEAUTIFUL Present mailed free to all who send name and address to C. L. MIDDLETON, Flatbush, Kings Co., N. Y.

PURE TEAS. Agents wanted everywhere to sell to families, hotels and large consumers; largest stock in the country; quality and terms the best. Country storekeepers should call or write THE WELLS TEA COMPANY, 201 Fulton st., N. Y. P. O. Box 4560.

MUSTACHE & WHISKERS [illegible]

EMPLOYMENT—LOCAL OR Traveling. State which preferred. Also SALARY per month. All EXPENSES advanced. WAGES promptly paid. SLOAN & Co. 306 George St. Cincinnati, O.

ON 30 DAYS' TRIAL. We will send our Electro-Voltaic Belts and other Electric Appliances upon trial for 30 days to those afflicted with Nervous Debility and diseases of a personal nature. Also of the Liver, Kidneys, Rheumatism, Paralysis, &c. A sure cure guaranteed or no pay. Address Voltaic Belt Co., Marshall, Mich.

Deafness, Ear Diseases, Catarrh. Dr. C. E. SHOEMAKER, the well-known and experienced Aural Surgeon, Author, and Writer on the above Diseases, may be consulted by mail or personally at his office, No. 615 Walnut St., Reading, Pa. His small book sent free. His large and complete work of 375 pages on Deafness, Diseases of the Ear and Tonsils, and Catarrh, and their proper treatment; price $2 by mail. NOTE.—No one will question Dr. Shoemaker's standing or skill.

IF YOU ARE SUFFERING From CATARRH And really want to be cured, just name this paper and send 10 cents to Dr. C. R. Sykes, 169 East Madison st., Chicago, Ill., for "The True Theory of Catarrh and full information of a Sure Cure." Thousands of persons have been cured in the last two years by his plan.

LITERARY REVOLUTION 3 CENTS each, formerly $1.00 to $1.25 each: I. Macaulay's Life of Frederick the Great. II. Carlyle's Life of Robert Burns. III. Lamartine's Life of Mary Queen of Scots. IV. Thos. Hughes's Manliness of Christ. 5 CENTS each, formerly [illegible] each: I. Arnold's Light of Asia. II. Goldsmith's Vicar of Wakefield. III. Baron Munchausen's Travels and Surprising Adventures, illustrated. SIX CENTS: Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress, illustrated. Catalogue sent free. AMERICAN BOOK EXCHANGE, John B. Alden, Manager, Tribune Building, New York.

PENSIONS! New Law. Thousands of Soldiers and heirs entitled. Pensions date back to discharge or death. Time limited. Address, with stamp, GEORGE E. LEMON, P. O. Drawer 325. Washington, D. C.

RED RIVER VALLEY 2,000,000 Acres Wheat Lands best in the World, for sale by the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba R.R. CO. Three dollars per acre allowed the settler for breaking and cultivation. For particulars apply to D. A. McKINLAY, Land Commissioner, St. Paul, Minn.

ST. JACOBS OIL
TRADE MARK.

THE GREAT GERMAN REMEDY FOR RHEUMATISM, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Lumbago, Backache, Soreness of the Chest, Gout, Quinsy, Sore Throat, Swellings and Sprains, Burns and Scalds, General Bodily Pains, Tooth, Ear and Headache, Frosted Feet and Ears, and all other Pains and Aches.

No Preparation on earth equals St. Jacobs Oil as a safe, sure, simple and cheap External Remedy. A trial entails but the comparatively trifling outlay of 50 Cents, and every one suffering with pain can have cheap and positive proof of its claims. Directions in Eleven Languages. SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS AND DEALERS IN MEDICINE. A. VOGELER & CO., Baltimore, Md., U. S. A.

AGENTS! Here is YOUR GOLD MINE! DIGGING GOLD AMONG THE ROCKIES. [illegible] HUBBARD BROS., Chicago, Ill.

CRISTADORO'S [illegible]

J. ESTEY & CO. BRATTLEBORO VT. ORGAN

CELLULOID EYE-GLASSES. Representing the choicest selected Tortoise-Shell and Amber. The lightest, handsomest and strongest known. Sold by Opticians and Jewelers. Made by the SPENCER OPTICAL M'F'G CO., 13 Maiden Lane, New York.

10 CENTS a Month, One Dollar a Year. THE CHICAGO LEDGER [illegible] THE LEDGER, Chicago, Ill.

KIDNEY-WORT The Great Remedy For THE LIVER, THE BOWELS, and the KIDNEYS. [illegible]

AGENTS! AGENTS! AGENTS! JOSIAH ALLEN'S WIFE HAS "HOTTEN" THE BEST AND FUNNIEST OF ALL HER NEW BOOK. "My Wayward Pardner." AGENTS WANTED in every Town. [illegible]

PETROLEUM VASELINE JELLY. Grand Medal at Philadelphia Exposition. Silver Medal at Paris Exposition. [illegible]

C. GILBERT'S STARCH

ENCYCLOPÆDIA OF ETIQUETTE AND BUSINESS [illegible]

SAPONIFIER In the "Original" Concentrated Lye and Reliable Family Soap Maker. [illegible] Penn'a Salt Manufact'g Co., Phila.

DR. MARCHISI'S UTERINE CATHOLICON [illegible]

YOUNG MAN OR OLD [illegible]

O N U. No. 32

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

Fruit House Prices

—FOR—

Christmas and New ear.

GREAT DROP ON

Sugar, Coffee, Prunes, Teas, Etc.

All SUGARS reduced 1 cent per pound.
All COFFEES reduced 2 cents per pound.
Turkish PRUNES reduced 4 cents per pound.
TEAS reduced 10 cents per pound.
And for the Holiday trade we have

Toys, Toy Candies, French Candies, German Toys. Christmas-Tree Candies, and New-Year Gifts of every Description.

Santa Claus in all His Glory.

SUGARS REDUCED 1 1-2C PER POUND.

Crushed	10c	Coffee A	9c
Powdered Sugar	10c	Coffee C	8c
Granulated	10c	Brown Sugar	7c

COFFEES REDUCED 2C PER POUND.

Choice Rio	14c	Roasted Rio	18c
Best Rio	16c	Best	20c
Old Government Java	25c	This is the lowest coffee has sold since 1864

TEAS DOWN 10C PER POUND.

Our tea trade is simply immense No secret about it—just the same rule as in Sugars, sellin at a small profit, and purchasing direct of the importer; we therefore save the profits of the speculator and wholesale merchant. This profit our customers get the benefit of, and it is from 10c to 15c per pound.

Young Hyson	25c	Good Young Hyson	40c	Best Young Hyson	60c
Imperial	40c	Good Imperial	50c	Best Imperial	65c
Gunpowder	40c	Good Gunpowder	50c	Best Gunpowder	65c
Oolong Black Tea	30c	Good Black Tea	40c	Best Oolong	60c
Uncalendered Japan	30c	Good Japan	40c	Best Japan	60c

All our Teas, even the second qualities, warranted to give satisfaction, and the best can 't be beat. Our 60c Tea is equal to any dollar tea sold elsewhere.

Christmas and New Year Goods.

Santa Claus Toys, Christmas Tree Candles and a thousand other things for the holidays, such as Bears, Lions, Leopards, Cats, Dogs, Monkeys, Wagons, Hose Carts, Soldiers, Drums, Vases, Albums, Fancy Candles, French Candles, Fruit Candies, Stick Candies 12½c per lb.; French Candies, 15c per pound; Fruit Candies, 20c and 35c per pound, etc., etc.

Fresh Oysters down 5 cents Per Can,

XXX	14c	Family	20c	S & W	25c	Select Frying	32c

Tobacco of All Kinds.

No 1 Fine Cut	75c	Good Fine Cut	40c
Choice Fine Cut	60c	Good Plug Tobaco	40c
Choice Plug Tobacco	50c	Durham	48c
Best No. 1	60c	Uncle Ned	35c
Smoking	25c

Fish Oil, 70c; Neats Foot Oil 70c; Machine Oil, 25c and 35c; Headlight Oil, 20c.

Syrups. Molasses and Maple Syrup.

Extra Golden Syrup, per gallon	45c	Maple Syrup	1
White Sugar Loaf Drips	60c	Best New Orleans	00

FOR CHRISTMAS CAKE.

Citron, per pound 25c Orange and Lemon Peel 20c Shelled Almonds 35
Nuts of all kinds and best Turkish Prunes, a

Liquors, Wines Whiskies Scotch Ale, Dublin and London Porter,

Good, new Whisky, per gallon	$1 00	California wine	$1 25
Whisky, one year old	1 25	New England Rum	1 50
Whisky, two years old	1 40	Brandy	1 50
Whisky, three years old, '76	2 50	Scotch Ale, per bottle	22
Sherry Wine	1 25	London Porter	2
Port Wine ... gallon	1 25	Doublin Stout	18

Fish, Meats, Pork, Lard, Bacon, Spices, &c.

25 Cents on the Dollar you can save at least by purchasing at the

FORT WAYNE FRUIT HOUSE,
FORT WAYNE, INDIANA.

1850. PIONEER 1880

Hardware Store.

Headquarter for Stoves !

The Celebrated Buffalo N. Y. Stoves have been sold in this house for 25 years. A full stock alway on hand.

—A full line of—

BUILDING HARDWARE and SHELF GOODS.
Wagon and Buggy Mt erial,
White Lead, Paints, Oils and Varnishes,
Table and Pocket Cutlery,
Silver-Plated Knives and Forks and Spoons,
Granite Iron-Ware,
Oliver Chilled and Bryan Plows.
FARMING IMPLEMENTS
BLACKSMITHS' MATERIALS,
Buffalo Scales, Sash & Doors,
WOOD AND IRON PUMPS, & DRIVE-WELL FIXTURES,
All at prices to suit the times.
Call at the old stand when you want bargains.

JOHN L. DAVIS, Proprietor.

ISAAC HAGUE'S

NEW SHOE STORE!

A NEW STOCK OF

BOOTS AND SHOES

Arriving daily, for spring and summer trade. Fine goods for ladies a specialty. A full line of men's and boy's shoes, of the lates styles, at low prices. Our facilities for buying are such as to enable us to buy at manufacturers prices, thereby saving our customers one or more profits. Call and examine our stock and satisfy yourselv that what we say is true.

MR. CHARLES RAUT

Is associated with me, and as we are both experienced workmen we are prepared to do custom work, either sewed or pegged, on short notice and at reasonable rates. Repairing promptly attended to. Remember the place,—firstdoor east of Mcquiston & Ralstons double store, north of the court house, Auburn, Ind.

16-tf. ISAAC HAGUE

CLOCKS, CLOCKS,

GOLD

—AND—

Silver Watches

Rodgers & Brother's PLATED WARE,
SPOONS, KNIVES, and FORKS.
Rings, Necklaces, Vest Chains Ladies Gold Chains,
Castors, Everything in tne Jewelry line.
Violins, Guitars,
Banjos, Accordeons,
Violin Strings.
Special attention given to repairing fine watches

All Work Warranted.

No charge for mending silver ware sold at

JOE ABRIGHT'S,
Second door north of Postoffice, Auburn, Ind

1881.

HARPER'S BAZAR.

[ILLUSTRATED.]

This periodical, by its able and scholarly discussions of the questions of the day, as well as by its illustrations—which are prepared by the best artists—has always exerted a most powerful and beneficial influence upon the public mind.

The weight of its influence will always be found on the side of morality, enlightenment and refinement.

HARPER'S PERIODICALS.

HARPER'S BAZAR one year	4 00
" WEEKLY one year	4 05
" MAGAZINE one year	$4 00
The three above publications	10 00
Any two above named	7 00
HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE 1 year	1 50

Postage free to all subscribers in the United States or Canada.

The volumes of the Weekly begin with the first number for January of each year. When no time is mentioned it will be understood that the subscriber wishes to commence with the number next after the receipt of order.

The last eleven annual volumes of Harper's Weekly, in neat cloth binding, will be sent by mail, postage paid, or by express, free of expense (provided the freight does not exceed one dollar per volume), for $7.00 each.

Cloth cases for each volume, suitable for binding, will be sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of $1.00 each.

Remittances should be made by postoffice money-order or draft, to avoid chance of loss.

[Newspapers are not to copy this advertisement without the express order of Harper & Brothers.]

Address, HARPER & BROTHERS.
New York.

Money to Loan.

In sums and on terms to suit all. Apply at Guy Plumb's law office. Low rates of interest.

38-3m. C. N. HASKALL.

Tickets ! Tickets ! Tickets !

First-class, emigrant and round-trip railroad tickets to all points east or west can be bought at low rates by calling upon the undersigned at Auburn Junction, or addressing

J. J. MARTIN, Ag't, B. & O. R. R.
tf Auburn Ind.

Examination Of Teachers.

Examinations for the year commencing June 1st, 1879, will be held regularly, in the high-school building at Auburn, the last Saturday of each month. Special examinations at other points on due notice.

W. H. MACINTOSH,
Co. Sup't. of schools

Agents.

All persons, either ladies or gentlemen, who desire good, profitable employment, and the pleasantest kind of work at their own homes, should send address to J. J. KENNEDY,
51-4t. Willimantic, Conn.

The Greatest Medical Discovery of the Age.

Kellogg's Columbian Oil is a powerful remedy, which can be taken internally as well as externally by the tenderest infant. It cures almost instantly, is pleasant, acting directly upon the nervous system causing a sudden bouvancy of the mind. In short, the wonderful effects of the most worderful remedy cannot be explained in written language. A single dose inhaled and taken according to directions will convince any one that it is all that is claimed for it. Warranted to cure the following diseases: Rheumatism or Kidney Disease in any form, Headache, Toothache, Earache, Neuralgia, Sprains, Bruises, Flesh Wounds, Bunions, Burns, Corns, Spinal Affection, Colic, Cramping Pains, Cholera Morbus, Flux, Diarrhœa, Coughs, Colds, Bronchial Affection, Catarrh, and all aches and pains, external or internal. Full directions with each bottle. For sale by Casebeer& Matheny. 34 eow-1y.

Final Settlement.

Notice is hereby given that Robert Arford administrator of the estate of David Flickinger deceased, has filed his final settlement report in my office, and the same will be heard at the next term of the DeKalb circuit court.

JOHN ... BAXTER, Clerk.
December 11, 1880. 31-4

"TOO LATE: TOO LATE."

Mr. Tilden will never again enter Politics—What he had to say to General Steedman.

(Cin. Enquirer.)

TOLEDO, OHIO, December 14.—Gen. J. B. Steedman returned from New York to-day, where he had a conference with leading politicians and prominent members of the democratic party, among them Gen. Hancock, Mr. Tilden and John Kelly. Gen. Hancock, he says, utterly ignores politics, and in an hour and a half of conversation did not refer to the recent campaign.

Mr. Tilden, the general saw first on horseback and was struck, he says, with his robust appearance. Subsequently, in a visit of some considerable length, the general found him in excellent health and looking fully ten years younger. To his observation to that effect, Mr. Tilden said: 'You must remember I have had five months of perfect rest.'

General Steedman then said that he thought there were indications that Mr. Tilden in four years, if his health was preserved, would be called to lead the democrat party. 'Too late; too late." Mr. Tilden replied quickly. 'No,' I have retired from politics and from business forever. I shall devote the rest of my days to trying to live as long as I can, and to my personal comfort. Nor do I say this as Horatio Seymour said in 1868, but this is my full decision.'

Speaking of the late campaign, Mr. Tilden said if nominated at Cincinnati, he wood have been elected.

'Would you have carried New York?' asked the general, 'with Kelly opposing you?'

'Undoubtedly,' he replied, 'I might not have had so large a majority as in 1876, but New York would have been entirely safe.'

John and Charley.

[Globe-Democrat.]

There are very distinct evidence of a Sherman senatorial boom among the republican voters of Ohio, but the voters do not elect a senator, and Charley Foster is ahead among the members of the legislature.

Our O. S.

(Atlanta Constitution.)

Ohio has a state board of equlization, but is has long been conceded that nothing can equalize an Ohio office-seeker.

$100

Reward

For any case of

CATARRH

That cannot be cured with

HALL'S CATARRH CURE.

This is no humbug. No nasae douche. No snuff. Nothing to irritata the nasal cavity or distroy the senel of smell. It is an INTERNAL REMEDY ACTING UPON THE BLOOD, cleansing it from its impurities, causing the puriform matter to be carried off through the natural channels. It is a scientific preparation used and prescribed for years by one of the ablest practitioners in this country, and has never failed to cure when used according to direction.

WE MAKE THIS PROPOSITION:

If any person, after taking one dozen of HALL'S CATARRH CURE is NOT CURED OR BENEFITED more than four times its cost, we will refund the money paid. If it does you good you are willing to pay for it. If it does no good it costs you nothing.

PRICE 75 CENTS PER BOTTLE.

Manufactured by F. J. CHENEY & Co., Druggists, Toledo, O.

11-1 yr. For Sale by all Druggists'

1881

THE STEADFAST WATCHMAN

—of—

PUBLIC INTELLIGENCE,
and Exponent of
American Democracy.

THE INDIANA

STATE SENTINEL!

Has again been enlarged. It will hereafter be a

56 Column Quarto,

Making a growth in size of over twenty per cent., or an addition of reading during the year of 416 Columns.

This makes the Sentinel the largest and most desirable weekly paper in the United States, placing it ahead of all its rivals. Every Indian should be proud of it.

Price Per Year, Single Copy, $150

Special Rates To Clubs.

Persons wishing to be ... send for private circul a copy. Liberal cash commission to agents, also first-class list of special premiums offered.

Address

SENTINEL COMPANY,
Indianapolis, Indiana

RAILROADS

WayneFt., & Jackson Railroad.

SHORT LINE

Time-Card takes effect Dec. 6, 1880.

(Chicago Time.)

GOING NORTH.

Leave Auburn:

4:15 A. M.—From Fort Wayne 1:50 a. m.; arrive at Waterloo 4:40; Pleasant Lake, 5:35; Angola, 5:45; Fremont, 6:20; Reading, 7:35; Bankers, 8:00; (connecting closely with D. H. & S. W. R.) arriving at Hillsdale 8:10 a. m.; Ypsilanti 10:40 a. m.; Detroit 11:30 a. m.; Jonesville, 8:30; connecting with the Lake Shore & South railroad for points west Jackson, 10:30 a. m. there connecting for points west on Michigan Cent. and Grand River valley Ry.

12:31 P. M.—From Fort Wayne 11:30 a. m., Academie, 11:45; Huntertown, 11:55; New Era, 12:00 p. m.; Auburn Junction, 12:28; arrive at Waterloo 12:44, connecting with L. S. & M. S. train east and west; Summit, 12:55; Pleasant Lake, 1:06; Angola, 1:16; Fremont, 1:35; Reading, 2:05; Bankers, 2:15, make close connection with D. H. & S. W. R. R.; Jonesville 2:35 (making connection with L. S. & M. S. for points east; Hillsdale, 2:53; Adrian 4:05; Toledo, 6:25, p. m.), Jackson, 3 40 p. m., making close connection for Ann Arbor, Detriot, Lansing, Ionia, Saginaw, Grand Rapids, Battle Creek, etc.

6:01 P. M.—From Fort Wayne, 5:00 p. m; New Era, 5:30 arrive at Waterloo 6:00; Summit, 6:25; Pleasant Lake 6:35; Angola, 6:47; Fremont, 7:00; Reading, 7:35; Jonesville, 8:20; Jackson, 9:22 p.m.; connecting closely with Michigan Central railroad; fast train arriving at Detroit at 11:50 p. m.; Buffalo, 6: a. m.; and New York, 10:00 p. m.; also Chicago, Grand Rapids, etc.

GOING SOUTH.

Leave Auburn:

9:17 A. M.—From Jackson, 6:05 a. m; closely connecting from Chicago; Jonesville, 6:45; connecting from Chicago, Sturgis, Colwater, etc.; Reading, 7:40; Montgomery, 7:54; Fremont, 8:12; Angola, 8:30; Pleasant Lake, 8:40; Summit, 8:52; Waterloo, 9:05; arrive at St. Johns, 9:30; New Era, 9:38; Huntertown, 9:55; Academie, 10:05; Ft. Wayne, 10:20 a. m. connecting closely with Indianapolis, Louisville, Cincinnati, etc.

3 22 P. M.—From Jackson 12:20 p. m.; (connecting from Detroit 9:35 a. m., Ann Arbor, Saginaw, Lansing, Grand Rapids, etc.;) Jonesville, 1:18, close connection from Toledo; Bankers, 1:33; Reading, 1:45; Montgomery, 1:55; Fremont, 2:15; Angola, 2:40; Pleasant Lake, 2:50; Summit, 3:00; Waterloo, 3:12; arrive at Auburn Junction, 3:25; St. Johns, 3:37; New Era, 3:45; Stoner's, 3:53; Huntertown, 3:58; Academie, 4:05 Fort Wayne, 4:20 p. m.; connecting for Indianapolis, Louisville, Cincinnati, and all points east via P. F. W. and C. railroad fast express.

11:26 P. M.—From Grand Rapids 11:50 a. m.; Kalamazoo, 1 40 p.m.; Jackson, 5:40 p. m.; Jonesville, 7:00; Bankers 8:10 p. m.; from Detroit 4:05 p. m, Hillsdale 8:00 p. m.; Reading, 8 40; Fremont 9 37; Angola 10 07; Pleasant Lake, 10 26; Waterloo, 11 07; arrive at New Era 12 20 a. m.; Fort Wayne, 1 30 a. m., connecting with early trains west, south and east.

4 15 a. m. train run daily. All other trains daily except Sundays.

M. D. WOODFORD, Gen'l Supt.
H. BROMLEY, Gen'l Fr't. & Pass'r Agent.

Fort Wayne, Muncie and Cin.

—AND—

White Water Railroads.

Time Card in effect November 16, 1879.

STATIONS.	GOING SOUTH. 1. Mail.	3 Express.
FORT WAYNE	10 40 am	5 40 pm
Bluffton	11 52 am	6 55 pm
Montpelier	12 31 pm	7 37 pm
Hartford	12 57 pm	8 04 pm
MUNCIE	1 48 pm	9 00 pm
Newcastle	2 39 pm
Cambridge City	3 14 pm
Connersville	3 45 pm
Cincinnati	6 55 pm
INDIANAPOLIS	6 25 pm	10 55 pm
Louisville
Terre Haute
St. Louis

STATIONS	GOING NORTH 2 Mail.	4 Express	6 Accom.
St. Louis
Terre Haute
Louisville
Indianapolis	11 50 am	6 40 pm	4 05 am
Cincinnati	6 40 am
Connersville	11 51 am
Cambridge City	12 26 pm
New Castle	1 10 pm
Muncie	2 20 pm	9 20 pm	6 48 am
Hartford	3 09 pm	10 08 pm	7 47 am
Montpelier	3 34 pm	10 32 pm	8 19 am
Bluffton	4 10 pm	11 09 pm	9 10 am
Fort Wayne	5 18 pm	12 35 am	11 00 am

Trains Nos. 1 and 2 run through between Fort Wayne and Cincinnati without change.

Through cars are attached to trains Nos. 1 and and run between Fort Wayne and Indianapolis, via Muncie.

All trains daily except Sunday.

Trains run on Columbus time.

GEO. W. MULLEN, Act'g Gen. Tick. Ag't. W. W. WORTHINGTON, Gen. Supt.

WABASH St LOUIS AND PACIFIC RY.

The Great Through Car Route to

Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa.

TRAINS LEAVE AUBURN.

EAST.		WEST.
Mail	12:24 p. m.	Mail	3:29 p. m.
Accom'n	12:57 a. m.	Accom'n	6:37 a. m.
Local F't	4:45 p. m.	Local F't	6:30 a. m.
M'l tr'n arrives at Butler	1:00 p. m.	M'l tr'n arr. at Logansport	4:45 p. m.

No Change of Cars From

TOLEDO OR FT WAYNE TO St. Louis, Kansas City St Joseph, Hannibal, Quincy and Atchison.

No Change of Cars From

St. Louis To | Kansas City, St. Joseph Omaha and Ottumwa.

Remember that the

Wabash, St Louis and Pacific

Has No Emigrant Cars.

Everybody rides in Elegant Parlor Coaches—nicely upholstered and carpeted. Baggage checked through to destination.

Don't forget the above inducements given only by this great line, and when you go

West Southwest. North or Northw'st

Don't accept any ticket unless it reads over the

Wabash, St. Louis & Pacific R'y.

For Routes, Rates, Elegant Maps of the Western Country, and any information you may desire in regard to going West, please address,

J. C. GAULT, Gen. Manager, H. C. TOWNSEND, Gen. Passenger Agent, St. Louis or
LOUIS JOHNSON, Ticket Ag't. Auburn, Ind

Baltimore & Ohio R. R

—o—

CHICAGO DIVISION.

—o—

IN EFFECT FROM JUNE 10, 1880.

GOING EAST.

STATIONS.	No. 1 Fast.	No. 3 Ex.	No. 5 Mail
CHICAGO lv	6 15pm		8 10am
Walkerton Junction	8 03		10 55
Milford Junction	9 00		12 05pm
Syracuse	*		12 16
Cromwell	*		12 30
Albion	*		12 58
Avilla	9 50		1 10
Garrett	10 20	3 50am	1 40
Auburn Junction	10 27	4 03	1 48
St. Joe	*	4 25	2 10
Hicksville	*	4 42	2 30
Defiance	11 25	5 27	3 10
Deshler	12 25am	6 22	4 08
Fostoria	1 08	7 25	4 52
Tiffin	1 30	7 54	5 20
CHICAGO JUNCTION ar.	2 15	9 00	6 15

GOING WEST.

STATIONS.	No. 10 Mail.	No 2 Ex.	No. 8 Fast.
CHICAGO JUNCTION lv	9 00am	5 40pm	11 20am
Tiffin	10 03	7 55	12 00 m
Fostoria	10 23	8 25	12 22pm
Deshler	11 44	9 22	1 06
Defiance	12 58pm	10 22	1 56
Hicksville	1 58	11 20	*
St. Joe	2 10	11 28	*
Auburn Junction	2 28	11 52	3 00
Garrett	2 40	12 05am	3 25
Avilla		12 20	3 35
Albion		12 45	3 56
Cromwell		1 10	4 15
Syracuse		1 20	4 30
Milford Junction		1 40	4 38
Walkerton Junction		3 06	5 40
CHICAGO ar		6 10	8 30

C. H. HUDSON, Superintendent Trans., Ohio Division, Chicago, Ill.
J. J. MARTIN, Agent, Auburn Junction.
* Trains do not stop.

Pittsburg, Ft. W. & C. R. R

ON AND AFTER JUNE 27, 1880,

Condensed time card.

GOING WEST.

Stations.	No. 1, Fast Ex.	No. 7, Pacific Ex	No. 3, Night Ex.	No. 5, Limit'd Ex
Pittsburgh lv.	12 00	9 15am	1 50pm	7 30pm
Rochester	1 15	10 10	2 55
Alliance	3 30	1 20pm	5 35	10 28
Orrville	5 00	3 18	7 13
Mansfield	6 55	5 40	9 20
Crestline ar.	7 28	6 15	9 45	1 40am
Crestline lv.	7 50am	6 35pm	9 55pm	1 15am
Forest	9 25	8 18	11 28
Lima	10 40	9 30	12 22am
Ft. Wayne	1 15pm	12 05am	2 40	5 38
Plymouth	3 46	2 50	4 55	7 18
Chicago ar.	7 00	6 00	8 00	9 40

GOING EAST

Stations.	No. 8, Morn'g Ex	No. 6, N. Y. Ex.	No. 4, At. Ex	No. 2, Line
Chicago lv.	8 10am	3 30pm	5 15pm	9 40pm
Plymouth	11 53		9 25	2 50am
Ft. Wayne	2 35pm	8 35	12 15am	6 55
Lima	4 38		2 38	8 55
Forest	5 43		3 55	10 08
Crestline ar.	7 10	12 35	5 30	11 45
Crestline lv.	7 30pm	12 40pm	6 40am	12 05pm
Mansfield	8 03	1 15am	7 20	12 35
Orrville	10 06	2 57	9 23	2 26
Alliance	11 45	4 25	11 25	4 00
Rochester	2 04am		2 10pm	6 22
Pittsburgh ar.	3 15	7 30	3 15	7 30

Nos 3 and 6, and 5 and 4 run daily; No. 1 leaves Pittsburgh daily, except Saturday. No. 8 leaves Chicago daily except Saturday. All others daily except Sunday.

F. R. MYERS,
Gen. Pass. and Ticket Agent.

Notice of Sale of Real Estate.

Notice is hereby given that by virtue of an order of the DeKalb circuit court, the undersigned administrator of the estate of John Whittington, deceased, will offer for sale on the premises, on Friday the 31st day of December, 1880 the following real estate to-wit: Lot No. six in the original plot of the town of Auburn Junction, Dekalb county, Indiana.

TERMS: One-third cash; the residue in equal payments at twelve and eighteen months, with notes and interest, waiving valuation laws, with approved personal security. Sale to be at two o'clock, p. m. W. H. DILLS, Administrator.
50 3 t

Recorders Office

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Devoted to the Interests of the Democratic Party and to the Collection of Local and General News.

Volume 10. AUBURN, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, DECEMBER 30, 1880. Number 53.

The Auburn Courier
PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY BY
BARNS & HUSSELMAN.

BUSINESS CARDS.

Cards not exceeding five lines each will be inserted under this head for $5.0 per annum. For each additional line 50 cents extra will be charged.

PHYSICIANS.

J. J. Littlefield,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. OFFICE AND residence on 10th st., opposite S. W. Halston's. All calls promptly attended to, day or night. Auburn, Indiana. 25 ly

HOTELS.

Central House,

TENTH STREET. EAST OF MAIN. GOOD Sample rooms, and low rates. T. D. Gross, Prop'r Auburn, Ind.

BUTT'S HOTEL

FREE OMNIBUS TO AND FROM ALL trains. Good sample rooms on first floor. John Butt, Proprietor, Waterloo, Indiana.

ATTORNEYS.

D. D. Moody,

ATTORNEY AT LAW AND NOTARY public. Also Prosecuting attorney for DeKalb County. Office in Court House. Auburn, Ind.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Thomas Baldock,

PROPRIETOR of Stuart's patent compound Asphalt roofing, for DeKalb county, Ind., manufactured at Charlotte, Michigan. Consult or address at Auburn, Ind.

Shakspeare fixed the age of "Juliet" at fourteen, but on the stage the maturity of actresses capable of playing the part makes an alteration of the text necessary. San Francisco, however, is to have a fourteen year old "Juliet" in the person of Ida Aubrey, a prodigy.

The residence of Mr. Oliver, of Pittsburg, candidate for the United States Senate, was burglarized last week. We should think Pennsylvania burglars would be obliged to watch door plates very closely if they hoped to do business without striking a residence of a candidate for the United States Senate.

The city council of Chicago, has determined to make the street car companies pay to the city a fifty dollar license fee annually for each car that they run. This will strike the few friends of railroads as a most horrible outrage. Where are "vested rights" in this case? Where is placed capital that chooses to seek investment in railroads and has the right to earn as much as it can, according to some philosophers? Nowhere, absolutely nowhere. Government places its hand upon it, and it has to sumbit to government's exactions.

Miles and Mile-stones.

The mile is not an original English or Teutonic measure of length, but was borrowed from the Romans, with a considerable amount of latitude in its applications. All our native land measures start with the perch. This has been fixed by statue at 5½ yards, but originally it differed in various parts of the country. The Lancashire perch was 7½ yards, the Cheshire perch 8 yards, the Irish perch 7 yards. Forty of these on end constituted a "furrow-long," or furlong, and 8 furlongs were a mile. Taking the standard perch at 5½ yards, this makes the English mile 1,960 yards. The Roman mile was 1,000 paces of nearly 5 feet each equaling 1,614 yards. The English mile of 1,760 yards was the nearest approximation which our unit of measurement could give to the Roman "mille passuum." The mile was fixed at 1,760 yards by a statute of Elizabeth.

The King and the Ants.

—According to Jewish and Mohammedan tradition, King Solomon, who was wise beyond all other men, knew the language of animals, and could talk with the beasts of the field and the birds of the air. One day the king rode out of Jerusalem with a great retinue. An ant-hill lay directly in his way, and Solomon heard its little people talking. "Here comes the great king," he heard one of them say. "His flatterers call him wise, and just, and merciful, but he is about to ride over us and crush us without heeding our sufferings."

And Solomon told the Queen of Sheba who rode with him, what the ant said. And the queen made answer, "He is an insolent creature, O king! It is a better fate than he deserves, to be trodden under our feet."

But Solomon said, "It is the part of wisdom to learn of the lowest and weakest." And he commanded his train to turn aside and spare the ant-hill.

Then all the courtiers marveled greatly, and the Queen of Sheba bowed her head and made obeisance to Solomon, saying:

"Now I know the secret of thy wisdom. Thou listenest as patiently to the reproaches of the humble as to the flatteries of the great."

THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY.

Its Mission and Its Principles.

[Senator Wm. A. Wallace, of Pennsylvania.]

The events and processes of more than a generation have taken the control of governmental affairs away from the intelligent rule of the masses and invested it in a power as yet formative and undefined. Among these were the civil war, the creation and peculiar manipulation of the public debt, reconstruction outside of the constitution, universal negro suffrage, a plethora of paper money, loose public morals, enormous growth of private fortunes, and a close connection of the government with the banking interest. Each had its weight in sapping the foundations of a government by the masses, and in shaping our course toward a different rule. Whether that rule is to be suffrage, qualified and rarified, or suffrage controlled by the power of aggregated wealth or monopoly, or a senatorial oligarchy, or hereditary government, is beside the present inquiry, save as they each and all show distrust of the people and build their foundations upon universal suffrage debased, corrupted and dominated.

The tendency toward a so-called stronger government is as manifest as are the causes that have given it form. It is in the nature of things for government to grow stronger at the expense of the governed; but the plain proof of the existence of this tendency is found in the opinions of the federal judiciary, in federal legislation over matters heretofore within the control of the people of the states, in the modes of execution of those statutes, by which local rule, local courts, and personal liberty are overthrown, and in that ramification of executive patronage which sends its mandates to the extremities, and at will gathers in a single hand enormous contributions and unscrupulous obedience from 90,000 paid officials. "Executive patronage will bring us to a master." A network of office-holders, bound each to the other, wielding time and money and power of place to pack primaries, dictate nominations, crush independent thought and action, and subordinate local control to the will of an executive who governs in the name of party, points the road with unerring certainty to the end that Franklin, the wise man, predicted. Further guide-boards on that road are seen in large donations of money by corporations, monopolists and wealthy men, to supplement the power of the executive and carry elections in the interest of an aristocratic class who dislike and distrust the people; in the domination of employe by employer; in the marked ballot; in the third-term candidacy and pilgrimage on the stump; in the national and labor organizations, which are but over-zealous protests against this tendency, and in that ill-concealed demand for energetic government, which has been the fundamental thought of the opponents of democracy since the days of John Adams.

The issues of 1799 and 1800 again confront the people. The theories of that day are again to struggle for the mastery. The government of the republic is already centralized. The canvass of 1880 teaches this. The federal executive has been felt from the ward caucus to the vaults of the treasury, from the primary to the presidential election. A high federal official quits his place to take a nomination for governor of the pivotal state, and at once the executive arm is extended to his support. Marshals, detectives, collectors, secretaries, and all else that are needed, locate themselves within the state, and its suffrage is debauched and its undoubted will reversed. A suffrage, first debased, then corrupted, then obedient, is centralization in its worst form. This is but one means to the end sought. The mission of the democratic party is decentralization. Its duty is to restore the government of the republic to the intelligent rule of the masses of the people. It must teach and practice the doctrines of its illustrious founder. It must appeal to the people themselves in their own interest. It must preach the eternal truth that the individual citizen is the unit in government, from whom proceeds all power, in whom is vested all rights save those which are granted by him for the good of the whole. The people at the base, the states and the federal governments each supreme within its sphere, is the system to which it looks for liberty, and it must teach that he who looks to paternal government to centralization, or to empire, looks to despotism. Care for and perfect the government, and it will protect the liberties of the people, was the thought of Hamilton. Give intelligence and information to the people, teach them that it is their government, and their interest to preserve law and order, was the thought of Jefferson. Paternal government and vigor in the federal head on the one hand, information to the masses and energy from the extremities on the other. The former gave the republic alien and sedition laws, direct taxation, federal marshals and centralized rule in 1799. The latter swept these out of existence in 1880; carried us successfully through two foreign wars; acquired an empire of territory and governed the country for sixty years. We must choose between these two now. The democracy must again plant itself upon the axiom, "governments are made for men, not men for governments." It must strike with mailed hand the tendency to strong government. It must be true to the people and aggressive in its fealty. Dominated labor must be taught its rights and its interests. Capital must see its safety in the intelligence and justice of individual rule, and not in the exercise of arbitrary will. Honest performance of every governmental contract now in existence, but a change of policy by which the debt shall be managed in the interest of the people and not of the creditor; equal taxation on every form of property; thorough inquiry into taxation for revenue and its adjustment upon a basis just to every interest and to all the people; no monopolies; forfeiture of the franchises of corporations and punishment of aggregated wealth, or individuals, for coercion of employes, or the use of money in elections; our own carrying trade made to be our own preserve; and a divorce between government and banks, are thoughts which find place in such an issue. The cry of a "solid-south" is exhausted and impotent at last. It has served its purpose. Divided councils upon questions of administration have kept the democracy a mere party of opposition, and concealed the silent approaches of the enemy to strong government. It will continue to be a party in opposition, untrusted and untried, until it defiantly asserts its ancient theories and goes to the people for their vindication.

The democratic party is not dead. Antæus-like, after each defeat, it arises from the people stronger than before. It cannot die whilst it teaches and believes in the rights of the masses. The hour for its triumph will have come when it boldly asserts its true theories and ignores the blandishments of money, monopoly, and corrupt power. He whose interest, judgment or teachings are adverse to the rule of the masses will join its enemies, but in his room it will recruit scores of those in whose interest it strikes, or who respect its attitude and detest strong government. The future of the democratic party is the future of the republic.

Jennie Crane, a young girl employed in a knitting factory, at Elkhart, was caught in the belting by her hair Saturday. She was drawn down against the shaft and part of the scalp on the back of her head, together with about all of her hair was torn out. She was taken to her home unconscious.

Between twenty and thirty lives were lost by the burning of an immense wall-paper manufactory in Buffalo last week. About 150 men and boys were employed in the building, and as the walls crumbled and fell shortly after the fire was discovered, many failed to make their escape. The destruction of property is estimated at $183,000.

Burned at the Stake.

Two tramps stopped at the house of Mr. Brown Riding, living near Tupelo, Mississippi, and were given shelter for the night. The men occupied the same room with the family, it being the only one in the house with a fire-place. During the night the tramps chloroformed the family, consisting of husband, wife and a two-year old child, robbed the house of its valuables and then fired it, the inmates perishing in the flames. The neighbors were aroused caught one of the tramps, who made a confession. The horror-stricken crowd, composed of twenty-five resolute men, determined the devil should be punished by his own weapon, pinioned him with pine splinters, artically arranged around him, dispensed with the cloroform, and set him ablaze. The other man is being searched for.

A HOOSIER CÆSAR.

A Wonderful Act that will be Recorded Among the Remarkable Results of Surgery.

Cincinnati Enquirer.

An operation was performed by Dr. Moses Baker, of Stockwell, Tippecanoe county, that partakes of a wonderful and remarkable character. In surgery it is termed the Cesarean operation, it being the delivery of a child through the abdominal walls of the mother in a case where the natural birth was rendered impossible by tumors. Since Julius Cæsar has been said to have come into the world in this way, the operation has been called the Cesarean section. It is attended with great danger to the life of the child, and almost invariably proves fatal to the mother, but since without it both child and mother are sure to die it should always be undertaken as a last resort. It has been attempted only a few times in this state, perhaps not to exceed a half-dozen, and because of this it has excited the greatest public interest among the profession of this vicinity, and it will attract very general attention elsewhere.

The patient, Mrs. L. Lucas, is the wife of a well-known citizen of Sheffield township, a short distance north of the village of Stockwell. She is about thirty-five years old, has been married two years, and this is the first child. About eight months ago, the family physician, Dr. Baker, was summoned to see her, and, upon examination, informed her that if she went on the full term, her delivery would be impossible. He advised her to have an abortion produced, which she emphatically declined, saying that she would rather suffer death than have her child killed. The only resort was the Cesarean operation, which was suggested to her and to which she willingly assented.

One month ago to-day, the full term having been completed, the doctor prepared for the operation. He was assisted by a number of fellow physicians. The patient having been placed under the influence of chloroform, an incision about seven inches in length was made in the median line of the abdomen and the tissues carefully dissected. Just as the keen edge of the knife was cutting through the tissues nearest the child, a severe pain came on which drove the head of the infant quickly against the knife, cutting a gash in the scalp three inches in length, but inflicting no further injury. After the delivery of the child and the removal of the placenta, the incision was carefully closed by carbolized silk sutures, and the surface or abdominal incision was closed with silver wires.

Dr. Baker reports that the head of the child had been so long pressed against the pubic bone that it caused a groove an inch in depth to be formed on the left side of the skull. Every pain of the mother served to drive it more firmly against the bone. This indentation has now almost entirely disappeared. Now that a month has elapsed and no unfavorable symptoms have followed the operation, it may be termed entirely successful. The mother has made a good recovery and is sitting up, apparently restored to health. The little baby is said to be the finest, most robust and most active in the county. He is doing finely, and promises to become as great a man as Julius Cæsar himself.

Curious Circumstances.

[Warsaw Indianian.]

Mr. A. B. Stookey, who resides near Leesburg, related a curious circumstance that has been taking place on his farm, probably for some time. Mr. S. had a fine cow, but discovered that for some reason her milk was failing in quantity. This cow had a calf that was suckled nights and mornings, and then taken from its mother. The decrease in the quantity of milk, however, could not be accounted for, until a discovery was made by a man in the employ of Mr. S. on last Friday evening. The man had let the cow to the calf as usual, and discovered the dog—an animal usually kept on most of the farms—which slyly approached and begun the same operation as that in which the calf was engaged, that is, sucking the cow. He was driven off by the man, but again renewed the operation in a few moments. For some time it was thought that some other cow had been guilty of stealing the milk. Mr. Stookey informs us that he had before heard of hogs sucking cows, foxes sometimes, and it has even been told that a certain species of snake would also suck sometimes in this way, but this is the first time that a dog has been found guilty. Mr. S. had noticed before the very fine and slick condition of his dog, but knew nothing of the cause until the above discovery was made by Mr. Edward J. Dillon, his hired man.

Illuminating Gas.

The inventor of gas light is said to have been a Frenchman, Philippe Le Bon, who, in 1782, adopted the idea of using, for the purpose of illumination, the gases distilled during the combustion of wood. He labored for a long time in the attempt to perfect his crude invention, and it was not until 1799 that he confided his discovery to the institute. In September, 1800, he took out a patent, and in 1801 he published a memoir containing the result of his researches. Le Bon commenced by distilling wood in order to obtain from it gas, oil, pitch and pyroligneous acid, but his work indicated the possibility of obtaining gas by distillation from fatty or oily substances. From 1799 to 1802 Le Bon made numerous experiments. He established at Havre his thermo-lamps, but the gas which he obtained, being a mixture of carburetted hydrogen and oxide of carbon and but imperfectly freed from its impurities, gave only a feeble light, and evolved an insupportable odor, and the result was, that but little favor was shown to the new discovery. The English soon put in practice the crude ideas of Le Bon. In 1804 one, Winsor, patented and claimed the credit of inventing, the process of lighting by gas. In 1805 several shops in Birmingham were illuminated by gas manufactured by the process of Winsor and Murdock. Among those who used this new light was Watt, the inventor of the steam-engine. In 1816 the first use was made of gas in London, and it was not until 1818 that this invention, really of French origin, was applied in France.

What Was the Dialect?

[Washington Special.]

The Hon. Godlove S. Orth, at present a member of congress from Indiana, was appointed United States minister to Vienna by President Grant, during the latter part of his administration. Mr. Orth is a native of Pennsylvania, of German parentage. He is a man of medium height, and very stout. His face shows plainly his German decent, being large, round and brilliant in color. He has large, watery, staring, round, blue eyes, which never seem to be looking at anything in particular. He is very proud of his German blood, and takes great pains to keep up his knowledge of the German language. He imagines he speaks German without an accent, and if he means without any German accent he is probably correct. His supposed knowledge of the German language, however, was one of the chief qualifications for the diplomatic place. President Grant was not the fortunate possessor of a German member of his cabinet, so he had no one to try Mr. Orth's German on, and had to take Mr. Orth's word for his knowledge of the language.

When Mr. Orth arrived at Vienna, he thought it would be a delicate compliment to the emperor to deliver his address, on his presentation at court, in German. Mr. Orth devoted much time to the writing of his address, and practiced it for hours in his room, so that he would be able to deliver it with facility. When the day of his presentation arrived he was all ready with his address, and delivered it with what he thought was great success, in the purest Pennsylvania Dutch. A short time after, a well-known American, who was in Vienna, was presented to the emperor, and the emperor spoke in very complimentary terms of Mr. Orth, and then asked:

"What was the dialect in which Mr. Orth delivered his address? I know, of course, that it was not English, and I thought I detected some faint traces of the Teutonic tongue in some of the words."

It is said that Jay Gould has bought up the Anchor line of steamers running between St. Louis and New Orleans. He already owns a line of barges on the river, and has just bagged the Iron Mountain railroad, to say nothing of the Wabash and the Kansas Pacific, etc. Mr. Gould has apparently taken St. Louis into camp, and has room left for New Orleans.

Interest in the Sprague.

[Cincinnati Gazette.]

There is much more interest felt here in Gov. Sprague's answer to the bill filed against him than the bill itself. It is just to say that his reputation here has not been such as might be inferred from the numerous and specific charges which Mr. Sprague brings. The interest felt in the answer he will make arises from a conviction that he will make Senator Conkling a prominent figure, and give formal shape to a mass of Washington gossip, which, it must be admitted, finds a large class of believers.

The three negroes recently sold under an old vagrant law at Bedford, Va., have been released by order of the county court, because the evidence against them was insufficient, and there was a sligh informality in the presentation of the charge. The question of constitutionality was not considered.

—Anderson Bros. will sell buggies for $15 less than any other shop in the state that has first-class material. Call and look at our large stock of wheels and second-growth hickory trimmings. We have rented the Duck building, which we will use for a show room. Do not buy until you examine our stock, for we will not be undersold. Remember the place, three doors north of the postoffice. All work warranted for two years.

ANDERSON BROS.,
Auburn, Ind.
51 4t

Money to Loan.

In sums and on terms to suit all. Apply at Guy Plumb's law office. Low rates of interest.

C. N. HASKALL.
-3m.

Agents.

All persons, either ladies or gentlemen, who desire good, profitable employment, and the pleasantest kind of work at their own homes, should send address to

J. J. KENNEDY,
Williamantic, Conn.
51-4t.

NOTICE TO HEIRS OF PETITION TO SELL REAL ESTATE.

State of Indiana, DeKalb county—In the DeKalb circuit court.
Notice is hereby given, that Malinda Kessler, administratrix of the estate of Eli Kessler, deceased, has filed a petition to sell the real estate of the decedent, the personal being insufficient to pay his debts, and that said petition will be heard at the next term of said court.

JNO. BAXTER, Clerk.

Attest:
December 20, 1880. 52-3w.

Notice of Administration.

Notice is hereby given that the undersigned has been appointed by the judge of the DeKalb circuit court of the state of Indiana, administrator of the estate of Wm. Wyatt, deceased, late of said county. Said estate is supposed to be insolvent.

ELMON Y. WYATT.
Administrator.

A. J. Baxter, Attorney.

NOTICE TO NON-RESIDENTS.

State of Indiana, DeKalb county—In the DeKalb circuit court, February term, 1881.
Leonard Hartle is hereby notified that an action has been commenced against him in said court, in attachment. John Barrett, administrator of the estate of Adam P. Hartle, deceased, and that the same will be heard and determined on the 2d juridical day of the next term of said court, which commences Feburary 28, 1881. Witness, The clerk of said court, this first of December, 1880.

JOHN W. BAXTER, Clerk.
51-3w

ESTRAY NOTICE.

Taken up by Dr. Henry Lahman, at Fairfield Center, DeKalb county, Indiana, an estray, described as follows:
"A white cow with yellow skin, long tail right ear partly torn off, has long smooth horns, about six years old, and will weigh about 450 pounds, appraised and reported to Christian Smith, justice of the peace of Fairfield township, December 13, 1880."
Dated this 18th day of December, 1880.

JOHN W. BAXTER, Clerk.

ESTRAY NOTICE.

Taken up by John E. Boots, of Jackson township, DeKalb county, Indiana, five fat hogs, two black and three white, of an average weight of 200 pounds, and of the appraised value of thirty-six dollars ($36), as reported to me by John Henderson, a justice of the peace of said township, on the 18th day of December, 1880.

JOHN W. BAXTER, Clerk.

December 20, 1880.

Final Settlement.

Notice is hereby given that Robert Arfold administrator of the estate of David Flickl is deceased, has filed his final settlement report in my office, and the same will be heard at the next term of the DeKalb circuit court.

JOHN W. BAXTER, Clerk.
51-4

December 14, 1880.

$100

Reward

For any case of

CATARRH

That cannot be cured with

HALL'S CATARRH CURE.

This is no humbug. No nasal douche. No snuff. Nothing to irritate the nasal cavity or distroy the sense of smell. It is an INTERNAL REMEDY ACTING UPON THE BLOOD, cleansing it from its impurities, causing the puriform matter to be carried off through the natural channels. It is a scientific preparation used and prescribed for years by one of the ablest practitioners in this country, and has never failed to cure when used according to direction.

WE MAKE THIS PROPOSITION:

If any person, after taking one dozen of HALL'S CATARRH CURE is NOT CURED OR BENEFITED more than four times its cost, we will refund the money paid. If it does you good you are willing to pay for it. If it does no good it costs you nothing.

PRICE 75 CENTS PER BOTTLE.

Manufactured by F. J. CHENEY & Co., Druggists, Toledo, O.
11-1 yr. For Sale by all Druggists.

NEWSPAPER QUESTIONS.

The editor sat in his sanctum,
Regarding with sad, earnest eyes
The huge pile of "Questions" his readers
Had sent with demands for replies.
"Why, these," said the weary quill-driver,
"Would fill up a moderate book.
I'll publish the whole lot together,
And let people see how they look!"

"Who was it that wrote that sweet ditty
Beginning, 'I saw from ——' somewhere?"
"Pray tell me some certain specific
For changing the color of hair!"
"What is the name of the author
Of 'No, we'll never go home'?"
"Did Shakspeare write 'Down in a Coal Mine?'"
"Who was the third Pope of Rome?"

"Do North Polar fishes have feathers?"
"Was Wat Tyler quartered or hung?"
"Where was the first man cremated?"
"Who was it invented the bung?"
"Do buffalo ever eat sauer kraut?"
"Where can I get some snail's horns?"
"Which of the muses played short-stop?"
"Did Bonaparte ever have corns?"

"What was the air Nero fiddled?"
"Do hard-shell clams ever yield pearls?"
"How many boils did poor Job have?"
"What will cure squinting in girls?"
"Why are some people red-headed?"
"Why don't my young man propose?"
"What was the matter with Hannah?"
"Why don't I turn out my toes?"

"Did the Prodigal Son use tobacco?"
"What do you think ails my cat?"
"Had Nebuchadnezzar four stomachs?"
"How shall I trim my new hat?"
"Tell me where Moses was buried!"
"Did Noah take fleas in the ark?"
"What was Eve's middle initial?"
"Why is it that hens do not bark?"

"I like," said the editor, smiling,
"I like these good people who seek
For knowledge, and I like to give it.
I'll answer their questions next week.
I'd like, too, to get them together;
They'd think immortality [illegible];
I'd answer their questions, as promised,
Though most folks would call it necks tweaked."

THE CONDEMNED CUBAN.

It was a fearful night on the coast of Cuba, for a tornado had swept along the sea and shore with relentless fury, leaving death and destruction in its merciless path.

And yet, though sheltered by the forest-clad point of land jutting out from the main, small vessel was getting ready to leave the quiet inland waters and put to sea.

The cause of thus daring death by the commander of this little vessel was because at the peak the lone star flag of the struggling Cubans fluttered in the breeze and sentence most severe rested upon all who served beneath its folds.

The little vessel, once a New York yacht, had run in to the Cuban coast after dark, bearing arms, ammunition, stores, and a few good men and true for the patriot army of Cespedes in the mountains.

Having safely delivered her cargo into the charge of the unfortunate Gen. Ryan,* her American commander determined to put to sea in the face of the storm, for he knew that Spanish gunboats were watching for him, and that capture meant certain death by the garrote or rifle.

"Stand ready all to make sail. The storm will be more merciful than the Spaniards," called out the yacht's Captain; and the crew of half a dozen men and two junior officers sprung to obey, when to their ears came the deep boom of a gun.

All paused, for what could it mean?

Certainly it was not the roar of thunder, for its mutterings were heard far away to landward.

Could another Cuban craft be running in and the gun come from a Spaniard in chase?

No, it was the deep boom of a heavy gun, and those on the yacht looked at each other in awe as it was repeated, for they knew that the brazen throat was pleading piteously for help, and that 100 lives—perhaps many more—hung on the answer to that appeal.

"They are minute guns, and they are calling for a pilot," said Enrique Delmonte, a handsome young Cuban, who was second in command of the yacht.

"Will any go to their aid?" asked the American commander.

"No, they are Cuban pilots, and it must be a Spanish man-of-war that needs them."

"It seems a pity to see them wrecked, even if they are our enemies. Hark! How pleading are those guns!" answered the American.

"Enemies though they be, they shall not die, for I will save them!"

"You, Enrique Delmonte?"

"Yes, my Captain; for, as you know, my boyhood's home is near by, and I know these waters well. Will you put me on board, for you are going to sea?" said the noble young Cuban.

"It is a fearful risk for you to run, Delmonte; you are already under sentence of death, and—"

"I will die in a good cause. Come, let us lose no time, from the sound of those guns the vessel is drifting in rapidly."

The American Captain offered no argument further, and the anchor was raised, the sails, reefed down, were set, and the little yacht sped like a huge, white bird away from its safe nest to battle with the wild waters and winds beyond.

It took the united strength of the Captain and Enrique Delmonte, who acted as pilot, to hold the yacht on her course, for the seas washed over her decks in torrents, and she staggered fearfully beneath the rude shocks of the waves.

At length the channel was safely passed through, and the open waters reached, when, not half a mile away, came the vivid red flash of a gun, and the deep boom rolled across the waters.

"It is a large vessel, and evidently a steamer, from the light rig the gun's flash showed," said the Captain.

"I know that vessel well, Captain; for three years of my service in the Spanish navy was passed on her deck, and I would rather lose my life than see her go down."

Enrique Delmonte spoke with great earnestness, and the American felt that he had some deep cause for wishing to save the vessel. He knew that his father was a Spaniard and his mother a Cuban, and that he had been reared in the navy of Spain, which he had left to serve his native land.

Shaping their course so as to head the drifting vessel off, a lantern was shown to tell of coming succor, and the cheer that broke from the crew at sight of it was heard on board the yacht.

"Delmonte, again I must remind you of the risk you run," said the Captain.

"I know all, and I will take my chances; as soon as I board the Alamanda you had better stand seaward, so as not to be in this neighborhood at daylight."

"And you, Delmonte?"

"Oh! I will run the vessel into the harbor we left, and then go ashore and hasten on after Ryan, for I can overtake him, and when you again come to the island I will join you unless I can do more good ashore; but here we are, and I will hail."

In a ringing voice, and in Spanish, Enrique Delmonte hailed the large vessel, which was now plainly seen to be a large steamer and war vessel, whose light sails would not work her off shore.

"Ho, the Alamanda!"

"Ay, ay, are you a pilot?" came the answer from the vessel of war.

"Yes; I will run under your lee and come on board."

"All right, for our machinery has broken down, we have lost our anchors, and are drifting rapidly," said an officer, in earnest tones.

"I know that voice; it is Capt. Verona himself. Now good-by, Captain, and if harm befall Enrique Delmonte tell my friends how I died;" and the young Cuban grasped the American's hand, and stood ready to seize the ropes ready to be thrown to him.

Though plunging fearfully the American held the yacht firmly in hand, and ran close in under the stern of the steamer, from which ropes were skillfully thrown, and adroitly grasped by the Cuban, who, with a good-by on his lips to his shipmates, clambered over the sides of the Spanish vessel, while the yacht bounded away from the enemy those on board had so much cause to dread, and started on her return voyage to the United States.

Upon reaching the deck Enrique Delmonte found himself in the presence of a score of officers, while a crowd of seamen stood not far away, gazing upon the daring pilot that had come out to their aid; but, with his collar muffling his face, his hat drawn down over his eyes, he was not recognized, though he looked upon more than a dozen men who had long been his comrades in the navy of Spain.

"Are you a Cuban pilot?" asked Capt. Verona, a haughty, stern-faced man of 45.

"I am a Cuban, and have come to keep you off yonder rocks," was the quiet reply, while he pointed shoreward to the line of breakers.

"Our rig is too light for us to work off shore, and our machinery is broken down and anchors gone, so, if you can not save us, we are doomed," said the Spaniard.

"I know that well, Senor, and I will take the helm," was the reply; and, going to his post of duty, he assumed control, and, no longer struggling to beat out to sea, the steamer was put before the gale, and went rushing landward with fearful speed.

Calm and firm Enrique Delmonte stood at the wheel, his eyes watching every move of the vessel, and penetrating the gloom ahead to catch sight of some well-known object by which he could get his course.

And on rushed the Spanish vessel into the channel, and, though apparently surrounded by breakers, holding her course unswervingly, until she glided around the point of land that formed the harbor, and was in safety.

"You can move alongside of yonder rocks, Senor, for there is depth enough," said the Cuban, when the cheers of the Spaniards at their rescue died away.

"You are a daring and skillful pilot, Senor, and you have saved myself and crew, so name your reward," said Capt. Verona.

"The reward I ask, Senor Captain, is mercy for any poor Cubans that may fall into your hands," was the brusque reply.

"Ha! this rings like the words of a traitor to Spain! Are you such, sir?"

"I am a Cuban patriot, Senor," was the calm reply.

"Ah, and seem proud of it. By Neptune! but we have been saved by a foe; your love of gold must be great indeed for you to risk your life aboard this ship."

"I told you, Senor, the only reward I ask. I have saved you from wreck, so will now say farewell."

"Hold! Quartermaster, hold that battle-lantern here that I may catch a glimpse of this fine fellow's face."

The lantern flashed upon the dark, handsome and fearless countenance and a dozen voices called his name:

"Enrique Delmonte!"

"Aye, Enrique Delmonte I am; once an officer aboard this vessel, but now a Cuban patriot, for I would not fight against my native land."

He stood before them unflinchingly now, and for a moment there was dead silence. Then Capt. Verona spoke:

"Enrique Delmonte, your resignation of your Lieutenant's commission was never accepted, but, on the contrary, you were tried as a deserter and condemned to death as such, beside coming under the sentence of those who call themselves patriots. Under these circumstances, notwithstanding your noble deed this night, it is my duty to arrest you and place you in irons."

"What! would you be guilty of a deed so vile, Senor?" asked the Cuban, indignantly.

"My duty, sir, compels me. Senor, put this man in irons."

A defiant smile crossed the handsome face of Enrique Delmonte as the officer approached and ironed his wrists; but he made no resistance, and was led away between decks and placed in a state-room, a guard being stationed at his door.

Throwing himself down upon a seat, he murmured:

"Ah! Senor Verona, I know well your hatred toward me; it is because your daughter was my promised wife, and you would rather have me die than see her one day marry a Cuban who was the enemy of Spain."

The door softly opened, and, looking up, by the dim light from the ward-room lamp Enrique Delmonte saw a slender form before him—a maiden with a face of exquisite beauty.

"Enrique!"

"Consuelo!"

It was all they said, and, springing forward, she threw her arms around his neck.

"Oh, Enrique, I know all, and how cruel has been my father!" she said, after a while.

"He says he does his duty, Consuelo."

"Bah! he panders to his hate. I knew you, Enrique, when I saw you come on board, but I held myself aloof and I heard all that passed. Once, four years ago, when I was a girl of 14, you sprung into the sea and saved my life when a wave carried me from the deck, and to-night you have saved it again—aye, and the lives of 200 men, your enemies. Now I shall save yours!"

"Consuelo, what mean you?" asked the Cuban, in surprise.

"I mean that, though your duty called you to war against Spain, I never severed our engagement, and, loving you still, Enrique, I will not see you die, for already you are condemned, and the garrote will end your life. No! I have arranged my plan. Come!"

"But think of your father's anger when he discovers—"

"What is his anger to your life? Here, throw this cloak around you and put on this officer's cap," and she picked up a bundle she had dropped, while, with a key she held in her hand, she quickly unlocked the irons that bound him.

He did as she told him, and then drew her to his heart, saying feelingly:

"Consuelo, will you be true to me until peace shall reign between your land and mine?"

"Forever, Enrique! I can live only with you. But come, I sent the guard off on a message and he will soon return."

She led him from the state-room, up the companion-way and to the deck.

The wind still howled mournfully through the trees and the roar of the sea was terrific to hear, but the steamer was calmly resting upon the waters moored to a large rock, and with heavy branches overhanging the decks.

Against the poop-deck an officer shrunk from the blast, and forward was the watch on duty; but no one noticed the tall form of the Cuban, as with a nod of farewell he sprung over the side of the ship upon the foliage-clad rocks, and disappeared from view—his life saved by the woman he loved, and who idolized him.

Waiting until her lover had time to reach the forest, Consuelo Verona entered the cabin where her father sat writing letters, and, looking up, he said:

"Why, daughter, I thought you had retired?"

"No, father, I remained up to prevent your bringing a stain upon your proud name," she answered calmly.

"What mean you, child?"

"Simply, that had Enrique Delmonte died at your hands, after his noble conduct to-night in saving his foes, it would have been a foul blot upon your honor!"

"But he is condemned to die, and—"

"And I set him free."

The Spaniard sprang to his feet in a rage, hissing forth:

"Girl, how dare you brave me in this way? Ho! On deck, there!"

"Hold, father, he has escaped, for this is his own land near by, and he knows it well; and, more, I alone am to blame, for the guard over him I ordered away, and, as I often carry orders for you, he obeyed. In the place of Enrique Delmonte, father, make me your prisoner."

Capt. Verona stormed like a madman, and roused the whole ship; but it did no good, for the Cuban had escaped, and in safety gained the mountains, where he joined the command of Gen. Jordan, and won distinction as a gallant officer of cavalry; and through all the weary struggle in Cuba there were two hearts longing for peace, for, though one was a soldier in the patriot ranks and the other a daughter of Spain, their hearts were bound together by ties of love which death alone could sever.

---

*Executed with others of the Virginia's crew.

Analogies in Nature.

The cocoanut is, in many respects, like the human skull, although it closely resembles the skull of the monkey. A sponge may be so held as to remind one of the unfleshed face of the skeleton, and the meat of an English walnut is almost the exact representation of the brain.

Plums and black cherries resemble the human eyes; almonds and some other nuts resemble the different varieties of the human nose, and an open oyster and its shell are a perfect image of the human ear.

The shape of almost any man's body may be found in the various kinds of mammoth pumpkins. The open hand may be discerned in the form assumed by scrub-willows and growing celery.

The German turnip and the egg-plant resemble the human heart. There are other striking resemblances between human organs and certain vegetable forms. The forms of many mechanical contrivances in common use may be traced back to the patterns furnished by nature. Thus, the hog suggested the plow; the butterfly, the ordinary hinge; the toad-stool, the umbrella; the duck, the ship; the fungous growth on trees, the bracket. Any one desirous of proving the oneness of the earthly system will find the resemblances in nature an amusing study, to say the least.

Improved Mortar for Plastering.

A new method of making mortar for plastering walls has been devised, which is confidently said by those who are informed as to it to be superior to any other ever yet tried. Stucco or plaster-of-paris is used instead of lime in making the mortar, one part of stucco, by measure, being used to two parts of sand. No hair is used for the first or 'scratch' coat, and three coats of plastering are put on. In mixing the stucco and sand a quart of glue water is used to the pailful of sand and stucco mixed, and then clean water is added until the mortar is of the right consistency. The mortar must be used as soon as made, and only made in small quantities at a time. It is claimed that it will make a harder, more perfect wall, can be used to better advantage, and is little if any more expensive.—Grand Rapids Eagle.

He Laughs Best Who Laughs Last.

The train had started off. A young man rushed breathlessly in. "Got left, did you?" "Well, ain't I here?" he responded. Then one said he could go across the bridge and catch it, and another told him when the next train would go, and made various suggestions. The chap looked at the disappearing train a few seconds, when somebody asked, "Where were you going?" Then the wicked fellow said, "Oh, I wasn't going in it, but there was a fellow in the train to whom I promised to pay a bill."

THE FAMILY PHYSICIAN.

In any complaint where there is much perspiration do not go directly from a cold or frosty air to the bedside.

GRAHAM wafers for the sick: One cup of Graham flour, one and one-third cups of boiling water, and one-half teaspoonful of salt. Put the salt in the boiling water, pour the water gradually over the Graham, beat thoroughly, and set away to cool. When cool spread on sheets or pans as thin as the blade of a knife. Bake in a moderate oven about twelve minutes. Sick people can eat this when they can eat no other bread.

A CURE FOR NIGHT SWEATS.—A powder known as streupulver, composed of three parts of salicylic acid and ninety-seven parts silicate of magnesia, is used in Germany as a cure for sweating of the feet. Recently a Belgian physician, Dr. Kohnhom, tried its efficacy in several cases of night sweating by consumptives. The beneficial effect was immediate and permanent. The powder was rubbed over the whole body. To prevent any breathing of the dust and consequent coughing a handkerchief must be held over the patient's mouth and nose while the powder is being applied.

MEDICAL USE OF EGGS.—For burns and scalds nothing is more soothing than the white of an egg, which may be poured over the wound. It is softer as a varnish for a burn than collodion, and, being always at hand, can be applied immediately. It is also more cooling than the "sweet oil and cotton," which was formerly supposed to be the surest application to allay the smarting pain. It is the contact with the air which gives the extreme discomfort experienced from ordinary accidents of this kind, and anything which excludes air, and prevents inflammation, is the thing to be at once applied. The white of an egg, into which a piece of alum about the size of a walnut has been stewed until it forms a jelly, is a fine remedy for sprains. It should be laid over the sprain on a piece of lint and changed as often as it becomes dry.

CHILDREN are not apt to believe they drink too much water, and yet they do. When you come into the house, panting and thirsty from play, you will take a tumbler of water and drink it down as fast as you can, and then rush out to resume play, and, perhaps, repeat the drink. Now, the next time you feel thirsty, try this experiment: Take a goblet of water and slowly sip it. Before it is half gone your thirst will be fully quenched, and you will feel better for having drunk only that which you need. And again, we are all apt to acquire the habit of drinking while eating our meals. Nature gives us all the saliva we need; and if any one will chew his food slowly and thoroughly, and not take a swallow of drink until through eating, the desire to do so will leave, and he will require only a few sips of water, tea or coffee after the meal is finished. This practice, too, will do wonders in the way of keeping off indigestion, dyspepsia and sickness.

Some Astonishing Memories.

Of Fuller we are told "that he could write verbatim another man's sermon after hearing it once, and that he could do the same with as many as 500 words in an unknown language after hearing them twice. One day he undertook to walk from Temple Bar to the furthest end of Cheapside and to repeat on his return every sign on either side of the way in the order of their occurrence, a feat which he easily accomplished." And what has lately been reported of the Rev. Orlando Hyham, as an example of his most distinctive faculty, "that his memory was such that as he read Liddell and Scott's Greek Dictionary he destroyed the successive pages, content with having mastered their contents," is told of Bishop Bull, at the end of a masterly array of intellectual powers. "And as his reading was great, so his memory was equally retentive. He never kept any book of references of commonplaces, neither did he ever need any;" the writer adding that, "together with this happy faculty he was blessed with another that seldom accompanied it in the same person, and that was an accurate and sound judgment." Memory was in a past day more systematically cultivated than with us. People set themselves tasks. Thus Thomas Cromwell, of the Reformation period, as a traveling task, committed to memory the whole of Erasmus' "Paraphrase on the New Testament." Bishop Sanderson could repeat all the "Odes of Horace," all Tully's "Offices," and much of Juvenal and Persius without book. Bacon alludes to receipts for its improvement, as well as what herbs, in the popular mind, tend to strengthen imperfect memory, as onions, or beans, or such vaporous food. Again, he writes, "We find in the art of memory that images visible work better than conceits" in impressing things on the mind. A fact which finds modern illustration in the case of the Fifth Avenue Hotel waiter, who daily receives some 500 hats from chance persons dining together in one room, and, without any system of arrangement, promptly returns each hat to its owner, explaining that he forms a mental picture of the wearer's face inside his hat, and that on looking into the hat its owner is instantly brought before him. Again, to recur to Bacon's speculations, he finds that "hasty speech confounds memory." Again—as writing makes an exact man, so—"if a man writes little he had need of a great memory." And he criticises the exercises used in the universities as making too great a divorce between invention and memory in the cultivation of both faculties.—Blackwood's Magazine.

The Unitarians.

Unitarianism in this country has passed through much the same phases as in Great Britain. After 1740 Arian views of the person of Christ were pretty widely diffused through New England, and in 1787 took place the first secession from the Episcopal church, on the ground that those parts of the liturgy which imply a belief in the Trinity could not be any longer employed. Many of them, by perceptible degrees, glided into Unitarianism, but it was not until 1815, at which time Dr. Channing threw his influence into the scale, that the name began to be much used. The sect had its birth and still has its headquarters in Boston. It has made no considerable progress in the United States, for we find that so late as 1870, according to the Federal census report, out of 72,459 church organizations of all kinds, the Unitarians only possessed 331, and were the owners of 310 church edifices.

A Base Impostor.

A farmer from the vicinity of Hempstead appeared in front of the Stock Exchange and entered into conversation with a citizen who was waiting in the door by asking:

"The convention in there breaks up at 3 o'clock, don't it?"

"Yes, that's the hour," was the reply.

"Do you know Jay Gould when you see him?"

"Oh, yes."

"Is he in there?"

"I presume so."

"Well, I wish you'd point him out to me when he comes out."

The citizen promised to do this, and within a few minutes he kept his word. The farmer took a square look at the railroad and telegraph prince, and then turned and asked:

"Are you dead sure?"

"Oh yes."

"Can't be no mistake?"

"No."

"Well, it's about as I suspected. A few days ago a great big slouch of a fellow halted at my gate and began measuring my ground with a tape-line, and squinting around in the most mysterious manner. I went out to see what was up, and, after beating around for a while, he said he was Jay Gould, but I didn't know what he looked like."

"It must have been a fraud?"

"I am sure of that now. I pumped around to find what he was up to, and he finally said he wanted my place for an orphan asylum. He was going to build one as big as a palace and take care of all the orphans in the country."

"And of course you treated him well?"

"Didn't I! Why, for three days he lived on the fat of the land and slept in the parlor bedroom. He was going to give me $25,000 for my land, and the way we killed chickens and turned out sweet cake for him made the old woman sick. He finally jumped the house and took my Sunday suit and fiddle worth $8."

"I don't believe Gould would steal a fiddle."

"That's what I thought, and so I came over to have a look at him. It wasn't Gould at all, but some base impostor."

"And you are so much out."

"Well, it looks that way; but the experience is worth something. It may not be a week before some one else will come along with a ten-foot pole in his hand and a theological seminary in his eye, and claim to be Russell Sage, and the way I will knock him down, and step on him, and walk over him, and drive him into the silo will pay me a profit of 50 per cent. on the investment."—Wall Street News.

"Hard Pan."

Rev. Robert Collyer delivered an address to the students of an Eastern college, in the course of which he remarked that he had worked on a farm, carried a hod, shod horses, broken stone on a turnpike, had reaped and cradled grain, dug a well, cut wood, and had preached sermons that nobody wanted to hear. His wonderful success had been achieved by pure grit and honest industry. You must dig down to "hard pan," he said, to lay a foundation to fame and fortune. The reverend gentleman seemed to have drawn the most of his inspiration from Poor Richard's almanac. His apiculated aphorisms may be grouped as follows:

Any kind of an honest job is better than no job at all.

Take a dollar a day for your work if you can get no more.

A man's best friends are his ten fingers.

When evil days come, as evil days will, no man deserves the title of gentleman if he does not take honest work to do, regardless of social influences.

When country boys come to the city, if they can hold on to the old sweet ways, they can defy the world.

Keep your grip on the hard pan of principle and good conduct, and you will be men of good name and good fortune.

When a boy fills a house with bugs he is all right, provided he don't run after humbugs. He has the making in him of a great naturalist.

A good farmer is better than a poor doctor, and a good horseshoer is better than a Bishop who preaches sermons that nobody wants to hear.

A good day's work of what you can best do is the hard pan to which all must come.

Society says one thing and nature says another.

Work is good medicine.

Only those who make clean money and do clean things win success.

The honest man who dies poor is rich if he only holds his own.

Sleep eight hours out of the twenty-four, eat three meals a day, and walk on the sunny side of the way.

Have a reserve force that will come out when you need it.

Don't wind up the solemnity of courting a girl with prayer.

A Negro Ditty.

"The nearest approach to a complete negro ditty which I have been able to strike," writes Mr. Thomas Hughes from East Tennessee, "is one which a young Texan cattle-driver gives, with a wonderful roll of the word "chariot" which cannot be written. It runs:

"'De debble he chase me round a stump,
Gwine for to carry me home,
He catch me most at ebery jump,
Gwine for to carry me home.
Swing low, sweet chary—t,
Gwine for to carry me home.

"'De debble he make one grab at me,
Gwine, etc.,
He missed me, and my soul goed free,
Gwine, etc.;
Swing low, etc.

"'Oh! won't we have a gay old time,
Gwine, etc.,
A eatin' up o' honey and a drinkin' up o' wine
Gwine, etc.,
Swing low, etc.'

"This, sir, I think you will agree with me, though precious, is obviously a fragment only. It took our Texan many months to pick it up even in this mutilated condition."

WHAT is life? In infancy, a battle with colic; in youth, a struggle to keep out of mischief; in manhood, a struggle with indigestion, and in old age, the prelude of a contested will case.

HUMORS OF THE DAY.

BALD heads never dye.

USUALLY the coarser a base voice is the finer it is.

A POPULAR paper is like a toper's nose—it will be read.

WHEN your opponent calls you a liar let him have the floor.

THAT man that says that that that that that man used was correct, tells a falsehood.

A GREAT many men are cottage-built; that is to say they have but one story. And they are for ever telling it.

A POOR dentist of Kokomo wears forceps to keep him warm. A pair of drawers, you know.—Kokomo Tribune.

REBECCA: Yes; when a young lady "goes crazy" over dancing, we think she could consistently be called hopping mad.

"PEOPLE should always marry their opposites." Yes, one of the marrying parties ought to be a man and the other a woman.

WHEN the editor's wife gets a new dress on the strength of a dry goods advertisement, might it not properly be called her ad-dress?

A LOVER'S QUERY.

Tell me—tell me Gertie, true,
Do not—do not—do not lie,
Can you—can you—can you—can you
Make—make a pumpkin pie?

BOYS, don't be deceived. A girl who will talk of the "limbs" of a table, will, after marriage, chase you around a two acre lot with a rolling pin and a regular kerosene conflagration in both eyes.

A MAINE school-teacher captured thirty-three cuds of gum from her pupils in one day, and it was a rainy day at that.—Detroit Free Press. Most any school-teacher can do that if she but chews.

AN exchange speaks of "a policeman who shot a drunken man who tried to escape in the hind leg." The policeman is to be commended. When a drunken man tries to escape in the hind leg he deserves to be shot.

WHEN a fellow goes out of a theater to see a man, he eats a little burnt coffee and always finds his man. When a woman looks under a bed for a man she never thinks to eat any burnt coffee, and she finds nobody.

AN exchange prints a lengthily article on "Science at Breakfast." Valuable space wasted. Science at breakfast is getting away with four slices of ham and half a dozen eggs while your vis-a-vis is unfolding his napkin.

A MAN in Iowa has been arrested for assaulting his wife, and he was found guilty, even though it was shown that he only stuffed her mouth full of putty when he wanted to go to sleep. Do we men have no rights at all?

"TAKE the elevator" is inscribed on the fence of an Iowa meadow. A curious traveler who climbed the fence discovered in about ten seconds that the elevator is of a dark brindle color, with a curl in the middle of his forehead.

"TROUBLE has broken out in Cork." It is generally under the cork where trouble breaks out.—Norristown Herald. Many a sorrowing Home Ruler realizes that fact when he hears the corkscrew in the little small hours beyond the twelve.

A HARD CASE.—Major Dunnup—"Aw-f'lly dull down here, isn't it Miss Maria?" Miss Maria—"Do you think so? Why don't you go, then! You're a bachelor and have only yourself to please." Maj. Dunnup—"Only myself to please? You don't know what a deced difficult thing that is to do."

A little love,
A little glove,
A little rosebud for a token;
A little sigh
For days gone by—
A little girl heartbroken.
—[illegible] Courier.

Another man
Woos Sarah Ann,
With bankbook well-extended.
A social crown,
A house in town,
And Sarah's heart is mended.
—N. Y. Commercial.

THE Mexican lady without arms, who plays the piano with her feet, must be a fine performer. She throws her sole into the music.—New Orleans Picayune. One could easily keep in step with such music—though the above story is denied in toe-toe.—Yawcob Strauss. If the story is true, the Mexican lady's performance is certainly a great feat. If, however, the story is a lie, it is, of course, best toe nail it at once—Rome Sentinel. We know the lady, and she is a fine musician. She throws a wonderful amount of heeling into her execution.—Quincy Modern Argo.

Voting Qualifications in the State of Rhode Island.

The franchise in Rhode Island not being very well understood by the general public, the following explanation of the matter is made as brief and succinct as possible: There are two classes of voters in Rhode Island, property and registry voters. Both can vote for all general officers, Mayors and general city officers, and Presidential Electors, but only property voters can ballot for members of City Councils in cities, the idea governing this latter franchise being that only property-holders can have an interest in the question of taxation. Qualifications of voters are distinct. First, natives of the United States can become registry voters by a residence of two years in the State and six months in the town; or they become property voters by a residence of one year and owning $134 value of real estate. Second, those born in foreign countries must be naturalized, must live one year in the State, and must own $134 worth of real estate in all cases. They cannot become registry voters, nor voters in any way, except by owning real estate, but when made voters by owning such real estate, they vote for officers of every kind. It is this imperative clause, that in Rhode Island naturalized citizens must own real estate to the value of $134, which is not generally known. Besides the qualifications for registry voters, these persons must have their names duly entered in the registry list before the end of December of the preceding year, and must pay $1 registry fee before the 10th day of January of the year in which they intend to vote. Registry voters of American birth can become property voters by paying a tax on $134 worth of property, real or personal. Men native born, without property, real or personal, may be taxed for a nominal sum of $300 personal property, so called, and thus become property voters.

TEXANS are crying for Italian opera, having heard that it is good to eat.

Gen. Sam Houston's Romance.

Born in Virginia in 1793, left an orphan in boyhood, Sam Houston went with his mother to Tennessee, where he supported her with his own industry, thus early learning family loyalty. In 1813, at the age of 20, he enlisted under Gen. Jackson in the Creek war, and for his repeated deeds of gallantry he so gained the esteem of Jackson that he urged him to remain permanently in the army. Resigning, however, and studying law in Nashville, he rose from office to office, and in 1823, at the age of 30, he was elected to Congress, and then again in 1827 was elected Governor of Tennessee. Up to this time Houston was unmarried. Universally admired, and urged by associates to form an alliance, which seemed essential to his station, a young lady of beauty and accomplishments was commended to him by family influence. His proposal of marriage was accepted, and late in 1828 the marriage ceremony was performed with unusual pomp. The next day Houston resigned his office, crossed the Mississippi into Arkansas, and Dec. 11, 1828, wrote from the agency of his old Cherokee acquaintances the letter to President Jackson which called forth his letter of Jan. 24, 1829. No one of Houston's companions knew till his death the cause of his new course, which his best friends, like Jackson, regarded as partial insanity; no one but his widow could reveal it, and she only through a sense of conjugal and Christian duty. That cause was the highest test of loyalty of which any man could be capable.

On the eve of the marriage Gov. Houston observed a tremor in the voice and in the hand of his bride, when the vow of undivided attachment was pronounced, which convinced him some secret had not been revealed to him. Before retiring he frankly told her of his suspicion, asked a frank confession and pledged her that it should not work to her injury. His frankness and firmness led to the confession that her affections had been given and pledged to another before their meeting, and that filial duty had prompted her acceptance of his proffer. Houston retired to his own cot, next day resigned his position, allowed the entire fault to appear to be his, permitted and encouraged her application for a divorce on the plea of desertion, and his bride was married to the man of her former affection. Many irregularities, rumor, of course, charged on the man who had really sacrificed everything to save one who had erred only in mistaken duty; but no charge of domestic infidelity could be true in a man who denied it to the estimable lady who afterward became his wife.

A Lady's Wish.

"Oh, how I do wish my skin was as clear and soft as yours," said a lady to her friend. "You can easily make it so," answered the friend. "How?" inquired the first lady. "By using Hop Bitters, that makes pure, rich blood and blooming health. It did it for me, as you observe." Read of it.—Cairo Bulletin.

Food and Digestion.

Professor Hawkes, in a lecture before the Woman's Physiological Institute of Chicago, gave some palpable instances of widely different results attending the disposition of brain nutriment in different persons. John Sherman, for instance, after assimilating the truths of finance, evolved the scheme of specie resumption, while Gen. Weaver, with access to the same sort of brain food, evolved the idea of greenbacks, and plenty of them. Similarly, one man became a Republican, while another was known as a Democrat, and still voted for Andrew Jackson. Mental digestion was involuntary, and dyspepsia and diarrhea were not unfamiliar attendants of indigestion of both sorts—mental and physical. The thinkers were affected with mental dyspepsia, and those who do not think, but allowed others to think for them, with mental diarrhea, exhibiting itself wherever they were afflicted with a rush of words. The Professor enumerated as the chief cause of indigestion the peculiarly American stomachic vice of hurried eating. Good, perfect digestion might be said to be almost unknown to the average American. What with rapid eating, lack of sufficient sleep, and want of rest, nature had no adequate provision for such extraordinary expenditure of nervous force. Ordinarily some men swallowed as much in ten minutes as it would require three-fourths of an hour to eat, and the result was not only that they ate too much, but the food which they took into their stomachs was unphysiologically masticated, and the stomach given a duty to perform which properly belonged to the organs or mastication. These unnatural drafts on nature's forces must, unless checked, tell sooner or later on the general health. The bolting of food was almost universal in this country, and second to no other cause in producing indigestion. The use of liquids during a meal was all wrong, for the reason that it tended to a disuse of the organs of mastication, while plenty of liquid before and after meal was not only proper, but beneficial. Nothing, however, should be taken into the stomach that was either hotter than the blood or colder than the atmosphere. Unnecessary dessert, eaten when the appetite was already sated, was another evil, while a still further cause of indigestion lay in the growing practice of indulging in hearty 6 o'clock dinners. The Professor admitted, however, that for certain classes of business men, such as bankers, board of trade people, etc., a noonday dinner would practically amount to suicide; but for people who could eat a hearty dinner in the middle of the day, and who were in the habit of retiring early, an evening dinner was wholly inadvisable, for the reason that it allowed too little time for digestion. Coffee drinking was duly deprecated as both needless and injurious to health, and a reform in the directions indicated was urged as the only remedy for the great American evil—indigestion.

The thoughtlessness of people is so great in regard to watchfulness against Colds, etc., that were it not for the wonderful curative power of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup we should shudder at the fate of such.

Another Doleful Prediction.

Prof. C. A. Grimmer, a Kingston (Jamaica) scientist, predicts that the star of Bethlehem, which appears every 315 years, will again be visible in "Cassecopia's chair" in 1887, and will be accompanied by a total eclipse of the sun and moon. It will be seen even by noonday, shining with a quick, flashing light the entire year, after which it will gradually decrease in brightness and finally disappear, not to return to our heavens till 2202. The appearance of this star, accompanied as it will be by solar and lunar eclipses, together with the baneful influence that follows the positions that Mars and Saturn will occupy, will cause, the professor thinks, a universal war, floods and fearful shipwrecks. North America will be involved in civil strife, and a reign of terror will prevail in the Atlantic.

The Bonanza King.

A citizen of San Francisco, who had amassed wealth by a fortunate investment in mining interests, determined to cultivate the fine arts. He sent to Florence for a copy of the Venus of Milo in marble. In the course of time the commission was accomplished, and the marble goddess, protected by wrappings and securely boxed, safely crossed the ocean and was transported across the continent to the residence of the owner. The box was unpacked, and the goddess, in her celestial beauty, was revealed to his eager gaze.

His consternation may be imagined when he beheld his costly treasure unveiled, but without arms! How could such an accident happen, and what had become of the missing members, for not a vestige of broken marble rewarded his anxious search? His indignation and disappointment were unbounded in beholding a woman without arms where he had expected a master-piece of art.

All the money in the world in itself will not give culture and taste. The bonanza king had never heard the story of the famous Venus of Milo. He did not know what almost all intelligent young people could tell him, that this masterpiece of sculpture was dug up in the island of Milo just as it now stands in the museum of the Louvre in Paris. Fruitless search has been made for the missing arms, and connoisseurs in art would give its weight in gold a hundred times over if they could be found.

The statue, in which the rich miner saw nothing but imperfection, has drawn forth the admiration of lovers of art ever since modern eyes have looked upon it. Few are the visitors in Paris who fail to spend hours before the marble shrine where the Venus of Milo stands enthroned, in rapt appreciation of its almost celestial beauty, and few are the intelligent persons in the civilized world who, in marble, bronze, engraving, or photograph, are not familiar with the perfect lineaments and the faultless form of this embodiment of the genius of the past.

A bonanza mine is not to be despised, but it fails alone to give to its possessor the resources for happiness hidden in a cultivated mind and refined taste.—Youth's Companion.

How Happiness is Secured.

Happiness is the absence of pain or annoyance, and wherever there is pain there is disease. A pain in the lower portion of the body indicates a disorder of some kind. If there is any odor or color or deposit in the urine it means disease and requires attention at once. We have heard many of our friends speak of the remarkable power of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, and are convinced there is nothing so certain and valuable for all disorders of the urinary system, both male and female.

A Great Invention.

A Frenchman has invented a device by which passengers can be put on and taken off an express train while it is in motion. Of course, an energetic man can get off an express train now while it is going at thirty miles an hour, but the feat is attended by many drawbacks. The aforesaid Frenchman would have his patent car stand on a side track, from which it could run on the main line without necessitating the turning of a switch. This car contains at one end a small engine and a big drum, connected with a set of steel springs running the whole length of the car underneath. A wire rope is wound around this drum, and when it is unwound it tightens up the set of springs to their utmost tension. The unwound end of this cable terminates in a hook that is placed on a post beside the main track, so that a similiar hook on the express train will catch it. Do you catch the idea? When the express comes booming by the passengers are seated at the other end of the patent car, the express hook catches the patent hook, and rapidly unwinds the rope from the drum, the patent car meanwhile slowly moving forward. By the time the rope is unwound from the drum the car is going as fast as the express. The small engine winds up the rope again, assisted by the springs, and this draws the car up to the rear coach of the express. Passengers and baggage are rapidly transferred, the car unhitched, and the small engine helps it back to the station. The experiment has been tried in France, and is quite successful. There was no shock when the patent car started, and everything worked like a charm.

Cause and Effect.

The main cause of nervousness is indigestion, and that is caused by weakness of the stomach. No one can have sound nerves and good health without using Hop Bitters to strengthen the stomach, purify the blood, and keep the liver and kidneys active, to carry off all the poisonous and waste matter of the system. See other column.—Advance.

A Turkish Joker.

The best known story of the traditional Joe Miller of Turkey is that of his thrice fooling an assembly of true believers out of a sermon by three successive jocular replies. The first time he ascended the pulpit he said:

"Oh, true believers, do you know what I am going to say?"

They replied:

"No;" whereupon he asked:

"Of what use is it to preach to such ignoramuses?" and came down from the pulpit.

The next time, when he asked the same question, they answered:

"Yes, we know;" whereupon he said;

"Then it is useless for me to tell you," and came down.

The third time, having taken counsel together, the congregation prepared an answer which they thought would corner their joker-preacher, and said:

"Some of us know and some of us don't;" whereupon he promptly replied:

"Let those who know tell those who don't," and once more came down.

A Happy Hatter.

[From the Cleveland Leader.]

Happy is Knox, the famous New York Hatter. Mrs. Knox, who had been a frequent and painful sufferer with rheumatism, was speedily cured by the use of the Great German Remedy, St. Jacobs Oil. Consequently the great Broadway Hatter is happy.

Fires in Japan.

A fire in Japan is apt to be disastrous on account of the unsubstantial nature of the light wood, paper-windowed houses. One or two steam engines, maintained by the joint subscriptions of the foreign insurance companies who have agencies here and are interested in property in Japan, and a number of old-fashioned hand engines belonging to the Japanese Government, and managed by natives, from the fire guard to the foreign settlement and native town of Yokohama. The Hong Kong Fire Insurance Company, being an English house, provide their volunteers with uniforms of English pattern—brass helmets for the officers and black leather helmets trimmed with brass, for the men; blue flannel shirts, faced with red, corduroy trousers, top boots and a belt, with a hatchet and spanner on either side. The relief men wear the American fire hat and red flannel shirt, but in other respects their dress is the same as the Victoria. At the sound of the alarm bell the steam engines are not long in reaching the scene of a fire, and the steady streams from their hose as a rule soon have a very perceptible effect on the flame, though at times the men have to work unremittingly from night till morning, and when at last the fire is extinguished the tired volunteers draw the engine back to their houses and retire to the rest they have so fairly earned by their labors. After the steam engines are drawn off the Japs are left to play on the smouldering ruins with their hand engines, which, though almost useless when a fire is at its height, are sufficiently powerful to keep it from breaking out again. The Japanese policemen, though brave and quick enough, are absolutely worthless at a fire. They jabber and shout like a parcel of monkeys struck suddenly mad, give orders where they have no right to interfere, and chop at windows and doors with their hatchets, destroying property unnecessarily, where in most cases it should be saved with no other damage than would be caused by the water pumped from the engine. The uniform of the Japanese policemen, like that of all government officials, is of foreign pattern, and is made of navy blue cloth, faced with yellow; their caps, something of the same shape as a navy cap, have a yellow band sewed around them, and a brass chrysanthemum, the crest of the Emperor, is fastened just above the peak. At some of the fires three or four hundred houses are burned to the ground, and as many poor families left homeless.—Exchange.

How We Were "Buttonholed."

[From the Toledo Blade.]

"Look here! I don't want to buttonhole you with any political intentions; but, if you have a minute's time, let me tell you something that may benefit some of your readers." "Well, what is it?" we remarked to our old friend and subscriber as he stopped us in front of the Boody House yesterday morning. "I was only going to remark that those Hamburg Drops, of which you publish a notice in your paper, is really the best Blood Medicine in the country; I tried it, and so have some of my friends, for serious ailments, and I'll be hanged if it ain't entitled to the medal." We cheerfully make space for the above candid opinion of one of our readers.

A DIAMOND expert of Chicago asserts that many of the so-called solitaires, sold as single stones, are made up of small stones cleverly put together. Under the blowpipe they separate. He adds the surprising statement that not one diamond in ten sold in this country is other than the refuse of the London market. Nearly all are off-colored, specked, or feathered, and are sold at a fictitious value.

The Epizootic

Has again made its appearance in various parts of the country. As prevention is better than cure, the attention of owners of stock is called to UNCLE SAM'S CONDITION POWDERS. These celebrated powders stand unrivaled for their excellency as a preventive from disease. By mixing with the feed they will keep the animal in the best general health, toning up the system and keeping the digestive organs and blood in a healthy condition.

The Powders are warranted to give perfect satisfaction. Prepared by the EMMERT PROPRIETARY Co., Chicago, Ill. Put up in 25 and 50-cent packages, and sold by all druggists.

The Voltaic Belt Co., Marshall, Mich., Will send their Electro-Voltaic Belts to the afflicted upon thirty days' trial. See their advertisement in this paper, headed, "On Thirty Days' Trial."

DR. C. E. SHOEMAKER, of Reading, Pa., is the only aural surgeon in the United States who devotes all his time to the treatment of deafness and diseases of the ear and catarrh; especially running ear. Nearly twenty years' experience. Thousands testify to his skill. Consult him by mail or otherwise. Pamphlet free.

MALARIAL fevers can be prevented, also other miasmatic diseases, by occasionally using Dr. Sanford's Liver Invigorator, the oldest general Family Medicine, which is recommended as a cure for all diseases caused by a disordered liver. Eighty-page book sent free. Address Dr. Sanford, 162 Broadway, New York.

SPRING IS COMING.—If you are going to want any Field, Garden or Flower seeds read the advertisement of A. B. Barnes, Chicago, in another column, and send for his catalogue of new seeds. His references, we think, are sufficient guarantee as to his reliability.

FOR a pamphlet on Electric Treatment of chronic diseases with Electricity, which will be sent free, address the McIntosh Electric Belt and Battery Co., 192 & 194 Jackson St., Chicago, Ill.

VEGETINE is a great panacea for our aged fathers and mothers; for it gives them strength, quiets their nerves, and gives them Nature's sweet sleep.

YOUNG men from all parts of the country are going to H. B. Bryant's Chicago Business College. It is the highest authority in the land.

THE habit of running over boots and shoes corrected with Lyon's Patent Heel Stiffeners.

Daughters, Wives and Mothers.
DR. MARCHISI'S UTERINE CATHOLICON will positively cure Female Weakness, such as Falling of the Womb, Whites, Chronic Inflammation or Ulceration of the Womb, Incidental Hemorrhage or Flooding, Painful, Suppressed and Irregular Menstruation, &c. An old and reliable remedy. Send postal card for a pamphlet, with treatment, cures and certificates from physicians and patients, to HOWARTH & BALLARD, Utica, N. Y. Sold by all Druggists—$1.50 per bottle.

DR. BULL'S COUGH SYRUP

Under the Rose (Sub-rosa).

The true origin of the term "under the rose" is undoubtedly to be sought from the very early oriental connection of that flower with the rites of the worship of Venus. In all the early mythologies, the rose was employed in crowning the Queen of Love, or her worshipers, and in many instances it is a symbol of the divinity herself. The secrecy with which these religious mysteries were veiled, would sufficiently indicate the reason why the symbols connected with it were also typical of silence. There is abundant evidence that the use of the rose as a symbol of silence is of far greater antiquity than the days of Romans or Norsemen. There has arisen much petty controversy about the common expression "under the rose," and two different origins have been assigned. Some persons assert that it ought to be spelt "under the rows," for that in former days almost all towns were built with the second story projecting over the lower one—a sort of piazza, or row, as they termed it, and which may still be seen at Chester and some other old English towns; and that, whilst the elders of the family were sitting at their windows, gravely enjoying the air, their sons and daughters were making love where they could not see them, "under the rows." The other is much more elegant. Cupid it is said, gave a rose to Harpocrates, the god of silence; and from this legend originated the practice that prevailed amongst Northern nations of suspending a rose from the ceiling over the upper end of the table, where it was intended that the conversation was to be kept secret; and and that it was, according to others, which gave rise to the phrase, "under the rose."

IF you want to find out how little a man knows about himself and family, give him an insurance "application" to fill out. If you want to see how little he knows about anything, put him on the witness-stand.—Burlington Hawk-Eye.

We confidently refer our readers to the card of Dr. C. R. Sykes, in another column. He is an old resident of Chicago, a regular graduate, honest, honorable and responsible, and, as a physician, takes first rank in his chosen Specialty of catarrh and its complications.

Vegetine
WILL CURE RHEUMATISM
MR. ALBERT CROOKER, the well-known druggist and apothecary of Springvale, Me., always advises every one troubled with rheumatism to try VEGETINE.
Read His Statement:
SPRINGVALE, ME., Oct. 12, 1876.
MR. H. R. STEVENS:
Dear Sir—Fifteen years ago last fall I was taken sick with rheumatism, was unable to move until the next April. From that time until three years ago this fall I suffered everything with rheumatism. Sometimes there would be weeks at a time that I could not step one step; these attacks were quite often. I suffered everything that a man could. Over three years ago last spring I commenced taking Vegetine, and followed it up until I had taken seven bottles; have had no rheumatism since that time. I always advise every one that is troubled with rheumatism to try Vegetine, and not suffer for years as I have done. This statement is gratuitous as far as Mr. Stevens is concerned. Yours, etc.,
ALBERT CROOKER,
Firm of A. Crooker & Co., Druggists and Apothecaries.
Vegetine.
For Kidney Complaint and Nervous Debility.
ISLESBORO, ME., Dec. 28, 1877.
MR. STEVENS:
Dear Sir—I had a cough for eighteen years, when I commenced taking the Vegetine. I was very low; my system was debilitated by disease. I had the Kidney Complaint, and was very nervous—cough bad, lungs sore. When I had taken one bottle I found it was helping me; it has helped my cough, and it strengthens me. I am now able to do my work. Never have found anything like the Vegetine. I know it is everything it is recommended to be.
MRS. A. J. PENDLETON.
"Vegetine," says a Boston physician, "has no equal as a blood purifier. Hearing of its many wonderful cures, after all other remedies have failed, I visited the laboratory and convinced myself of its genuine merit. It is prepared from barks, roots and herbs, each of which is highly effective, and they are compounded in such a manner as to produce astonishing results."
Vegetine
PREPARED BY
H. R. STEVENS, Boston, Mass.

HOSTETTER'S
CELEBRATED

STOMACH
BITTERS
There is no civilized nation in the Western Hemisphere in which the utility of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, as a tonic, corrective and anti-bilious medicine, is not known and appreciated. While it is a medicine for all seasons and all climates, it is especially suited to the complaints generated by the weather, being the purest and best vegetable stimulant in the world.
☞ For sale by Druggists and Dealers, to whom apply for Hostetter's Almanac for 1881.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. Address STINSON & Co., Portland, Me.

$66 a week in your own town. Terms and $5 Outfit free. Address H. HALLETT & Co., Portland, Me.

$777 A YEAR and expenses to agents. Outfit Free. Address P. O. VICKERY, Augusta, Maine.

$72 a week. $12 a day at home easily made. Costly Outfit free. Address TRUE & Co., Augusta, Me.

PISO'S CURE for Consumption is also the best cough medicine.

OPIUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till Cured. DR. J. STEPHENS, Lebanon, Ohio.

$350 A MONTH! Agents Wanted! 75 Best-Selling Articles in the world; a sample free. JAY BRONSON, Detroit, Mich.

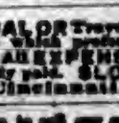
YOUNG MEN Learn Telegraphy and earn $40 to $100 a month. Every graduate guaranteed a paying situation. Address VALENTINE BROS., Managers, Janesville, Wis.

SALESMEN WANTED $105 A Month and Expenses selling to DEALERS SAMPLES FREE. Send 3c. STAMP to CIGARS ... S. FOSTER & CO., Cincinnati, O.

EMPLOYMENT—LOCAL OR Traveling. State which preferred. Also SALARY per month. ALL EXPENSES advanced. WAGES promptly paid. SLOAN & Co. 306 George St. Cincinnati, O.

WANTED—Agents everywhere to sell our goods by sample, to families. We give attractive premiums and first-class goods to your customers; we give good profits; we prepay all express charges; we furnish outfit free. Write for particulars. PEOPLE'S TEA CO., Box 5025, St. Louis, Mo.

TRUTH IS MIGHTY!



TEAS.—Choicest in the world—Importers' prices—Largest Company in America—staple article—pleases everybody—Trade continually increasing—Agents wanted everywhere—best inducements—don't waste time—send for Circular. ROB'T WELLS, 43 Vesey st., N. Y. P. O. Box 1287.

Printers' Outfits.
Printers about to embark in the Newspaper or Printing Business in this State will find it to their interest to address PRINTERS' EXCHANGE, Box 3665, Chicago, Ill., before purchasing outfits.

BEFORE BUYING OR RENTING AN ORGAN
Send for our LATEST ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE (32 pp. 4to), with NEWEST STYLES, at $51 and upward; or $6.38 per quarter, and up. Sent free. MASON & HAMLIN ORGAN CO., 154 Tremont St., BOSTON; 46 East 14th St., NEW YORK; 149 Wabash Ave., CHICAGO.

10 CENTS a Month, or One Dollar a Year. THE CHICAGO LEDGER will be sent to any address, postage paid, at the prices named above. Send in your names. Address THE LEDGER, Chicago, Ill.

CRISTADORO'S Hair Dye is the SAFEST and BEST; it acts instantaneously, producing the most natural shades of Black or Brown; does NOT STAIN the SKIN, and is easily applied. It is a standard preparation, and a favorite on every well-appointed toilet for Lady or Gentleman. Sold by Druggists and applied by Hair Dressers. Depot, 93 William St., New York. C. N. CRITTENTON, Ag't.

"Dr. Sykes' Sure Cure" FOR "CATARRH"
Cures Without Fail. Ask your Druggist for it.
Price of "Sure Cure" and "Insufflator" all complete is only $1.50. Valuable book of full information, 10 cents. Name this paper and address DR. C. R. SYKES, 169 E. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

HOP BITTERS.
(A Medicine, not a Drink.)
CONTAINS
HOPS, BUCHU, MANDRAKE, DANDELION,
AND THE PUREST AND BEST MEDICAL QUALITIES OF ALL OTHER BITTERS.
THEY CURE
All Diseases of the Stomach, Bowels, Blood, Liver, Kidneys, and Urinary Organs, Nervousness, Sleeplessness and especially Female Complaints.
$1000 IN GOLD.
Will be paid for a case they will not cure or help, or for anything impure or injurious found in them.
Ask your druggist for Hop Bitters and try them before you sleep. Take no other.
D I C is an absolute and irresistible cure for Drunkenness, use of opium, tobacco and narcotics.
SEND FOR CIRCULAR.
All above sold by druggists.
Hop Bitters Mfg. Co., Rochester, N. Y., & Toronto, Ont.

AGENTS! Here is YOUR GOLD MINE! DIGGING GOLD AMONG THE ROCKIES. By a U. S. Mineral Surveyor. Complete selection description of every part of the great gold and silver fields. The precious stuff; where they find it, how they find it, how they mine it. Exciting adventures of wild Camp Life. Streams filled with Fish. Forests filled with Game. Mountains filled with Silver and Gold. For Circulars and Special Extra Terms, address HUBBARD BROS., Chicago, Ill.

ENCYCLOPÆDIA OF ETIQUETTE AND BUSINESS
This is the cheapest and only complete and reliable work on Etiquette and Business and Social Forms. It tells how to perform all the various duties of life, and how to appear to the best advantage on all occasions.
Agents Wanted.—Send for circulars containing a full description of the work and extra terms to Agents. Address NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO., Chicago, Ill.

CELLULOID EYE-GLASSES.
Representing the choicest-selected Tortoise-Shell and Amber. The lightest, handsomest, and strongest known. Sold by Opticians and Jewelers. Made by the SPENCER OPTICAL M'F'G CO., 13 Maiden Lane, New York.

TEXAS! The Southwestern Immigration Company.
It is the purpose of this Company to supply the need of a State Bureau of Immigration, and not to subserve the purposes of any individual, railway, or other corporation. ☞ No lands bought or sold. Information furnished those wishing to settle in Texas. Correspondence solicited. Address W. W. LANG, Pres. (late Master Texas State Grange) or B. G. DUVAL, Sec. Austin, Texas.

DANIEL F. BEATTY'S ORGANS! 14 STOPS, SUB-BASS & OCT. COUPLER, FOUR SET REEDS ONLY $65 PIANOS $125 up. Sent on Trial. Warranted. Catalogue Free. Address DANIEL F. BEATTY, Washington, New Jersey.

$5.00 PER DAY Made Selling Our New PLATFORM FAMILY SCALE.
Weighs accurately up to 25 lbs. Its handsome appearance sells it at sight. Retail price, $1.50. Other Family Scales weighing 25 lbs. cost $8.00. A Regular BOOM FOR AGENTS.
Exclusive territory given free. Terms and rapid sales surprise old Agents.
DOMESTIC SCALE CO., No. 1?? W. Fifth St., Cincinnati, O.

PETROLEUM Grand Medal at Philadelphia Exposition. VASELINE JELLY. Silver Medal at Paris Exposition.
This wonderful substance is acknowledged by physicians throughout the world to be the best remedy discovered for the cure of Wounds, Burns, Rheumatism, Skin Diseases, Piles, Catarrh, Chilblains, &c. In order that every one may try it, it is put up in 15 and 25 cent bottles for household use. Obtain it from your druggist, and you will find it superior to anything you have ever used.

This Beat's all.
Buy your Seeds of A. B. Barnes, 46 & 48 W. Lake St., Chicago.
SEEDS—Choice selections from the most reliable growers and importers. No old seeds in store. Every variety tested before offered for sale. Special attention given to orders by mail. Seeds shipped by mail or express to any part of the United States. Reference: Home National Bank, Chicago; Furst & Bradley M'f'g Co., Chicago; Kirby, Carpenter & Co., Chicago. Send for Catalogue of Seeds and Farm Machinery. A. B. BARNES, 46 & 48 W. Lake St., Chicago, Ill.

RED RIVER VALLEY.
2,000,000 Acres
Wheat Lands
best in the World, for sale by the
St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba R.R. CO.
Three dollars per acre allowed the settler for breaking and cultivation. For particulars apply to
D. A. McKINLAY,
Land Commissioner, St. Paul, Minn.

St. Jacobs Oil
THE GREAT GERMAN REMEDY FOR RHEUMATISM, NEURALGIA, SCIATICA, LUMBAGO, BACKACHE, GOUT, SORENESS OF THE CHEST, SORE THROAT, QUINSY, SWELLINGS AND SPRAINS, FROSTED FEET AND EARS, BURNS AND SCALDS, General Bodily Pains, TOOTH, EAR AND HEADACHE, AND ALL OTHER PAINS AND ACHES.
No Preparation on earth equals ST. JACOBS OIL as a SAFE, SURE, SIMPLE and CHEAP External Remedy. A trial entails but the comparatively trifling outlay of 50 CENTS, and every one suffering with pain can have cheap and positive proof of its claims. DIRECTIONS IN ELEVEN LANGUAGES.
SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS AND DEALERS IN MEDICINE.
A. VOGELER & CO.
Baltimore, Md., U. S. A.

ON 30 DAYS' TRIAL.
We will send our Electro-Voltaic Belts and other Electric Appliances upon trial for 30 days to those afflicted with Nervous Debility and diseases of a personal nature. Also of the Liver, Kidneys, Rheumatism, Paralysis, &c. A sure cure guaranteed or no pay. Address Voltaic Belt Co., Marshall, Mich.

FRAZER AXLE GREASE.
Best in the World. Made only by the Frazer Lubricator Company, at Chicago, New York, and St. Louis. SOLD EVERYWHERE.

AGENTS! AGENTS! AGENTS!
JOSIAH ALLEN'S WIFE HAS "GOT" A NEW BOOK. THE BEST AND FUNNIEST OF ALL.
"My Wayward Pardner."
AGENTS WANTED in every Town. Don't miss it, but send for Circular at once, and secure territory. Address H. N. HINCKLEY, Chicago, Ill.

PENSIONS!
New Law. Thousands of Soldiers and heirs entitled. Pensions date back to discharge or death. Time limited. Address, with stamp,
GEORGE E. LEMON,
P. O. Drawer 325. Washington, D. C.

NATRONA BI-CARB. SODA
Is the best in the World. It is absolutely pure. It is the best for Medicinal Purposes. It is the best for Baking and all Family Uses. Sold by all Druggists and Grocers.
Penn'a Salt Manufact'ing Co., Phila.

C. GILBERT'S STARCH

LITERARY REVOLUTION
3 CENTS each, formerly $1.00 to $1.50 each: I. Macaulay's Life of Frederick the Great. II. Carlyle's Life of Robert Burns. III. Lamartine's Life of Mary Queen of Scots. IV. Thos. Hughes' Manliness of Christ. 5 CENTS each: I. Arnold's Light of Asia. II. Goldsmith's Vicar of Wakefield. III. Baron Munchausen's Travels and Surprising Adventures. ... SIX CENTS: Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress, Illustrated. Catalogue sent free. AMERICAN BOOK EXCHANGE, John B. Alden, Manager, Tribune Building, New York.

Iowa Farms
Over 1,000,000 Acres of Choice Farming Lands in the Near West
For sale by the Iowa R.R. Land Co. Cedar Rapids, Iowa. Branch Office, 92 Randolph St., Chicago, Ills.

SAPONIFIER
Is the "Original" Concentrated Lye and Reliable Family Soap Maker. Directions accompany each Can for making Hard, Soft and Toilet Soap quickly. It is full weight and strength. Ask your grocer for SAPONIFIER, and take no other.
Penn'a Salt Manufact'ng Co., Phila.

KIDNEY-WORT
PERMANENTLY CURES KIDNEY DISEASES, LIVER COMPLAINTS, Constipation and Piles.
IT HAS WONDERFUL POWER. WHY?
BECAUSE IT ACTS ON THE LIVER, THE BOWELS AND KIDNEYS AT THE SAME TIME.
Because it cleanses the system of the poisonous humors that develope in Kidney and Urinary diseases, Biliousness, Jaundice, Constipation, Piles, or in Rheumatism, Neuralgia and Female disorders.
KIDNEY-WORT is a dry vegetable compound and can be sent by mail prepaid.
One package will make six qts of medicine.
TRY IT NOW!
Buy it at the Druggists. Price, $1.00.
WELLS, RICHARDSON & CO., Proprietors,
Burlington, Vt.

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS, please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, IND., DECEMBER 30, 1880.

IT is rumored that Senator Blaine is to have a place in Garfield's cabinet. He will likely be secretary of state.

A BILL has been introduced into congress to provide for the issue of a gold certificate, similar in character to the silver certificates now in circulation.

GOV. MCCLELLAN, of New Jersey, has declined the presidency of the New York underground railroad company. He prefers to retire from public life, and will likely go abroad at the conclusion of his term of office.

SITTING BULL has left his Canadian friends and crossed to the American side of the line. Scouts from the nearest military posts reported, and at first it was believed that he came in to surrender, but at latest accounts the wily old savage was not as penitent as was at first reported, but was halting a few miles away and trying to negotiate for something to eat and a fresh supply of cartridges. His followers, of all classes, number several hundred.

THE New York Sun states that Mrs. George Cator, who still lives to tell it, dressed Jay Gould in his first suit of clothes. This lady has been reciting the story of Gould's boyhood, and describes him as follows: "He is a dark man, with oriental features, under five feet six inches in height, weighs probably not more than 110 pounds, is forty-one years of age, and is said to be worth $10,000,000. He married Miss Ellen Miller, daughter of a well-known merchant, and is now the father of five children, of whom the oldest boy, George, about thirteen years old, promises to be as smart as his father."

In the house of representatives Tuesday of last week, Mr. Weaver, late candidate of the greenback party for president of the United States, was making a speech on the new funding bill. Mr. Sparks, a member from Illinois, took part in the debate, in common with many other members. In the course of his remarks he took occasion to remind Mr. Weaver that he, Weaver, had during the recent political campaign, acted in concert with the republican party. This, Weaver vehemently denied, and during a heated discussion which followed each gave the other the lie direct. Weaver stated his fighting weight at 155 pounds, and Sparks put his at 200 pounds. Both started down the aisle, intending to clinch and fight it out on the floor of the house, but other members interfered and put a stop to the disgraceful scene. Next day, under pressure of a vote of censure and a resolution to expel both the belligerent members, they apologized to the house for their ungentlemanly conduct. No more disgraceful row has ever occurred on the floor of the house, and it is a pity both were not expelled.

An educational bill is now pending in the United States senate, of which the following is the substance: The net proceeds of sales of public lands and of patents are forever set apart for the education of the people. The secretary of the treasury shall yearly apportion to the several states and territories and the District of Columbia, upon the basis of population between the ages of five and twenty years, the said net profits for the previous year, which shall be credited on the books of the treasury as an educational fund, on which 4 per cent interest per annum is to be paid to the states as above; provided, that for the first ten years the apportionment shall be made according to the numbers of the population of ten years old and upward who cannot read and write; and provided, further, that one-third of the income from said fund shall be appropriated to the complete endowment and support of colleges established under the act of 1862, until the amount thus accruing to said college in each state shall reach $30,000, after which the whole income of said fund shall be appropriated to the said states, territories and district to the education of all children between the ages of six and sixteen. The secretary of the treasury is authorized to add to the fund any sums given to the United States for that purpose. A sum not exceeding fifty per cent of the amount received by any state, etc., the first year, and not exceeding ten per cent in any year thereafter, may be applied, at discretion, to the maintenance of schools for the instruction of teachers of common schools. To be entitled to the benefits of this act any state, etc., must maintain for at least three months in each year until January 1, 1885, and thereafter four months in each year; a system of free public school for all children between 6 and 16 years of age. Any state, etc., misapplying any of the money received under this act shall forfeit further grants until the amounts so misapplied shall have been replaced by said state, etc. Nothing contained in the act shall be held to alter any previous law regarding the disposition of public land nor to limit the power of congress over the public domain, nor to interfere with granting bounty land to soldiers and sailors. The bill also authorizes colleges established under the act of 1862 to establish schools for the technical education of women.

NEIGHBORHOOD NIPPINGS.

Capt. Braden, of Ligonier, wishes to be director of the northern state prison.

Reub. Williams, of the Indianian, has joined the M. E. church, if rumor is to be believed.

They have a Whittier literary club at Columbia City. The first entertainment was given on the birthday of the Quaker poet.

C. O. Myers, so long publisher of the Kendallville Standard, has located in Chattanooga, Tennessee, and will start a paper there.

Ligonier Banner: Considering that Noble county has a population of 22,000, the number of marriage licenses issued from week to week is rather small.

George Bolster, a wealthy and prominent gentleman, living at Rolling Prairie, Ind., was found dead in his bed on the morning of December 22. Cause, heart disease.

—In reporting the losses of Mr. Geo. W. Reed, by the Cromwell fire several weeks ago, the figures given did not represent the matter correctly. Mr. Reed's loss on building and stock was $2,200. His insurance, as adjusted by the agent, amounted to $1,000. Clear loss to Mr. Reed, $1,200.—Ibid.

Butler Record: John Boyle's fifteen-months-old hog, weighing twenty-three pounds and seven ounces, is laid in the shade. Spaight comes to the front with a dog six months old, weighing one pound and five ounces. The dog is cross, but George keeps him muzzled.

People who leave their horses standing on our streets unhitched or insecurely fastened are criminally negligent. When the weather is so exceedingly cold, horses get restive and will get away if they can. Nearly every runaway that occurs is the result of carelessness, and of a sort that ought to be stopped.—Ibid.

Indianian: Marshall Makemson, of Tippecanoe township, had the largest load of fine corn in town last Friday that we have ever seen in the place. Every ear was of immense size, and the whole load was placed in the wagon-bed like cord-wood. It was an immense load of very fine corn.

Steuben Republican: "The new school-house on the west side is provided with a patent heating apparatus, which has thus far given the most perfect satisfaction. It warms a room much better than a stove, and consumes not more than half as much wood." Waterloo and Auburn once made similar remarks about patent heaters, but have changed their minds.

Mr. George Spaight and wife celebrated their fifteenth wedding anniversary on the seventeenth last. They renewed their vows and pledges to love, honor and obey. George proposes to commence from the beginning again. Gracious Peter! they have already five or six children. May they live long and prosper.—Ibid.

ALMOST A FIRE.—W. E. Crane, while returning home from the crystal wedding, or rather, while passing Bolan's drug-store at about one o'clock Saturday morning, discovered considerable light in said store, and upon investigation, found that one of the lamps near the stove had exploded, and the oil was burning on the floor. He sounded the alarm and aroused those sleeping in the store, who soon succeeded in extinguishing the flames, which had taken hold on a chest of tea, and soon would have had control of a can of alcohol which stood near. Mr. Crane certainly prevented a conflagration and the loss of much property, and to him and the—the—"fellow" who kept him up so late, the parties owe a debt of gratitude which, no doubt, will be paid in full.—Ibid.

Syracuse Express: At 12 o'clock last Thursday night the livery-barn of Isaac Kindig was set on fire, and through the timely discovery of Mr. Dennis Stiffler, Syracuse was probably saved from a disastrous conflagration. The barn is owned by Dr. Kelly, and is occupied by Mr. Kindig, and what reasons were assigned for this dastardly attempt at destroying a portion of the business part of town no one can conjecture. Mr. Stiffler, a moment before discovering the fire, saw Jack Kitson issue from the alley on Main street, and an affidavit was issued late on Saturday evening for his arrest. Early Monday morning the marshal and his deputy, of Warsaw, arrived here and arrested Kitson before seven o'clock. He was taken to Warsaw and lodged in jail, and on Tuesday had a preliminary hearing before Justice Frazier. Geo. M. Ray, of this place, and Bob Encell, of Warsaw, for the plaintiff, and Mr. Ed. Greene, of Warsaw, for the defense. A great many are of the opinion that Jack is not the guilty party, but certain it is that the evidence is too strong against him to admit of any such opinion. He has not had a very good character, and being seen in close proximity to the burning building, and also going in an opposite direction is alone enough to convict him. Had the fire not been discovered as soon as it was, the eastern portion of the town would have burned. In default of bail he was bound over, and will probably spend a term in Michigan City.

COMMISSIONERS ALLOWANCES.

List of Allowances Made by the Board of Commissioners at Their December Session, 1880.

Expense of Poor.

J. Rummel	$221 95	S Stough	$11 00
Thomas Jetmore	$2 70	Duncan Bros	6 00
Wm. Murphy	23 50	J & J A Shull	11 86
G. J. Wagoner	4 25	H W Coburn	6 00
John Jetmore	11 17	Steve Olmstead	19 74
Joseph Jetmore	32 94	Abraham Shaffer	18 00
Lovina Switzer	22 50	Thomas Baldock	15 00
Mary Switzer	17 50	H E Bricsland	11 25
John Cloud	14 45	W J Austin	48 10
P. N. Calkin	7 50	McQuiston & Co	124 98
Conrad Bigler	7 60	D J Swartz	106 10
George Wersts	18 98	Shaffer & Rush	8 20
C. Baker	12 70	Geo Wagoner	12 15
Daniel Tomlinson	13 70	Jacob Mitchell	24 64
Philip Oberlin	9 38	Wright & Co	29 87
Jarvis Porter	15 00	J Kahn	137 71
F N Davenport	31 16	J H Ehlers	25 68
F Snyder	4 00	Brand & Co	100 05
A B Mathews	61 20	Hague & Haut	12 65
F M Sherman	20 00	Geo Stahl	3 05
W H Kiblinger	61 24	John L Davis	60 47
John Thomas	23 00	C C Shaffer	18 30
B L Williams	10 00	Adam Carper	2 00
C W Goodale	9 75	Schaab & Co	25 21
J E Beugnot	9 00	Catherine Burns	3 00
D D Snyder	4 80	John Shoub	8 80
Ashcroft & Clark	7 57	E Kelham	3 50
Cowan & Allyn	31 00

Expense of Roads and Bridges.

John Troup	$90 45	D Stonestreet	$4 00
Philip Grube	50 00	P V Hoffman	2 00
R S S Reed	10 0	James McClellan	8 00
O P Learned	1 50	Wm Carr	5 00
John Stearnes	1 50	C Sheets	12 00
Talma Rummel	4 00	George Ensley	3 00
A W Allen	24 00	Frank Beard	1 50
A S Leas	25 70	J J Latson	3 00
G W Hanes	10 00	H Wannemaker	3 00
F D Oberlin	4 00	D B Bordner	3 00
John Shoub	24 50	Huzelman, Leas	1 00
I N Cool	8 00	H Dickerhoof	5 25
Edward Kelham	26 00	Jeremiah Plum	1 50
Wesley I Work	8 00	J McKutaffer	1 50
Wm Marica	8 00	R N Crooks	3 25

Expense of Ditches.

A P Foltz	$29 50	R S S Reed	$18 00
Amos Britton	7 50	J McKutaffer	7 00
J J VanAuken	525 00	C Sheets	9 50
David Culver	14 50	H Dickerhoof	6 00
J Wilson	5 00	W I Work	1 10
W L Blair	45 50	H Maxwell	4 50
Jere Lewis	10 00	J C St Clair	3 00
H Wannemaker	5 00	G W Hanes	34 50
Willard Childs	8 50	Jere Plum	6 00
James Bower	8 00	C E VanAuken	145 00
J D Kelley	28 00	Wm Whetsel	8 00
R N Crooks	38 50

Miscellaneous.

Miscellaneous	$26 94	J J VanAuken	$28 25
W Cunningham	19 61	A S Leas	6 25
John Stafford	25 00	J B Vesley	7 15
J J Latson	1 00	M Boland	47 40
L J Miller	2 75	John Fengler	15 00
John L Davis	60 91	Est G H R Moss	15 00

Expense of Salary.

W H McIntosh	$181 50	John Baxter	$156 87
Daniel Gonser	161 63	Augustus S Leas	15 00
Albert Robbins	481 25	Edward Kelham	31 50
L J Miller	37 77	John Shoub	31 50
Est G H R Moss	22 74	F D Oberlin	31 50

Expense of Criminals.

D D Moody	$30 00	Miller & Co	$18 47
R D Tefft	18 00	Ensley & Co	2 35
A S Leas	136 80	G C Kober	38 00

Expense of Public Buildings.

W H Kiblinger	$1 90	John Knoder	$3 50
Wilson & Purdy	3 00	Morrell Bros	2 00

Expense of Printing.

W B Barford	$152 27	Rob J Lowry	$160 90

Expense of Election.

A S Leas	$78 40

Dec. 21 1880 ALBERT ROBBINS, Auditor.

Administrator's Sale.

Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of an order of the DeKalb circuit court, the undersigned, administrator of the estate of Hiram Loutzenheiser, deceased, will offer for sale at public auction, on the premises, on Saturday, the 5th day of February, 1881, the following premises in DeKalb county, in the state of Indiana, to-wit:

A part of the south half of the north-east quarter of section thirteen (13), in township number thirty-three (33), north of range thirteen (13) east, bounded by a line commencing at a point on the east boundry line of said section, seventy rods south of the north-east corner of said south half, and running thence west on a line parallell with the south boundary line of said north-east quarter to a point equal-distant from the east and west boundary lines of said north-east quarter, thence south to the south boundary line of said south-east quarter, thence east on said line to the south-east corner of said north-east quarter, thence north to the place of beginning, containing five acres more or less.

Terms: one third cash, the residue in equal payments at twelve and eighteen months, with note at interest, waiving benefit of appraisement laws, and secured by mortgage upon the real estate sold. Sale to commence at two o'clock p. m.

53-56.

HENRY HINES, Administrator.

Rose & Hartman, Attorneys.

Notice to Non-Residents.

State of Indiana, DeKalb county—In the DeKalb circuit court, February term, 1881.

Lucinda Waydelich, Jacob Waderlich and Raymond Knisley, impleaded with others, are hereby notified that an action has been commenced against them in said court, in partition by Joseph Ball, and that the same will be heard and determined on the 2d juridical day of the next term of of said court, which commences February 28th, 1881.

Witness, the clerk of said court, this 22d day of December, 1880.

53-21.

JOHN W. BAXTER, Clerk.

TAX LIST FOR 1880.

To the Tax-Payers of DeKalb County:

In compliance with the laws of the state of Indiana, I, L. J. MILLER, treasurer of said county, hereby notify the tax-payers thereof that the rates of taxation for the year A. D. 1880, are correctly stated in the following table, showing the am'nt of tax in cts. levied upon each one hundred dollars valuation and on each poll, in the several townships and incorporated villages in said county, as the same appears on the tax duplicate of DeKalb county, for said year:

TOWNSHIPS AND TOWNS.	STATE HOUSE TAX.	STATE TAX.	SCHOOL TAX.	COUNTY TAX.	TOWNSHIP TAX.	ROAD TAX.	COM. SCHOOL TAX.	SPC'L SCHOOL TAX.	ADDITIONAL SPC'L SCHOOL TAX.	INT. ON BONDS.	CORPORATION TAX.	TOTAL TAX.
Buter Township	2	12	16	60	15	20	5	20		10		160
Poll		50	50									100
Jackson Township	2	12	16	60	10	15	5	25		10		155
Poll		50	50					50				150
Concord Township	2	12	16	60	5	20	10	35		10		170
Poll		50	50					100				200
Newville Township	2	12	16	60	15	15		20		10		150
Poll		50	50									100
Stafford Township	2	12	16	60	5	10	5	10		10		130
Poll		50	50									100
Wilmington Township	2	12	16	60	10	15	5	10		10		140
Poll		50	50									100
Union Township	2	12	16	60		20		5		10		125
Poll		50	50					50				50
Richland Township	2	12	16	60	5	15	5	30		10		155
Poll		50	50									100
Fairfield Township	2	12	16	60	10	15	5	25		10		155
Poll		50	50					25				125
Smithfield Township	2	12	16	60	10	10	5	15		10		140
Poll		50	50					50				150
Franklin Township	2	12	16	60	15	15	5			10		135
Poll		50	50									100
Troy Township	2	12	16	60	15	15	5	35		10		170
Poll		50	50									100
Keyser Township	2	12	16	60	5	15	5	30		10		155
Poll		50	50					50				150
Auburn Town	2	12	16	60		20	25	15	50	10		210
Poll		50	50				25	25	25			175
Waterloo Town	2	12	16	60		20	10	40		10		170
Poll		50	50					100				200
Butler Town	2	12	16	60	10	15		30	50	10		205
Poll		50	50						25			125
Garrett Town	2	12	16	60	5	15	25	50	50	10	50	295
Poll		50	50				25	100	100		25	350

Also $1 for one dog, $2 for each female dog, and $2 for each additional dog, for the collection of which I may be found at the county treasurer's office, in the town of Auburn, on and after December 15, 1880.

Taxes may be paid in full or in two installments. The first installment, including all road taxes, can be paid on or before the third Monday in April, 1881; the second installment, on or before the first Monday in November, 1881. If the first installment is not paid when due, both installments become delinquent, ten per cent. will be added, and I shall at once proceed, as the law requires, to collect the same, together with the costs that may accrue by distress and sale of personal property.

Road receipts will not be received after the third Monday in April, only on delinquent taxes. No road receipts will be received on the November installment.

Examine your receipts before leaving the office, and see that all your property is included.

No county order will be paid to any person owing delinquent taxes.

The annual sale of lands and lots for delinquent taxes will occur on the second Monday in February, 1881.

Come early and avoid the rush of the last few days.

The books will positively be closed on the evening of the third Monday in April, and no one will be allowed to pay after that date without penalty.

Parties sending by others, or by letter, to pay tax, should not fail to send description of their lands and lots.

No receipt will be made out hereafter, for any party, until they are ready to pay for the same.

L. J. MILLER, Treasurer of DeKalb County.

BIG RUSH

—AT—

Isaac Ochs' Mammoth Store!

THE BOOM INCREASES DAILY.

New Stocks Received Daily

STUPENDOUS BARGAINS TO BE HAD IN ALL CLASSES OF GOODS

THE BOTTOM KNOCKED CLEAR OUT OF

BOOTS, SHOES AND RUBBER GOODS.

Selling piles of them cheap; cheaper than anybody.

Immense Trade in Clothing, and Why?

Because I have an immense stock, and am selling cheaper than anybody. Biggest line of Ladies' Dress Goods, and Cloaks, and Dolmans in town, at prices

WAY DOWN! WAY DOWN!

STAPLES ALMOST GIVEN AWAY. Come all ye that want bargains, and I will give them to you.

JOIN THE CROWD AND COME AND SEE Us, COME EVERYBODY!

ISAAC OCHS, Auburn, Ind.

ROOT & COMPANY

A usual, for the

HOLIDAY SEASON!

Are displaying an immense assortment

ATTRACTIVE GOODS!

—IN—

EVERY DEPARTMENT!

Special sale of Black and Colored Satin DeLyon, at $1, $1.15 and $1.50.

PLAIN SILKS

At 75c., 90c., $1 and $1.25c., reduced from $1, $1.25 and $1.50. Changeable Silks in elegant Quality, and Choice Tints for $1 per yard. All shades of colored 22-inch Satin DeLoin at $1.50 worth $2 peryard.

TRIMMING

Velvets, Satins, Plushes and Brocade Silks in a great variety of color and quantity

OUR DRESS GOODS DEPARTMENT

Is now complete with new and superior fabrics in the choicest styles, and at the lowest prices.

CLOAKS AND FURS

Our cloaks, shawls, suit and fur department now contain some very choice things in seal, fur-lined and other garments. Also an unusually fine line of ladies' and children's goods of all kinds. Also elegant suits and shawls, and all at our usual low prices. Besides we have an almost endless line of small articles especially for the

HOLLIDAY TRADE

To which we call the attention of the public. Remember our long established motto: "No trouble to show goods, and an inspection of our stock incurs no obligation to purchase."

ROOT & CO., FORT WAYNE, INDIANA.

Auburn Courier.

Local and Miscellaneous

—Swear off.

—Write it 1881.

—"Girls" at Ensley's hall to-night.

—Life Miller Sundayed over in Corunna.

—Rob. McClellan is clerking for W. H. Kiblinger.

—The dance Christmas eve was a grand success.

—Take your sweetheart to the lecture on "Girls."

—The weather is spending the holidays rather coolly.

—Mrs. B. F. Kennedy, of Waterloo, was in the city to-day.

—For cloaks, skirts and nu bias, go to McQuiston & Ralston's.

—Mrs. Bittner and family visited Huntertown last Saturday.

—Mixed candies at 12½ cents a pound, at McQuiston & Ralston's.

—The kids are down in the mouth—school commenced Monday.

—The thermometer yesterday morning stood 90 degrees below zero.

—Mr. James McMichael and wife are paying Auburn a visit this week.

—A little child of Peter Grogg's was buried on Tuesday of this week.

—The mercury was on a decline last Wednesday—it fell twenty degrees.

—Robt. Barr, of Kendallville, was in the city yesterday on legal business.

—Mr. Bash, one of Fort Wayne's lively boys, called on us Wednesday.

—Bargains in flannels, waterproofs blankets, jeans, shawls at McQuiston & Ralston's.

—Geo. Patterson and wife, of Warsaw, formerly of Auburn, are visiting at Henry Ford's.

—Sim Maburin, who has been faring in Auburn for some time, left for Fort Wayne Monday.

—Miss M. Tower, formerly teacher in our schools, is visiting with the family of Mr. Bab. Louis.

—Clyde Moore left Tuesday for Notre Dame, Ind., where he will resume his studies.

—An unusually large number of divorces were granted this term of court, and several are yet pending.

—On Monday we received a friendly call from R. H. Weamer, now of the Butler Record. Come again.

—Henry Beugnot returned home from Sanwich, Canada, last Tuesday, where he has been attending school.

—A number of Auburn ladies will keep open doors next Saturday for the reception of new year callers.

—Those who contemplate purchasing thermometers will find this a good time, as they are very low now.

—Mr. Jerome Showalter and wife, of Decatur, are visiting under their parental roof, in this city, this week.

—Orin Meese, of Mishawaka, is spending the holidays with his father, Rev. Wm. I. Meese, of this place.

—Miss Lydia Rohm gave the Courier office a friendly call one day last week and subscribed for the Courier for her mother.

—It is reported that Judge Tousley is now suffering from a paralytic stroke and fears are entertained for his recovery.

—Now that we are in our new quarters, over Kiblinger's hardware store, we would like to have our friends call and see us.

—Dave Baker, Esq., one of the Republican's typos, is somewhat ill to-day from the effect of—the cold weather, we guess.

—Fred. Clark left Tuesday morning on a trip of pleasure. He will visit Jackson, Toledo and other points, and return Sunday.

—The youngest child of Wm. B., and Emeline Maxwell, aged about 3 years, died at Waterloo, on the morning of December 29, 1880.

—Miss Lizzie Maburin and Miss Ettie McClellan, of this city, left for Fort Wayne last Saturday, where they will spend the holidays.

—For dress goods, velvets, trimming silks, fringes, table linens, napkins, nu bias, scarfs, men and boys' caps, go to McQuiston & Ralston's.

—Miss Mollie Scoonover, whom many of our citizens will remember as teacher in the schools of this place, is visiting with Miss Frankie Ford.

—Mrs. Dr. Wickweir, who has been in the city, with her sister, Miss M. Cleveland, for some time past, returned to her home in Angola last week.

—There were many elegant presents received on the Christmas-tree. One of the nicest was a gold watch and chain received by Mrs. Jim Culbertson.

—A bastardy case, of rather a peculiar nature, has been occupying the attention of the circuit court this week. The parties hail from Butler township.

—Rev. P. J. Ward, of South Whitley will preach at the Baptist church next Sunday, morning and evening, and regularly thereafter every alternate Sunday.

—Von mer de talte greeza, de nacksht woch un es is net tsoo hase, so os de Shnoka em bottera don vella mer ga eums Sooch's. Der Geo. Ensley hut kaawt ar gate mit.

John Robbins has severed his connection with the Pioneer hardware store. We understand he will go on the road, but will continue a citizen of Auburn.

—Dr. Parker, of the Kendallville News, called on us Saturday. The doctor reports everything as going on smoothly at Kendallville, and the News as prospering.

—Our pleasant young lady friend, Miss Frankie Ryan, will keep open house new years, and Misses Anise and Jennie Cowan and Maud Allen will receive with her.

—We take this occasion to inform the boys, who generally come up in the office to beg a chew of tobacco, that the entire outfit, including the devil, is going to swear-off Saturday.

—Prof. L. D. Palmer, L. L. B., Pennsylvania's noted lecturer, will deliver his lecture on "Girls," at Ensley's hall, on Friday evening. We bespeak for him a cordial house.

—On Christmas day the Rush family rushed over to the residence of Florence Buchanan, near Spencerville, where a re-union of the family was held, and a good time had generally.

—Two or three of the boys were heavily loaded Christmas Eve with west-end fire-water, which made them a little talkative. The boys wanted to celebrate in their own way, and no one molested them.

—Those who have money to loan will have no trouble to get it on the market if they will get it changed up in ten cent pieces, and be on the street about the time the saloons open in the morning.

—De lesht wock hen mear uns Shear gor grum boocklich kshoft. Mer hen unsera office ga mooft un mer hen aw de tsidung rous gricked un mer kenna eich Sawga es hut uns bi de hussa ga numma.

—The Eckhart carriage works have been frozen up this week. Mr. Eckhart says that the thermometer was half a mile below zero at his shops Wednesday morning, and that work had to be suspended.

—Rob. McClellan and Howard Griswold returned home Friday last from the gold-fields of Colorado, where they didn't dig up a fortune, but where they left their affections, and will return to their love in March next.

—Married, on the evening of December 24, 1880, at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Smurr, at Moore's station, DeKalb county, by Rev. John McCurdy, Mr. Ira A. Hatheway to Miss Ida J. Smurr, both of Wilmington township.

—Married, on Thursday evening, December 23, 1880, at the residence of Mr. Lewis, near Butler, by Rev. L. Rice, of Auburn, Mr. Charles M. Lovelace to Miss Ida M. Morford, both of Butler, Ind.

—Henry McIntyre says Cooper Ralston don't observe the truth, and he knows it. Now, Henry, don't censure the man because you didn't get a ride to the Junction with him Tuesday—you'll feel differently toward him as soon as your feet get well.

—The ladies of the Presbyterian church will be entertained by Mrs. John Shugars at her residence two miles southeast of Auburn, next Wednesday, afternoon and evening. All are cordially invited.

Mrs. J. E. Ross, Secretary.

—The intelligence reaches us that Miss Mary Pitcher, of Bellevue, Ohio, formerly a resident of this place, and well known to many of the young people here, was thrown from a sleigh Christmas, and dislocated her right shoulder.

—W. E. Peterson, formerly an employe in this office, dropped in to see us Wednesday. Walt is the same good-feeling and jovial fellow, and, like an earthquake, where he is there's always something going on. He is now general agent for W. W. Kimball's music house, Chicago.

—Married, at the residence of the bride's mother, by Rev. Wm. Lash, of Milford, Mr. William Farrand, of Huntertown, and Miss Georgia Bittner, of this city. The ceremony took place Wednesday evening, and the happy couple start for the west to-day.

—On Friday evening, of last week, while attending the Christmas festivities at the Evangelical church, in Waterloo, Mrs. Thos. Segner got badly hurt by L. S. Stoner's team backing up and running over her with the hind wheels of a lumber wagon.

—Ich glawb hime Shlaner dos es bol rifa gept de looft is awfonga arllich keel. Von der George Henney des Saned, don sawkt ar an dem dos ich bin net recht kshite; awwer sel mecht ar vusht so vohl unnerwaga lusse fer ich glowba doch net.

—Thomas McCarthy, the night before the presidential election, assaulted F. H. Lucas, of Butler, with a razor, inflicting a very severe wound about the neck. He was this week tried and convicted of a felonious assault and battery, and was sent to Michigan City for seven years.

—List of unclaimed letters in the postoffice at Auburn, Ind., December 27, 1880:

Alexander Blair,
Barbery Ceeppe,
Eugene Daly,
F. Eaton,
L. D. Fasher,
Daniel Jones,
Henry Myers,
Josiah McIntafer,
Mathias Preston,
S. J. Parker.

Jos. Rainier, Postmaster.

—It has been previously announced that Miss Alice McKay has two large pictures to be given to those purchasing goods of her to a certain amount, each one being given a ticket or tickets according to the amount of the purchase. She desires to state to all interested that the picture will be disposed of next Saturday.

—On Friday of last week we received friendly calls from Adam H. Deetz, Jacob Deetz and David Bair. These gentlemen are among the many substantial farmers and reliable democrats of Fairfield township. Come again, and bring some of your good neighbors along, you are always welcome at the Courier office.

—Christmas was not only well observed in town, but our rural neighbors did ample justice to turkey as well, as was reported by Mr. C. Sheets and spouse. At their residence was assembled their children and children's children to eat and make merry. The occasion was one of those old-fashion re unions, in which all enjoyed themselves hugely.

—The meaning of the "SS" that occurs in nearly all legal documents and advertising, is not generally known. Many have inquired the use of the cabalistic device, until the questions have got into the newspapers. A correspondent of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, after much research, had decided that the symbol is derived from the Latin phrase "suos salutans," that is, greeting or addressing its own, those within jurisdiction. Clip this item, and paste it in your scrap book for future reference.

—A pleasant Christmas dinner was enjoyed by a few friends at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. McIntyre. Those present were Rev. Father Young and brother, Mr. Guy Plumb and lady, Mr. F. D. Ryan and lady, Mr. Coop. Ralston and lady, Miss Frankie Ryan Misses Amie and May Plumb, John Leasure, George Lanning, Will. Ryan, and Archie McIntyre, of Sedan. Mrs McIntyre is a pleasant and hospitable lady, the dinner was simply elegant, and all felt that it was good to be there.

—Anderson Bros. will sell buggies for $15 less than any other shop in the state that has first-class material. Call and look at our large stock of wheels and second-growth hickory trimmings. We have rented the Duck building, which we will use for a show room. Do not buy until you examine our stock, for we will not be undersold. Remember the place, three doors north of the postoffice. All work warranted for two years.

Anderson Bros.,
51 4t
Auburn, Ind.

—Hite vor an karl in unser office as ga maned hut es yar ols noch Grishdawk. Ar is ni tso lawfo kumma os vs un blinder gowl, un hut vella tsae cent lan's fun uns, awwer mer hen net so feel flinns kenna. Do no hut ar sich so drosht meetich hea kucht, un hut a wile dreepsawl gabloss. Do no is ar vitter nous, awwer ar hut uns aw-gagooked os von ar ga maned het os mear go luga hets tsu eme. Youaht as von mer leega data for tsa'e cent. Mer hen eam glick ga vinshed vo ar nous is, un ich denk ar huts un dem am ar nart gricked. Ar hut ga goocked es von ar gor grenka darshtich var.

—One of the most elegant, gilt-edged Christmas presents we have seen was that received by Coop. Ralston. It has his name in gold upon it, and will serve the double purpose of being both useful and ornamental. The gift was left in the store, unaccompanied by the donors name, and Coop. desires to return his thanks, and says that whenever he shall have occasion to wear it, he shall think with a swelling heart of the tender solicitude of his unknown friend. The curious will please apply to Coop. for details, for we do not know any name for the gem, never having seen anything like it before.

—We have received a book entitled Southeastern Kansas, written by a member of the Chicago press. The book is neatly gotten up and well written, contains full map and gives full and reliable information in regard to all counties in southern and southeastern Kansas, the more fertile portions of the state, with map of each county. Also valuable information in regard to the great lead and zinc mines of southwest Missouri and southeastern Kansas. The book is for gratuitous distribution and may be had free of postage by addressing J. E. Lockwood, Kansas City, Mo. It should be in the hands of every person going to Kansas.

[Columbia City Post.]

We understand that some Michigan marble dealers have been selling some cheap variety of granites to parties in this county at prices that are beyond reason. When will people stop allowing themselves to be gulled by Michigan sharpers? If we had occasion to buy a job of granite or marble we would go to Jim Ferguson, who is now dealing extensively in granite and marble here in Columbia City, then we would know who we were buying of and what we were going to get. Ferguson has just sold a beautiful Quincy granite monument to Mr. John Rhodes, to be erected in the Masonic cemetery next June; it will be a beauty. [Correct. Jim is an old acquaintance of ours, and wields the chisel with skill.—Ed.]

—Boys' overcoats from $2.50to $3.00, men's coats at bargains, at McQuiston & Ralston's.

For Better or for Worse.

Married, at Greensburg, Indiana, to-day, at the bride's father, No. 9 Sheridan street, Mr. John Leasure, of Auburn, to Miss Lida A. Powers. John has been engaged for some time in building a new house, and this provident act, together with the melancholia that has possessed him, were omens that a change had come over the spirit of his dreams, and this community has not been without a suspicion that he was bent on changing his lonely life at an early day. John is good-natured, witty and devilish, and numbers among his friends everybody who knows him; he is worthy of the prize he has captured. Miss Lida Powers is well known in Auburn, having recently been principal of our school, which position she filled with credit to herself and satisfaction to this people. She is both intellectual and cultured which, with her amiable disposition and pleasant and unassuming manners, have given her a warm place in the hearts of many of our people who will feel thankful to John for permanently transplanting her here. All their friends—which includes the Courier—join in the wish that their future may be one of sweet reposes all among the roses, and that they may never have occasion to regret the vows made this day.

How He Treated a Horse.

It was necessary, on a certain occasion in court, to compel a witness to testify as to the way in which a Mr. Smith treated his horse. "Well, sir," said the lawyer, with a sweet and winning smile—a smile intended to drown all suspicion as to ulterior purposes—"how does Mr. Smith generally ride a horse?" The witness looked up innocently, and replied: "Generally a-straddle, sir, I believe." The lawyer asked again: "But sir, what gait does he ride?" The imperturbable witness answered: "He never rides any gate at all, sir, but I've seen his boys ride every gate on the farm." The lawyer saw he was on the track of a Tartar, and his next question was very insinuating. "How does Mr. Smith ride when he is in company with others, I demand a clear answer?" "Well, sir," said the witness, "he keeps up with the rest, if his horse is able to, and if not he falls behind." The lawyer was by this time almost beside himself, and asked: "And how does he ride when he is alone?" "I don't know," was the reply, "I was never with him when he was alone," and there the case dropped.

School Report.

The following is the report of school No. 2, Keyser township:

Number of scholars enrolled 38. Names of scholars neither absent nor tardy during the month ending December 24: Perry Long, Jackson Long, Ida Long, Lydia Long; Charles Myres, Cora Myres, Missouri Imber, Nettie Yards, Sarah Myres, Addie Olinger, David Barnes. Number of cases of tardiness, 1. Time lost by tardiness, 1 hour and 20 minutes. All are invited to attend our school and see what we are doing.

M. J. Weller, teacher.

Annual Meeting of the Stockholders of the Fort Wayne & Jackson Railroad Company.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Fort Wayne & Jackson railroad company for the election of directors for the ensuing year, and the transaction of such other business as may be brought before it, will be held on Saturday, January 29, 1881, at 10 o'clock a. m., at the general office of the company in Jackson, Michigan. By order of the board of directors.

R. G. Rolston, Sec'y.

New York, Dec. 28, 1880. 53 4t.

Syracuse.

—Fishermen are beginning to plant their houses on the big lake.

—The B. & O. pump still runs, and A. M. Jones is the presiding genius thereof.

—John Coy and Charley Johnson are the champions in the ice plowing business, having been engaged in slicing up the liquid coldness for several weeks.

—Among the legal lights of our town, we are proud to class Hugh Callender, Esq., a young and rising attorney, and a staunch democrat. Give him a call.

—Jack Kitson was arrested one day last week, charged with an attempt to set fire to the Kelley house barn. At last accounts he had been lodged in jail at Warsaw, having failed to secure the necessary bail.

—Dr. Kelley made a brief visit to Waterloo on Christmas. Between his practice as a physician and the keeping of a first-class hotel, the doctor has no time for grass to grow under his feet.

—Nothing makes the good housewife happier than nice white flour, and who can furnish a finer article than the genial "Joe" Henderson, of the Syracuse mills? Joseph knows how to run a mill.

—The ice-houses of the B. & O. are now filled, as well as those of the ice company. The crop is reported as unusually fine, even for this locality. The railroad company have also shipped a lot of ice to Garrett, and expect to send a still greater amount to Kingston to fill their houses at that point.

—The editor of the Garrett Herald gave us a call last week.

Waterloo Correspondence.

—Schools are closed for the holidays.

—Dealers in wood and coal are busy, and reaping a rich harvest.

—Jimmy Blake let his team run away. Result: A good scare and six dollars cash to repair buggy.

—Mrs. Judge McClellan is spending a few days at her old home, and making pleasant calls on her multitude of friends.

—Everybody was in town Saturday, and an unusual amount of money was spent in useful as well as ornamental articles for Christmas-gifts.

—Rev. McCord, of Michigan, preached at the Presbyterian church in the afternoon. The sermon was an excellent one, and appropriate to the occasion.

—In sad contrast with the usual festivities of the day was the funeral of the little daughter of F. P. Day. The services had been postponed to await the arrival of friends.

—The band gave a fine street entertainment Saturday afternoon, to an appreciative crowd. We feel a just pride in our band. Under the leadership of Johnny Fisher the boys have attained a proficiency that is very gratifying to their many friends.

—The Tennesseeans gave a most excellent entertainment to a crowded house Monday evening. This is their second appearance here, and the unusual attendance shows how our people appreciate a good thing.

—A pleasant family party assembled at the residence of F. W. Willis, Saturday evening. The occasion being the distribution of gifts from a family Christmas-tree, was a very enjoyable one, not only for the little ones, but for the older ones who witnessed their happiness, as the numerous presents were passed to them.

—A pleasant gathering met at the residence of Dr. J. N. Chamberlain, and did ample justice to the good things provided by the doctor and his estimable wife. These gatherings at "Merry Christmas" will be long remembered.

—F. P. Blair, day operator at Wawaka, paid his parents a visit Christmas. His return was made the occasion of a pleasant little gathering at the residence of his father, Gen. Blair. Very appropriate and handsome presents were given and received by the different members of the family. Altogether it was a most enjoyable affair.

St. Joe.

—Doc. McClaren sports a new gold watch.

—Nelson Thomas is the happy father of a 10 pound boy.

—J. W. Dills spent a portion of last week in Ft. Wayne.

—Dr. Johnston, of Haysville, Ohio, is located in St. Joe.

—Mark Barney saw the sights in Auburn Tuesday night last.

—Doc. McClaren spent Christmas with his parents in New Baltimore, Ohio.

—John Engle returned home Tuesday after an absence of three weeks in eastern Ohio.

—We are informed that Mrs. Al. Bishop, of Spencerville, is very sick with typhoid fever.

—Mrs. Thair, daughter of John Leitz, returned from Minnesota a short time ago, and is stopping with her parents.

—John Leighty and wife, both old and respected citizens, are lying very low with lung fever. It is not thought that either will recover.

—The Christmas-tree at the church was a grand success. The singing and declamations were excellent, and were a credit to the managers.

—The oyster-supper given by the ladies of St. Joe and vicinity, the proceeds of which were for the benefit of the church, was well attended, something over 200 tickets being sold. The committee have over $50 as net proceeds.

During the year 1880, there has been shipped from St. Joe station 105 car-loads of grain, 63 car-loads of stock, 69 car-loads of lumber, 39 car-loads of wood, 2 car-loads of hay, 1 car-load of hickory-nuts, 86,700 bushels of wheat, 18,860 bushels of oats, 4,300 head of hogs, 1,000 bushels of cloverseed. The above, in addition to the amount of way freight handled at the station is immense, aggregating 350,000 pounds, a pretty good showing we think for a town where five years ago no town existed.

Washington Society.

[Special Correspondence.]

A TEXAN'S YARNS.

Washington, Dec. 16,—Jem Mace, the celebrated prize-fighter, once spent a winter in New Orleans. He used to amuse himself and his admirers by betting the drinks with them that they could not hit him—they to do their best to hit him, and he simply to ward off the blows. Tom Ochiltree, of Texas, who had gained considerable reputation from his intimacy with General Grant, and perhaps even more reputation from the fast running horse which was named after him, happened to be in New Orleans during the winter. Some of Ochiltree's friends told him of Mace's favorite bet. Ochiltree is a short, thick-set, powerful built man. His hair is just red enough to indicate a fiery temper. As soon as he was told of Mace's bet he fired up and said he would bet the crowd a champagne supper that he could hit Jem Mace. The bet, of course, was taken at once, and the whole party started out in search of Mace. He was easily found in neighboring drinking saloon. Mace was standing at the bar in the act of taking a drink. Ochiltree stepped quietly in beside him, and hit him suddenly a stinging blow on the cheek. Mace quietly placed his glass on the bar, and, scarcely moving his body, brought his right hand an and struck Ochiltree a fearful blow just under the ear. His friends rushed to him, gathered him up, and carried him to the nearest hotel. Doctors were sent for in a great hurry, and, after two or three hours of hard work, they succeeded in bringing Ochiltree back to this earth. He was confined to his room in the hotel for three weeks, however. When he finally reappeared, he was forced to furnish the champagne supper. Some of his friends said to him: "What in the world made you such a blanked fool as to hit Jem Mace?" "Why," said Ochiltree, "I thought I would just tap him without his knowledge, and would then explain to him."

ANOTHER ONE.

Among the numerous good stories told on Ochiltree's expense, is the following: "He had just arrived in New York one winter from Europe, and was fairly resplendent in a new overcoat and a very elegant seal-skin cap. He was talking with some friends in a hotel lobby, and one of them expressed great admiration for Ochiltree's cap. 'Why, there is quite a little history connected with that cap,' said Ochiltree; that was given me by a French countess. Such a dear little creature, so bewitchingly handsome, and charming in every way. Well, I met her while in Paris and she fell in love with me at once, and while I was there I saw a great deal of her. She made me several very handsome presents, which I will show you sometime, and among them was this cap.'

One of the friends, who had become quite interested in the hat by this time, took it off Ochiltree's head, and there, pasted in the top of it, was a trade mark with 'Knox, Hatter,' printed on it. 'Look here, Tom,' cried his friend, 'how is this? Here is Knox, Hatter, in the top of your hat.' Ochiltree did not allow himself to be disconcerted by any little trade mark, so answered very promptly: 'Why, just as we were coming into the dock the other morning, my cap blew off into the water, and was recovred by a small boy who stood on the dock and saw the accident. I took it up to Knox to have it repaired and they have had the blanked impudence up there to paste in one of their labels. I hadn't noticed it before."

Pinchin & Boyle, Attorneys.

Notice to Non-Resident.

State of Indiana, DeKalb county—In the De Kalb circuit court, February term, 1881.

Sophia Griswold is hereby notified that an action has been commenced against her in said court, for foreclosure of mortgage by Charles L. Luce, Jesse G Gould and Arthur B. Luce, and that the same will be heard and determined on the second juridical day of the next term of said court, which commences February 28, 1881.

Witness, the clerk of said court, this 28th day of December, 1880.

Jno. W. Baxter, Clerk.

Notice to Heirs of Petition to Sell Real Estate.

State of Indiana, DeKalb county—In the De Kalb circuit court.

Notice is hereby given, that Maria Dove administratrix of Henson Dove, deceased, has filed a petition to sell the real estate of the decedent, the personal being insufficient to pay his debts, and that said petition will be heard at the next term of said court. Attest:

J. W. Baxter, Clerk.

53-3t.

Dec. 29, 1880.

GARLAND STOVES & RANGES

SUPERIOR TO ALL OTHERS!

Largest and Most Complete Line Manufactured.

ADAPTED FOR BURNING ALL KINDS OF FUEL.

EVERY STOVE WARRANTED A SUCCESS!

None their Equal—Acknowledged Favorites.

ALWAYS AWARDED FIRST PREMIUM.

Buy the Best.

Sold by W. H. KIBLINGER & CO

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, IND., DECEMBER 30, 1880.

It is rumored that Senator Blaine is to have a place in Garfield's cabinet. He will likely be secretary of state.

A bill has been introduced into congress to provide for the issue of a gold certificate, similar in character to the silver certificates now in circulation.

Gov. McClellan, of New Jersey, has declined the presidency of the New York underground railroad company. He prefers to retire from public life, and will likely go abroad at the conclusion of his term of office.

Sitting Bull has left his Canadian friends and crossed to the American side of the line. Scouts from the nearest military posts reported, and at first it was believed that he came in to surrender, but at latest accounts the wily old savage was not as penitent as was at first reported, but was halting a few miles away and trying to negotiate for something to eat and a fresh supply of cartridges. His followers, of all classes, number several hundred.

The New York Sun states that Mrs. George Cator, who still lives to tell it, dressed Jay Gould in his first suit of clothes. This lady has been reciting the story of Gould's boyhood, and describes him as follows: "He is a dark man, with oriental features, under five feet six inches in height, weighs probably not more than 110 pounds, is forty-one years of age, and is said to be worth $10,000,000. He married Miss Ellie Miller, daughter of a well-known merchant, and is now the father of five children, of whom the oldest boy, George, about thirteen years old, promises to be as smart as his father."

In the house of representatives Tuesday of last week, Mr. Weaver, late candidate of the greenback party for president of the United States, was making a speech on the new funding bill. Mr. Sparks, a member from Illinois, took part in the debate, in connection with many other members. In the course of his remarks he took occasion to remind Mr. Weaver that he, Weaver, had during the recent political campaign, acted in concert with the republican party. This, Weaver vehemently denied, and during a heated discussion which followed each gave the other the lie direct. Weaver stated his fighting weight at 185 pounds, and Sparks put his at 200 pounds. Both started down the aisle, intending to clinch and fight it out on the floor of the house, but other members interfered and put a stop to the disgraceful scene. Next day, under pressure of a vote of censure and a resolution to expel both the refractory members, they apologized to the house for their ungentlemanly conduct. No more disgraceful row has ever occurred on the floor of the house, and it is a pity both were not expelled.

An educational bill is now pending in the United States senate, of which the following is the substance: The net proceeds of sales of public lands and of patents are forever set apart for the education of the people. The secretary of the treasury shall yearly apportion to the several states and territories and the District of Columbia, upon the basis of population between the ages of five and twenty years, the said net profits for the previous year, which shall be credited on the books of the treasury as an educational fund, on which 4 per cent interest per annum is to be paid to the states as above; provided, that for the first ten years the apportionment shall be made according to the numbers of the population of ten years old and upward who cannot read and write; and provided, further, that one-third of the income from said fund shall be appropriated to the complete endowment and support of colleges established under the act of 1862, until the amount thus accruing to said college in each state shall reach $30,000, after which the whole income of said fund shall be appropriated to the said states, territories and district to the education of all children between the ages of six and sixteen. The secretary of the treasury is authorized to add to the fund any sums given to the United States for that purpose. A sum not exceeding fifty per cent of the amount received by any state, etc., the first year, and not exceeding ten per cent in any year thereafter, may be applied, at discretion, to the maintenance of schools for the instruction of teachers of common schools. To be entitled to the benefits of this act any state, etc., must maintain for at least three months in each year until January 1, 1885, and thereafter four months in each year; a system of free public school for all children between 6 and 16 years of age. Any state, etc., misapplying any of the money received under this act shall forfeit further grants until the amounts so misapplied shall have been replaced by said state, etc. Nothing contained in the act shall be held to alter any previous law regarding the disposition of public land nor to limit the power of congress over the public domain, nor to interfere with granting bounty land to soldiers and sailors. The bill also authorizes colleges established under the act of 1862 to establish schools for the technical education of women.

NEIGHBORHOOD NIPPINGS.

Capt. Braden, of Ligonier, wishes to be director of the northern state prison.

Reub. Williams, of the Indianian, has joined the M. E. church, if rumor is to be believed.

They have a Whittier literary club at Columbia City. The first entertainment was given on the birthday of the Quaker poet.

C. O. Myers, so long publisher of the Kendallville Standard, has located in Chattanooga, Tennessee, and will start a paper there.

Ligonier Banner: Considering that Noble county has a population of 23,000, the number of marriage licenses issued from week to week is rather small.

George Bolster, a wealthy and prominent gentlemen, living at Rolling Prairie, Ind., was found dead in his bed on the morning of December 22. Cause, heart disease.

—In reporting the losses of Mr. Geo. W. Reed, by the Cromwell fire several weeks ago, the figures given did not represent the matter correctly. Mr. Reed's loss on building and stock was $2,200. His insurance, as adjusted by the agent, amounted to $1,000. Clear loss to Mr. Reed, $1,200—Ibid.

Butler Record: John Boyle's fifteen-months-old hog, weighing twenty-three pounds and seven ounces, is laid in the shade. Spaight comes to the front with a dog six months old, weighing one pound and five ounces. The dog is cross, but George keeps him muzzled.

People who leave their horses standing on our streets unhitched or insecurely fastened are criminally negligent. When the weather is so exceedingly cold, horses get restive and will get away if they can. Nearly every runaway that occurs is the result of carelessness, and of a sort that ought to be stopped.—Ibid.

Indianian: Marshall Makemson, of Tippecanoe township, had the largest load of fine corn in town last Friday that we have ever seen in the place. Every ear was of immense size, and the whole load was placed in the wagon-bed like cord-wood. It was an immense load of very fine corn.

Steuben Republican: "The new school-house on the west side is provided with a patent heating apparatus, which has thus far given the most perfect satisfaction. It warms a room much better than a stove, and consumes not more than half as much wood." Waterloo and Auburn once made similar remarks about patent heaters, but have changed their minds.

Mr. George Spaight and wife celebrated their fifteenth wedding anniversary on the seventeenth last. They renewed their vows and pledges to love, honor and obey. George proposes to commence from the beginning again. Gracious Peter! they have already five or six children. May they live long and prosper.—Ibid.

Almost a Fire.—W. E. Crane, while returning home from the crystal wedding, or rather, while passing Bolan's drug-store at about one o'clock Saturday morning, discovered considerable light in said store, and upon investigation, found that one of the lamps near the stove had exploded, and the oil was burning on the floor. He sounded the alarm and aroused those sleeping in the store, who soon succeeded in extinguishing the flames, which had taken hold on a chest of tea, and soon would have had control of a can of alcohol which stood near. Mr. Crane certainly prevented a conflagration and the loss of much property, and to him and the—the—"fellow" who kept him up so late, the parties owe a debt of gratitude which, no doubt, will be paid in full.—Ibid.

Syracuse Express: At 12 o'clock last Thursday night the livery-barn of Isaac Kindig was set on fire, and through the timely discovery of Mr. Dennis Stiffler, Syracuse was probably saved from a disastrous conflagration. The barn is owned by Dr. Kelly, and is occupied by Mr. Kindig, and what reasons were assigned for this dastardly attempt at destroying a portion of the business part of town no one can conjecture. Mr. Stiffler, a moment before discovering the fire, saw Jack Kitson issue from the alley on Main street, and an affidavit was issued late on Saturday evening for his arrest. Early Monday morning the marshal and his deputy, of Warsaw, arrived here and arrested Kitson before seven o'clock. He was taken to Warsaw and lodged in jail, and on Tuesday had a preliminary hearing before Justice Frazier. Geo. M. Ray, of this place, and Bob Encell, of Warsaw, for the plaintiff, and Mr. Ed. Greene, of Warsaw, for the defense. A great many are of the opinion that Jack is not the guilty party, but certain it is that the evidence is too strong against him to admit of any such opinion. He has not had a very good character, and being seen in close proximity to the burning building, and also going in an opposite direction is alone enough to convict him. Had the fire not been discovered as soon as it was, the eastern portion of the town would have burned. In default of bail he was bound over, and will probably spend a term in Michigan City.

COMMISSIONERS ALLOWANCES.

List of Allowances Made by the Board of Commissioners at Their December Session, 1880.

Expense of Poor.

J. Rummel	$220 95	S Stough	$11 00
Thomas Jetmore	31 70	Duncan Bros	6 00
Wm. Murphy	23 50	J & J A Shall	11 85
G. J. Wagoner	4 25	H W Coburn	6 00
John Jetmore	11 17	Steve Olmstead	19 74
Joseph Jetmore	22 94	Abraham Shaffer	12 00
Lovina Switzer	22 50	Thomas Baldock	15 00
Mary Switzer	17 50	H E Briceland	11 25
John Cloud	14 45	W J Austin	43 10
P. N. Calkin	7 50	McQuiston & Co	124 96
Conrad Bigler	7 00	D J Swartz	106 10
George Wersts	14 96	Shaffer & Rush	3 50
C. Baker	12 70	Geo Wagoner	12 13
Daniel Tomlinson	23 70	Jacob Mitchell	24 64
Philip Oberlin	9 25	Wright & Co	46 47
Jarvis Porter	15 00	J Kahn	187 71
F E Davenport	21 16	J H Ehlers	26 65
F Snyder	4 00	Brand & Co	100 05
A B Mathews	61 20	Hague & Haut	12 85
F M Sherman	29 00	Geo Stahl	5 05
W H Kiblinger	51 24	John L Davis	69 07
John Thomas	24 00	C C Shaffer	19 30
B L Williams	10 00	Adam Carper	2 00
C W Goodale	9 75	Schaab & Co	25 21
J E Beugnot	9 00	Catherine Burns	3 00
D D Snyder	4 90	John Shoub	3 60
Ashawe & Clark	7 57	E Kelham	3 50
Cowan & Allyn	31 00

Expense of Roads and Bridges

John Troup	$93 40	D Stonestreet	$14 00
Philip Grube	50 00	P V Hoffman	2 00
R S S Reed	10 0	James McClellan	8 00
O P Learned	1 50	Wm Carr	5 00
John Stearnes	1 50	C Sheets	12 00
Talma Rummel	4 00	George Ensley	3 00
A W Allen	24 00	Frank Beard	1 50
A S Leas	26 70	J J Latson	8 00
G W Hanes	10 00	H Wannemaker	3 00
F D Oberlin	7 00	D B Bordner	3 00
John Shoub	24 50	Herselman, Leas	1 00
I N Cool	6 00	H Dickerhoof	5 25
Edward Kelham	16 00	Jeremiah Plum	1 50
Wesley I Work	8 00	J McKutaffer	1 50
Wm Merica	8 00	R N Crooks	3 25

Expense of Ditches.

A P Foltz	$29 50	R S S Reed	$18 00
Amos Britton	7 50	J McKutaffer	7 00
J J VanAuken	525 00	C Sheets	9 50
David Culver	14 50	H Dickerhoof	6 00
J Wilson	5 00	W I Work	1 75
W L Blair	43 50	H Maxwell	4 50
Jere Lewis	10 00	J C St Clair	3 00
H Wanemaker	5 00	G W Hanes	54 50
Willard Calide	8 50	Jere Plum	6 00
James Bower	6 00	C E VanAuken	145 00
J D Kelley	23 00	Wm Whetsel	9 00
R N Crooks	38 50

Miscellaneous.

Miscellaneous	$28 94	J J VanAuken	$73 25
W Cunningham	19 62	A S Leas	6 95
John Stafford	25 00	J B Veeley	7 15
J J Latson	1 70	M Boland	47 40
L J Miller	2 75	John Feagler	16 00
John L Davis	60 91	Est G H K Moss	15 50

Expense of Salary.

W H McIntosh	$181 50	John Baxter	$150 87
Daniel Gonser	161 63	Augustus S Leas	15 00
Albert Robbins	481 25	Edward Kelham	31 50
L J Miller	37 77	John Shoub	31 50
Est G H K Moss	32 74	F D Oberlin	31 50

Expense of Criminals.

D D Moody	$20 00	Miller & Co	$18 47
R D Tefft	16 00	Ensley & Co	2 35
A S Leas	136 80	Geo Kober	36 00

Expense of Public Buildings.

W H Kiblinger	$1 90	John Knoder	$2 50
Wilson & Purdy	3 00	Morrell Bros	2 00

Expense of Printing.

W B Barford	$350 27	Rob J Lowry	$100 00

Expense of Election.

A S Leas	$76 40

Dec. 21 1880 ALBERT ROBBINS, Auditor.

Administrator's Sale.

Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of an order of the DeKalb circuit court, the undersigned, administrator of the estate of Hiram Loutzenheiser, deceased, will offer for sale at public auction, on the premises, on Saturday, the 5th day of February, 1881, the following premises in DeKalb county, in the state of Indiana, to-wit:

A part of the south half of the north-east quarter of section thirteen (13), in township number thirty-three (33), north of range thirteen (13) east, bounded by a line commencing at a point on the east boundry line of said section, seventy rods south of the north-east corner of said south half, and running thence west on a line parallell with the south boundary line of said north-east quarter to a point equal-distant from the east and west boundary lines of said north-east quarter, thence south to the south boundary line of said south-east quarter, thence east on said line to the south-east corner of said north-east quarter, thence north to the place of beginning, containing five acres more or less.

Terms: one third cash, the residue in equal payments at twelve and eighteen months, with note at interest, waiving benefit of appraisement laws, and secured by mortgage upon the real estate sold. Sale to commence at two o'clock p. m.

52-3t. HENRY HINES, Administrator.

Rose & Hartman, Attorneys.

Notice to Non-Residents.

State of Indiana, DeKalb county—In the DeKalb circuit court, February term, 1881.

Lucinda Waydelich, Jacob Wederlich and Raymond Knisley, impleaded with others, are hereby notified that an action has been commenced against them in said court, in partition by Joseph Bell, and that the same will be heard and determined on the 2d juridical day of the next term of of said court, which commences February 28th, 1881.

Witness, the clerk of said court, this 23d day of December, 1880.

52-3t. JOHN W. BAXTER, Clerk.

TAX LIST FOR 1880.

To the Tax-Payers of DeKalb County:

In compliance with the laws of the state of Indiana, I, L. J. MILLER, treasurer of said county, hereby notify the tax-payers thereof that the rates of taxation for the year A. D. 1880, are correctly stated in the following table, showing the am'n't of tax in cts. levied upon each one hundred dollars valuation and on each poll, in the several townships and incorporated villages in said county, as the same appears on the tax duplicate of DeKalb county, for said year:

TOWNSHIPS AND TOWNS.	STATE HOUSE TAX.	STATE TAX.	SCHOOL TAX.	COUNTY TAX.	TOWNSHIP TAX.	ROAD TAX.	COM. SCHOOL TAX.	SPC'L SCHOOL TAX.	ADDITIONAL SPC'L SCHOOL TAX.	INT. ON BONDS.	CORPORATION TAX.	TOTAL TAX.
Buter Township	2	12	16	60	15	20	5	20		10		160
Poll		50	50									100
Jackson Township	2	12	16	60	10	15	5	25		10		155
Poll		50	50					50				150
Concord Township	2	12	16	60	5	20	10	35		10		170
Poll		50	50					100				200
Newville Township	2	12	16	60	15	15		20		10		150
Poll		50	50									100
Stafford Township	2	12	16	60	5	10	5	10		10		130
Poll		50	50									100
Wilmington Township	2	12	16	60	10	15	5	10		10		140
Poll		50	50									100
Union Township	2	12	16	60		20		5		10		125
Poll		50	50					50				50
Richland Township	2	12	16	60	5	15	5	30		10		155
Poll		50	50									100
Fairfield Township	2	12	16	60	10	15	5	25		10		155
Poll		50	50					25				125
Smithfield Township	2	12	16	60	10	10	5	15		19		140
Poll		50	50					50				150
Franklin Township	2	12	16	60	15	15	5			10		135
Poll		50	50									100
Troy Township	2	12	16	60	15	15	5	35		10		170
Poll		50	50									100
Keyser Township	2	12	16	60	5	15	5	30		10		155
Poll		50	50					50				150
Auburn Town	2	12	16	60		20	25	15	50	10		210
Poll		50	50				25	25	25			175
Waterloo Town	2	12	16	60		20	10	40		10		170
Poll		50	50					100				200
Butler Town	2	12	16	60	10	15		30	50	10		205
Poll		50	50						25			125
Garrett Town	2	12	16	60	5	15	25	50	50	10	50	295
Poll		50	50				25	100	100		25	350

Also $1 for one dog, $2 for each female dog, and $2 for each additional dog, for the collection of which I may be found at the county treasurer's office, in the town of Auburn, on and after December 15, 1880.

Taxes may be paid in full or in two installments. The first installment, including all road taxes, can be paid on or before the third Monday in April, 1881; the second installment, on or before the first Monday in November, 1881. If the first installment is not paid when due, both installments become delinquent, ten per cent. will be added, and I shall at once proceed, as the law requires, to collect the same, together with the costs that may accrue by distress and sale of personal property.

Road receipts will not be received after the third Monday in April, only on delinquent taxes. No road receipts will be received on the November installment.

Examine your receipts before leaving the office, and see that all your property is included.

No county order will be paid to any person owing delinquent taxes.

The annual sale of lands and lots for delinquent taxes will occur on the second Monday in February, 1881.

Come early and avoid the rush of the last few days.

The books will positively be closed on the evening of the third Monday in April, and no one will be allowed to pay after that date without penalty.

Parties sending by others, or by letter, to pay tax, should not fail to send description of their lands and lots.

No receipt will be made out hereafter, for any party, until they are ready to pay for the same.

L. J. MILLER, Treasurer of DeKalb County.

BIG RUSH
—AT—
Isaac Ochs' Mammoth Store!
THE BOOM INCREASES DAILY.
New Stocks Received Daily
STUPENDOUS BARGAINS TO BE HAD IN ALL CLASSES OF GOODS
THE BOTTOM KNOCKED CLEAR OUT OF
BOOTS, SHOES AND RUBBER GOODS.
Selling piles of them cheap; cheaper than anybody.
Immense Trade in Clothing, and Why?
Because I have an immense stock, and am selling cheaper than anybody.
Biggest line of Ladies' Dress Goods, and Cloaks, and Dolmans in town, at prices
WAY DOWN! WAY DOWN!
STAPLES ALMOST GIVEN AWAY. Come all ye that want bargains, and I will give them to you.
JOIN THE CROWD AND COME AND SEE Us, COME EVERYBODY!
ISAAC OCHS, Auburn, Ind.

ROOT & COMPANY
A usual, for the
HOLIDAY SEASON!
Are displaying an immense assortment
ATTRACTIVE GOODS!
—IN—
EVERY DEPARTMENT!
Special sale of Black and Colored Satin DeLyon, at $1, $1.15 and $1.50.
PLAIN SILKS
At 75c., 90c., $1 and $1.25c., reduced from $1, $1.25 and $1.50. Changeable Silks in elegant Quality, and Choice Tints for $1 per yard. All shades of colored 22-inch Satin DeLoin at $1.50 worth $2 peryard.
TRIMMING
Velvets, Satins, Plushes and Brocade Silks in a great variety of color and quantity
OUR DRESS GOODS DEPARTMENT
Is now complete with new and superior fabrics in the choicest styles, and at the lowest prices.
CLOAKS AND FURS
Our cloaks, shawls, suit and fur department now contain some very choice things in seal, fur-lined and other garments. Also an unusually fine line of ladies' and children's goods of all kinds. Also elegant suits and shawls, and all at our usual low prices. Besides we have an almost endless line of small articles especially for the
HOLLIDAY TRADE
To which we call the attention of the public. Remember our long established motto: "No trouble to show goods, and an inspection of our stock incurs no obligation to purchase." ROOT & CO., FORT WAYNE, INDIANA.

Auburn Courier.

Local and Miscellaneous

—Swear off.

—Write it 1881.

—"Girls" at Ensley's hall to-night.

—Lafe Miller Sundayed over in Corunna.

—Rob. McClellan is clerking for W. H. Kiblinger.

—The dance Christmas eve was a grand success.

—Take your sweetheart to the lecture on "Girls."

—The weather is spending the holidays rather coolly.

—Mrs. B. F. Kennedy, of Waterloo, was in the city to-day.

—For cloaks, skirts and nubias, go to McQuiston & Ralston's.

—Mrs. Bittner and family visited Huntertown last Saturday.

—Mixed candies at 12½ cents a pound, at McQuiston & Ralston's.

—The kids are down in the mouth—school commenced Monday.

—The thermometer yesterday morning stood 20 degrees below zero.

—Mr. James McMichael and wife are paying Auburn a visit this week.

—A little child of Peter Grogg's was buried on Tuesday of this week.

—The mercury was on a decline last Wednesday—it fell twenty degrees.

—Robt. Barr, of Kendallville, was in the city yesterday on legal business.

—Mr. Bash, one of Fort Wayne's lively boys, called on us Wednesday.

—Bargains in flannels, waterproofs blankets, jeans, shawls at McQuiston & Ralston's.

—Geo. Patterson and wife, of Warsaw, formerly of Auburn, are visiting at Henry Ford's.

—Sim Mahurin, who has been faring in Auburn for some time, left for Fort Wayne Monday.

—Miss M. Tower, formerly teacher in our schools, is visiting with the family of Mr. Bab. Louis.

—Clyde Moore left Tuesday for Notre Dame, Ind., where he will resume his studies.

—An unusually large number of divorces were granted this term of court, and several are yet pending.

—On Monday we received a friendly call from R. H. Weamer, now of the Butler Record. Come again.

—Henry Beugnot returned home from Sanwich, Canada, last Tuesday, where he has been attending school.

—A number of Auburn ladies will keep open doors next Saturday for the reception of new year callers.

—Those who contemplate purchasing thermometers will find this a good time, as they are very low now.

—Mr. Jerome Showalter and wife, of Decatur, are visiting under their parental roof, in this city, this week.

—Orin Meese, of Mishawaka, is spending the holidays with his father, Rev. Wm. L. Meese, of this place.

—Miss Lydia Rohm gave the COURIER office a friendly call one day last week and subscribed for the COURIER for her mother.

—It is reported that Judge Tousley is now suffering from a paralytic stroke and fears are entertained for his recovery.

—Now that we are in our new quarters, over Kiblinger's hardware store, we would like to have our friends call and see us.

—Dave Baker, Esq., one of the Republican's typos, is somewhat ill today from the effect of—the cold weather, we guess.

—Fred. Clark left Tuesday morning on a trip of pleasure. He will visit Jackson, Toledo and other points, and return Sunday.

—The youngest child of Wm. B., and Emeline Maxwell, aged about 3 years, died at Waterloo, on the morning of December 29, 1880.

—Miss Lizzie Mahurin and Miss Ettie McClellan, of this city, left for Fort Wayne last Saturday, where they will spend the holidays.

—For dress goods, velvets, trimming silks, fringes, table linens, napkins, nubias, scarfs, men and boys' caps, go to McQuiston & Ralston's.

—Miss Mollie Scoonover, whom many of our citizens will remember as teacher in the schools of this place, is visiting with Miss Frankie Ford.

—Mrs. Dr. Wickweir, who has been in the city, with her sister, Miss M. Cleveland, for some time past, returned to her home in Angola last week.

—There were many elegant presents received on the Christmas-trees. One of the nicest was a gold watch and chain received by Mrs. Jim Culbertson.

—A bastardy case, of rather a peculiar nature, has been occupying the attention of the circuit court this week. The parties hail from Butler township.

—Rev. P. J. Ward, of South Whitley will preach at the Baptist church next Sunday, morning and evening, and regularly thereafter every alternate Sunday.

—Von mer de taite greeza, de necksht woch un es is net tsoo hase, so os de Shooka em bottera don vella mer ga eema Sooch's. Der Geo. Ensley hut kawt ar nate mit.

—John Robbins has severed his connection with the Pioneer hardware store. We understand he will go on the road, but will continue a citizen of Auburn.

—Dr. Parker, of the Kendallville News, called on us Saturday. The doctor reports everything as going on smoothly at Kendallville, and the News as prospering.

—Our pleasant young lady friend, Miss Frankie Ryan, will keep open house new years, and Misses Anise and Jennie Cowan and Maud Allen will receive with her.

—We take this occasion to inform the boys, who generally come up in the office to beg a chew of tobacco, that the entire outfit, including the devil, is going to swear-off Saturday.

—Prof. L. D. Palmer, L. L. B., Pennsylvania's noted lecturer, will deliver his lecture on "Girls," at Ensley's hall, on Friday evening. We bespeak for him a cordial house.

—On Christmas day the Rush family rushed over to the residence of Florence Buchanan, near Spencerville, where a re-union of the family was held, and a good time had generally.

—Two or three of the boys were heavily loaded Christmas Eve with west-end fire-water, which made them a little talkative. The boys wanted to celebrate in their own way, and no one molested them.

—Those who have money to loan will have no trouble to get it on the market if they will get it changed up in ten cent pieces, and be on the street about the time the saloons open in the morning.

—De lesht wook ben mear uns Shear gor grum boockich kshoft. Mer hen unsera office ga mooft un mer ben aw de taiding rous gricked un mer kenna eich Sawga es hut uns bi de hussa ga numma.

—The Eckhart carriage works have been frozen up this week. Mr. Eckhart says that the thermometer was half a mile below zero at his shops Wednesday morning, and that work had to be suspended.

—Rob. McClellan and Howard Griswold returned home Friday last from the gold-fields of Colorado, where they didn't dig up a fortune, but where they left their affections, and will return to their love in March next.

—Married, on the evening of December 24, 1880, at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Smurr, at Moore's station, DeKalb county, by Rev. John McCurdy, Mr. Ira A. Hatheway to Miss Ida J. Smurr, both of Wilmington township.

—Married, on Thursday evening, December 23, 1880, at the residence of Mr. Lewis, near Butler, by Rev. L. Rice, of Auburn, Mr. Charles M. Lovelace to Miss Ida M. Morford, both of Butler, Ind.

—Henry McIntyre says Cooper Ralston don't observe the truth, and he knows it. Now, Henry, don't censure the man because you didn't get a ride to the Junction with him Tuesday—you'll feel differently toward him as soon as your feet get well.

—The ladies of the Presbyterian church will be entertained by Mrs. John Shugars at her residence two miles southeast of Auburn, next Wednesday, afternoon and evening. All are cordially invited.

MRS. J. E. ROSE, Secretary.

—The intelligence reaches us that Miss Mary Pitcher, of Bellevue, Ohio, formerly a resident of this place, and well known to many of the young people here, was thrown from a sleigh Christmas, and dislocated her right shoulder.

—W. E. Peterson, formerly an employe in this office, dropped in to see us Wednesday. Walt is the same good-feeling and jovial fellow, and, like an earthquake, where he is there's always something going on. He is now general agent for W. W. Kimball's music house, Chicago.

—Married, at the residence of the bride's mother, by Rev. Wm. Lash, of Milford, Mr. William Farrand, of Huntertown, and Miss Georgia Bittner, of this city. The ceremony took place Wednesday evening, and the happy couple start for the west to-day.

—On Friday evening, of last week, while attending the Christmas festivities at the Evangelical church, in Waterloo, Mrs. Thos. Segner got badly hurt by L. S. Stoner's team backing up and running over her with the hind wheels of a lumber wagon.

—Ich glawb hime Shinner dos ea bol rifa gept de looft is awfonga artlich keel. Von der George Henney des Saned, don sawkt ar an dem dos ich bin net recht kshite; awver sel mecht ar vusht so vohl unnerwaga losso far ich glowbs doch net.

—Thomas McCarthy, the night before the presidential election, assaulted F. H. Lucas, of Butler, with a razor, inflicting a very severe wound about the neck. He was this week tried and convicted of a felonious assault and battery, and was sent to Michigan City for seven years.

—List of unclaimed letters in the postoffice at Auburn, Ind., December 27, 1880:

Alexander Blair,
Barbery Ceeppe,
Eugene Daly,
F. Eaton,
L. D. Fasher,

Daniel Jones,
Henry Myers,
Josiah Maintafer,
Mathias Preston,
S. J. Parker.

JOS. RAINIER, Postmaster.

—It has been previously announced that Miss Alice McKay has two large pictures to be given to those purchasing goods of her to a certain amount, each one being given a ticket or tickets according to the amount of the purchase. She desires to state to all interested that the picture will be disposed of next Saturday.

—On Friday of last week we received friendly calls from Adam H. Deetz, Jacob Deetz and David Bair. These gentlemen are among the many substantial farmers and reliable democrats of Fairfield township. Come again, and bring some of your good neighbors along, you are always welcome at the COURIER office.

—Christmas was not only well observed in town, but our rural neighbors did ample justice to turkey as well, as was reported by Mr. C. Sheets and spouse. At their residence was assembled their children and children's children to eat and make merry. The occasion was one of those old-fashion re unions, in which all enjoyed themselves hugely.

—The meaning of the "SS" that occurs in nearly all legal documents and advertising, is not generally known. Many have inquired the use of the cabalistic device, until the questions have got into the newspapers. A correspondent of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, after much research, had decided that the symbol is derived from the Latin phrase "suos salutans," that is, greeting or addressing its own, those within jurisdiction. Clip this item, and paste it in your scrap book for future reference.

—A pleasant Christmas dinner was enjoyed by a few friends at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. McIntyre. Those present were Rev. Father Young and brother, Mr. Guy Plumb and lady, Mr. F. D. Ryan and lady, Mr. Coop. Ralston and lady, Miss Frankie Ryan Misses Amie and May Plumb, John Leasure, George Lanning, Will. Ryan, and Archie McIntyre, of Sedan. Mrs McIntyre is a pleasant and hospitable lady, the dinner was simply elegant, and all felt that it was good to be there.

—Anderson Bros. will sell buggies for $15 less than any other shop in the state that has first-class material. Call and look at our large stock of wheels and second-growth hickory trimmings. We have rented the Duck building, which we will use for a show room. Do not buy until you examine our stock, for we will not be undersold. Remember the place, three doors north of the postoffice. All work warranted for two years.

ANDERSON BROS.,
51 4t Auburn, Ind.

—Hite vor an karl in unser office as ga maned hut es yar ols noch Grishdawk. Ar is ni tso lawfo kumma os ve un blinder gowl, un but vella tsae cent lan's fun uns, awver mer hen net so feel fiinna kenna. Do no hut ar sich so drosht meetich hes kucht un hut a wile dreepsawl gabloss. Do no is ar yitter nous, awver ar hut uns aw-gagooked os von ar ga maned het os mear-ga luga heta tau eme. Youaht as von mer leega data for tsa'e cent. Mer hen eam glick ga vinshed va ar nous is, un ich denk ar huts un dem am ar nurt gricked. Ar hut ga goocked es von ar gor grenks darshtich var.

—One of the most elegant, gilt-edged Christmas presents we have seen was that received by Coop. Ralston. It has his name in gold upon it, and will serve the double purpose of being both useful and ornamental. The gift was left in the store, unaccompanied by the donors name, and Coop. desires to return his thanks, and says that whenever he shall have occasion to wear it, he shall think with a swelling heart of the tender solicitude of his unknown friend. The curious will please apply to Coop. for details, for we do not know any name for the gem, never having seen anything like it before.

—We have received a book entitled Southeastern Kansas, written by a member of the Chicago press. The book is neatly gotten up and well written, contains full map and gives full and reliable information in regard to all counties in southern and southeastern Kansas, the more fertile portions of the state, with map of each county. Also valuable information in regard to the great lead and zinc mines of southwest Missouri and southeastern Kansas. The book is for gratuitous distribution and may be had free of postage by addressing J. E. Lockwood, Kansas City, Mo. It should be in the hands of every person going to Kansas.

[Columbia City Post.]

We understand that some Michigan marble dealers have been selling some cheap variety of granites to parties in this county at prices that are beyond reason. When will people stop allowing themselves to be gulled by Michigan sharpers? If we had occasion to buy a job of granite or marble we would go to Jim Ferguson, who is now dealing extensively in granite and marble here in Columbia City, then we would know who we were buying of and what we were going to get. Ferguson has just sold a beautiful Quincy granite monument to Mr. John Rhodes, to be erected in the Masonic cemetery next June; it will be a beauty. [Correct. Jim is an old acquaintance of ours, and wields the chisel with skill.—Ed.]

—Boys' overcoats from $2.50 to $3.00, men's coats at bargains, at McQuiston & Ralston's.

For Better or for Worse.

Married, at Greensburg, Indiana, to-day, at the bride's father, No. 9 Sheridan street, Mr. John Leasure, of Auburn, to Miss Lida A. Powers. John has been engaged for some time in building a new house, and this provident act, together with the melancholia that has possessed him, were omens that a change had come over the spirit of his dreams, and this community has not been without a suspicion that he was bent on changing his lonely life at an early day. John is good-natured, witty and devilish, and numbers among his friends everybody who knows him; he is worthy of the prize he has captured. Miss Lida Powers is well known in Auburn, having recently been principal of our school, which position she filled with credit to herself and satisfaction to this people. She is both intellectual and cultured which, with her amiable disposition and pleasant and unassuming manners, have given her a warm place in the hearts of many of our people who will feel thankful to John for permanently transplanting her here. All their friend—which includes the COURIER—join in the wish that their future may be one of sweet repose all among the roses, and that they may never have occasion to regret the vows made this day.

How He Treated a Horse.

It was necessary, on a certain occasion in court, to compel a witness to testify as to the way in which a Mr. Smith treated his horse. "Well, sir," said the lawyer, with a sweet and winning smile—a smile intended to drown all suspicion as to ulterior purposes—"how does Mr. Smith generally ride a horse?" The witness looked up innocently, and replied: "Generally a-straddle, sir, I believe." The lawyer asked again: "But sir, what gait does he ride?" The imperturbable witness answered: "He never rides any gate at all, sir, but I've seen his boys ride every gate on the farm." The lawyer saw he was on the track of a Tartar, and his next question was very insinuating. "How does Mr. Smith ride when he is in company with others, I demand a clear answer?" "Well, sir," said the witness. "he keeps up with the rest, if his horse is able to, and if not he falls behind." The lawyer was by this time almost beside himself, and asked: "And how does he ride when he is alone?" "I don't know," was the reply, "I was never with him when he was alone," and there the case dropped.

School Report.

The following is the report of school No. 2, Keyser township:

Number of scholars enrolled 39. Names of scholars neither absent nor tardy during the month ending December 24: Perry Long, Jackson Long, Ida Long, Lydia Long, Charles Myres, Cora Myres, Missouri Imber, Nettie Yarde, Sarah Myres, Addie Olinger, David Barnes. Number of cases of tardiness, 1. Time lost by tardiness, 1 hour and 20 minutes. All are invited to attend our school and see what we are doing.

M. I. WELLER, teacher.

Annual Meeting of the Stockholders of the Fort Wayne & Jackson Railroad Company.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Fort Wayne & Jackson railroad company for the election of directors for the ensuing year, and the transaction of such other business as may be brought before it, will be held on Saturday, January 29, 1881, at 10 o'clock a. m., at the general office of the company in Jackson, Michigan. By order of the board of directors.

R. G. ROLSTON, Sec'y.

New York, Dec. 28, 1880. 53 4t.

Syracuse.

—Fishermen are beginning to plant their houses on the big lake.

—The B. & O. pump still runs, and A. M. Jones is the presiding genius thereof.

—John Coy and Charley Johnson are the champions in the ice plowing business, having been engaged in slicing up the liquid coldness for several weeks.

—Among the legal lights of our town, we are proud to class Hugh Callender, Esq., a young and rising attorney, and a staunch democrat. Give him a call.

—Jack Kitson was arrested one day last week, charged with an attempt to set fire to the Kelley house barn. At last accounts he had been lodged in jail at Warsaw, having failed to secure the necessary bail.

—Dr. Kelley made a brief visit to Waterloo on Christmas. Between his practice as a physician and the keeping of a first-class hotel, the doctor has no time for grass to grow under his feet.

—Nothing makes the good housewife happier than nice white flour, and who can furnish a finer article than the genial "Joe" Henderson, of the Syracuse mills? Joseph knows how to run a mill.

—The ice-houses of the B. & O. are now filled, as well as those of the ice company. The crop is reported as unusually fine, even for this locality. The railroad company have also shipped a lot of ice to Garrett, and expect to send a still greater amount to Kingston to fill their houses at that point.

—The editor of the Garrett Herald gave us a call last week.

Waterloo Correspondence.

—Schools are closed for the holidays.

—Dealers in wood and coal are busy, and reaping a rich harvest.

—Jimmy Blake let his team run away. Result: A good scare and six dollars cash to repair buggy.

—Mrs. Judge McClellan is spending a few days at her old home, and making pleasant calls on her multitude of friends.

—Everybody was in town Saturday, and an unusual amount of money was spent in useful as well as ornamental articles for Christmas-gifts.

—Rev. McCord, of Michigan, preached at the Presbyterian church in the afternoon. The sermon was an excellent one, and appropriate to the occasion.

—In sad contrast with the usual festivities of the day was the funeral of the little daughter of F. P. Day. The services had been postponed to await the arrival of friends.

—The band gave a fine street entertainment Saturday afternoon, to an appreciative crowd. We feel a just pride in our band. Under the leadership of Johnny Fisher the boys have attained a proficiency that is very gratifying to their many friends.

—The Tennesseeans gave a most excellent entertainment to a crowded house Monday evening. This is their second appearance here, and the unusual attendance shows how our people appreciate a good thing.

—A pleasant family party assembled at the residence of F. W. Willis, Saturday evening. The occasion being the distribution of gifts from a family Christmas-tree, was a very enjoyable one, not only for the little ones, but for the older ones who witnessed their happiness, as the numerous presents were passed to them.

—A pleasant gathering met at the residence of Dr. J. N. Chamberlain, and did ample justice to the good things provided by the doctor and his estimable wife. These gatherings at "Merry Christmas" will be long remembered.

—F. P. Blair, day operator at Wawaka, paid his parents a visit Christmas. His return was made the occasion of a pleasant little gathering at the residence of his father, Gen. Blair. Very appropriate and handsome presents were given and received by the different members of the family. Altogether it was a most enjoyable affair.

St. Joe.

—Doc. McClaren sports a new gold watch.

—Nelson Thomas is the happy father of a 10 pound boy.

—J. W. Dills spent a portion of last week in Ft. Wayne.

—Dr. Johnston, of Haysville, Ohio, is located in St. Joe.

—Marx Barney saw the sights in Auburn Tuesday night last.

—Doc. McClaren spent Christmas with his parents in New Baltimore, Ohio.

—John Engle returned home Tuesday after an absence of three weeks in eastern Ohio.

—We are informed that Mrs. Al. Bishop, of Spencerville, is very sick with typhoid fever.

—Mrs. Thair, daughter of John Leitz, returned from Minnesota a short time ago, and is stopping with her parents.

—John Leighty and wife, both old and respected citizens, are lying very low with lung fever. It is not thought that either will recover.

—The Christmas-tree at the church was a grand success. The singing and declamations were excellent, and were a credit to the managers.

—The oyster-supper given by the ladies of St. Joe and vicinity, the proceeds of which were for the benefit of the church, was well attended, something over 200 tickets being sold. The committee have over $50 as net proceeds.

During the year 1880, there has been shipped from St. Joe station 195 car-loads of grain, 63 car-loads of stock, 60 car-loads of lumber, 30 car-loads of wood, 2 car-loads of hay, 1 car-load of hickory-nuts, 86,700 bushels of wheat, 18,860 bushels of oats, 4,380 head of hogs, 1,000 bushels of clover-seed. The above, in addition to the amount of way freight handled at the station is immense, aggregating 850,000 pounds, a pretty good showing we think for a town where five years ago no town existed.

Washington Society.

[Special Correspondence.]

A TEXAN'S YARNS.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—Jem Mace, the celebrated prize-fighter, once spent a winter in New Orleans. He used to amuse himself and his admirers by betting the drinks with them that they could not hit him—they to do their best to hit him, and he simply to ward off the blows. Tom Ochiltree, of Texas, who had gained considerable reputation from his intimacy with General Grant, and perhaps even more reputation from the fast running horse which was named after him, happened to be in New Orleans during the winter. Some of Ochiltree's friends told him of Mace's favorite bet. Ochiltree is a short, thick-set, powerful built man. His hair is just red enough to indicate a fiery temper. As soon as he was told of Mace's bet he fired up and said he would bet the crowd a champagne supper that he could hit Jem Mace. The bet, of course, was taken at once, and the whole party started out in search of Mace. He was easily found in neighboring drinking saloon. Mace was standing at the bar in the act of taking a drink. Ochiltree stepped quietly in beside him, and hit him suddenly a stinging blow on the cheek. Mace quietly placed his glass on the bar, and, scarcely moving his body, brought his right hand up and struck Ochiltree a fearful blow just under the ear. His friends rushed to him, gathered him up, and carried him to the nearest hotel. Doctors were sent for in a great hurry, and, after two or three hours of hard work, they succeeded in bringing Ochiltree back to this earth. He was confined to his room in the hotel for three weeks, however. When he finally reappeared, he was forced to furnish the champagne supper. Some of his friends said to him: "What in the world made you such a blanked fool as to hit Jem Mace?" "Why," said Ochiltree, "I thought I would just tap him without his knowledge, and would then explain to him."

ANOTHER ONE.

Among the numerous good stories told on Ochiltree's expense is the following: "He had just arrived in New York one winter from Europe, and was fairly resplendent in a new overcoat and a very elegant seal-skin cap. He was talking with some friends in a hotel lobby, and one of them expressed great admiration for Ochiltree's cap. 'Why, there is quite a little history connected with that cap,' said Ochiltree; that was given me by a French countess. Such a dear little creature, so bewitchingly handsome, and charming in every way. Well, I met her while in Paris and she fell in love with me at once, and while I was there I saw a great deal of her. She made me several very handsome presents, which I will show you sometime, and among them was this cap.'

One of the friends, who had become quite interested in the hat by this time, took it off Ochiltree's head, and there, pasted in the top of it, was a trade mark with 'Knox, Hatter,' printed on it. 'Look here, Tom,' cried his friend, 'how is this? Here is Knox, Hatter, in the top of your hat.' Ochiltree did not allow himself to be disconcerted by any little trade mark, so answered very promptly: 'Why, just as we were coming into the dock the other morning, my cap blew off into the water, and was recovreed by a small boy who stood on the dock and saw the accident. I took it up to Knox to have it repaired and they have had the blanked impudence up there to paste in one of their labels. I hadn't noticed it before."

Pinchin & Boyle, Attorneys.

Notice to Non-Resident.

State of Indiana, DeKalb county—In the DeKalb circuit court, February term, 1880.

Sophia Griswold is hereby notified that an action has been commenced against her in said court, for foreclosure of mortgage by Charles L. Luce, Jesse G Gould and Arthur B. Luce, and that the same will be heard and determined on the second juridical day of the next term of said court, which commences February 28, 1881.

Witness, the clerk of said court, this 30th day of December, 1880.

JNO. W. BAXTER, Clerk.

Notice to Heirs of Petition to Sell Real Estate.

State of Indiana, DeKalb county—In the DeKalb circuit court.

Notice is hereby given, that Maria Dove administratrix of Hanson Dove, deceased, has filed a petition to sell the real estate of the decedent, the personal being insufficient to pay his debts, and that said petition will be heard at the next term of said court. Attest:

53-3t. J. W. BAXTER, Clerk.

Dec. 28, 1880.

GARLAND STOVES & RANGES
MICHIGAN

SUPERIOR TO ALL OTHERS!
Largest and Most Complete Line Manufactured.
ADAPTED FOR BURNING ALL KINDS OF FUEL.
EVERY STOVE WARRANTED A SUCCESS.
None their Equal—Acknowledged Favorites.
ALWAYS AWARDED FIRST PREMIUM.
☞ Buy the Best. ☜
Sold by W. H. KIBLINGER & CO

AUBURN COURIER.

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 30, 1880.

WEEKLY NEWS REVIEW.

THE EAST.

Seats in the New York Stock Exchange are held at $26,000.... L. M. Myer, of Augusta, Ga., reports having been robbed of $10,850 in a sleeping-car between New York and Philadelphia.

The liabilities of B. G. Arnold & Co., the bankrupt coffee firm of New York, are reported by the assignee at $2,157,914, and the assets at $1,571,126.... Kate Chase Sprague has filed a petition for divorce from her husband, ex-Senator William Sprague, in the Washington County (R. I.) Court. The grounds on which she seeks release from her marital relations with Mr. Sprague are adultery, other misbehaviors, and neglect to provide for herself and family suitably.

The experiment of lighting Broadway, New York, with electricity has been successfully carried out.... Of 150 cases of diphtheria, which occurred in Brooklyn last week, fifty have proved fatal.

The famous Stevens battery, at Hoboken, N. J., upon which millions have been spent, having recently been sold for $55,000, is now being broken up by a Boston firm.... Diphtheria prevails in Buffalo to such an extent that the public schools in one section of the city have been closed.

THE WEST.

The band of adventurers gathered at Caldwell, Kan., who propose to invade Indian Territory, were greatly surprised at the appearance of the leaders of four nations of the red men. The colonists were informed that, if the Government should permit the invasion, the Indians would exterminate them.... Mrs. Barbara Ewald, residing near Cincinnati, went to a stable on the premises where she resided, set the hay on fire, emptied a revolver into her head and was nearly cremated in the flames.... A six-story brick block in Cleveland, occupied by the Co-operative Stove Manufacturing Company, has been destroyed by fire, causing a loss of $90,000.... Josiah Smithers, an inmate of the jail at Columbus, Ohio, having been convicted of arson, cut his throat in his cell.

The puddling and rolling departments of the Harrison wire-mill, in St. Louis, have been destroyed by fire, causing a loss of $50,000, and throwing 600 men out of employment.... John C. Calhoun (a nephew of the South Carolina statesman and orator), whose confinement in an insane asylum in Nevada was announced some weeks ago, was drowned a few days since. He had recovered his reason, and would soon have been discharged.

The St. Paul Board of Trade has passed a resolution calling upon the Minnesota delegation in Congress to insist upon the improvement of the Mississippi river and the lakes.

The venerable Rev. Hooper Crews died last week at Oregon, Ill. Dr Crews was one of the oldest Methodists in the country, and had for nearly fifty years devoted his time and energies to work in the Rock River Conference, and in the vicinity of Chicago. He was born April 17, 1807, in Barren county, Ky., and consequently at the time of his decease was more than 73 years old.... J. L. Ayers, a prominent citizen of Sidney, Ohio, has been arrested on a charge of forging school bonds to the amount of $20,000 or $30,000.... Fourteen Chinese lepers have been shipped from San Francisco to their native land, at the instance of the authorities.

A number of persons interested in the building of a canal from Hennepin to Rock Island, to connect the Illinois and Michigan canal with the Upper Mississippi river, assembled in Chicago last week, discussed the project at length, and appointed a committee to draft a memorial to be presented to Congress.... The committee of three Senators appointed by the Wisconsin Legislature last winter to investigate the management of the Hospital for the Insane at Madison find the management of the institution extravagant, the officers incompetent or dishonest, and the accounts poorly kept.... By the giving way of a pulley in the ceiling of Strong's marble-works, in Cleveland, John Berry and Hiram Winchester were killed.

THE SOUTH.

A negro couple of Prince George county, Va., locked their two children in the house and went out to pick peas, when the building took fire and the little ones perished in the flames.

Edward Long, colored, was hanged at Jackson, Tenn., for the murder of Sut Rogers, a negro, last June. Long confessed his crime, and declared that Rogers' ghost had pursued him relentlessly ever since the tragedy. Four thousand persons witnessed the execution.

News of a horrible crime comes from Tupelo, Miss. Two tramps sought shelter at a farm house, and, during the night, chloroformed the family, took all the money and valuables they could find, and then set fire to the house. Father, mother and child perished in the flames. One of the men was captured the next day, and, on confessing his guilt, was tied to a tree and burned alive.... Granville Harrel, a negro, who killed David Simmons with an ax, near Jackson, Miss., was lynched by a masked party.

Bishop Keane has induced thirty Catholic liquor dealers of Richmond, Va., to sign a pledge to close their saloons on Sunday.

At Hawesville, Ky., Charles McAdams shot and killed Philip Ryal at the house of C. G. Sterrett, editor of the Plaindealer. Ryal commenced the affray by firing at McAdams with a pistol, when the latter replied with a shot-gun with instantaneous fatal result. Both parties were well-known and highly-connected young men.

An entire passenger train on the Carolina Central Railroad broke through a trestle-work near Lincolnton, N. C., and the coaches were piled up in a heap fifty feet below. Mail Agent David [illegible] and a passenger named S. W. Goodson were disabled and subsequently burned to death.... David J. Carter, an old and respected citizen of Edmonton, Ky., was shot and probably mortally wounded by "Bud" Harrington, a son of an old and respectable citizen. Carter's son then shot and killed Harrington. The trouble grew out of a lawsuit.... Gaspar Tochman, who participated in the Polish revolution of 1830, and who served in the Confederate army during the civil war, rising to the rank of Brigadier General, has just died in Spottsylvania county, Va. He was in his 85th year.... Ex-Attorney General Akerman died last week at his home, in Cartersville, Ga.

GENERAL.

Statistics presented at a meeting of the Seamen's Union, in Cleveland, show that in the period from 1864 to 1877 the loss of 801 lives on the lakes could be traced directly to the overloading of vessels.

The Census-Office bulletin shows the total population of Oregon to be 174,767; male 103,388; female, 71,379; native, 144,327; foreign, 30,440; white, 163,087; colored, 11,680, which includes 9,506 Chinese, two Japanese, 1,079 Indians and half-breeds.

Jay Gould has purchased a couple more railroads—the International and Great Northern of Texas, and the St. Louis and San Francisco, running from St. Louis to Vinita, in the Indian Territory.

By the capsizing of the bark Nile, from Quebec for Cardiff, eight men were drowned and two died after being rescued.... The Supreme Court of Ohio has decided that a telephone company cannot lawfully discriminate against any person or corporation in putting up its instruments.... Northern Virginia has been visited by the severest snow-storm experienced in that section for twenty-five years. Snow fell for thirty-three hours. Travel was completely stopped, and trees were broken down by the weight of the snow. The storm extended into New York, New Jersey, and New England.

The newest Canadian railway scheme is incorporated under the name of the Atlantic and Northwestern, with a capital stock of $5,000,000. The termini will be some point on the Atlantic coast within the Dominion and a port on Lake Superior, by way of Ottawa and Montreal.

WASHINGTON.

Nearly 900 bills providing for the payment of private claims are pending before the House at Washington, and are being acted upon at the rate of fifteen each day.

The formal orders making changes in the command of the military departments, and creating new departments, were issued at Washington last week. Gen. O. O. Howard goes to West Point, Gen. Schofield assumes command of the new Department of Texas and Arkansas, with headquarters at New Orleans. The States of Arkansas and Louisiana and the Indian Territory will constitute a new Military Department. Col. Mackenzie of the Fourth artillery, succeeds to this command, with the brevet rank of Brigadier General. Gen. Augur assumes command of the Department of Texas, and Gen. Henry J. Hunt is assigned to the temporary command of the Department of the South.... President Hayes, with a desire that full justice be done the Poncas, requests Gens. Crook and Miles, William Stickney, of Washington, and Walter Allen, of Newton, Mass., to proceed to Indian Territory confer with the unfortunates, and forward recommendations.

The Navy Department was formally turned over to Secretary Ramsey last week. Before retiring Secretary Thompson was presented with an address of regret by the heads of the several bureaus in the department.... The United States Supreme Court has decided that an individual shareholder in an insolvent national bank is liable only for his proportionate share of the bank's liabilities based on the amount of stock held by him at the time the bank became insolvent.... It is stated that President Hayes made a tender of the Secretaryship of the Navy to Justice Strong, on the latter's retirement from the Supreme bench. Justice Strong is said not to have been averse to accepting, but doubted whether it was legal for a Judge on the retired list to accept a Cabinet portfolio.

POLITICAL.

The Louisville Courier-Journal publishes the official popular vote for President, derived from official sources. The footings are as follows: Hancock, 4,453,496; Garfield, 4,460,249; Weaver, 307,998; Dow, 9,834; scattering, 9,579; total vote, 9,241,338. Garfield over Hancock, 6,751.... John Kelly has issued an address to the Democracy of New York, in which he attempts to prove that Tilden treacherously compassed the defeat of Hancock.... Senator Blaine is in favor of increasing the number of Supreme Judges to thirteen, and of appointing at least four Democrats.

Gov. Foster has withdrawn from the Senatorial canvass in Ohio, on the representation of some prominent Republicans in that State that a heated contest might lead to bad feeling and consequent injury to the party.

The landlords of Columbus, Ohio, regard themselves as the greatest sufferers by the withdrawal of Gov. Foster from the Senatorial contest, orders for rooms for headquarters having been countermanded.

FOREIGN.

Owing to the disturbed state of Ireland the landlords are unwilling to invest money upon their property, and the laboring classes are suffering for want of employment. The Land League has called upon the farmers to provide work for the idle hands.... William Pence Jones avows his intention to throw his farm into a pasture and leave Ireland. The consignees at Liverpool refused to receive his sheep, as the Land League threatened them.... The fund for the defense of Parnell now amounts to $50,000. Michael Davitt's ticket-of-leave has been canceled, and he will be re-arrested. The First battalion of the Twentieth regiment, at Malta, has been ordered to Ireland. The Grand Orange Lodge advises members of the order to arrange signals by which they can assemble promptly at any hour of day or night... Boycott wrote to Gladstone, asking to be indemnified for losses caused by his having to quit Ireland, and was answered that he was largely assisted by troops.... The German budget estimates the expenses of the next fiscal year at 588,077,960 marks.

Thomas O'Conor, who has returned to London from a land lecturing tour, conceives the situation in Ireland most grave. The center of danger is in the west, where the people are armed to the teeth. All have revolvers, and many have rifles, while some have both. Parnell was burned in effigy by the Orangemen of Portadown. Mr. Downing, a Justice of the Peace in County Mayo, had to flee to Dublin for having served writs of ejectment. Police with drawn bayonets alone prevented the wrecking of his residence by a mob of 2,000 persons.... Michael Chasles, the French mathematician, and Francis T. Buckland, the English writer on natural history, have passed away.... Capt. Carey, the English officer who accompanied the French Prince Imperial when the latter was attacked by the Zulus, and who ran away without offering his companion the least assistance, is about to resign from active duty and join the transport service.

Advices from South Africa announce that 5,000 Boers have captured Heidelburg and established a republic, with Paul Krueger as President. A British army is to be dispatched thither.... The European powers are devising ways and means to settle the Græco-Turkish difficulty. In the meantime Greece is arming, preparing to take the field against Turkey in the spring, should the powers not be able to induce the latter to yield the territory which the former demands.... The task of improving the finances of Turkey has been abandoned as hopeless by Herr Wittendorf, a Prussian.... A fire at Rangoon, in Burmah, destroyed $13,000,000 worth of property.... A battalion of the British Grenadier Guards is ordered to Ireland. The constabulary have been instructed to use the utmost vigilance to protect bailiffs and care-takers.

All lectures have been suspended by the university authorities in Moscow, in consequence of the agitation among the students.... France, Germany and Austria have practically decided that the Greco-Turkish difficulty must be settled by arbitration. The Greeks do not like this idea, as they think it will not result in advantage to themselves.... An Irish tenant farmer named Mullen has been murdered near Hollymount. Six men shot him from behind a wall. This crime did not grow out of the land troubles.

The trial of the Irish traversers promises to be of a very sensational character. The crown has summoned fifty or more witnesses, including several stenographers who reported the speeches of the traversers. The traversers, on their part, have subpoenaed all the clerks of the peace, and summoned them to produce the books of the County Chairman from 1844, and specify all the ejectment decrees for non-payment of rent.... The first spiral tunnel on the St. Gothard line, in Switzerland, has been completed. It is 1,000 meters, and was bored through granite entirely by hand.... Ireland is garrisoned by 30,000 troops and patrolled by 12,000 policemen.

CONGRESSIONAL SUMMARY.

Mr. Wallace introduced a bill to establish a uniform system of bankruptcy in the Senate on Friday, Dec. 17. The Senate refused to concur in the resolution passed by the House to adjourn from the 23d inst. to the 5th prox. A motion to reconsider was afterwards adopted. Mr. Blaine offered a resolution that the Judiciary Committee inquire into the expediency of increasing the number of Supreme Court Judges to thirteen. After prolonged debate on the Educational bill, Mr. Teller's amendment was adopted, providing that for ten years the proceeds of the sales of public lands shall be paid to the several States according to the proportion of persons over 10 years of age who cannot read or write. The measure was then passed by 41 to 6. The Senate passed the bill appropriating $350,000 to rebuild the Pensacola Custom House, recently destroyed by fire, and then adjourned to Monday. The House passed the Senate bill granting a pension to the widow of Gen. Heintzelman. Mr. Aldrich introduced a bill to give the city of Chicago title to the lake front.

The House of Representatives was in session on Saturday, Dec. 18, and passed the West Point Appropriation bill, giving $322,135. The Consular bill, appropriating $1,166,460, was discussed for hours in committee of the whole, until it was found that no quorum was present.

After considerable debate, the Senate, on the morning of the 20th inst., by a vote of 29 to 26, concurred in the House resolution for a recess from Dec. 23 to Jan. 5. Mr. Cockrell presented a petition by the Oklahoma raiders for leave to settle on the ceded lands. Mr. Hoar introduced a memorial from New England business men and corporations in favor of a uniform bankruptcy law. Bills were passed, to permit the erection of a statue of George Washington in front of the New York sub-treasury, and to refund the 6-per-cent. certificates of the District of Columbia into 3 per cents. Messrs. Conkling and Lamar were in attendance for the first time this session. The Senate in executive session confirmed the following nominations: Wolfgang Schaefle, of Ohio, United States Marshal for the Western district of Michigan; E. B. Turner, of Texas, United States District Judge for the Western district of Texas. In the House, Mr. Dunn introduced a resolution that lands in Indian Territory to which the Indian title has been extinguished are subject to settlement under the Homestead laws. Mr. Ellis presented a bill to abolish the Government directorships in the Union Pacific railroad. The Consular appropriation was passed. Mr. Price, of Iowa, failed in an attempt to pass a bill to dispense with stamps on bank checks. The Speaker announced the appointment of Mr. McKinley to the Committee on Ways and Means. Bills were passed, to establish an assay office in St. Louis and to enlarge the arsenal at San Antonio. Bills and resolutions were introduced under a call of the States: Authorizing the construction of a double steel-track railway from New York to Council Bluffs; to cheapen and facilitate the issue of postal money-orders; calling on the Secretary of War for an estimate as to the cost of a steel railway from New York city to Council Bluffs; providing for double or return postal cards; amending the constitution so as to make a President ineligible to re-election; extending to Jan. 1, 1882, the time for granting arrears of pensions; to authorize the States of Ohio, Illinois and Indiana to prosecute suits against the United States in the Supreme Court.

A bill was introduced in the Senate to authorize the issue of greenbacks upon deposits of gold, by Mr. Beck, on Tuesday, Dec. 21; one by Mr. Saunders, to establish an assay office at Deadwood, and by Mr. Ingalls, a measure for the admission of New Mexico. The Vice President submitted a letter from the Secretary of the Interior, calling for $18,300,000 as an additional pension appropriation absolutely required for the current year. The bill decreasing the time during which Territorial Legislatures may remain in session from forty to thirty days passed. The nomination of Judge Woods to the Supreme bench was confirmed, but was reconsidered, and the Senate adjourned leaving the matter unfinished. The House was informed by Mr. Hawley that Connecticut had transmitted for the portrait gallery an oil painting of Jonathan Trumbull. Mr. Robeson introduced a resolution that the two houses assemble in February in the House chamber to count the electoral votes, but the members refused to consider it. Fernando Wood urged the necessity of passing the funding bill before the holiday recess, and the House went into committee of the whole thereon, when Messrs. Weaver, Bland, and Mills stated that they would oppose immediate action by every possible means. In the prolonged debate which followed, Mr. Weaver denounced Mr. Sparks as a liar, and the latter retorted that the Greenbacker was a scoundrel and a villain. Each then advanced toward the other, each attempting to remove his coat, but friends hurried them from the chamber.

Mr. Morgan called up his resolution of last June on the electoral count, and spoke at length thereon, in the Senate on the 22d inst. Mr. Windom introduced a bill for the erection of a postoffice at Minneapolis. In executive session, Judge Woods was confirmed as an Associate Justice. Mr. Bayard introduced a bill to amend the National Banking law, by providing that the banking association making the required deposit of bonds in the treasury shall be entitled to receive circulating notes equal to but not exceeding 90 per cent. of the par value of the bonds. The bill also proposes to repeal the provision of the Banking act which limits the circulation of banks organized since 1870 to $500,000. The Senate then adjourned for the holidays. In the House, Mr. Bowman alluded to the disgraceful brawl of Tuesday, and offered a resolution for the expulsion of Messrs. Weaver and Sparks. Mr. McLane proposed that the offenders be required to make an apology to the House. Mr. Weaver then expressed his sorrow at having used such language on the floor of the House. Mr. Sparks said he owed an apology to the House, and freely tendered it. Fernando Wood secured the passage of an order that general debate on the Funding bill shall be limited to one day. Mr. Clymer reported the Army bill, which appropriates $26,190,800. An adjournment to Jan. 5 followed.

The Sparks-Weaver Altercation.

[Associated Press Report.]

Mr. Weaver made a humorous speech, arraigning the Democratic party for inconsistency on the financial question, and stating that the party, in its State and national platforms, encamped every four years on ground where the Republicans had encamped four years before. He was frequently interrupted by Messrs. Reagan, Warner, Finley, Bland and others, and his replies to them were received with laughter on the Republican side.

Mr. Bland inquired for what Presidential candidate Weaver had voted in 1876.

Mr. Weaver—For Rutherford B. Hayes, and I am sorry for it.

Mr. Bland—And you have good reason why. [Laughter.]

The discussion, which was very noisy and irregular, drifted into the question as to the responsibility for demonetization, and the credit for remonetization of silver, the Democrats casting discredit on the Republicans for the former, and claiming for themselves the credit for the latter.

Mr. Reagan asked Mr. Weaver to state categorically whether he was in favor of paying the public debt in greenbacks.

Mr. Weaver replied that the Greenback party proposed not to violate any contract existing between the Government and its bondholders.

Mr. Reagan—That is exactly what the Democratic party said after the passage of the law of 1869.

Mr. Buckner asked Mr. Weaver when he had left the Republican party.

Mr. Weaver replied that he had left it in 1877, just when the gentleman (Buckner) was stumping his district in favor of substituting greenbacks for national-bank notes.

Mr. Warner sent to the Clerk's desk and had read a paragraph from the Independent Republican platform in 1868, in favor of greenback currency, and of paying interest on bonds in legal money where the bonds so provided.

Mr. Reed suggested that all parties acted foolishly then, but that the Republicans had the good sense to get right.

Mr. Bland replied to Mr. Weaver's speech and said that that gentleman had shown his animus in attacking the Democrats, the only friends which that gentleman had had in the House. [Loud laughter on the Republican side.] He referred to the charge made against Mr. Weaver in the last campaign that he was acting in the interest of the Republicans, and said that his action then corresponded with his speech to-day.

Mr. Weaver tried to interrupt Mr. Bland, asserting that his statement was not true.

Mr. Bland declined to yield, and went on charging Mr. Weaver with inconsistency and bad faith. He asserted that all the reforms that had taken place recently in financial matters had come from the Democratic party. The Republican party might, by its assessment of officeholders, and by corruption and fraud, succeed in putting down the grand old Democratic party which stood for the rights and liberties of the people, but sooner or later (several Republicans, "Later!") reform would come, not through the Republicans or Greenbackers, but through the Democrats.

Mr. Weaver replied to Mr. Bland, and challenged him to quote one word that he (Weaver) had said in the last campaign in favor of the Republican party. Until he could do so, he should "shut up." He had in that campaign arraigned the Republican party, and he arraigned it to-day. He repudiated the idea of having received sympathy from the Democratic party during the campaign, and said the only evidence he had of it was in the shape of a forged letter published in the New York Star, and which he believed was in the same handwriting as the Morey letter.

Mr. Bland asked Mr. Weaver about his reputed interview during the campaign with Jay Hubbell, Chairman of the Congressional Republican Committee.

Mr. Weaver denied that any such interview had taken place, and charged the falsehood of that story on D. D. Lum, who, he said, had sold out to both the Republican and Democratic parties, and both parties were cheated when they bought him. He did not charge inconsistency upon the Democratic party itself, but on its leaders—on the men who ran with the hounds and held with the hare. These were the men whom he desired to hold up to public condemnation as being unworthy to lead the opposition to the Republican party, which sought to fasten on to the country the British system of a perpetual debt.

Mr. Sparks got the floor, and alluded to a circumstance that had occurred during the interruptions between Messrs. Weaver, Bland, and others, in which Mr. Weaver had used an offensive term to him (that he was "crazy"). He went on, in a good-natured manner, to excuse the offensive remark as arising from a misunderstanding on Mr. Weaver's part of what he (Sparks) had said to call it out.

Mr. Weaver replied in the same tone of pleasantry and good humor, declining to take offense at what Mr. Sparks had said, and intimating that no one could venture to insult him intentionally by ascribing falsehood to him without feeling the force of his (Weaver's) right arm. [Laughter and uproar.]

Mr. Sparks, on hearing the latter remark, changed his tone from one of pleasantry to one of anger, and said: "I spurn with contempt the reach of his arm. The reach of his arm would affect me as little as it affected the last Presidential election."

Mr. Weaver (still in a jocular tone)—Well, that was sufficient. Does not the gentleman see that he ought never to open his mouth at all when he is excited?—never, never! He spurns the reach of my arm? He can do so. In the temper I am now in he can do so. I would not hurt a hair of his head. [Laughter.] His apology was ample, and I accept it. But I caution him against the further use of the term "falsehood" or "lie." That, in Kentucky, is regarded, I believe, as a "lick" or a blow, and, even if I was not as large as a mouse, I would assail any man who would apply such a term to me offensively. The gentleman has alluded to my weight, but I warn him that my fighting weight is 185 pounds.

Mr. Sparks—Does the gentleman say that I used the word "falsehood?"

Mr. Weaver—So I understood.

Mr. Sparks—Oh, no; yours was certainly the first offensive word.

Mr. Weaver (still good-humoredly)—We are all right now.

Mr. Sparks—You misunderstood me. I said that you were stating what was not true, and that you were wanting in the qualities of a gentleman in your failure to remedy it. [Excitement and confusion.] That was all that there was of it, but it was developed at the last election that you wanted those qualities.

Mr. Weaver (now thoroughly angered and excited)—I denounce the gentleman personally as a liar, on the floor of the House.

Mr. Sparks (equally excited)—You are a scoundrel and a villain.

Mr. Weaver thereupon, amid great uproar, left the place where he was standing, and advanced menacingly toward Mr. Sparks, who in his turn moved toward Mr. Weaver, but both were immediately surrounded by members, who prevented them getting to close quarters, and made them put on their coats, which each was in the act of taking off as he advanced into the area. Of course, the greatest confusion and disorder prevailed on the floor and in the galleries, but in the midst of it the Speaker took the chair, and called upon the Sergeant-at-Arms to do his duty. Just then, however, there was nothing in particular to be done by that official, as the combatants had been removed by their respective friends, and there was no danger of their assaulting each other. After the disorder had subsided, Mr. Covert resumed the chair, the committee rose, and the House adjourned.

Apologetic.

Mr. Bowman offered a resolution in the House of Representatives declaring that, for gross breach of the privileges, peace, and decorum of the House, Messrs. Weaver and Sparks be expelled. Mr. McLane offered as a substitute a resolution to the effect that the two members be permitted to make an apology, which was adopted.

Mr. Weaver—Of course, there can be no two opinions as to the necessity and propriety of an apology for what took place yesterday in the House. No one regrets the occurrence more deeply than I do myself. I know that it is very rare that I ever lose my temper at all, either in public debate or private life. I did not intend to do so yesterday, and I can only say to the House—what is understood by every member and the country—that the language used by me yesterday was wholly unjustifiable under the rules of the House and under the propriety of the debate, and that it was entirely out of order. I am not only willing, but anxious, to say to the House that I am sorry I used such language in the presence of the House, and I make my apology humbly to the House. Such conduct is wholly unjustifiable. I feel that as deeply as anybody else, certainly. I wish to say, further, that I had borne myself through a long running debate, as I thought, with good humor, and the offensive language was used just before the close of my last remarks in reply to the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. Bland), and was wholly unexpected by me at the time. I thought that the whole difficulty was settled. I do not wish to raise a question as to who was to blame—not at all. I say that, whether I was to blame or he was to blame, or we were both to blame, the conduct was unjustifiable, and I apologize for my part of it to the House. I ask to be excused.

Mr. Sparks—During the great confusion (and I am warranted in saying that it was a great confusion) which existed in the committee of the whole yesterday, I used language that I well knew to be in conflict with the rules of the House. I do not on this occasion feel disposed to speak of the part taken in this confusion by other gentlemen of the House. I know that my language was in conflict with the rules and unparliamentary. To this House I feel that I owe an apology, and I hereby tender it.

On motion the matter was dropped—yeas, 164; nays, 44.

FACTS FOR THE CURIOUS.

Although the Chinese had gunpowder many centuries before it was known in Europe, they did not employ it in war, but used it only in fireworks.

The leaning tower of Pisa was built in the twelfth century. It is 190 feet high and leans thirteen feet from the perpendicular. The inclination was caused by the settling of one side of the foundation.

The thread for the glass cloth, now made at Pittsburgh, is drawn out of a molten bar by means of a rapidly-revolving wheel at the rate of 2,000 yards a minute. The weaving is done on looms, about the same as with silk. The coloring is done with minerals when the glass is originally melted.

It is the opinion of the Rev. J. G. Wood, a popular English writer on natural history, that the cockroach and red ant, which abound in England as in this country, are not indigenous there, but were imported in merchandise from America. The numbers of ants are so great in some houses as to render the buildings uninhabitable. The houses have had the floors relaid, cement and porcelain tiles used wherever possible, but the house ants have retained possession of the premises. The passages to their nests are so small that boiling water loses its heat long before the few drops which can trickle through them can touch the nest. Insect powders are equally useless, and sulphur smoke has no terror for these insects.

The proportions of the human figure are six times the length of the feet. Whether the form is slender or plump, the rule holds good; any deviation from it is a departure from the highest beauty in proportion. The Greeks made all their statues according to this rule. The face, from the highest point of the forehead, where the hair begins, to the chin, is one-tenth of the whole stature. The hand, from the wrist to the middle finger, is the same. From the top of the chest to the highest point of the forehead is a seventh. If the face, from the roots of the hair to the chin, be divided into three equal parts, the first division determines the place where the eyebrows meet, and the second the place of the nostrils. The height, from the feet to the top of the head, is the distance from the extremity of the fingers when the arms are extended.

A volume of reminiscences of the late Ole Bull is to be made of materials which the violinist left with his family.

A SUPREME HORROR.

Loss of the Ship Nonantum, and the Frightful Fate that Befell Her Crew.

[St. John (N. F.) Telegram to Chicago Tribune.]

By the arrival of the royal mail steamer Curlew from St. George's bay, on the west coast of Newfoundland, your correspondent has received the full details of one of the most dismal and heartrending disasters that has ever been chronicled.

During the terrific gale of last week the ship Nonantum, of 1,000 tons burden, bound to Marseilles, was lost near the Highlands of St. George's bay, and became a total wreck. Her whole crew, numbering seventeen, with the exception of two, perished miserably of cold, hunger and exposure to the inclemency of the winter skies. The two survivors are the mate and one of the seamen. As soon as the ship's company discovered that there was not the slightest hope of saving the ship they took to their boats; eleven taking refuge in the life-boat and the remaining six in the second boat. The third boat was stove in and swamped alongside the bark.

Dr. Malcom, who attended the sufferers, tells the following story:

I was called on Thursday last to attend the two survivors, whose limbs were badly frost bitten, and will probably have to be amputated. During the intervals of their agony I gathered the story of their sufferings from the time they abandoned their vessel till I reached them, in the hope of somewhat mitigating their pains. The names of the two survivors are George Kadger, first officer of the ship, and a native of Plymouth, England, and Patrick Dooley, an ordinary seaman, a native of Carbonar, Newfoundland. "We had not long pushed away from the side of the wreck," said Kadger, "when our boat upset and we were all plunged into the water. We managed, however, to right her, but lost everything we had in the boat, provisions, water, oars, clothing, and even our rudder. Yet we were very fortunate in being able to right her at all. We were then in a terrible condition. Neither compass, nor rudder, nor oars, nor bread, nor water, nor even a dipper to remove the water from the boat, now more than half filled. We were compelled to take our coats off to bail her out, which we succeeded in doing after some three or four hours of hard work. We were finally driven ashore, and tossed high and dry, without having sustained any serious accident or injury. After being on shore a couple of hours, our cook, a colored man, who had shown signs of exhaustion all night, died, and we buried him on the seashore. The remaining ten of us climbed up the cliff in the hope of seeing some sign or token that might lead us to a path or road that would in the long-run enable us to find out some settlement. When we reached the top of the cliffs nothing met our eyes but a long extent of low woods, across which nothing could be seen that would indicate any vestige of human life for miles at least in any direction. After traveling about in vain for six days without food or fire, and insufficient clothing, with the little strength that yet remained to us we made a rude camp of evergreen boughs and lay down to die, believing that we should never see a human face again, except during a few short hours our own haggard and hunger-pinched visages. After a little rest through the night, that brought little refreshment, we all determined to make one final effort to rescue ourselves from death in those solitary wilds.

"It was now Friday morning, and with shaking limbs and all the agony of hunger we rose one by one from our chilly pallets and started once more in the hope of reaching some human habitation, but we were now a starving and broken-down crew. One by one dropped in the snow, to remain there forever. A few took a different course from us, but quickly disappeared, and we knew that they had sunk down upon the cold ground, never to rise from it again. The Captain and myself and Dooley alone remained of the whole eleven who were washed ashore in the life-boat. The Captain did not stand long. His feet were frost-bitten so that he had to give up, and we left him behind. Dooly had no boots on—nothing but pieces of canvas wrapped around his feet, and his feet were terribly swollen with the frost, and I was afraid I should be soon alone. But Dooley proved himself to be an iron man, and we held on till evening, when we lay down, but it was not long before the joyful view of two human beings approaching us greeted our sight."

The two men proved to be two travelers from St. George's bay. They were well equipped with food and other refreshments. A fire was quickly lighted, a refreshing cup of tea prepared, and bread and cold meat produced, which had an almost-magical effect on the dying sailors. Kadger and his dying companion, Dooley, made a comparatively vigorous effort to get up, and the influence of a warm room had the effect of reviving their almost-suspended animation. Kadger told, in feeble accents, to the welcome visitors the sad story of his own sufferings and those of his companions. He and Dooley had been ten days without food. They had left the Captain and four other seamen in a ravine some two miles distant. Kadger and Dooley, after being somewhat refreshed by the beverage administered to them, were brought to the nearest settlement and kindly cared for. Immediately a party was improvised to go in search of the Captain and the other seamen indicated by Kadger as lying half-frozen in the neighboring ravine. After a very diligent search the locality where these perishing wretches lay was discovered, but all save the Captain were locked in the rigidity of death. The Captain was badly frozen, but still showed sufficient evidences of vitality to warrant the hope that life might be spared. The bodies of the dead were as decently buried in the lone gorge as was possible with the meager means at disposal. Capt. Johnson was then carried to the neighboring settlement by the rescuing party, but had hardly reached the warm hearths and hospitable homes of the dwellers amid the Highlands, when he died, after hours of protracted agony.

It was noticed by the search-party, before burying the companions of the Captain in the solitary gorge where they were found, that the arm of one man was completely eaten to the bone, as if the poignant agonies of starvation had incited the loathsome and abhorrent appetite of cannibalism. Kadger and Dooley are both badly frost-bitten, and both are suffering from pulmonary congestion. They are likely to follow soon after their companions in suffering, and thus complete the round of this terrible tragedy.

Shakespeare's Mother.

Both young men belonged to the sacred jeunesse doree of Harvard, but even their brilliant intellects had succumbed to the power of wine. They stood upon the step of a Cambridge car, and talked loudly, wholly unconscious that Miss X., the young lady upon whom they were to call the following evening, sat just inside the car door. Theatrical topics were the subject of their conversation, and one remarked, loftily, that for his part he never cared for Shakespeare. "O, dash Shakespeare!" the other returned; "he's nobody. I knew his mother. She was nothing but an old nigger washwoman down on Joy street!" On the following evening the two youths, in faultless attire, were sunning themselves in the smiles of Miss X., when Shakespeare was casually mentioned. "I am always smashed on Shakespeare," the second youth remarked. What was his horror when Miss X. returned, coldly, "That is very natural; I believe you are acquainted with his mother."—Boston Courier.

Electricity as a Corrective.

In the Ohio State prison at Columbus the punishment of refractory prisoners is accomplished in a scientific manner, electricity being substituted in place of the degrading lash. The convict is stripped, handcuffed, and placed in a bath tub, a parallelogram in shape. It is partially filled with water, and the bottom, which is of brass, is connected with a powerful battery. An attendant seizes two sponges, which are likewise connected and charged, and gently touches the convict's body. A circuit is thus formed, and the patient receives a shock that he will remember to his dying day. This playful exercise is continued until the convict cries enough. He is unable to move, and for the time being suffers excruciating torture, so that he will never hanker for a repetition of the dose. The punishment leaves no wounds, and, while more severe than flogging, it is not so humiliating.

Shocking Calamity.

Between twenty and thirty lives were lost by the burning of the large wall-paper manufactory of M. H. Birge & Sons, in Buffalo. The structure was a five-story brick, 200 feet in depth and 80 feet wide. About 150 men and boys were employed in the building. A dispatch from Buffalo gives the following particulars of the sad disaster: About ten minutes before 3 o'clock one of the men employed in the third story reported to the foreman, Thomas Henry, who was on the floor below, that one of the printing machines was on fire. He speedily made his way up stairs, and saw the press at the rear of the room enveloped in flames, which had, by this time, spread to the adjacent woodwork, while the place was filled with dense smoke. As a temperature of 85 degrees is maintained continually throughout the factory, to assist the drying process, and as this had rendered everything as dry as tinder, Mr. Henry realized that the spread of the flames would be terribly rapid, and it was folly to think that anything could be done to avert it. He turned and ordered the employes to fly for their lives, immediately warning as best he could those who were in the fourth and fifth stories, they being principally boys. In the meantime an alarm had been sounded, to which a portion of the department responded, and a second and general alarm brought the remainder. The scene now presented was one that would touch the stoutest heart. The building was wrapped in seething flames. Employes jumped from the highest windows, while many boys in the two upper stories, who had been unsuccessful in their efforts to escape, or became too bewildered to follow the example of their companions, appeared at the windows with white and terrified faces and frantically shouted for help. But their torture was of brief duration, for, almost simultaneously with their cry for aid, they sank back, overcome by suffocation from the smoke, and, within twenty minutes from the time the alarm was sounded, the walls crumbled and fell with a crash. One small boy, whose name could not be learned, courageously jumped from the fifth story, and, catching the telegraph wires, which then gave way, slid down one of them, and escaped with badly cut hands. John Malone, aged 15 years, jumped from the fifth story, struck the sidewalk, and was almost instantly killed. John Fields, employed as overseer among the boys, jumped from the fourth story and was picked up dead. John T. Berry jumped from one of the upper stories and sustained a fracture of the spine and of both arms. He will probably die. A number of others saved their lives by leaping from the windows of the burning building, but nearly all of them sustained injuries more or less severe. As far as can be ascertained twenty boys, if not more, were roasted alive in the fire.

Picture Frames.

Very serviceable and pretty picture-frames can be made out of pasteboard. For cabinet photographs, cut four strips, two six inches and two eight inches long. Lap them across the corners, in the same way as the rustic frames are joined, and punch a hole through the two pieces so that you can fasten them with a button. You can find four of a kind handsome enough in the button-box on the shelf. Cut steel are the best, but any kind will do. Strips of paper on the back will hold the picture in its place.

These frames are pretty, made of black card-board or covered with black silk. Little gilt stars, or strips of gilt paper down the center, have a pleasant effect on the black. You can cut little pieces of paper to represent gilt buttons if you do not happen to have any in the house. If you can, embroider a narrow vine on strips, with a cluster of leaves or flowers at the corners. Almost any combination of materials and styles is effective for these frames, and they are an agreeable change from the perforated card so long used. Glove and handkerchief boxes, and, in fact, boxes of any kind, all lie in this line of manufacture.

"I assure you, gentlemen," said the convict upon entering the prison, "that the place has sought me, and not I the place. My own affairs really demand all my time and attention, and I may truly say that my selection to fill this position was an entire surprise. Had I consulted my own interest I should have peremptorily declined to serve, but as I am in the hands of my friends I see no other course but to submit." And he submitted.—Boston Transcript.

THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK.
Beeves	$8 75	@12 [illegible]
Hogs	4 50	@ 6 [illegible]
Cotton	11⅞@	[illegible]
Flour—Superfine	3 40	@ [illegible]
Wheat—No. 2 Spring	1 12	@ 1 [illegible]
Corn—Ungraded	54	@ [illegible]
Oats—Mixed Western	42	@ [illegible]
Pork—Mess	12 00	@13 [illegible]
Lard	8½@	[illegible]
CHICAGO.
Beeves—Choice Graded Steers	5 25	@ [illegible]
Cows and Heifers	2 25	@ [illegible]
Medium to Fair	4 20	@ [illegible]
Hogs	4 00	@ [illegible]
Flour—Fancy White Winter Ex	5 75	@ 6 00
Good to Choice Spring Ex	5 00	@ [illegible]
Wheat—No. 2 Spring	96	@ [illegible]
No. 3 Spring	92	@ [illegible]
Corn—No. 2	36	@ [illegible]
Oats—No. 2	29	@ [illegible]
Rye—No. 2	85	@ [illegible]
Barley—No. 2	1 08	@ 1 10
Butter—Choice Creamery	32	@ [illegible]
Eggs—Fresh	20	@ [illegible]
Pork—Mess	11 75	@12 [illegible]
Lard	8½@	[illegible]
MILWAUKEE.
Wheat—No. 1	99	@ 1 [illegible]
No. 2	96	@ 1 [illegible]
Corn—No 2	36	@ [illegible]
Oats—No. 2	29	@ [illegible]
Rye—No. 1	84	@ [illegible]
Barley—No. 2	79	@ [illegible]
ST. LOUIS.
Wheat—No. 2 Red	96	@ [illegible]
Corn—Mixed	36	@ [illegible]
Oats—No. 2	29	@ [illegible]
Rye	86	@ [illegible]
Pork—Mess	12 75	@13 00
Lard	8½@	[illegible]
CINCINNATI.
Wheat	99	@ 1 01
Corn	43	@ [illegible]
Oats	35	@ [illegible]
Rye	95	@ [illegible]
Pork—Mess	12 00	@12 [illegible]
Lard	8½@	[illegible]
TOLEDO.
Wheat—No. 1 White	98	@ [illegible]
No. 2 Red	96	@ [illegible]
Corn—No. 2	40	@ [illegible]
Oats—No. 2	34	@ [illegible]
DETROIT.
Flour—Choice	5 90	@ [illegible]
Wheat—No. 1 White	97	@ [illegible]
Corn—No. 1	46	@ [illegible]
Oats—Mixed	[illegible]	@ [illegible]
Barley (per cental)	1 70	@ [illegible]
Pork—Mess	13 75	@14 [illegible]
INDIANAPOLIS.
Wheat—No. 2 Red	96	@ [illegible]
Corn	39	@ [illegible]
Oats	39	@ [illegible]
Pork—Clear	13 75	@14 [illegible]
EAST LIBERTY, PA.
Cattle—Best	5 00	@ [illegible]
Fair	4 25	@ [illegible]
Common	3 65	@ [illegible]
Hogs	4 65	@ [illegible]
Sheep	3 00	@ [illegible]

AUBURN COURIER.

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 30, 1880.

POLITICAL GOSSIP.

If Mr. William H. English, of Indiana, were Vice President-elect, would the Republicans in Congress be striving for the establishment of the theory that the Vice President, and the Vice President only, can ascertain and declare the result of the electoral vote?

First and last, Gen. Grant has drawn from the treasury of the United States as salary, in one position or another, half a million dollars. No complaint is made that he didn't earn his pay, but a man who has had half a million ought hardly come back upon the treasury as a mendicant.

The President shouldn't feel bad about Richard W. Thompson's forgetfulness of the hostile attitude of the administration on the De Lesseps scheme. Richard was lulled to forgetfulness by De Lesseps' fixing his salary as President of the American branch of the Panama Canal Company at $25,000. Mr. Thompson, as a constitutional adviser of Mr. Hayes, has been receiving $8,000. Of all men, Hayes, who dearly loves a dollar, shouldn't think harshly of Dick.

A great outcry was made by the Republican organs when, the political complexion of the Senate having changed so that, for the first time in twenty years, the Democrats had the organization, they disturbed some of the ancient servants of the Senate who were Republicans, supplying their places with Democrats. This, they said, was an outrage; it was revolutionary, it was hoggish, it was unprecedented. The Republicans are about to take hold of both houses. Does any one, most of all an organ, doubt that the change will be sweeping and complete as to officers?

The rural Ohioan sincerely and proudly believes in the superior fitness of the Buckeye for public station. One of them says: "My programme would be to put Sherman in the Senate, Taft on the Supreme bench, Matthews in the Treasury Department, and to reserve Foster for Pendleton's seat, and, if there is another place on the Supreme bench for an Ohio man, West would fill it admirably." The country has grown somewhat accustomed to this pretense, and is likely to hear more of it. What with the outgoing of Hayes, who will endeavor to make up lost time, and the incoming of Garfield, the Ohio man will loom apace.

The Philadelphia Times thus concludes the recent correspondence between Conkling and Bayard:

Conkling to Bayard—I hear that you called me a thief. Did you say so?

Bayard to Conkling—I did not say that you were a thief. What I did say was that you assisted in the wrongful abstraction of money.

Conkling to Bayard—I asked you if you called me a thief. Instead of a plain answer you introduce a new and irrelevant allegation. I demand to know if you called me a thief or not.

Bayard to Conkling—I have already told you what I said. My authority will be found in the Congressional reports. If there was any mistake I shall be glad to be corrected.

Conkling to the Press: Two months ago you said that Mr. Bayard had called me a thief. Thus far Mr. Bayard has not retracted the epithet which you said he used. I therefore call Mr. Bayard a liar, and my friends, Messrs. Arthur, Boutwell and Davis, will assist me.

The interesting correspondence is doubtless closed forever, as Mr. Conkling, following the method which, in common with young school-girls, he seems to think most effective, will resolve never to speak to that Delaware man again.

The advocates of a nice, agreeable place on the retired list of the army for ex-President Grant, says the Chicago Times, recall how Jackson retired from the Presidency poor in health and poor in pocket. "I returned home," he writes to Mr. Trist, "with just $90 in money, having expended all my salary and most of the proceeds of my cotton crop; found everything out of repair, corn and everything else for the use of my farm to buy, having but one tract of land, beside my homestead, which I have sold, and which has enabled me to begin the year (1838) clear of debt; relying on our industry and economy to yield us a support, trusting to a kind Providence for good seasons and a prosperous crop." The illustration can hardly be said to make for Grant unless it can be shown that his successor in the White House—his personal friend, Mr. Van Buren—took the occasion of an annual message to recommend that Congress take care of him, or that through his next friend he procured the introduction of a bill placing him on the retired list of the army. Gen. Jackson never permitted his friends to represent him as an object of charity. Shaken as he was in his old age, he was a grim old soldier to the last, and would probably have regarded $7,000 a year, the income of Gen. Grant, as princely.

The petty partisanship of President Hayes in matters of official appointment has never been more conspicuously shown than in his retirement of Gen. Ord and his transfer of Schofield from West Point, to make room for O. O. Howard, of Freedman's Bank infamy. No thoughtful army officer wanted Ord retired. He was doing excellent service on the Mexican border. Sherman begged for his retention. Gen. McDowell was an older and less active officer. If one general officer must go to make room for Miles, and thus remove him from the path of Hazen, why not retire McDowell, affording a meritorious Brigadier the chance of promotion? Why, but that Ord had sent a warmly congratulatory telegram to Gen. Hancock upon his nomination, and McDowell, on the contrary, neglected such duties as he had to perform, ostentatiously to make the long journey from San Francisco to New York to vote for Garfield. Schofield was removed because he was supposed to be hostile to the negro, and to supply his place Mr. Hayes selects—whom? The man who saw the negro defrauded of millions of dollars, the fruit of his saving and self-denial, stood by placidly, and said nothing.

The Drug Apprentice.

The druggist's apprentice during his master's absence becomes again voluble to the customer. Said the apprentice, half in soliloquy and half in narrative: "The drug business is terrific. These porous plasters. The old man has a national reputation for them. He makes 'em out of old sun-bonnets and glue—cuts up the sun-bonnets and smears on the glue; and when you get one of these plasters on your back it is there for life. There's a man comes in here most every day to swear at the old man because he put on one of our plasters for a lame back in 1848, time of Mexican war, and, as he couldn't get it off, the skin grew over it like the bark of a tree, you know. The plaster has worked further and further in, until now it has gone to his lungs; it pulls at his left lung in a way to set him crazy. He is a very remarkable chemist—the old man. I do believe he could make paregoric out of old umbrellas, and boil down an illustrated weekly paper into attar of roses. He has ingenuity. You wouldn't believe."

INDIANA NEWS.

The revised enumeration of Fort Wayne is 26,917.

There were $60,174.64 in the Fort Wayne treasury on the 1st day of December.

Governor-elect Porter has appointed as his private secretary Frank H. Blackledge.

Mrs. Peele, the State Librarian, reports an expenditure in two years of $1,271 for new books and binding.

The oldest man in Washington county is David Voyles. His age is 96 years; and he has been a resident of the county since 1816.

The widow of the late Gen. Jeff C. Davis has contracted for the erection of a monument at New Albany similar to the Wool monument at Troy, N. Y.

Three stone-planers have been purchased by the State House contractors, at a cost of $15,000, which will greatly facilitate the progress of the work next season.

Col. Robert M. Goodwin, of Brookville, has been convicted of the murder of his brother, Dr. John R. Goodwin, and will be sentenced to imprisonment for life.

An invalid soldier at Madison has just received $2,800 back pension, and gave the whole of it to his sister, Mrs. Harry Hoagland, who has cared for him these many years.

Miss Mattie Lafollette, only daughter of Judge D. W. Lafollette, has been adjudged insane from injuries to her spine by being thrown from a buggy a few weeks since.

The old Johnny Fisher homestead, in the suburbs of Crawfordsville, comprising twelve acres, was sold, a few days since, for $50,000, and will be laid off in town lots.

The new reservoir of the New Albany water-works has been filled, and is ready for use. Its capacity is 6,000,000 of gallons, giving the company a total reservoir capacity of 9,000,000 gallons.

Samuel Funk and wife, who had been married fifty-three years, moved from Harrison county (where they had been early settlers) into New Albany, a few weeks ago, and both died there on nearly the same day last week.

The Marion County Court House has been arranged for the accommodation of the Legislature—one of the Circuit Court rooms for the Senate, and the room of the Criminal Court for the House of Representatives.

Miss Addie Hay was engaged to teach school near Jeffersonville, and when the school house was burned the Trustees failed to provide other quarters. Miss Hay has now, by process of law and a Supreme Court decision, obtained her salary for the entire term.

The directors of the Prison South met last week and elected officers. Capt. A. J. Howard, the present incumbent, was re-elected Warden for four years. John Craig was re-elected Deputy Warden, and Matt Huette, Clerk, for four years each.

The State Grange met last week, when an annual address was presented by Aaron Jones. Eighty-five delegates were present, representing fifty-seven counties. Statements show nearly 400 lodges in the State, with a membership of 8,000.

The managers of the Female Prison and Girls' Reformatory report that the number of inmates at the beginning of the year in the penal department was 41; number admitted, 34; total, 75; discharged by expiration of sentence, 22; pardoned, 1; died, 3; number remaining at the close of the year, 49. In the girls' department at the beginning of the year there were 147 inmates; received during the year, 42; returned from ticket-of-leave, 4; total, 193; number discharged, 16; released on ticket-of-leave, 24; escaped, 4, of whom 2 were recaptured; number remaining at the close of the year, 151. The total amount received from the State treasury during the year was $22,556.22; the total expenditures were $21,500, leaving a balance in the treasury of $1,056.22. The managers ask additional appropriations of $7,500 for 1880-'81, of $40,000 for 1881-'82, and for 1882-'83 of $30,000, beside an additional amount for library and sewerage.

The report of the Trustees of the Indiana University has been presented to the Governor for the years ending October 31, 1879 and 1880. The report for 1879 shows that there was remaining in the treasury at the last annual report $3,000.47, and the amount received since is as follows: On account of interest on lands in Newton, Pulaski, Knox, White, Dubois, Martin, and Jasper counties, $1,068.37; by endowment fund interest, $7,500; semi-annual appropriations, $23,000; contingent fees, 1,669.50, and small sums from other sources, making a total of receipts of $36,487.40. The total warrants drawn during the year amount to $27,951.08, leaving a balance in the treasury of $8,536.32. The total receipts for the last fiscal year, including balance, were $25,466.56, and the total expenditures $24,856.05; balance in treasury, $610.51. The Finance Committee of the board recommend the following appropriations for the next year: For salaries of President, professors and assistants, $18,000; purchase of books for library, $3,500; salaries of officers of board and janitor, $1,500; salary of Trustees, $1,800; lecture fund, $900; contingent expenses, $2,000; buildings and grounds, $600; department of natural philosophy, $200; department of chemistry, $600; total, $29,000.

FARM NOTES.

There is one system of tillage, says the London Chronicle, far too prevalent, in small gardens particularly. It is that of digging and manuring only one spade deep till a few inches of the top soil are poisoned with dung, and turned into a moving mass of slugs and grubs, while the subsoil is as hard as adamant.

Water for Cows.—Be careful about letting your cattle drink from ditches, or from pools in which they are accustomed to stand, or in which their droppings are deposited. It is not only liable to injure the health of the stock, but it is also a fruitful cause of malarial and typhoid fevers among those who use the milk from cows thus watered.

A Horse's Foot.—Those who will take pains to examine a horse's foot will find it a series of elliptical springs separated from each other by a spongy substance, and the frog a cushion to rest the foot upon, the whole being admirably constructed for a heavy body to resist jars, and from which the natural inference may be drawn that cutting and paring the hoof and frog is not only useless but injurious.

Stirring the Soil.—It is more than two hundred years ago since there lived Jethro Tull, the famous agriculturist, who was such an enthusiast for stirring the soil that he formed the opinion that crops could be produced without the aid of manure. It is a matter of considerable importance, remarks the Gardens' Chronicle, that the atmosphere should enrich and sweeten the soil, and unless its surface is in a fit condition to allow the air to permeate it, its valuable properties are lost. Travelers inform us that the Greeks in their vineyards throw up the earth between the vines in ridges, the object being to enrich and sweeten the soil by exposure, adding and mixing manure with the ridge of earth before returning it to the roots, which it would appear they are in the habit of pruning annually.

To Fatten Fowls.—The best food for fattening poultry is oatmeal mixed with scalding milk. As a change in their diet is necessary boiled barley may occasionally be substituted. Give fresh feed three times a day, as much, but no more, than can be eaten at each meal. Chopped up mutton suet or any fat trimmings of meat from the kitchen mixed with the scalded meal will produce an extra degree of fatness. Give green food, such as chopped cabbage, turnips or onions. Keep them supplied with gravel and fresh water. Milk, either sweet, sour or thick, is also most excellent. Fowls fed in this way must not be kept longer than two weeks, as if forced for a greater length of time they are apt to become diseased. Leave them without food or water fourteen hours before killing.

The Cross-Cut Saw.—Ten years' experience in the use of cross-cut saws has proved to me that I have been working under many disadvantages until recently. My wish is for all to know the great advantage of a plan which I pursue. Take a new saw that has never been set, place it between two boards cut to fit the saw, clamp it tight on a bench or vice; take an iron wedge, file one corner to suit the set of the tooth when finished, then take a small hammer, hold the wedge with the left hand, strike the tooth lightly with the hammer until at the right place; then turn the wedge on the opposite side, and on the next tooth, and set it in the same way; now then you reach the third and most important tooth in the saw—leave it perfectly straight; pass on to the fourth tooth, set it as you did the first; turn the wedge, set fifth the other way; leave the sixth tooth straight; and so on until you finish. Now take your file, dress the two teeth as you do the common saw; the third file perfectly straight and square—leaving it about one-twentieth part of one inch shorter than the others. Continue in that way until you finish, and you will find it will cut twice as fast as the old way practiced by most farmers.—Southern Cultivator.

About Clover.—W. J. Fowler, writing to an exchange, says: "The fertility of good land may be maintained by the use of clover alone, as shown by the experience of hundreds of Western New York farmers. I know pieces of land that have never had manure. Alternate wheat and clover has been the rotation ever since the original timber was cut off. The clover each alternate year has been plowed under, and nothing but gypsum, at the rate of 100 pounds per acre per year, has ever been applied. This land is still in good condition, not quite equal to the field near the barnyard, and which have had less clover but more manure, but tolerably sure for twenty to twenty-five bushels of wheat per acre. The lack in such land is more apt to be phosphate of lime, and a dressing of super-phosphate applied with the wheat at seeding will cheaply and surely remedy this. By combining winter stock feeding with occasional plowing under of green clover for manure I do not doubt that the fertility of large farms may as surely be kept up as if the farms were smaller. In any event where clover is grown there must always be the roots in the soil to decay and this will prevent very rapid deterioration of fertility. So much always depends on keeping the soil fertile that commercial manures which on trial prove profitable should always be used."

Keep accounts and know precisely what is done, and is doing, and how the business of the farm is paying, in what particular it is paying, and where it is losing. Farming does pay. It is the most profitable business in the world. The loose and careless manner in which it is generally carried on would utterly wreck any less profitable business. There was once a man who made certain attachments for looms known as "pickers," and prepared the raw hide from which they were made himself. But he thought it was a more cleanly and better business to buy the hides and merely cut them up and make the pickers. So he bought the hides from a neighbor, and the first year he was overwhelmed with debt and sold out, and his neighbor became rich by curing hides. The unfortunate man made money so fast before that he never troubled himself how it was made, and only learned too late that one part of his business was profitable and the other was not; but then he had given over to his neighbor the profits and kept the losses for himself. It is much the same with farming, for no one can tell where he is losing or making money, without accounts. Just now is a seasonable time to consider this matter and to begin a new and more reasonable and safe system.—Rural New Yorker.

HOUSEKEEPERS' HELPS.

Oyster Pie.—Make a paste as for pie-crust, line a shallow pan with it, put in a layer of oysters, season with crumbs of butter and salt, add a layer of bread or cracker-crumbs, and so on; then add the liquor and a little milk; cover with crust and bake.

Cutlets of Quails.—Cut the breasts from half a dozen quails, and at the small end of each insert a neat little piece of leg bone to make the breast look like cutlets. Dip them in melted butter, season, roll in cracker crumbs and fry in hot butter. Serve with French peas in the center of the dish.

Sauce Robert.—Put two medium-sized onions, chopped very fine, with a large lump of butter, in a stew-pan; let them brown well, constantly stirring; add a teaspoonful of flour mixed with half a pint of good stock; salt and pepper; cook about five minutes; add a teaspoonful of mixed mustard and one of vinegar.

Cheese Souffle.—This dish must be sent to the table direct from the oven, in the pan in which it has been baked, as it falls if kept standing. Beat separately the whites and yolks of two eggs, add to the yolks one teaspoonful of sifted flour, two of grated cheese, a pinch of cayenne, one of salt, and one cupful of milk; when well mixed add the whites beaten to a froth, and stir briskly, pour into a buttered, shallow pan, and bake into a quick oven until of a rich brown color—about fifteen minutes.

Oyster Toast.—This is a nice little dish for a luncheon or for a late supper. Scald a quart of oysters in their own liquor; take them out and pound them in a mortar, when they form a paste; add a little rich cream and some pepper. Get ready some thin, neat pieces of toast, moistened slightly with boiling water, and spread with fresh butter. Spread the oyster paste thickly upon the toast, put a thinly-cut round of lemon upon each piece, and arrange them on a platter garnished with parsley. Serve very hot.

An inexpensive but appetizing pickle is made as follows: Slice one peck of green tomatoes and nine large onions; scatter one teacupful of salt over them; cover with water and let them stand all night; in the morning drain and boil in weak vinegar. Then take four quarts of vinegar of good strength, two pounds of brown sugar, two ounces of white mustard seed, two table-spoonfuls each of ground allspice, cloves, cinnamon and ginger, half a teaspoonful of red pepper. Boil all together for half an hour. The tomatoes, if a little too near ripe, will not need boiling quite so long.

Delicious Pickled Oysters.—Wash them and hang them over the fire, with barely sufficient water to cover them: very little is necessary if there is an abundance of the liquor. To one hundred oysters add a small handful of salt; let them come to a scald to swell them; watch for this and remove immediately with a skimmer, carefully laying them on dishes to cool; add one-third part vinegar (having previously strained the liquor) with whole white pepper-corns, allspice and blade mace to the taste; let all boil up together and pour over the oysters in stone jars. Ready for use in from twenty-four to forty-eight hours. The oysters should be very fresh and large.

Mince Meat.—Two pounds currants, five pounds peeled and cored apples, two pounds lean boiled beef, one pound beef suet, three-quarter pounds citron, two and a half pounds coffee sugar, two pounds raisins, one pounds seedless raisins; two tablespoonfuls cinnamon, one nutmeg, and tablespoonful each mace, cloves and allspice, one pint each Madeira wine and brandy. Wash the currants, dry and pick them, stone the raisins, remove the skin and sinews from the beef and chop each ingredient up separately and very fine; place as soon as done in a large pan, finally adding the spices, Madeira and brandy; mix very thoroughly; pack in jars; keep in cold place.

Paper Boxes Substituted for Tin.

A few years ago a process of paper-box manufacturing was invented, which has since placed paper, the rival of so many materials, in the position of a strong rival of tin in packages for certain articles of commerce. Previous to this invention the great objection to using round paper boxes for small packages, when tin was commonly used, was that the covers, being in two pieces (a disk and a rim), were not durable or safe enough to fill the requirements of frequent handling. Under the new process the heads or covers of the box are "drawn" from a single piece of straw board, so that not only is there no separating of a disk from the rim by use, but there is no seam through which the contents of the box can find its way. The body of the box is cut from paper tubes, made of several thicknesses of a light weight of straw board or heavy straw paper. Almost any desired diameter or length of box can be made. The heads are made of heavy straw board, from what is known as No. 90 to No. 50, or heavier if desired, and are "drawn" under a peculiar process, with great rapidity. One of these heads is fastened to the bottom of the box, another of the same kind is adjusted to the top, not fastened, and the box is complete. For these a straw board lined with fancy-colored paper can be used; oftentimes a tin-foil paper is selected, in which case, with the body of the box covered by a label, the package resembles a handsome, solid tin box. The boxes have been introduced into a great variety of uses, where, on account of cheapness, they have already superseded tin. Large quantities are used with and without water, air and grease-proof preparations, in packing such articles as chloride of lime, paris green, putty, tar, seeds, etc. The same principle is applied to the manufacture of small pill boxes and toy paper-cap boxes, the latter being known now by "Young America," almost to an entirety, as his chief Fourth of July delight. This class of boxes is made with astonishing rapidity, as can be imagined from the fact that they are sold, by the thousand gross, as low as 7 and 8 cents a gross.

Too Long.

O, skirt! beautiful skirt! jerked through the dust and dragged through the dirt! once you were white as the mantle of snow, as the leaves of the lily when spring zephyrs blow! stiff to the touch, and fair to the eye, and neat to the gaze of each passer-by; now tattered and spattered—O! piteous wrong Beautiful skirt, they made you too long.

An Eccentric Needle.

One day at an old-fashioned country quilting in East Tennessee the mountain boys and girls were playing some game like "snap." Miss Maria Peelers was being chased around the room by Jarkin Soby, her ardent admirer. She gave a scream suddenly, and began to examine the sole of her foot, which—as is the custom in that region—was shod with nature's own morocco. It was found that she had stepped on a needle that had fallen by accident upon the floor. As there were seven or eight inches of black patent thread hanging from the eye of the needle Jarkin insisted upon pulling it out, but Maria screamed with fright at the bare mention of the thing. She would not suffer any one to touch the string. So Jarkin took her up behind him on his horse and took her home to the old folks, intending, by the assistance of the old man, to prevail upon her to let the needle be pulled out. Lo! when they had made the trip there was no thread visible, and it was thought that, as Maria's feet had dangled along, it had caught on a bush and pulled out. All parties were in despair. Maria was considerably frightened, but only complained of a dreadful stitch in her leg. Jarkin went home, after vainly training his own eyes to find that of the needle, leaving Maria, as she said, to let the thing heal and work out. The next day Jarkin called on Maria to see if the place had begun to fester, but the hole, where the needle had entered, was scarcely visible, and Maria was complaining of only a little stitch in her knee, and was in such good spirits as to place Jarkin in ecstasies. From day to day the visits continued, and Maria and Jarkin had forgotten all about the needle. Maria now and then complained to her mother of a peculiar stitch in different localities, but went cheerfully about her work. When Jarkin called in the long evenings it was evident that he sat very close to Maria, and while that silent ecstasy spoken of in novels would steal over them they would forget everything but their own little heaven, until a secular snore from one of the old people in the back part of the room would cause them to stir. This thing continued until one night, after they had been together longer and closer than usual, Jarkin removed his arm and sighed that he must go. As he went to rise he gasped from a sharp stitch in his side next to Maria. Maria edged spasmodically toward Jarkin, catching a short breath and holding to him convulsively. Jarkin felt an indescribable pain in the effort to part. Maria hung to him with ejaculations no more tender than indicative of great physical pain. Finally they clung to each other in wild alarm. Each exclaimed: "What's the matter! O! Maria! O! Jar—Jar—Jar—kin!" The old folks awoke and struck a light in great trepidation. Seeing the couple clinging to each other, the old gentleman insisted upon immediate separation, but Maria screamed, "He can't; Oh, he can't!" Jarkin was in too much mysticism to solve the question, and all the old folks did in their vain efforts to separate them was to elicit great cries of agony. After many ineffectual attempts the thing was given up. As both parties seemed to be in the extremest mental and physical anguish, a doctor was sent for, and after many weary hours arrived. Upon investigation he found a short, black-patent thread running from Maria's side to Jarkin's side. A new light broke over Maria's face at the revelation, while all the others were thrown into the deepest conjecture. Upon signifying that she could at last solve the riddle, the parties waited breathlessly to hear. "It's that needle." "What needle, Maria?" "Why, hits been workin' all this time, that needle I tramped on at the quiltin'."

The mystery was solved; the thread had not pulled out on the way home, but as the needle had worked in out of sight the thread had followed. It had continued its course about Maria's members, and now all those inexplicable pains, which had for six months disturbed her, were accounted for; and Jarkin had been so persistent and so close in his attentions that the needle had, imperceptibly, in a protracted sitting of the two, worked out of Maria into him, and, as it were, stitched them together.

Corn Cobs.

The cobs of Indian corn contain a large amount of potash. Its ashes contain twice the amount of that material than the ashes of the willow, which contains more than any other wood. Potash is one of the minerals for which the farmer pays, in one shape or another, large sums of money, and this frequently when there can be seen lying around his premises uneconomized quantities of this valuable material.

Grandma Garfield, a correspondent says, is not a stately, impressive old lady, but a nice, plain, companionable mother of the every-day sort. You Eastern people, both men and women, grow old more elegantly than those whose early lives were full of frontier hardships at the West. To see the General with his mother reminds one pleasantly of Lawyer Wemmick and his "aged parent" in Dickens' "Great Expectations." As the "Aged P." of the administration, Grandma Garfield will be by no means a lay figure in the social life of the White House.

DR. BUTTS' DISPENSARY
Established 1847 at 12 N. 8th Street, ST. LOUIS, MO.

THE Physicians in charge of this old and well known institution are regular graduates in medicine and surgery. Years of Experience in the treatment of Chronic Diseases have made their skill and ability so much superior to that of the ordinary practitioner, that they have acquired a national reputation through their treatment of complicated cases. [illegible]

INDISCRETION–EXPOSURE [illegible]

YOUNG MEN [illegible]

PATIENTS TREATED [illegible]

DR. BUTTS, 12 North 8th St., St. Louis, Mo.

CENTAUR LINIMENT

always Cures and never Disappoints The world's great Pain-Reliever for Man and Beast. Cheap, quick and reliable.

PITCHER'S CASTORIA is not Narcotic. Children grow fat upon, Mothers like, and Physicians recommend CASTORIA. It regulates the Bowels, cures Wind Colic, allays Feverishness, and destroys Worms.

MISHLER'S HERB BITTERS

A Compound Tincture of the most valuable remedies known to the medical profession, prepared upon strictly pharmaceutical principles.

An experience of twenty-five years proves it to be the greatest Antidote to Malaria and all other Ague influences known to the world.

The only absolute cure for all Affections of the Kidneys. In Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia, all Disorders of the Bowels, and all Affections of the Throat and Lungs, it is equally efficacious, while as a remedy for complaints peculiar to the female sex it has no equal.

NOT A BEVERAGE

But an old reliable Household Remedy, thoroughly adapted to nature.

It supplies tone to the stomach, rejuvenates the digestive organs, stimulates the secretions, and promoting a regular action of the bowels, enables every organ of the body to perform its allotted work regularly and without interruption.

Its highest commendations come from those who have used it longest and known it best.

Nowhere so popular as in Lancaster, Pa., where it has been in use for more than a quarter of a century.

Highly commended as a General Tonic and Appetizer. Sold by Druggists everywhere.

THE MESSENGER OF HEALTH

A large sized paper descriptive of disease, its origin and cure, will be mailed free to any address on application to

THE MISHLER HERB BITTERS CO.
Lancaster, Pa.

We strongly recommend to mothers Prof. Parker's Pleasant Worm Syrup. It never fails, is easy to take, and no after-physic is required. Price, 25 cents.

THE SYMPTOMS

of Liver Complaint are a bitter or bad taste in the mouth; Pain in the Back, Sides or Joints, often mistaken for Rheumatism; Sour Stomach, Loss of Appetite, Bowels alternately costive and lax; Headache, Loss of Memory, with a painful sensation of having failed to do something which ought to have been done; Debility, Low Spirits, a thick yellow appearance of the Skin and Eyes, a dry Cough often mistaken for Consumption.

Sometimes many of these symptoms attend the disease, at others very few; but the Liver, the largest organ in the body, is generally the seat of disease, and, if not regulated in time, great suffering, wretchedness and DEATH will ensue.

AS AN UNFAILING SPECIFIC

For DYSPEPSIA, CONSTIPATION, Jaundice, Bilious Attacks, SICK HEADACHE, Colic, Depression of Spirits, SOUR STOMACH, Heart Burn, etc., etc.,

Take Simmons' Liver Regulator.

This justly-celebrated medicine Regulates the Liver, promotes digestion and fortifies the system against malaria.

CAUTION.

See that you get the Genuine, in clean, white wrapper, with large red "Z." Prepared only by

J. H. ZEILIN & CO.

Sold by All Druggists.

AGENTS WANTED for the Best and Fastest Selling Pictorial Books and Bibles. Prices reduced 33 per ct. National Publish'g Co., St. Louis, Mo.

PILES fully described with scientific mode of cure. Prof. Harris' illustrated pamphlet sent free on application. HARRIS REMEDY CO., Mfg Chemists, 8th & Market Sts., St. Louis, Mo.

The Book for the Million

A large, new and complete Guide to Wedlock, containing, with many others, the following chapters: A Competent Womanhood, Selection of Wife, Temperaments, compatible and incompatible, [illegible]

"THE PRIVATE MEDICAL ADVISER" [illegible]

"Medical Advice," Lecture on Manhood & Womanhood, 10c.

FOR ONE DOLLAR we send all three of the above described books, [illegible]

DR. BUTTS' DISPENSARY Established in 1847, cures chronic diseases and complicated cases, and diseases resulting from impure sexual associations, self-abuse or sexual excesses. Patients treated by mail and express. Where possible, personal consultation is preferred, which is free and invited. Questions to be answered by patients desiring treatment mailed free to any address on application. For books or treatment address

DR. BUTTS, 12 North 8th St., St. Louis, Mo.

Seminal Pastille

An entirely New and Positively effective Remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Seminal Emissions and Impotency [illegible]

HARRIS REMEDY CO. MF'G CHEMISTS, Market and 8th Streets, ST. LOUIS, MO.

Unsolicited testimony to the Efficacy of Prof. Harris' Seminal Pastille, taken from Letters received from Patrons.

Indiana, April 11th, 1879.—The remedy is working perfectly. Had epilepsy from weakness, for eight years [illegible]

Chicago, Aug. 14, 1879.—I am thoroughly cured and feel tip top. The young man is [illegible]

Missouri, Sept. 19, 1879.—I received so much benefit from the use of your remedies that I want to try them in another case. This is of long standing, and will need something very strong.

Mich., Jan. 20, 1879.—I have used up your package of medicine; send me another as soon as possible. That package stopped all apparent trouble, but there is a weakness yet, and I wish you would prepare this lot for the cure of that.

Iowa, Oct. 10th, 1879.—I am almost surprised at your Pastilles. They have worked like a charm on me. I am just twice as much of a man as I was before taking. I was on the verge of the grave, I thought, and there was no cure for me, but now I am in good hopes of a cure.

West Virginia, Aug. 28, 1879.—I received your medicine, and I believe it has cured me, for which I am very thankful. Inclosed please find $5, for which please send me another box (No. 2) for a friend. You have done a great thing for me. I will send you all the orders I can.

From a Physician and Surgeon.

Missouri, June 30th, 1879.—Please forward me at once another box of the Pastilles. The patient on whom I have used most of one box, in addition to a sample box, is fast recovering, but I think another will set him all right.

From a Druggist.

Maryland, Sept. 3, 1879.—Last January we got from you a box of your remedy, for one of our customers, and it has made a perfect cure of him. We have another customer now suffering in the same way, and wish, by return mail one box, [illegible]

Fruit House Prices

—FOR—

Christmas and New Year.

GREAT DROP ON

Sugar, Coffee, Prunes, Teas, Etc.

All SUGARS reduced 1 cent per pound.
All COFFEES reduced 2 cents per pound.
Turkish PRUNES reduced 4 cents per pound.
TEAS reduced 10 cents per pound.
And for the Holiday trade we have

Toys, Toy Candies, French Candies, German Toys Christmas-Tree Candies, and New-Year Gifts of every Description.

Santa Claus in all His Glory.

SUGARS REDUCED 1 1-2C PER POUND.

Crushed	10c	Coffee A	8c
Powdered Sugar	10c	Coffee C	8c
Granulated	10c	Brown Sugar	7c

COFFEES REDUCED 2C PER POUND.

Choice Rio	14c	Roasted Rio	16c
Best Rio	16c	Best	20c
Old Government Java	25c	This is the lowest coffee has sold since 1861.

TEAS DOWN 10C PER POUND.

Our tea trade is simply immense No secret about it—just the same rule as in Sugars, selling at a small profit, and purchasing direct of the importer; we therefore save the profits of the speculator and wholesale merchant. This profit our customers get the benefit of, and it is from 10c to 15c per pound.

Young Hyson	25c	Good Young Hyson	45c	Best Young Hyson	60c
Imperial	40c	Good Imperial	50c	Best Imperial	60c
Gunpowder	40c	Good Gunpowder	50c	Best Gunpowder	65c
Oolong Black Tea	30c	Good Black Tea	40c	Best Oolong	60c
Uncalendered Japan	30c	Good Japan	40c	Best Japan	60c

All our Teas, even the second qualities, warranted to give satisfaction, and the best can't be beat. Our 60c Tea is equal to any dollar tea sold elsewhere.

Christmas and New Year Goods.

Santa Claus Toys, Christmas Tree Candles and a thousand other things for the holidays, such as Drums, Bears, Lions, Leopards, Cats, Dogs, Monkeys, Wagons, Hose Carts, Soldiers, Vases, Albums, Fancy Candies, French Candies, Fruit Candies, Stick Candies 12½c per lb.; French Candies, 15c per pound; Fruit Candies, 20c and 25c per pound, etc., etc.

Fresh Oysters down 5 cents Per Can,

XXX	14c	Family	20c	S & W	25c	Select Frying	33c

Tobacco of All Kinds.

No 1 Fine Cut	75c	Good Fine Cut	40c
Choice Fine Cut	60c	Good Plug Tobacco	40c
Choice Plug Tobacco	50c	Durham	48c
Best No. 1	60c	Uncle Ned	35c
Smoking	25c

Fish Oil, 70c; Neats Foot Oil 70c; Machine Oil, 25c and 35c; Headlight Oil, 20c.

Syrups, Molasses and Maple Syrup.

Extra Golden Syrup, per gallon	45c	Maple Syrup	1
White Sugar, Loaf Drips	60c	Best New Orleans	60

FOR CHRISTMAS CAKE.

Citron, per pound.........25c Orange and Lemon Peel.........30c Shelled Almonds.........35
Nuts of all kinds and best Turkish [illegible]

Liquors, Wines Whiskies Scotch Ale, Dublin and London Porter.

Good new Whisky, per gallon	$1 00	California wine	$1 25
Whisky, one year old	1 25	New England Rum	1 50
Whisky, two years old	1 40	Brandy	1 50
Whisky, three years old, '76	2 50	Scotch Ale, per bottle	22
Sherry Wine	1 25	London Porter	20
Port Wine, per gallon	1 25	Doublin Stout	18

Fish, Meats, Pork, Lard, Bacon, Spices, &c.

25 Cents on the Dollar you can save at least by purchasing at the

FORT WAYNE FRUIT HOUSE,
FORT WAYNE, INDIANA.

1850. PIONEER 1880

Hardware Store.

Headquarter for Stoves !

The Celebrated Buffalo N. Y. Stoves have been sold in this house for 25 years. A full stock alway on hand.

—A full line of—

BUILDING HARDWARE and SHELF GOODS.
Wagon and Buggy Material,
White Lead, Paints, Oils and Varnishes
Table and Pocket Cutlery,
Silver-Plated Knives and Forks and Spoons,
Granite Iron-Ware,
Oliver Chilled and Bryan Plows.
FARMING IMPLEMENTS
BLACKSMITHS' MATERIALS,
Buffalo Scales, Sash & Doors,
WOOD AND IRON PUMPS, & DRIVE-WELL FIXTURES,
All at prices to suit the times.
Call at the old stand when you want bargains.
JOHN L. DAVIS, Proprietor.

ISAAC HAGUE'S

NEW SHOE STORE!

A NEW STOCK OF

BOOTS AND SHOES

Arriving daily, for spring and summer trade. Fine goods for ladies a specialty. A full line of men's and boy's shoes, of the latest styles, at low prices. Our facilities for buying are such as to enable us to buy at manufacturers prices, thereby saving our customers one or more profits. Call and examine our stock and satisfy yourselves that what we say is true.

MR. CHARLES RAUT

Is associated with me, and as we are both experienced workmen we are prepared to do custom work, either sewed or pegged, on short notice and at reasonable rates. Repairing promptly attended to. Remember the place,—first door east of Mcquiston & Ralstons double store, north of the court house, Auburn, Ind.

16-tf. ISAAC HAGUE

Photography.

M. Niepce of Chalon-on-the-Saone was the first to enjoy the satisfaction of producing permanent pictures by the influence of solar radiations. This was accomplished in 1813; and the name chosen to designate his process was heliography. Niepce afterward learned that Daguerre had been conducting experiments of a similar character; and they formed a partnership. The former, however, died in 1833; and a new deed of partnership was signed between his son Isidore and M. Daguerre, which resulted in the publication, in July, 1839, of the process known as the daguerreotype. But this was not done until the French Government had passed a bill securing to M. Daguerre a pension of six thousand francs, and to Isidore Niepce a pension of four thousand francs, both for life, and one-half in reversion to their widows. This action of the French Government was upon the argument that "the invention did not admit of being secured by patent, since, as soon as published, all might avail themselves of its advantages: it therefore chose to enjoy the glory of endowing the world of science and of art with one of the most surprising discoveries that honor their native land."

When Galusha A. Grow was in Congress, twenty years ago, he knocked down a member (Keitt) who left his seat to brandish his fist in Grow's face. We think Pennsylvania will make a mistake if she does not send Grow to the United States Senate. Some of the members are likely to require just such heroic treatment.

Tickets ! Tickets ! Tickets !

First-class, emigrant and round-trip railroad tickets to all points east or west can be bought at low rates by calling upon the undersigned at Auburn Junction, or addressing

J. J. MARTIN, Ag't, B. & O. R. R.
tf Auburn Ind.

Examination Of Teachers.

Examinations for the year commencing June 1st, 1879, will be held regularly, in the high-school building at Auburn, the last Saturday of each month. Special examinations at other points on due notice.

W. H. MACINTOSH,
Co. Sup't. of schools

1881.

HARPER'S BAZAR.

[ILLUSTRATED.]

This periodical, by its able and scholarly discussions of the questions of the day, as well as by its illustrations—which are prepared by the best artists—has always exerted a most powerful and beneficial influence upon the public mind.

The weight of its influence will always be found on the side of morality, enlightenment and refinement.

HARPER'S PERIODICALS.

HARPER'S BAZAR one year	4 00
" WEEKLY one year	4 05
" MAGAZINE one year	$4 00
The three above publications	10 00
Any two above named	7 00
HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE 1 year	1 50

Postage free to all subscribers in the United States or Canada.

The volumes of the Weekly begin with the first number for January of each year. When no time is mentioned it will be understood that the subscriber wishes to commence with the number next after the receipt of order.

The last eleven annual volumes of Harper's Weekly, in neat cloth binding, will be sent by mail, postage paid, or by express, free of expense (provided the freight does not exceed one dollar per volume), for $7.00 each.

Cloth cases for each volume, suitable for binding, will be sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of $1.00 each.

Remittances should be made by post-office money-order or draft, to avoid chance of loss.

[Newspapers are not to copy this advertisement without the express order of Harper & Brothers.]

Address, HARPER & BROTHERS.
New York.

THE ENQUIRER.

The People's Paper—The Greatest Newspaper in the West.

The Enquirer is just closing one of the most prosperous and successful years of its existence. We wish to thank the people and our patrons for their support. Your encouragement has made the task of publishing the best newspaper in the west a possibility.

We ask your aid and support for the year to come, and for the future, and pledge you that we will spare no expense to make the Enquirer for the ensuing year not only the best newspaper in the west, but the rival of any in America.

The world's news, recorded by a corps of fifteen hundred correspondents in all sections of the globe, will be found in the Enquirer every day in the year.

The history of each day's events will be faithfully and fearlessly told, exposing fraud, rebuking corruption, and upholding the right. The facts of the world belong to the people, and will be presented to them by the Enquirer free of malice and undistorted for political or personal purposes.

In short, the Enquirer will continue to be a newspaper.

In the future, as in the past, the Enquirer will be found advocating the rights of the people of the states; the rights of communities, and the fullest liberty to individuals compatible with the general order and welfare of society.

All questions and parties shall be treated with candor and fairness, but the truth shall never be perverted.

The year 1881 will be an eventful one in the history of the state and republic. The inauguration of a new administration, with new men and new purposes, are themes of the gravest interest to all citizens who love their country. Upon all these topics the Enquirer will contain the fullest and most reliable information from its corps of able and faithful correspondents.

THE WEEKLY ENQUIRER

will be a paper that ought to be in the hands of every farmer, every mechanic, and every toiler in the land. As an agricultural paper, full of fresh, valuable and reliable information, it will be without a rival! A corps of contributors has been retained whose practical and theoretical knowledge in all branches of good farming is unsurpassed.

TERMS OF WEEKLY ENQUIRER.

For one year	$1 15
For six months	65

A free copy given to any one sending a club of seven names with $8 05.

TERMS OF DAILY ENQUIRER.

	With Sunday	With Sunday Issue.
One year	$12 00	$14 00
Six month	6 00	7 00
Three months	3 25	3 75
One month	1 25	1 50
Sunday's issue alone, per year		2 00
Any two days' issue, per year		4 00
Any three days' issue, per year		6 00

Send for sample copies.
FARAN & MCLEAN, Publishers.

The Greatest Medical Discovery of the Age.

Kellogg's Columbian Oil is a powerful remedy, which can be taken internally as well as externally by the tenderest infant. It cures almost instantly, is pleasant, acting directly upon the nervous system causing a sudden bouyancy of the mind. In short, the wonderful effects of the most wonderful remedy cannot be explained in written language. A single dose inhaled and taken according to directions will convince any one that it is all that is claimed for it. Warranted to cure the following diseases: Rheumatism or Kidney Disease in any form, Headache, Toothache, Earache, Neuralgia, Sprains, Bruises, Flesh Wounds, Bunions, Burns, Corns, Spinal Affection, Colic, Cramping Pains, Cholera Morbus, Flux, Diarrhoea, Coughs, Colds, Bronchial Affection, Catarrh, and all aches and pains, external or internal. Full directions with each bottle. For sale by Casebeer& Matheny. 34-eow-1y.

CLOCKS, CLOCKS,

WM. ELLERY
WALTHAM, MASS.

GOLD

—AND—

Silver Watches

Rodgers & Brother's PLATED WARE,
SPOONS, KNIVES, and FORKS.
Rings, Necklaces, Vest Chains Ladies Gold Chains.
Castors, Everything in the Jewelry line.

Violins, Guitars,
Banjos, Accordeons,
Violin Strings.

Special attention given to repairing fine watches

All Work Warranted.

No charge for mending silver ware sold at
JOE ABRICHT'S,
Second door north of Postoffice, Auburn, Ind.

1881

THE STEADFAST WATCHMAN

—of—

PUBLIC INTELLIGENCE,
and Exponent of

American Democracy.

THE INDIANA

STATE SENTINEL!

Has again been enlarged. It will hereafter be a

56 Column Quarto,

Making a growth in size of over twenty per cent., or an addition of reading during the year of 416 Columns.

This makes the Sentinel the largest and most desirable weekly paper in the United States, placing it ahead of all its rivals. Every Indian should be proud of it.

Price Per Year, Single Copy, $150

Special Rates To Clubs.

Persons wishing to become agents send for private circulars an sample copy. Liberal cash commission to agents, also first-class list of special premiums offered.

Address

SENTINEL COMPANY,
Indianapolis, Indiana

RAILROADS

Wayne Ft., & Jackson Railroad.

SHORT LINE

Time-Card takes effect Dec. 6, 1880.
(CHICAGO TIME.)

GOING NORTH.

Leave Auburn:

4:15 A. M.—From Fort Wayne 1:50 a. m.; arrive at Waterloo 4:40; Pleasant Lake, 5:25; Angola, 5:45; Fremont, 6:10; Reading 7:15; Bankers, 8:00; (connecting closely with D. H. & S. W. R.;) arriving at Hillsdale 8:10 a. m.; Ypsilanti 10:10 a. m.; Detroit 11:50 a. m.; Jonesville, 8:30; connecting with the Lake Shore & South railroad for points west Jackson, 10:30 a. m. there connecting for points west on Michigan Cent. and Grand River valley Ry.

12:31P.M.—From Fort Wayne 11:20 a. m., Academie, 11:45; Huntertown, 11:55; New Era, 12:09 p. m.; Auburn Junction, 12:29; arrive at Waterloo 12:42, connecting with L. S. & M. S. train east and west; Summit, 12:53; Pleasant Lake, 1:00; Angola, 1:10; Fremont, 1:35; Reading, 2:05; Bankers, 2:15, making close connection with D. H. & S. W. R. R.; Jonesville, 2:35 (making connection with L. S. & M. S. for points east; Hillsdale, 2:38; Adrian 4:05; Toledo, 5:35, p. m.), Jackson, 3 40 p. m., making close connection for Ann Arbor, Detroit, Lansing, Ionia, Saginaw, Grand Rapids, Battle Creek, etc.

6:01 P. M.—From Fort Wayne, 5:00 p. m.; New Era, 5:40 arrive at Waterloo 6:15; Summit, 6:25; Pleasant Lake 6:35; Angola, 6:47; Fremont, 7:10; Reading, 7:45; Jonesville, 8:25; Jackson, 9:25 p. m.; connecting closely with Michigan Central railroad fast train arriving at Detroit at 11:50 p. m.; Buffalo, 8:50 a. m. and New York, 10:30 p. m.; also Chicago, Grand Rapids, etc.

GOING SOUTH.

Leave Auburn:

9:17 A. M.—From Jackson, 5:05 a. m.; closely connecting from Chicago; Jonesville, 6:45; connecting from Chicago, Sturgis, Colwater, etc.; Reading, 7:40; Montgomery, 7:54; Fremont, 8:12; Angola, 8:30; Pleasant Lake, 8:40; Summit, 8:52; Waterloo, 9:05; arrive at St. Johns, 9:36; New Era, 9:38; Huntertown, 9:55; Academie, 10:05; Ft. Wayne, 10:20 a. m. connecting closely with Indianapolis, Louisville, Cincinnati, etc.

3 22 P. M.—From Jackson 12:20 p. m.; (connecting from Detroit 9:35 a. m., Ann Arbor, Saginaw, Lansing, Grand Rapids, etc.;) Jonesville, 1:18, close connection from Toledo; Bankers, 1:33; Reading, 1:45; Montgomery, 1:55; Fremont, 2:15; Angola, 2:40; Pleasant Lake, 2:50; Summit, 3:00; Waterloo, 3:12; arrive at Auburn Junction, 3:25; St. Johns, 3:37; New Era, 3:43; Stoner's, 3:53; Huntertown, 3:56; Academie, 4:05 Fort Wayne, 4:20 p. m.; connecting for Indianapolis, Louisville, Cincinnati, and all points east via P. F. W. and C. railroad fast express.

11:26P.M—From Grand Rapids 11:50 a. m.; Kalamazoo, 1 40 p. m.; Jackson, 5:40 p. m.; Jonesville, 7:35; Bankers 8:10 p. m.; from Detroit 4:05 p. m, Hillsdale 8:00 p. m.; Reading, 8 40; Fremont 9 37; Angola 10 07; Pleasant Lake, 10 28; Waterloo, 11 07; arrive at New Era 12 20 a. m.; Fort Wayne, 1 30 a. m., connecting with early trains west, south and east.

4 15 a. m. train run daily. All other trains daily except Sundays.

M. D. WOODFORD, Gen'l Supt.
H. BROMLEY, Gen'l Fr't. & Pass'r Agent.

Fort Wayne, Muncie and Cin.
—AND—
White Water Railroads.

Time Card in effect November 16, 1879.

STATIONS.	GOING SOUTH. 1. Mail.	3 Express.
FORT WAYNE	10 40 am	5 40 pm
Bluffton	11 52 am	6 55 pm
Montpelier	12 31 pm	7 37 pm
Hartford	12 57 pm	8 04 pm
MUNCIE	1 48 pm	9 00 pm
Newcastle	2 39 pm
Cambridge City	3 14 pm
Connersville	3 45 pm
Cincinnati	6 55 pm
INDIANAPOLIS	6 25 pm	10 55 pm
Louisville
Terre Haute
St. Louis

STATIONS	GOING NORTH 2 Mail.	4 Express	6 Accom.
St. Louis
Terre Haute
Louisville
Indianapolis	11 50 am	6 40 pm	4 06 am
Cincinnati	8 40 am
Connersville	11 51 am
Cambridge City	12 26 pm
New Castle	1 10 pm
Muncie	2 20 pm	9 20 pm	6 42 am
Hartford	3 09 pm	10 08 pm	7 47 am
Montpelier	3 34 pm	10 38 pm	8 19 am
Bluffton	4 10 pm	11 09 pm	9 16 am
Fort Wayne	5 15 pm	12 15 am	11 00 am

Trains Nos. 1 and 2 run through between Fort Wayne and Cincinnati without change.

Through cars are attached to trains Nos. 1 and and run between Fort Wayne and Indianapolis, via Muncie.

All trains daily except Sunday.

Trains run on Columbus time.

GEO. W. MULLEN, Act'g Gen. Tick Ag't.
N. W. WORTHINGTON, Gen. Supt.

WABASH St. LOUIS AND PACIFIC RY.

The Great Through Car Route to

Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa.

TRAINS LEAVE AUBURN.

EAST.		WEST.
Mail	11:34 p. m.	Mail	3:30 p. m.
Accom'n	7:57 a. m	Accom'n	8:07 a. m.
Local F't	4:45 p. m.	Local F't	6:36 a. m.
M'l tr'n arrives at Butler	1:00 p. m.	M'l tr'n arr. at Logansport	6:10 p. m.

No Change of Cars From

TOLEDO OR FT WAYNE TO St. Louis, Kansas City St. Joseph, Hannibal, Quincy and Atchison.

No Change of Cars From

St. Louis To | Kansas City, St. Joseph Omaha and Ottumwa.

Remember that the

Wabash, St Louis and Pacific

Has No Emigrant Cars.

Everybody rides in Elegant Parlor Coaches—nicely upholstered and carpeted. Baggage checked through to destination.

Don't forget the above inducements given only by this great line, and when you go

West Southwest, North or Northw'st

Don't accept any ticket unless it reads over the

Wabash, St. Louis & Pacific R'y.

For Routes, Rates, Elegant Maps of the Western Country, and any information you may desire in regard to going West, please address,

J. C. GAULT, Gen. Manager, M. C. TOWNSEND, Gen. Passenger Agent, St. Louis or
LOUIS JOHNSON, Ticket Ag't, Auburn, Ind

Baltimore & Ohio R. R

—o—

CHICAGO DIVISION.

—o—

IN EFFECT FROM JUNE 20, 1880.

GOING EAST.

STATIONS.	No. 1 Fast.	No. 3 Ex.	No. 5 Mail
CHICAGO lv	5 15pm		8 10am
Walkerton Junction	8 00		10 56
Milford Junction	9 00		12 05pm
Syracuse	*		12 14
Cromwell	*		12 30
Albion	*		12 56
Avilla	9 50		1 10
Garrett	10 20	2 55am	1 40
Auburn Junction	10 27	4 03	1 48
St. Joe	*	4 25	2 10
Hicksville	*	4 43	2 28
Defiance	11 35	5 27	3 10
Deshler	12 25am	6 23	4 05
Fostoria	1 08	7 25	4 26
Tiffin	1 30	7 54	5 25
CHICAGO JUNCTION ar	2 15	9 00	6 15

GOING WEST.

STATIONS.	No. 10 Mail.	No 2 Ex.	No.
CHICAGO JUNCTION lv	[illegible]	5 40pm	11 2
Tiffin	10 00	7 55	12 0
Fostoria	10 33	8 35	11 22
Deshler	11 44	9 32	1 0
Defiance	12 55pm	10 32	3
Hicksville	1 52	11 20	*
St. Joe	2 10	11 32	*
Auburn Junction	2 36	11 58	3 0
Garrett	2 40	12 05am	3 2
Avilla		12 20	3 2
Albion		12 45	3 5
Cromwell		1 14	4 1
Syracuse		1 30	4 2
Milford Junction		1 40	4 3
Walkerton Junction		2 04	5 4
CHICAGO ar		6 10	8 1

C. H. HUDSON, Superintendent Trans., Ohio Division, Chicago, Ill.
J. J. MARTIN, Agent, Auburn Junction.
* Trains do not stop.

Pittsburg, Ft. W. & C. R. R

ON AND AFTER JUNE 27, 1880.

Condensed time card.

GOING WEST.

Stations.	No. 1, Fast Ex.	No. 7, Pacific Ex.	No. 3, Night Ex.
Pittsburgh lv.	12 05	9 15am	1 50pm
Rochester	1 15	10 10	2 55
Alliance	3 20	1 20pm	5 35
Orrville	5 00	3 18	7 13
Mansfield	6 55	5 40	9 20
Crestline ar.	7 25	6 15	9 45
Crestline lv.	7 50am	6 35pm	9 55pm
Forest	9 25	8 25	11 20
Lima	10 40	9 20	12 33am
Ft. Wayne	1 15pm	12 05am	2 40
Plymouth	3 46	2 50	4 55
Chicago ar.	7 00	6 00	8 00

GOING EAST

Stations.	No. 2, Morn'g Ex.	No. 6, N. Y. Ex.	No. 4, Atl. Ex.
Chicago lv.	8 10am	30pm	5 15pm
Plymouth	11 53		9 26
Ft. Wayne	2 35pm	8 35	12 15am
Lima	4 23		2 38
Forest	5 43		2 55
Crestline ar.	7 10	12 35	5 30
Crestline lv.	7 30pm	12 40pm	6 40am
Mansfield	8 03	1 15am	7 20
Orrville	10 06	2 57	9 23
Alliance	11 45	4 25	11 25
Rochester	2 04am		2 10pm
Pittsburgh ar.	3 15	7 30	3 15

Nos 3 and 6, and 5 and 4 run daily. No. 1 leaves Pittsburgh daily, except Saturday. 3 leaves Chicago daily except Saturday. All others daily except Sunday.

F. R. MYERS,
Gen. Pass. and Ticket Agent.

Notice of Sale of Real Estate

Notice is hereby given that by virtue of an order of the DeKalb circuit court, the undersigned, administrator of the estate of John Whittington, deceased, will offer for sale on the premises, on Friday the 31st day of December, 1880 the following real estate to-wit: Lot six in the original plot of the town of Auburn Junction, Dekalb county, Indiana.

TERMS: One-third cash; the residue in equal payments at twelve and eighteen months, with notes and interest, waiving valuation laws, with approved personal security. Sale to begin at 1 o'clock, p. m. W. H. DILLS, Administrator.
50-3t

M Boland

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Devoted to the Interests of the Democratic Party and to the Collection of Local and General News.

Volume 11. AUBURN, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, JANUARY 6, 1881. Number 1.

The Auburn Courier

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY BY

BARNS & HUSSELMAN.

DIED IN PENURY.

Sad End of a Former Official Life.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.—The police picked up in the streets night before last, a poor old man in the last stages of want and destitution. He was suffering from exposure. When taken to the station-house, a physician said that his extreme weakness was occasioned by an acute attack of pneumonia. It was also found that the man was named James Madison Tarleton, and that he was consul general at Melbourne, Australia, in Franklin Pierce's time. He was a warm friend of the Pierces. Among the papers found upon the outcast were two letters from General Pierce. The one not relating to personal matters, is as follows:

CONCORD, N. H., Feb. 1, 1847.—My Dear Tarleton: I take it that you are regarding our election, now near at hand, with some degree of interest, and I write chiefly to say that the clouds which have overshadowed us for some months past are apparently breaking away and unveiling to us a clear sky and the bright star of hope. I am quite sanguine in the conviction that we shall gain a signal triumph over federalism, abolitionism, Haleism and all other isms combined. We have made some apparent losses, which will prove substantial gains. George Barstow, of Manchester, and Asa Fowler, of this place, have joined the ranks of the liberty men. Look at the Manchester Democrat extra, which I send you to-day, and say whether you think the former gentleman is an acquisition to his new associates. The campaign is being conducted on the part of the democracy with great vigor in all parts of the state. Inquiries are often made for you in a certain circle, and many friends will be glad to hear that you are well and prosperous. Present my kindest regards to your wife, and let me hear from you. In haste, your friend, FRANK PIERCE.

J. M. TARLETON, Mobile, Ala.

A lady who knew the ex-consul in Australia took him from the station-house, but care came too late, as he died late last evening.

A Mexican Pompeii.

A correspondent, writing from Mexico, says: Charney has discovered what he very properly terms "The Indian or Mexican Pompeii, a city buried for at least 1,000 years." In my last I mentioned the discovery of a villa near Tula. That house has now been fully uncovered, and found to contain twenty-five rooms, fifteen stair-cases and twelve corridors. Attached to it are two cisterns, with clay pipes which were used to convey water to different appartments. Some of the household utensils are of coarse clay, a few of porcelain and one article of glass. Remember Tollan, the capital of the Toltec empire, covered, not only the present site of the town of Tula, but the spot where Mr. Charney discovered the villa, and now he is unearthing, near the former building, a large palace. Perhaps during these excavations he may find historical data that will clear up all mystery with regard to the origin of the first inhabitants of the western continent.

Death of the Distinguished Novelist, George Eliot.

In the death of George Eliot, which occurred at London, England, on Wednesday, December 20, at ten o'clock, the world of literature has lost the greatest metaphysical fiction writer of her time. The cable dispatches state that Mrs. Cross (George Elliot) was seized with a chill, which suddenly attacked the larnyx and the muscles of the throat on Sunday last. This attack caused great nervous prostration, but it did not give serious alarm to her friends until early on Wednesday afternoon. Dr. Andrew Clare then discovered that the pericardium was very seriously affected, and he said that the case was nearly if not altogether hopeless.

She was for some time in an unconcious condition, but rallied, and at the end passed quietly and painlessly away. She had just completed her 60th year.

Ben. Harrison's practice in the past of demanding pay for services rendered his party is being made an important factor in the senatorial contest. There are many republicans who think Benjamin just a little too penurious in this matter. In 1876 when the visiting statesmen were hying southward, Harrison was requested to go to South Carolina and help save Hayes, but he declined doing so unless paid $1,500 and expenses. There are many other instances of this nature on file, as it were, which are likely to haunt Ben in his senatorial dreams.

BORDER GUERRILLAS.

A Bad Gang of New Mexican Desperadoes and Murderers Corraled and Captured—One of the Party Shot Dead.

At a late hour on the night of December 28, three of the most desperate outlaws who ever infested the territory were brought to town and placed under charge of the military, the jail not being deemed safe enough. They are Billy Smith, nicknamed "The Kid," Dave Rudebaugh and Wm. Wilson. For four years past they, with others, have ruled Lincoln county with the pistol and Winchester rifle, committing at least a dozen murders during that time.

The outlaws were captured three days ago at Stinking Springs, about three miles east of Fort Sumner. According to the accounts of the men, the capture was easily effected. It was as great a surprise to them as to the public generally. They say at Sumner, during the latter part of the week, they were informed that "The Kid" and his gang were at Stinking Springs, and, having collected a posse of sixteen men, they went after them. "The Kid's" party consisted of Dave Rudebaugh, the murderer of Lopez, the Los Vegas jailer, Billy Wilson, Tom Picket and Chaf. Bowdre, making with himself five men in all. The posse, under Sheriff Garrett, reached Stinking Springs just before day-break, and surrounded the house in which the Kid and his men were quartered. They satisfied themselves that the outlaws were in the house and then waited quietly for them to come out.

Soon after it had become light enough to see perpectly one of the doors of the house opened, and a man stepped out. The besiegers thought it was "The Kid," and fired. The man went back into the house, then came out again and fell dead. It was then ascertained that Chas. Brown had been shot. The posse continued to guard the house until nearly dark, when the outlaws surrendered, although "The Kid" was violently opposed to it, and were made secure by their captors. They were brought to Los Vegas, and brought from their here.

At Vegas there was a strong disposition to lynch the men, and it was deemed safest to bring them through to Santa Fe. It is said that the Vegas people were for taking the prisoners from the guard. Picket was the only one of the four captives who was left at the Vegas jail. The arrival here of the prisoners created a great deal of excitement, and Sheriff Garrett is the hero of the hour.

A Free-Trade Fable.

[Boston Herald.]

A fable, respectfully dedicated to commercial fossils: "There was once a farmer, who lived remote from the market towns. He had no horse or wagon, and was forced to 'tote,' his produce on his back when going to market, or else to pay his more fortunate neighbors who owned teams to transport his vegetables and grain. His farm grew larger and more productive, his sons increased and arrived at man's estate, and, with their aid, he raised great crops, but he still depended on his neighbors for the transportation of the products of his farm. The sons laughed at the foolishness of the father in paying out a large share of his profits for transportation, and finaly persuaded him to buy a horse and cart. When he had done so, the old man said: "I have to work hard, and the horse shall have no easier time than myself, so I'll load the wagon half full of rocks whenever he goes to market." The ancient idiot did as he said, and still wondered why he did not prosper as did his neighbors on less fertile farms." As a fable is incomplete without a moral, this shall have one: 'A nation which hopes to compete with foreigners on the ocean, must tax its ships as lightly as do its competitors for the world's trade.'"

The old Buddhist method of teaching secret geography to the Japs is different from that which prevails in our schools. A Buddhist priest recently told a missionary that 90,000,000 miles north of where they stood there was an immense square mountain, on the other side of which was heaven.

It was the splendid jewels worn by Mad. Robillard, the wife of a tobacco manufacturer, at a ball in the Tuileries in 1810 that first gave Napoleon the idea of making the tobacco trade a state monopoly. It yields now to the French government an annual profit of about $50,000,000.

A RIVER BONANZA.

Big Find Expected at the Bottom of a California River.

The most extensive mining operation of its kind ever known in the history of California, says the San Francisco Chronicle, has been inaugurated by eastern capitalists of Chicago, New York and Boston, at Big Bend, on the north fork of Feather river, ten miles above Oroville. A million dollars, it is said, has been pledged to the undertaking, and $50,000 paid in to start the work. The scheme contemplates the working out of thirteen miles of the bed of the Feather river, not by the old process of fluming, but by a tunnel of sufficient capacity to drain the river bed, so that it can be worked in a manner familiar to the early miners on the American river, where so many fortunes were made in flush times. The Feather river, at Whisky bar, makes a large bend, thirteen miles in length, in the form of a horse-shoe. Near the junction with the west branch there runs into the latter a stream called Dark Canon. This stream heads in the direction of the upper portion of the north fork and in the neighborhood of Whisky bar, the distance between it and the bar straight through the divide is less than twelve thousand feet. It is proposed to construct an eocene tunnel half a mile above Whisky bar, to Dark Canon, of sufficient dimensions to drain the thirteen miles of the horse-shoe bend, and the securing of the gold in the channel will then, of course, be an easy matter. The tunnel will be eleven thousand six hundred feet in length, and will be a little larger than the ordinary railway tunnel. It will have a fall of fifty-two feet and nine inches to the mile, with a capacity of discharging sixty-eight hundred and twenty miner's inches of water per second. At the highest portion of the divide the level of the tunnel will be fifteen hundred feet from the surface. The formation of this divide is mineral in character, consisting of strata of slate, porpyhry and diorite. At Hamilton bar, where the water will be taken out, a dam will be constructed, the lower portion of which will be of masonry. Along these thirteen miles, several small creeks run into the river, and, by means of ditches along the banks of the main stream, an abundance of water can be obtained, and the gravel, which is probably from fifteen to thirty feet deep, can easily be washed by the most improved methods known in placer mining. By the well known process of fluming, great fortunes have been made in the neighborhood of Big bend in years past. The works, however, could only be prosecuted during the dry season, as the floods always swept away the works. With a tunnel, of course, this trouble will be obviated. At the Cape claim, from three thousand four hundred feet of the river, by wing-dams and a flume, in forty-two days, $680,000 was taken out, with only one-third of the claim worked, when the season closed. Another attempt to flume the whole of Feather river was frustrated by the early rains, which swept the whole fabric away. Judging from what has been taken out, old miners estimate that thirteen miles of the river, at Big bend, contain about $150,000,000. Of course to reach it requires the best engineering skill and an outlay of at least $4,000,000 before substantial results can be achieved. Waldemar Allstrom, the financial head of the enterprise, feels competent to grapple with the undertaking. By taking up the water right and running the tunnel, the managers of the tunnel will get an extensive right, which they may hereafter turn into a source of revenue for irrigating. When the bed of the river is worked out, it may be that irrigating ditches will be constructed, and the waste scattered through dry regions in the Sacramento valley where it will find sale, and become a source of permanent revenue.

Valparaiso Messenger: Daniel O'Brien of Adams County, was recently sent to the penitentiary for sixty days for stealing bread to stay the pangs of hunger. If O'Brien had stolen a cool hundred thousand dollars he could have compromised the matter at fifty cents on the dollar.

Private Dalzel, of Ohio, favors Gen. Benjamin Harrison for Senator from Indiana, not because that he has any feelings against Chairman New, but because Benjamin is an Ohio product.

Glass Textile Fabric.

We learn from our exchanges—and of course they know—that a certain glass manufacturing establishment in Pittsburgh, Pa., is producing a very superior article of woven glass fabric. The agent in this city—name not given—is reported to have said: "We can duplicate in glass any costume, and can make it just as brilliant in color, elaborate in finish, perfect in fit, and equal in its smallest details, even to the buttons on the original. The fabric is very strong, cannot be ripped or torn, and can be sold at a less price than linen, cotton or silk, or other fabric imitated. It is also very warm, easy fitting, and comfortable whether worn as dress, shawl, or other garment in ordinary clothing."

The account states that somebody—we suppose the same up-town party—exhibited a table-cloth "seven feet square," composed entirely of glass "in variegated colors, with ornamental border and fringed edges."

A "representative of the firm"—the glass blowers of Pittsburgh—we are told, stated that "they can spin 250 fine threads, each ten miles in length, in one minute." Again, "it can be washed and ironed like the ordinary table-cloth." What other wonders are yet to be revealed we are not informed, but hope to hear more soon regarding this great discovery.

We have read, years ago, of a very elegant dress presented to Queen Victoria, in which particles of glass had been dexterously interwoven, but nothing was said about "washing and ironing," and we are under the impression that her Britanic majesty was not deeply impressed with the elegance or utility of the garment. We are certain, however, that very little was said about it after its presentation.

In the present instance we think that Messrs. Atterbury & Co., of Pittsburgh, who are the discoverers alluded to, have suffered badly from either the reporters or their agents. We have before us a copy of the Commercial Gazette of the smoky city, containing a description of the "crystalline cloth," but no such extravagant encomiums as have been used in our city papers.

The Commercial says nothing about the fabulous spinning of 250 threads of glass, "each ten miles long, in a minute." Though the account may not have been written by an expert, it furnishes no ground for such silly nonsense. Though the transparency of the New York reporter shocks us, we must confess that he is a good glass blower.

AN INNOCENT CONVICT.

Sentence to a Four Years' Term for a Crime of Which he was not Guilty.

Special to the Enquirer.

LOGANSPORT, IND., Dec. 29.—About two years ago two peddlers of Wabash county, named, respectively, Edward Murphy and Wm. D. Fogarty, were tried and convicted in this county for the rape of a woman in Jefferson township. Every circumstance seemed to point out their guilt, and notwithstanding the earnest protestations of innocence made by Fogarty the public and the court set him and his partner down as guilty and worthy of prison cells. Accordingly they were sentenced to four years' imprisonment, and without much delay were bustled off to the Michigan City prison.

A short time ago Fogarty took sick, and after lingering a few days died. While he was lying on his deathbed in the prison Murphy went to him and acknowledged having committed the rape and begged the dying man's pardon for taking the infamous part he had in the conviction of Fogarty. This scene is described as very pathetic, but the confession came too late, Fogarty living only a short time thereafter.

The deceased was buried in the family cemetery at Zyamesville, Wabash county, and he is not the first person who has worn the prison garb and finally lost his life by reason of having been convicted of a crime of which he was entirely innocent. Murphy's action in not testifying during the trial of the innocence of Fogarty is most infamous, and the only explanation given of it is in the principle that "misery loves company."

A New York lady, who lately became a widow, has received a visit from a former poor tenant who said that eleven years ago she had moved out of a house belonging to this lady's husband, leaving $5 owing to him. She could not afford to pay it at once but would do so by installments.

Subscribe for the COURIER for 1881.

Wabash Courier: In a swamp near Rochester, on Thursday of last week, a large tusk was exhumed. It was three feet in length, eighteen inches in circumference and weighed twenty-nine pounds.

NOTICE TO HEIRS OF PETITION TO SELL REAL ESTATE.

State of Indiana, DeKalb county—In the DeKalb circuit court.

Notice is hereby given, that Malinda Kessler, administratrix of the estate of Eli Kessler, deceased, has filed a petition to sell the real estate of the decedent, the personal being insufficient to pay his debts, and that said petition will be heard at the next term of said court.

Attest: JNO. W. BAXTER, Clerk.

December 20, 1880. 34-3w.

Notice of Administration.

Notice is hereby given that the undersigned has been appointed by the judge of the DeKalb circuit court of the state of Indiana, administrator of the estate of Wm. Wyatt, deceased, late of said county. Said estate is supposed to be insolvent. ELMOS Y. WYATT, Administrator.

32,3t

ESTRAY NOTICE.

Taken up by Dr. Henry Lahman, at Fairfield Center, DeKalb county, Indiana, an estray, described as follows:

"A white cow with yellow skin, long tail right ear partly torn off, has long smooth horns, about six years old, and will weigh about 800 pounds, appraised and reported to Christian Smith, justice of the peace of Fairfield township, December 13, 1880."

Dated this 18th day of December, 1880.

JOHN W. BAXTER, Clerk.

Fruit House Prices

—FOR—

Christmas and New Year.

GREAT DROP ON

Sugar, Coffee, Prunes, Teas, Etc.

All SUGARS reduced 1 cent per pound.
All COFFEES reduced 2 cents per pound.
Turkish PRUNES reduced 4 cents per pound.
TEAS reduced 10 cents per pound.
And for the Holiday trade we have

Toys, Toy Candies, French Candies, German Toys Christmas-Tree Candies, and New-Year Gifts of every Description.

Santa Claus in all His Glory.

SUGARS REDUCED 1 1-2C PER POUND.

Crushed	10c	Coffee A	9
Powdered Sugar	10c	Coffee C	8
Granulated	10c	Brown Sugar	7

COFFEES REDUCED 2C PER POUND.

Choice Rio	14c	Roasted Rio	18c
Best Rio	16c	Best	20c
Old Government Java	28c	This is the lowest coffee has sold since [illegible]

TEAS DOWN 10C PER POUND.

Our tea trade is simply immense No secret about it—just the same rule as in Sugars, selling at a small profit, and purchasing direct of the importer; we therefore save the profits of the speculator and wholesale merchant. This profit our customers get the benefit of, and it is from 10c to 15c per pound.

Young Hyson	25c	Good Young Hyson	40c	Best Young Hyson	60c
Imperial	40c	Good Imperial	50c	Best Imperial	60c
Gunpowder	40c	Good Gunpowder	50c	Best Gunpowder	60c
Oolong Black Tea	30c	Good [illegible]	40c	Best Oolong	[illegible]
Uncalendered Japan	30c	Good Japan	40c	Best Japan	[illegible]

All our Teas, even the second qualities, warranted to give satisfaction, and the best can't be beat. Our 60c Tea is equal to any dollar tea sold elsewhere.

Christmas and New Year Goods.

Santa Claus Toys, Christmas Tree Candles and a thousand other things for the holidays, such as Bears Lions, Leopards Cats, Dogs, Monkeys, Wagons, Hose Carts, Soldiers, Drums, Vases, Albums, Fancy Candies, French Candies, Fruit Candies, Stick Candies 12½c per lb.; French Candies, 15c per pound; Fruit Candies, 20c and 25c per pound, etc., etc.

Fresh Oysters down 5 cents Per Can.

XXX	14c	Family	20c	S a W	25c	Select Frying	30c

Tobacco of All Kinds.

No 1 Fine Cut	75c	Good Fine Cut	40c
Choice Fine Cut	60c	Good Plug Tobacco	40c
Choice Plug Tobacco	50c	Durham	45c
Best No. 1	60c	Uncle Ned	30c
Smoking	25c

Fish Oil, 70c; Neats Foot Oil 70c; Machine Oil, 25c and 35c; Headlight Oil, 20c.

Syrups, Molasses and Maple Syrup.

Extra Golden Syrup, per gallon	45c	Maple Syrup	[illegible]
White Sugar Loaf Drips	60c	Best New Orleans	[illegible]

FOR CHRISTMAS CAKE.

Citron, per pound	35c	Orange and Lemon Peel	20c	Shelled Almonds	[illegible]

Nuts of all kinds and best Turkish Prunes.

Liquors, Wines Whiskies Scotch Ale, Dublin and London Porter.

Good, new Whisky, per gallon	$1 00	California wine	[illegible]
Whisky, one year old	1 25	New England Rum	1 50
Whisky, two years old	1 40	Brandy	[illegible]
Whisky, three years old, '76	2 50	Scotch Ale, per bottle	[illegible]
Sherry Wine	1 25	London Porter	[illegible]
Port Wine, per gallon	1 25	Doublin Stout	15

Fish, Meats, Pork, Lard, Bacon, Spices, &c.

25 Cents on the Dollar you can save at least by purchasing at the

FORT WAYNE FRUIT HOUSE,
FORT WAYNE, INDIANA.

1850. PIONEER 1881

Hardware Store.

Headquarter for Stoves!

The Celebrated Buffalo N. Y. Stoves have been sold in this house for 25 years. A full stock alway on hand.

—A full line of—

BUILDING HARDWARE and SHELF GOODS,
Wagon and Buggy Mterial,
White Lead, Paints, Oils and Varnishe
Table and Pocket Cutlery,
Silver-Plated Knives and Forks and Spoons,
Granite Iron-Ware,
Oliver Chilled and Bryan Plows.
FARMING IMPLEMENTS
BLACKSMITHS' MATERIALS,
Buffalo Scales, Sash & Doors,
WOOD AND IRON PUMPS, & DRIVE-WELL FIXTURES
All at prices to suit the times.
Call at the old stand when you want bargains.
JOHN L. DAVIS, Proprietor.

ON THE EVE OF THE WEDDING.

O love, before we part to-night,
Before the last "I will" is spoken—
Before the ring has circled my hand,
Of pure, true, endless love the token—
Before the church with holy rite
Their blessing on our love has given,
Look straight into my eyes with yours,
And answer me in sight of Heaven.

Is there within your heart of hearts
One lingering shadow of regret—
One thought that you have chosen ill?
Oh! speak—'tis not too late even yet.
Is there in all this world of ours
One you have ever known or seen,
Whom, if you had earlier seen or known,
You would have crowned your chosen queen?

Is there? I pray you tell me now,
And I will hold you bound no more.
I will not flinch to hear the truth,
It could not be so sad, so sore,
To know it now, as it would be
If by and by a shadow fell
Upon the sunshine of our home;
So, if you ever loved me—tell.

I'd hold you pure from blame, dear love,
And I would leave you free as air,
To woo and win that happier one;
All this for your dear sake I'd bear.
I will not say how I would pray
That God might have you in His care;
That would be easy—when I think
Of you, my heart is all one prayer.

But could I join her name with yours,
And call down blessing from above
On her who had robbed me of my all—
My life—my light—my only love?
Yes! even that I'd try to do;
Although my lonely heart should break,
I'd try to say, "God bless her!" too,
Through blinding tears for your sweet sake.

I'm looking up into your eyes;
But, though my own with tears are dim,
I read that in their true, clear depths,
Which tells me, "You may trust in him."
I will—I will!—It needs no words,
Though yours are flowing warm and fast,
And eloquent with truth and love;
Forgive my doubts—they are the last!
—Chambers' Journal.

FOUND—A DIAMOND RING.

I saw it kicked by the careless balmoral of a jaunty nurse. I saw a fat morsel of humanity make for it with a hey! broken into diverse hey-ea-eys by pudgy trotting, and I stopped and secured it, thereby causing the fat one to pull up short, stare at me with two black currants set in a dreary expanse of dough, insert a dumpy thumb in an orifice of the same expanse, and trot back again with that stolid resignation under disappointment which is the peculiar attribute of the London infantile population.

Having ascertained the nature of my prize, I proceeded to meditate on the proper course to pursue, which meditation resulted in the following advertisement:

FOUND.—This evening, Wednesday, in Regent's Park, nearly opposite the New College, a valuable diamond ring. The owner may recover it by calling at No. 10 Winton place, etc.

Before noon, on the following day, I was making my most courteous bow to a venerable-looking old gentleman, whose white face and benevolent smile added a double charm to the grace with which he stepped forward, and, waiving ceremony, extended his hand, saying:

"You have taken a great weight from my mind, my young friend, and must allow me to thank you."

The insinuating delicacy of the adjective (I am not more than 45) was, perhaps, not without its effect. I accepted the proffered pledge of amity in respectful silence.

"A young man," continued the patriarch, "may possibly find it difficult to understand how the loss of a trinket can be the source of positive suffering to an old one; but—I am alluding to my lost ring—there are associations connected with it which—ahem! This is childish; you will excuse my emotion."

I bowed profoundly in the presence of his natural emotion.

"I have passed some hours of sleeplessness and distress, from which you have been the means of relieving me; I feel deeply indebted to you. There remains nothing now but to reimburse you for—"

"Excuse me, sir," I stammered, rather hurriedly, "but, if the ring is yours, you can undoubtedly describe its armorial bearings."

"Armorial bearings, sir! It was a diamond ring."

"Certainly."

"A plain diamond ring," repeated the old gentleman, sternly. "Do not attempt to play tricks on me, young man. I will point out to you directly—"

"I beg your pardon," said I, drawing back from the outstretched hand, "but, as the ring in my possession is surely engraved with a crest and motto, I conclude it cannot be the one you are in search of."

The old gentleman eyed me for a moment keenly.

"I am afraid you are right," he sighed, in a tone of deep dejection; "I must seek further. Alas! what a melancholy termination of my hopeful journey."

"Speed the parting, welcome the coming guest," is a very good motto. I made no attempt to detain my venerable friend; but as he turned toward the door I am certain I saw, beneath the silver hairs, a lock of dark and shining brown.

My next visitor was a lady, extensively got up, of imposing height and carriage, rouged, scented, spectacled.

"We meet under singular circumstances," began this lady, with a condescending haughtiness; "I am the principal of a college for young ladies."

With a deferential bow at the honor done me, I begged to know what had procured it.

"In the hours of recreation we are accustomed to promenade in the park—a delightful spot, so suggestive of the blushing country. During our ramble yesterday a young lady under my charge was so unfortunate as to lose her ring. You, sir, are the fortunate finder."

"I certainly did, madam, pick up a ring, but—"

"Ah, how grateful my pupil will be at beholding it again!" exclaimed the teacher of youth, clasping her hands ecstatically.

"Describe it."

"Describe it! A diamond ring, handsome and massive, but plain."

"And the crest?"

"The crest! Ah, that my young charge were with me! Stupid to have forgotten. The crest of the Deloraines. It is a lion, passant or—? No, I am wrong. Unfortunate that she should be too unwell to accompany me. But it is immaterial; I will take it for her inspection; she will recognize it immediately."

"I fear, madam, that I should scarcely be justified—"

"Sir!"

"I feel it my duty," I said, firmly, "under the circumstances, to take every precaution against mistakes. I trust the young lady is not too seriously indisposed to give you the necessary information."

"Very well, sir. Exceedingly well, sir. I fancied—yes, actually fancied—that I was speaking to a gentleman. You will find, sir, that the lady principal of a female college is not to be insulted with impunity. Good morning."

Very harrowing this. I am scarcely recovered from my lady governess, when there is a dash of wheels to the door, and a young fellow, flinging the reins to a groom in livery, springs up the steps to the door-bell.

"Oh, dash it!" he begins, breathing out a volume of stale tobacco, "I beg your pardon, and that, but the old woman—dash it! that's my mother—told me I should find my ring here; so I ordered out the vessel and the cats and spun along like ninepence for it."

"I shall be very glad to restore the ring I was so unfortunate to find when I can discover its owner."

"Discover! dash it! didn't I tell you it's mine? I say, I wish you wouldn't be so precious slow—I don't want the cats to catch cold—I've just had 'em shampooed, y' know, napthaed, and that."

"What sort of a ring was yours?"

"What sort? Oh, come, as if you didn't know—that's good."

I intimated that I should be glad to find out if he knew.

"Not know my own ring, eh! I know it's worth a couple of ponies. Come, let's hear the damage and I'll stump up."

"I cannot give up the ring unless you describe it."

"O, dash it! don't chaff a fellow now. I don't care a hap about the thing, only it belonged to some defunct party, and the governor would cut up so deuced rough. I've got heaps of 'em. Come, I'll swap you any one of these because of governor."

I respectfully declined the proposal.

"Well, dash it," explained the young fellow, as though struck with a sudden idea, "what a couple of muffs we are! I could tell you in a minute if it's mine, dash it!"

I replied that I was very sorry that I could not oblige him, and, adding that he had better obtain an exact description of the thing from his governor, I recommended him not to keep the cats longer in the cold.

Mem. I am getting exceedingly tired of my treasure-trove. I retire to my room with a view of dressing to go out. I am informed that a lady wishes to see me, and I am afraid my mental calculation was not complimentary to the lady in question.

A tall, graceful figure, draped in heavy mourning, rises at my entrance. She opens the negotiation in some confusion, turning away her face. She has come to me in the hope of regaining a ring, carelessly lost, the parting gift of a fond father to her brother and herself.

My eyes rested on the crape about her dress—on her pale, beautiful face, from which the blush of confusion and timidity had faded. Deferentially I request her to describe it.

"A large diamond, handsome," she believed, "but valuable to her for far other reasons."

"But," I said, gently, "chased on the gold inside the ring there is—"

"A crest; I am aware of it," she answered, sadly, "but I know nothing of heraldry, and have never given it more than a second glance. My brother is dying, sir," she said, lifting up her pale face to mine. "Only this morning he missed the ring from my finger, uneasily; we were alone in the world; it is the only relic left of one so lately taken from us; how can I tell him it is lost?"

"I am sorry to pain you," I said, trying to be firm, "but it would be more satisfactory for all parties, and cause but little delay, if you could obtain the description from your brother."

Without a word she turned away; the mournful resignation of her air and attitude touched me, and as she turned I saw a tear roll silently down and fall upon the hand stretched to the door-handle. I couldn't stand it.

"Stop," I exclaimed, "one moment. I am sure—I feel certain—I may trust you. You will tell me—"

I take the ring from its security; I hold it out timidly for the blue eyes to examine.

I see yet the look of delight overspread her fine features—I see the expression of almost childish pleasure in her eyes as she looked up at me and clasped her hands and cried out: "The ring, the ring! O, Alfred, my dear brother!"

Her hand was upon it; such a tremulous, happy eagerness in her glance; such a caressing fondness in her way of fingering it. How pretty she was.

"My dear child (I am 45), it gives me sincere pleasure—" Then I stammered; then I sprang after her. "At least you will leave your address with me."

"Ah, sir," she says, sadly, handing me the card on which she had been penciling, "some day you will be sorry for this. You do not trust me."

Certainly I am a brute. The accent of reproach in her voice haunts me; the sorrowful glance of her eye—how pretty she is! I sit down to my breakfast in the morning, half inclined to call at the address given, and apologize for my heathenish distrust.

How delightful to see her in her own peculiar atmosphere, ministering to the sick brother who is all she has in the world; to look upon, if one cannot enjoy, the beautiful tenderness of a gentle sister to an afflicted brother.

But my letters wait, and I toy with them. This is a hand I know. What does Fred want, I wonder? I tear it open! I read:

DEAR JACK: What a queer chance if you have stumbled upon my ring. I was obliged to run down to Rumford late last evening, and never missed it till we slackened at Ilford. A pretty taking I've been in. If it's mine, the crest is inside. You know it—a mailed hand holding a lance, and the motto: "Armed at all points." Verily, truth is stranger than fiction. Keep it for me. FRED FYNING.

Idiot! Gull! It is quite useless to call myself names. It is almost superfluous to add that when I called at a certain address in Easton Square, to inquire for Miss Lucy Hamilton, the lady was not to be found. Probably the "dear Alfred" had required speedy change of air; probably brother and sister were even embracing in rapturous gratitude over the relic of one lost to them so lately. Was that dear one not lost, but transformed? Had the silver-haired patriarch of the first visit changed to the dashing buck of the third? And was the virtuous teacher of youth only the tender sister in masquerade? On my word, I believe so; I dare say they are enjoying the joke. Possibly it is a dodge often repeated. But what am I to say to Fred?

HUMORS OF THE DAY.

THE man who drinks 'alf an' 'alf gets of'en off.

IT is the flat who loves to have others flatter him.

MANY a broth of a boy has been reduced to a supe at the theatre.

A MAN out in Nebraska died the other day while blowing his nose. It was a fatal blow.

YOU can tell when a reporter is going to make a point by the way he sharpens his pencil.

TO remove superfluous hair—Send your well filled mattress to be done over by a cheap upholsterer.

THE book agent knows he is solid when he wipes his feet on a door mat in which the word "Welcome" is woven.

OUT in the mines they shoot a man who refuses to drink his soup straight from the plate.—Elmira Free Press.

A DISFIGURED man feels bad, of course, about being marked for life; but when he is marked for death he must feel worse.

AN exchange says: "Streams all over the county are running dry." This is a canard. When a stream is dry it can't run.

A LITTLE girl who was much petted said: "I like sitting on gentlemen's knees better than on ladies'; don't you, ma."

OF forty cases on the docket of the Fayette County (Texas) District Court, nineteen are for divorce. Only twenty-one murders!

WHEN Brutus and Cassius were boys the girls used to say that Brute was such a nice fellow, but they preferred Cash. The girls haven't changed one bit.

"WILL you take 'em on the half shell?" asked the agreeable oyster opener. "No," said the stranger, regardless of expense, "whole shell or nothing."

INDIGNATION will fill the breast of every artist when we state that two men were arrested in a lumber yard the other day because they were suspected of a design on wood.

MISTRESS—"Mary, this venerable goose is tough enough to break one's teeth." Maid—"Yes'm; didn't you tell me, ma'am, that you wanted it for a piece de resistance?"

OF a miserly man who died of softening of the brain, a local paper said: "His head gave way, but his hand never did. His brain softened but his heart couldn't."

A PROVIDENCE paper says a prominent citizen of New Hampshire died "of inflammation of the bowels, aged forty-eight years." Pretty old inflammation, we should say.

Two children in the Tuileries were extolling the qualities of their respective papas. "Mine is as tall as the garden wall," said one. "My papa can see over the garden wall." "And mine, too, when he has his hat on."

A WITNESS under cross-examination, who had been tortured by a lawyer for several hours, at last asked for a glass of water. "There," said the Judge, "I think you'd better let the witness go now, as you have pumped him dry."

NATIVE Alaskan ladies of fashion wear entire suits made of sealskin, drink whisky and eat whale's blubber; and they are not a bit stuck up about it, either. There is a moral concealed in the business end of this paragraph.

THE late Rev. Dr. Symington, not feeling well one Sunday morning, said to his beadle, who was a "character:" "Man Robert, I wish you would preach for me to-day." "I canna do that," promptly replied Robert, "but I often pray for you."

"OLD woman, how do you sell beets?" asked a loafer of an old vegetable woman in the market, and she replied: "I just tell 'em I'll trust 'em, and then give 'em stuff that looks all right and ain't good for nothing. They don't like the sell either."

BETSY BOBBITT, when she was elected a member of the Shakespeare Club, made a sensation. The part of "Juliet" being allotted to her, she got along very well till she came to the balcony scene, when she paused a moment thoughtfully before the words "Hist! Romeo, hist!" and then, to the consternation of the audience, pronounced the "I" broad, shouting, "Histe! Romeo! Histe!"

NURSE (to professional friend making a call)—"Well, nuss,' sez he, 'igh any 'orty like, he sez. 'Wot do you think?' says he. 'Doctor' I sez, 'quite differenshal,' I sez, 'I'm quite of your opinion,' I sez. 'And I'm the same way of thinking, nuss,' sez he. And so we settles it."—Professional friend (much interested.) "Lor'! And wot was his opinion, now?" Nurse—"Bless yer 'art, my dear crestur, in course he never hadn't given none!"

The Inventor of the Bell Rope On Trains.

The late Captain Ayres, of Patterson, N. J., was the inventor of the present bell rope system on railroads. When he commenced running on the New York and Erie Railroad the locomotive had no cab for the engineer—nothing but a framework. There was no way to go over the cars or for the engineer to communicate with the conductor when the train was in motion. In those days, instead of the conductor running the train, as at present, the engineer had entire charge, and the conductor was a mere collector of fares and tickets. In 1842 Ayres inaugurated a system of signals by a cord running over the cars to the engine, where it was attached to a stick of wood. Ayres' engineer, a Dutchman named Hagill, resented the innovation, cut the stick loose, and the conductor and engineer had a fight at Turner's over the matter, Ayres whipping his engineer badly, and thereafter conductors, and not engineers, had charge of trains. Soon after the bell rope and gong went into general use.—Paterson (N. J.) Press.

THE aim of education should be to teach us how to think, rather than what to think; rather to improve our minds, so as to enable us to think for ourselves than to load the memory with thoughts of other men.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR.

IF we add a pint of pure water to a pint of impure water, we dilute the impure water, and it is made that much the more pure. If we add a dozen pints of pure water to it, we dilute it still more, and bring it nearer purity yet; but if we add a certain number more, instead of the impurity becoming diluted, it is absolutely destroyed, and Dr. Letherby, of London, says that the water is perfectly pure. It is the same way with impure air. A certain quantity of pure air added to it, dilutes the bad air and makes it less noxious, while if a certain quantity more is added, the impurity of the air is destroyed. As is the case with impure water. Any person can judge of this from the good effect of much pure air upon bad air.

THE following hints concerning the use of tea may prove useful: 1. Whosoever uses tea should do so in great moderation. 2. It should form a part of the meal, but never be taken before eating, between meals, or on an empty stomach, as it is too frequently done. 3. The best time to take tea is after a hearty meal. 4. Those who suffer with weak nerves should never take it at all. 5. Those who are troubled with inability to sleep nights should not use tea, or, if they do, take it in the morning. 6. Brain-workers should never goad on their brains to overwork on the stimulus of tea. 7. Children and the young should never use tea. 8. The overworked and underfed should never use tea. 9. Tea should never be drunk very strong. 10. It is better with considerable milk and sugar. 11. Its use should at once be abandoned when harm comes from it. 12. Multitudes of diseases come from the excessive use of tea, and for this reason those who cannot use it without going to excess should not use it at all.

DR. DAY says in a late lecture: Whatever be the plan of treatment decided upon, rest is the first principle to inculcate in very severe headache. Rest, which the busy man and anxious mother cannot obtain so long as they can manage to keep about, is one of the first remedies for every headache, and we should never cease to enforce it. The brain, when excited, as much needs quiet and repose as a fractured limb or an inflamed eye; it is obvious that the chances of shortening the seizure and arresting the pain will depend on our power to have this carried out actually. It is a practical lesson to keep steadily in view in that there may lurk behind a simple headache some lesion of unknown magnitude, which may remain stationary if quietude can be maintained. There is a point worth attending to in the treatment of all headaches. It is that the head be elevated at night, and the pillow hard; for if it be soft the head sinks into it and becomes hot, which, with some people, is enough to provoke an attack in the morning if sleep has been long and heavy.

EXCEPT a Turkish bath, nothing is more efficacious in the sore throat of children or adults than a wet compress to the throat. Double a towel two or three times, so as to make a pad that will fit snugly under the chin and over the throat, and let it extend around from ear to ear. Then bind a thickly-folded towel over the wet pad, having the towel wide enough to overlap the edges of the pad. It is best to pass this outer covering over the head, and not around the neck after the style of a cravat, the object being to exclude the air so as to keep up a perspiration over the diseased parts. But if the soreness is low down on the throat, the outside towel may be passed around the neck; yet, when this is done, it is much more difficult to exclude the air. The wet compress may be put on cold or warm; but, when cold, it soon becomes warm from the heat of the skin, and is really a warm vapor bath. When the pad is taken off, the throat should be washed in cold water to close the pores, and then well dried with a towel. This is applicable to croup and to all kinds of sore throats, and will be found more cleanly and equally as efficient as grandmother's stocking filled with ashes.

An Unpopular Man.

Bill collectors, who are only doing their duty and trying to make other men become honest and pay their just debts, have a hard time of it. Everybody thinks it is his right to snub the bill collector. Poor fellow! he is perpetually trying to catch sight of the man who has just gone round the corner, who will be back in five minutes, so the clerk says, but who never comes back until the old bill collector has gone. It is on record that by some strange fatuity of fortune a collector once found his debtor at home. Such a circumstance nearly took his breath away, for, like the Wandering Jew, he had been flying from pillar to post for nearly a year, and had never once found the right man in the right place; but he took out his battered wallet and presented the account, yellow with age, and humbly asked for a settlement. "You must call again," was the stern, imperative demand of the man, who never intended to have money enough to pay that bill. The victim with the threadbare clothes and the worn-out shoes suggested that it was not easy to go up three flights of stairs three times a day in order to find the ominous word "out" on the office door. "Well," said the haughty debtor, "perhaps you would like to have me rent a room on the first floor for the sake of my creditors." The old bill collector uttered a deep sigh, put his wallet back into his pocket, and walked into a back alley where his home was, while the jaunty debtor sprang into his landau and went up to the park for a drive. Such is life.

Sea Voyages for Invalids.

The rapid traveling of large steam vessels is a disadvantage for those who go to sea for the sake of protracted navigation. They reach their destination too soon, and the changes of climate are too rapid. In the voyage to Australia, for instance, a few days after the departure from England, warm weather is reached; then hot weather, when the tropic has been passed; moist, as well as hot weather, when the equatorial calms have been reached. As the vessel arrives near the southern limit of its navigation, in the Pacific ocean, the temperature again becomes cold—Australia being reached in about forty-five days. All these extreme changes within so short a period are very trying to those who are really ill, and often do them more harm than the pure sea air can do them good. Australia, also, is reached in the middle of their summer; and at Melbourne and Sydney, where most invalids go, it is too hot. In Tasmania and New Zealand the climate is more like that of our own English summer, and should, consequently, be preferred. These long sea journeys, however, seem more suited to those who belong to the second category—to the tired and the weary—than to the really ill. The usual period for departure is October or November.—British Medical Journal.

Artemus Ward.

When, in 1863, Ward conceived the idea of making a lecture tour through California—a great undertaking in those days—he engaged the writer to accompany him as an agent, offering a salary that made the insignificant pay of a Cleveland "local" blush with shame. Not knowing that lecturers, and especially humorists, have a way of engaging every man as agent who professes a desire to travel, I made all preparations to go, resigned my situation, and anxiously awaited my summons.

As I waited various articles were sold to pay expenses. I ate my stove, I remember; I think I drank up my bureau. At length, when nearly everything had gone, I learned that Ward had gone, too, taking another agent. I was naturally incensed, and resolved that there would be a severe settlement when next we met. I rehearsed the anticipated scene frequently, and resolved just how I would go to work and annihilate him.

Our meeting was in New York in July, 1864. I had heard of his return from California, and prepared to empty the vials of my wrath upon his head.

My slumbering indignation flamed up at once. I thought of the cooking-stove I had devoured, and the various articles of household furniture I drank up, and was about to go for him, when Ward suddenly rushed forward and, grasping me warmly by the hand, exclaimed: "Why, Gris, old boy, how are you? When did you get back from California?"

As I looked at him, speechless with amazement, he continued: "They told me you came home 'around the Horn,' but I never knew you to go around a horn yet—join me."

Now Ward had a very persuasive way of locking his arm in with another's, and in a momentary fit of weakness I went along.

"Ward!" said I sternly, "I owe you a licking on account of that California agency business, but will put it off until we drink."

"Put it off as long as you want to," replied Ward, in a tone of generous accommodation, as though I was speaking about returning him a loan. "If you owe me a licking pay me when you get ready. I am in no hurry. Don't care if you never pay it."

Numerous were the unavailing efforts that I made to bring Ward to a settlement. When I would commence, "Now, Artemus, how about that California business?" he would interrupt—"Oh, never mind that whipping. No hurry at all. Send it through the mail—or telegraph it. Let's drink."

I have got even, however, in a measure—I have engaged a number of agents myself.—A. M. Griswold.

Putting Up Sardines.

The little town of Eastport, Me., situated as it is at the most eastern extremity of the United States, and frequently called the "jumping off place," has, within the last few years, become the center of quite an industry—the putting up of sardines. Extensive factories have been built on most of the many wharves out into Passamaquoddy bay, and from small beginnings the putting up of these little fish has attained large proportions.

The fish used are very small herrings, which a few years ago were considered almost worthless, being used only for pomace. They are very abundant at certain seasons of the year, and are caught in large weirs, constructed for the purpose, along the shore of the neighboring islands. The weirs somewhat resemble a rustic fence extending out into the water. The fish swimming in with the tide are left as the tide falls below the weir, and are taken by means of dip-nets, by men who go into the weirs in boats for that purpose. Sometimes a hundred hogsheads of fish are taken at one time.

On reaching the factory the fish go through a process of drying, and then, when partially fried in olive oil, are put up in small tin boxes bearing a French brand, and cannot be distinguished in appearance from the imported article. Thousands of these boxes are put up in a day, almost a thousand persons being employed in the business. These factories are controlled by New York firms.

There are, too, other ways of preparing these fish. One variety resembling very much the potted herring, and prepared with mustard, are called marines, and find a ready sale in the Western markets. During the winter great quantities of herring, which are too large to put up in this manner, are frozen, and are shipped in barrels to all parts of the country.

Society Events in Colorado.

The engagement between Pole-Cat Jim and Mush-and-Milk Suze, the Denver Tribune says, has terminated. Parental opposition on part of the bride.

The Colorow-Shavana nuptials will be consummated as soon as Granny Meacham, the bride's guardian, returns from Denver.

Fat Charlie has proposed and been accepted by Flap-Jack Sal. The wedding will take place in the gulch below the old Government saw-mill.

The german tendered by Mrs. Colorow on Wednesday last was the event of the season. Miss Plumbago Cook wore a handsome plum-colored overdress, with jacket of home-made carpet, large pockets, and beaver ornaments; Miss Sapavanero, seal brown burlaps, made short with two deep plaitings of seamless "A"—very becoming; Miss Unca Sam, blue denim overdress, with lace collar and Government socks—cool but striking; Miss Antelope, stylish gored red flannel, made with train, overdress of sky-blue mosquito bar, with scalloped buttons, hair scrambled, ornaments rare; Mrs. Pill Garlic Mose, demi-trained skirt of three-ply canvas, with jacket of plain corduroy, plentifully supplied with bows of cottonwood bark, looped up with sprays of slippery-elm—perfectly ravishing.

VEGETINE.
The Barks, Roots and Herbs
FROM WHICH VEGETINE IS MADE
In Powder Form,
SOLD FOR
50 Cents a Package.

VEGETINE
For Kidney Complaint and Nervous Debility.

ISLESBORO, ME., Dec. 28, 1877.
MR. STEVENS:
Dear Sir,—I had had a cough for eighteen years, when I commenced taking the Vegetine. I was very low; my system was debilitated by disease. I had the Kidney Complaint, and was very nervous—cough bad, lungs sore. When I had taken one bottle I found it was helping me; it has helped my cough, and it strengthens me. I am now able to do my work. Never have found anything like the Vegetine. I know it is everything it is recommended to be. MRS. A. J. PENDLETON.

Dr. W. ROSS Writes:
Scrofula, Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia, Rheumatism, Weakness.

H. R. STEVENS, Boston:
I have been practicing medicine for twenty-five years, and as a remedy for Scrofula, Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia, Rheumatism, Weakness, and all diseases of the blood, I have never found its equal. I have sold Vegetine for seven years, and have never had one bottle returned. I would heartily recommend it to those in need of a blood purifier. DR. W. ROSS, Druggist,
Sept. 18, 1878. Wilton, Iowa.

Vegetine in Powder Form is sold by all druggists and general stores. If you cannot buy it of them, inclose fifty cents in postage stamps for one package, or one dollar for two packages, and I will send it by return mail.

VEGETINE
PREPARED BY
H. R. STEVENS, Boston, Mass.

HOSTETTER'S
CELEBRATED STOMACH
BITTERS

Sleep, Appetite and Strength
Return when Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is systematically used by a bilious dyspeptic sufferer. Moreover, since the brain sympathizes closely with the stomach and its associate organs, the liver and the bowels, as their derangement is rectified by the action of the Bitters, mental despondency produced by that derangement disappears.
☞ For sale by all Druggists and Dealers generally.

A Superb Picture of the Great American
BI-ASS-POLITI-CUSS
as it appeared when loose in New York recently, is on free exhibition—in the interest of the people—at the office of this paper and at every postoffice in the United States. Call and examine it. You may never have another opportunity and it may do you good.

HOP
BITTERS
NEVER FAIL

If you are a man of business, weakened by the strain of your duties avoid stimulants and use Hop Bitters.

If you are a man of letters toiling over your midnight work, to restore brain nerve and waste, use Hop B.

If you are young and suffering from any indiscretion or dissipation; if you are married or single, old or young, suffering from poor health or languishing on a bed of sickness, rely on Hop Bitters.

Whoever you are, whenever you feel that your system needs cleansing, toning or stimulating, without intoxicating, take Hop Bitters.

Thousands die annually from some form of Kidney disease that might have been prevented by a timely use of Hop Bitters.

Have you dyspepsia, kidney or urinary complaint, disease of the stomach, bowels, blood, liver or nerves? You will be cured if you use Hop Bitters.

If you are simply weak and low spirited, try it! It may save your life. It has saved hundreds.

D. I. C. is an absolute and irresistible cure for drunkenness, use of opium, tobacco, or narcotics.

Sold by druggists. Send for Circular.
HOP BITTERS MFG. CO.,
Rochester, N. Y.
& Toronto, Ont.

THE NEWSPAPER.
ABLE,
NEWSY,
GOOD and CHEAP.

WEEKLY COURIER-JOURNAL.
The publishers of the COURIER-JOURNAL (Hon. Henry Watterson, editor,) claim that as a reliable and valuable newspaper it has no superior in this country or in the world. It is able, bright and newsy; contains the strongest editorials, the most complete summary of the news of the world, the best correspondence, full turf and stock reports, market reports, fashion reports, sermons, splendid original stories and novelettes, poetry, departments for children, answers to correspondents, etc., etc.; in a word, everything to make it a delight to the family circle, and invaluable to the man of business, the farmer, the mechanic and the laborer.
Rare inducements in the way of cash commissions and valuable premiums are offered agents, postmasters and club-raisers who send subscriptions to the WEEKLY COURIER-JOURNAL.
Subscribers can secure any one of the leading periodicals of the day, a handsome book, or some other valuable premium for a very small amount of money. Our list of premiums to all subscribers who send us Two Dollars will be found to be worthy of especial attention.
Specimen copies and full descriptive circular sent free on application.
Subscription terms, postage free, are—for Daily, $12; Sunday, $2; Weekly, with premium, $2; without premium, $1.50.
Any one sending four yearly subscribers and six dollars will be entitled to an extra copy of the Weekly Courier-Journal one year, free to any address. Address W. N. HALDEMAN, President Courier-Journal Co., Louisville, Ky.

RED RIVER VALLEY.
2,000,000 Acres
Wheat Lands
best in the World, for sale by the
St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba R.R. CO.
Three dollars per acre allowed the settler for breaking and cultivation. For particulars apply to
D. A. McKINLAY,
Land Commissioner, St. Paul, Minn.

THE COLUMBIAN (Successor to "The Advocate"), a [illegible] Parental Government Paper, devoted to the interests of Education, Wage-Labor and Production. The special purpose of THE COLUMBIAN is to [illegible] the methods of American People that [illegible] Diabolism—the credit system, [illegible] taxation and money [illegible] Big Job [illegible] be done. THE COLUMBIAN is [illegible] illustrated, and sold by every [illegible] postoffice in the land at the uniform price of one cent. Sample copy may be seen at every postoffice.

FACTS FOR THE CURIOUS.

A SCIENTIST says: "The whole globe contains 1,200,000,000 inhabitants. If each man, woman and child could pull with a force of 100 pounds, to move a bar of steel 5,280 feet wide and as many thick, it would require the united efforts of 2,000 such worlds as this."

IN the middle ages cats, once the object of veneration in Egypt, were in France looked upon as satanic agents, and were burned alive. In Paris every St. John's day a number of the abhorred animals were heaped up in baskets and bags in the Place de Grève, to afford an auto-da-fe, the sovereign himself setting fire to the pile.

ACCORDING to the best authorities, the quantity of salt contained in the sea amounts to 400,000,000,000,000 cubic feet, which, if placed in a pile, would form a mass 140 miles long, as many broad, and as many high; or, otherwise disposed, would cover the whole of Europe—islands, seas and all—to the height of the summit of Mont Blanc, which is about 16,000 feet high.

IT is difficult to realize the enormous power of the bright speck, Jupiter, shining so quietly in the sky. A writer has shown that the power which the sun has to put forth to hold Jupiter in his orbit is equal to the combined strength of 170,000,000 bars of solid steel, each one a mile in diameter. Jupiter's pull upon the earth, according to the same authority, is equal to the strength of 23,000,000,000 bars of steel, each of them one foot in diameter. So, if the mere power of gravity were all that was required to make Jupiter's approach dangerous to the earth, evidently he is not lacking in the power. But no one need fear that the sisterhood of worlds which acknowledge the dominion of the sun will prove equally destructive.

HANS BUCHNER, a skillful German experimenter, announces a discovery of great interest and importance in its bearing upon the theory of evolution. He has succeeded in transforming one kind of microscopic fungi, which is a dangerous agent of disease, into another kind of fungi which is perfectly harmless. This remarkable result was reached by a continuous treatment of the fungi for six months, during which time 1,500 generations were produced. He was through this process enabled to transform the bacteria which cause "milzbrand," the dreaded inflammation of the spleen, into the "heupilze," or harmless fungi of hay, and vice versa. He also produced an organism, hitherto unknown, which forms a connecting link between the above-named fungi.

GLOVES have a strange, eventful history. In the third century a glutton named Pithylius never dined without gloves. This enabled him to seize, before his fellow guests, the hot meats with rapidity; and, to prevent his tongue from being burned, he had it incased in a leather sheath. The origin of gloves is uncertain. However, in the eleventh century, the nobles wore gloves, highly ornamented with cameos, rubies, pearls and emeralds. The dignitaries of the Venetian republic wore gloves, heavily embroidered with gold and pearls. Charlemagne was as famous for his splendid gloves as for his walnut wine. Later, Italy and Spain introduced the fashion of wearing gloves, with subjects painted thereon like fans. In the sixteenth and following century, sovereigns accepted presents of gloves, which was more pacific than picking one up when thrown down.

Curious Scene.

A most respectable jury—every one of them a £50 freeholder—was impaneled at Clonmel, Ireland, to try a most important question. During the course of the trial the learned Judge had to retire for half an hour, promising to be back on the expiration of that time. The Judge then retired, and so did the jurors. In some time after, one of the jurors returned, and stated in open court, to an astonished audience, that he had been to a christening, drank the child's health, a speedy uprise to its mother, and that her son might be a much better man than its papa. This caused so much surprise that those who heard it remained silent. He asked a learned counsel to give him the song called "The Low-backed Car." At this request the learned gentleman shook his head. The juror then said, "You won't, won't you? Then I'll do it myself;" and so he did, in excellent style, and concluded amid the bravos of a crowded court. He then made a speech on the duties of a paternal Government, and acquitted himself with equal credit, and was vociferously applauded. He then demanded that the Judge should be sent for; and, this demand not being acceded to by the crier, he stood up and called the learned Judge to come into court, on a fine of £50. This he did three different times, and in the usual way. He then declared that as the Judge did not come he wouldn't wait—he should go back to the christening; and he accordingly left the jury-box, and finally the court. In about half an hour he returned, and, not seeing the Judge on the bench, he commenced singing "Rory O'More," after which he stepped into the jury-box, resuming his seat among his fellows, who appeared quite "glum" at his antics; but he, seeming not to mind the wry faces of his brethren, began to hum a song. He then tried what he could do at the Kent bugle, and succeeded to admiration; but, just as he had concluded a splendid solo, the learned Judge made his appearance at the corner of the bench, where he stood listening, in mute astonishment, to the music of the special juror, who was equally astounded when he heard the cry of "Hats off! Be pleased to keep silence!" In the meantime something was said to the Judge, who good-naturedly adjourned the court for the further hearing of the case until the following morning.

Trees and Moisture.

A report sent us by an undoubted authority on the subject of American forestry proves that since 125 years the necessary moisture of the soil in North America has decreased 7 per cent. every quarter century in consequence of the wanton destruction of woodlands, and that a further continuance of these must most seriously affect the climate of the whole continent, to the great detriment of health as well as the fertility of the soil. That the picture is not overdrawn we can easily prove from the decline of horticultural products. From many States in which but a comparatively few years since peaches were grown on free land this luscious fruit has entirely disappeared, and many other garden products with it. According to the "Report upon Forestry," Southern Indiana, until shortly, had a regular peach crop, while now it is the rule for such crops to fail; almost the same is the case with regard to the far more hardy apples and other fruits. Light frosts in May and June are no longer a rarity; the wheat market was in many places entirely killed by frost; in others from 20 to 40 per cent. was lost. In many States in which, at the commencement of the present century, spring used to happen in February it is now delayed until the end of April, and the growing of wheat has become altogether problematical! An official report from Illinois (July, 1879), on the harvest, prospect, climate, etc., says that the crops had suffered greatly from the want of rains in spring and the continuing cold winds, and the cause of both is referred to the indiscriminate destruction of woodland.—Minneapolis Tribune.

Stockings.

Few of the ancients had any clothing for the lower part of the body, and must have had extreme difficulty in sheltering themselves from the severity of the seasons. The northern nations first had hose or trousers; their stockings were made of pieces of cloth sewed together. We cannot say with certainty in what country the art of knitting originated. France, England, Spain, and Scotland respectively claim this useful discovery. Some believe it originated in Scotland in the sixteenth century, because when the French Stocking-Maker's Guild made choice of a patron saint they selected St. Fiacre, a native of Scotland. On the other hand the invention is attributed to a Spaniard, on the strength of Mazerai, who asserts that silk stockings were worn by Henry II. of France at the marriage of his sister in 1559; but before that Edward VI. had graciously accepted a pair from the merchant prince, Sir Thomas Gresham, who imported them from Spain, the land where they were first manufactured. The story goes that a loyal grandee, the happy possessor of one of the first pairs made in Spain, thought he could not do better than present the novelties to his Queen, and to that end placed them in the hands of the first Minister of the crown, greatly to the discomposure of that modest man, who astonished that innocent-meaning noble by returning him his stockings, and bidding him remember that "the Queen of Spain had no legs." Queen Elizabeth of England, not ashamed to own that she had legs, received a similar gift in a very different manner. In the third year of her reign (1561) her silk woman, Miss Montague, tendered her as a New Year's gift a pair of black silk stockings, the first of the kind made in England. Elizabeth lost no time in putting the gift on her "limbs," and was so pleased with the result that she sent for Miss Montague and inquired where she procured such comfortable foot-gear, and if she could get any more of them. "I made them very carefully of purpose only for your Majesty," replied the silk woman; "and seeing these please you so well I will presently set more in the hank." "Do so," said the Queen; "for, indeed, I like silk stockings so well, because they are pleasant, fine, and so delicate, that henceforth I will wear no more cloth stockings." It is not improbable that she displayed her silk-stockinged feet to the best advantage during her flirtations with Sir Walter Raleigh.

How to Cure Exaggeration.

Some habits are so unconsciously practiced that a movement to mend them is the only way to detect them. The beam in one's own eye is less noticed than the mote in another person's eye.

A family while at the breakfast table one morning pledged to observe the strictest veracity for that day. A member of the family tells the "consequences."

As a first-fruit of the resolve, we asked the one who suggested it:

"What made you so late at breakfast this morning?"

She hesitated, began with "Because I couldn't"—and then, true to her compact, said: "The truth is, I was lazy and didn't hurry, or I might have been down long ago."

Presently one of them remarked that she had been very cold, adding, "I never was so cold in my life."

An inquiring look caused the last speaker to modify her statement instantly with: "Oh, I don't think I was so cold, after all."

A third remark to the effect that "Miss So-and-so was the homeliest girl in the city," was recalled as soon as made, the speaker being compelled to own that Miss So-and-so was only rather plain, instead of being excessively homely.

So it went on throughout the day, causing much merriment, which was good-naturedly accepted by the subjects, and giving rise to constant corrections in the interest of truth.

One thing became more and more surprising, however, to each one of us, and that was the amount of cutting down which our most careless statements demanded under this new law.—Youth's Companion.

A Thought for the Middle-Aged.

It is the solemn thought connected with middle life that life's last business has begun in earnest; and it is then, midway between the cradle and the grave, that a man begins to marvel that he let the day of youth go by so half-enjoyed. It is the pensive autumn feeling; it is the sensation of half sadness that we experience when the longest day of the year is past, and every day that follows is shorter, and the light fainter, and the feeble shadows tell that nature is hastening with gigantic footsteps to her winter grave. So does man look back upon his youth. When the first gray hairs become visible, when the unwelcome truth fastens itself upon the mind that a man is no longer going up hill, but down, and that the sun is always westering, he looks back upon things behind. When we were children we thought as children. But now there lies before us manhood, with its earnest work, and then old age, and then the grave, then home. There is a second youth for man, better and holier than the first, if he will look on and not look back.—F. W. Robertson.

Mr. Weedles and His Girl.

The dress circle was adorned by a dyspeptic-looking girl, with big feet, who had a brown wart on her face and a certain look about her which plainly told that she was fresh from boarding-school. Beside her sat a long, gawky young man, who was from the country, and evidently smitten with the charms of the young lady by his side, upon whom he would ever and anon bestow the most tender glances. During an intermission in the play he turned to her, and, in a voice as tender as a sirloin steak, said:

"D'n't yer think it's awful warm in this 'ere theater, Miss Mary?"

She let fall on him a languid, pitying glance, and then replied:

"Ah! yes, there exists a certain degree of closeness which is deleterious to the comfort of one's physical being; but, my dear Mr. Weedles, you are no doubt perfectly aware of the fact that chemistry teaches us that the exhalations of so many individuals carbonizes the entire atmosphere, vitiating it to a degree which renders it poisonous to the respiratory organs, as well as to the corpuscles in the blood, producing nausea, and in some cases syncope. You can see at a glance, Mr. Weedles, that this is caused by the lack of oxygen."

"Yes, I know 'em, that is, I've read of 'em, but hain't never seen any yet, as I know on; but when Bill Wilkins, at their protracted meeting down on Goose creek, said that the heart was a part of the stomach, I told him it was the derndest lie he ever spoke."

"Oh, dear! how absurd it was in him to make such a statement. Why, don't you know that the palpitation of the viscus generates a subtle electrical force which is the most mysterious, wonderful and startling power which propels the anatomy of the genus homo?"

"I—I have—yes, I've heern tell of it afore, but I don't stick myself up as knowing every thing. I ain't that kind of a man. The folks used to say—and I was powerful proud of it—that I warn't no sloucher on grammer; but won't you have some peanuts, Miss Mary?" and he wiped the cold perspiration from his brow, and trembled with nervousness.

"None, thank you, Mr. Weedles; peanuts have a strange effect on my gastronomical organs."

"I didn't mean to hurt your feelings, Miss Mary, because you recollect before you went off to school that I used to bring you peanuts, and we used to sit astraddle the garden fence and eat them. Don't you remember how your old mother used to say that new peanuts were awful colicky? Them were happy days, Miss Mary," and the humble lover sighed as low as a note on a bass-fiddle.

"Oh, Mr. Weedles!" she said, blushingly, "I want to ask you something. Did you not say on one occasion that I was possessed of a moiety of the divine afflatus, and that you thought I was a being entirely too seraphic and ethereal to exist on this mundane sphere?"

"Miss Mary," said the lover, and his eye flashed and breast heaved, "it's a mean, underhand lie. I never said a word ag'in you in my life, and I'll just be eternally goldurned if I can't just naturally walk the log of any man who tries to scandalize me behind my back. I always said Miss Mary Jones was the sweetest girl in the country, and—"

But the curtain went up, and the rest of the conversation was lost in the crash of the orchestra.

A Gloomy Bridal.

We have heard of some dark scenes, but rarely encountered anything so utterly deficient in sunshine and whitewash as the following. It reads like a yard of crape:

Gloom was upon her countenance and upon his. The man whose holy office it was to unite them in bonds never to be torn asunder, stood like an executioner before the bride and bridegroom, and they—the pair waiting to be blessed—bent down their heads like criminals before him.

In vain might the eye watch around the assembly in search of sunshine upon a single countenance; all was dreary, black—and assistants, as well as attendants, at the ceremony, were alike shrouded in one dark, overshadowing mass of rayless gloom.

Ah, joyful should ever be the linking of young hearts together, and terrible must be the feelings of those around whom the shadows of fate are gathering even at the threshold, which should blaze in all the gorgeous coloring of hope and promise.

Yet the same somber shade, the same gloom of hue, the same depth of darkness, was seated upon every feature. No sudden blushing of the rose, no swift succeeding of the lily, no fitful changes telling of youthful passions and warm, bright hope, were seen in the bride's cheek, but one unvarying shade of funeral gloom possessed the bride, possessed the groom, possessed the preacher—in fact, they were all possessed.

Reader, they were Timbuctoo darkies!

Guilty of Wrong.

Some people have a fashion of confusing excellent remedies with the large mass of "patent medicines," and in this they are guilty of a wrong. There are some advertised remedies fully worth all that is asked for them, and one at least we know of—Hop Bitters. The writer has had occasion to use the Bitters in just such a climate as we have most of the year in Bay City, and has always found them to be first class and reliable, doing all that is claimed for them.—Tribune.

ARKANSIANS are tough, and so are the stories they tell sometimes. Mr. Jack Welch, of that State, was driving across a bridge one night, when a gust of wind took his horses off their feet, upset the wagon, and blew Welch himself over the parapet. He fell sixty feet, sank to the bottom of the river, rose, swam ashore, recovered his horses, and drove home. The little Rock Gazette vouches for Mr. Jack Welch as a man of habitual veracity.

"DOCTOR," said a lady patient, "I suffer a great deal with my eyes." The old gentleman adjusted his spectacles, and, with a Socratic air, replied, "I do not doubt it, my friend; but then you ought not to forget you would suffer a great deal more without them."

WHILE sunlight is the most favorable for haymaking, it is a well-known fact that wild oats are best sown by moonlight.

WE reach for riches and we grasp a millstone, unless in health to enjoy them. A Cough or Cold quickly works our physical ruin unless we are careful. Use Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup. Price 25 cents.

No More Hard Times.

If you will stop spending so much on fine clothes, rich food and style, buy good, healthy food, cheaper and better clothing; get more real and substantial things of life every way, and especially stop the foolish habit of employing expensive, quack doctors or using so much of the vile humbug medicine that does you only harm, but put your trust in that simple, pure remedy, Hop Bitters; that cures always at a trifling cost, and you will see good times and have good health.—Chronicle.

The Upper and Lower Eyes.

"There are two pairs of eyes in man, and it is requisite that the pair which are beneath should be closed when the pair that are above them perceive, and that when the pair above are closed, those which are beneath are opened." The lower eyes see only the surfaces and effects, the upper eyes behold causes and the connection of things. And when we go alone or come into the house of thought and worship, we come with purpose to be disabused of appearances, to see realities, the great lines of our destiny, to see that life has no caprice or fortune, is no hopping squib, but a growth after immutable laws, under beneficent influences the most immense. The church is open to great and small in all nations, and how rare and lofty, how unattainable, are the aims it labors to set before men! We come to educate, come to isolate, to be abstractionists; in fine, to open the upper eyes to the deep mystery of cause and effect, to know that, though ministers of justice and power fail, Justice and Power fail never. The open secret of the world is the art of subliming a private soul with inspirations from the great and public and divine Soul from which we live.—Emerson.

People in Glass Houses, Etc.

[From the St. Louis Evening Chronicle.]

While it may be proper that those "living in glass houses should never throw stones," we think it is eminently proper that those working in glass houses should say a "good word" for anything of benefit to themselves. In this connection, Mr. Isaac Correy, Manager Salem (N. J.) Glass Works, remarks: I am pleased to say that I have used the Great Remedy, St. Jacobs Oil, for Rheumatism with excellent results, other members of my family have also been greatly benefited by its use.

Consolation.

An honest shoemaker peering into a restaurant, saw one of his fashionable customers seated at a table covered with all the delicacies of the season, including a large bottle of green seal and two canvas-back ducks! Rushing in, the irate tradesman exclaimed:

"You haven't got money to pay me for the boots you have got on, but you can afford to pay for all manner of delicacies."

The young man wiped his mustache, and looking around to see that he was not overheard, responded in a whisper:

"Don't be deceived by appearances. You must not lose confidence in me. I don't expect to pay for this little banquet any more than I expect to pay you for the boots."

A Builder's Testimony.

[From the Grand Rapids Times.]

Chas. S. Strickland, Esq., of 9 Boylston Place, Boston, Mass., after relating his surprising recovery from rheumatism by St. Jacobs Oil, says: I cannot find words to convey my praise and gratitude to the discoverer of this liniment.

THE father of a family saw his plum trees despoiled of their fruit. Suspecting his children, he called them all together, and said: "One of you has stolen my plums, and I know which is the guilty one, for he has a leaf on the end of his nose." And the guilty one had the naivete, foreseen by the father, to denounce himself by rubbing the end of his nose.

I HAVE no more doubt of the beneficial effects of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure than I have that the Genesee river empties into Lake Ontario.—Rev. J. E. Rankin, D. D., Washington, D. C.

"MEND your ways, my son," said the good Deacon Sippleson, "before it is too late." "Time enough for that, dad," exclaimed the graceless rascal, lighting a fresh cigar; "'tis never too later to mend, you know, dad."

The Episootic

Has again made its appearance in various parts of the country. As prevention is better than cure, the attention of owners of stock is called to UNCLE SAM'S CONDITION POWDERS. These celebrated powders stand unrivaled for their excellency as a preventive from disease. By mixing with the feed they will keep the animal in the best general health, toning up the system and keeping the digestive organs and blood in a healthy condition.

The Powders are warranted to give perfect satisfaction. Prepared by the EMMERT PROPRIETARY Co., Chicago, Ill. Put up in 25 and 50-cent packages, and sold by all druggists.

THE regular Frazer axle grease saves money for the consumer. The light-colored or yellow loosens the spokes.

VEGETINE.—No medicine has attained such a great reputation as this justly-celebrated compound.

The diamond boots and shoes are the best. Made by Rosenthal Brothers, Chicago.

FOR a pamphlet on Electric Treatment of chronic diseases with Electricity, which will be sent free, address the McIntosh Electric Belt and Battery Co., 192 & 194 Jackson St., Chicago, Ill.

DR. BULL'S
COUGH
SYRUP

BIG WAGES, summer and winter. Samples free. National Copying Co., 300 West Madison st., Chicago.

YOUNG MEN Learn Telegraphy! Earn $40 to $100 a month. Graduates guaranteed paying offices. Address VALENTINE BROS., Janesville, Wis.

RED FOX, Skunk, Raccoon, Mink, bought for Cash; Highest Prices. Send for Circular—full particulars. E. C. BOUGHTON, 5 Howard St., New York.

CANCER. Send $2 and get a remedy for the speedy cure of all Cancers. Address ELD. C. W. JARRELL, Granbury, Hood Co., Texas.

TO YOUNG MEN who wish to learn Steam Engineering. Send your name, with two 3-cent stamps, to F. KEPPY, Engineer, Bridgeport, Ct.

YOUNG MEN Remember [illegible]

Making Use of Natural Laws.

Instances of a more complex character frequently occur where a knowledge of natural laws or forces may be brought into operation to assist in surmounting difficulties. Thus, a few years ago, an iron bridge of considerable length, the weight being about 200 tons, was constructed in England and erected in a remote part of Germany. By some mishap, the bridge, when finished, was found to be some distance "out" to one side, an error which the proprietors insisted should be rectified. To take down and re-erect the bridge would be simply ruin to the contractor. But necessity is the mother of invention, and so it proved in this case. It was summer time, and the contractor proceeded to find the amount of expansion which was caused by the heat of the sun over the whole length of the bridge. He next ascertained what contraction took place in the night by cooling. Armed with these data, he thought it might be possible to bring the bridge to its proper position in a few days. The bridge, of course, in its ordinary condition expanded from the center, pushing its two ends outward, or farther apart, and again contracting toward the center. Taking advantage of these conditions, one end was made fast in the morning, and the bridge was forced to expand from that immovable point, instead of from the middle, as formerly. When the iron composing the bridge had expanded to its full extent in the direction intended, that end was released, and the opposite end made fast. The bridge then contracted toward its true position. Thus, whatever was gained by the day's expansion was secured by the subsequent contraction when the metal cooled at night, and, the process being renewed day by day, the work was successfully accomplished.

THE police of New Orleans discovered an opium-smoking den in the city, and arrested the Chinese proprietor. The place is said to have had customers who were well-dressed women.

RHEUMATISM
ABSOLUTELY CURED.
BY THE USE OF
DR. BOSANKO'S
RHEUMATIC CURE,
THE GREAT ALKALINE REMEDY.
Why you have Rheumatism! Because your system is charged with a poisonous Uric Acid. You can be Cured by neutralizing this acidity with Dr. Bosanko's Rheumatic Cure, a chemically prepared Alkaline, a Specific for Rheumatism. Will send it post paid.
PRICE, 75 CENTS. Ask Your Druggist For It.
Address THE DR. BOSANKO MEDICINE CO.,
(Treatise sent Free.) PIQUA, O.

500 ORGANS given away free to Agents. Address REV. S. T. BUCK, Lewisburgh, Pa.

PISO'S CURE for Consumption is also the best cough medicine.

$777 A YEAR and expenses to agents. Outfit Free. Address P. O. VICKERY, Augusta, Maine.

$350 A MONTH! Agents Wanted! 75 Best-Selling Articles in the world; a sample free. JAY BRONSON, Detroit, Mich.

OPIUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till Cured. DR. J. STEPHENS, Lebanon, Ohio.

JOHN B. PAGE & SON Poultry, Game, Furs, etc. 109 Park Place, N.Y.

EMPLOYMENT—LOCAL OR Traveling. State which preferred. Also SALARY per month. All EXPENSES advanced. WAGES promptly paid. SLOAN & Co. 306 George St. Cincinnati, O.

MUSTACHE & WHISKERS [illegible]

PURE TEAS Agents wanted everywhere to sell to families, hotels and large consumers; largest stock in the country; quality and terms the best. Country storekeepers should call or write THE WELLS TEA COMPANY, 201 Fulton st., N. Y. P. O. Box 4560.

Printers' Outfits.
Printers about to embark in the Newspaper or Printing Business in this State will find it to their interest to address PRINTERS' EXCHANGE, Box 239, Chicago, Ill., before purchasing outfits.

AGENTS! Here is YOUR GOLD MINE! DIGGING GOLD AMONG THE ROCKIES. By a U. S. Mineral Surveyor. Complete scientific description of every part of the great gold and silver fields. The precious stuff; where they find it, how they find it, how they mine it. Exciting adventures of wild Camp Life. Streams filled with Fish. Forests filled with Game. Mountains filled with Silver and Gold. For Circulars and Special Extra Terms, address HUBBARD BROS., Chicago, Ill.

Deafness, Ear Diseases, Catarrh.
Dr. C. E. SHOEMAKER, the well-known experienced Aural Surgeon, Author, and Writer on the above Diseases, may be consulted by mail or personally at his office, No. 615 Walnut St., Reading, Pa. His small book sent free. His large and complete work of 375 pages on Deafness, Diseases of the Ear and Throat, and Catarrh, and their proper treatment; price $3 by mail.
NOTE.—No one will question Dr. Shoemaker's standing or skill.

SAPONIFIER
Is the "Original" Concentrated Lye and Reliable Family Soap Maker. Directions accompany each Can for making Hard, Soft and Toilet Soap quickly. It is full weight and strength. Ask your grocer for SAPONIFIER, and take no other.
Penn'a Salt Manufact'ng Co., Phila.

C. GILBERT'S
STARCH

NATRONA BI-CARB. SODA
Is the best in the World. It is absolutely pure. It is the best for Medicinal Purposes. It is the best for Baking and all Family Uses. Sold by all Druggists and Grocers.
Penn'a Salt Manufact'ing Co., Phila.

"Dr. Sykes' Sure Cure"
FOR
"CATARRH"
Cured Without Fail. Ask your Druggist for it.
Price of "Sure Cure" and "Insufflator" all complete is only $1.50. Valuable book of full information, 10 cents. Name this paper and address
DR. C. R. SYKES, 169 E. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

AGENTS WANTED FOR THE PICTORIAL
HISTORY OF THE WORLD
Embracing full and authentic accounts of every nation of ancient and modern times, and including a history of the rise and fall of the Greek and Roman Empires, the middle ages, the crusades, the feudal system, the reformation, the discovery and settlement of the New World, etc., etc. It contains 672 fine historical engravings, and is the most complete History of the World ever published. Send for specimen pages and extra terms to Agents. Address
NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO., Chicago, Ill.

St. JACOBS OIL
TRADE MARK.

THE GREAT GERMAN REMEDY
FOR
RHEUMATISM,
Neuralgia, Sciatica, Lumbago, Backache, Soreness of the Chest, Gout, Quinsy, Sore Throat, Swellings and Sprains, Burns and Scalds, General Bodily Pains,
Tooth, Ear and Headache, Frosted Feet and Ears, and all other Pains and Aches.
No Preparation on earth equals St. Jacobs Oil as a safe, sure, simple and cheap External Remedy. A trial entails but the comparatively trifling outlay of 50 Cents, and every one suffering with pain can have cheap and positive proof of its claims.
Directions in Eleven Languages.
SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS AND DEALERS IN MEDICINE.
A. VOGELER & CO.,
Baltimore, Md., U. S. A.

THE COLUMBIAN of this week will contain the finest, most elaborate, costly and beautiful Holiday cuts ever presented to the American people. A Specimen Copy can be seen at this office and at every postoffice and newsstand in the United States. One cent a copy everywhere.

CRISTADORO'S Hair Dye is the SAFEST and BEST; it acts instantaneously, producing the most natural shades of Black or Brown; does NOT STAIN the SKIN, and is easily applied. It is a standard preparation, and a favorite on every well-appointed toilet for Lady or Gentleman. Sold by Druggists and applied by Hair-Dressers. Depot, 93 William St., New York. C. N. CRITTENTON, Ag't.

LITERARY REVOLUTION
3 CENTS each, formerly $1.00 to $1.50 each: I. Macaulay's Life of Frederick the Great. II. Carlyle's Life of Robert Burns. III. Lamartine's Life of Mary Queen of Scots. IV. Thos. Hughes' Manliness of Christ. 5 CENTS each: I. Arnold's Light of Asia. II. Goldsmith's Vicar of Wakefield. III. Baron Munchausen's Travels and Surprising Adventures. For SIX CENTS: Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress. Illustrated catalogue sent free. AMERICAN BOOK EXCHANGE, John B. Alden, Manager, Tribune Building, New York.

ESTEY ORGAN
THE HOME & CHAPEL
J. ESTEY & Co. BRATTLEBORO VT.

CELLULOID
EYE-GLASSES.
Representing the choicest-selected Tortoise-Shell and Amber. The lightest, handsomest, and strongest known. Sold by Opticians and Jewelers. Made by the SPENCER OPTICAL M'F'G CO., 13 Maiden Lane, New York.

10 CENTS a Month,
—OR—
One Dollar a Year.
THE CHICAGO LEDGER will be sent to any address, postage paid, at the prices named above. Send in your names. Address THE LEDGER, Chicago, Ill.

$5.00 PER DAY Made Selling Our New
PLATFORM FAMILY SCALE.
Weighs accurately up to 25 lbs. Its handsome appearance sells it at sight. Retail price, $1.50. Other Family Scales weighing 25 lbs. cost $3.00. A Regular
BOOM FOR AGENTS.
Exclusive territory given free. Terms and rapid sales surprise old Agents.
DOMESTIC SCALE CO.,
No. 139 W. Fifth St., Cincinnati, O.

KIDNEY-WORT
The Great Remedy For THE LIVER, THE BOWELS, and the KIDNEYS.
These great organs are the Natural cleansers of the System. If they work well, health will be perfect, if they become clogged, dreadful diseases are developed because the blood is poisoned with the humors that should have been expelled naturally. KIDNEY-WORT will restore the natural action, and throw off the disease. Thousands have been cured, and all may be. For sale by all Druggists.

PENSIONS!
New Law. Thousands of Soldiers and heirs entitled. Pensions date back to discharge or death. Time limited. Address, with stamp,
GEORGE E. LEMON,
P. O. Drawer 325. Washington, D. C.

MUSTANG
Survival of the Fittest.
A FAMILY MEDICINE THAT HAS HEALED MILLIONS DURING 35 YEARS!
MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT.
A BALM FOR EVERY WOUND OF MAN AND BEAST!
THE OLDEST & BEST LINIMENT EVER MADE IN AMERICA.
SALES LARGER THAN EVER.
The Mexican Mustang Liniment has been known for more than thirty-five years as the best of all Liniments, for Man and Beast. Its sales to-day are larger than ever. It cures when all others fail, and penetrates skin, tendon and muscle, to the very bone. Sold everywhere.

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, IND., JANUARY 6, 1881.

In our own state, the scramble goes on at a lively rate. At present writing, Ben. Harrison seems to have the lead, but there are several other distinguished patriots ready to be sacrificed for the good of the commonwealth.

THE state of affairs in Ireland, is still very unsatisfactory. The English government, still finds it necessary to keep a large military and police force in the disaffected parts of the island, and disturbances may be expected at any time.

THE Adams express company has won a substantial victory in its fight for the express business over the Louisville and Nashville railroad. This is a very important matter for all concerned in the conveying business of express companies.

THERE is a meeting this week of the state board of agriculture, for the election of officers and other business. A meeting of the Wool Growers' association, of the Democratic Editoral association, of the Bar association, and several other societies not yet heard from. Altogether, there will be a general congregation of Hoosiers, at the "State Hub," and landlords will govern themselves accordingly.

THE senatorial contest in the different states, still attracts a great deal of attention, especially that in New York. It is supposed that Conkling will decide the matter there when the time comes. Of course he wishes to have a colleague in the senate whom he can control. He will have him, too, unless the coming trial, in the great Sprague scandal, should attact his attention, and cause him to take his eye off the legislature for an hour or two. In such a case, a man of average ability might be chosen, but not without.

THE state legislature meets in Indianapolis this week, and members are on their way to the capital to be present at the opening of the session.

The inauguration of the new governor, is also attracting a great many visitors from all parts of the state. Of course, some go to see the sights, but a large number are attracted by the possibility of securing the few political crumbs that fall from the party table. We could almost believe that republicans like office, were it not for their very pointed declaration in their late national platform.

MUCH gratification is expressed by all parties in New York, at the breaking down of the Tammany-Kelly rule in that city. Now, the people of that much governed town, are asking that their next legislature give them a spring election, so as to take, as for as possible, their municipal affairs out of politics. Though it is doubtful, as to the success of this plan, even if spring elections are held, it is a good sign to note the fact that the city is beginning to see, what all the outside world has long seen, that its political morals are not of the highest character. All the factions in the city, have at all times, been ready to make any coalition with any other faction that could give them a part of the spoils.

GREECE and Turkey are still quarreling over their boundary line. The matter should have been attended by the treaty of Berlin, which closed the recent war between Turkey and Russia. In fact, the powers represented at that treaty supposed the business was settled to the entire satisfaction of all concerned. Now however, Turkey seems dissatisfied at losing a portion of her territory which the treaty of Berlin gave to Greece, and Greece is determined that all the provisions of the treaty shall be carried out. Her people are determined to annex the disputed provinces, even at the expense of a war with Turkey. Of course, Russia stands by, ready to help Greece in case of danger, as indeed she has always been ready to do anything to assist in the final disruption of the Turkish power in Europe. There is a strong prospect that war cannot long be averted.

KOKOMO DISPATCH: Down in Massachusetts the republican operatives told their employes last fall that Hancock's election would cause them to shut up shop or suspend business entirely. The poor wagemen believed this infamous falsehood, and thousands of them, democrats, were thereby influenced to vote for "Garfield, high tariff, steady work and good wages." Garfield was elected, but the promise of the employer is not fulfilled. Only last Friday, at Marlboro, 5,000 men, women and children were thrown out of employment by the suspension of the shoe manufactories there. Wages are being reduced all around in the shops not yet closed, and the outlook is very gloomy for the wagemen and their families. Very great suffering from sheer want will be the result this winter. When will the poor men learn to disregard the siren voice of the capitalist in excited political times? The high tariff argument in American politics is mere bosh.

Fast Finding Out.

The ways of the Hayes administration grow even more mysterious as it approaches its final end. It will be recalled that when the Chicago convention was hard at work to select a reformer to succeed the present occupant of the White House, a scandal involving Senator Ferry, of Michigan, was floated to the breeze. One Cooper, of Milwaukee, in a card over his own signature, set forth that while visiting this city with his wife and daughter, and while they were guests of the National Hotel, the aforesaid Ferry behaved himself unseemingly toward the female Coopers, and, as a punishment for which, the male Cooper belabored the "agog-gode" senator. For a while the horizon was ominious with black clouds, and the apprehension was abroad that when Cooper again met Ferry he would make mince-meat of him, and send him to the happy hunting grounds. Then a stillness like death intervened. At this late day, while the scandal is not actually revived, it is certainly recalled by the appointment of this self-same Cooper to an important consulate in a warm climate. It is said, too, that Senator Ferry was the influence which secured it. How the administration was reconciled to make the appointment after the scandal, is its own unfathomable secret.

George Eliot's Romola.

A timely interest is given, by the death of the author, to the new edition of her masterpiece, "Romola," just issued by the American Book Exchange, New York. It shows her work at its best and strongest, and at the same time gives the reader the opportunity to acquire a lasting familiarity with the scenes and society of medimval Italy. It is one of the few really great historical novels of the world. It is issued in handy and beautiful form, extra cloth binding, simple but rare elegance and taste in design, and like the other issues of the "literary Revolution" its cost is almost nominal, viz 35 cents. It is one of a series intended to form a library of classic fiction, which will include one representative and characteristic work of each of the great authors who have won lasting fame in the realm of fiction. Life is too short and too full of work to permit the reading of all that is beautiful and valuable in these creations of the immagination, but even very busy people can find time to read one book by each of the score of authors who have won immortal fame and place in the affections of the people. Not to be acquainted with them is to be ignorant of much that is most important and most interesting in the history of nations and of men. Not to possess them is to be deprived of most fruitful and profitable sources of enjoyment. Among those issued, or nearly ready, are, Scott's "Ivanhoe," Bulwer's "Pompeii," Irving's "Knickerbocker," Cooper" "Mohicans," "Tom Brown at Rugby," "Adventures of Don Quixote" and "Uarda, a Romance of Ancient Egypt." Full catalogue of standard publications will be sent on request, by the American Book Exchange, Tribune Building, New York.

The Electoral Count.

A special to the Chicago Times from Washington says some republicans are working themselves up into a "state of mind" over the possible conspiracies among the democrats to control the electoral count. Such persons give themselves a great deal of unnecessary trouble. The democrats contemplate holding no caucus upon the subject, and on the whole, are looking at matters very quietly. Mr. Springer has been represented as being the most ultra of men on the subject. He was asked to-day: "What will be the course of the democrats in reference to the joint resolution providing for counting the electoral votes, when congress meets?"

"If 147 democrats shall be in attendance at the opening of congress," he replied, "we will have strength enough to pass the Morgan resolutions, but if we cannot procure a quorum of our own members we must accept the situation, and absent members must take the responsibility. In that event it is probable that we will fall back upon precedents. Mr. Bicknell, who has charge of this subject, would then perhaps move for a joint committee of three representatives and two senators, as was the practice from the foundation of the government to 1860, to report a plan for counting electoral votes, and announcing the results. This resolution, of course, would be passed. The joint committee would probably report a plan which would cover the present exigencies, which would be simply a counting of all the votes unless both houses should vote to reject some. In the case of Georgia, perhaps the precedent of Michigan and Missouri would be adopted, which was that the result should be hypothetically stated. "If Georgia is counted Garfield would have so many votes, Hancock so many, but if Georgia is not counted Garfield would have so many votes and Hancock so many. In either event, Garfield has received a majority of all votes cast, and is elected."

"What about the absence of a quorum of the two houses on the day of the count?"

"So far as the counting is concerned, it will be done by the two houses or not at all; congress will not tolerate an illegal and revolutionary count by the vice-president."

Cincinnati Enquirer: In Arizona they offer a reward of $50 for the murderer of an Ohio man. So it will be seen that an Ohio man is appreciated, even though he is a long way from home, and dead at that.

The news that the inauguration of General Garfield is to be a grand affair, is said to be encouraged by the boarding-house keepers of Washington. Still, the public shouldn't be too hard on the Washington boarding-house keepers. People who are not allowed to vote for president should at least be allowed to have a hoodoo over the man elected by the States.

Indianapolis Sentinel: Our Governor-elect, Porter, was in Washington recently en route to New York City, where he was married on the 5th of this month. In a conversation with our Washington correspondent he said that he would not refuse a cabinet position, if tendered him.

General Garfield is to deliver a lecture on farming before he is inaugurated. He is credited with knowing more about farming than Hayes, and will draw better at pumkin shows.

John Quincy Adams made a note of the death of James Monroe, as follows: "This day occurred the death of James Monroe, after six years of penury and distress." James Monroe, unlike Grant, was not a strolling mendicant and free-lunch fiend.

The remains of Mrs. Cross, "George Eliot," were buried at Highgate cemetery, London, Monday, in the midst of pouring rain. A large number of friends of the deceased novelist were, nevertheless, present. The mourners included the husband of the deceased and Professors Tyndall, Beseley and Calvin.

It is quite possible that Garfield will take the advice of the Cleveland Leader, and only select Ohioans for his cabinet. The Leader suggests the following names:

For Secretary of State—John Hay, of Ohio.

For Secretary of the Treasury—John Sherman, of Ohio.

For Secretary of War—Judge Samuel Shellabarger, of Ohio.

For Secretary of the Navy—Major William McKinley, of Ohio.

For Secretary of the Interior—Professor James Monroe, of Ohio.

For Attorney-General—Stanley Matthews, of Ohio.

For Postmaster-General—Charles Foster, of Ohio.]

The following table is of interest to the general reader, as it shows when the legislature of each state in the Union will next convene, the length of the session, if limited, and whether the sessions are held annually or biennially. In twenty-eight states the legislature will convene in 1881, and in ten states in 1882. In thirty-one states the legislature convenes biennially, and in seven states annually. In eight states the sessions are limited to sixty days, in one state to fifty days, in four states to forty days, in three states to ninety days, in one state to seventy days, in one state to seventy-five days, and in one state to forty-five days. In seventeen states no limit is imposed. The tabulated statement is as follows:

States.	Session.	Limit of Session.	Next Legislature meets
Arkansas	Biennial	60 days	Jan. 10, 1881
Alabama	"	50 days	Nov. 7, 1882
California	"	60 days	Jan. 5, 1882
Colorado	"	40 days	Jan. 5, 1881
Connecticut	Annual	None	Jan. 5, 1881
Delaware	Biennial	None	Jan. 4, 1881
Florida	"	60 days	Jan. 4, 1881
Georgia	"	40 days	Nov. 3, 1882
Illinois	"	None	Jan. 5, 1881
Indiana	"	60 days	Jan. 6, 1881
Iowa	"	None	Jan. 12, 1882
Kansas	"	50 days	Jan. 11, 1881
Kentucky	"	60 days	Dec. 31, 1881
Louisiana	"	60 days	Jan. 12, 1882
Maine	"	None	Jan. 5, 1881
Maryland	"	90 days	Jan. 4, 1881
Massachusetts	Annual	None	Jan. 5, 1881
Michigan	Biennial	None	Jan. 5, 1881
Minnesota	"	60 days	Jan. 4, 1881
Mississippi	"	None	Jan. 6, 1882
Missouri	"	70 days	Jan. 5, 1881
Nebraska	"	40 days	Jan. 4, 18 1
Nevada	"	60 days	Jan. 3, 1881
New Hamps'r	"	None	Jan. 1, 1881
New Jersey	Annual	None	Jan. 11, 1881
New York	Annual	None	Jan. 6, 1881
North Carolina	Biennial	60 days	Jan. 5, 1881
Ohio	"	None	Jan. 5, 1882
Oregon	"	40 days	Jan. 31, 1882
Pennsylvania	"	None	Jan. 4, 1882
Rhode Island	Annual	None	Jan. 18, 1881
South Carolina	"	None	Nov. 23, 1881
Tennessee	Biennial	75 days	Jan. 3, 1881
Texas	"	60 days	Jan. 3, 1881
Vermont	"	None	Oct. 3, 18 2
Virginia	"	90 days	Dec. 18, 1881
West Virginia	"	45 days	Jan. 12, 1881
Wisconsin	Annual	None	Jan. 12, 1881

The foregoing statement is wonderfully suggestive of state rights. They will enact laws quite independent of congress, and in many ways flaunt in the face of the federal government state sovereignty. This may be very distasteful to republican stalwarts who demand centralization, but they will have to submit for several years longer.

Number 4 Concord.

After my compliments to the COURIER, I wish to thank the scholars of this district for making me the recipient of a very nice album as a memento of 1881. Also my best wishes to the patrons for their generous aid in the school.

Nothwithstanding the dilapidated condition of the school-house and severe cold weather, I am able to make the following report:

Enrollment	25
Days taught	35
Days of absence	46
Cases of tardiness	17
Hours lost	5.8

W. B. B., Teacher.

GOVERNOR-ELECT Plaisted, of Maine, is soon to be married, also our own Gov. Porter, also Senator McDonald, also several other young gentlemen we know of.

Notices From the Press.

Goshen Democrat: James A. Barns and D. Y. Husselman have purchased the Auburn Courier. They are both excellent men.

Ligonier Banner: J. A. Barns and D. Y. Husselman, have purchased the Auburn Courier. They are both excellent men and will be an honor to the profession.

Ft. Wayne News: The Auburn Courier, formerly edited by Robert J. Lowry, has passed into the hands of J. A. Barns and D. Y. Husselman, possession being had last week.

Hicksville News: Messrs. J. A. Barns and D. Y. Husselman, of Waterloo, have purchased the Auburn Courier. The new proprietors have the requisite ability to make a good paper.

Goshen Times: James A. Barns and D. Y. Husselman have assumed control of the Auburn Courier. The gentlemen are strangers to us, but we nevertheless wish them all the blessings and comforts that are the lot of us country editors.

Lagrange Standard, Dec. 30, 1880: Messrs. J. A. Barns and D. Y. Husselman, of Waterloo, have purchased the Auburn COURIER, recently edited by Robert Lowry, jr., now deceased. As they were never known to scratch a democratic ticket, no uneasiness need be felt that the COURIER will lose any of its intense democratic tone.

Kendallville Standard, Dec. 30, 1880: James A. Barns and D. Y. Husselman have purchased the Auburn COURIER printing establishment, and assumed control of that paper. These gentlemen are among DeKalb's staunchest democrats, and will give their patrons a lively home paper. We wish them success in every thing but politics.

Butler Record, Dec. 30: J. A. Barns and D. Y. Husselman having purchased the Auburn COURIER, have now taken possession, removed the office to the elegant rooms in Kiblinger's block, and are now ready for business. The new firm is competent to make a paper worthy the support of its party. Prof. Barnes is not a new hand in an editorial sanctum, nor is Mr. Husselman a stranger to the people of DeKalb county, hence the COURIER will gain by the change in proprietors and editors. We wish the new firm success in everything but its politics.

NEW MANAGEMENT.—Messrs. J. A. Barns and D. Y. Husselman, of this place, have purchased the Courier printing establishment of Judge Lowry, and will continue the business at Auburn. Of the new proprietors and editors we can say that they are gentlemen socially, and in their business relation. As to their politics, it might be claimed that we are not a competent witness. However, they can stand Nasby's test of never having scratched a democratic ticket, and this ought to satisfy the most exacting Bourbon. The new proprietors will take possession this week, and we presume, will remove to the county seat as soon as convenient arrangements can be made. On this latter point, however, a definite conclusion has not yet been reached. — Waterloo Press.

School Report.

The following is the report of school district No. 11, of Wilmington township for the first month commencing Nov. 22, and closing Dec. 17: Number of pupils enrolled, 37; general average, 27; names of pupils neither absent nor tardy during the first month; Libbie Erehart, Maud Metcalf, Eda Kiner, Bertha Nieswender, May Nieswender, Bertha Grimm, Dessie Tate, L. Hurm, Amelia Hurm, George Luce, Charley Kiner, Mannie Culler, Willie Culler, Theilie Wilson, Addie Steward, Jennie Steward. The following were neither absent nor tardy, except for sickness: Dellie Wilson, and Artie Brown. Time lost by tardiness, 55 minutes.

ELLA S. EREHART, Teacher.

Annual Meeting of the Stockholders of the Fort Wayne & Jackson Railroad Company.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Fort Wayne & Jackson railroad company for the election of directors for the ensuing year, and the transaction of such other business as may be brought before it, will be held on Saturday, January 29, 1881, at 10 o'clock a. m., at the general office of the company in Jackson, Michigan. By order of the board of directors.

R. G. ROLSTON, Sec'y.

New York, Dec. 28, 1880. 53-4t.

School Report.

Reprot of school No. 5, Jackson township, for the month ending Dec 24, 1880:

Total number enrolled 45, average daily attendence 35, names of those neither absent nor tardy:

Ellen Walters,	George Treece,
Lizzie Essig,	Kanley Moffet,
Willis Mochamer,	Frank Osburn,

Names of those perfect in deportment: Bell Squires and Harris Squires.

ROSE MOODY, Teacher.

NOTICE.

I would say to the ladies who wish instructions in the art of cutting and fitting, that I will commence with a class January 17, 1881. For terms and particulars, inquire of Miss R. A. Canon, Ensley block. 1 2

BIG RUSH
-AT-
Isaac Ochs' Mammoth Store!
THE BOOM INCREASES DAILY.
New Stocks Received Daily
STUPENDOUS BARGAINS TO BE HAD IN ALL CLASSES OF GOODS
THE BOTTOM KNOCKED CLEAR OUT OF
BOOTS, SHOES AND RUBBER GOODS.
Selling piles of them cheap; cheaper than anybody.
mmense Trade in Clothing, and Why?
Because I have an immense stock, and am selling cheaper than anybody. i ggest line of Ladies' Dress Goods, and Cloaks, and Dolmans in town, at prices
WAY DOWN! WAY DOWN!
STAPLES ALMOST GIVEN AWAY. Come all ye that want bargains, and I will give them to you.
JOIN THE CROWD AND COME AND SEE Us, COME EVERYBODY!
ISAAC OCHS, Auburn, Ind.

ROOT & COMPANY
A usual, for the
HOLIDAY SEASON!
Are displaying an immense assortment
ATTRACTIVE GOODS!
-IN-
EVERY DEPARTMENT!
Special sale of Black ank Colored Satin DeLyon, at $1, $1.15 and $1.50.
PLAIN SILKS
At 75c., 90c., $1 and $1.25c., reduced from $1, $1.25 and $1.50. Changeable Silks in elegant Quality, and Choice Tints for $1 per yard. All shades of colored 22-inch Satin DeLoin at $1.50 worth $2 peryard.
TRIMMING
Velvets, Satins, Plushes and Brocade Silks in a great variety of color and qu anti
OUR DRESS GOODS DEPARTMEMT
Is now complete with new and superior fabrics in the choicest styles, and at the lowest prices.
CLOAKS AND FURS
Our cloaks, shawls, suit and fur department now contain some very choice thin in seal, fur-lined and other garments. Also an unusually fine line of ladies' an children's goods of all kinds. Also elegant suits and shawls, and all at our usu low prices. Besides we have an almost endless line of small articles especially for the
HOLLIDAY TRADE
To which we call the attention of the public. Remember our long esta motto: "No trouble to show goods, and an inspection of our stock incurs no tion to purchase." ROOT & CO., FORT WAYNE, INDIANA.

$100
Reward
For any case of
CATARRH
That cannot be cured with
HALL'S CATARRH CURE.
This is no humbug. No nasse douche. No snuff. Nothing to irritate the nasal cavity or distroy the sense of smell. It is an INTERNAL REMEDY ACTING UPON THE BLOOD, cleansing it from its impurities, causing the puriform matter to be carried off through the natural channels. It is a scientific preparation used and prescribed for years by one of the ablest practitioners in this country, and has never failed to cure when used according to direction.
WE MAKE THIS PROPOSITION:
If any person, after taking one dozen of HALL'S CATARRH CURE is NOT CURED OR BENEFITED more than four times its cost, we will refund the money paid. If it does you good you are willing to pay for it. If it does no good it costs you nothing.
PRICE 75 CENTS PER BOTTLE.
Manufactured by F. J. CHENEY & Co., Druggists, Toledo, O.
11-1 yr. For Sale by all Druggists

Notice to Heirs of Petition to Sell Real Estate.

State of Indiana, DeKalb county—In the De Kalb circuit court.

Notice is hereby given, that Maria Dove administratrix of Henson Dove, deceased, has filed a petition to sell the real estate of the decedent, the personal being insufficient to pay his debts, and that said petition will be heard at the next term of said court. Attest:

53-3t. J. W. BAXTER, Clerk

Dec. 28, 1880.

SUPERIOR TO ALL OTHERS!
Largest and Most Complete Line Manufactured.
ADAPTED FOR BURNING ALL KINDS OF FUEL.
EVERY STOVE WARRANTED A SUCCESS.
None their Equal—Acknowledged Favorites.
ALWAYS AWARDED FIRST PREMIUM.
Buy the Best.
Sold by W. H. KIBLINGER & CO

The Auburn Courier

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY BY

BARNS & HUSSELMAN.

—The Central house has a new register.

—Ed. Fox is quite sick with typhoid fever.

—The Stave Factory began work last Monday.

—Joe. Beugnot has got his "brine mill" back.

—Chas. Picker is working for Mitch Houston.

—Constable Porter has his hands full of business.

—The schools are now in a flourishing condition.

—Listen how this sounds: "Constable Hank Little."

—Justice Altenburg will have a busy court Saturday.

—The Seventh street bridge has undergone repairs.

—Cecil Rhodes, of Newville, Sundayed over in Auburn.

—Wm. Kessler made a flying trip to Defiance last Friday.

—S. J. Locke is busily engaged harvesting a large ice crop.

—For cloaks, skirts and nubias, go to McQuiston & Ralston's.

—The Hub and Spoke factory presents an enterprising appearance.

—Hank Lesh is again employed at the Pioneer hardware store.

—Mixed candies at 12½ cents a pound, at McQuiston & Ralston's.

—Rev. Norris is holding a protracted meeting, two miles east of town.

—Dave Snyder has the material on the ground for his new brick residence.

—Mrs. J. Picker has been ailing for several days past, but is now convalescent.

—John H. Leasure and wife return home last evening, after a week's wedding tour.

—Billy Little traded teams yesterday, and says he can now move anything with two ends.

—Boys' overcoats from $2.50 to $3.00, men's coats at bargains, at McQuiston & Ralston's.

—Fred. Clark says he had a gay time at Jackson, Toledo, Detroit and Ft. Wayne last week.

—Fishing through the ice seems to be a popular amusement for the sporting part of our population.

—Chris. Baker and lady gave a family dinner, at the junction, last sabbath. All the relatives were present.

—Fielding Prickett, of Albion, has had a stroke of apoplexy recently. He is said to be recovering slowly.

—We are under obligations to several friends for assistance in getting our safe safely landed in our office.

—Mitch Houston left for Toledo yesterday with a view to purchasing a refrigerator for his meat market.

—Round trip tickets from Auburn to Waterloo and return will be 25c on the evening of Josh Billing's lecture.

—Presbyterian mite society at the residence of J. A. Barns, Waterloo, on Wednesday evening of next week.

—Elder Ward and wife, of Auburn, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Matson.—Last week's Steuben Republican.

—Mr. A. J. Little is teaching the school at Faegler's corners this week in the absence of A. P. Foltz, the regular teacher.

—Since Saturday night the boys have been calling Alva Potter "Papa!" We tumble, but haven't inhaled any Havana as yet.

—It is reported that Hon. Wm. M. Clapp, of Albion, is dangerously ill, and doubts are entertained as to his recovery.

—The Presbyterian social was held at the residence of Mr. John Sugars, yestetday. A large number from the city attended.

—Mrs. J. J. Martin has returned home to Auburn Junction, from a prolonged visit to her parents, who reside near South Whitley.

—A new church is now under construction, two miles east of town, near Mr. Carper's farm, and will be used by the United Brethren doctrine.

—Married, at the residence of the bride's father, in Butler township, by the Rev. W. L. Meese, on Saturday, December 25, Wm. I. Moses to Miss Olie West.

—It would have been a great accommodation to several pedestrians on Seventh street Wednesday, if that brick pile, in front of Mitch Houston's, had have been removed.

—Mr. J. A. McKay, who has been at Ottumwa, Iowa, for the past two months, spent new-years with his family, in this place, returning to the former place last Monday.

—Dr. Cowan has not found that fur glove yet. The Dr. would like very much to have the finder return it. It was made of otter fur and was prized highly by him.

—R. W. Cobb, professor of penmanship in Sprague business college, at Norwalk, Ohio, left for home yesterday. He was the guest of Miss Sadie Hollister during his visit to our city.

—There is a man by the name of Charles Ross, the long lost Charley, who borrowed a gun of Mr. Barton, living two miles east of town, and sold it for 75 cents, and then skipped the country.

—Our sanctum was made glad Tuesday, by the presence of Miss Letitia Coats and Miss Luella Stoner. Both are teachers in the public schools here, and both mourn over the disorganization caused by the loss of the school-house. Come again.

—Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Sanborn, desire to return their sincere thanks to the friends who so kindly assisted and sympathised with them during the late sickness and death of their little daughter, and assure them that the kindness thus shown in days of adversity, shall not be forgotten.

—Lost, on Saturday, November 6, between Eel-River depot and my residence, one mile north of Auburn, a small cable chain, with grab and open hook. The finder will be suitably rewarded by leaving it at this office.

CAL. HUSSELMAN.

—Dr. Shepherd met with a singular misfortune Tuesday evening. Having returned from a visit to one of his patients, he left his horse standing in front of his house. In some way it broke loose, ran away, and up to date neither horse nor buggy has been heard from.

—Dr. Humphery and Howard McCord, of the Physicians' drug-store, are practicing the art of taxidermy on the English sparrows. Several specimens of their work can be seen at the store, and it is hoped that they may be able to serve all these little pests in a similar way.

—In regard to the senatorial contest in Ohio, the Enquirer says: Newspapers are every-where wildly discussing the question, "Why did Foster withdraw?" None of them have hit on what may yet prove to be the correct solution, namely, that Foster withdrew because he could not advance.

—Appollo commandery No. 19, K. T., of Kendallville, had a public installation of officers and banquet on Tuesday evening of this week. The following officers were installed for the coming term: John Butt, E. C.; G. W. Hartsuck, general; R. Wes. McBride, C. G.; George D. Hartsuck, P.; F. E. Davenport, S. W.; G. A. Bishop, J. W.; S. J. M. Loomis, treasurer; H. A. Moyer, recorder; A. R. Stevens, warder; C. C. Acton, St. B.; J. W. Leighty, sword bearer; S. A. Wilson, C. G. It will be observed that DeKalb county knights carried off a full share of the offices, and without doubt their full share of the banquet.

—Last Friday night Mr. Groscop, living several miles northwest of town, gave an old time hop at his residence in commemoration of the blessing of 1880, and a general good time was had by all who participated. So facinating were the exercises that one of our townsmen, who happened to be in that neighborhood "buying wool," was induced to take part. This decendant of Jerusalem became a favorite among the rural lasses, and was detained until about three o'clock in the morning, when he was sent home to his family, tired, sleepy and well nigh broken down He finally reached home, seated himself in an arm-chair, and was just in the act of removing a pair of No. 11 boots from his blistered feet when his better-half, in a very commanding tone called out: "Simon, is that you! Where on earth have been?" Simon, with his even temper answered: "Out pying vool, my darling, and I couldn't get me pack any sooner."

Bar Meeting.

The DeKalb County Bar Association held a meeting at the court house, on Tuesday of this week, and elected the following officers for the coming year, viz: Jas. E. Rose, president; R. Wes. McBride, vice-president; P. J. Lockwood, treasurer; J. M. Somers, secretary; Gen. L. J. Blair, member of the executive committee. Resolutions were adopted to have a social and banquet sometime during the month of January, 1881—time and place to be fixed by the executive committee. The meeting then adjourned until April next.

Election of Officers.

On Friday evening last the following officers of lodge No. 1,436, K. of H., Waterloo, were elected: J. C. Boyer, dictator; John Koons, vice dictator; Phil. Plum, assistant dictator; E. E. Long, reporter; Peter Fisher, financial reporter; Wm. B. Duncan, treasurer Dr. A. B. Darbey, chaplain; Wm. H. Leas, guide; Thos. R. Cool, guardian; Jas. R. Duncan, sentinel; Dr. J. H. Stough, medical examiner; and B. L. Duncan, David McEntarfer, and Sam. R. Rickle, trustees; Jas. R. Duncan, representative to grand lodge, and Wm H. Leas, alternate. The order at Waterloo numbers 43 members, and is in a flourishing condition. Installation tomorrow evening.

Birthday Party.

One of the most enjoyable affairs of the season, was the party new-years at the residence of Charles Jenkens, in memory of the the thirty-fifth birthday of Mrs. Jenkens. A jollier crowd is seldom seen, than were assembled there. The guests present were fifty in number, including children. After presenting their gifts and partaking of a most bountiful dinner, prepared by the lady friends, all departed to their respective homes, hoping that Mr. and Mrs. Jenkens may live long to celebrate many birthdays.

A. GUEST.

NEIGHBORHOOD NIPPINGS.

DECATUR DEMOCRAT:

It may not be generally known, but it is a fact, nevertheless, that a Decatur woman is under bond in the sum of $3,500 to keep her mouth shut; that is, to keep her tongue from slandering her neighbors who are her superiors intellectually, morally and socially. It seems tough, but the neighbors say it is effective.

A Mr. Morningstar, of the south part of the county, gave his note some months ago to a patent-medicine swindler for $300. The note fell due and he refused to pay. He charged that the note was fraudulently obtained, and that he was not of sound mind when he gave the note. The party holding the note sued, and the case was tried last week in the circuit court. The jury found a verdict in favor of Morningstar. Motion was made for a new trial.

Court had adjourned last Friday night when the jury brought in its verdict in the Morningstar case. The foreman, therefore, would remain custodian of the verdict until he could deliver the same to the court. The custodian, however, who was a Mr. Mann, of Preble township, discovered that on the morning no verdict was to be found. The report rapidly spread that the verdict had been lost, and much speculation was indulged in as to what would or could be done about it. Judge Bobo simply ordered the jury to retire and bring in a verdict the same as the original one.

STEUBEN REPUBLICAN:

Sometimes a change of a single letter in a name makes a great deal of difference. For instance, a few months ago the auditor and county commissioners certified a list of citizens of Steuben county to be drawn as grand jurors. Among the other names appeared that of Frances L. Tuttle, of Pleasant Lake. A few days ago an officer of the law went down there for the purpose of summoning the aforesaid Tuttle. His surprise may better be imagined than described when he found that Tuttle was a lady. None of the officers noticed on the original list that the name was Frances instead of Francis.

The engineers engaged in surveying a line for the Toledo and Indiana Northern railroad arrived at this place last Friday. On Saturday the chief engineer, Mr. Sargent, walked over the quarter line north of the Angola road, from a point near Mrs. Cline's place, east of town, to the east part of York township. He found a very favorable route, not a hill or marsh obstructing the way. Mr. S. A. Powers accompanied Mr. Sargent as far as Bridgewater Center, Ohio, and we understand that the latter expresses himself as very much pleased with the country, and thinks a road can be built much cheaper by following the quarter line than by taking the route first surveyed north of Pigeon lake. On Monday the surveyors started back, and if they find the grade as good as is expected, the road will undoubtedly be located on the the quarter line for sixteen miles east of Angola. It will then tend in a northeasterly direction to Bridgewater Center, crossing the St. Joe river just north of that place. In this county it will go just north of Pat Powers' house in York township, and north of the school-house in Columbia, Williams county. Mr. Sargent has also mapped out a line running from Ezekiel Kellogg's place through the Highbank valley in a southwesterly direction to a point about three-fourths of a mile north of Metz and then back to the quarter line. The shorter route will, however, in all probability be chosen. The route through Angola has not as yet been decided upon. A very careful survey is being made and it is evident that no bluff game is being played.

GOSHEN TIMES:

Last week the Canada Southern railroad company perfected their right of way through this county, and it is supposed that the road will be completed to Chicago at an early day. This will be separate and independent of the new Lake Shore road.

At Elkhart the St. Joe is three feet below the top of the dam, and the Elkhart two feet. At South Bend the low water interferes with the city water works. Only one pump can be kept in operation, leaving the water in the stand-pipe at considerably less than fire pressure.

SYRACUSE EXPRESS:

A. M. Jones left at our office a small package of wheat, raised by his brother, who resides at Madison, Tole county, California. The wheat was taken from a pile of 30,000 tons, now lying at Madison, and is called Prince of Bute. The farmers are invited to call and see it.

ANGOLA HERALD.

Several of the farmers of Salem township have been annoyed by sheep-killing dogs. Wm. Brown and his neighbor, Mr. Price, had several sheep badly crippled lately by these useless curs. Our advice would be to "shoot the dogs."

Mr. Pence of the grammar department, was made the recipient of an elegant student's lamp, as a token of the esteem in which he is held by the pupils of his room.

—Squire M. P. Barker, of Smithfield township, had a wedding at his house on last Sunday evening. It was the squire's first attempt at tying knots of this kind, but report says that he is a success.

Waterloo.

—Josh Billings at Haines' hall January 10.

—Hon. Freeman Kelley is in Ohio attending a wedding.

—Don't fail to hear the inimitable Josh. on Monday next.

—Capt. Cutter has gone to Evansville, Ind., to assist in the erection of a mill there.

—Miss Libbie Bevier has returned to Ft. Wayne to attend school at the Methodist college.

—J. E. Thomson, of Smithfield, is attending the Dairymen's association at Indianapolis this week.

—"Probabilities of Life," by Josh Billings, (Henry Shaw) at Haines' hall, Monday evening, January 10.

—O. C. Dickinson and Fannie Bowers were made one last Thursday. All right, Oliver, you did a sensible thing.

—Presbyterian mite society will be entertained by Mrs. J. A. Barns on Wednesday evening, January 12. Al are invited.

—Tickets for Josh Billing's lecture may be had by addressing R. Wes. McBride, or G. H. Haines, Waterloo. Reserved seats 50 cents.

—Father Sloan is lying quite ill at the residence of his son-in-law, Dr. Winslow, and fears are entertained that he will not recover.

—S. Z. Dickinson and his estimable lady gave a small party on Thursday evening. This makes two occasions of the kind for S. Z., and still there's more to follow.

—Mrs. Julia Lochemyer has been taken to the county asylum. This is the best thing that could be done for her, as her peculiarities make it difficult for her neighbors to do much for her.

—H. K. Leas is cashier in the Citizens bank, Mr. Waterman having retired to his farm in Franklin township. The retiring officer has the respect of all who have had dealings with the bank during his connection with it. The new cashier brings into the work a thorough knowledge of the business, and will make himself acceptable to the public by his affability and attention to business.

Fort Wayne News: A good story is told by the boys about the Foster block concerning a certain young man who occupies a sleeping apartment in the third story. The young man reported to Foster that he had for several nights heard the noise of a drill, and he could nearly locate the place in the wall where the burglars were at work. He even notified the police. An examination showed that he had heard from his breezy dormitory the sound of the post office clerks stamping matter for the night trains.

W. H. Harter, son of the trustee of Springfield township, has just received $75 from the Indiana Farmer for having raised the largest crop of corn in the state from a single acre. The crop was 154 bushels and a fraction. Auditor Argo has a specimen stalk at his office.

James Buchanan, president of the United States, made an election bet in 1849 and lost it, and the deed by which he conveyed his land that he forfeited is, in his own handwriting, on file at Warren, Pa.

Bert Harte has been giving his lecture "The Argonauts of '49," at Edinburg. The Lord Provost presided and the hall was crowded.

Gen. Stoneman, who lives at Los Angelas, Cal., is making money out of grapes. He has just sold his crop of the present year for $10,000.

The "proper caper" at London dinner parties now is to have real fruit trees in the dining room, so that the guests may gather their own dessert.

Dentistry.

Those who find their teeth decaying, or in any way needing attention, can do no better than to call on Dr. Johnston, over Boyer's drug-store, in Waterloo. He has at hand every means for doing good work of all kinds, such as plate work, filling, cleaning, etc. A little attention to these matters in time will save a good deal of suffering, much expense, and preserve your teeth at the same time.

DIED.

Nellie, daughter of H. O. Sanburn, of this place, died Saturday morning, and was buried Sunday afternoon, aged 13 years.

Also, a little son of E. Mosier, on Friday evening of last week.

—Charles Shepherd, of the firm of Thompson & Shepherd, agents for the Ohio farmer's insurance company, at Hicksville, Ohio, gave us a call Tuesday evening. Mr. Shepherd intends locating a branch office here soon.

—D. D. Moody gave the COURIER office a call before leaving for Indianapolis. D. D. will take to the lawmaking business, and add one more to the able representatives this county has had in the state legislature.

—Dentistry is a fine art, and Dr. S. B. Johnston, of this place, is a master of it. We speak from an experience of several years treatment at his hands.

—While sawing wood with Ben Williams' sawing machine, Alf. Griswold accidently got his hand against the saw, cutting two fingers of his right off.

—Mrs. Jones has bought the McIntyre property just east of the Central house, for a residence

A Happy Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. William Nelson, of Jackson township, gave a reception to a number of friends on Friday of last week, that being the fortieth anniversary of their wedding day. Among the guests we note the following: Rev. Levi Rice and wife, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Morr, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. William McClellan, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Simonton, Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Elson, Mr. and Mrs. John Coy, Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Shaffer, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Williams, Mr. and Ms. J. A. Barns, Peter Shaffer, Mrs. Matilda Widney, Mrs. Tarney, Mrs. Josephine Morr, Nelson Morr, Mrs. Gilford, and others, whose names we did not get. The time was passed very pleasantly in discussing the olden times, and exhibiting various relics of by-gone days. Many of these mementoes date from ante-revolutionary times, and are peculiarly interesting as showing the care our ancestors took to preserve such things. Remarks were made by Rev. Mr. Rice, and prayer offered by him; also remarks by Mr. and Mrs. Nelson, and Mr. Barns. Many appropriate and valuable presents were made by the attending guests, after which all sat down to the bounteous meal prepared by the host and hostess of the happy occasion.

William Nelson was united in marriage to Margaret Williams in what was then Richland (now Ashland) county, Ohio, Dec. 31, 1840. They moved into this county in the spring of 1866, and in 1874 took up their abode in their present residence. Mr. Nelson is now 63 years old and his wife 60. The fruits of this union are five girls and two boys, of whom Wealthy, wife of J. G. Lawhead, and Margaret, wife of David Myers, are deceased. Three daughters, Olive, Josephine and Belle, and two sons, L. D. and W. L. are still living.

St. Joe.

—John Leighty and wife, who have been dangerously sick, are slowly improving.

—James Rickets is convalescent.

—O. H. is a regular attendant at sabbath-school.

—Bell and M. E. Olds received their share of nice things off the Christmas-tree.

—J. D. Leighty and lady, and M. E. Olds and lady patronized the oyster supper at Spencerville new-year's eve.

—A good many of the young people of St. Joe attended the hop at Henry Hull's on new-year's eve.

—V. Likens and Mary Saltgiver were made one on Friday. Geo. Barney tied the knot.

—Mars has made the usual new-year's resolve, and we hope may prove faithful.

—Some of the holders of Elson's Hicksville lottery-tickets are some wiser and poorer since the drawing occurred on Saturday last. There was only one prize drawn out of the many tickets held in this vicinity, and that was a pair of sheep-skin gloves. They are the property of Chas. W. Widney and lady, and we presume they will have them on exhibition for the next thirty days.

—Anyone having a surplus of pictures and wishing to dispose of them, should write or call on Elias Bell at St. Joe. Bell is whole-souled, and a great lover of the fine art, which he will prove to you should you visit his office near the bridge.

—It is said that Thad. Meese has the appointment of minister to China, and will appoint Uncle Jim Baker, of Concord, as such minister extraordinary. We overheard Thad. explaining the duties of such minister to Uncle Jim the other day, and from the conversation expect to hear that Uncle Jim will accept the position.

—The school at St. Joe has not "panned out" very well this term. The parents of the children not recognizing the right of the teacher to whip, slash and jerk to the extent that it was practiced by the teacher, he was invited to discontinue, and the result is that the district is without a teacher. There is a good chance for some one who wishes to teach the balance of the term.

—Mr. Willard DeWitt, of Steuben county, has been visiting his grand daughter, Mrs. Wash Link, at the junction. Mr. DeWitt is 107 years old, and was born in the state of New York. In 1843 he moved to this county. His oldest child, if living, would be 80 years old. Mr. DeWitt was a soldier in the war of 1812, and takes delight in talking of incidents connected with it. The old gentleman still retains all his faculties, and is bright and lively. He claims that at 109, he could cut as much cordwood in a day as any one. He and his wife cut up, and partly husked, 16 acres of corn this fall. For the past three months, however, his strength has begun to fail, somewhat to the old gentleman's disgust. He don't seem to be able to account for it. He has a good farm, and is in comfortable circumstances.

—The Ligonier Banner says the law requires the township trustees to advertise in a newspaper the place and day of each week they are ready to transact the business of their office. The law also requires each trustee to publish in a newspaper each year the receipts and expenditures of his township. These plain provisions of law are not, as a rule, complied with.

Married.

At the residence of the bride's father, in Waterloo, Dec. 30, O. C. Dickinson to Miss Fannie Bowers. Rev. H. J. Lacey was the officiating clergyman.

—Married, at the residence of Rev. Levi Rice, pastor of the Lutheran church in this place, Mr. Jacob Scott to Miss Minnie Wagoner, both of Richland township, in this county. The happy couple are old-time friends of ours, having both been successful teachers for a number of years. They have our best wishes for future happiness.

1881.
HARPER'S BAZAR.

[ILLUSTRATED.]

This periodical, by its able and scholarly discussions of the questions of the day, as well as by its illustrations—which are prepared by the best artists—has always exerted a most powerful and beneficial influence upon the public mind.

The weight of its influence will always be found on the side of morality, enlightenment and refinement.

HARPER'S PERIODICALS.

HARPER'S BAZAR one year	4 00
" WEEKLY one year......	4 00
" MAGAZINE one year....	$4 00
The three above publications....	10 00
Any two above named........	7 00
HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE 1 year..	1 50

Postage free to all subscribers in the United States or Canada.

The volumes of the Weekly begin with the first number for January of each year. When no time is mentioned it will be understood that the subscriber wishes to commence with the number next after the receipt of order.

The last eleven annual volumes of Harper's Weekly, in neat cloth binding, will be sent by mail, postage paid, or by express, free of expense (provided the freight does not exceed one dollar per volume), for $7.00 each.

Cloth cases for each volume, suitable for binding, will be sent by mail, post-paid, on receipt of $1.00 each.

Remittances should be made by post-office money-order or draft, to avoid chance of loss.

[Newspapers are not to copy this advertisement without the express order of Harper & Brothers.]

Address, HARPER & BROTHERS,
New York.

Final Settlement.

Notice is hereby given that Robert Arford administrator of the estate of David Hickle deceased, has filed his final settlement report in my office, and the same will be heard at the next term of the DeKalb circuit court.

JOHN W. BAXTER, Clerk.

December 14, 1880. 51-4

ESTRAY NOTICE.

Taken up by John S. Boots, of Jackson township, DeKalb county, Indiana, five fat hogs, two black and three white, of an average weight of 180 pounds, and of the appraised value of thirty-six dollars ($36), as reported to me by John Henderson, a justice of the peace of said township, on the 18th day of December, 1880.

JOHN W. BAXTER, Clerk.

December 30, 1880.

Pinchin & Boyle, Attorneys.

Notice to Non-Resident.

State of Indiana, DeKalb county—In the DeKalb circuit court, February term, 1880.

Sophia Griswold is hereby notified that an action has been commenced against her in said court, for foreclosure of mortgage by Charles L. Luce, Jesse G. Gould and Arthur B. Luce, and that the same will be heard and determined on the second juridical day of the next term of said court, which commences February 28, 1881.

Witness, the clerk of said court, this 28th day of December, 1880.

JNO. W. BAXTER, Clerk.

Rose & Hartman, Attorneys.

Notice to Non-Residents.

State of Indiana, DeKalb county—In the DeKalb circuit court, February term, 1881.

Lucinda Waydelich, Jacob Waderlich and Raymond Knisley, impleaded with others, are hereby notified that an action has been commenced against them in said court, in partition by Joseph Bell, and that the same will be heard and determined on the 2d juridical day of the next term of said court, which commences February 28th, 1881.

Witness, the clerk of said court, this 23d day of December, 1880.

53-3t. JOHN W. BAXTER, Clerk.

Administrator's Sale.

Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of an order of the DeKalb circuit court, the undersigned, administrator of the estate of Hiram Loutzenheizer, deceased, will offer for sale at public auction on the premises, on Saturday, the 5th day of February, 1881, the following premises in DeKalb county, in the state of Indiana, to wit:

A part of the south half of the north-east quarter of section thirteen (13), in township number thirty-three (33), north of range thirteen (13) east, bounded by a line commencing at a point on the east boundary line of said section, seventy rods south of the north-east corner of said south half, and running thence west on a line parallel with the south boundary line of said north-east quarter to a point equal-distant from the east and west boundary lines of said north-east quarter, thence south to the south boundary line of said south-east quarter, thence east on said line to the south-east corner of said north-east quarter, thence north to the place of beginning, containing five acres more or less.

Terms: one third cash, the residue in equal payments at twelve and eighteen months, with note at interest, waiving benefit of appraisement laws, and secured by mortgage upon the real estate sold. Sale to commence at two o'clock p. m.

HENRY HINES, Administrator.

BUTT'S HOTEL

FREE OMNIBUS TO AND FROM ALL trains. Good sample rooms on first floor. John Butt, Proprietor, Waterloo, Indiana.

ATTORNEYS.

D. D. Moody,

ATTORNEY AT LAW AND NOTARY public. Also Prosecuting attorney for DeKalb County. Office in Court House. Auburn, Ind.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Thomas Baldock,

PROPRIETOR of Stuart's patent compound Asphalt roofing, for DeKalb county, Ind., manufactured at Charlotte, Michigan. Consult or address at Auburn, Ind.

BUSINESS CARDS.

Cards not exceeding five lines each will be inserted under this head for $5.0 per annum. For each additional line 50 cents extra will be charged.

PHYSICIANS.

J. J. Littlefield.

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. OFFICE AND residence on 10th St., opposite R. W. Ralston's. All calls promptly attended to, day or night. Auburn, Indiana. 33 ly

HOTELS.

Central House,

TENTH STREET, EAST OF MAIN. GOOD sample room, and low rates. T. D. Gross, Prop'r Auburn, Ind.

AUBURN COURIER.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 6, 1881.

CALENDAR FOR 1881.

'81	Sun.	Mon.	Tue.	Wed.	Thu.	Fri.	Sat.	'81	Sun.	Mon.	Tue.	Wed.	Thu.	Fri.	Sat.
JAN.	...	...	...	...	...	...	1	JULY.	...	...	...	...	...	1	2
	2	3	4	5	6	7	8		3	4	5	6	7	8	9
	9	10	11	12	13	14	15		10	11	12	13	14	15	16
	16	17	18	19	20	21	22		17	18	19	20	21	22	23
	23	24	25	26	27	28	29		24	25	26	27	28	29	30
	30	31	...	...	...	...	...		31	...	...	...	...	...	...
FEB.	...	...	1	2	3	4	5	AUG.	...	1	2	3	4	5	6
	6	7	8	9	10	11	12		7	8	9	10	11	12	13
	13	14	15	16	17	18	19		14	15	16	17	18	19	20
	20	21	22	23	24	25	26		21	22	23	24	25	26	27
	27	28	...	...	...	...	...		28	29	30	31	...	...	...
MAR.	...	...	1	2	3	4	5	SEPT.	...	...	...	...	1	2	3
	6	7	8	9	10	11	12		4	5	6	7	8	9	10
	13	14	15	16	17	18	19		11	12	13	14	15	16	17
	20	21	22	23	24	25	26		18	19	20	21	22	23	24
	27	28	29	30	31	...	...		25	26	27	28	29	30	...
APR.	...	...	...	...	...	1	2	OCT.	...	...	...	...	...	...	1
	3	4	5	6	7	8	9		2	3	4	5	6	7	8
	10	11	12	13	14	15	16		9	10	11	12	13	14	15
	17	18	19	20	21	22	23		16	17	18	19	20	21	22
	24	25	26	27	28	29	30		23	24	25	26	27	28	29
									30	31	...	...	...	...	...
MAY.	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	NOV.	...	...	1	2	3	4	5
	8	9	10	11	12	13	14		6	7	8	9	10	11	12
	15	16	17	18	19	20	21		13	14	15	16	17	18	19
	22	23	24	25	26	27	28		20	21	22	23	24	25	26
	29	30	31	...	...	...	...		27	28	29	30	...	...	...
JUNE.	...	...	...	1	2	3	4	DEC.	...	...	...	...	1	2	3
	5	6	7	8	9	10	11		4	5	6	7	8	9	10
	12	13	14	15	16	17	18		11	12	13	14	15	16	17
	19	20	21	22	23	24	25		18	19	20	21	22	23	24
	26	27	28	29	30	...	...		25	26	27	28	29	30	31

WEEKLY NEWS REVIEW.

THE EAST.

An engine of the Reading railroad exploded near Palo Alto, Pa., killing the engineer, a conductor and two brakemen.... By an explosion of giant-powder cartridges on the track of the Lehigh Valley railroad, two men were killed and two others injured.... Those who recall the annoyance inflicted upon Rev. Dr. Dix, of New York, last winter, by "Gentleman Joe," will be interested in learning that the latter has closed his days in prison, at Sing Sing, dying of a gastric affection.

Albert Magee, of Bradford, Pa., put a can containing thirty-seven pounds of nitroglycerine, which had congealed, into a tub of warm water to liquefy it. An explosion followed, and Magee was blown to atoms.... Three men, John Shea, Chester Morse and J. Bruce, while attempting to cross the Boston and Albany railroad track in a wagon at Natick, Mass., were struck by a train, and all instantly killed.... Hamilton and Griffith, two iron-workers of Pittsburgh, claim to have discovered a process by which they can manufacture fine-grade iron, now costing about $100 per ton, at a cost of $30. Their process will be given a trial in a Pittsburgh mill.... Henry Ostrander, a young man of 29 years, residing at Utica, N. Y., became jealous of his brother George, because their little sister Carrie caressed the latter. He spit tobacco juice into the girl's face, and, on being remonstrated with by George, shot the latter dead.

The mutilated bodies of Jacob Gogle and wife, residing near Bethlehem, Pa., having been found in their bed, Joseph Snyder, who boarded in their family, was lynched for the crime by a mob. He made a detailed confession, from which it appeared that he had been refused the hand of their daughter by his victims, and thought to possess her after their death.... Rev. Dr. Edwin H. Chapin, one of the most eloquent and gifted clergymen in the United States, died in New York on Sunday. He began his pulpit labors in Richmond, and in 1848 was installed as pastor of the Fourth Universalist Church of New York.... The total population of the State of Vermont is 332,286. The foreign-born citizens number only 40,496. There are 1,043 colored persons, 6 Indians, and 3 half-breeds. The males outnumber the females by 1,491.... By the explosion of a boiler in Dodge's shoe factory, at Newburyport, Mass., three employes were killed and several slightly injured.... The Railroad Commissioners of Massachusetts have refused to permit the erection of elevated roads in Boston.... Two men lost their lives during a snow-storm near Red Bank, N. J.

An investigation into cruelties practiced at the penitentiary at Syracuse, N. Y., reveals terrible inhumanity toward the inmates. An ex-convict named Cusick has sued Supt. Spalding for $1,000.

The payments at the New York Clearing House for the past year were larger than those of London, and exceed the receipts and disbursements of the United States Government during the whole period of its existence. .... The table factory of Brown & Bliss, in Cherry street, New York, has been burned. Loss, $100,000.... A block of stores at Mystic River, Ct., has been destroyed by fire, involving a loss of $55,000.

THE WEST.

The Grand Jury at Salt Lake, composed of nine Mormons and six Gentiles, notwithstanding a pointed charge in regard to polygamous marriages, has returned no indictments. The disciples of Brigham Young hold the balance of power in Idaho, Wyoming, and Arizona, and are gaining a firm foothold in Montana.... The Pacific flouring-mill at St. Louis, a six-story stone structure, occupying a quarter block, has been reduced to ashes. One miller escaped with his clothes in flames, and Fireman Carroll lost his life. The loss was $75,000.

A committee of the Chicago Board of Trade, which was appointed some time ago to seek out new quarters for the board, have reported in favor of the erection of a new Chamber of Commerce on the vacant tract lying between the Grand Pacific Hotel and the Rock Island depot.... Dr. Schooley and a dentist named Henry had a dispute at New Alexandria, Jefferson county, Ohio. A farmer named Buckingham interfered. Schooley drew his revolver and shot Buckingham in the head. Henry then beat Schooley with a shovel. Henry was uninjured. Schooley and Buckingham will probably die.... R. K. Scott, formerly Governor of South Carolina, killed W. G. Drury, a drug clerk, at Napoleon, Ohio. The latter had secreted Scott's son, who was intoxicated, in his bedroom at the store, and refused to let the father enter and take him home. Drury was to have been married in a few days. Scott was appointed Provisional Governor of South Carolina by President Johnson, and afterward elected Governor.

When the Ute Commissioners returned to Los Pinos, from Denver, they found 1,400 savages waiting to receive their installments of $27 each. Just after the silver was disbursed, a white man arrived with the body of Johnson, the Indian who was killed by the freighter, Jackson, and for two days the wildest demonstrations of rage were made, when the Commissioners fled to Denver, which they reached after a rough trip.... A dispatch from Fort Buford says that Scout Allison has arrived there with Crow King, the leading soldier of Sitting Bull's camp, and Grouper, a cousin of Sitting Bull, both noted chiefs, as delegates from Sitting Bull to hold a council with Maj. Brotherton, so as to make some definite settlement about the surrender. Allison left Sitting Bull at the mouth of Milk river, with instructions not to leave there until he returned for him.... The City Council of Chicago has passed the ordinance prohibiting the sale of butterine or oleomargarine for the genuine article of butter.... Surveys are being made for the St. Louis, Jerseyville and Springfield railroad, which it is proposed to construct next year, at a cost of $2,500,000.... Under the provision of the law of Michigan forbidding the sale of liquor on holidays, the temperance agitators of Detroit have secured the arrest of twenty of the most wealthy and influential saloon-keepers, as a practical test.

Gov. Scott, who killed young Drury at Napoleon, Ohio, has been committed to prison to await trial, having been refused bail. .... The boiler of a shingle-mill at Vestaburg, Mich., exploded with such force as to tear the structure to pieces, instantly killing Frank Filkins, the engineer, and Frank Ainsly, the night watch. The main part of the boiler was thrown forty-five rods, causing the death of O. Coukes and fatally injuring George Wilcox and M. Turk.

The Homestake Mining Company, of Deadwood, by an expenditure of $1,500,000, has secured possession of the most valuable portion of the gold belt in the Black Hills.... A family quarrel at Francisco, Ind., ended in the death of Thomas Burchfield at the hands of his sister-in-law, Mrs. Dorcas Burchfield. The latter is in jail.

THE SOUTH.

Additional particulars of the accident on the Carolina Central railroad show that the loss of life was much greater than was at first supposed. Five men were killed outright or burned to death in the debris of the train, two were seriously injured, and one slightly bruised.

The burning of three stores in Corsicana, Texas, caused a loss exceeding the insurance by $50,000.

A thrilling tragedy occurred in a smoking-car on the Iron Mountain railway at Neeleyville, Mo. As Conductor Welch entered the smoking-car he was met by a man who covered him with a revolver, ordering him to stand aside. The man then pushed Welch off the platform, and, turning, fired into the crowded car several times. He then jumped to the ground and disappeared in the adjoining woods. When Welch gained his feet and re-entered the car he found the passengers terribly excited, and nearly all hidden under the seats. Stretched in the center of the aisle was Dr. J. H. Payne, of Carroll, Tex. He was mortally wounded, and gasped faintly "I am killed." P. P. Jones, of Beaver county, Pennsylvania, lay across his seat, with the blood streaming from a wound in the arm. His wife, in an opposite seat, was wounded in the head. Both will die, it is thought. Two other persons were wounded, but not fatally. The assassin is unknown, and the cause of the shooting is shrouded in mystery.... Mr. Gardner, a prominent citizen of Hart county, Ky., was murdered in his barn by two young colored men, brothers, named Campbell. The murderers were arrested, one of them made a confession, and a mob hung them to the nearest tree.... The South Carolina Legislature has passed a very stringent law against dueling. Any person who is proved to have sent or accepted a challenge shall be disfranchised forever, and may be imprisoned for two years. Killing a person in a duel is defined willful murder, and legislators are obliged to pledge themselves against dueling.... A railroad collision on the Mobile and Ohio railroad, at State Line, Ala., resulted in the death of an engineer and three passengers.

Another frightful railroad accident is reported from South Carolina. The second section of a freight train on the Air Line ran into some cars which had become detached from the first section. Three passengers in the caboose were killed, one of them being burned alive, and one was seriously injured.... Judge Percy Walker, of Mobile, Ala., ex-Member of Congress, is dead.

At Smithville, Va., a white man named Dunn got into a difficulty with some colored men who had met to organize a military company. He shot two of them dead, cut a third so badly that he will probably die, and inflicted less serious wounds upon several others.... The death is announced of Anthony Dieters, of Wheeling, W. Va. He was made a Mason in Prussia seventy-five years ago, was wounded nine times in Napoleon's campaigns, and witnessed the burning of Moscow.

Heavy snow-storms are reported all through Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Mississippi, Alabama, Louisiana and Texas, and the mercury dropped down several degrees below freezing point. No such weather has been known there for twenty years.

GENERAL.

The Mexican Government has detailed two engineers, three staff officers, and a physician to accompany Capt. Eads in his surveying tour over the Isthmus of Tehauntepec.

The offices of the following newspapers were burned on Christmas eve: Summit (Miss.) Sentinel, Burkeville (Va.) Sentinel, Ogdensburg (N. Y.) Advance, Norway (Me.) New Religion, and Summit (Miss.) Times. The office of the Detroit Free Press was slightly damaged by fire, and Editor A. M. Conkling, of the Socorro (New Mexico) Sun, was brutally murdered by Mexican desperadoes.... William L. Royal, late of Richmond, Va., now of New York, is to issue through E. J. Hale & Son, of New York, a reply to Tourgee's "Fool's Errand.".... A Christmas party of six, returning to their home from a friend's house near Lucan, Ont., while crossing a railway track in a wagon, were struck by a passing train, and four of the party—James McGrath, his wife, Matthew McGrath and Ellen Blake—were killed. A child 13 months old was badly injured.

The soldiers in the Quebec (Canada) citadel have had fifty rounds of ball cartridge served out to them, double sentries have been placed on the walls, and every precaution taken to guard against surprise. It is reported that an imperial spy has been there and has left for Montreal on his way to the United States. His mission is to ascertain the strength and position of the Irish in America and the movements of the Land Leaguers.

The following statement shows the population of certain States and Territories according to the United States census of 1880. This statement is still subject to possible corrections by reason of the discovery of omissions or duplication of names in the lists of inhabitants returned:

Alabama	1,261,241	New York	5,082,844
Arkansas	802,564	North Carolina	1,400,000
Connecticut	622,683	Oregon	174,767
Delaware	146,654	Rhode Island	276,528
Florida	266, 66	South Carolina	995,706
Georgia	1,537,870	Tennessee	1,542,463
Iowa	1,624,464	Vermont	332,286
Kansas	995,335	Virginia	1,512,203
Kentucky	1,648,599	West Virginia	618,193
Louisiana	940,263	Wisconsin	1,315,386
Maine	648,945	Dist. Columbia	177,638
Massachusetts	1,78[illegible]	Idaho	32,611
Missouri	2,169,091	Montana	39,157
Nebraska	452,432	Utah	143,907
Nevada	62,252	Washington	75,120
New Hampshire	347,784	Wyoming	20,788
New Jersey	1,130,892

WASHINGTON.

The first volume of the history of the war, which is being gotten up under the auspices of the War Department, has been published. It deals with the events preceding the firing on Fort Sumter, which ended in secession. No such gigantic historical undertaking was ever before begun.

It is believed in Washington that Justice Swayne will retire from the Supreme bench in a few days, and that Justices Hunt and Clifford will soon follow him. The Hon. Stanley Matthews, of Ohio, is expected to be Justice Swayne's successor, and Attorney General Devens, of Massachusetts, the successor of Justice Clifford.... Commissioner Le Duc has completed arrangements for an experimental tea farm, two miles from Summerville, S. C.

The President, says a Washington telegram, has found so much difficulty in finding a suitable person to act as Secretary of the Navy for two months that he has partially decided to request Secretary Ramsey to perform the duties of both the Navy and War Departments until March 4, and, in order to comply with the technical language of the statute, will recommission him Secretary of the Navy every ten days.

The Judge Advocate General has been ordered to prepare the charges and specifications in the case of Cadet Whittaker, and a court-martial will be ordered at an early date, the sessions to be held in New York city. .... The excess of exports over imports for the month ending Nov. 30, 1880, were $55,804,340; month ending Nov. 30, 1879, $28,836,794; eleven months ending Nov. 30, 1880, $141,361,002; eleven months ending Nov. 30, 1879, $230,279,987; twelve months ending Nov. 30, 1880, $162,638,044; twelve months ending Nov. 30, 1879, $266,345,035.

POLITICAL.

Gen. Garfield is consulting with his friends about the formation of his Cabinet, and a Cleveland dispatch gives an idea of what has taken place. Although the President-elect has not yet decided upon anything definitely, it seems to be understood among those who have enjoyed his society of late that Ohio is to be skipped this time, that James F. Wilson, of Iowa, is to be Secretary of the Treasury, and that Blaine, of Maine, Filley of Missouri, Hitchcock, of Nebraska, Routt, of Colorado, and Morton, of New York, are regarded by Gen. Garfield with confidence.

A call for a meeting of New York Democrats to reorganize the party in that city was responded to by a large attendance. Abram S. Hewitt was the chief speaker, the audience rising to its feet when he said Tammany Hall is a thing of the past. It was resolved that the Chairman appoint a committee of fifty citizens to reorganize the party.... A special Congressional election in the Third District of New Hampshire, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the Hon. Evarts W. Farr, resulted in the election of Ray (Republican).

FOREIGN.

A cable dispatch announces the death in London, at the age of 60 years, of George Eliot, the English novelist, who in May last was married to John Walter Cross. She was a brilliant conversationalist, and had thoroughly mastered seven foreign languages. Her greatest works were "Adam Bede" and "Daniel Deronda," and her earnings by her pen were in excess of $250,000.

The introduction of the Land League in the North of Ireland has stirred up the tenant-right borderers, an organization having the same general objects in view, and they are becoming very active. The Protestant farmers are determined in their opposition to the movement.... The Emperor of China has consented to the construction of a telegraph line from Shanghai to Tientsin, a distance of 1,200 miles. .... The Grand Orange Lodge of Ireland, having received a large number of requests for protection, has resolved to enroll volunteers to guard Boycotted persons.

In a billiard match at Paris for the championship of the world and $2,000, between Vignaux, of France, and Slosson, of New York, the former was victorious. The game was 3,000 points, and lasted five days, 600 points being played each day. The American maintained a handsome lead the second, third and fourth days of the contest, and would probably have won the match but for a grossly unfair decision of the umpire. As it was, the Frenchman came out 45 points ahead, amid great excitement.... A detachment of the Ninety-fourth British regiment, consisting of 250 men, was attacked by the Boers while on their way from Lydenburg to Pectona, in the Transvaal, and 120 of them were killed, and the others were made prisoners. The Boers are greatly elated at their success.... Many Jews residing in Berlin avoid appearing in public localities. Many families are preparing to emigrate to Belgium, France and England.... London advices report that Great Britain is preparing for grave events in Ireland. "The movement of troops has excited a very uneasy feeling. It is generally believed the Government possesses information warranting the apprehension of danger. The Government has made very complete preparations for any contingency. Immense supplies of provisions, tents and other campaigning requisits have been stored in the central depots.".... The President-elect of the Swiss republic lately committed suicide by shooting himself.

An attempt was made to murder two ladies, mother and daughter, in Monasterbence, County Louth, Ireland. The shot missed its mark, and the would-be assassin fled, the younger lady securing his gun.... Two gunboats have arrived at Dublin. Bence Jones has been threatened with death, and anybody working for him or furnishing him with supplies is promised the same fate. Many of the jurors summoned for the state trials have been securely "Boycotted," and failed to respond when their names were called.... Thirty-seven Home-Rule members of the British Parliament held a council in Dublin, and resolved to oppose every Government refusing just demands by the Irish people. The horses were detached from Parnell's carriage, and the vehicle drawn through the streets by the people.... An explosion of fire-damp occurred in a colliery near St. Etienne, France, while the miners were at work. Several of them were killed.

The trial of the Irish traversers was begun at Dublin on the 28th of December. Only eighteen jurors responded to their names. From these a jury of twelve was selected after much difficulty. Eight of the number are Catholics, three Protestants and one Quaker. Chief Justice May declined to preside in the court owing to the false interpretation which had been placed upon his remarks concerning the traversers, therefore the trial proceeded with Justices Fitzgerald and Barry on the bench. .... Advices from South Africa report that the Boers have seized Utrecht. They occupy Heidelberg with 3,000 and Potchefstroom with 6,000 men. British troops have sailed to reinforce the colonists at the Cape.

The foot and mouth disease is spreading among cattle in all parts of England.... An address to the British nation praying for the re-establishment of the independence of Transvaal is receiving numerous signatures in Holland.... A St. Petersburg journal says that all the European powers except England have agreed on the arbitration plan for the settlement of the Greek question.... During the Christmas services in the church at Saillagott, France, the building fell, and seven persons were killed and about fifty persons received serious injury.... The remains of Mrs. Cross (George Eliot) were buried at Highgate Cemetery, London. The mourners included the husband of the deceased, and Profs. Tyndall, Bosley, and Calvin. The funeral services were conducted by Dr. Sadler, a Unitarian minister. Among those present were Herbert Spencer and Robert Browning.

Mixed.

An inquisitive boy who had been taught to believe in the resurrection of the identical atoms which constituted each individual during life, said to his mother:

"Ma, will all the heathen come up when it comes resurrection time?"

"Yes, my son."

"And then those missionaries; will they turn up, too?"

"Certainly, my son."

"Well, when them cannibal heathens what's been feedin' on missionaries, get resurrected, and them missionaries what's been eat comes around and wants to get resurrected, things is goin' to be worse mixed than the presidential election, hey, ma?"

"It is time you went to bed, my son."

Economy.

While all are willing to admit that the habit of economy is a useful, practical, and most desirable one, few would think of attributing to it anything of beauty or attractiveness. Yet the economy of money, or its best use—for they are synonymous—has in it this very element. Those who live fully up to or beyond their income, in the wearisome effort to build up to or keep up a certain style of appearance, really, though unconsciously, sacrifice the very attractiveness which they seek to produce. The difficult and painful effort which it costs they fully realize, but they imagine it to be hidden from all but themselves—and herein lies their great mistake.

SHOCKING RAILROAD ACCIDENT.

A horrible railroad accident occurred on the Carolina Central railroad, near Lincolnton, N. C., by which six of the nine persons on the train lost their lives. A passenger train, composed of the engine, three box-cars, one combination car with the mail, express and baggage in it, and one passenger coach, was going from Shelby to Charlotte. When the train reached what is known as the Indian Creek trestle, and just as the engine had crossed it, the whole frame-work gave way, and the entire train, except the engine and tender, went down with a fearful crash into the ravine, a distance of seventy feet. There was only a small rivulet at the bottom of the ravine, and the cars, in falling, were uncoupled and turned over, the combination car on its side and the passenger car bottom upwards. Scarcely had these fallen, and their crashing timbers ceased trembling, when the whole of the huge trestle-work came down upon the passenger and mail cars, literally flattening them, and completing the work of destruction. The only two witnesses of this fearful sight were Engineer Hall and Fireman Smith. The engine itself was stopped for a moment by the jerk of the falling train, and before it could start again the engineer stopped it, and the two jumped off and went to the wreck, which was only reached by taking a circuitous route. They were horrified at seeing flames bursting from every part of the passenger and combination cars, in which there had been red-hot stoves, which were upset in the fall. The engineer cried "My God! Smith, we are the only survivors left to tell the story." He caught up his ax and began to knock down the side of the passenger car, from which the flames were bursting in several places. He saw inside one of the passengers, F. N. Smith, who had been caught under a seat, which was pressed down on him by an immense beam that had fallen from the trestle-work. The engineer made heroic efforts to save the unfortunate man's life. He rushed in the burning debris and attempted to lift him up, but found that this could not be done until the big timber which pressed down upon his legs above the knees had been removed. With the assistance of the fireman he found he could not lift the timber, and he set to work to cut it. Smith was perfectly conscious, and, as he saw the flames nearing him rapidly, he piteously struggled under the weight which pinned him so helplessly in the track of the devouring element, and called upon the axman to do his best. The engineer worked with superhuman energy, and rained the blows upon the brittle wood thick and fast in the few minutes, which were hours of suspense to the engineer and the poor fellow who was held in a vise-like grip. The brave man with the ax could make but slow progress in his efforts to rescue the victim. Soon both the engineer and Smith were in the midst of the circle of flames. The timber was half cut through. The sweat upon the engineer's face was boiling from the heat, while the skin upon the back of his hands was cracking and shriveling in red and white streaks. The victim was slowly roasting alive. His face and hands were already blistering, while the scorched remnants of his garments were falling from his body in his mad contortions. His agony was intense, but he bore his sufferings like a man, and called bravely to the heroic axman "For God's sake try and save my life!" To which the other replied urging him to be of good cheer, for he would save him if human effort could accomplish anything. But the flames went faster than the ax could cut, and the engineer had to see the man he was trying to rescue roasted alive. He was soon forced to abandon his position, but he did not do so until his clothes were literally burned from his body. The imprisoned passenger was burned alive, and retained consciousness until his arms were nearly burned from the trunk. Before going he thanked the engineer for his heroic efforts. The other passengers were all buried under the cars, and were burned. Only their charred bones remained.

The bodies of the dead were disfigured beyond recognition.

The engineer and fireman at first counted the conductor among the killed, but he was afterward found in the woods, a raving maniac, and blood oozing from a ghastly wound in the head.

The Government Printing Office.

John D. Defrees, Public Printer, in his annual report, shows the actual expenditure on account of printing, binding, engraving, lithographing, etc., for the Government of the United States for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1880, as executed at the Government Printing Office, amounted to $2,034,750. The value of the stock on hand at the end of the fiscal year was $34,798.

During the second session of the Forty-sixth Congress there were printed for the Senate 1,649 bills and joint resolutions, 216 executive documents, 104 miscellaneous documents, 725 reports of committees, fifteen resolutions, and five confidential documents. For the House there were printed 3,808 bills and joint resolutions, ninety executive documents, forty-seven miscellaneous documents, nine resolutions, and 1,793 reports of committees. During the year there was received from sales of documents, records, waste paper, etc., $155,403, which has been deposited in the treasury. Regarding the enlargement of the building, Defrees says: "The enormous increase of public printing and binding is such as to require the enlargement of the building in which the work is done. There is not half room enough to store the printed matter as the printing progresses. Fifty thousand copies of the last annual report of the Commissioner of Agriculture have been printed, but, for want of storage, the printing of the remaining 250,000 copies has been suspended until the edition of 50,000 now printed can be bound and delivered. Other public documents are delayed for the same reason. As an evidence of the increase of work in this office, the number of blanks printed during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1879, exceeded those printed during the previous year by 30,854,933, and blank books by 126,511, and the increase of blanks printed during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1880, over those printed during 1879 is 35,454,886, and of blank books 94,195. The increase of work during the first quarter of the present fiscal year, as shown by requisitions from the Executive Department, exceeds that of the last fiscal year during the same time by 25 per cent."

Rules of the House.

At an Oil City hotel boards a father and son. The latter has been in the habit of staying out later than his father liked, and one day the latter said: "My son, the rule of this room hereafter is, that every person must be in before 10 o'clock, or else remain outside."

"Yes, sir," said the obedient son.

A night or two afterward the father was detained by his business until nearly 11 o'clock, and, on reaching his room, found the inside bolt drawn. He knocked, and was soon answered with, "Who's there?"

"Your father; get up and let me in."

"See here, the rule of this room is that every person must be in before 10 o'clock, or stay outside. Now don't make any more disturbance about here."

The father slept in another room that night.—Oil City Derrick.

Ex-Congressman Eugene Hale denies the report that he is going to move from Maine to Michigan.

SWAN LEGENDS.

The Romance Which Surrounds the Graceful Bird.

[Pall Mall Gazette.]

In the northern legends swans play a most romantic part. Two separate currents may be distinguished in the swan myths of Teutonic and Scandinavian countries. To one current belong the various stories of swan maidens, to the other those concerning the knights of the swan. Here, again, both traditions of beast worship and images of nature, poetry may play a part; though it is not clear that the swan maidens of the north had any other origin than the obvious one which would lie in process of imaginative reasoning like this: Swans are beings all softness, grace and purity; so are some rare maidens; therefore, some rare maidens are in reality swans.

At any rate there was no question that such supernatural beings existed. They were both fairer and wiser than mortal women. They could change from one shape to another at will. To assume the human shape they doffed robes of down or "swanshirts," but retained invariably a gold or silver chain about their necks. She whose swanshirt was carried off by a mortal could no longer, while he kept it safe, become a bird again or resume its freedom. On the other hand, she from whose neck in her human shape the chain was taken, immediately became a swan again, and could not recover her humanity until she got back her chain.

Sometimes a hunter approaching a forest pool would descry a damsel of more than mortal beauty bathing in its waters, would notice the chain about her neck and the robe of down hanging from a tree, would seize the robe and bear the damsel home to live with him in happiness until one day he should forget the key which kept her magic garment from her, and return to find her flown forever. Or swan-brides would consort of their own accord with warriors who had surprised them at dawn as they sat spinning in human shape beside the margin of a mountain tarn, until after seven years their hearts would change, and they would fly away, leaving their husbands to sally after them over the snow in vain.

Another Icelandic story tells how Helgi and Olaf fought on the ice of a frozen lake, and how Kara, the mistress of Helgi, hovered over the heads of the combatants in the likeness of a great swan, and by her magic blunted the weapons of them that fought against Helgi, until by chance he struck off a leg of the swan with his sword, and immediately the fortunes of the battle changed.

The other great swan myth of the north is that of the injured maiden, to whose aid, in her extremity, there comes sailing a knight in a boat drawn by an enchanted swan, and who, after the knight has rescued and made her his bride, destroys her happiness by insisting that he shall tell her who he is and whence he comes. We are all familiar with this tale as it is told by Wolfram von Eschenbach, and has in our own day been recast by Wagner concerning Elsa of Brabrant and Lohengrin, the son of Percivil.

Recollections of Aaron Burr.

"You want me to talk about Col. Burr," said Col. James Watson Webb to a newspaper man who called upon him at his home in New York. "Well, I knew him; he was a brave soldier in the Revolutionary war. He succeeded my father as aide on Gen. Putnam's staff after the battle of Bunker's Hill. Burr was a selfish scoundrel. I met him often during his last years. He used to urge Matthew L. Davis to write his (Burr's) life, but he added, 'only on one condition—you know what that is.' Davis turned to me and explained that Burr wouldn't permit his life to be written unless the biographer would agree to 'tell the truth about Washington,' by which Burr meant abuse him and deny him any great qualities, either as a man, a soldier, or a statesman. Davis would never consent to this. 'I won't do it,' he said to Burr in my presence. 'Then you sha'n't write my life!' responded Burr. The fact is, Burr never forgave Washington for refusing to appoint him Minister to France in 1795, when his party in the Senate unanimously recommended him for the distinguished place. Washington always disliked the brilliant New Yorker, whose various qualities were just the opposite of his own, and the feeling was naturally reciprocal. During the last year of his life, when he was 81, Burr withdrew the condition, but then he could not talk much, and Davis' materials were too meager. 'Send for Webb and Verplank,' said Burr. We went to his bedside. 'You two write out all the questions you can think of about my life,' said Burr, 'and then come here and read them and I will answer them.' We did so, and the answers formed the basis of Davis' biography—which was very partial, like Parton's, and not half true.

"One day the doctor told Burr that he would not live till morning. Burr turned his eyes toward us and said: 'He's an infernal old fool. Open that bureau-drawer.' It was opened. 'Do you see a letter on that box?' Verplank took up the dainty missive. 'It is from a lady,' said the dying man, 'and she says she will call on me to-morrow. Anybody who thinks I will die with such an appointment as that on hand doesn't know Col. Burr!'"

"How did Burr get a living at the last?" I asked him.

"He was supported by friends for years. He pretended to practice law; but he never practiced much. He had no sense of honor in money matters. He would borrow $50 on one corner, and distribute it to anybody who wanted it on the next corner."

"What was Burr's hold on Blennerhassett?"

"Weed and others think it was the beautiful Mrs. Blennerhassett, but I think it was Burr's own power of fascination on men as well as women. The expedition was merely a filibustering trip to grab Texas—the very thing that cost us so much money when we finally sent Sam Houston to do the same job."

"Please."

"Human nature," says a writer for young women, "resents the imperative mood." Think of this, girls. If you ask a child to wait on you, say "please." Be polite to servants and inferiors. Be courteous even to the cat. Why push her roughly aside, or invite her claws? If kind good-nature and gentleness ruled in every home, what sunlight would home enjoy! A great deal depends upon the girls—the sisters, the daughters.

POPULAR SCIENCE.

For articles of rubber which have become hard and brittle Dr. Pol recommends the following treatment: Immerse the articles in a mixture of water of ammonia one part and water two parts, for a time varying from a few minutes to an hour, according to the circumstances of the case. When the mixture has acted enough on the rubber it will be found to have recovered all its elasticity, smoothness and softness.

The royal engineers have tried the effect of gun-cotton in bringing down two old chimneys at the dock-yard extension works, Chatham, England. The first was demolished by placing a necklace of gun-cotton inside the chimney, the total charge consisting of about four and a half pounds. The second was destroyed by placing six charges of the explosive in the center of the base of the chimney, the total charge weighing twenty-eight ounces. The experiment was very successful. At the instant the electric spark ignited the gun-cotton the chimneys became wrecks.

After a tolerably exhaustive examination of the biography of the subject, Dr. Otto Kuntze maintains, but on ground not quite satisfactory, that the gulf weed consists of many varieties or species of Sargassum vulgare, and that the plants so named in the lump are either dying or dead and incapable of reproduction. There does not appear to be any good reason for assigning a definite and constant area to the Sargasso sea. Patches of weed occur more frequently in the region of calms, but sometimes there is very little of the weed there. Winds also affect the distribution of the patches with regard to each other and the position of the whole mass of weed.

Attention has been directed by M. Moride to a new kind of food to which the name "nutricine" has been given. Its preparation is thus described: Raw meat, from which bones and tendons have been carefully excised, is passed into suitable machines along with nitrogenized alimentary substances, such as bread, to absorb the water of the meat, and, possibly, to form new combinations with it. After the mass thus prepared is dried in a stove under a mild heat it is pulverized and sifted. A powder of an agreeable taste, and varying from yellow to gray in color, is the result. When albumen, fats, or gummed water is added to this powder solid cakes or cubes may be broken up, as occasion may require, for soups or sauces. This nutricine is admirably qualified to sustain physical vigor, and it can be preserved for any length of time if it is kept from the deteriorating influence of an atmosphere charged with moisture and from the action of heat.

How to Be Healthy.

If you want to do well, keep well, if you possibly can. Do not let even your education rob you of your health. It is about the worst thing you can do under the whip and spur of a noble purpose, and it is what vast numbers do to their life-long regret. When a fine painter took the butcher to see one of his pictures, he said, "Aye, Maister Haydon, it's a grand picture, but I doubt whether you could have done it if you had not eaten my beef." And I think there was a grain of truth in the remark. They say that base-ball is getting into the hands of the gamblers, and that young men are shy of it of a good breeding. I should be very sorry to think so. It is the handsomest game that ever was played, and one of the healthiest. Play base-ball, and pull a boat, and get your chance in vacation at long tramps and hard beds and rough, wholesome fare; eat well and sleep well; be as clean all through and all over as you are in a drawing-room, and then you will not only be able to do your day's work in this world like a man, but when the years bring their inevitable burden you will be able to say with Adam in the play:

> Though I look old, yet am I strong and lusty,
> For in my youth I never did apply
> Hot and rebellious liquors to my blood;
> Nor did with unbashful forehead woo
> The means of weakness and debility;
> Therefore my age is as a lusty winter,
> Frosty, but kindly.

Remember this, too, that, with health and strength to back you, life means hard work, and hard work on long lines, with native ability and good conduct, means success.—Rev. Robert Collyer

THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK.

Beeves	$8 75	@13 00
Hogs	4 80	@ 6 12½
Cotton	11¾	@ 12¾
Flour—Superfine	3 00	@ 3 70
Wheat—No. 2 Spring	1 12	@ 1 17
Corn—Ungraded	53	@ 57
Oats—Mixed Western	41	@ 45
Pork—Mess	12 00	@12 75
Lard	8¾	@ 9

CHICAGO.

Beeves—Choice Graded Steers	5 35	@ 6 25
Cows and Heifers	2 50	@ 3 75
Medium to Fair	4 35	@ 4 85
Hogs	3 50	@ 5 00
Flour—Fancy White Winter Ex	5 75	@ 6 00
Good to Choice Spring Ex	5 00	@ 5 25
Wheat—No. 2 Spring	96	@ 96
No. 3 Spring	80	@ 84
Corn—No. 2	35	@ 37
Oats—No. 2	29	@ 30
Rye—No. 2	83	@ 84
Barley—No. 2	1 06	@ 1 07
Butter—Choice Creamery	31	@ 33
Eggs—Fresh	27	@ 28
Pork—Mess	11 35	@12 50
Lard	8½	@ 8¾

MILWAUKEE.

Wheat—No. 1	98	@ 1 00
No. 2	94	@ 95
Corn—No 2	32	@ 33
Oats—No. 2	29	@ 30
Rye—No. 1	85	@ 86
Barley—No. 2	80	@ 81

ST. LOUIS.

Wheat—No. 2 Red	97	@ 98
Corn—Mixed	38	@ 39
Oats—No. 2	29	@ 30
Rye	81	@ 82
Pork—Mess	12 50	@12 75
Lard	8½	@ 8¾

CINCINNATI.

Wheat	1 02	@ 1 03
Corn	42	@ 43
Oats	35	@ 36
Rye	94	@ 95
Pork—Mess	12 75	@13 00
Lard	8½	@ 8¾

TOLEDO.

Wheat—No. 1 White	99	@ 1 00
No. 2 Red	99	@ 1 00
Corn—No. 2	39	@ 40
Oats—No. 2	34	@ 35

DETROIT.

Flour—Choice	[illegible]	@ 5 50
Wheat—No. 1 White	98	@ 99
Corn—No. 1	47	@ 48
Oats—Mixed	35	@ 37
Barley (per cental)	1 50	@ 2 00
Pork—Mess	12 50	@13 75

INDIANAPOLIS.

Wheat—No. 2 Red	98	@ 99
Corn	36	@ 37
Oats	31	@ 33
Pork—Clear	15 75	@16 00

EAST LIBERTY, PA.

Cattle—Best	5 00	@ 5 40
Fair	4 25	@ 4 50
Common	3 50	@ 4 00
Hogs	5 75	@ 6 00
Sheep	[illegible]	@ [illegible]

AUBURN COURIER.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 6, 1881.

AN old gentleman named W. P. Taherty has been employed in the State Department at Washington since 1836. He was appointed during President Jackson's administration, and has read the proof of all the United States laws from 1846 up to 1875. He has also been intimate with Gen. Lewis Cass, Daniel Webster, John C. Calhoun and other prominent men of the country, and is overflowing with anecdotes concerning them. He is now 77 years old, and as hale, active and energetic as could be expected.

HERE is a plot for an opera. The scene is laid in Rome, and the facts are taken from a letter to a London paper. A young man named Moretti, a tailor, was condemned to a short term of imprisonment for some alleged fraud in his dealings. A girl to whom he was betrothed went to the police magistrate to learn about his fate and prospects. The magistrate told her he would assuredly remain many years in prison. The girl in despair poisoned herself. Soon afterward Moretti is found to have been perfectly innocent, and is at once discharged. On learning the miserable end of his betrothed he, too, poisons himself.

MR. SILVER, a well-known inventor, of Lewiston, Me., for several months has eaten but one meal a day, and that about 10 o'clock in the evening, immediately before retiring. He works ten hours a day, as a machinist, without eating or drinking anything. Instead of pining away, Mr. Silver has gained thirty-five pounds in flesh. He is not hungry until bedtime. All the fluids his stomach receives are from the fruit and vegetables which make up most of his food. He eats no meat, as he believes that animal food is "animalizing," living mainly on oat-meal and Graham bread, without salt, but eating apples, grapes and other fruits liberally.

WHILE I was looking down upon the Senate, says a Washington correspondent, I was told that George Hoar, of Massachusetts, would probably be Secretary of State under Garfield. He presided over the Chicago Convention, prompted by McPherson, the old Clerk of the House, who is a sharp parliamentarian. George Hoar is an accommodating man, with a respectable talent for an executive position. He does not take the view of the Middle States and Western Senators, that a seat in the Senate is better than to be a portion of a Government. In Massachusetts they regard a Cabinet place under the nation as so distinguished that no gentleman could afford to decline it.

THE Washington correspondent of the New York Evening Post says: "I am told, and on good authority, that Jay Gould is planning to get control of the New York Associated Press. He owns the Express, the World and the Tribune; and is negotiating for either the Journal of Commerce or the Commercial Bulletin. He has recently bought out Marshal O. Roberts' thirty-five shares in the Sun, at $4,500. There are 275 shares, I believe, in all, the par value being $1,000 each. The control of four franchises gives him control of the Associated Press. I give this to you as it comes to me, and do not guarantee its entire accuracy. Jay Gould is the Napoleon of trade. Is there any way of getting him to St. Helena?"

THAT the old superstition that Friday is an unlucky day for traveling still keeps people at home on that day is proved by the experience of nearly every railway conductor. Of the passengers on the New York division of the Pennsylvania railroad, 15 per cent. are carried on Friday, while there is an average of 17 per cent. carried on each of the other five week days. In other words, there is a falling off on Fridays of nearly one-eighth as compared with the average of other week days. The days of heaviest travel are approximately Monday with 19 per cent., and Sunday with 18 per cent., there being many persons going to and returning from business on those days. The percentage shown on other week days are: On Tuesday, 16.25; Wednesday, 15.75; Thursday, 16, and Friday, 15.

THE West of Arica is a nice, pleasant place to live in. People there very rarely die of any disease; in fact, Kings and chiefs are about the only persons who die natural deaths. The chief of Whydah, in the kingdom of Dahomey, died recently, and, as is the custom with many other African tribes, the death was celebrated by a massacre of people. The horrible rite was followed by another massacre at the order of the new Chaca as a token of honor to his predecessor. No sooner was this over than the time arrived when the King of Dahomey should hold a similar celebration in honor of his deceased father. At this ceremony about 200 captured prisoners were to be beheaded. The European merchants were invited to witness the observance, but they all refused to go. These proceedings have extended over a period of six months, and during the time no trade could be carried on in the kingdom.

INDIANA NEWS.

THE car-works at Jeffersonville have orders for a full year ahead

THE Catholics of Fort Wayne will erect a new library hall in the spring to cost $20,000.

PETER E. STUDEBAKER and others have obtained a charter for a street railway at South Bend.

J. F. MILLEY, of Richmond, has sold Great Western, the largest trotting horse in the world, to a gentleman of St. Louis, for $1,000.

A LADY died near Bloomfield, Greene county, a few days since, from the effects of an ovarian tumor. It was removed by a post mortem, and weighed thirty-six and three-quarters pounds.

IN a playful skirmish at the Salem High School, the other day, Otto Thompson was hit on the head by a large stone thrown by George Hancock, and badly, perhaps fatally, injured, his skull being cracked.

THE Bundy National Bank, at Newcastle, after an existence of six years, has voted to go into liquidation and wind up. Its affairs are in good condition, but the owners choose to invest their means otherwise.

JAMES F. VAN VALKENBERG, aged 71 years, an old citizen of Plymouth, once Sheriff of the county, died of lung fever a few days ago. His father, James Van Valkenberg, is living, and will be 100 years old Jan. 20, 1881.

WEDNESDAY, Dec. 15, was the last day allowed by law for county settlements, but the State Auditor reports that not half of the counties have paid up, and that county officers are more dilatory in this respect than for years past.

THE little town of Hartsville was visited by a destructive fire the other night, burning the store-house and stock and two warehouses belonging to Josiah Lawrence, and the barber-shop and dwelling house of William Harris. The fire is supposed to have been the work of an incendiary.

ON opening a country school-house in Jennings county, the other morning, there was astonishment at finding the stove gone. It appeared that wood placed under the stove the night before to dry had taken fire, and the floor had burned out until the stove had fallen through, the floor being high up from the ground. The fire had gone out, and no further harm was done.

A CASE of considerable interest to the medical profession has just transpired at Clifton. Charley Teeguarden, aged 9, has been suffering about two years with a disease that has baffled the skill of several physicians, but last week the cause of his trouble became apparent. He vomited up an animal about five inches in length, fish-shaped, and of the consistency of a salamander. In a few minutes after the operation he took nourishment and wanted to go out and play.

The Geodetic Survey of Indiana.

The preliminary reconnoissance for suitable sites for the observing stations in the geodetic survey of Indiana was completed during the summer of 1880, and the work of triangulation will probably begin near New Albany during the summer of 1881. The territory embraced in the selections is from ten to twenty miles wide, extending from the Ohio river to the Michigan line, and includes the towns of New Albany, Jeffersonville, Charlestown, Scottsburg, Seymour, Brownstown, Columbus, Edinburg, Franklin, Indianapolis, Irvington, Castleton, Whitestown, Tipton, Frankfort, Kokomo, Bunker Hill, Logansport, Metea, Peru, Rochester, Maxinkuckee, Plymouth, Elkhart, Mishawaka, and South Bend. The survey generally lies along the Jeffersonville, Madison and Indianapolis, and the Indianapolis, Peru and Chicago railroads. The work is being done by the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey, under the direction of Mr. C. P. Patterson, Superintendent, at Washington, and the portion in this State is in charge of Prof. J. L. Campbell, of Wabash College. The special object of the survey is the correct determination of latitude and longitude of the important points, and their location in connection with the already accurately-delineated coast and lake lines of the country. The work in this State also forms a part of a general scheme extending through Michigan, Indiana, Kentucky, Tennessee and Alabama to the Gulf of Mexico, for the determination of the length of an arc of the meridian and the curvature of the earth. This is one of the most interesting problems in exact science. The method by which the work will be accomplished includes the selection of stations from five to forty miles apart, which may be made intervisible, and the accurate measurement of one or more base lines. Lines connecting the intervisible stations will form a series of grand triangles, and all the angles of these triangles will be carefully observed. A base line five miles in length was measured near Louisville, Ky., in 1879, which will be used for the triangulation north through Indiana and south through Kentucky. A second base line will be measured near South Bend, north of the St. Joseph river. In the selection of sites south of Indianapolis, advantage was taken of the range of knobs in Floyd, Clarke and Washington counties; the sand-hills of Jackson county, and the rugged hills of Bartholomew, Brown, and Johnson counties, along the west side of Prof. Collett's great glacial river. North of Indianapolis the country is generally level, except that the surface action of the waters of White, Wabash, Eel, Tippecanoe, Yellow, and St. Joseph rivers gives an undulating surface to the otherwise flat and swampy but elevated table-lands. A comprehensive system of drainage for these table-lands, notably the northwest part of the State, is well worthy the careful attention of the Legislature, in its three-fold relations: 1. To the recovery of the lands for agricultural purposes. 2. The improvement of the general health. 3. To the pending proposition for the construction of a ship canal across the State.—Indianapolis Journal.

THE DEAD PAST.

A Record of the Important Happenings of the Year 1880.

CHRONOLOGY.

JANUARY.

2. Great floods in England and France.
3. Parnell and Dillon arrive at New York.
4. A Gypsy camp is found in Prussian Silesia, with eleven persons sitting around the remains of a fire frozen to death.
5. By a fire at East Turner Hall, New York city, five persons lose their lives.
6. Four persons consumed in a San Francisco fire.
11. The island of St. Kitts, West Indies, devastated by floods; 200 lives are lost.
15. Terrible wind-storm in Oregon causes loss of life and property.
19. A terrible conflagration occurs at Tokio, Japan, burning fifteen acres and destroying the lives of over 100 people.
21. Colliery explosion near New Castle, England; seventy-seven miners killed.
22. Bill for the gradual abolition of slavery in Cuba passes the Spanish Cortes.
23. A flood in the Cauca valley, New Granada, destroys $1,000,000 worth of property and a number of lives.
25. The steamboat Charmer burns near the mouth of Red river, in Louisiana; eight lives lost.
28. Fifteen miners killed by an explosion in Saxony.
31. News is received of horrible massacres in Afghanistan.

FEBRUARY.

1. Steamer Bengore, from Penarth to Gibraltar, founders, and thirteen of her crew drowned.
2. Terrible hurricane in the Philippine islands.
5. Ten Chinamen cremated in a wash-house fire in San Francisco. Nine negroes burned to death in a cabin near Columbia, S. C. The $1,000,000 Court House at Dallas, Texas, burned.
8. Two hundred Turkish soldiers killed by the fall of a barrack at Constantinople.
9. The Dublin Theater Royal burned; eight lives lost.
10. Burning of the City Hall at Albany, N. Y.; loss, $1,000,000.
16. A family of nine persons drowned by the flood near Mayfield, Ky.
17. An unsuccessful attempt to kill the imperial family of Russia by explosion of a mine at the Winter Palace fails; ten soldiers are killed.
19. Eight men killed by the explosion of the boiler of a Peoria (Ill.) distillery.
20. Twenty persons killed by the explosion of shells in the Valparaiso (South America) arsenal.
28. Bark Strathnairn, from London for Melbourne, sunk by collision, and sixteen persons drowned.
29. A steamer between two East Indian ports founders, sixty-five lives being lost.

MARCH.

1. The St. Gothard tunnel through the Alps is cut through.
5. Twenty-three persons killed by a boiler explosion at Glasgow, Scotland.
6. The Kansas Insane Asylum at Ossawatomie burns.
7. Great fire in St. Paul, Minn.
8. Twenty-four soldiers killed by the blowing up of the artillery barracks at Santiago, Chili.
9. Thirty villages swept away by a flood from the river Vistula on the Austro-Russian frontier.
10. By a fire in the great weaving works at Moscow, Russia, twenty-four persons are burned to death.
11. Boiler explosion in the flaxseed-mills at Frankfort, Ind., by which ten employes were torn to pieces.
24. Parliament prorogued by the Queen, and new elections ordered.

APRIL.

1. By a fire-damp explosion in a coal mine in Belgium 150 miners are killed.
2. Nine murderers are hung at various places in the United States.
3. Triumph of the Liberals at the English Parliamentary elections. Mohammed Jan killed in Afghanistan, and his army scattered.
4. Thirty-one dwellings burned at a village of Savoy, seventeen persons perishing.
8. The Peruvians defeat the Chilians, with a loss of 1,300 killed.
9. Seven hundred men, women and children buried alive at Mandalay, Burmah, as a sacrifice to restore the King's health.
12. By the explosion of a still in a creosote factory, near London, eleven persons lose their lives.
14. A schooner, with all hands, goes down in Long Island sound, during a severe gale.
17. Thirty men torn to pieces by the explosion of giant powder, near San Francisco.
18. Marshfield, Mo., almost wiped out by a cyclone; about 100 lives and $300,000 worth of property destroyed.
19. Seven men drowned off the north shore of Michigan by the swamping of their sailboat.
21. The walls of the Madison Square Garden, in New York, give way, killing four persons and wounding several.
22. Queen Victoria accepts the resignation of the Beaconsfield Ministry. Nineteen fishermen drowned off the Scotch coast.
23. Gladstone is asked to form a Cabinet. A life-saving crew of seven men, off the coast of Michigan, lose their lives. A son of Mayor Kalloch, of San Francisco, kills Charles De Young, editor of the Chronicle.
25. Cyclone at Macon, Miss., kills seventeen persons. Six people killed by a storm in Christian county, Ill.

MAY.

1. A fire-works factory, near Paris, blows up, killing a number of workmen.
4. A fleet of fishing boats driven upon the coast of Oregon, and twenty-five of the fishermen are drowned.
8. Fourteen persons killed at a fire in London, England.
10. By an explosion of powder in the St. Gothard tunnel, in Switzerland, eighteen workmen are killed.
14. Milton, Pa., is wiped out by the flames, loss, $2,000,000.
15. An explosion in a London (England) iron foundry kills twenty-five persons.
19. United States Senator Gordon, of Georgia, resigns, and ex-Gov. Brown is appointed.
25. Col. Hatch attacks the redskins in New Mexico, and kills fifty-five of them.
28. Twenty persons perished in the floods caused by an excessive rain-storm in Texas.
29. The town of Savoy, Texas, is wiped out by a cyclone; about fifteen persons killed.
31. A fight with the Indians occurs in New Mexico, in which about a dozen white men are killed.

JUNE.

8. Gen. Garfield nominated for President by the Republicans, on the thirty-sixth ballot, at Chicago.
10. Twenty persons lose their lives by a cyclone in Pottawattamie county, Iowa.
11. J. B. Weaver nominated by the Greenbackers for the Presidency, at Chicago.
12. Collision on Long Island sound between the Narragansett and Stonington, in which the former takes fire and goes down, with fifty passengers.
13. The boiler of the Spanish war ship Cuba Espanola explodes, killing twenty persons and wounding 113.
17. Neal Dow nominated for the Presidency by the Prohibitionists at Cleveland, Ohio.
18. Sixty-three persons lose their lives in a terrible storm and waterspout near Dresden, Germany.
24. Gen. W. S. Hancock nominated by the Democrats for President, at Cincinnati.
28. Fifty passengers lost by the burning of the Long Island sound steamer, Seawanhaka, near New York city.

JULY.

1. Four persons are killed by the explosion of the boiler of the pleasure boat Mary, on Lake Minnetonka.
4. Seven persons drown by the overturning of a yacht on White Bear lake, in Minnesota.
12. A raft with forty persons upon it breaks to pieces in the Black sea, near Odessa, and all are drowned.
15. By an explosion in a coal mine at Risca, in Wales, 119 miners—all in the shaft—are killed.
19. Cleopatra's needle, presented to the city of New York by the late Khedive of Egypt, arrives at that city.
21. The Jersey City tunnel, in process of construction, caves in, burying twenty-one workmen.
23. Eighteen persons lose their lives through the explosion of powder in the artillery works in Kocisk, Southern Russia.
28. An excursion steamer runs over a yacht in the Detroit river, and seventeen persons are drowned.

AUGUST.

1. The Chilian transport Loa blown up by a torpedo in Callao bay, and 150 of her crew killed.
11. By a train running off the track of the Midland railroad, in England, about a dozen persons are killed.
12. Twenty persons are killed by a collision between two excursion trains near Atlantic City, N. J.
16. The town of Eureka, Nev., is a second time almost wiped out by fire.
17. Great parade of Knights Templar in Chicago.

SEPTEMBER.

2. By the giving way of a pontoon bridge over the river Ebro, in Spain, over 100 officers and men were thrown into the water, most of them being drowned.
3. The steamer City of Vera Cruz founders off the coast of Florida, and only thirteen of her passengers and crew of seventy-six are saved.
4. Gen. Roberts defeats the Afghans under Ayoob Khan, near Candahar.
9. By an explosion of fire-damp in the Seaham (England) colliery, 140 miners lost their lives.
18. The steamer Aurora, from Oporto for Southampton, founders at sea; fifty persons are drowned.
22. By a land slide in the Province of Bengal, British India, thirty-seven persons were killed, most of them English officers and soldiers.

OCTOBER.

8. Fifty miners suffocated in a mine at Kattowitz, Germany.
9. Thirty persons killed and a great many severely injured by a railway collision at Pittsburgh.
11. Baltimore celebrates her 150th birthday.
13. News is received of the starvation of 500 of the 700 inhabitants of the island of St. Lawrence, Arctic ocean.
14. Completion of the Cologne Cathedral, commenced six centuries ago, is celebrated.
15. By the explosion of a cooker in Haas & Powell's distillery, at Chicago, seven persons are killed.
16. A storm of unexampled severity sweeps over the Northwest, accompanied by snow; many vessels and a number of lives lost on the lakes. The Goodrich Line steamer Alpena founders, with a loss of about eighty lives, none being saved.
18. Victorio, the Apache chief, killed in Mexico and his band scattered.
28. The coast of England visited by a terrible gale, and many ships and lives lost.

NOVEMBER.

3. Sixty robbers, who plundered the Brazilian town of Jannaria a year before, are surprised by soldiers and killed.
4. By the breaking of the hoisting apparatus in a Belgian mine sixteen miners are killed.
5. A typhoon passes over Japan which demolishes 1,000 residences in Tokio and drowns 100 fishermen. News received of the loss of the Jeannette and a number of whalers in the Arctic sea by being crushed by the ice. Thirty Kurdish marauders in Persia are crucified by their leaders for disobedience of orders.
8. The propeller Zealand goes down on Lake Ontario with all on board, sixteen persons.
9. About twenty persons drowned by the loss of the steamer Thomas Kingsford, on Lake Ontario.
11. Seven men burned to death in a petroleum blaze near Bradford, Pa.
12. Forty-seven miners killed by coal-mine explosion in Nova Scotia.
16. The Minnesota State Insane Asylum at St. Peter burned, and a large number of the inmates lost their lives.
19. The Kurds sack a Persian village and put 200 people to the sword.
18. Twenty sailors and seven passengers lose their lives by the wreck of the coaster Oilsa off Wales. Twelve men suffocated in a coal mine in Belgium.
20. The British steamer Mildred founders in mid-ocean with a crew of twenty-eight.
24. By collision between the French steamer Oncle Joseph and the Italian steamship Ortigia the former is sunk and 232 persons go down.
25. The Persians ornament the walls of the prison at Tabreez with the heads of 300 Kurds taken in battle.
26. Propeller Simcoe goes down with all on board in Georgian bay, Lake Huron.
28. Lieut. Gov. Robinson, of Colorado, is killed by miners near Leadville.

DECEMBER.

1. The Electoral Colleges meet in the various State capitals and cast the electoral votes for President and Vice President.
8. Flogging abolished in the British navy.
10. One hundred miners are killed by fire-damp explosion in a Welsh colliery.
11. A shipwreck off Nova Scotia causes the death of a crew of twenty-two persons.
12. Jay Gould's conservatory at Irvington, on the Hudson, is destroyed by fire; loss, $150,000.
13. About twenty boys lose their lives by the burning of a wall-paper factory at Buffalo.

NECROLOGY.

JANUARY.

2. Bishop Gilbert Haven, of the Methodist Episcopal Church; at Malden, Mass., aged 59.
4. George Jones, the "Count Johannes," an eccentric New York character.
6. "Yankee Locke," a well-known comedian.
10. Frank Leslie, the well-known New York publisher, aged 59.
20. Jules Favre, celebrated French statesman; Paris, aged 71.
28. James De Mille, professor in Dalhousie College, Halifax, N. S., and a famous novelist.
29. Edward Middleton Barry, the architect who designed the English House of Parliament; at London, aged 50.

FEBRUARY.

5. A. E. Borie, ex-Secretary of the Navy; at Philadelphia, aged 71.
10. John Rice, the last survivor of Perry's victory, on Lake Erie; at Shelby, Ohio, aged 88.
11. Mrs. Tweed, wife of the late "Boss" of New York city; at Paris.
12. Samuel G. Arnold, for a short term United States Senator from Rhode Island; at Providence.
19. Signor Brumidi, the artist who designed and executed the frescoes in the Capitol at Washington.
20. Ex-Congressman Lorenzo Danford, of Ohio, killed in a railroad accident near Bellaire, Ohio. Benjamin Brandreth, the famous pill-maker; at Sing Sing, N. Y., aged 71.

MARCH.

1. William Maxwell Wood, Surgeon General of the United States navy; at Baltimore, aged 72.
5. Commodore Isaiah Hanscomb, United States navy; at Washington.
7. Judge W. H. Hayes, of the Federal Court of Kentucky; at Louisville, aged 59.
23. A. R. Corbin, brother-in-law of Gen. Grant; at Jersey City.
30. Richard Van Rensselaer, the last of the celebrated New York family of that name, a banker; at Albany, aged 83.

APRIL.

5. Rear Admiral Thacher, of the United States navy; at Boston, aged 74.
6. Gen. James L. Reynolds, soldier and politician; at Lancaster, Pa., aged 58.
10. W. A. Howard, Governor of Dakota Territory, and former Congressman from Michigan; at Washington.
16. Dr. Edward V. H. Kenealy, member of Parliament, and counsel for the Tichborne claimant.
26. J. Seligman, the well-known syndicate New York banker; at New York.
28. D. W. Middleton, for twenty years Clerk of the United States Supreme Court; at Washington.

MAY.

2. Maj. Gen. Heintzelman, who commanded a division in the Army of the Potomac; at Washington.
8. Hon. George Browne, statesman and journalist, of Toronto, Canada, who was shot some weeks before by a discharged employe.
14. Chief Justice Sanford E. Church, of the New York Court of Appeals; at Albion, N. Y.; aged 65.
19. Ex-Gov. Foote, of Mississippi, formerly United States Senator; at Nashville, Tenn., aged 80.
20. D. R. Jones, the inventor and first maker of lucifer matches; at Chillicothe, Ohio, aged 80.
30. Richard B. Connolly, the Tweed Comptroller of New York; in exile at Marseilles, France, aged 70.
31. Sherrard Clemens, for thirteen years member of Congress from Virginia; a pauper; at St. Louis.

JUNE.

6. John Brougham, the noted dramatist and comedian; at New York, aged 66.
12. Ex-Gov. Albert G. Brown, of Mississippi; at Jackson, aged 67.
13. James A. Bayard, ex-United States Senator from Delaware; at Wilmington.
17. J. B. Howell, editor of the Keokuk Gate City, once United States Senator from Iowa; at Keokuk, aged 64.
19. John A. Sutter, the discoverer of gold in California; at Washington, aged 78.
25. Lieut. Gen. T. H. Holmes, of the Confederate service; at Fayetteville, N. C., aged 76.

JULY.

3. George Ripley, President of the New York Tribune Company, and a distinguished author; at New York, aged 78.
6. William E. Carter, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Connecticut.
10. Jos. R. Chandler, for many years editor of the United States Gazette and member of Congress from 1849 to 1855, at Philadelphia, aged 88.
12. Tom Taylor, the noted English dramatist; at London.
14. John A. Campbell, at one time Governor of Wyoming, and later Assistant Secretary of State; at Washington.
19. Judge Jacob Brinkerhoff, of the Ohio Supreme Court bench for several years; at Mansfield, Ohio.

AUGUST.

6. Gen. William O. Butler, an officer of the war of 1812 and the Mexican war, and a candidate for Vice President with Lewis Cass, in 1848; at Carrollton, Ky., aged 93.
9. Ex-Gov. John Bigler, of Pennsylvania; at Clearfield, that State.
16. Adelaide Neilson, the celebrated English actress; at Paris, aged 30.
17. Ex-Gov. Herschel V. Johnson, candidate for Vice President with Douglas, in 1860; in Jefferson county, Ga., aged 68.
17. Ole Bull, the celebrated Norwegian violinist; at Bergen, Norway, aged 70.
19. James A. Seddon, Confederate Secretary of War; at Richmond, Va., aged 65.
22. Mrs. Charles Kean, widow of the celebrated English actor, herself known on the stage as Miss Ellen Tree; in England.
24. Brig. Gen. Albert J. Meyer, Chief of the United States Signal Service, familiarly known as "Old Probs;" at Buffalo.
27. Chief Ouray, leader of the Ute Indians; in Southern Colorado.
28. Ex-Gov. Paul O. Hebert, of Louisiana, an officer in the Mexican war and in the Confederate army; at New Orleans, aged 62.
29. S. R. Gifford, the well-known artist; at New York.
30. Robert McClelland, ex-Governor of Michigan and Secretary of the Interior in President Pierce's Cabinet; at Detroit, aged 75.

SEPTEMBER.

1. Brevet Maj. Gen. Torbert, cavalry commander during the rebellion; lost at sea off the Florida coast, aged 47.
10. Marshall O. Roberts, the well-known New York capitalist; aged 66.
19. Hon. Lafayette S. Foster, Senator from Connecticut from 1855 to 1867, and acting Vice President of the United States for a time, during Johnson's term, at Hartford, aged 74.
22. Donald McKay, the builder of clipper ships; at Hamilton, Mass., aged 70.

OCTOBER.

5. Jacques Offenbach, the celebrated opera composer; at Paris, aged 61.
17. Julia D. Bates, widow of Hon. Edward Bates, Attorney General under President Lincoln; at St. Louis.
19. Chief Justice E. G. Ryan, of the Wisconsin Supreme Court; at Madison, aged 70.
20. Mrs. Lydia Maria Child, the well-known American authoress; at Wayland, Mass., aged 78. Alfred Henry Thesiger, Lord Chief Justice of the English Court of Appeals; at London, aged 42.
21. Maj. Thomas L. Butler, Aid-de-Camp to Gen. Jackson at the battle of New Orleans, and Surveyor General of New Orleans under President Madison; at Louisville, Ky., aged 91.
27. Bishop Daggett, of the M. E. Church; at Richmond, Va.

NOVEMBER.

8. Fayette McMullen, a leading Virginia politician, at Wytheville, Va.
9. E. L. Drake, who put down the first oil well at Titusville, Pa.
11. Lucretia Mott, the well-known Quaker philanthropist and abolitionist, at Philadelphia, aged 88.
17. Signor Blitz, the famous ventriloquist and prestidigitator: accidentally shot while hunting in New Jersey.
19. Sir Charles York, General and Constable of the Tower, who served with distinction at Waterloo; at London, aged 90.
21. Gov. James D. Williams, of Indiana; at Indianapolis, aged 73.
21. Sir Alexander Cockburn, Lord Chief Justice of the Queen's Bench; at London.
23. Prof. James C. Watson, the celebrated astronomer; at Madison, Wis., aged 42.
27. Gen. George B. Crittenden, who served in the Mexican war, and later in the Confederate army; at Danville, Ky.
30. Evarts W. Farr, member of Congress from New Hampshire; aged 40.

DECEMBER.

11. The venerable Madame Thiers, widow of ex-President Thiers.
19. Francis T. Buckland, the English writer on natural history; at London. The Duchess of Westminster, Mistress of Queen Victoria's Robes, whose husband is the wealthiest person on the globe.
22. A. L. Akerman, Attorney General in Grant's first Cabinet; at Cartersville, Ga.
23. Mrs. John Walter Cross (Marian Evans), the famous English novelist, better known as George Eliot; at London.

Thought It Was a Mouse.

The Newburyport (Mass.) Herald relates the following incident: "An elderly lady of this city startled the household with a piercing shriek and the information that there was a mouse in her pocket. Some one rushed to her rescue, hastily assisted her to divest herself of her wrapper, firmly grasping the mouth of the pocket to prevent the escape of the dangerous animal. The garment was then turned over to the man of the house, and he, armed with a club, proceeded to the back yard to dispatch the offender. The pocket was opened gradually, but no mouse appeared. Finally, gaining courage, he ventured to investigate, and found the cause of all the excitement to be a pocket tape measure, from which the spring had become detached and had unwound with a whirr."

DR. BUTTS' DISPENSARY

Established 1847 at 12 N. 8th Street, ST. LOUIS, MO.

INDISCRETION OR EXPOSURE

YOUNG MEN

PATIENTS TREATED

DR. BUTTS, 12 North 8th St., St. Louis, Mo.

Children

CRY

FOR

Pitcher's

Castoria.

Mothers like, and Physicians recommend it.

IT IS NOT NARCOTIC.

CENTAUR LINIMENTS; the World's great Pain-Relieving remedies. They heal, soothe and cure Burns, Wounds, Weak Back and Rheumatism upon Man, and Sprains, Galls, and Lameness upon Beasts. Cheap, quick, and reliable.

IN USE SINCE 1860

MISHLER'S HERB BITTERS

A Compound Tincture of the most valuable remedies known to the medical profession, prepared upon strictly pharmaceutical principles.

An experience of twenty-five years proves it to be the greatest Antidote to Malaria and all other Ague influences known to the world.

The only absolute cure for all Affections of the Kidneys, in Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia, all Disorders of the Bowels, and all Affections of the Throat and Lungs, it is equally efficacious, while as a remedy for complaints peculiar to the female sex it has no equal.

NOT A BEVERAGE

But an old reliable Household Remedy, thoroughly adapted to assist nature.

It supplies tone to the stomach, reinvigorates the digestive organs, stimulates the secretions, and promoting a regular action of the bowels, enables every organ of the body to perform its allotted work regularly and without interruption.

Its highest commendations come from those who have used it longest and known it best.

Nowhere so popular as in Lancaster, Pa., where it has been in use for more than a quarter of a century.

Highly commended as a General Tonic and Appetizer. Sold by Druggists everywhere.

THE MESSENGER OF HEALTH

A large sized paper descriptive of disease, its origin and cure, will be mailed free to any address on application to

THE MISHLER HERB BITTERS CO.

Lancaster, Pa.

☞ We strongly recommend to mothers Prof. Parker's Pleasant Worm Syrup. It never fails, is easy to take, and no after-physic is required. Price, 25 cents.

THE SYMPTOMS

of Liver Complaint are a bitter or bad taste in the mouth; Pain in the Back, Sides or Joints, often mistaken for Rheumatism; Sour Stomach, Loss of Appetite, Bowels alternately costive and lax; Headache, Loss of Memory, with a painful sensation of having failed to do something which ought to have been done; Debility, Low Spirits, a thick yellow appearance of the Skin and Eyes, a dry Cough often mistaken for Consumption.

Sometimes many of these symptoms attend the disease, at others very few; but the LIVER, the largest organ in the body, is generally the seat of disease, and, if not regulated in time, great suffering, wretchedness and DEATH will ensue.

AS AN UNFAILING SPECIFIC

For DYSPEPSIA, CONSTIPATION, Jaundice, Bilious Attack, SICK HEADACHE, Colic, Depression of Spirits, SOUR STOMACH, Heart Burn, etc., etc.,

Take Simmons' Liver Regulator.

This justly-celebrated medicine Regulates the Liver, promotes digestion and fortifies the system against malaria.

CAUTION.

See that you get the Genuine, in clean, white wrapper, with large red "Z." Prepared only by

J. H. ZEILIN & CO.

Sold by All Druggists.

AGENTS WANTED for the Best and Fastest Selling Pictorial Books and Bibles. Prices reduced 33 per ct. National Publish'g Co., St. Louis, Mo.

PILES fully described with scientific mode of cure. Prof. Harris' illustrated pamphlet sent free on application. HARRIS REMEDY CO., Mfg Chemists, 8th & Market Sts., St. Louis, Mo.

The Book of a Million

"THE PRIVATE MEDICAL ADVISER"

FOR ONE DOLLAR

DR. BUTTS' DISPENSARY

DR. BUTTS, 12 North 8th St., St. Louis, Mo.

Seminal Pastille

HARRIS REMEDY CO. MFG CHEMISTS, Market and 8th Streets, ST. LOUIS, MO.

Unsolicited testimony to the Efficacy of Prof. Harris' Seminal Pastille, taken from Letters received from Patrons

From a Physician and Surgeon.

From a Druggist.

TAX LIST FOR 1880.

To the Tax-Payers of DeKalb County:

In compliance with the laws of the state of Indiana, I, L. J. MILLER, treasurer of said county, hereby notify the tax-payers thereof that the rates of taxation for the year A. D. 1880, are correctly stated in the following table, showing the amn't of tax in cts. levied upon each one hundred dollars valuation and on each poll, in the several townships and incorporated villages in said county, as the same appears on the tax duplicate of DeKalb county, for said year:

TOWNSHIPS AND TOWNS.	STATE HOUSE TAX.	STATE TAX.	SCHOOL TAX.	COUNTY TAX.	TOWNSHIP TAX.	ROAD TAX.	COM. SCHOOL TAX.	SPC'L SCHOOL TAX.	ADDITIONAL SPC'L SCHOOL TAX.	INT. ON BONDS.	CORPORATION TAX.	TOTAL TAX.
Buter Township	2	12	16	60	15	20	5	20		10		160
Poll		50	50									100
Jackson Township	2	12	16	60	10	15	5	25		10		155
Poll		50	50					50				150
Concord Township	2	12	16	60	5	20	10	35		10		170
Poll		50	50					100				200
Newville Township	2	12	16	60	15	15		20		10		150
Poll		50	50									100
Stafford Township	2	12	16	60	5	10	5	10		10		130
Poll		50	50									100
Wilmington Township	2	12	16	60	10	15	5	10		10		140
Poll		50	50									100
Union Township	2	12	16	60		20		5		10		125
Poll		50	50					50				150
Richland Township	2	12	16	60	5	15	5	30		10		155
Poll		50	50									100
Fairfield Township	2	12	16	60	10	15	5	25		10		155
Poll		50	50					25				125
Smithfield Township	2	12	16	60	10	10	5	15		10		140
Poll		50	50					50				150
Franklin Township	2	12	16	60	15	15	5			10		135
Poll		50	50									100
Troy Township	2	12	16	60	15	15	5	35		10		170
Poll		50	50									100
Keyser Township	2	12	16	60	5	15	5	30		10		155
Poll		50	50					50				150
Auburn Town	2	2	16	60		20	25	15	50	10		210
Poll		50	50				25	25	25			175
Waterloo Town	2	12	16	60		20	10	40		10		170
Poll		50	50					100				200
Butler Town	2	12	16	60	10	15		30	50	10		205
Poll		50	50						25			1:5
Garrett Town	2	12	16	60	5	15	25	50	50	10	50	295
Poll		50	50				25	100	100		25	350

Also $1 for one dog, $2 for each female dog, and $2 for each additional dog, for the collection of which I may be found at the county treasurer's office, in the town of Auburn, on and after December 15, 1880.

Taxes may be paid in full or in two installments. The first installment, including all road taxes, can be paid on or before the third Monday in April, 1881; the second installment, on or before the first Monday in November, 1881. If the first installment is not paid when due, both installments become delinquent, ten per cent. will be added, and I shall at once proceed, as the law requires, to collect the same, together with the costs that may accrue by distress and sale of personal property.

Road receipts will not be received after the third Monday in April, only on delinquent taxes. No road receipts will be received on the November installment.

Examine your receipts before leaving the office, and see that all your property is included.

No county order will be paid to any person owing delinquent taxes.

The annual sale of lands and lots for delinquent taxes will occur on the second Monday in February, 1881.

Come early and avoid the rush of the last few days.

The books will positively be closed on the evening of the third Monday in April, and no one will be allowed to pay after that date without penalty.

Parties sending by others, or by letter, to pay tax, should not fail to send description of their lands and lots.

No receipt will be made out hereafter, for any party, until they are ready to pay for the same.

L. J. MILLER, Treasurer of DeKalb County.

ISAAC HAGUE'S

NEW SHOE STORE!

A NEW STOCK OF

BOOTS AND SHOES

Arriving daily, for spring and summer trade. Fine goods for ladies a specialty. A full line of men's and boy's shoes, of the lates styles, at low prices. Our facilities for buying are such as to enable us to buy at manufacturers prices, thereby saving our customers one or more profits. Call and examine our stock and satisfy yourselv « that what we say is true.

MR. CHARLES RAUT

Is associated with me, and as we are both experienced workmen we are prepared to do custom work, either sewed or pegged, on short notice and at reasonable rates. Repairing promptly attended to. Remember the place,— firstdoor east of Mcquiston & Ralstons double store, north of the court house, Auburn, Ind.

16–tf. ISAAC HAGUE

Money to Loan.

In sums and on terms to suit all Apply at Guy Plumb's law office. Low rates of interest.

-3m. C. N. HASKALL.

A. J. Baxter, Attorney.

NOTICE TO NON-RESIDENTS.

State of Indiana, DeKalb county—In the De Kalb circuit court, February term, 1881.

Leonard Hartle is hereby notified that an action has been commenced against him in said court, in attachment. John Barrett, administrator of the estate of Adam P. Hartle, deceased, and that the same will be heard and determined on the 2d juridical day of the next term of said court, which commences Feburary 28, 1881.

Witness, The clerk of said court, this 21st of December, 1880.

32-3 John W. Baxter, Clerk.

Tickets! Tickets! Tickets!

First-class, emigrant and round-trip railroad tickets to all points east or west can be bought at low rates by calling upon the undersigned at Auburn Junction, or addressing

J. J. Martin, Ag't, B. & O. R. R.

tf Auburn Ind.

Agents.

All persons, either ladies or gentlemen, who desire good, profitable employment, and the pleasantest kind of work at their own homes, should send address to J. J. Kennedy,

51-4t. Willimantic, Conn.

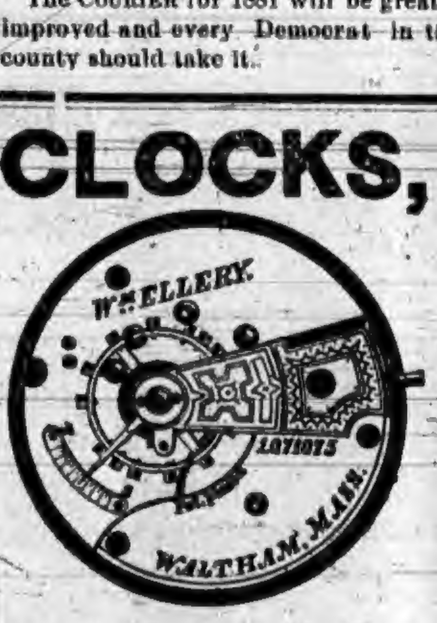
Examination Of Teachers.

Examinations for the year commencing June 1st, 1879, will be held regularly, in the high-school building at Auburn, the last Saturday of each month. Special examinations at other points on due notice.

W. H. MacIntosh,

The Courier for 1881 will be greatly improved and every Democrat in the county should take it.

CLOCKS, CLOCKS,



GOLD

—AND—

Silver Watches

Rodgers & Brother's PLATED WARE

SPOONS, KNIVES, and FORKS,

Rings, Necklaces, Vest Chains Ladies Gold Chains, Castors, Everything in tne Jewelry line.

Violins, Guitars,

Banjos, Accordeons,

Violin Strings.

Special attention given to repairing fine watches

All Work Warranted.

No charge for mending silver ware sold at

JOE ABRIGHT'S,

Second door north of Postoffice, Auburn, Ind

THE ENQUIRER.

The People's Paper—The Greatest Newspaper in the West.

The Enquirer is just closing one of the most prosperous and successful years of its existence. We wish to thank the people and our patrons for their support. Your encouragement has made the task of publishing the best newspaper in the west a possibility.

We ask your aid and support for the year to come, and for the future, and pledge you that we will spare no expense to make the Enquirer for the ensuing year not only the best newspaper in the west, but the rival of any in America.

The world's news, recorded by a corps of fifteen hundred correspondents in all sections of the globe, will be found in the Enquirer every day in the year.

The history of each day's events will be faithfully and fearlessly told, exposing fraud, rebuking corruption, and upholding the right. The facts of the world belong to the people, and will be presented to them by the Enquirer free of malice and undistorted for political or personal purposes.

In short, the Enquirer will continue to be a newspaper.

In the future, as in the past, the Enquirer will be found advocating the rights of the people of the states; the rights of communities, and the fullest liberty to individuals compatible with the general order and welfare of society.

All questions and parties shall be treated with candor and fairness, but the truth shall never be perverted.

The year 1881 will be an eventful one in the history of the state and republic. The inauguration of a new administration, with new men and new purposes, are themes of the gravest interest to all citizens who love their country. Upon all these topics the Enquirer will contain the fullest and most reliable information from its corps of able and faithful correspondents.

THE WEEKLY ENQUIRER

will be a paper that ought to be in the hands of every farmer, every mechanic, and every toiler in the land. As an agricultural paper, full of fresh, valuable and reliable information, it will be without a rival! A corps of contributors has been retained whose practical and theoretical knowledge in all branches of good farming is unsurpassed.

TERMS OF WEEKLY ENQUIRER.

For one year	$1 15
For six months	65

A free copy given to any one sending a club of seven names with $8 05.

TERMS OF DAILY ENQUIRER.

	With Sunday	With Sunday Issue.
One year	$12 00	$14 00
Six month	6 00	7 00
Three months	3 25	3 75
One month	1 25	1 50
Sunday's issue alone, per year		2 00
Any two days' issue, per year		4 00
Any three days' issue, per year		6 00

Send for sample copies.

Faran & McLean, Publishers.

The Greatest Medical Discovery of the Age.

Kellogg's Columbian Oil is a powerful remedy, which can be taken internally as well as externally by the tenderest infant. It cures almost instantly, is pleasant, acting directly upon the nervous system causing a sudden bouyancy of the mind. In short, the wonderful effects of the most worderful remedy cannot be explained in written language. A single dose inhaled and taken according to directions will convince any one that it is all that is claimed for it. Warranted to cure the following diseases: Rheumatism or Kidney Disease in any form, Headache, Toothache, Earache, Neuralgia, Sprains, Bruises, Flesh Wounds, Bunions, Burns, Corns, Spinal Affection, Colic, Cramping Pains, Cholera Morbus, Flux, Diarrhœa, Coughs, Colds, Bronchial Affection, Catarrh, and all aches and pains, external or internal. Full directions with each bottle. For sale by Casebeer& Matheny. 34-eow-1y.

1881

THE STEADFAST WATCHMAN

—of—

PUBLIC INTELLIGENCE,

and Exponent of

American Democracy.

THE INDIANA

STATE SENTINEL!

Has again been enlarged. It will hereafter be a

56 Column Quarto,

Making a growth in size of over twenty per cent., or an addition of reading during the year of 416 Columns.

This makes the Sentinel the largest and most desirable weekly paper in the United States, placing it ahead of all its rivals. Every Indian should be proud of it.

Price Per Year, Single Copy, $150

Special Rates To Clubs.

Persons wishing to become agents send for private circulars an sample copy. Liberal cash commission to agents, also first-class list of special premiums offered.

Address

SENTINEL COMPANY,

Indianapolis, Indiana

RAILROADS

WayneFt. & Jackson Railroad.

SHORT LINE

Time-Card takes effect Dec. 6, 1880,

(Chicago Time.)

GOING NORTH.

Leave Auburn:

4:15 A. M.—From Fort Wayne 1:30 a. m.; arrive at Waterloo 4:40; Pleasant Lake, 5:25; Angola, 5:45; Fremont, 6:30; Reading 7:35; Bankers, 8:00, (connecting closely with D. H. & S. W. R.;) arriving at Hillsdale 8:10 a. m.; Ypsilanti 10:40 a. m.; Detroit 11:30 a. m.; Jonesville, 8:30; connecting with the Lake Shore & South railroad for points west. Jackson, 10:20 a. m., there connecting for points west on Michigan Cent. and Grand River valley Ry.

12:31 P. M.—From Fort Wayne 11:30 a. m., Academie, 11:45; Huntertown, 11:55; New Era, 12:00 p. m.; Auburn Junction, 12:25; arrive at Waterloo 12:45, connecting with L. S. & M. S. train east and west; Summit, 12:52; Pleasant Lake, 1:00; Angola, 1:10; Fremont, 1:35; Reading, 2:05; Bankers, 2:15, making close connection with D. H. & S. W. R. R.; Jonesville, 2:35 (making connection with L. S. & M. S. for points east; Hillsdale, 2:55; Adrian 4:05; Toledo, 4:25, p. m.), Jackson, 3 40 p. m., making close connection for Ann Arbor, Detroit, Lansing, Iona, Saginaw, Grand Rapids, Battle Creek, etc.

6:01 P. M.—From Fort Wayne, 5:00 p. m; New Era, 5:30 arrive at Waterloo 6:15; Summit, 6:25; Pleasant Lake 6:35; Angola, 6:47; Fremont, 7:20; Reading, 7:55; Jonesville, 8:22; Jackson, 9:42 p. m.; connecting closely with Michigan Central railroad; fast train arriving at Detroit at 11:50 p. m.; Buffalo, 8:30 a. m.; and New York, 10:00 p. m.; also Chicago, Grand Rapids, etc.

GOING SOUTH.

Leave Auburn:

9:17 A. M.—From Jackson, 5:05 a. m; closely connecting from Chicago; Jonesville, 6:45; connecting from Chicago, Sturgis, Colwater, etc.; Reading, 7:40; Montgomery, 7:54; Fremont, 8:12; Angola, 8:30; Pleasant Lake, 8:40; Summit, 8:53; Waterloo, 9:05; arrive at St. Johns, 9:36; New Era, 9:38; Huntertown, 9:55; Academie, 10:06; Ft. Wayne, 10:20 a. m. connecting closely with Indianapolis, Louisville, Cincinnati, etc.

3 33 P. M.—From Jackson 12:20 p. m.; (connecting from Detroit 9:35 a. m., Ann Arbor, Saginaw, Lansing, Grand Rapids, etc;) Jonesville, 1:18, close connection from Toledo; Bankers, 1:38; Reading, 1:45; Montgomery, 1:55; Fremont, 2:15; Angola, 2:40; Pleasant Lake, 2:50; Summit, 3:00; Waterloo, 3:12; arrive at Auburn Junction, 3:25; St. Johns, 3:37; New Era, 3:48; Stoner's, 3:53; Huntertown, 3:56; Academie, 4:05 Fort Wayne, 4:20 p. m.; connecting for Indianapolis, Louisville, Cincinnati, and all points east via P. F. W. and C. railroad fast express.

11:26 P. M.—From Grand Rapids 11:50 a. m.; Kalamazoo, 1 40 p. m.; Jackson, 5:40 p. m.; Jonesville, 7:36; Bankers 8:10 p. m.; from Detroit 4:05 p. m. Hillsdale 8:00 p. m.; Reading, 8 40; Fremont 9 37; Angola 10 07; Pleasant Lake, 10 28; Waterloo, 11 07; arrive at New Era 12 20 a. m.; Fort Wayne, 1 30 a. m., connecting with early trains west, south and east.

4 15 a. m. train run daily. All other trains daily except Sundays.

M. D. WOODFORD, Gen'l Supt.

H. BROMLEY, Gen'l Fr't. & Pass'r Agent.

Fort Wayne, Muncie and Cin.

—AND—

White Water Railroads.

Time Card in effect November 16, 1879.

GOING SOUTH.

STATIONS.	1. Mail.	3 Express.
FORT WAYNE	10 40 am	5 40 pm
Bluffton	11 52 am	6 55 pm
Montpelier	12 31 pm	7 27 pm
Hartford	12 57 pm	8 04 pm
MUNCIE	1 48 pm	9 00 pm
Newcastle	2 30 pm
Cambridge City	3 14 pm
Connersville	3 45 pm
Cincinnati	6 55 pm
INDIANAPOLIS	6 25 pm	10 55 pm
Louisville
Terre Haute
St. Louis

GOING NORTH

STATIONS	2 Mail.	4 Express	6 Accom.
St. Louis
Terre Haute
Louisville
Indianapolis	11 50 am	6 40 pm	4 05 am
Cincinnati	6 40 am
Connersville	11 51 am
Cambridge City	12 26 pm
New Castle	1 10 pm
Muncie	2 20 pm	9 20 pm	6 42 am
Hartford	3 09 pm	10 08 pm	7 47 am
Montpelier	3 34 pm	10 32 pm	8 19 am
Bluffton	4 10 pm	11 09 pm	9 10 am
Fort Wayne	5 15 pm	12 15 am	11 00 am

Trains Nos. 1 and 2 run through between Fort Wayne and Cincinnati without change.

Through cars are attached to trains Nos. 1 and and run between Fort Wayne and Indianapolis, via Muncie.

All trains daily except Sunday.

Trains run on Columbus time.

Geo. W. Mullen, Act'g Gen. Tick. Ag't. W. W. Worthington, Gen. Supt.

WABASH ST. LOUIS AND PACIFIC R'Y.

The Great Through Car Route to

Missouri, Kansas,

Nebraska, Iowa.

TRAINS LEAVE AUBURN.

EAST.		WEST.
Mail	11:34 p. m.	Mail	3:20 p. m.
Accom'n	3:57 a. m	Accom'n	6:57 a. m.
Local F't	4:45 p. m.	Local F't	6:30 a. m.
M'l tr'n arrives at Butler	1:30 p. m.	M'l tr'n arr. at Logansport.	6:45 p. m.

No Change of Cars From

TOLEDO OR FT WAYNE TO St. Louis, Kansas City St Joseph, Hannibal, Quincy and Atchison.

No Change of Cars From

St. Louis To | Kansas City, St. Joseph Omaha and Ottumwa.

Remember that the

Wabash, St. Louis and Pacific

Has No Emigrant Cars.

Everybody rides in Elegant Parlor Coaches—nicely upholstered and carpeted. Baggage checked through to destination.

☞ Don't forget the above inducements given only by this great line, and when you go

West Southwest, North or Northw'st

Don't accept any ticket unless it reads over the

Wabash, St. Louis & Pacific R'y.

For Routes, Rates, Elegant Maps of the Western Country, and any information you may desire in regard to going West, please address,

J. C. GAULT, Gen. Manager. H. C. TOWNSEND, Gen. Passenger Agent, St. Louis or

LOUIS JOHNSON, Ticket Ag't, Auburn, Ind

Baltimore & Ohio R. R

—o—

CHICAGO DIVISION.

—o—

IN EFFECT FROM JUNE 20, 1880.

GOING EAST.

STATIONS.	No. 1 Fast.	No. 3 Ex.	No. 5 Mail
Chicago lv.	5 15pm	-	8 10am
Walkerton Junction.	8 18		10 55
Milford Junction	9 00		12 08pm
Syracuse	*		12 14
Cromwell	*		12 30
Albion	*		12 50
Avilla	9 50		1 10
Garrett	10 20	3 15am	1 40
Auburn Junction	10 27	4 03	1 48
St. Joe	*	4 25	2 10
Hicksville	*	4 43	2 28
Defiance	11 35	5 27	3 10
Deshler	12 25am	6 25	4 08
Fostoria	1 08	7 25	4 58
Tiffin	1 30	7 54	5 25
Chicago Junction ar.	2 15	9 00	6 10

GOING WEST.

STATIONS.	No. 10 Mail.	No 2 Ex.	No. 6 Fast.
Chicago Junction lv	9 00am	6 40pm	11 20am
Tiffin	10 03	7 55	12 00 m
Fostoria	10 33	8 25	11 22pm
Deshler	11 44	9 32	1 08
Defiance	12 58pm	10 30	1 54
Hicksville	1 53	11 20	*
St. Joe	2 10	11 32	*
Auburn Junction	2 28	11 52	3 00
Garrett	2 40	12 05am	3 15
Avilla		12 20	3 35
Albion		12 45	3 55
Cromwell		1 10	4 15
Syracuse		1 30	4 30
Milford Junction		1 40	4 38
Walkerton Junction		3 04	5 40
Chicago ar.		6 10	8 20

C. H. Hudson, Superintendent Trans., Ohio Division, Chicago, Ill.

J. J Martin, Agent, Auburn Junction.

* Trains do not stop.

Pittsburg, Ft. W. & C. R. R

ON AND AFTER JUNE 27, 1880,

Condensed time card.

GOING WEST.

Stations.	No. 1, Fast Ex.	No. 7, Pacific Ex.	No. 3, Night Ex.	No. 5, Limit'd ex
Pittsburgh lv.	12 05	9 15am	1 50pm	7 30pm
Rochester	1 15	10 10	2 55
Alliance	3 30	1 20pm	5 35	10 25
Orrville	5 00	3 18	7 13
Mansfield	6 55	5 40	9 20
Crestline ar.	7 25	6 15	9 45	1 40am
Crestline lv.	7 50am	6 35pm	9 55pm	1 15am
Forest	9 25	8 [illegible]	11 25
Lima	10 40	9 30	12 32am
Ft. Wayne	1 15pm	12 05am	2 40	3 55
Plymouth	3 45	2 50	4 55	7 16
Chicago ar.	7 00	6 00	8 00	9 40

GOING EAST

Stations.	No. 2, Morn'g ex	No. 6, N. Y. Ex.	No. 4, At. Ex.	No. 8, Lim'd
Chicago lv.	8 30am	3 30pm	5 15pm	9 40pm
Plymouth	11 53		9 25	2 50am
Ft. Wayne	2 35pm	8 35	12 15am	6 55
Lima	4 38		2 38	8 55
Forest	5 43		2 55	10 08
Crestline ar.	7 10	12 35	5 30	11 45
Crestline lv.	7 30pm	12 40pm	6 40am	12 05pm
Mansfield	8 03	1 15am	7 20	12 35
Orrville	10 06	3 [illegible]	9 23	2 26
Alliance	11 45	4 25	11 25	4 00
Rochester	2 04am		2 10pm	6 22
Pittsburgh ar.	3 15	7 30	3 15	7 30

Nos 3 and 6, and 5 and 4 run daily: No. 1 leaves Pittsburgh daily, except Saturday. No. 8 leaves Chicago daily except Saturday. All others daily except Sunday.

F. R. MYERS,

Gen. Pass. and Ticket Agent.

Notice of Sale of Real Estate.

Notice is hereby given that by virtue of an order of the DeKalb circuit court, the undersigned administrator of the estate of John Whittington, deceased, will offer for sale on the premises, on Friday the 31st day of December, 1880 the following real estate to-wit: Lot No. six in the original plot of the town of Auburn Junction, Dekalb county, Indiana.

Terms: One-third cash; the residue in equal payments at twelve and eighteen months, with notes and interest, waiving valuation laws, with approved personal security. Sale to be at two o'clock, p. m. W. H. DILLS, Administrator.

30 3 t

Recorders Office

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Devoted to the Interests of the Democratic Party and to the Collection of Local and General News.

Volume 11. AUBURN, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, JANUARY 13, 1881. Number 2.

The Auburn Courier
PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY BY
BARNS & HUSSELMAN.

HOTELS.

Central House,

TENTH STREET, EAST OF MAIN. GOOD Sample rooms, and low rates.
T. D. Gross, Prop'r Auburn, Ind.

BUTT'S HOTEL

FREE OMNIBUS TO AND FROM ALL trains. Good sample rooms on first floor. John Butt, Proprietor, Waterloo, Indiana.

ATTORNEYS.

D. D. Moody,

ATTORNEY AT LAW AND NOTARY public. Also Prosecuting attorney for DeKalb County. Office in Court House. Auburn, Ind.

Wm. H. Leas,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW AND NOTARY PUBlic; will give prompt attention to collections Also represents first class insurance companies. Office over Willis & Co's. book store, Waterloo, Indiana.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Thomas Baldock,

PROPRIETOR of Stuart's patent compound Asphalt roofing, for DeKalb county, Ind., manufactured at Charlotte, Michigan. Consult or address at Auburn, Ind.

BUSINESS CARDS.

Cards not exceeding five lines each will b inserted under this head for $5,0 per annum For each additional line 50 cents extra will be charged.

PHYSICIANS.

J. J. Littlefield,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. OFFICE AND residence on 10th St., opposite S. W. Ralston's. All calls promptly attended to, day or night. Auburn, Indiana. 28 ly

ADVENTURES WITH WATERSPOUT.

A Reminiscence of the War of the Republic.

[Maj. E. W. Eversou, in Philadelphia Times.]

Toward the close of the war it became necessary, on account of the lack of capacity in the general hospital for confederates—which was located at the extremity of the Point—to place many of the sick prisoners in seven large frame buildings erected for the purpose within the pen. A startling event in connection with these buildings is in order of record here. It was just after the dawn of day when I strolled out of my quarters, on the magin of the bay, to find relief in the sea air from the oppressiveness of an unusually sultry night. It was at once evident, from the peculiar atmosphere and the deathlike indescribable stillness, that something out of the usual routine was near at hand. Soon there was heard a rumbling, roaring and hissing sound. Looking across the Potomac about eight miles distant, the cause, in an alarming shape, was discovered in a huge waterspout attached to a large, angry cyclone, in form like the placing of the nozzles of two funnels together. It was making its way from the Virginia shore diagonally toward the prison inclosure.

About a mile out, was anchored the three-turreted monitor Roanoke, one of the largest in the service—the frigate of that name razed—and carried an armament of one fifteen-inch and two eleven-inch guns. On came the monster of wind and water, presenting an appearance never to be forgotten, the hideous seething increasing as it advanced. The destruction of the Roanoke appeared to be inevitable; her fate hung, as it were, in the balance, when a curl of smoke was seen puff out from the center and largest turret. The fifteen-inch shell shattered the waterspout, and the huge tornado, like a liberated balloon, shot upward with lightning rapidity high in the heavens. Then with equal velocity it plunged downward, striking and wrecking the large commissary building near the river, carrying everything before it at the dock as if it was so much chaff in a September gale, including sentry boxes, in which one soldier was killed and two others mangled by being hurled many rods distant. Mounting in the air again in less time than it requires to record it, the cyclone descended, to all appearances, squarely down among the hospital buildings in the prison camp. By a singular freak, and fortunately, it struck the only building of the seven which was not occupied by the sick, and which was used for storing clothing and other material. This the cyclone carried out in the bay in the twinkling of an eye, so to speak, taking it as clean to the ground sills and flooring as if the boards and timber had been sawed off. Neither were there seen of it afterward board or other article.

This escape from a frightful disaster was almost miraculous, and the degree of readiness with which the closely and long-confined prisoner viewed their escape as an interposition of Divine Providence may readily be excused.

SILVER MOUNTAIN.

An Extraordinary Discovery in Alaska.

[San Francisco Chronicle.]

This season, when the whaling fleet returned from a short trip in the Arctic ocean, it was stated that the season had been unusually short, and that the catch had been large, but few people were aware of the extraordinary discovery that had been made by the crew of one of the vessels, which is to result in the enriching of a score or more of people. The story, as told by the captain of the whaler, is as follows: While the vessel was lying in a small bay at the mouth of one of the rivers which empty into the ocean on the coast of Alaska, a great many of the natives came aboard to trade for sea-buscuit, of which they are passionately fond, and they were treated so liberally by the white men that the chief invited the captain to accompany them up the river a short distance on a fishing excursion. The captain consented, especially as he was told that the river swarmed with salmon, and he desired to lay in a supply. A whaleboat was manned, and the captain, one of the mates and four men started on the expedition. The entire party went up the river about fifteen miles, passing over a rapid which was difficult on account of the swift current and rocky obstructions. Soon after passing the rapids they came in sight of a hill fringed with trees and shrubs at its base, but barren and rocky toward the summit, which seemed to be not more than four or five hundred feet high. Here the party halted, and, after partaking of dinner, the seamen began talking about salmon, while the captain and mate, together with the chief, made an ascent of the hill. Arriving at the top, they found what seemed to be the crater of an extinct volcano, and around were evidences that at one time there had been a terrible eruption, for loose bowlders, charred and blackened, strewed the ground in every direction. In the crater itself the captain noticed that the rocks resembled congealed iron after it had been melted, and undertook to knock off a piece, but could not do it, as it seemed to bend, not break, with his repeated blows with the head of a boat-ax. He then struck it with the blade of the ax and actually chopped it off and took it in his hand. Where the ax had cleaved its way through the rock he saw was as soft as lead, although it did not shine. He thought then that it was a metal of some kind, and kept it. The mate meanwhile had picked up some of the loose rocks and bowlders, and they started away. Toward evening a native brought a piece of rock about 12 inches long by 6 inches thick, which weighed forty-eight pounds, and sparkled with gold, stating that he had found it near another hill further up the river, and that such rock was easily gathered there. The party returned to the vessel, and in due time arrived in San Francisco. Here the story was told to a gentleman living in Oakland, and the specimens handed over to him for the purpose of having proper assays made. This was done, and the piece which the captain chopped off the top of the hill with an ax went $6,000 per ton in silver, and the loose rock picked up on the side of the hill went as high as $275 silver per ton. It seems that this hill is a mountain of silver, and that it is only the beginning of vast discoveries which will soon be made in Alaska, which may yet become the El Dorado to which thousands will rush. The Oakland gentleman spoken of immediately formed a party or company which has chartered the whaler to take a trip to the scene of the remarkable find as soon as the season opens. The party will consist of the same captain and mate who found the treasure and six others, besides the crew. The company will provision the vessel for seven months, pay the crew, and give the captain and mate an equal share of the proceeds. It is designed to leave San Francisco in April. It will take 18 or 20 days to make the run up, and not more than 15 or 20 days to load the vessel, which will return to San Francisco, unload cargo, and make another trip up to the place again. On her first trip she will leave the working party, which will put in the time during her absence in getting out a cargo of the richest ore for her on her return. It will be remembered that the Corwin, on her trip to the Arctic this season, discovered an unlimited supply of coal in North Alaska, and also brought back specimens of silver-bearing rock, which assays $175 per ton. So, if the whaler is successful in Alaska in 1881, we may look for lively times in Alaska in the near future.

Subscribe for the COURIER for 1881, the leading paper in DeKalb county.

SEVEN DAYS IN A HEMLOCK TREE.

A Lady Sixty Years of Age Loses Her Way in a Potter County, Pennsylvania, Swamp.

Mrs. Lucy A. Still, lives near Sharon's Mills over in Potter county, Pennsylvania. She is about sixty years of age, and has a son living about six miles from her, across one of the nameless swamps of the country named. She started to visit him a little more than a week ago. There had been a slight fall of snow a day or two before, and the road was partly hidden from sight, but the old lady made up her mind to go, and so she started on foot to walk the six miles; a task she had frequently accomplished. Before she had reached the center of this great nameless swamp, the snow again commenced falling, and in a short time the road was hidden from sight. Still the old lady plodded bravely on, but when darkness overtook her she must have estrayed from the road, and finally she found herself struggling in the mire. She became frightened and confused, and the more she struggled the deeper she sank, until she found it would be impossible to extricate herself. She screamed for help, but in vain; no one answered her call. She at last, after almost superhuman efforts, succeeded in reaching a hemlock-tree, which she climbed. The dense foliage of the tree afforded her considerable warmth, and she determined to remain there until morning. The morning dawned comparatively warm, and the bog by which she was surrounded became more and more soft and perfectly impassable. Before starting from home, Mrs. Still had put some bread and crackers in her pocket to eat upon the road, and fortunately had in her pocket a large flask of brandy, which she was taking to her son. Upon these provisions and a quantity of snow which she ate, Mrs. Still managed to subsist for seven days, never daring to descend from her perch in the tree. She screamed almost continously, and on the following Monday, just a week after she had started to walk to her son's house, her cries for help were heard by a party of hunters, who immediately made preparations for her rescue. They procured an axe and made a raft, which they succeeded in pushing to the foot of the tree in which Mrs. Still was sitting, and in a short time she was safe at her son's house. Parties had been scouring the country in all directions for days, and finally all hopes of finding her had been abandoned. While in the swamp, Mrs. Still says she saw hundreds of deer and three or four bears. She was attacked by a wildcat, but her prayers for safety were answered, for as the animal came toward her she gave an awful scream, and the "vermint" fled. Mrs. Still was so exhausted and weak that she could hardly move when found, and a serious illness has resulted which may yet prove fatal.

The Women of Lima.

Lima, says an exchange, is called the paradise of women. They are called beautiful; so they are, if you admire black eyes, and ebony tresses—not the dreamy black eyes of the harems, nor the sparkling black eyes of the Syrians, nor the liquid black eyes of the Egyptians, but the black eyes that easily reveal the different types of character. They are generally occupied but do not work; they look upon labor as degrading. They rise early, take a cup of tea and go to mass. Their toilet requires but a few momoments. Their walking suits are neat and pretty; in this respect they surpass us. The dress is black and never touches the ground; there is no fussing or fumbling with trains. A white skirt is sometimes seen a little below the dress, with deep hem and two tucks and always white and clean. Prunella gaiters are generally worn; and hands are bare; the manta is thrown over the head, falling gracefully down almost to the bottom of the skirt. The subject of dress claims most of their time and attention; their ball dresses and opera and soiree suits are magnificent. Their boots, especially, are beautiful. No people have naturally as small feet as the Peruvians. The Peruvian-made boots are too small for foreigners. Peruvian ladies are not very intelligent; as soon as they pass beyond the school-girl period they care little for books or literature. Many learn to play the piano when young, but do not care to continue when married. They are excessively courteous in their manners, but we are not to be mislead by appearances. Their mode of salutation is more of an embrace than anything else, and they always say: "My house and all that I have is entire at your disposal, and we are to be as one family." They are all wealthy in imagination—at least they never speak of poverty. They love to smoke. Although handsome when young, they scarcely turn twenty when they begin to fade. One thing always lasts with them, and that is their gait. Their movements are gliding and graceful; the same is true of the men.

The Crocodile and the Ichneumons.

The following from the Indianapolis Sentinel is very much to the point at the present time:

"General Garfield recently entertained an intimate personal friend at his home, and the familiar friend has been telling to a correspondent of the New York Tribune the substance of General Garfield's remarks upon matters purely personal. The president-elect is trying to be a philosopher, and take things easy, but he finds daily necessity for special attention to his presidential spine, and seems to entertain grave doubts as to its capacity to bear the tremendous pressure to which it will be subjected after the fourth of March. Office-seekers pour in on him singly and in groups. They are continually arriving and departing, until the president-elect thinks himself a crocodile on the banks of the Nile, fast asleep, with his mouth open, waiting for a square meal of flies, and all the office-seekers, an innumerable hord of ichneumons, ready to enter and eat out his political vitals—or he thinks of himself as a convicted felon on his way to prison, ready to suffer, and determined to reform under the dicipline of the penitentiary. He said:

"I sometimes think of myself as a man going to prison. You have heard of the advice given to a man who has been convicted of a crime to go to prison and bear manfully the punishment for his offense, to obey all the rules of the prison, and when his term expires to come back home and 'live it down.' I am going to see if I can obey all the rules of the presidency, and then come back home and 'live it down.'

"It may appear very foolish to be greatly annoyed by what seem to be little things, or by the dogged pertinacity of those one terms small people, but it cannot be helped sometimes. Some of my recent experiences in this regard remind me of the story of the ichneumons and the crocodile on the bank of the Nile. The keen cunning, cruel creature called the ichneumon watches until it sees the crocodile fast asleep with his mouth open; it then rushes quickly down his throat and with sharp teeth and claws lays hold of the very vitals of the great crocodile, which with all his strength, is utterly powerless to loosen the hold of his relentless little tormentor. He rolls and writhes in his strong agony and desperation, and at last dies. Imagine a crocodile with a hundred or a thousand ichneumons down his throat, and you have a picture of the torture that may be inflicted upon a sensitive, sympathetic nature by the horde of office-seekers which attacks a new president or any other man who has patronage to bestow at the incoming of a new administration."

Here we have a picture of a big republican crocodile as president-elect, and "a hundred or a thousand" "small people," republican ichneumons, standing around, ready to go in and lunch on his true inwardness, each with his sharp teeth and claws laying hold of an office, and raising the Flanigan shout, "What are we bouncing the crocodile for, if not for office?" The republican crocodile "rolls and writhes," but the republican ichneumons hang on with teeth and claws, and bite and scratch the more relentlessly, until the crocodile promises to do the fair thing by them all. Garfield as the great republican crocodile, is of the opinion that the crop of office-seeking ichneumons is exceptionally big, and that it will be unsafe for him to go to sleep and leave his mouth open. General Garfield, in estimating the sum total of the number of office-seeking ichneumons that will bother him about offices, has to divide his acquaintances into groups—the neighborhood group, the school group, the church group, the army group, and the political group. These groups number many thousands, and the president-elect is of the opinion that a large percentage of these groups will be disposed to take advantage of their acquaintance and play ichneumons, if, like the crocodile, he goes to sleep with his mouth open. In one way and another Garfield will have to take care of about 100,000 of these republican ichneumons. It may be well to describe the ichneumon. It has a long body and short legs, head small and pointed, ears short and rounded, feet five toed, with short semi-retractile claws. They are sometimes known as Pharaoh's rats. It is not surprising that General Garfield, who likens himself to a crocodile on the banks of the Nile, is alarmed at the formidable army of republican ichneumon office-seekers who are waiting to see him open his mouth. Manifestly, the crocodile is on the alert and the ichneumons are anxious. The show will be watched with becoming solicitude.

PRINTERS.

How They Hob-Nob With Greatness.

A little knot of printers were indulging in some personal reminiscences, and an epitome of the conversation will give the public an insight into the cosmopolitain life of the craft, and show how they often hob-nob with greatness.

Said Slug One: "I tell you Sam. Bowles was a good one. Nothing small about Sam. One day I struck Springfield, busted flat as a flat-iron, and bolted right for the Republican office. Sam. was writing an editorial on the Kansas border law, or some of those old heavy subjects, but he dropped everything and made it nice and comfortable for me. Gave me an order on a restaurant for something, and gave me the ad. frames that night."

"Did you ever strike Greely when you wanted a favor?" asked Slug Two. "Greely was always busy grinding out that horrible copy of his, but he rarely allowed his work to interfere with his social duties. I was present once, however, when he threw a printer down stairs, but I never blamed the old fellow much; the trouble grew out of some insinuation I had made abous the Niagara meeting."

Slug Three said he struck Louisville once in George D. Prentice's time, and the visit was always a bright spot in his memory. "I wanted to see the old man, and went right to his private office. He asked me if I needed anything, and I told him I didn't. Had two full weeks' work in my pocket, and told him I wanted him to come out and take something with me. I remember it like it was yesterday. He was writing a poem on the death of a child—none of your Philadelphia Ledger poetry, but the real thing. George jabbed his pen into the desk and said kind of melancholy-like: "I don't often take anything, but when I do, I have noticed it is usually about this time of day." He stayed right with me all afternoon. Never had such a circus in my life. The police knew George, or both of us might have been jugged. Quote poetry? Why, he would hang onto the edge of the bar like a ground-squirrel and quote the Greek and Latin poets till your head would swim.

Slug Four was in Boston when Dickens, read there, and enjoyed the extreme felicity of a night off with the great novelist. Dickens came into the office one night to look over the report of his lecture, and made some corrections and additions in the proof. "I couldn't read his writing very well," said the printer, "and brought out the proof and asked him what so and so was. He told me, and then tipped me the wink and asked me to correct the galley, and put on a sub and come and see him at his hotel. When I got through and went around to the Tremont House, it was one o'clock in the morning, but I'm darned if Dickens wasn't waiting for me. Well, I needn't tell you any more than to say simply that before we parted company he wanted me to call him Charley."

And so the interesting personal reminiscences went on. One printer, a Frenchman, had set up a sonnet from Victor Hugo's manuscript. He captured the copy and has it at his boarding-house now, if any one cares to step around to see it. Another had set up a "take" of a famous double-headed editorial on the abolition of slavery, written by the elder Bennett, and injected into it surreptitiously and with cussedness aforethought a quotation from "Mary's Little Lamb," chewed up the copy, and managed the whole thing with such devilish adroitness that it got into the paper and went through the editions.

—The National Live Stock Journal asserts that hams have a decidedly better flavor, and the meat retains a more natural color, when nothing but plain salt is used in the curing. If the work of salting is carefully attended to, the hams, when cured with salt, alone, will be ready for smoking at from six weeks to two months, according to the size of the hams. Saltpeter has a tendency to harden and redden the meat. It undoubtedly hastens the curing process; but it does so at the expense of the flavor.

The Detroit Free Pres says that "the author of 'Mollie Darling' lives in Toledo." The wonder is that he is allowed to live at all.—New Orleans Picayune.

Ye Olden Days.

Thirty years ago Michigan people were a frank and truthful set. Strangers could come here and trade horses with their eyes shut, and breach of promise cases were unknown. Folks meant what they said, and when they gave their word stuck to it.

Exactly thirty years ago this month, a widower from New York state appeared in Lansing on business. That same business carried him over to De Witt, eight miles away. When en route, he stopped at a log farm-house to warm his fingers. He was warmly welcomed by the pioneer and his wife, both of whom were well along in years, and after some general talk, the woman inquired:

"Am I right in thinking you are a widower?"

"Yes."

"Did you come out here to find a wife?"

"Partly."

"Did anybody tell you of our Susie?"

"No."

"Well, we've got as bouncing a girl, of 22 as you ever set eyes on. She's good-looking, healthy, and good-tempered, and I think she'll like your looks.

"Where is she?"

"Over in the woods, here, chopping down a coon-tree. Shall I blow the horn for her?"

"No. If you'll keep an eye on my horse I'll find her."

"Well, there's nothing stuck up or affected about Susie. She'll say yes or no as soon as she looks you over. If you want her don't be afraid to say so."

The stranger heard the sound of her axe and followed it. He found her just as the tree was ready to fall. She was a stout, good-looking girl, swinging the axe like a man, and in two minutes he had decided to say:

"Susie, I'm a widower from New York state; I'm 39 years old, have one child, own a good farm, and I want a wife. Will you go back home with me?"

She leaned on her axe and looked at him for half a minute, and then replied:

"Can't say for certain. Just wait till I get the coons off my mind."

She sent the tree crashing to the earth, and with his help killed five coons, which were stowed away in a hollow.

"Well, what do you say?" he asked, as the last coon stopped kicking.

"I'm your'n!" was the reply, "and by the time you get back from De Witt I'll have these pelts off and tacked up and be ready for the preacher."

He returned to the house, told the old folks that he should bring a preacher back with him, and at dusk that evening the swain were married. Hardly an hour had been wasted in courting, and yet he took home one of the best girls in the state of Michigan.

NOTICE TO HEIRS OF PETITION TO SELL REAL ESTATE.

State of Indiana, DeKalb county—In the DeKalb circuit court.

Notice is hereby given, that Malinda Kessler, administratrix of the estate of Eli Kessler, deceased, has filed a petition to sell the real estate of the decedent, the personal being insufficient to pay his debts, and that said petition will be heard at the next term of said court.

Attest: JNO. W. BAXTER, Clerk

December 20, 1880. 52-3w.

A. J. Baxter, Attorney.

NOTICE TO NON-RESIDENTS.

State of Indiana, DeKalb county—In the DeKalb circuit court, February term, 1881.

Leonard Hartle is hereby notified that an action has been commenced against him in said court, in attachment. John Barrett, administrator of the estate of Adam P. Hartle, deceased, and that the same will be heard and determined on the 2d juridical day of the next term of said court, which commences Feburary 28, 1881.

Witness, The clerk of said court, this 21st of December, 1880.

52-4w JOHN W. BAXTER, Clerk.

Rose & Hariman, Attorneys.

Notice to Non-Residents.

State of Indiana, DeKalb county—In the DeKalb circuit court, February term, 1881.

Lucinda Waydelich, Jacob Waderlich and Raymond Knisley, impleaded with others, are hereby notified that an action has been commenced against them in said court, in partition by Joseph Bell, and that the same will be heard and determined on the 2d juridical day of the next term of of said court, which commences February 28th, 1881.

Witness, the clerk of said court, this 23d day of December, 188..

53-3t. JOHN W. BAXTER, Clerk.

Administrator's Sale.

Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of an order of the DeKalb circuit court, the undersigned, administrator of the estate of Hiram Loutzenheizer, deceased, will offer for sale at public auction, on the premises, on saturday, the 5th day of February, 1881, the following premises in DeKalb county, in the state of Indiana, to-wit:

A part of the south half of the north-east quarter of section thirteen (13), in township number thirty-three (33), north of range thirteen (13) east, bounded by a line commencing at a point on the east boundry line of said section, seventy rods south of the north-east corner of said south half, and running thence west on a line parallell with the south boundary line of said north-east quarter to a point equal-distant from the east and west boundary lines of said north-east quarter, thence south to the south boundary line of said south-east quarter, thence east on said line to the south-east corner of said north-east quarter, thence north to the place of beginning, containing five acres more or less.

Terms: one third cash, the residue in equal payments at twelve and eighteen months, with note at interest, waiving benefit of appraisement laws, and secured by mortgage upon the real estate sold. Sale to commence at two o'clock p. m. 53-3w.

HENRY H[illegible], Administrator.

AUBURN COURIER.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 13, 1881.

WEEKLY NEWS REVIEW.

THE EAST.

BENJ. K. PHELPS, District Attorney of New York, is dead....J. W. Milne, an employe of the Pocasset National Bank, at Fall River, Mass., has fled to Canada, and a shortage of $7,500 in his accounts has been developed.

EPES SARGENT, a well-known journalist and author, has just died in Boston....The daily freight traffic between New York and Philadelphia averages 3,000 tons each way. A company will soon be organized in the former city to construct two steel steamers, and divert business from the railroads. The trips are to be made in fifteen hours....There were 3,044 failures in New York city during the year 1880, the aggregate liabilities being $19,391,582 and the assets $8,146,391. While the gross liabilities exceed those of the preceding year by $2,900,000, in round numbers, the number of failures is 25 per cent. less, and is the smallest since the panic of 1873.

HERMAN W. GEDICKE, of Newark, N. J., has been sentenced to the penitentiary for ten years for criminal malpractice as a physician....Mrs. Theresa Reimanschneider, when arraigned in a New Jersey court, pleaded guilty to the charge of marrying twelve men within six years, only one of whom is dead....Bernard Gaffney and John McDonald, miners, were killed instantly by the fall of top coal in their mine chamber at Carbondale, Pa.

NEW YORK has had another fire horror. A tenement house in which eight families lived caught fire at midnight under the stairway, which formed the only means of ingress or egress. In a moment the whole flimsy structure was in flames, and there was no chance for the frightened inmates to escape save by jumping from the windows. Ten women and children were burned to death. Three children were saved by their brother, a boy of 15, who threw them from a third-story window to their mother, who stood in the yard below and caught them as they fell. The boy then jumped and was similarly caught. One old woman, 80 years of age, jumped from a second-story window with her two grandchildren in her arms. Her leg was broken by the fall, but the children escaped uninjured. A young man gained access to the roof from an adjoining building, and broke in the scuttle. A little girl who was carrying a baby reached her arm up to him, and he seized it, but the burned flesh parted from the bone, and she slid from his grasp back into the flames. The scene was appalling beyond description.

A BROOKLYN burglar, after robbing a lady of her wedding gifts, reached the roof of an unoccupied house adjoining, and fell through the skylight to the parlor floor, where he was found in a dying condition....The residence of Elihu Sperry, in New Haven, was robbed of $45,000 in bonds. Harland, a nephew of the loser, has been held in $20,000 to answer....The brewery of T. L. Ober and Brothers, in Allegheny City, Pa., has been destryed by fire, causing a loss of $45,000....The Phenix Pharmaceutical Works, New York, have been burned. The loss was about $40,000.

GOVERNOR-ELECT PORTER, of Indiana, and Miss Stone were married at the residence of Walter S. Gurnee, in New York, by Rev. John S. Freeman, of Lockport. The son and daughter of the groom were present....The Hodge Opera House and the Gargling Oil Works, at Lockport, N. Y., have been burned. The loss was about $150,000....The United States Electric Lighting Company is making arrangements to furnish lights to New York business houses and residences.

A BOILER in a rolling-mill at Allentown, Pa., exploded, killing one man, fatally wounding five, and injuring five others. The damage is $20,000. The boiler was cut in halves, each of which was thrown 200 feet....Four men were fatally injured by an explosion of varnish in a New York brewery.

THE WEST.

A COMPANY has been formed to introduce electric light in Cincinnati, Covington, and Newport....Street-car drivers in Cincinnati, in large numbers, have given up their situations, owing to the severity of the weather. Their pay is 10 cents per hour....A physician of Fond du Lac, Wis., ordered that a warm flat-iron be applied to the chest of Mrs. August Teffler, who was suffering from pneumonia. Her drunken husband used an eight-pound iron so hot that it burned its way into the cavity of the chest.

BARTLEY CAMPBELL'S popular play, "The Galley Slave," is the bill at Haverly's Chicago house the present week, with a very fine cast, embracing a number of old Western favorites and some new names. Next to "My Partner," "The Galley Slave" has been the most popular of Mr. Bartley Campbell's works. Perhaps it has made more money for the prolific author than any two of his plays. The performances during the week will be for the benefit of the Sixth Illinois Infantry.

TOLEDO reports wheat receipts for the year of over 25,000,000 bushels, the completion of three new railroads, and an increase of one-fourth in the trade of the wholesale merchants....A strange fatality occurred at Addison, Mich., New Year's night. A lady named Mrs. Canfield fell while dancing with her husband and her hand was slightly lacerated by his boot heel. Inflammation set in, tetanus followed, and in twelve hours she died....The annual report of the Chicago postoffice shows that the receipts for the past year were $1,346,-895, and the expenses $306,207, leaving a surplus of $1,040,688.

THE Illinois Board of Agriculture has passed a resolution requesting the General Assembly to pass laws to put an end to the manufacture of tallow and grease into compounds which are sold for butter....A passenger train on the St. Paul and Omaha railroad struck a party of laborers who were clearing away the snow in a cut near Middle creek. Six men were killed and a seventh badly injured....The production of precious metals in the region west of the Missouri river during the past year was $33,522,182 gold, $40,005,364 silver, $5,-752,890 lead, and $898,000 copper....Bowman & Bleyer, liquor merchants, of St. Louis, have made an assignment to their creditors. Their liabilities are $130,000.

SINCE the beginning of the season, 4,875,000 hogs have been packed at Western points. It is estimated that the number will be increased to 7,000,000 before the 1st of March....Hon. Otto Dressel, a German lawyer of Columbus, Ohio, shot himself dead at his office....J. F. Armour, a member of the famous packing firm of Chicago, is dead.

MRS. BROWN, of Indianapolis, has again been convicted of the murder of her husband, but the jury sentenced her to imprisonment for life....George B. Carpenter, the well-known lecture manager of Chicago, is dead....Mrs. Davis and her daughter were burned to death at Coalvale, Kan. Miss Davis' dress caught fire from an open fire-place, and her mother lost her life in trying to save her.

THE SOUTH.

A TEXAS jury has acquitted Abe Rothschild, who was generally believed to have murdered Bessie Moore and cut her into chunks convenient for packing.

REV. JOHN WESTRUP, who was appointed by the Houston (Tex.) Conference as Baptist missionary to Mexico, was murdered and horribly mutilated by twenty Indians, near Monterey, Mexico....Henry Washington, a colored youth of 18, was hanged at Jackson, Miss., for murder. He confessed his guilt, and was repentant.

A COLUMBIA (S. C.) dispatch says that while a steam launch belonging to a revenue cutter stationed near Beaufort was proceeding to Port Royal, she picked up a flatboat adrift off Bay Point. The crew consisted of eight men, who were dead and sheathed in the ice which covered their vessel. They had been drinking heavily the evening before, and it is supposed that, while under the influence of liquor, they fell into a sleep and drifted out.

LIFE IN TEXAS: At a dancing party at a private house in Callahan county, Mr. Starr made his appearance intoxicated and insulted a highly esteemed young lady, Miss Heyser. Her brother, who happened to be present, instantly killed Starr. Under the statute law of Texas Heyser is justifiable for protecting his sister—James A. Curtis, a prominent cattle-man of Northern Texas, was shot and killed in a saloon at Cambridge by Van Rice, who had formerly worked for Curtis, and had been discharged. Rice also received three shots from Curtis before he died, and, as he (Rice) was having the wounds dressed at a doctor's office, some unknown person, presumed to be a friend of Curtis, fired a shot through the window, striking Rice in the breast, inflicting a mortal wound.

WASHINGTON.

SPEAKER RANDALL, of the House of Representatives, believes there is every probability that the bill to place ex-President Grant on the retired list of the army, with the rank and pay of General, will be reported favorably by the Military Committee....Judge Freeman, the legal adviser of the Postoffice Department, declares that printed commercial papers filled out in writing are legally subject to letter postage.

THE Superintendent of Census makes the following approximate statement of the population of States and Territories. It is believed to be very near the official figures.

Alabama	1,262,344	Missouri	2,169,091
Alaska		Montana	39,157
Arizona	40,441	Nebraska	452,432
Arkansas	802,064	Nevada	62,265
California	864,686	New Hampshire	347,784
Colorado	194,649	New Jersey	1,130,892
Connecticut	622,683	New Mexico	118,430
Dakota	134,502	New York	5,083,173
Delaware	146,654	North Carolina	1,400,000
D. of Columbia	177,638	Ohio	3,197,794
Florida	266,566	Oregon	174,767
Georgia	1,538,983	Pennsylvania	4,282,738
Idaho	32,611	Rhode Island	276,528
Illinois	3,078,636	South Carolina	995,706
Indiana	1,978,358	Tennessee	1,542,463
Iowa	1,624,463	Texas	1,597,509
Kansas	995,335	Utah	143,907
Kentucky	1,648,599	Vermont	332,286
Louisiana	940,263	Virginia	1,512,203
Maine	648,945	Washington	75,120
Maryland	935,139	West Virginia	618,193
Massachusetts	1,783,086	Wisconsin	1,315,386
Michigan	1,634,096	Wyoming	20,788
Minnesota	780,807
Mississippi	1,131,899	Total	50,152,559

THE receipts from customs for December will amount to nearly $18,000,000, and from internal revenue nearly $12,000,000....Fifty-nine national banks, with an aggregate capital of $7,274,170, were organized during the year just closed. Eleven banks, with an aggregate capital of $1,046,000, went out of business, and three banks, with a capital of $700,000, went into bankruptcy....The President having nominated Capt. Richard L. Law, of Indiana, to be a Commodore in the navy, to take his original position on the list, thirty-four Captains affected thereby have sent a memorial to the Naval Committees in Congress, protesting against such restorations over the heads of officers in faithful and continuous service....Following is a statement of the United States currency outstanding at the beginning of the new year:

Old demand notes	$ 60,745
Legal-tender notes, all issues	346,681,016
One-year notes of '63	46,085
Two-year notes of '63	12,550
Two-year coupon notes of '63	23,350
Compound-interest notes	241,210
Fractional currency, all issues	15,523,468
Total	$362,388,424

FOLLOWING is the regular monthly public-debt statement issued on the 1st inst.:

Six per cent. bonds		$ 202,266,550
Five per cents		469,651,050
Four and one-half per cents		250,000,000
Four per cents		738,420,400
Refunding certificates		927,400
Navy pension fund		14,000,000
Total coin bonds		$1,672,265,400
Matured debt	$ 11,484,395
Legal tenders	346,741,761
Certificates of deposit	7,005,000
Fractional currency ($1,-853,346 less amount estimated as lost or destroyed $8,375,934)	7,147,630
Gold and silver certificates	52,241,010
Total without interest		413,135,301
Total debt		$2,099,885,096
Total interest		21,596,379
Cash in treasury		222,290,739
Debt less cash in treasury		$1,899,181,735
Decrease during December		5,699,430
Decrease since June 30, 1880		42,990,539
Current liabilities—
Interest due and unpaid		$ 2,309,933
Debt on which interest has ceased		11,484,395
Interest thereon		856,895
Gold and silver certificates		52,241,010
United States notes held for redemption of certificates of deposit		7,005,000
Cash balance available Jan. 1, 1881		148,593,615
Total		$ 222,290,739
Available assets—
Cash in treasury		$ 222,290,739
Bonds issued to Pacific railway companies, interest payable in lawful money, principal outstanding		$ 64,623,512
Interest accrued and not yet paid		1,938,705
Interest paid by United States		47,599,861
Interest repaid by companies—
Interest repaid by transportation of mails		14,052,447
By cash payments of 5 per cent. of net earnings		655,198
Balance of interest paid by the United States		$2,892,214

MR. BENTLEY, Commissioner of the Pensions Bureau, appeals for some improvement in the manner of taking testimony upon claims, of which there were 282,000 pending on June 30. The first payments in cases which will probably be allowed will aggregate, he thinks, $200,000,000 to $230,000,000....President Hayes has appointed Nathan Goff, Jr., of West Virginia, Secretary of the Navy. He was a Brigadier General in the Union army at the close of the war, and for the past twelve years has been United States District Attorney of West Virginia. It is understood that his appointment is approved by Gen. Garfield....An effort will be made this session to get the Mormon bill, which denies the right of suffrage to persons who practice polygamy, reported to the House, but it will be left for the next Congress to pass upon it....The House Postal Committee has under consideration a bill to reduce the rate of postage on second-class matter to 2 cents a pound.

POLITICAL.

THE Garfield-Morey Chinese letter comes to the light once more in the confession, on the part of the paper that published it to the world, that it is a forgery. The editors of Truth have addressed a letter to Gen. Garfield, in which they say: "After a searching investigation, in which we have spared neither time, energy, nor expense, we have traced the Morey letter to its origin, and ascertained that it is a forgery. This acknowledgment is due from the journal in which that letter first appeared. It is made voluntarily, and as an act of simple justice; for, while we believed, as we did until a few weeks past, that you were the author of that letter, no bribe could tempt nor threat intimidate us into making a contrary statement. But, having ascertained our error now, it is a gratification to us to give the same prominence to this acknowledgment that we gave to the forged letter itself, and thereby make all the amends in our power for the wrong of which Truth was the unconscious instrument."

SECRETARY EVARTS is reported to have said that Senator Blaine will be Secretary of State in Gen. Garfield's Cabinet. The other members, according to the same authority, are: Secretary of the Treasury, James F. Wilson, of Iowa; Secretary of the Interior, D. O. Mills, of California; Secretary of War, Senator Don Cameron; Secretary of the Navy, a Southern Republican; Attorney General, a New York Republican; Postmaster General, an Indiana Republican.

THE Republican members of the California Legislature held a caucus on the 5th inst., and selected Gen. John F. Miller for the United States Senatorship, Newton Booth receiving five votes....In organizing the Pennsylvania Senate, E. B. Coxe, Democrat, from Luzerne county, confessed his inability to take the iron-clad oath, as he had used money in securing his election.

THE lower house of the Tennessee Legislature has chosen Mrs. Mollie Grizzard Engrossing Clerk. She is a relative of Davy Crockett, and her husband was a Unionist who fled to the swamps and was killed by Union soldiers for an escaping Confederate....The Republican members of the Michigan Legislature held a caucus on the 5th inst., and on the seventh ballot elected Congressman Conger their candidate for Senator for the long term and Senator Baldwin for the short term....Frank W. Palmer has been reappointed Postmaster at Chicago.

THERE is some talk of giving Senator Bruce, of Mississippi, a place in the next Cabinet. Most of the Mississippi delegation favor the plan. Senator Lamar says he would rather see Senator Bruce in the Cabinet than any white Republican in Mississippi.

GENERAL.

RECENT deaths: Dr. Joseph R. Beck, a prominent physician of Fort Wayne, Ind.; the Dowager Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Strelitz.

THE recent phenomenal cold wave seems to have penetrated to every nook and corner of the United States. It was exceptionally severe in the Southern States. The Arkansas river was frozen over solid from Fort Smith to its junction with the Mississippi, something unprecedented. At Petersburg, Va., the thermometer registered 18 degrees below zero, the lowest ever recorded. In Virginia, cattle and game perished by the hundred, and deer came from their retreats to the very doors of the farmers in search of food. At Washington city it was 10 degrees below, and there was great suffering in consequence of the intense cold. In New Hampshire and Vermont the thermometer ranged from 25 to 30, and at Antrim, in Maine, the mercury fell to 38 below. Throughout New York the temperature varied from 15 and 18 below in the river valleys to 25 to 30 below in the elevated region. Quail and other wild game in the valley of the Ohio have been killed in large numbers by the Arctic weather....Among the fires of the week we note the burning of the Buford Plow Factory, at Rock Island, Ill., involving a loss of $150,000 to $200,000; the summer residence of James R. Keene, at Newport, R. I., loss estimated at $100,000; four stores on Magazine street, New Orleans, entailing a loss of $300,000; the Marion House, a bank and several stores in Jackson, Mich., loss $80,000; and two hotels at Atlantic City, N. J., loss $40,000; the First Methodist Church at Canton, Ohio, valued at $45,000; the office of the Cosmos newspaper and an opera house at St. Charles, Mo., causing a loss of $30,000; a fine hotel at North Adams, Mass.; an opera house at Kingston, N. Y., and the fine museum in Central Park, New York.

ABOUT 6,000 miles of railway were constructed in the United States during the past year. The total mileage now exceeds 92,500, or more than any four nations of Europe. In 1879, 4,721 miles of new road were built, and this has only been exceeded three times within the past ten years. The following table shows the number of miles operated and the annual increase of mileage during the decade ending with 1879:

Year.	Miles in operation.	Annual increase.
1870	52,914	6,070
1871	60,293	7,379
1872	66,161	5,878
1873	70,278	4,107
1874	72,383	2,105
1875	74,096	1,712
1876	76,808	2,712
1877	79,089	2,281
1878	81,776	2,687
1879	86,497	4,721

GOV. WALLACE draws a startling picture of the audacity of robbers and murderers in New Mexico, and declares that if Congress will amend the Posse Comitatus law he can make life and property safe. He anticipates an immense influx of immigrants on the advent of spring, and will plead with the Territorial committees of both houses of Congress for liberty to use troops.

THE bark Happy Home, of Haletsport, N. S. struck Trinity ledge, twelve miles from Yarmouth, N. S., and capsized. The Captain's wife, daughter, and one man perished.

A PREPARATORY expedition, composed of engineers and skilled mechanics, has left Havre for Panama, to begin work on the De Lesseps canal....What is expected to become the principal oil district on the American continent is being developed at Cape Breton, N. S.

DANIEL F. SULLIVAN and Patrick Hayes were hanged in Moyamensing prison, Philadelphia, on Thursday, Jan. 6. Frank Lammens and Margaret Merihoffer were executed at Newark, N. J., for the murder of the woman's husband. Arthur Murphy was hanged at Pendleton, Ore., for the murder of F. D. French.

A MOB of 300 persons forced the prison doors at Entre Rios, in the Argentine Republic, and cut to pieces four slaves charged with murder....Capt. James B. Eads has returned to New Orleans in a Mexican war steamer. He has been given the right to build a ship railway across the Isthmus of Tehuantepec, with 1,000,000 acres of land on the Pacific side, ten years being allowed to complete the work.

FOREIGN.

DISASTROUS floods are reported in Derbyshire, England....Spain has contracted for the construction in England of several war vessels, and is building gunboats and fast sloops in the arsenals of the peninsula, for service in Cuban waters....The steamer Garnet has been lost in the North sea with seventeen men, and the steamer Montgomeryshire on the coast of Portugal with thirty men. Both boats were British....An anti-Jewish meeting, in Berlin, was attended by such crowds that the police were obliged to close the doors....By the breaking of dykes in the province of North Brabant, Holland, eighteen villages have been flooded, causing immense damage.

NEGOTIATIONS between the Chinese Ambassador and the Russian Government have been concluded. It is stated that China is ready to open the empire to the commerce of Russia....The Porte has resolved to mass 100,000 troops on the Greek frontier, and concentrate forces at other points....A severe battle has been fought by the Russians and Turcomans, the former withdrawing a short distance.

IT is stated that 1,000 guns are each week surreptitiously sent to Ireland from Birmingham, and that within three weeks 5,000 Enfield rifles have also been forwarded....South African advices indicate that the Boers maintain the advantage they have gained. President Board, of the Orange Free State, says he is unable to prevent the Dutch colonists joining the Transvaal insurrectionists, and he may soon be compelled to resign. The London Times says that before February the British force at the Cape will exceed the number of the Boers....The anti-Jewish agitation in Germany appears to be gaining strength, and hard blows are taking the place of hard words. On New Year's day the students in Berlin amused themselves by assaulting Jews in the streets and smashing the windows of coffee-houses frequented by them. The report of a proposed demonstration in the United States to protest against this persecution has caused some indignation. Germany does not wish any foreign power to meddle with her affairs.

THE Greek Premier has informed the foreign Ministers at Athens that his Government would cling to the decisions of the Berlin Conference. The pressure for war is intense, and 32,000 reserves will soon be called out....The Emperor of Germany has received a report of the outrages committed by the anti-Jewish agitators on New Year's eve, and has expressed a desire that stringent measures be adopted to prevent their repetition....Dr. Schliemann has presented to the Emperor of Germany, to be placed in the museum in Berlin, his collection of Trojan antiquities....Seven hundred and fifty thousand peasants are starving in the Russian province of Saratoff, and more than 1,000,000 are in want in Samrais....Good feeling has been restored between Egypt and Abyssinia, and the highways have been reopened....Gen. Morionez, one of the ablest officers in the civil wars of Spain, has closed his career....Baron Simon Von Oppenheim, of the London banking firm of Oppenheim & Sons, is dead....Dr. Frederick J. Jobson, the eminent Methodist divine of London is dead.

IN an encounter between the police and a mob near Claremorris, Ireland, four persons were fatally bayoneted, and several others injured. At the Omagh assizes, a farmer named Graham was sentenced to penal servitude for life for shooting a bailiff near Cookstown on the 18th of December. The officers of the Tralee branch of the Land League were arrested and taken to jail, bail being refused. The crowd threatened the police who were escorting them through the streets, but the military, with fixed bayonets, went to their assistance....Blanqui, the French conspirator, was followed to his grave by a procession of 30,000 Parisians. Rochefort attended the funeral, and Louis Michel was one of the principal speakers....The German police have discovered a new secret organization of Socialists, extending over the whole empire.

The British Parliament convened on the 6th of January, and the address of the Queen was read. On the Irish question the speech alludes to the terrorism prevailing, and asserts that the insufficiency of ordinary powers forces a request for additional authority to protect life and property. The Lords are recommended to take measures to give a larger portion of the Irish people a permanent proprietary interest in the soil, and to consider a bill for the establishment of a county government in Ireland, founded upon representative principles....Parnell and his Parliamentary colleagues have made a burlesque of the state trials at Dublin, by absenting themselves. Not even an audience gathers to hear the testimony....Beaconsfield took an early opportunity to declare, in the House of Lords, that the accession of the Gladstone Government has unsettled everything in Europe, and also Ireland....Over 100 rifles were stolen from an armory in the vicinity of London. Dublin gun-shops still do an immense business....The English steamer Harrelda collided with the Spanish steamer Leon, twelve miles from Cape Roca. Both vessels sunk, and forty-five of the crews and passengers are missing....The Northern Pacific railroad bonds issued in London were covered four times. The amount of the issue was $10,-000,000.

BLOODY TRAGEDY.

The little town of Otis, not far from Michigan City, Ind., was the scene of a horrible tragedy on the last night of the old year. A wealthy German family, James Augustine, wife, two grown sons, and some younger children, lived upon their farm, two miles from Otis, a nephew, Henry Augustine, making his home with them when in the neighborhood. On the day in question Henry returned to the farm from a visit to Chicago. Supper was prepared for him and eaten. Afterward, Henry produced a bottle of whisky, which, having a bitter taste, was not drunk. Candy given the children was also bitter, and was rejected. At bed-time Henry went to bed up stairs with James Augustine, Jr. After going to bed Henry told James that he would have to get up in the night, and he need not be disturbed by him. About 11 o'clock Mr. Augustine awoke and saw Henry standing at the foot of his bed, pointing a revolver at him, Mr. Augustine drew the clothes around him and moved around in the bed to avoid being shot. Henry at once fired at him, and then at Mrs. Augustine, and then jumped out of the room and closed the door after him. Mrs. Augustine has died. The reports of the revolver awoke the sons, who slept up stairs. Christian Augustine came down stairs, asking what was the matter. Henry, in the meantime, had stepped into the hall and into the kitchen, behind the door, and when Christian came through the hall, near the bedroom door, Henry fired at him, killing him instantly. James Augustine just then came into the room, calling for his Cousin Henry. His father told him not to let him in, as he had murdered them, and would kill him if he got in. James then went to the kitchen door and held it to keep Henry from coming in. A noise which James thought came from the dead brother caused him to turn toward Christian. As he turned the assassin rushed into the room and fired at James, making a slight wound across the back. He then returned into the kitchen, and by the light of the stove reloaded the revolver, and returned to the door, which he found fastened, and asked to come in, that he was then all right and wanted to come in and help him; that he had been crazy. James told him to hand in his revolver, and he would let him in, which he did, handing him the butt, which James put in his pocket, opened the door and seized Henry, searched his pockets, and there found a broken butcher-knife. The other point of the blade was afterward found at the foot of the bed. James, in his excitement, put him in the kitchen, telling him to stay there, and called to his sister to bring him the lantern, which she did without lighting, and while he was attempting to light it Henry made a dash for the kitchen door and made his escape, without hat or boots.

CONGRESSIONAL SUMMARY.

On the reassembling of Congress after the holiday recess, on Wednesday, Jan. 5, the Vice President submitted to the Senate a letter from Gen. Garfield declining the Senatorship from Ohio. Mr. Ingalls introduced a bill to provide for the sale of a Pottawatomie reservation in Kansas, and Mr. Whyte a joint resolution for the purchase of the sword of George Washington from the heirs of George Lewis. Mr. Butler offered a resolution calling on Secretary Schurz for such information as may be in his possession with regard to the investigation of the alleged census frauds in South Carolina. The motion was agreed to. Mr. Kernan introduced a bill which provides that the Secretary of the Treasury shall hereafter cause to be coined only such an amount of silver dollars as he may find necessary to meet the demand for them. The bill for the relief of Ben Holliday was taken up, but the Senate adjourned without action thereon. In the House Mr. Springer introduced a bill for a new apportionment and for minority representation. Fernando Wood being ill, the Funding bill went over, and the House went into committee of the whole on the army appropriation, which was passed. Mr. Warner, of Ohio, assailed the President for the retirement of Gen. Ord. Mr. Reagan explained the features of his substitute for the Inter-State Commerce bill. The President nominated Madison M. Hurley Postmaster at New Albany, Ind., and Frank W. Palmer at Chicago.

Mr. Eaton reported the Diplomatic Appropriation bill to the Senate on the morning of Thursday, Jan. 6. The Army Appropriation was read twice and referred. Mr. Vest introduced a bill to authorize the construction of a bridge across the Missouri at Howell's Ferry, Mo. A prolonged debate took place on the claim of Ben Holliday. The Senate, in executive session, took up Gen. Goff's nomination as Secretary of the Navy, and immediately confirmed it, without the usual reference to committee. The House went into committee of the whole on the Funding bill. Mr. Kelley insisted upon temporary loans rather than an extension of the bonded debt. Mr. Chittenden favored the repeal of all taxes on the capital or deposits of banks. Mr. Weaver urged the application of the silver hoard to the extinguishment of bonds. Mr. Chittenden expressed the belief that unless the banks were relieved of tax the 3-per-cent. bond scheme would fail. Mr. Phillips gave notice of a substitute to issue 3-per-cent. treasury notes, redeemable after next year, in regular series.

OUR POPULATION.

Some Interesting Statistics of the New Census.

[From the Chicago Tribune.]

The total population (exclusive of Indians and the inhabitants of Alaska) is 50,152,559. The United States is thus shown to be the second most numerous nation in the civilized world. Not counting the negroes, who are estimated to number 6,000,000 souls, the population of this country considerably exceeds that of the German empire. Russia only remains in the lead with 66,000,000 inhabitants in the empire proper. But these returns are half guesswork, and might be largely diminished or increased by an official count. It is safe to say that, unless the growth of the country is checked by some unforeseen cause, the population of the United States in ten years will equal or exceed that at present accorded to Russia. The percentage of growth is far higher in the former than in the latter. In industrial, social and political power the United States is almost infinitely superior to Russia. Indeed, the American republic has no serious rivalry to fear from any quarter. England is her only equal in financial resources and Germany in fighting force; and the situation of the country is such that she can have no apprehension of interference with her domestic affairs by any power or combination of powers.

The following tables show the distribution of population by sections, and the relative increase in each division of the country in the last ten years. The States formerly known as the Middle States and New England are bunched together. They make a group of nine Eastern States. It will be observed that the rate of growth in Vermont—one-half of 1 per cent.—has been the lowest of any State in the Union, and that of Maine the third lowest, Nevada coming between. The table of Eastern and Middle States is as follows:

States.	Pop. 1870.	Pop. 1880.	Increase.	Per Cent.
Maine	626,915	648,945	22,030	3½
N. Hamps'ire	318,300	347,784	29,484	9
Vermont	330,551	332,286	1,735	½
Massachu'ts	1,457,351	1,783,086	325,735	22
Rhode Isl'nd	217,353	276,528	59,175	27
Connecticut	537,454	622,683	85,229	16
New York	4,387,464	5,083,173	695,709	16
New Jersey	906,096	1,130,892	224,796	25
Pennsylva'ia	3,522,050	4,282,738	760,688	21½
Total	12,303,534	14,508,116	2,204,581	18

Ohio and all the States and Territories west to the Rocky mountains and north of Mason and Dixon's line are included in the second group. The rate of growth in the States and most of the Territories west of the Mississippi has been very rapid. The other communities in what was formerly known as the Northwest have had a slower, but still healthy, growth. Montana shows a positive loss of population, as does also Arizona, which is included with the Pacific States. The soil of these Territories is for the most part worthless, and their mines have not fulfilled the promises that have been made for them. The group of thirteen Northern and Western States and Territories is as follows:

States and Territories.	Pop. 1870.	Pop. 1880.	Increase.	Per Cent.
Ohio	2,665,260	3,197,794	532,534	20
Michigan	1,187,234	1,634,096	446,862	38½
Indiana	1,680,637	1,978,858	298,221	18
Illinois	2,539,891	3,078,636	538,745	21
Wisconsin	1,054,985	1,315,386	260,401	23½
Minnesota	446,056	780,807	334,751	75
Iowa	1,194,320	1,624,463	430,143	36
Nebraska	120,322	452,432	332,110	342
Missouri	1,721,295	2,169,091	447,796	26
Kansas	373,299	995,335	622,036	166
Colorado	47,164	194,649	147,485	312½
Dakota	40,651	134,502	93,851	234
Montana	39,895	39,157	*738	*2
Wyoming	11,518	20,788	9,270	80
Total	13,140,927	17,615,494	4,474,567	34

*Decrease.

Missouri is put with the South, though geographically she belongs with the North. Her social and industrial development has been the same as that of the other ex-slave States, and for that reason she is classed with them. The Territory of New Mexico, being the only distinctly Southern Territory, is put in the same group. The table embraces sixteen States and one Territory:

States and Territory.	Pop 1870.	Pop. 1880.	Increase.	Per Cent
Delaware	125,015	146,654	21,639	17
Maryland	780,894	935,139	154,245	19½
Virginia	1,225,163	1,512,203	287,040	23½
West Virginia	442,014	618,193	176,179	40
N. Carolina	1,071,361	1,400,000	328,639	30½
S. Carolina	705,606	995,706	290,100	41
Georgia	1,184,109	1,538,983	354,874	30
Florida	188,248	266,566	78,318	41½
Kentucky	1,321,011	1,648,599	327,588	24½
Tennessee	1,258,520	1,542,463	283,943	22½
Alabama	996,992	1,262,344	265,352	26
Mississippi	827,922	1,131,899	303,977	36½
Louisiana	726,915	940,263	213,348	29
Arkansas	484,471	802,564	318,093	65½
Texas	818,899	1,597,509	778,610	95
New Mexico	111,303	118,430	7,127	6
Total	12,288,443	16,457,515	4,169,072	34

The States and Territories west of the Rocky Mountains, seven in number, are classed together:

States and Territories.	Pop. 1870.	Pop. 1880.	Increase.	Per Cent.
California	582,031	864,686	282,655	48½
Oregon	101,883	174,767	72,884	71½
Nevada	58,711	62,265	3,554	6
Washington	37,432	75,120	37,688	100½
Idaho	20,583	32,611	12,028	58
Utah	99,581	143,907	44,326	44½
Arizona	41,710	40,441	*1,269	*3
Total	941,931	1,393,797	451,866	48

*Decrease.

The District of Columbia does not belong to any section. It has a large floating population, which is composed partly of Government officials. It is accordingly put by itself, and appears in the summary which is appended:

GROUP.	Pop. 1870.	Pop. 1880.	Increase.	Per Ct.
Eastern	12,303,534	14,508,116	2,204,581	18
Northwestern	13,140,927	17,615,494	4,474,567	34
Southern	12,288,443	16,457,515	4,169,072	34
Pacific	941,931	1,393,797	451,866	48
District	131,700	177,638	45,938	35
	38,786,535	50,152,559	11,366,024	29½
Alaska	70,686
Indian Ter.	68,977
	38,925,598

It will be seen that Alaska and the Indian Territory are not included in the statement for 1880. There were in 1870 about 360,000 Indians sustaining tribal relations. None of these are included in the count for purposes of representation. When the Indians and the inhabitants of Alaska are added, it is probable that the total population will be found to exceed 50,500,000.

The following table shows the relative growth of population in each group from 1860 to 1870, and from 1870 to 1880:

	Per cent. increase. 1860—1870.	Per cent. increase. 1870—1880.
Eastern group	16	18
Northwestern group	44	34
Southern group	10	34
Pacific group	91½	48
District of Columbia	86	35
General average	22½	29½

There has been a considerable addition, not only to the aggregate population, but to the rate of growth, though the lower average in the previous decade was unquestionably due partly to the war and partly to the defective enumeration in the Southern States. The latter cause also gives the South a better showing in the comparative exhibit than that section under other circumstances would have.

Waiting for a Reader.

When Kepler, the astronomer, published the book announcing his discovery of the laws which govern the motions of the planets, he said: "It may well wait a century for a reader, as God has waited 6,000 years for an observer." A great mathematician of the present day is, according to the New York Tribune, gifted with a similar patience: Of one mathematical work written by the venerable and accomplished Prof. Pierce, of Harvard, he himself says that there is only one man living beside himself who could read it and understand it; and of another work he says that only one man beside himself has read it and understood it. A mathematician, the professor says, is not really known while he is alive; he must wait for history to do him justice and establish his real worth and scientific position.

TRADE AND COMMERCE.

The Chicago Tribune publishes a full report of the trade of Chicago for the year 1880. The totals are as follows: Produce trade, $315,-000,000; wholesale, $364,500,000; manufactures, $285,000,000—total, $961,500,000; being a gain of 17 per cent. over 1879. During the year there were 7,059,194 hogs received, of which 5,700,000 were killed in the city; 1,382,[illegible] head of cattle were received, the value of the live stock received being $139,900,000. In manufactures the figures for 1880 compare with those of 1879 as follows:

	1879.	1880.
No. of workmen	95,000	[illegible]
Paid for wages	$ 35,000,000	$ [illegible]
Capital employed	78,000,000	85,000,000
Value of products	248,000,000	[illegible]

The Denver (Col.) News prints the following statistics of the trade of that city for 1880: Business of Denver for the year, $52,300,000; value of new buildings erected during the year, $3,517,000; manufactures, $5,783,000; total, $61,600,000; an increase over 1879 of $19,000,000. The death-rate of the city during the year was 14 7-10 per 1,000. Mean annual temperature, 47; the warmest day, 98 degrees; coldest, 18 below. During the year there were 169 clear days, 172 fair or partly clear, and 44 cloudy; total rainfall, 6.49 inches, being 6½ below the average. The bullion shipped from Colorado during the year amounted to $22,500,000.

Statistics of the commerce of St. Louis for the year 1880: Bank clearings, $1,442,916,078, against $1,119,468,256 last year; receipts of wheat, 19,969,202 bushels, against 17,098,862; receipts of corn, 22,228,157, against 13,360,636; oats, 5,877,078, against 5,002,165; rye and barley, 3,095,500, against 2,544,235; total receipts of grain, 50,629,040, against 38,001,398 for the previous year. Receipts of cattle, 424,720, against 470,654; hogs, 1,839,684, against 1,762,724; sheep, 205,969, against 182,648.

The statistics of manufacturers of Des Moines, Iowa, for the year show a total product valued at $9,431,630; a wholesale and jobbing trade of $10,746,952; retail trade, $6,976,445; grain and produce, $2,665,100; coal, $1,055,-850; pork packing, $2,456,000.

Statistics justify the claim of Peoria that the business of that city has quadrupled within the past three years, aggregate being nearly $400,-000,000 against $99,000,000 in 1877.

The Council Bluffs Nonpareil publishes a review of the business improvement and growth of that city for 1880, showing that over 700 buildings have been erected, and improvements made amounting to $622,285. This does not include any public buildings or State improvements.

A Lively Subject.

There used to be a story current of a perplexing incident in the life of John Hunter, the celebrated surgeon, which has a certain grim drollery about it. One night, on receiving from Jack Ketch a "subject" who had been hanged that morning at Newgate—such hangings and such subjects were very common in those days—he perceived somehow or other the vital spark was not quite extinct. His professional zeal was instantly aroused; he applied all his skill to the task, and, in short, succeeded, to his scientific satisfaction, in restoring the law's victim to his entire faculties again. But his satisfaction was somewhat short-lived, for the resuscitated felon insisted upon looking to his benefactor for his future subsistence. He argued that, as he had striven to bring him, as it were, a second time into the world, he must be regarded in loco parentis. Hunter, always a nervous man, and by no means convinced that he had not offended grievously against the laws in his little experiment, had no alternative but to comply to the demands of his ungrateful patient, who was by no means modest in his visits. After a time, however, they ceased; but even that brought no comfort to poor Hunter, who lived in perpetual terror of his tormentor unexpectedly popping upon him. At last he reappeared before him again. One fine evening another Newgate importation was brought to the private door of the dissecting-room, and, to his intense satisfaction, he once more recognized the well-remembered features. Hunter used to say, with a grim smile, that he took speedy care not to give him a second chance.

SOMEBODY has said that "We ought always to believe less than we are told." This may be a safe maxim for general use, but when a woman intrusts you—in confidence, of course—with her age, you may always believe a great deal more than you are told.

THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK.

BEEVES	$8 75 @13 00
HOGS	4 60 @ 6 13½
COTTON	11¾@ 12½
FLOUR—Superfine	3 90 @ 3 70
WHEAT—No. 2 Spring	1 18 @ 1 17
CORN—Ungraded	53 @ 57
OATS—Mixed Western	41 @ 43
PORK—Mess	13 00 @13 75
LARD	8¾@ 9

CHICAGO.

BEEVES—Choice Graded Steers	5 35 @ 6 30
Cows and Heifers	2 80 @ 3 75
Medium to Fair	4 35 @ 4 85
HOGS	3 60 @ 5 00
FLOUR—Fancy White Winter Ex	5 75 @ [illegible]
Good to Choice Spring Ex	5 00 @ 5 25
WHEAT—No. 2 Spring	96 @ 98
No. 3 Spring	89 @ 84
CORN—No. 2	36 @ 37
OATS—No. 2	29 @ 30
RYE—No. 2	86 @ 84
BARLEY—No. 2	1 06 @ 1 07
BUTTER—Choice Creamery	31 @ 32
EGGS—Fresh	27 @ 28
PORK—Mess	11 28 @12 00
LARD	8¾@ 8¾

MILWAUKEE.

WHEAT—No. 1	98 @ 1 00
No. 2	94 @ 95
CORN—No 2	34 @ 35
OATS—No. 2	29 @ 30
RYE—No. 1	85 @ 86
BARLEY—No. 2	80 @ 81

ST. LOUIS.

WHEAT—No. 2 Red	97 @ 99
CORN—Mixed	38 @ 39
OATS—No. 2	29 @ 30
RYE	82 @ 83
PORK—Mess	12 00 @12 75
LARD	8¼@ 8½

CINCINNATI.

WHEAT	1 03 @ 1 05
CORN	42 @ 43
OATS	35 @ 36
RYE	94 @ 95
PORK—Mess	12 75 @13 00
LARD	8½@ 8¾

TOLEDO.

WHEAT—No. 1 White	99 @ 1 00
No. 2 Red	99 @ 1 00
CORN—No. 2	39 @ 40
OATS—No. 2	34 @ 35

DETROIT.

FLOUR—Choice	5 00 @ 5 50
WHEAT—No. 1 White	98 @ 99
CORN—No. 1	47 @ 48
OATS—Mixed	36 @ 37
BARLEY (per cental)	1 50 @ 2 00
PORK—Mess	12 50 @13 00

INDIANAPOLIS.

WHEAT—No. 2 Red	98 @ 99
CORN	36 @ 37
OATS	31 @ 32
PORK—Clear	15 75 @16 00

EAST LIBERTY, PA.

CATTLE—Best	5 60 @ [illegible]
Fair	4 25 @ 4 80
Common	3 25 @ 3 75
HOGS	4 25 @ 5 00
SHEEP	3 75 @ 5 50

AUBURN COURIER.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 13, 1881.

Two lads in Richmond, Va., ventured to ask a drunken man to make no noise in front of their home, as their mother was very ill. In response, one received a bullet through the eye, and the other a dangerous wound in the chest.

A tramp at Paterson, N. J., went to sleep on a pile of cinders fresh from a rolling-mill, and was suffocated by gaseous exhalations. The wind freshened in the night and fanned the embers to a glow, and his body was burned to a crisp.

Levi Calkins desired to take a second wife at Vernon, Wis., before his first wife had been dead a month. He could induce no clergyman or Justice to perform the ceremony, and so he did it himself, reading the service in the presence of witnesses.

Mrs. A. T. Stewart leads as quiet and amiable life as any rich woman in the country. She is much attached to the Episcopal church, and solely sustains the Bishopric of Long Island, to which appertain the cathedral and schools of Garden City. As an investment Garden City is a complete failure, like many of Stewart's purchases.

The oldest living lawyer in actual practice is Asgill Gibbs, Esq., of Rochester, N. Y. Mr. Gibbs is now in his 94th year, and for seventy years has never been absent from his office for a single day on account of illness. He is to-day in the enjoyment of perfect health and in possession of all his faculties. Mr. Gibbs has never used tobacco in any form, and, as for intoxicating liquors, he is ignorant of their taste. His diet has always been ample but simple.

The Senate will lose its "watch-dog of the treasury" if Mr. Edmunds should go on the Supreme bench. "Don't you know," said a Washington lobbyist, "that, when the old cuss comes in the Senate and sits down and lets his right eyebrow drop down about three-quarters of an inch lower than the left, hell is always to pay? He is the meanest old cuss about objecting to everything, anyway; especially anything with money in it; but when he hangs down his right eyebrow he'll object to the Lord's prayer."

The "Passion Play," as presented at Ober-Ammergau in 1880, was a paying piece. The forty performances brought in $520,000, an average of $13,000 for each performance. The every-day theater manager would be glad to secure a play that would bring him one-thirteenth part of that. The proceeds have been divided into four parts, one-quarter being divided among such inhabitants of the village as are householders, one-quarter set apart for expenses of the theater, and one-quarter divided among the actors, and the fourth given to the public schools. The performances were attended by 175,000 persons, among them a King, a Prince Imperial, a Grand Duke, and many other distinguished people.

An English writer hits off very neatly the horse census, and the characteristics of the animals in each country. He places the number in the whole world at 49,000,000, and classifies them thus:

Great Britain	2,200,000
United States and Canada	11,100,000
Germany, fiddle-headed and washy	3,460,000
France, underbred and dull	3,000,000
Hungary, light and gasy	2,180,000
Turkey, barbed	1,000,000
Russia, mostly nondescripts	21,000,000

There would be much money in the business of raising good stock horses in the Western grazing-lands, which at present are devoted chiefly to feeding cattle for the Eastern and European markets. It is a noteworthy fact that Oregon, which ceased importing cattle barely fifteen years ago, now drives eastward annually 200,000 head. But the raising of horses is an industry yet in its infancy.

A Connecticut clergyman, being asked to officiate at the funeral of a poor man's wife, inquired of the widower what carriages had been hired; and, when told, requested that a particular team and vehicle be obtained in addition, because they were the ones he and his wife habitually used, and he might wish to take a pleasure ride after the services. This disgusted the widower, and he secured the services of another minister. On the following day, the first clergyman sent for him, and inflicted a severe reprimand for disrespectful treatment of his late wife's pastor. "I want you to understand," said he, "that when I marry or bury any one I am paid for my services. As for that other fellow, he's always ready to do any dirty work."

Mrs. Robert L. Stuart, says a New York correspondent, is at the head of the cooking-school. What a noble example this woman gives the public. Her husband is worth $4,000,000, but this does not relieve her of the claims of duty. She takes an interest in social advance, and therefore lends her influence to the improvement of the culinary art. The Stuarts have always been a useful family, and, though limited to two generations, they have done enough to immortalize the name. The father came from Edinburgh, a bankrupt in purse, fleeing from his creditors, but rich in purpose and in courage. He opened a cent candy shop and worked fifteen hours a day, until the creditors were paid in full. The amount was £1,500, equal to $7,500, but money was then worth double its present value. The sons inherited the business, which they made immensely profitable, but they shared their profits liberally with objects of benevolence. They have been among the leading philanthropists of the day, and their benefactions in the aggregate are probably more than a million.

Few other classes of statutes have given rise to so many absurd prosecutions as the laws for the prevention of cruelty to animals. A Scotchman recently got into difficulty in Leith, the port of Edinburgh, by trying to prevent the infliction of cruelty upon an animal of his own by the animal of another. His dog, a small one, was attacked by a larger dog in the street. He endeavored in vain to separate the combatants, though assisted in his efforts by his wife, his servant, and a police officer. Then he broke his umbrella on the larger dog, and finally, as a last resort, he wounded the animal with his knife in order to drive him away. The dog died, and the slayer was prosecuted under the act for the prevention of cruelty to animals, and convicted by the magistrates, who fined him thirty shillings. He appealed to the High Court of Justiciary of Scotland, where the conviction was very properly reversed, on the ground that the statute applied only to those who inflicted suffering upon animals without cause. No opinion was expressed upon the question whether the defendant would be chargeable in a civil action for causing the death of the dog, although the court referred to it; but we suppose a man has the right to employ all necessary force in behalf of his own dog to repel and overcome the attacks of another dog.

Speculations as to the Future Life.

Years ago, in the days of Bishop Butler, very much stress was laid upon the analogies in nature illustrating, and supporting the idea of a future life, and the treatises then written were models of intellectual power and patient research. A great impression was produced, not only upon uneducated but educated minds. Since that period science has progressed with giant strides, and at every step has so largely added to the list of striking analogies or incidental proofs, that the illustrations of early date seem few in number and dwarfed in proportion and force. The idea of an unseen immaterial existence involves, also, the idea of unseen activities and correspondence in the rayless realm. The most stolid of us can not fail to be impressed with the beautiful analogies which recent scientific discovery affords. Do we not every day converse with unseen friends long distances away, do we not recognize their familiar voices, in homes separated from us by rivers, woods, and mountains? These voices come out of the darkness, guided by a frail wire which science provides as a pathway. Even when the curtain of night is drawn about us the voices are heard, and we have not the shadow of a doubt of their integrity and identity.

And further, have we not analogies of sight which startle us by their significance? Is it not true that when abroad we are open to the view of unseen observers long distances from us, and our every act and movement known? The excellence of optical instruments is such that we have seen the motion of the lips of persons in conversation, while sitting on a house balcony three miles distant, the observed, of course, wholly unconscious of being seen by any one. If our friends in this life, dead to us (hidden as they are by the shroud of space), can be seen, and we can hear their voices, their shouts of laughter, the words of the hymns they sing, the cries of the little ones in the mothers' arms, is it very absurd to anticipate a time when those dead to us by the dissolution of the body may, by some now unknown telephone, send us voices from a realm close at hand, but hidden from our mortal eyes.

We have no proofs to offer that this realm of the departed, this home of the soul, is close at hand, but it is certainly more reasonable and sensible to adopt this hypothesis than the popular one of a material world or place, somewhere afar off in the depths of space. One view seems possible, the other absurd. —Boston Journal of Chemistry.

Poets Laureate.

Concerning the institution of Poet Laureate, Disraeli remarks ("Curiosities of Literature") that "the custom of crowning poets is as ancient as poetry itself. Frederick the Second crowned the King of Verses at Ancona in 1220. Petrarch received the laurel crown at Rome on Easter day, in 1341. Maximilian I. founded a poetical college at Vienna, in 1504. In England the King's versifier existed as early as 1251. Gulielmus Peregrinus and Robert Bacton acted as royal poets to Richard the First and Edward the Second respectively. Chaucer assumed the title of Poet Laureate about 1369. The title of King's Poet Laureate first occurs in the reign of Edward the Fourth, when John Key held the office. The first patent was granted in 1630. The ode performed at the court on New Year's day was discontinued in 1790. Since the appointment of S. Daniel, in 1599, the office has, except in the case of Dryden, been held for life. It is passing strange to find the names of Dryden and Nahum Tate occurring in the same list. Mr. Tennyson was appointed Poet Laureate in 1850 on the death of Wordsworth.

"There is not a corporation on the round globe whose specific gravity is greater than that of the old Ætna Life, of Hartford. It is solid as granite and as true as gold."—Phila. Weekly Item.

FARM NOTES.

A farmer of experience in wool-growing has well said there is more money in growing at twenty cents a pound than to loan your money at ten per cent. interest.

The grease which has become hardened by dust on the axles of machinery can all be cleaned off by the use of kerosene.

Bunches of grapes were kept three months by an Austrian grower who dipped the ends of the stems in wax and packed the fruit in kiln-dried ground bark.

Professor Riley says that kerosene or oil of any kind is sure death to insects in all stages and the only substance with which we may hope to destroy the eggs. Oils will not mix directly with water, but will mix with milk, fresh or sour, and then may be diluted to any desired extent.

Weak Eyes in Horses.—A good authority gives the following as a remedy for horses' eyes that are weak, winking and inflamed: Take an egg and break the large end enough to admit the handle of a teaspoon; pour out the albumen or white; mix in all the salt you can until it is quite stiff, then set it in the center of a heap of red coals and let it burn until done baking; then when cool grind and blow a piece of it into the eyes once a day.

Purifying Rancid Butter.—One of our foreign contemporaries gives the following mode of clarifying rancid and tainted butter: "Let the butter be melted and skimmed as for clarifying; then put into it a piece of bread well toasted all over, but not burnt. In a few minutes the butter will lose its offensive taste and smell, but the bread will become perfectly fetid." We have serious doubts with regard to the above process producing the result claimed. Still it is so simple that any one can try it.

Keeping Milk.—Milk will absorb bad odors from the air quicker than almost any other liquid, therefore great care should be taken that it is not exposed to any condition where it will be likely to be damaged in that way. In manufacturing cream into butter, great care is necessary as to the quality of salt used, as great loss may be entailed by this alone. The salt is a very small item in itself, nevertheless it has cost many dollars in the course of a year through the damage done by the use of an inferior article. Always use the best known brands and keep a close watch upon them at that. The use of firkins, pails or tubs made of any kind of wood that imparts an unpleasant flavor must be avoided, as, after packing, butter is very susceptible in coming in contact with any flavors of this kind.

Preserving Pastures.—Among many propositions to renovate the pasture, one has been overlooked—management. It is the cheapest and most practical manure on the farm. The common plan is to have but one pasture, upon which the cattle must graze at all times. If it comes to the bare sod during the seasons of extreme drought the stock must continue to grub at the sod for want of better. This exposes the roots of the grass to the sun or injures or destroys the plant. Suppose we use our trees and shrubs in that way, the detriment to growth would be at once apparent. A good top on grass for growth is as necessary as upon trees.

That one hundred acres of land in two pastures will keep one-third more stock than the same number of acres in one pasture has long been known to the practical farmer. The reason is that the stock can be removed before it has grazed the pasture too closely, before the roots of the grass are uncovered. A plan that will renovate hundreds of pastures in Iowa is this: Let the grass have a good start in the spring, say four inches, before turning on the stock, and change pastures as often as the pasture appears to be closely grazed.—Prof. Knapp, in Homestead.

Feeding Bees in Winter.—After an unpropitious season bees are apt to go into winter quarters illy provided with stores. Well-informed and cautious apiarists, aware of this lack, feed weak colonies during the fall sufficiently to supply the need. It is never desirable to feed liquid stores, either honey or syrup, in winter, and not well to feed at all unless positively demanded. The best way to feed, if we must, is to put candy made from granulated sugar on the frames, just above the cluster. This will be kept warm, and can be taken, and will disturb the bees so little that, if it must be done, it will generally succeed. If the bees can pass the winter until March—and the stores needed during the cold winter are very light compared with those consumed later after brood-rearing commences—then we may feed either honey or syrup. Then the bees can fly occasionally and will receive no harm from liquid food. This food, too, will stimulate brood-rearing, and thus work a double benefit. The feeder will need to be so constructed as to keep the food near the cluster or the bees will not appropriate it, because of the cold. No one should fail to use a division-board in winter and spring. Keep the bees crowded on to so few frames that all will be covered, and spring dwindling will do little harm.—A. J. Cook, Agricultural College, Lansing, Mich.

One Hundred Bushels of Shelled Corn to the Acre.—Mr. Nathan G. Pierce tells the American Cultivator how he raises one hundred bushels of shelled corn to the acre. He used for seed an eight-rowed corn which he has improved by careful selection, and believes it to be a good variety to raise, anywhere between Virginia and the Canada line. The ground selected for planting was a good piece of gravelly loam. It was well plowed about the first of May, harrowed, treated to a broadcast application of nine hundred pounds fertilizer to the acre; again harrowed faithfully, rendering the land fine and mellow; rows marked three feet apart, a small amount of fertilizer scattered to each row. May 10th, three kernels of corn planted in each hill, two feet apart in the rows; cultivated and hoed four times, allowing no weeds to grow; passed through the entire piece, cutting each hill down to two stalks; every sucker in each hill cut throughout the field. During the entire period of growth through the season the field was closely watched, every weed pulled and every ear of smut cut out. At the proper time, after the corn had become hard, it was cut, bound in bundles, and stooked. When dry it was drawn into the barn, where, with the assistance of a hired man, the corn was husked, weighed as husked, and found to yield one hundred and ten bushels of shelled corn to the acre, allowing seventy-five pounds of ears to equal one bushel of shelled corn.

CITY POPULATIONS.

A Table Showing the Number of Inhabitants in 168 of Our Cities.

The following is a list of 168 cities of the United States, with their population in 1880, compared with ten years before:

	1880.	1870.
Albany, N. Y.	76,216	69,422
Allentown, Pa.	18,163	13,883
Altoona, Pa.	19,987	10,610
Allegheny, Pa.	78,472	53,180
Atlanta, Ga.	45,000	21,978
Attleborough, Mass.	11,106	6,769
Athens, Ohio	10,100	10,006
Austin, Texas	11,000	4,428
Auburn, N. Y.	33,929	17,225
Aurora, Ill.	12,097	11,162
Baltimore, Md.	333,000	267,304
Bay City, Mich.	20,650	13,690
Belleville, Ill.	10,712	8,146
Binghamton, N. Y.	17,110	12,692
Bloomington, Ill.	17,280	14,590
Boston, Mass.	363,566	250,526
Brooklyn, N. Y.	564,465	396,099
Brockton, Mass.	13,506	8,007
Buffalo, N. Y.	140,500	117,714
Burlington, Iowa	18,975	14,930
Cambridge, Mass.	51,698	39,631
Camden, N. J.	41,714	20,045
Cedar Rapids, Iowa	10,176	6,041
Charleston, S. C.	49,027	48,956
Chester, Pa.	15,028	9,485
Chicopee, Mass.	11,327	9,607
Chicago, Ill.	503,053	298,907
Chillicothe, Ohio	10,972	8,920
Cincinnati, Ohio	255,804	216,239
Chattanooga, Tenn.	13,580	6,193
Cleveland, Ohio	159,404	92,829
Cohoes, N. Y.	20,132	15,357
Columbus, Ga.	10,132	7,401
Columbus, Ohio	51,337	31,274
Concord, N. H.	13,841	12,241
Council Bluffs, Iowa	18,509	10,020
Dallas, Texas	33,466	4,500
Danbury, Ct.	11,810	8,754
Dayton, Ohio	39,000	30,473
Davenport, Iowa	21,885	20,078
Des Moines, Iowa	22,696	12,035
Denver, Col.	35,719	4,759
Detroit, Mich.	119,700	79,577
Dover, N. H.	17,693	9,294
Dubuque, Iowa	22,278	18,434
East Saginaw, Mich.	19,068	11,350
Erie, Pa.	27,222	19,646
Elgin, Ill.	10,040	7,000
Elizabeth, N. J.	28,241	20,830
Elmira, N. Y.	20,578	15,863
Fond du Lac, Wis.	13,564	12,764
Fall River, Mass.	47,883	26,766
Fort Wayne, Ind.	26,048	17,718
Galesburg, Ill.	11,451	10,158
Grand Rapids, Mich.	32,037	16,507
Galveston, Texas	22,250	13,818
Hamilton, Ohio	12,300	11,081
Harrisburg, Pa.	30,412	23,105
Hartford, Ct.	42,036	37,081
Houston, Texas	16,694	9,382
Indianapolis, Ind.	75,031	48,274
Jackson, Mich.	16,500	11,447
Jacksonville, Ill.	11,000	9,203
Jersey City, N. J.	105,000	82,546
Kalamazoo, Mich.	12,078	11,750
Kansas City, Mo.	56,946	32,260
Keokuk, Iowa	12,176	12,766
Kingston, N. Y.	18,376	21,474
Knoxville, Tenn.	18,928	8,682
La Crosse, Wis.	16,054	11,012
Lawrence, Mass.	39,400	28,921
Lancaster, Pa.	25,846	20,233
Lafayette, Ind.	14,791	13,506
Little Rock, Ark.	15,000	12,380
Lincoln, Neb.	12,771	2,9[illegible]5
Logansport, Ind.	11,172	8,950
Louisville, Ky.	126,566	100,000
Lowell, Mass.	61,200	40,928
Los Angeles, Cal.	11,030	5,728
Lynn, Mass.	38,387	28,233
Lynchburg, Va.	16,300	6,826
Madison, Wis.	10,437	9,176
Manchester, N. H.	32,473	23,536
Malden, Mass.	12,004	7,367
Macon, Ga.	12,635	10,810
Marlborough, Mass.	10,141	8,474
Memphis, Tenn.	33,200	40,226
Meriden, Conn.	18,108	15,598
Milwaukee, Wis.	13[illegible],000	71,440
Minneapolis, Minn.	48,323	13,066
Mobile, Ala.	35,017	32,034
Muskegon, Mich.	11,300	6,505
Nashville, Tenn.	43,377	25,865
Nashua, N. H.	13,453	10,543
Newark, N. J.	135,983	105,059
Newburg, N. Y.	18,076	17,014
New Albany, Ind.	17,500	15,396
New Haven, Conn.	63,140	50,840
New Orleans, La.	213,123	191,418
New York, N. Y.	1,206,577	942,292
Norwalk, Conn.	14,000	17,120
Norristown, Pa.	15,230	10,753
New Castle, Pa.	10,292	7,599
New Brunswick, N. J.	17,311	15,055
Oakland, Cal.	35,000	10,500
Omaha, Neb.	30,008	16,083
Oswego, N. Y.	20,732	20,910
Ogdensburg, N. Y.	16,2[illegible]7	10,176
Oshkosh, Wis.	15,758	12,643
Paterson, N. J.	58,000	33,579
Pawtucket, R. I.	19,030	12,000
Peoria, Ill.	31,708	22,850
Philadelphia, Pa.	847,252	674,022
Pittsburgh, Pa.	121,977	86,076
Pottsville, Pa.	13,246	12,384
Portland, Me.	33,763	31,413
Poughkeepsie, N. Y.	20,203	20,080
Providence, R. I.	104,500	68,904
Quincy, Mass.	10,571	7,442
Quincy, Ill.	27,438	24,052
Racine, Wis.	16,042	9,880
Reading, Pa.	43,230	33,930
Richmond, Va.	62,500	51,038
Rock Island, Ill.	11,614	7,890
Rockford, Ill.	13,088	11,049
Rochester, N. Y.	89,4[illegible]	62,340
Rome, N. Y.	12,045	11,000
Rutland, Vt.	12,223	6,000
San Jose, Cal.	12,635	9,089
Sacramento, Cal.	21,432	16,283
San Francisco, Cal.	233,066	149,478
San Antonio, Tex.	20,594	12,556
Sandusky, Ohio	15,000	1[illegible],000
Saginaw City, Mich.	10,430	10,004
Salt Lake, Utah	11,000	12,000
Savannah, Ga.	30,767	28,235
Scranton, Pa.	45,756	35,072
South Bend, Ind.	13,402	7,196
Stamford, Conn.	11,319	9,724
Springfield, Ill.	19,683	17,364
Springfield, Ohio	20,800	12,652
Springfield, Mass.	33,139	26,703
St. Louis, Mo.	350,915	310,864
St. Paul, Minn.	41,619	20,030
St. Joseph, Mo.	35,000	17,565
St. Augustine, Fla.	20,358	11,759
Syracuse, N. Y.	52,210	43,051
Stockton, Cal.	10,066	10,000
Terre Haute, Ind.	26,516	16,103
Toledo, Ohio	53,635	31,584
Trenton, N. J.	30,500	22,874
Troy, N. Y.	56,394	46,465
Utica, N. Y.	36,923	28,804
Vicksburg, Miss.	11,000	12,443
Waltham, Mass.	11,800	9,065
Washington, D. C.	160,000	109,199
Wheeling, W. Va.	31,000	19,280
Weymouth, Mass.	10,560	9,010
Watertown, N. Y.	10,615	9,336
Woonsocket, R. I.	16,000	11,527
Waterbury, Ct.	22,000	10,826
Wilkesbarre, Pa.	23,340	17,284
Wilmington, Del.	43,000	30,841
Wilmington, N. C.	17,003	13,416
Winona, Minn.	10,187	7,200
Worcester, Mass.	58,233	40,105
Woburn, Mass.	10,782	8,560
Yonkers, N. Y.	18,924	17,209

Hindoo Servants.

Even the wealthy Hindoos cannot find good domestic servants. One of them writes: "The good servants are gone who use to know how to hold your umbrella over your head, pour the water over your hands after meals, and exaggerate your resources before your friends. This fine class of men has disappeared, and a degenerate species of epidemic stricken, untrained young barbarism have taken their place. They plunder you when sent to the bazaar; they steal your clothes, your rice; and they are so greedy that they lick off the very syrup from the surface of your sweetmeats."

W. H. H. Barton, of Yarmouth, Mass., has invented a machine which he calls a pulse meter, as it is operated by the pulse. This machine, which has taken him four years to make, when placed on the wrist, records the pulse. At every beat a hand advances one degree over a dial, thus recording the number of beats. Another hand sweeps over a graduated scale, which shows the force or intensity of the pulse. More remarkable still, a hammer is made to strike a bell and give forth a clear and distinct sound, thus making the human pulse audible as well as visible.

INDIANA NEWS.

A little son of Mr. Thos. P. Moore, of Albany, fell on the icy sidewalk, and bit his tongue nearly off.

While playing with a toy pistol, a small son of Edward Huffman, of Reelsville, Putnam county, was shot in the abdomen.

A Kokomo wretch named Pursely is charged with starving his horses so that one of them died, and the other is a mere skeleton.

James L. Fugit, of Greensburg, aged 78, who held many positions of public trust, including the office of County Clerk, is dead.

At Clinton, City Marshal Fitzpatrick was stabbed to the heart by Jacob Shirley, whom he attempted to arrest for disorderly conduct.

The New Albany Oilstone Works have shipped to Europe, on orders, 4,500 pounds of the finest quality of oilstones, to be used in European watch manufactories.

A Mr. McTaggart, of Fort Wayne, slapped a newsboy for crying the names of papers in front of his store-room, and damages to the amount of $1,000 have been awarded.

The dwelling of Hon. Christopher Girton, near Flat Rock Station, Shelby county, was consumed by fire the other night, with the household goods. Cause, a defective flue. Loss, $5,000; no insurance.

Col. F. A. Sears, ex-County Treasurer of Lawrence county comes out in his accounts with the county about $7,000 short. He mortgages his property to his bondsmen to make them secure, or nearly so.

Prof. William A. Moore, Superintendent of the New Castle public schools, and for a number of years Professor of Mathematics in Earlham College, died a few days ago, of pneumonia, at his home in New Castle.

The Fayette county Commissioners have appointed a committee to negotiate with the trustees of the association for purchase of the Connersville fair grounds, to prevent them from being cut up into lots and sold.

A party of eleven colored North Carolinians arrived at Greensburg last week. They report their people in that section trying to raise means to transport themselves, and predict a large exodus from that State during the winter and spring.

On account of $23,000 being paid out of the treasury the last few months on soldiers' bounties, the Commissioners of Rush county have been compelled to issue bonds to the amount of $6,000 to meet the expenses of the county.

Articles of incorporation of the Indianapolis and Sullivan Railroad and Coal Company have been filed; capital, $700,000. The Spragues, of Detroit, are the chief movers in it. The road is to be 100 miles long, the object chiefly to supply coal.

Clark Anthis, one of the most prominent of Knox county farmers, was drowned in White river. He was in the act of driving from the ferryboat with a mule team, when the animals became frightened and ran into the water; and he and one of the mules sank below the surface.

An 11-year-old boy named Joe Goodwin, at Shelburn, pointed a pistol at Ellen McCroclin, not thinking it was loaded, and pulled the trigger. The ball struck the girl on the temple, inflicting a wound which proved fatal in three hours.

Miss Lillie Hendricks, of Petersburg, niece of Hon. T. A. Hendricks, accidentally sat down on a pair of large scissors, when closed, running both blades entirely through the thigh, just below, and at the outside of the great trochanter, producing a painful, if not dangerous wound.

The State House Commissioners are giving particular attention to the choice of woods required in the finishing work of the building. These will all be native to the State, but the problem of getting them well seasoned against the time they are needed is that which will engage the attention of the board for some time.

There is a movement on foot between the present Sheriff of Delaware county and Sheriff-elect McKinney, whereby the latter will purchase the remainder of the former's term of office next spring, and the present incumbent will remove to his farm. This is done to give the present Sheriff an opportunity to get out his crops in the spring.

The death of Hon. Allan Smith, at his residence near Wabash, occurred the other night, from the effect of cancer on the neck, from which he has been a sufferer for some time. Mr. Smith came here in 1839. He represented Wabash in the Indiana Legislature two terms, in 1867 and in 1869, after which he was elected Director of the Northern Prison and served one term as President of the Board.

On the 23d day of December, 1863, Jennings county offered to all persons who would enlist in the army to the credit of that county a bounty of $110. At that time several members of the Twenty-second Indiana, who were then in the South, were discharged, but instead of returning home, turned around and re-enlisted in another regiment on the day above named, having, at the time, no knowledge of the above bounty. Now come twenty-one of these soldiers who re-enlisted in the South, and bring suit against the county, claiming the bounty, which, with seventeen years' interest, amounts to $424.20 each, or an aggregate of $8,908.20.

DR. BUTTS' DISPENSARY
Established 1847 at 12 N. 8th Street, ST. LOUIS, Mo.
INDISCRETION—EXPOSURE
YOUNG MEN
PATIENTS TREATED
DR. BUTTS, 12 North 8th St., St. Louis, Mo.

CENTAUR LINIMENT
always Cures and never Disappoints
The world's great Pain-Reliever for Man and Beast. Cheap, quick and reliable.

PITCHER'S CASTORIA is not Narcotic. Children grow fat upon, Mothers like, and Physicians recommend CASTORIA. It regulates the Bowels, cures Wind Colic, allays Feverishness, and destroys Worms.

IN USE SINCE 1858
MISHLER'S HERB BITTERS
A Compound Tincture of the most valuable remedies known to the medical profession, prepared upon strictly pharmaceutical principles.
NOT A BEVERAGE
THE MESSENGER OF HEALTH
THE MISHLER HERB BITTERS CO.
Lancaster, Pa.
Price, 25 cents.

THE SYMPTOMS
of Liver Complaint are a bitter or bad taste in the mouth; Pain in the Back, Sides or Joints, often mistaken for Rheumatism; Sour Stomach, Loss of Appetite, Bowels alternately costive and lax; Headache, Loss of Memory, with a painful sensation of having failed to do something which ought to have been done; Debility, Low Spirits, a thick yellow appearance of the Skin and Eyes, a dry Cough often mistaken for Consumption.
Sometimes many of these symptoms attend the disease, at others very few; but the Liver, the largest organ in the body, is generally the seat of disease, and, if not regulated in time, great suffering, wretchedness and DEATH will ensue.
AS AN UNFAILING SPECIFIC
For DYSPEPSIA, CONSTIPATION, Jaundice, Bilious Attacks, SICK HEADACHE, Colic, Depression of Spirits, SOUR STOMACH, Heart Burn, etc., etc.,
Take Simmons' Liver Regulator.
This justly-celebrated medicine Regulates the Liver, promotes digestion and fortifies the system against malaria.
CAUTION.
See that you get the Genuine, in clean, white wrapper, with large red "Z." Prepared only by
J. H. ZEILIN & CO.
Sold by All Druggists.

AGENTS WANTED for the Best and Fastest Selling Pictorial Books and Bibles. Prices reduced 33 per ct. National Publishing Co., St. Louis, Mo.

PILES
HARRIS REMEDY Co., St. Louis, Mo.

A Book for the Million
"THE PRIVATE MEDICAL ADVISER"
FOR ONE DOLLAR
DR. BUTTS' DISPENSARY
DR. BUTTS, 12 North 8th St., St. Louis, Mo.

Seminal Pastille
HARRIS REMEDY CO. MFG CHEMISTS, Market and 8th Streets, ST. LOUIS, MO.
From a Physician and Surgeon.
From a Druggist.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, IND., JANUARY 13, 1881.

A HOLLOW tree in southern California has been converted into a dwelling. Doors and windows have been put in, and floors built for eight stories, the entrance to them being made be means of a ladder. Outside the topmost room is a small balcony, shaded by the foliage of the tree.

IT begins to appear that Foster, of Ohio, is sorry to withdrew from the senatorial race. He ought to remember that it don't look well for a republican, especially an Ohio republican, to want more than one office at a time. He is governor now, expects to be minister to France, and wants to be senator, too. And the end is not yet.

THE venerable Peter Cooper, is out in a long address to congress, on the subject of national finances and public works. He gives Hayes and Sherman some hard rubs, in the way of comparing their present financial views and practices, with the doctrines they formerly held. He evidently believes that these officials have been "seen" in these later years by leading captalists and their views on money matters materially changed.

THE white house is an expensive institution, aside from the president's salary of $50,000. The staff of employes in and about the executive office requires $32,000 a year, and the stationery and miscellaneous appointments $8,000 more. This is exclusive of $10,000 a year for care and repairs of the mansion, $15,000 for lighting the house and ground, $2,000 for fuel, $5,500 for the green-houses, and a single item of $30,000 for refurnishing.

HAYES, like republicans generally, preaches much better than he practices— for instance on the temperance question. He is said to have set his face like flint against the use of all kinds of liquors at the presidential dinners, and has received a good deal of gushing praise thereby. Now, it appears that it has been his practice to place before his guests frozen rum-punch, so strong that few of even the oldest republican suckers can stand it and remain sober. To the Hayeses, however, it seems to be as harmless as mother's milk. That is, you can eat all the rum you choose, but no drinking allowed.

THE Wabash Plain Dealer says that of the once powerful tribe of Miami Indians, which formerly inhabited the Wabash country, there are now alive 324 members. About eighty have their home upon the reservation in Wabash and Grant counties, fully a hundred live on the reservation in Miami county, fourteen are found in the vicinity of Lafayette, twelve at Huntington, and thirty-four near Ft. Wayne. Forty-nine members of the tribe are in Kansas, and the remainder are scattered in Michigan, Iowa, and at different points in Indiana. Of the Eel-river tribe only 16 remain, and they are mostly women and children. The tribe was almost exterminated at the battle of Tippecanoe.

CONGRESS is, at the present time, wrestling with the apportionment bill. Our great increase in population, as shown by the census returns, makes the new apportionment a difficult question. Shall there be an increase in the number of members in the house of representatives, or shall the number remain as at present and the ratio of representation be increased? On the one hand, the house might become too unwieldy, and on the other, the congressional districts would be greater in size and population than at present. It is the opinion of many, that the present number of members, 293, is as great as can be worked to advantage, while those states which would lose one or more members, if the numbr is kept as at present, think the number of members should be 300, or 350. Just now, it looks as if it would be sufficient to keep congress from doing something worse, for a month or two.

THERE is likely to be trouble in the Mormon camp. Delegate Cannon, who has for some time past, represented Utah, as territorial delegate in congress, has been declared ineligible, on account of his inability to prove himself a naturalized citizen of the United States. Objection is also made to his polygamous practices, he having several wives, with a possibility of more in the near future. It is true, that at the late election, he received a large majority over his competitor, Allen G. Campbell. Campbell, has however, shown so clearly that Cannon has no proof that he was ever naturalized, and that he is living in polygamy, in violation of the United States statutes of 1862, that the governor of the territory has issued the certificate of election to Campbell, instead of Cannon. The latter has been elected for Utah, for several terms, and don't like the idea of being so unceremonously bounced. Hence the tears of the faithful in that far off land.

THE first official act of Gov. Porter, was to appoint Howard Cale notary public, and the second, to appoint Capt. J. R. Carnahan adj't. general, to succeed Gen. Russ. He next appointed F. H. Blacklidge his private secretary.

THERE has been a good deal of trouble, for a few weeks past, between the B. & O. railroad and the Pennsylvania Central, in regard to the use of a track about a mile long in the city of Philadelphia. This track belongs to the Central, but by an agreement was to be used by both companies. It was over this track that the B. & O. trains, connecting with New York, had to be moved. A coolness having arisen between the two roads, much difficulty has been experienced by the B. & O. in getting trains moved over. The Central kept a lot of empty cars on a side-track near by, and on the approach of a B. & O. train, would commence switching them around very busily, and in such a way as to prevent the passage of the incoming train. Or in case, as often happened, the B. & O. train was to be taken over by a Central engine, the engine was sure to wait around awhile, and only hitch on when it could no longer find an excuse for delay. In this way the B. & O. work has been delayed, greatly to their disadvantage and vexation. But a consultation between the two roads has resulted in a better feeling, and now trains are being pushed forward as rapidly as possible.

THE STATE LEGISLATURE.

THURSDAY, JAN. 6.

The senate was called to order at ten o'clock by General Manson, auditor of state. The holding-over senators were then called, and answered to their names, and the new members were sworn in, whereupon the auditor of state announced a quorum present.

Senator Viele (democrat) was then nominated and elected president pro tem. Nominations were then made for principal secretary by the democrats and republicans, and three ballots taken, each resulting in a tie. The senate then adjourned until the next morning.

Senators Majors and Davis (nationals), voted with the democrats, and Poindexter with the republicans. The house being republican, organized by electing a speaker and officers of that party.

FRIDAY.

To-day's work in the senate, resulted in a dead lock, Senator Poindexter, greenback, voting alone. A ballot was taken for secretary; the candidates for this position were, J. H. Rice, late secretary of the democratic central committee; O. M. Wilson, on the part of the republicans, and a Mr. Brouse, greenbacker. The first ballot resulted, Rice 25, Wilson 24 and Brouse 1, 26 being necessary to a choice. Senator Wood, then offered the following:

Whereas, it is necessary to elect officers of this body at the earliest time, in order that the business of legislation may proceed. That an expense of $1,000 per day may not be wasted by longer delay in choosing, therefore,

Resolved, that the senate proceed to choose its officers, the principal secretary to be a democrat, and to choose Mr. Sears, the republican nominee, for assistant secretary, and the door-keeper to be a republican, who are to be designated by their respective parties.

Wood is a democrat, and gave as a reason for this attempt to keep Wilson from the position, that Wilson had declared in favor of an empire, with Grant for emperor, and young Fred. for his immediate successor. The motion failed to receive a majority, and in the house but little was done.

SATURDAY.

After eight ballots, the senate succeeded in effecting an organization, by electing C. W. Brouse, national, as chief secretary, with Robert Sears, republican of Vermillion, as assistant, and A. W. Monroe, of Floyd, also a republican, as door-keeper. The minor positions will likely be filled by democrats. The senate then adjourned to meet at 2 p. m., at which time Gov. Gray delivered his retiring message to both houses in joint session.

SENATOR BRUCE.

Senator Bruce, who goes out to give way for George, is the last of his race, doubtless, for years to come, in the senate. He is now the only colored man in either branch of congress, and the youngest of the senators. He told me a story the other day about himself which I had heard before, but I think it has never been in print. The late Senator Bogy, of Missouri, was anxious to have a pension bill passed one day for a constituent, and came over to the republican side to ask support for it. He approached the colored senator from Mississippi, and said:

"Now, look here, Bruce, vote for this, won't you? I only want another vote or two, and you can carry it through for me. It is a meritorious case."

"Certainly," said Senator Bruce. "You know, Senator, that I have always been willing to do you any favor you asked."

"D—n it, sir," replied the Missouri senator, "I never asked you a favor in my life till this moment."

"Oh, yes you have," replied Bruce. "You may remember once, many years ago, that you were going from St. Louis down the river on a steamboat, and you were hurrying along to catch the boat, with a big valise. You passed a little barefooted mulatto, and said: 'Here, you little black rascal, take this valise and come with me.' The boy took the hand-bag, and when you came near the boat, you said it was about to push off, and you ran on ahead and just crossed the gang-plank as it was drawn in. The boy had not been able to keep up with you, and arrived too late. You stood on the lower deck and yelled, 'throw that valise aboard, you d—d black rascal; I can't go without my valise.' But the boat had moved out till the boy was afraid it would fall into the river if he tried to throw it, and, besides, he expected to receive a quarter for carrying it, and you had, apparently, forgotten all about that. The valise was not thrown and you made the captain of the boat come back to the dock again to get it, and the boy collected the quarter. Now, do you remember that circumstance, Senator?" concluded Bruce.

"I do," admitted Senator Bogy.

"Well, said Bruce, "I was the little mulatto boy that carried your valise, and I am just as ready to accommodate you to-day as I was then, I'll vote for your bill."

NEIGHBORHOOD NIPPINGS.

LIGONIER LEADER:

A teamster driving a span of horses belonging to Christ. Plank, who lives north of town, was passing along on the north side of the east water tank near Calvin street on Tuesday afternoon, when the wagon loaded with lumber slid over the embankment, taking the team with it. The driver was walking on the lower side at the time, doing what he could to keep the wagon from upsetting, but managed to get out of the way in time to escape being injured. The wagon was a complete wreck, but fortunately the horses were uninjured, but were pretty badly tangled up, and one of them had to be drawn out of the entanglement by the station horse.

KENDALLVILLE STANDARD:

The editor of this paper will soon celebrate his twentieth anniversary at the printing business. In the spring of 1861 we took our first lesson in the art in the office of the Waterloo Press—we remember the day and date well, as C. K. Baxter, the present editor of that paper, had bid good-bye to the boys in the office—he had enlisted as "high private" in company G of the old 19th Indiana regiment, as did H. E. Altenburg, John Keller and a number of others of the brave boys from that place who were among the first to respond to the call for troops. Wm. T. Kimsey, Frank Kennedy, E. W. Hoover and "us" as devil of the concern, were left, but soon "Tom," (Kimsey) as the boys called him, enlisted in the old 44th, and then Eli Hoover was the next man to enlist; Frank Kennedy enlisted in company A, 88th, and served through the war—and we run away to Kendallville to enlist, but found that a dispatch had preceeded us from our employer, T. Y. Dickinson, to Capt. Iddings, to not take us as we were too young. Well, we "hoofed" it back to Waterloo, and found the boys in the office busy working off the 30-quire edition of the Press. J. F. Radcliffe, editor of the Osceola, Michigan Outline, was the newly-installed foreman of the office, and the boys "went for" the runaway in a lively manner. We waited our time, however, and enlisted, and was accepted. These incidents are as fresh in our mind as if they had been yesterday. We remember, too, the many brave boys who fell, and others who came home wounded and maimed for life, and still others who were and are yet among the missing, and yet we have those among us who ask us to "forget the past."

Angola Herald, Jan. 5: On Tuesday morning of last week, Walter Peachy, of Richland township, lost a valuable horse, from the effect of a kick from a horse owned by some lumbermen, who were boarding at Walter's father's, in Otsego. The animal's leg was broken, which rendered it useless, and it was killed. The loss falls heavily on Mr. Peachy, but he will probably recover pay from the owner of the refractory horse.

LIGONIER BANNER:

The Lake Shore road has ordered conductors to announce the nature of the next stop every time the train starts, even if it be for a railroad crossing or a drawbridge. The passenger then knows when to prepare to alight for his station. The brakemen repeat the announcement as the train stops. This is an example that should be generally followed.

M. K. Beall and family returned yesterday from Rolling Prairie, where they had been on a five days' visit to Mart's father. They report having a most enjoyable visit.

Ex-Representative Orlando Kimmell, Senator Hostetter, and W. A. Jackson left for Indianapolis early Monday morning. Capt. Braden left for the capital Tuesday. Ex Senator and ex-prison director Robert Dykes have also concluded to take a hand in the scramble for office. With three candidates for the directorship from this county the chances of "gobbling" the coveted position can hardly be considered very promising.

From the Capitol.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 10, 1880.

EDITORS COURIER:—There has been some fine canvassing done here in the last few days under legislative influence. The result is hardly congratulatory. You have heard, doubtless, of the darkey's reason why a dog wags his tail—because, he says, the dog is the heaviest; if the tail was de heaviest, it would wag de dog. The organization of the senate is a clear case of the tail wagging the dog, though in this case it was much the lightest.

There are but three greenback senators in this body, yet they got away with all the spoils of office, after three days balloting. The democrats and republicans entered the fight with their respective candidates, and the ballots, up to the twenty-first, always resulted in a tie—25 and 25. It grew provokingly monotonous until Saturday, when the greenbackers succeeded in getting their ticket on deck. The break was made by the democrats, as they argued, if the lock lasted until Monday the Lieutenant-Governor would come in and give the casting vote, electing the republican ticket. It is claimed that for this assistance from the democrats, the greenbackers will act with them in preventing obnoxious legislation, such as throwing out certain officials comfortably situated in sever of the various institutions of the state, such as the deaf and dumb and insane asylums. This will be a good exchange, as there is no advantage to be obtained by any party through the officers of the senate, except an appointment on the clerical force, which is insignificant. There will be an effort at re-districting the state for legislative purposes, and that game will be blocked, if the greenbackers are with us.

The senate is quite an able body as now constituted, but I regret to say that the house is much below mediocre, in ability or legislative experience, and very ordinarily officered. Two years ago we had such men as ex-Congressmen Shanks and Humphreys, Major Gordon, Judge March, Mr. Herod, of this city, Judge Osborn, of Elkhart, and many other really capable men, but no such element appears to-day in that body. The members now composing the house are generally young, inexperienced, nine-tenths of whom never appeared before in a legislative capacity. It is now admitted that it would be a wise provision if the representatives were elected as the senators are—every four years, one-half holding from session to session.

The senate will be a check, however, on bad legislation, and there is hope that the present assembly will enact some good laws, and repeal a number now on the statute books.

There is a growing inclination among the people to stop this wonderful extortion now indulged in by railroad corporations. This thing of giving one bushel of wheat to get another to market, filling the coffers of the wealthy with the sweat of the laborer, should received the early attention of our lawmakers. The inquiry is hereby made why railroads cannot transport passengers at two cents per mile, and then come out at the end of the year with a good surplus. All admit that at that rate travel would be increased, and receipts show up for railroads aggregating as much yearly as they now realize, at very little additional expense.

Governor Porter returned the other day from New York with a new wife, a Miss Stone, of that city, and he will be inaugurated to-day, in the full enjoyment of his glory, right in the midst of the honeymoon.

Mr. Moody is preparing for a desperate battle with legislative matters, and he begins to look wise already. He will stand among the best in that body.

Senator McCartney is on deck, and will prove an active worker.

I have been called on to help the boys out in the senate, but will be home in a few days.

TOM.

In Memoriam.

Whereas, at the ushering in of the new-year, God in His wisdom and providence did remove by death one of the loved members of this class, therefore

Resolved, That in the death of Miss Nellie Sanborn we recognize the hand of God, and while we deeply mourn her absence from our class and school, we believe our loss is her eternal gain.

That, although our acquaintance with her has been limited, and the time of the association short, yet in that brief time we have learned to love her because of her real merit, her affectionate disposition and her lively interest in everything pure and holy, and especially in her sabbath-school lessons and class.

That we are encouraged by and rejoice to know that in death she was so triumphant; and although suffering intense pain, she was so fully assured and could rejoice that Jesus was her friend and savior, and heaven was her home.

That we deeply sympathize with the the parents and friends of our departed class-mate, and our prayer is that with them we may meet sweet Nellie in the sabbath-school above, where parting, pain and death will never disturb.

That one copy of these resolutions be furnished the COURIER for publication and one copy to the parents of the deceased.

ADDIE BECK,
CALLIE WILLIAMS,
CARRIE MCDOUGAL,
Committee.

J. B. CARNDEER, Teacher.
Monday, January 3, 1881.

BIG RUSH

—AT—

Isaac Ochs' Mammoth Store!

THE BOOM INCREASES DAILY.

New Stocks Received Daily

STUPENDOUS BARGAINS TO BE HAD IN ALL CLASSES OF GOODS

THE BOTTOM KNOCKED CLEAR OUT OF

BOOTS, SHOES AND RUBBER GOODS.

Selling piles of them cheap; cheaper than anybody.

Immense Trade in Clothing, and Why?

Because I have an immense stock, and am selling cheaper than anybody.
biggest line of Ladies' Dress Goods, and Cloaks, and Dolmans in town, at prices

WAY DOWN! WAY DOWN!

TAPLES ALMOST GIVEN AWAY. Come all ye that want bargains, and I will give them to you.

JOIN THE CROWD AND COME AND SEE Us, COME EVERYBODY!

ISAAC OCHS, Auburn, Ind.

ROOT & COMPANY

Invite attention to their

REDUCED PRICES

FOR JANUARY. Preparatory to their Annual Inventory.

LARGE REDUCTION

—IN—

Silks, Satins, Velvets, Plushes, Etc.

LARGE REDUCTION

—IN—

DRESS GOODS,

Dolmans, Ulsters, Cloaks, Shawls.

FELT AND SATIN SKIRTS

A FEW FINE

SEALGARMENTS

AND ELEGANT

FUR LINED GOODS,

AT SPECIAL PRICES.

An unbroken assortment of gentlemen's, ladies' and children's

UNDERWEAR!

Still on hand, and offered at

REDUCED PRICES.

Our stock, in every department, must be reduced, and we have marked such prices on everything as will insure that result.

ROOT & CO., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

ESTRAY NOTICE.

Taken up by John S. Boots, of Jackson township, DeKalb county, Indiana, five fat hogs, two black and three white, of an average weight of 180 pounds, and of the appraised value of thirty-six dollars ($36), as reported to me by John Henderson, a justice of the peace of said township, on the 18th day of December, 1880.

JOHN W. BAXTER, Clerk.

December 20, 1880.

Notice of Administration.

Notice is hereby given that the undersigned has been appointed by the judge of the DeKalb circuit court of the state of Indiana, administrator of the estate of Wm. Wyatt, deceased, late of said county. Said estate is supposed to be insolvent.

ELMON Y. WYATT,
Administrator.

52

ESTRAY NOTICE.

Taken up by Dr. Henry Lahman, at Fairfield Center, DeKalb county, Indiana, an estray, described as follows:

"A white cow with yellow skin, long tail right ear partly torn off, has long smooth horns, about six years old, and will weigh about 850 pounds, appraised and reported to Christian Smith, justice of the peace of Fairfield township, December 13, 1880."

Dated this 18th day of December, 1880.

JOHN W. BAXTER, Clerk.

Best & McClellan, Attorneys.

Notice to Non-Residents.

State of Indiana, DeKalb county—in the DeKalb circuit court, vacation after December term, 1880.

John Coyle is hereby notified that an action has been commenced against him in said court, for judgment and foreclosure by George W. Huselman, and that the same will be heard and determined on the 40th juridical day of the next term of said court, which commences February 28, 1881, at nine o clock a. m.

Witness, the clerk of said court, this 12th day of January, 1881.

JOHN W. BAXTER, Clerk.

Pinchin & Boyle, Attorneys.

Notice to Non-Resident.

State of Indiana, DeKalb county—in the DeKalb circuit court, February term, 1881.

Sophia Griswold is hereby notified that an action has been commenced against her in said court, for foreclosure of mortgage by Charles L. Luce, Jesse G. Gould and Arthur B. Luce, and that the same will be heard and determined on the second juridical day of the next term of said court, which commences February 28, 1881.

Witness, the clerk of said court, this 28th day of December, 1880.

JNO. W. BAXTER, Clerk.

$100 Reward

For any case of

CATARRH

That cannot be cured with

HALL'S CATARRH CURE.

This is no humbug. No nasal douche. No snuff. Nothing to irritate the nasal cavity or distroy the sense of smell. It is an INTERNAL REMEDY ACTING UPON THE BLOOD, cleansing it from its impurities, causing the puriform matter to be carried off through the natural channels. It is a scientific preparation used and prescribed for years by one of the ablest practitioners in this country, and has never failed to cure when used according to direction.

WE MAKE THIS PROPOSITION:

If any person, after taking one dozen of HALL'S CATARRH CURE is NOT CURED OR BENEFITED more than four times its cost, we will refund the money paid. If it does you good you are willing to pay for it. If it does no good it costs you nothing.

PRICE 75 CENTS PER BOTTLE.

Manufactured by F. J. CHENEY & Co., Druggists, Toledo, O.

11-1 yr. For Sale by all Druggists

Notice to Heirs of Petition to Sell Real Estate.

State of Indiana, DeKalb county—in the DeKalb circuit court.

Notice is hereby given, that Maria Dove administratrix of Henson Dove, deceased, has filed a petition to sell the real estate of the decedent, the personal being insufficient to pay his debts, and that said petition will be heard at the next term of said court. Attest:

52-3t. J. W. BAXTER, Clerk.

Dec. 28, 1880.

Auburn Courier.

Local and Miscellaneous

—Old Mr. Canon is quite ill.

—John Zollers, is on the sick list.

—Sam. Tarney, of Garrett, was in town Wednesday.

—Al. Markle, of Angola, came in to see us one day last week.

—Mr. Frank Barney, of Spencerville, was in town over Sunday.

—Frank Myers returned from Ft. Clinton, Ind., last Saturday.

—Several from town took in the dance at Waterloo last night.

—George Schaab is setting up the cigars this week. It's a fine boy.

—We noticed Joe. Pomert and Hale Markle on the street Wednesday.

—The old folks propose to have a hop one week from to-morrow night.

—Rev. Mr. Reidig preached at the Methodist church last sabbath evening.

—We have had good roads all winter, which has been a harvest for teamsters.

—Frank Davenport's drug-store is set off by two elegant new show cases.

—Miss Maud Allen return home last Friday from an extended visit in Illinois.

—J. W. Patterson can give the particulars of a $20 bet on New York state.

—One of Hl. Palmer's children fell against the stove and was badly burned.

—George Yesbera, of West Unity, Ohio, dropped in to see us Wednesday morning.

—Dave Hampton has gone on a two weeks' visit to his parents in Richmond, this state.

—We received a short "but sweet" call from Misses Meam and Aletha Born Monday.

—The prayer-meetings at the Presbyterian church has been protracted since Thursday last.

—Mrs. Tucker, of Toledo, Ohio, is visiting with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Canon, in this place.

—Mr. Thomas Jordan, Mr. E. Knour and Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Orr, of Corunna, were in town Tuesday.

—A large number of Auburn people attended Josh Billing's lecture, at Waterloo, Monday evening.

—The trains on the B. & O. railroad were all late Saturday. A wreck on each end was the cause.

—William Sheffer again occupies the residence, on north Main street, which he built a few years since.

—Mrs. M. Kline was called to Hicksville, Ohio, last week by the illness of her daughter, Mrs. A. Miller.

—Rev. C. C. Christine, pastor of the German Reform church, of Waterloo, gave us a friendly call this week.

—Rev. F. M. Elliott, of Pierceton, will preach in the Presbyterian church next sabbath, morning and evening.

—Frank Davenport, from the effect of a bad cold, pitched his voice way up in the key of high C last Friday.

—C. Klotz, agent for sewing machines, keeps all kinds of repairs for all kinds of machines. Give him a call.

—A sleigh-load of little folks, from town, took in the situation of things at the county farm last Friday evening.

—Miss Rallie Crane, one of Waterloo's lively and accomplished young ladies, payed Miss Frankie Ryan a visit this week.

—On Monday we received a friendly call from F. S. Shoof, of Churubusco. He says everything is right side up in "Busco."

—John B. Gough, the great apostle of temperance, lectures at Ft. Wayne January 17. Sale of seats begins January 15.

—Robert S. S. Reed called on us one day this week. Robert is president of the DeKalb County Farmers' Insurance company.

—"Doings of the Whisky Ring," the famous work of Gen. McDonald, is now before the public. Call on Charles Klotz, agent, for a copy.

—Miss Achsa Hoffman, of Millersburg, Ind, a niece of our popular hardware man, W. H. Kiblinger, payed his family a visit this week.

—Mrs. M. McDowell, who for a long time has been quite feble, is much improved, and is visiting with her daughter, Mrs. A. J. Little.

—Capt. C. P. Cook died at Waterloo yesterday morning of consumption. He has been battling with that dread disease for a year or more.

—There will be a meeting of the teachers of the village schools of the county, at Auburn, Jan. 29. We will give programme next week.

—Miss Mary Shaffer, of Warsaw, who has been visiting with the family of Mr. J. W. Shaffer for several weeks, returned to her home Monday.

—Buy your sewing machines of Charles Klotz. He is agent for the Domestic and New Home, for the counties of DeKalb, Allen and Noble.

—A sleigh-load of Auburn's best looking young people enjoyed a pleasant evening at the residence of James Barclay, near Cedar creek, last Friday.

—First Lieutenant J. W. Patterson had a job yesterday morning. He was superintendent of a pair of tramps while they were engaged in splitting wood.

—Sadie Hollister, who has been suffering intensly from a gathering in her head, is feeling somewhat better, and now assumes her lively, jovial appearance.

—The game law prohibits the netting or trapping of quails at any time. Quails and pheasants may be shot during the months of November and December.

—Saturday evening the alarm of fire was given in the north end of town. It was Rev. Mr. Reidig's residence, but the flames were extinguished before much damage was done.

—Our neighbor, Hon. R. M. Lockhart, of Waterloo, was elected president of the state board of agriculture at the annual meeting of the board, at Indianapolis, last week.

—Marion Born and sisters, Meam and Aletha, of Colon, Michigan, and Mr. Frank Hawk, of Mongo, Ind., were the guests of James Anderson and family several days this week.

—C. K. Baxter, of the Waterloo Press, and J. U. Miller, of the Steuben Republican, spent a part of the past week in Indianapolis, helping to get the party slate in order.

—We would call the attention of our readers to the new advertisement of Messrs Root & Co., of Fort Wayne. They are selling everything in their line at greatly reduce prices.

—Three car-loads of silk worms recently passed over the Lake Shore railroad by special train from Chicago to New York. They are from China, and on the way to Havre, France.

—Jas. E. Graham, one of Ft. Wayne's live attorneys, invaded our sanctum on Monday of this week. He made a flying trip to our town on business for the Howard Insurance company. Call again.

—The band boys have secured Mr. Milo Calkins to instruct them, and are improving finely. Mr. Calkins is one of the finest musicians in the state, and no doubt, will improve our band wonderfully.

—The following number of names were registered at the Stamets house, at Auburn Junction, the last four months, viz: September 390, October 442, November 481, December 432, total 1,745.

—Sam, Pete & Max, the boss clothiers and gents' furnishing goods dealers, of Fort Wayne, have a new advertisement in this issue. Be sure and read it, and don't miss calling on them when you visit the city.

—From last week's Republican we learned that Mrs. Brown was sick. DeKalb county isn't any short on Brown's, George, so please tell your patrons which one of three or four hundred Browns was sick.

—The report that the plastering fell from the ward school house and broke a child's leg, is false. However, a son of Mr. Cregg was hurt at the reported time, but it was done while playing in the yard at recess.

—If the pastors of the several churches in town will call at our office and give us the time and place of services, so as to enable us to prepare a reliable little church directory for our paper, they will oblige us.

—School at the ward school-house in the north part of town came to a sudden ending last Friday, as an apparent settling of the walls caused a panic among the occupants. Competent authority, however, has pronounced the building safe.

—In the mildest words possible, we wish to inform those boys, who imagine themselves men, that we do not keep open doors for loafers, and they would confer a great favor upon the entire office if they would make their visits annually—except on business.

—The band boys are preparing to give a musical concert in a few weeks, the proceeds to be used in paying a teacher. Now that this will be the first assistance they have asked since their organization, the citizens should encourage them by greeting them with a large attendance.

—We have received a letter from Representative Moody, in which he states that he is comfortably located there in company with ex Speaker Cauthorn and other prominent members. He invites all his DeKalb friends to call on him at the Enterprise house should they be in the city.

—Miss Frankie Ryan, in her usual pleasing and courteous way, entertained a small party of young people, at her home on Seventh street, last Monday evening. Among the rest there was Miss Achsa Hoffman, of Millersburg, Ind., Miss Jennie Reed, of Millersburg, Ohio, and Miss Rallie Crane, of Waterloo.

—George Henney, S. J. Henney and Josiah Boyer, of Fairfield township, called last week. S. J. and Josiah came in to subscribe for the COURIER—George being an old subscriber simply called to know whether we had time to exchange a few yarns, etc., and also to oversee the boys in relation to their subscription, and then Josiah almost forgot it.

—The Decatur Democrat of Jan. 6, says: "The Auburn Courier has changed hands, Messrs. D. Y. Husselman and Jas. A. Barns having purchased it from Judge Lowry. Success, gentlemen. We trust, however, that it will show up at this office with a little more regularity than it has for a few months past." All right Bro. Williams, we will show up.

—Thursday of last week our friend Chas. Linkenhelt, over at Garrett, had a double wedding at his house, on which occasion Mr. J. Eastman was married to Miss Katie Linkenhelt and Mr. Asa Bennett to Miss Josie Linkenhelt, Rev. A. Young, of this place, officiating. The COURIER congratulates the parties, and wishes them an abundance of success.

—The election of officers of the First National bank of Auburn, was held Jan. 11, 1881, with the following result: President, Guy Plumb; vice-president, C. A. O. McClellen; cashier, Wm. McIntyre; directors, Guy Plumb, E. Berry, J. E. Shilling, Isaac Hague, C. A. O. McClellan, W. H. Kiblinger, Jacob Walborn, Wm. McIntyre, Dr. J. H. Ford.

—MARRIED:—A gay and festive wedding took place at the residence of Mr. Coy, last Thursday evening, the parties contracting being Mr. M. Kutzner and Miss Mary Coy. After the ceremony, the Rev. Mr. Lowman made an elaborate and appropriate speech, and in his excitement forgot himself and addressed the lady (Mrs. Kutzner) as Miss Coy. The guests laughed so loudly that the reverened gentleman had to put a . to his remarks. The supper was splendid, and the evening spent pleasantly.

—In a recent conversation with a lady friend, on the subject of "old maids"—a rather delicate subject to talk upon to a would-be married lady—she unthoughtedly remarked, that since she had been an old maid she had not worn out, by two-thirds, as many neckrouches as she did during her courting days. Not being very comprehensive, we don't quite understand what she meant, but we will wager our old corncob pipe that she was giving us a hint to break down the one that encircled her neck that evening—we didn't, however.

—It was 'Squire Eli Walker, of Smithfield township, and not 'Squire Barker, as stated by us in last week's COURIER, who had his first experience in marrying folks last week. We therefore ask pardon of all parties interested. Our informant declares that he said Walker, but we certainly understood it Barker; but as it was a very cold morning it is possible that the wax in our ears was a little too cold for us to hear sharply. The happy pair was Mr. George Carpenter and Miss Sarah Bowers, and we hope our error has not interfered with their happiness in any particular. Shake.

—L. P. Welling, the gentlemanly agent of the Ft. Wayne and Jackson railroad at this place, had a janitor last Monday morning. Somebody broke into the passenger depot and built a fire, and when he got there expected to find the office cold and dreary, but instead found a nice warm room. He says the first thing he did was to get mad, expecting of course, that something had been stolen, or some other devilment done. When he found that nothing had been molested he cooled down and went to work. He would prefer, however, to have them call when he is there to entertain them.

—Brother Baxter in last week's Press in his account of the election of officers at the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Northeastern Indiana Agricultural Association, gets off the following good hit: "After the election the president-elect was conducted to the chair, when he made a few remarks, "modestly" protesting that he lacked the ability to represent the association as it ought to be done, and asking the cordial co-operation of all in the great work before him." Charlie that's good. If there is one thing more than another that the new president is noted for, it is his excessive modesty.

—Some one who has taken the trouble to count the patents issued to women, finds that the number for the year ending July, 1880, was seventy, or ten more than the average. Most of the inventions of women have to do with household appliances. Among the past year's is a jar lifter, a bag holder, a pillow-sham holder, a dress protector, two dust pans, a washing machine, fluting iron, a dress chart, a fish boner, a sleeve adjuster, a lap table, a sewing machine treadle, a wash basin, an iron heater, sad irons, a garment stiffener, a folding chair, a wardrobe bed, a weather-strip, a churn, an invalid's bed, a milk cooler, a sofa bed, a dipper, a paper dish, and a plaiting device.

—Oh, what shall I do to keep warm? exclaimed Os. Allen Tuesday morning, as he sat hovering over the dying embers of the last scuttle of coal, and the thermometer standing below zero. He thought a moment, and then informed Johnny that he had struck an idea—strange. He procured a bushel basket, and approached our good-natured treasurer, Lafe Miller, and plead for just enough coal to thoroughly heat his carcass, and save Johnny and two traveling men, who were at the barn, from becoming extinct by the severe cold weather. In the fullness of his heart, Lafe whacked up, and filled his basket two-thirds full with cinders and the remainder with third-rate coal. Os. picked it up, and in his eagerness to replenish an already extinguished fire, dumped three pecks of cinders into the stove. All efforts to make it burn failed, and by the time he got his stove cleaned out, swore, by all that was good and bad, that their office would put to shame Mitch Houston's refrigerator.

Annual Meeting of the Stockholders of the Fort Wayne & Jackson Railroad Company.

The annual meeting of the stock holders of the Fort Wayne & Jackson railroad company for the election of directors for the ensuing year, and the transaction of such other business as may be brought before it, will be held on Saturday, January 29, 1881, at 10 o'clock a. m., at the general office of the company in Jackson, Michigan. By order of the board of directors,

R. G. ROLSTON, Sec'y.

New York, Dec. 28, 1880. 53 4t.

To Whom It May Concern.

By request of the school board of Auburn public schools, we the undersigned citizens of Auburn, do hereby certify that we have made a thorough examination of the ward school building which has been talked of as being unsafe, and that we do pronounce said building safe in every particular.

Signed: J. E. Shilling, Wm. Clark, A. H. Wilson, Thos. Baldock, C. S. McCord, F. H. Krieg, D. K. Houghton, G. A. Porter, and W. P. Myers.

Prof. Tice Coming.

It is with pleasure that we announce to our readers that arrangements have been made for a lecture by John H. Tice, whose forecasts of the weather have attracted so much attention of late, and have given him the name of "Old Probs." These lectures are replete with the most valuable information on a subject but little understood. The whole science of aerial phenomena is rendered in an extremely interesting manner. No one should fail to hear him. His lectures are illustrated by the use of large charts and diagrams, showing the relative position of the high and low barometer, and how storms and cyclones are produced.

Another Pioneer Gone.

It becomes our sad duty this week to chronicle the death of one of the pioneers of DeKalb county. Lymon Chidsey, who has been suffering for the last six months with dread that disease, consumption, died at his home, near Auburn yesterday at ten o'clock. Mr. Chidsey came to this place in 1840, and has been a resident of our county since that time. As a neighbor he was kind and obliging, and was highly respected by all who knew him. He died as he had lived, at peace with all men. He leaves a widow and one daughter (Mrs. Wm. Ashelman) to mourn his loss. The funeral will take place to-day at the Presbyterian church, Rev. Norris officiating.

A Good Old Custom Well Observed.

The good old Knickerbocker custom of making new year's calls was quite appropriately observed in South Bend Saturday. The day was as clear and beautiful as a diamond and the atmosphere decidedly pleasant. A large number of callers were out, though less perhaps than on some former occasions of like character, and a great many of the ladies were "at home" to their gentlemen friends. The number of places where "open house" was kept was less than usual, but at each the number of ladies receiving was unprecedented, so that with fewer calls the gentlemen paid their respects to as many of their feminine friends as usual. The cards were varied and beautiful in designs, and some were on the cartoon order. The callers clubbed themselves into parties of four and six and made their tours in handsome equipages. Only one was on the burlesque order, that of Warren Stedman, Rob. Elliott and Charley Darling. They were dressed in the swellest kind of style, with silk tiles, and occupied arm chairs in a bob sled drawn by a pair of mules. The outfit attracted much attention.—St. Joe Vally Register.

RECEPTION.

The reception given John H. Leasure and wife, last Wednesday evening a week, at the residence of W. H. Kiblinger, was one of the grandest affairs ever participated in in Auburn, and all who indulged were "glad they had come," and thought it a "nice place to be." In justice to Mr. Kiblinger and his estimable lady, we must say that they are up to their calling in entertaining their guests, and no pains were spared to make that occasion long remembered. The supper was par excellence, and all enjoyed it, so to speak, "to their capacity full." We haven't the least doubt but that every one present that evening, would "walk back" on a similar or any other occasion. Those who enjoyed the evening were:

Wm. H. McIntyre and wife, Guy Plumb and wife, D. D. Snyder and wife, G. C. Ralston and wife, F. D. Ryan and wife, P. W. Silvers and wife, Thos. H. Sprott and wife, Leb. Anderson and wife, James Anderson and wife, Jas. A. Potter and wife, Obe Cool and wife, Frank Zimmerman and wife, W. H. Rakestraw and wife, Jas. Culbertson and wife, Major S. W. Sprott, Misses Louie Henry, Mary Sprott, Frankie Ryan, Frankie Ford, Annia Cowan, Frankie Stahl, Etta McClellan, Ellen Griswold, Ida Bell, Mollie Matheny, Sadie Hare, Jenny Reed, of Millersburg, Ohio, Mary Shafer, of Warsaw, Ind., Achsa Hoffman, of Millersburg, Ind., Mrs. Mattie C. Birdsall, of Richmond, Ind., and Mrs. B. F. Jordan, Elza Shaffer, A. J. Little, Harry Yesbera, Fred. Yesbera, W. E. Shaffer, Frank Leas, Fred. Clark, G. L. Labming, R. S. McClellan, Howard Griswold, W. E. Ryan, T. J. Cuppy, David Cochran and Willie Anderson.

St. Joe.

—Wm. Vansile is the proud sire of a 9-pound boy.

—Sol. Barney showed his face Monday morning last.

—O. H. manages to haul as many as two saw-logs per day.

—Will. McClaren thinks he saw an elephant last Saturday night.

—Jim Forell is the heaviest man in town, turning the beam at 268.

—Mort. E. can make more fuss over the toothache than any one in town.

—Alexander Leighty, of Freemont, Michigan, is visiting with his father and mother.

—A protracted meeting is in progress at the church, under the management of the Lutherans.

—Judging from the amount of ice that has been put up this winter in St. Joe, it will be no hard matter to keep cool next summer.

—A grand hunt next Saturday. Two parties, each of twelve or fifteen men and boys, will scour the country for what little game there is left. The one having the smallest count will buy the supper for both parties.

Waterloo.

—Frank Fisher is day operator at the Jackson depot.

—Dr. J. U. Winslow is now lying quite ill, but it is believed not dangerously so.

—Johnston, the dentist, is now turning out some splendid work. Call and see him.

—Rev. F. M. Elliott will preach at the Presbyterian church in Waterloo, Sunday, January 16, at 3 o'clock p. m.

—Protracted meeting begun at the Evangelical church last Sunday evening. Miss Kring will preach during the effort.

—Communion will be administered by Rev. F. F. Christine in the German Reform church at Hudson on next sabbath at 10½ o'clock a. m.

—F. P. Day reports the past season as a very successful one in the agricultural implement line. He is now getting ready for business next summer.

—Billings' lecture was well attended. We noticed a great many of our friends from Auburn, who had braved the cold weather for the pleasure of an evening with the irrepressible Josh.

—It is rumored that a family on the north side are in want of the necessaries of life. Let us all stop making flannel shirts for the heathens in Africa until these matters are attended to.

—J. B. Hoover, our efficient marshal, is as busy as ever, caring for the engine house and the poor, and getting ready to collect the city taxes. He also has an eye for the boys that play poker on the sly.

—A certain business man of Waterloo thinks there is only a very slight difference between big black cat skins and otter skins. Tally one for some granger trapper.

—The town board had a full attendance Monday evening—the first instance in a long time. Possibly Josh Billings' lecture had something to do with it.

School Report.

The following is the report of district No. 6, Fairfield township, for the month ending January 7, 1881: Average daily attendance, 26; number enrolled, 38; names of those whose department is 100: Ida Husselman, Rebecca Urey, Alma Husselman, Etta Knepper, Etta Parnell, Mary Kesstler, Amanda Stahl, J. A. Freed, Ada Freed, Vancy Urey, Almon Line, Sovina Lower, Francis Cox, A. E. Rowe, C. Rowe, Emma Rowe, J. H. Urey, Samuel Urey, Jacob Rowe, Amanda Parnell, Laura Bickel, Emma Parnel, Emma Husselman, Flora Husselman, George Lower, Laura Myers, Ida Coyl.

The school is pleasant and interesting to me, and I feel sincere gratitude to the parents and children for the kindness they manifest toward me, and the interest they take in the school. Parents are kindly invited to attend the school.

J. R. KANDEL, Teacher.

Dentistry.

Those who find their teeth decaying, or in any way needing attention, can do no better than to call on Dr. Johnston, over Boyer's drug-store, in Waterloo. He has at hand every means for doing good work of all kinds, such as plate work, filling, cleaning, etc. A little attention to these matters in time will save a good deal of suffering, much expense, and preserve your teeth at the same time.

School Report.

Names of pupils neither absent nor tardy in St. Johns school for the month ending January 7: Ella Head, Mary Quince, Callie Fair, Nina Quince, Elza Housal, Christon Faegler, Willie Mathews; Number enrolled, 39. The cold weather has made the report less in number this month.

Parents are cordially invited to visit the school.

JAS. A. QUINCE, Teacher.

Important Notice.

Notice is hereby given that our stock of groceries, provisions, queensware, glassware, etc., etc., etc., is complete, and that we will not be undersold by any grocery house in DeKalb county. We invite everybody in need of anything in our line, to call and see us. We will continue to pay the highest market price for produce.

Respectfully,
BRAND & DUNCAN,
2 3t Waterloo, Ind.

NOTICE.

I would say to the ladies who wish instructions in the art of cutting and fitting, that I will commence with a class January 17, 1881. For terms and particulars, inquire of Miss R. A. Canon, Ensley block. 1 2

REPORT OF THE CONDITION OF THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK, AT AUBURN, IN THE STATE OF INDIANA, AT THE CLOSE OF BUSINESS, DECEMBER 31, 1880.

RESOURCES.
Loans and discounts	$ 60,286.85
U. S. Bonds to secure circulation	50,000.00
Due from approved reserve agents	8,948.67
Due from other national banks	3,916.80
Real estate, furniture and fixtures	10,800.00
Current expenses and taxes paid	1,301.76
Premiums paid, profit and loss	815.93
Bills of other banks	5,500.00
Fractional paper currency, nickels etc.	9.62
Specie	6,100.00
Legal tender notes	5,100.00
Redemption fund with U. S. treasurer 5 per cent. of circulation	2,250.00
Total	$130,234.06
LIABILITIES.
Capital stock paid in	$ 50,000.00
Undivided profits	4,132.63
National Bank notes outstanding	45,000.00
Individual deposits subject to check	18,376.25
Demand certificates of deposit	11,225.18
Time certificates of deposit	1,500.00
Total	$130,234.06

State of Indiana, County of DeKalb, ss:

I, Wm. H. McIntyre, cashier of the above-named bank, do solemnly swear that the above statement is true to the best of my knowledge and belief.
W. H. MCINTYRE, Cashier.

Subscribed and sworn to before me, this 8th day of January, 1881.
GUY PLUMB, Notary Public.

Correct Attest:
J. E. Shilling,
Isaac Hague, Directors.
J. H. Ford,

Thos. H. SPROTT'S

INSURANCE, LOAN,

REAL ESTATE AND

STEAMSHIP AGENCY.

FIRE INSURANCE

Effected in companies that are

TIME-TRIED & FIRE-TESTED

at lowest current rates.

LIFE INSURANCE

on the best plans. No POST MORTUM INSURANCE can be had of us. We will sell you only the best, that which has been tried and found to be just what we say it is.

Single or Round-Trip Tickets

to and from all points in

IRELAND, FRANCE,
HOLLAND, SPAIN,
GERMANY, ENGLAND,

and all parts of the globe that is reached by water.

NOTICE TO HEIRS OF PETITION TO SELL REAL ESTATE.

State of Indiana, DeKalb county—In the DeKalb circuit court.

Notice is hereby given, that Malinda Kessler, administratrix of the estate of Eli Kessler, deceased, has filed a petition to sell the real estate of the decedent, the personal being insufficient to pay his debts, and that said petition will be heard at the next term of said court.

Attest: JNO. W. BAXTER, Clerk.
December 30, 1880. 13-3w.

A. J. Baxter, Attorney.

NOTICE TO NON-RESIDENTS.

State of Indiana, DeKalb county—In the DeKalb circuit court, February term, 1881.

Leonard Hartle is hereby notified that an action has been commenced against him in said court, in attachment. John Barrett, administrator of the estate of Adam P. Hartle, deceased, and that the same will be heard and determined on the 2d juridical day of the next term of said court, which commences Feburary 28, 1881.

Witness, The clerk of said court, this 31st of December, 1880.
JOHN W. BAXTER, Clerk.

BUT A FEW DAYS!

CHANGE OF FIRM!

Furnishing Goods!

Sacrifice Sale!

Fine Clothing!

Splendid Overcoats!

AT COST.

SAM, PETE & MAX, Ft. Wayne, Ind.

A TALE OF THE CAT-TAIL.

Down in a swamp where the alders bloom
A weary cat-tail hung its head.
"My heart is wrapped around with gloom;
I would, I would, that I were dead!
Life here is never hilarious,
And always somewhat malarious,"
Said this discontented cat-tail.

"Why am I not a fair moss-rose,
That a poet's strain might tell of me,
Or a maiden press me to her nose,
And gently, tenderly, smell of me?
Oh, how I bemoan my humble walk!"
And a large tear trickled down the stalk
Of the sorrowful, weeping cat-tail.

"But since my lot with grief is rife,
Since fate, cruel fate, so decrees,
I'll do my best, and the orange of life
I will most thoroughly squeeze;
And I'll lift my head—I will, indeed—
And put off for a period going to seed,"
Said this very virtuous cat-tail.

So it pushed aside the green leaves that
Surrounded it like a closet,
And the neighboring plants were astonished at
Its great adipose deposit.
The other cat-tails it quite looked down,
For none grew so plethoric and brown
As this noble-hearted cat-tail.

Bigger and browner the cat-tail grew,
Till at last, one summer day,
A maiden fair, with eyes of blue,
Came driving along that way.
She had studied artistic decoration,
And gave a delighted exclamation
When she saw the noble cat-tail.

She spared it not; in its noble prime
She cut it short on the spot;
But it knew it was near its seedy time,
And it would rather be cut than not.
And it almost erupted its sleek fat side
With its fervid joy and its honest pride,
This stout but modest cat-tail.

The maiden showed to all her friends
Her captured cat-tail, brown and tall;
She made it a bow with loops and ends,
And hung it up against the wall.
The humble cat-tail was much elated,
In its position so elevated,
As a decorative cat-tail.

For by its side there hung in state
Some Kensington-work on flannel,
While a one-legged stork looked for his mate
From a pleasing neighboring panel.
And there with a gorgeous peacock's feather
And a Japanese fan all hung together,
With the now æsthetic cat-tail!
—Harper's Bazar.

TERRIBLE ADVENTURE.

In the spring of 1876, Mexico was in a tumult. Lerdo, the Chief Justice, succeeding to the Presidency at the death of Juarez, and afterward elected for a second term, announced himself as a candidate for the third. His political opponents, enraged at the thought of a third term, uprose in all directions and declared for Diaz. In March of this year only the rumblings of the rebellion were heard, but society was daily becoming more and more disturbed. Armed men were everywhere about, and many bands of lawless ruffians were scouring the outskirts of the cities and towns, stealing from the farmers, and leaving behind them desolation and despair—truly a peculiarly dangerous and unfortunate time for a foreigner to set out on a journey.

On a lovely morning in early March, a young American gentleman left the town of Matanzas to travel to Jalapa. The narrow road at first winds up the side of the mountain, turning sharply around sudden bends, where a single misstep of the horse or mule would hurl the rider far down into the valley below. It is as if the great mountain had been hollowed out, and the jagged sides left standing, with a rude path trending from the base to the summit. The American was accompanied by six native horsemen mounted on mustangs similar to his own, and four footmen. The whole party were armed. After passing about half way up the mountain side the traveler halted, and motioned to his followers to do the same. For a long time he sat motionless in his saddle gazing out at the exquisite picture before him. In the distance, far below, lay the wonderful valley of Matanzas, the "Garden of Mexico." The rich, excessive vegetation could plainly be discerned, and a few light and graceful clouds hung drifted against the towering rocks. The beams of the lately-risen sun were pouring over the hill-tops and illuminating the vast plain beneath with a fresh and rosy light. He must have been indeed a prosaic and unappreciative man who would pass carelessly by such a wonder-work of nature.

His reverie was suddenly broken by a shout from above. Looking up he saw a single horseman picking his way carefully toward him. He was soon recognized by the men as a resident of Matanzas. When he drew near he spoke rapidly and excitedly to the escort in their peculiar patois, gesticulating violently all the while.

The effect was immediate and startling. The entire body of native horsemen, with one exception, and all the footmen, turned sharply around and made their way rapidly down the mountain side, without a word of explanation or farewell to their employer. The only one who remained was Filomeno, who had been sent by his master, a friend of the traveler, to accompany him to Jalapa, and who understood English after a fashion. He sat motionless in his saddle, gazing after his countrymen, now fast disappearing around the curves of the pathway.

"What's the matter, Filomeno?" asked the American at length, rising in his saddle as he spoke, and shading his eyes with his hand, as he looked after the deserters, "what did that fellow say that has made all this fuss?"

"He said," replied the Mexican slowly, "that revolution had already broken out at Jalapa; that the terrible soldiers of the plains are before us, and that if you proceed you will be surrounded and killed."

"Stuff," said the American, "I am not afraid. Filomeno, let us go on." And, as he spoke, he tightened his hold on his horse's rein, and was about to proceed, when he saw that Filomeno had not stirred.

"Come, Filomeno," said he, "time is slipping by and we must be off. Surely you are not afraid to accompany me?"

"No matter," answered the Mexican, "but I cannot go as I am. All these robbers know Filomeno, and would give a good price for my head. If I go with you I must go disguised. Wait;" and, turning around, he scrambled lightly and quickly back from the road toward a little hut near by, whence a thin wreath of smoke was curling lazily up through the clear morning air. He was gone scarcely fifteen minutes, and when he again drew near the American hardly knew him. Filomeno had disappeared under the guise of a charcoal-burner.

"Now I am ready; I have left my horse where it will be taken care of," he said, and now on foot he fell into his old place close behind the American's mustang.

And so they journeyed on, up into the clouds and then down again, over the rich breasts of valleys which are only found in the tropics, and along the tracks of old watercourses, and through brooks and little rivers of a peculiar greenish hue. Around them was nature in all her wasteful luxuriance, but no sign of anything human to help or hinder them.

That night they encamped in a small valley, and resumed their journey at daybreak. At 11 o'clock on the morning of this day they were drawing near Jalapa. The sun was beating down out of a cloudless sky; the heat was intense; and a deep stillness seemed to have settled over the great plain. Before them was the Valley of Jalapa; on the right the Volcano of Orizaba, its cone white with snow and ice, its sides covered with that luxuriance of foliage only known where eternal summer reigns.

The American, too tired even to notice this, was nodding in his saddle, and for a long time had not spoken to his companion. He was aroused by a low cry from Filomeno. Turning toward him and following the direction of his eyes, he saw a large body of horsemen galloping toward him. He could see at once that they were not regular soldiers. They advanced in confusion, and no two men seemed dressed alike. It was a squad of the dreaded guerrillas on a foraging expedition. With a terrible feeling of despair the American again looked around for Filomeno. He had fled. The American was alone, with a hundred wild and lawless Mexican robbers bearing down on him, like a rushing wind across a placid lake.

In a moment, as it seemed, they were upon him and around him. Resistance was useless. A score of pistols pointed at him, a score of swords were raised above his head, and a score of long sticks with knives on the ends, called matchezies were pricking him in all directions. He was pulled off his horse in a twinkling, stripped naked in the midst of a dense circle of howling savages, who were cursing and fighting for his various articles of dress. At length his clothing, arms and valuables were divided. The leader of the band, with the American's watch dangling from his belt, shouted out an order to his men. Two troopers armed with matchezies rode up to the prisoner and commanded him to walk before them. "You American devil," they exclaimed in Spanish, "you dog of a spy, be off to Jalapa. When we get you there we'll teach you to sneak around our lines. March!"

And in order to add emphasis to their words they prodded the prisoner with the points of their matchezies till the blood started from more than one wound on his arms and legs. Angry, faint and sore, and half blinded by the fierce rays of the sun, the American wheeled around and upbraided the leader for these indignities, and especially for depriving him of his clothes. In reply, one of the soldiers pulled out from under his saddle a piece of coarse and filthy matting which he carelessly tossed to the prisoner.

"Take this," he said; "it is too small for you, but the fleas in it will keep you warm."

And so, wrapping this dirty covering about his shoulders, our countryman started on his painful march to Jalapa.

At 3 o'clock in the afternoon they reached the town. The American was hustled into a wretched adobe hut on the outskirts of the village, and the Mexicans, after posting a guard around the place, tied their horses under a shed and gave themselves up to rest and boisterous recreation. Inside the hut on a rude bench the American sat silent hour after hour. At length he walked to a little window and begged for water. There was no response. The bare walls only echoed his cry of "Aqua! aqua!"

All the next day, too, the prisoner was kept without food or drink or clothes. At times his mind wandered a little. At sunset the cool evening air somewhat revived him. He moved his bench under the window of the hut, and stretching himself under it listened carelessly to the idle conversation of the soldiers outside. Suddenly h's heart gave a terrible throb; a cold perspiration overwhelmed him, and he fainted.

What he had heard was this: The soldiers were talking about a fair that was to open in Jalapa on the morrow, and they were detailing to a new-comer some of the amusements that had been planned for the occasion.

"We are going to have a shooting match at noon," said one; "we have got an American spy in that box yonder, and we are going to tie him to a stake and shoot at him with our revolvers. Whoever kills him will get five silver dollars. The dog's hours are numbered."

These were the words which had fallen on the American like a pall.

It was probably much less than a hour that the prisoner lay insensible. Then he roused himself, and, like the brave man that he was, looked his doom in the face. So he was to die, and die the death of a miserable cur; he, the inhabitant of a pleasant Northern city, with youth, health, kind friends and fortune. To be tied to a stake in a Mexican market place and shot at for a paltry prize. These thoughts were maddening. He called fiercely to his captors to liberate him; he strode furiously up and down the room; he rushed to the window and rattled the bars; and finally from sheer exhaustion he sank down on the floor in despair.

He lay still for a long time.

He could not mark the hours, but at length he knew by the cool wind that crept in through the bars, that day—his last day—was not far away. Then he heard a cock crow; and then he saw a bright ray of sunlight come flashing into his miserable hut, and he was sure that he had but a few hours more to live. He made up his mind that he would die bravely. He rose to his full height, stretched his limbs, and raised his head proudly. As he did so he heard a sound of horses galloping toward him. He rushed to the window and looked out. A cavalry officer, in a fine uniform, with flashing arms and equipments, and followed by a squad of men, was coming every moment nearer and nearer.

The lounging guerrillas around his prison started up and stood respectfully aside; several, who lingered were knocked over by the hurrying hoofs of the horsemen. The officer rode close up to the hut, and, pulling his horse almost on to his haunches, he leaped to the ground. With a quick and angry command to the guard at the door the bolt was drawn back.

The American, entirely naked, was standing in the middle of the room. Advancing, and speaking in English, the officer said:

"Who are you, and where do you come from?"

"I am an American traveler from the State of Massachusetts," was the reply.

"Massachusetts!" said the other; "that is near Connecticut. I went to school in that State years ago. I like Americans. Yesterday I heard, in this city, that some rascally devils had captured an American and were going to torture him at the fair to-day. It is fortunate for you that I have come."

Then taking off his coat he insisted on the American wearing it, and, in response to his call, other garments were soon obtained.

"Now," said the officer, "take this horse and come to my quarters."

Then, turning around, he shouted out, in Spanish, to the chief of the guerrillas:

"Francisco, if I hear of another prank like this, I shall send my orderly to blow out your brains."

At the officer's quarters, in the city, our countryman received every possible attention, and as soon as he was rested and refreshed he was furnished with horses and money and escorted safely to Vera Cruz.

The Actor and the Cobbler.

One Sidney Beauchampe, in former years a stock actor at the old Federal-street Theater, Boston, was an insufferable prig, and as impudent as he was boorish—that is, to those who were smaller than he was. Moreover, he was an inordinarily self-sufficient man; grandiloquent and bombastic; and fond of ventilating the basso profundo of his lungs when he had an opportunity.

Little Mike Keegan kept a cobbler's stall only a few steps from the pit door, on Theater alley, in those same days. Mike was a dear lover of the drama, and a critic in his way; and as an imitator of actors, both in voice and manner, he was a marvel.

Well—Mr. Beauchampe had owed Mike quite a little bill for more than a year—he had his cobbling done, promising to pay the whole when this last job should be completed—had had so much of it done, and had broken so many promises—that Mike at length declared that he would not do another job for him without pay. The season was at an end, and the actors were planning for their vacation, when, one day, Beauchampe went into the cobbler's humble stall to get the boots—the Wellingtons—he had left there to be tapped. Were they done?

Yes—they were done.

Then he would like to take them, and he would hand in the pay as soon as he had settled with old Fenno.

"All right," said Mike; "when you have settled wid Fenno, thin you kin settle wid me; and thin you kin have yer boots!"

The actor was wroth. He wanted the boots then.

But the cobbler was firm.

Two or three other actors had come in with Beauchampe, and by this time half a dozen more had come in from old Mother Dunlap's snuff store. The bootless Thespian was now in a rage. He dared not put his hand on the withy little cobbler; but he spread himself for a terrible verbal castigation.

"Vile worm!" he shouted, with highly dramatic gesture, "how darest you impose upon my forbearance? Out upon thee for a false-hearted knave! Oh! thou imp of darkness! thou blot upon the page of humanity!—if thou shalt dare to cast thy dirty slang at me, I'll—I'll—"

Without waiting for the outwinded actor to take breath and finish the sentence, Mike threw himself into position, as was his wont when imitating old Booth in Richard, and opened his battery. His brogue disappeared, as if by magic; and his voice, following, and in contrast with, Beauchampe's, was as the notes of a silver bugle following upon the belching of a tin fish-horn:

"Ha! Slave! Wouldst thou hurl thy 'busive rigmarole at me? Who art thou? What! Aye—what—save the creeping, sneaking thing that would cheat all honest men, and rob the very dead. What seekest thou within mine humble sanctuary? Boots? Now, by the blood-red sun that sets beyond the misty lea, I swear: Thou shalt have thy boots when certain moneys thou hast paid which ofttimes thou hast promised with solemn oath of binding. Aye—fetch me that thou owest and I will return thy boots. Until thou shalt do that, vile slave, avaunt! Get thee gone! I spit upon thee, and spurn thee! An' thou wilt have spouting? By the mass! I'll spout with thee until the crack of doom!

"How's that, Misther Bosham?"

The effect was tremendous. For a time it seemed as though the roof would be lifted. People from the neighboring shops—men, women, and children—came crowding about the door to see what was the matter; and in the midst of the wild acclaim poor Beauchampe crept away, leaving his boots until he could get the money to pay for them.—New York Ledger.

An Item for Young Girls.

There is a multitude of young girls in the country and small towns who are anxious to enter what, they think, the paradise of New York life and suppose they will be all right if they can manage to secure a place there as copyist or book-keeper. To such, Shirley Dare addresses these wise words 'Do they know what copying and book-keeping means in town? They fancy a book-keeper is a young person in tasteful dress, wearing lawn cuffs, and having early hours with easy work on a salary of perhaps $900 or $1,500 a year. The average pay of good women book-keepers in New York is $8 a week, and not over $12 for the best, unless by favor, which implies no improvement to a girl's reputation. A book-keeper can board for $4 a week, her washing cost 50 cents, and car fare from 50 to 70 cents more, and she works in a dimly lighted office, with gas burning half the time over her page, till the bloom dies from her cheek and from her spirits."

These are cute fellows, those New York sharpers. One of them advertised that he could cure a turn-up nose, and would send directions to all who would forward a dollar. A lady sent this amount, and was told in reply to employ a blacksmith to hit her nose on the end with a sledge hammer.

Pins and Their Folk Lore.

Although most of us, in daily life, know the intrinsic value of a pin—which in a variety of ways is at all times in request, and often a more than welcome friend when an accident, it may be, of some kind, or faulty workmanship, has necessitated its assistance in temporarily mending our clothes—yet, nevertheless, few people would have imagined that, under certain conditions, it is regarded as ominous as salt-spilling, the breaking of a looking-glass, or the howling of a dog, not to mention that host of common superstitions which are current among us. Thus, for example, in some localities it is said that on seeing a pin one should always pick it up for the sake of good luck, as, by omitting to do so, misfortune will assuredly soon overtake those who are heedless of this admonition. The following rhyme, embodying this fanciful notion, is still in use:

See a pin and pick it up,
All the day you'll have good luck;
See a pin and let it lie,
All the day you'll have to cry.

Among the magical properties of pins we may mention their supposed efficacy in the cure of certain diseases. Thus, in Leicestershire, in the case of warts, the patient is taken to an ash tree, where a pin is first stuck into the bark, and withdrawn; a wart is transfixed with it till he feels pain, and then the pin is again pushed into the tree. Every wart thus treated is said to die away gradually, until it entirely disappears. A few years ago we are told that some trees might be seen thickly studded over with pins, each the index of a cured wart. In connection with this superstition there is a well-known couplet:

Ashen tree, ashen tree,
Pray buy these warts of me.

In place of a pin, a nail driven into an oak is reported to cure toothache. A Gloucestershire remedy consists in rubbing the warts with a snail, after it has been pierced with a pin as many times as there are warts. As the snail by degrees withers away, so it is believed that the wart impregnated with its matter will do the same. It has been pointed out that most of the charms of this kind are of the nature of a sacrifice, the warts being transferred to a substitute.

One of the most popular species of enchantment to which pins have been applied is their supposed influence in counteracting the ill effects of witchcraft. An interesting case of this kind occurred within the last few years in Sussex. A lady observed upon a cottage hearth a quart bottle filled with pins, and on, inquiring why they were put there, was requested not to touch the bottle, as it was red hot, and because, if she did so, she would spoil the charm. "What charm?" she asked, in some surprise. "Why, ma'am," replied the woman, "it has pleased God to afflict my daughter here with falling fits, and the doctors did her no good; so I was recommended to go to a wise woman residing near Guilford, and she said if she was well paid for it she could tell me what ailed the girl, and what would cure her. So I said I was agreeable, and she told me that people afflicted with falling fits were bewitched, and that I must get as many pins as would fill a quart bottle, and put them into it, and let it stand close to the fire, upon the hearth, until the pins were red-hot. As soon as this took place, they would prick the heart of the witch who had brought this affliction on my poor girl, and then she would be glad enough to remove it." A medical practitioner of the same neighborhood, in illustration of this superstition, narrates that when a house in Pulborough was undergoing thorough repair a bottle containing upward of 200 pins was found beneath the hearth-stone of one of the rooms, every pin being bent, and some of them nearly in a curve. This mode of enchantment appears to have been of common occurrence, and the workmen, who were engaged in doing up the house in question, affirmed they often made similar discoveries in repairing houses. Another curious case of counteracting witchcraft by "pin-sticking" occurred at a recent period in the parish of Honiton Clyst. A landlord having lost one of his tenants, certain repairs and improvements were found necessary to prepare for the next. In carrying out the work a chimney had to be explored, when in the course of the operation there was found carefully secreted a pig's heart, stuck all over with thorn prickles. This is supposed to have been done by the direction of some "wise" or "cunning" person, as a means of taking revenge on the witch to whose incantations the party considered some mischief due, in the belief that the heart of the ill-wisher would be pierced in like manner, until it finally became as pulseless as that of the pig.—Chambers' Journal.

A Doubtful Apology.

Not many years ago, in the village of Eatonton, Ga., a man made his appearance and stopped at the tavern. He was possessed of a remarkable nose, one which almost monopolized his entire face—red, Roman, enormous. So great a show was it, that it attracted universal attention. The glances cast at it, and the remarks made about it, had rendered its owner somewhat sensitive upon the subject. A half-grown negro boy was summoned by the proprietor to carry his baggage to his room. Cuffee was much taken with the nose. As he came out of the room, unable to contain himself longer, he exclaimed:

"Golly, what a nose!"

Our traveler overheard him, and went to his master with a demand for punishment.

Cuffee was called up, and, at the suggestion of some bystanders, was let off on condition that he would apologize to the offended gentleman. This he readily agreed to do. Walking to the room where our traveler was, and touching his hat and humbly bowing, he said:

"Massa, I was talkin' nonsense. You ain't got no nose!"

Anecdote of Bryant.

Mr. Bryant was peculiarly considerate of the feelings of others. An associate editor relates the following incident:

Mr. Bryant, who was reading a review of a little book of wretched verse, said to me: "I wish you would deal very gently with poets, especially with the weaker ones." Later, I had a bad case of poetic idiocy to deal with, and, as I was debating the matter in my mind, Mr. Bryant happened to come into my room. I said to him that I was embarrassed by his injunction to deal gently with poets, and pointed out to him the utter impossibility of finding anything to praise or lightly to condemn in the book before me. After I had read some portions of it to him, he answered: "No, you can't praise it, but"—turning the volume in his hand, and inspecting it—"you might say that the binding is securely put on, and that—well, the binder has planed the edges pretty smooth."

Familiar Quotations.

The expression "a dim religious light" may be found in Milton's "Penseroso," and the commonly-repeated saw that "absence makes the heart grow fonder" is to be discovered in T. H. Bayley's song, "Isle of Beauty." Colley Cibber, as almost every one is aware, took it into his head that he could greatly improve upon Shakspeare's tragedy "King Richard III.;" and, in pursuance of this idea, he made various additions to the play, many of which have, curiously enough, entered, as it were, into the language. Among these we may notice, "So much for Buckingham;" "Richard's himself again," and "My soul's in arms and eager for the fray;" but, in spite of them, Mr. Cibber's tinkering, though gratefully adopted by more than one great actor, has now fallen into well-merited disrepute. In criticising Lord Beaconsfield's speeches, hostile papers are fond of making effective reference to "apt alliteration's artful aid," but they seldom, if indeed ever, allow Churchill, the satirist, any credit for the phrase. Mr. O'Connor, too, if we remember rightly, has written of the gay Conservative statesman as "the gay Lothario of politics." How many persons, we wonder, recollect that the original "gay Lothario" is one of the characters in Rowe's tragedy, "The Penitent?" Then, again, the phrase "comparisons are odious" is almost invariably written without quotation marks. It occurs in Burton's "Anatomy of Melancholy," and also in Herbert's "Jacula Prudentum," and Shakspeare, in "Much Ado About Nothing," says "comparisons are odorous." A literary journal of some standing recently made itself a laughing stock by remarking that this last was not classical English—a quite sufficient proof that even he whom Ben Jonson called "sweet swan of Avon" is not as well known as he ought to be. The origin of the term "the midnight oil" is hard to trace, but it occurs in Quarles, in Shenstone and in Gay, and it was probably invented by the first. "Devil take the hindermost" opens up another difficult problem; but perhaps Beaumont and Fletcher may claim the phrase, which was used in later days by Butler, Prior, Pope, Burns and half a dozen more. "Diamond cut diamond" is traceable to Ford's "Lover's Melancholy," where it may be found in the form "diamonds cut diamonds," and the expression, "neither fish nor flesh nor good red herring" seems to belong to Sir H. Sheers. "Turn over a new leaf" says Middleton, in "Anything for a Quiet Life," and it was Mrs. Malaprop, in Sheridan's "The Rivals," who first owned "the soft impeachment." Oliver Goldsmith, in "The Good-natured Man," wrote "measures, not men, have always been my mark;" and Burke, doubtless alluding to the popularity of the phrase in his day, spoke of "the cant of 'not men, but measures.'" To Milton we owe the saying that

Peace hath her victories
No less renowned than war;

and it was Goldsmith again who, in "She Stoops to Conquer," introduced us to "the very pink of perfection."—London Queen.

Alligators in Brazil.

Enormous numbers of alligators have, it appears, been observed frisking along the lower courses and in the marginal swamps and lakes of the Amazon, and even as cork trees in the beneficent economy of nature, grow up, expand, and develop a bulky epidermis or bark, for the preordained purpose of stopping bottles, so, no doubt, are these amiable reptiles accredited with a mission of utility to the manufacturers of port-monnaies, card-cases, shooting-boots, and other articles fabricated of the now fashionable alligator skin. A Brazilian paper shrewdly draws the attention of wealthy and unoccupied Englishmen to this remarkable increase in the ground-game of a charmingly salubrious, though somewhat sultry district, an industrial enterprise of great profit might, it is suggested, be combined with excellent sport, and as the idea is fast-spreading in England that the land can not much longer support both the farmers and the rabbits, what could be better than a migration of sportsmen to the equatorial home of the noble alligator, whose hide is a natural target for rifle practice, and, if not too much riddled by bullets, is in brisk commercial demand, and rules high in the quotations of the leather market? Where the alligator frisks and frolics, there the stealthy turtle prowls, and, despite his furtive habits, falls an easier prey to the wilier and more intelligent hunter. A daring and agile Alderman, with a brace of rifles, good legs and lungs, a salamandarine constitution, and no objection to mosquitoes, might stalk down six or eight alligators before breakfast, and saunter home with a middling-sized turtle under each arm. Winter is coming, the Nile is getting overdone by tourists, and the midsummer of an infinitesimal latitude never fades from the teeming mud and fragrant, health-breathing slime of the stately Amazon. Let enterprising Englishmen, then, accept this inviting hint of the Brazilian journal, and join the next excursion to the Amazonian swamps.—London Telegraph.

Bobby and the Plaster.

Bobby Blinkers was a Nevada boy, and didn't want to go to school. He did not put in his appearance at breakfast, and about 9 o'clock his mother went up to see what was the matter. Bob was writhing about the bed from an improvised stomach-ache. "All right," said the old lady. "I'll apply a mustard plaster," and in a few minutes a hot mustard plaster containing two square feet of motive power was spread upon the boy's abdomen. "Mother, how long must this thing stay on?" "I guess I'll be able to take it off about 4 this afternoon, and then if I can get an emetic to work, it'll be all right. Lie still, my boy, I'll bring you through." Then Bob rose up immediately and started for school, and the plaster was the cause of his being an hour late.

PITH AND POINT.

A FINISHED performer—The dead actor.

BEAR and for bear—Bruin and his dinner.

A HOLLOW cost—The cost of a penny whistle.

COLD schnapps are appreciated by Dutchmen.

FIREMEN, as well as other people, like to talk of their old flames.

"I WOULD like to die to-night," pens a poet, for once coming into sympathy with the people.

ACTORS have to face the music—that is, the music of the orchestra—and some of it is very bad.

"WELL, wife, you can't say I ever contracted bad habits." "No, sir; you generally expanded them."

"WHAT I wants ter know," said an Arkansas school-board official, "is how a river's mouf is gwine ter be bigger dan its head."

A MAN who is as true as steel, possessing an iron will, some gold and a fair proportion of brass, should be able to endure the hardware of this world.

"WHY don't England sit down on Ireland?" asks an exchange. For the same reason a man with a boil don't care to sit down on it too carelessly.—Galveston News.

A PHILADELPHIA quack informs the public that he is not exclusive: "If a patient wants it gentle and mild I'm a homeopath, and when anybody wants thunder and lightning I'm an allopath."

GREEDY grocer (to farmer's wife who is supplying him with butter)—"This pun' o' butter is ower licht, gudewife." Gudewife—"Blame yersel', then; I weighed it wi' the pun' o' sugar I gat frae ye yestreen."

"WHAT have you been drinking or eating?" exclaimed his wife, as he returned late at night. "Liquor-ish!" he responded, and then he winked at himself in the dark, and breathed thin till she got asleep.

"WHY don't you put the tooth-picks on the table?" asked a guest at a Galveston hotel, after he had finished his dinner. "Because, after you used one yesterday, you didn't put it back in the saucer," responded the new waiter.—Galveston News.

THE late Rev. Dr. Symington, not feeling well one Sunday morning, said to his beadle who was a "character:" "Man Robert, I wish you would preach for me to-day." "I canna do that," promptly replied Robert; "but I often pray for you."

A CLEVELAND boy was asked by his teacher if he did not "want to be an angel and with the angels stand." Said the boy; "I would rather stand here until after Christmas, and see if Santa Claus does not bring me a top and a new sled."

A BRIGHT little girl was urging her mother to go up stairs and hear her say her prayers before retiring. Her mother, not finding it convenient, told her that Jesus could hear it just as well. "But, mother," replied the little doubter, "Jesus can't turn off the gas."

A CUTE little 5-year-old, whose parents were connected with the Presbyterian church, said: "Mamma, was Christ a Jew?" "Yes, dear," replied the mother. "Well, that's strange, now, isn't it, mamma, when his father, God, was a Presbyterian?"

"MAN alive," exclaimed the Judge, in a heated discussion of a tangled theological point with his friend, "I tell you, you are a free agent. You do not have to obey any one." "Yes," said Mr. Goodman, meekly, "but I do though." "Who?" shouted the Judge. "Who?" "My wife, her two sisters, and the baby," howled the good man, meekly triumphant.

HERE is a tolerably good one from an unknown source: A Sunday School Superintendent who was in the habit of using the blackboard after the most approved methods, one day found the following on his blackboard. The caligraphy will have to be imagined: PLEES MR. SupErintendent DON'T FiRe STories evrY SUNDY AT Us boys wiTH AN AWFUL Exampul oF A Bad BoY in eAch oF ThEM.

GIV US A REST.
GIV IT TO THE [illegible]
GO SLOW.

THE Galveston lawyers have got a good laugh on a brother attorney, who was defending a colored kleptomaniac on the plea of insanity. The attorney for the defendant made an eloquent speech on the irresponsible condition of his client's mind to the jury, and took his seat. His idiotic client reached over, touched his advocate's arm, and said, emphatically, "You is de biggest fool on Galveston island." The opposing attorney instantly remarked, "There, I told you he had lucid intervals."

What Is a Cold Bath?

A cold bath is not necessarily a bath in water of the temperature of the atmosphere. A bath is truly and really cold when it produces a certain physiological effect—a slight momentary shock followed by pleasant and lasting reaction. The effects are for the majority of people most pleasantly obtained by bathing in water about 35 deg. to 40 deg. below the temperature of the body—the usual temperature of unheated water in June and July. Bearing this in mind we can enjoy our physiological "cold" bath as safely and pleasantly at Christmas as at midsummer, and there is no necessity for the most timid or weakly to discontinue his morning tub because the summer weather is over. When the water sinks below a temperature of 60 deg., let it be heated to that point and then used, and we shall still have our "cold" bath, though of heated water. The daily stimulant effect of such a bath is so beneficial to the great majority of persons and is of such marked service in maintaining health, that it is very important to have it widely known that a cold bath may be taken all the year round, provided cold is not mistaken to mean "at the temperature of the outer air." To heat our bath during the winter months is too often thought to be unmanly, while in reality it is truly scientific, and to bathe in unheated water all the year round, whatever the temperature that water may be, is to prove one's self an ignorant slave of outward circumstances.—Lancet.

CONSULT the lips for opinions, the conduct for convictions.

POPULAR SCIENCE.

It is proposed by Dr. Oppermann to construct roads in this way: First, a bed six to eight inches thick of coarse beton with hydraulic mortar, is laid down, and then on the top of this bed a thinner layer of smaller beton, cemented with a mixture of lime and one-half part of Portland cement or Boulogne cement, and one-half part of slag.

Friction tapers are made in England from a mixture of one ounce saltpetre, one-half ounce powdered orris root, one-eighth ounce minium, and one ounce phosphorus; on the latter being dissolved one or two ounces of castor oil are added, the quantity varyng according to the resultant tenacity or flexibility required.

The Consolidated railroad is building at its shops in New Haven, Ct., a new palace car, in which there is a device for keeping out the smoke, dust, and cinders that come in at an open window. It consists of an extra outer window, shaped somewhat like a curved bay window, in which the glass is only half the width of the window, and slides up and down. When pushed to the front side it presents a curved surface against which the cinders and smoke strike and are thrown outward, while air can enter from the open half.

The effects of professions and trades on mortality are great, the term of life varying from 65 years 11 months for clergymen to 40 years 10 months for lithographers and copper engravers. In England, according to the census-office statistics, the duration of life has been found most defective among the steel-workers, polishers, and grinders; and next to these the life of the collier—that fearless delver in the bowels of the earth—is least secure, owing greatly, no doubt, to the occurrence of accidents in the mines.

In a memoir published at Christiana Herr Sophus Tromboldt considers that it may be accepted as certain that the aurora borealis is a local phenomenon, circumscribed by very narrow limits, and occurring not far from the surface of the earth. The light, he finds from a careful comparison of a large number of observations, is generally white, though sometimes red or green; but further north than Bergen the aurora often presents spectral colors. He believes, also, that there is now evidence enough to accept the statement that auroral displays are sometimes attended with sound. Some late inventions ought to be able to set this last alleged fact beyond dispute.

Guilty of Wrong.

Some people have a fashion of confusing excellent remedies with the large mass of "patent medicines," and in this they are guilty of a wrong. There are some advertised remedies fully worth all that is asked for them, and one at least we know of—Hop Bitters. The writer has had occasion to use the Bitters in just such a climate as we have most of the year in Bay City, and has always found them to be first class and reliable, doing all that is claimed for them.—Tribune.

Light on Mooted Questions of the War.

I had long desired to know the exact truth from the fountain of Southern knowledge on the subject, in regard to several important events of the war, and was agreeably surprised at the freedom with which Mr. Davis met my inquiries. Why Beauregard was ordered to fire upon Anderson in Fort Sumter after his surrender was inevitable at a specified time without assaulting the flag, has never been entirely understood. It was the act of madness, as it made division in the North impossible, and I have always believed that the real cause of the order to open fire was to unify the South and end the threatening movements for reunion on terms. Mr. Davis answered promptly and emphatically that the order was given solely because faith had been broken by the Lincoln administration in attempting to reinforce Anderson, and that the South needed no war to solidify its people. I think he errs in underestimating the probable power of the movement in the South for reconstruction before the war, but it is evident that in deciding to issue the fatal order for the assault upon Sumter, he believed the Confederacy invincible, and defiantly resented what he regarded as a violation of the pledge of the Federal Government. That act practically consolidated the North, and thenceforth the Confederacy was a fearfully hopeless venture. On another important point he answered with the same freedom. When asked whether the aggressive movement of Lee that culminated at Gettysburg was adopted as purely military strategy or the offspring of political necessity inside the Confederacy, he answered that it was the wisest of both military and political strategy, but that it was not dictated at all by political considerations. He said that the wisdom of the military movement was proven in the recall of Meade from Virginia and the transfer of both armies to Northern soil; but, he soberly added, the battle was a misfortune. The chances were equal, as he regarded it, for military success, and that would have deranged the whole plan of the Government and impaired its resources for the campaign of that year. As a military movement, Mr. Davis says, the Gettysburg campaign had the entire approval of Gen. Lee, and there were no political divisions in the South to dictate any departure from the wisest military laws. I desired, also, to know whether, at the time of the Hampton Roads conference between Lincoln, Seward, Stephens and others, Mr. Davis had received any intimation from any credible source that Mr. Lincoln would consent to the payment of $400,000,000 as compensation for slaves if the South would accept emancipation and return to the Union. He answered that he had no such intimation from any source, but that if such proposition had been made he could not have entertained it as the Executive of the Confederacy. He said that he was the sworn Executive of a government founded on the rights of the States; that slavery was distinctly declared to be a State institution, and that such an issue could have been decided only by the independent assent of each State. Some of them, he added, would have accepted such terms at that time, but others would have declined it, and peace was, therefore, impossible on that basis.—Col. Alex. K. McClure.

Much valuable time is saved by promptly treating Cold at its first appearance. Nothing takes the place of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup for Coughs, Colds, Irritation of Throat, etc. Price 25 cents.

THE FAMILY PHYSICIAN.

Chilblains.—For the cure of a chilblain once formed, hundreds of remedies are from time to time recommended. A mixture of the compound tincture of iodine and liquor ammonia, equal parts, painted over the inflamed parts twice a day, is probably as good as any. Glycerine or lime liniment eases the itching, and some may find relief from bathing the chilblain in a strong solution of alum; an ounce of the powder dissolved in a pint of soft water.

Care of Infants.—The first two years of life is the period of infancy; and it is also the period of greatest mortality. The things most essential to the infant are pure air, appropriate and seasonable clothing and proper food. Hence, the room occupied by the infant should be well ventilated and kept at an equable temperature. Its bed should be an ordinary hair mattress, with cotton sheets and woolen blankets. Its clothing should be carefully adapted to the changing seasons, to protect it from extremes of heat and cold. It should wear a soft flannel wrapper next the skin, thin in summer, heavier in winter. If, during infancy, a flannel band is also worn around the middle of the body to protect the bowels, and woolen stockings long enough to cover the knees, they will secure almost entire exemption from attacks of colic and diarrhea.

Chapped Hands.—As both a precaution and cure for chapped hands we have used the following with benefit: Wash the hands, and the face also if it is inclined to chap, with borax water, and afterward rub with an ointment made by melting mutton tallow (or suet), and then gradually adding an equal quantity of glycerine, stirring the two together until cool. For the hands, this mixture can be best applied at night, using it freely, and warming it in by the fire, after which an old pair of gloves can be put on to keep the bedclothes from being soiled, and also make the skin of the hands softer. An excellent glycerine ointment for chapped hands is made by melting with a gentle heat, two ounces of sweet oil of almonds, half an ounce of spermaceti, and one drachm of white wax. When melted, remove from the stove, and add gradually one ounce of glycerine, and stir until the mixture is cold. The ointment can be scented with any perfume to suit the fancy. Keep in wide-necked bottles.

Colds.—A cold in the head, says Hall's Journal of Health, can usually be cured in a few hours, if, as soon as discovered the person will sniff the fumes of amonia, or spirits of camphor every few minutes as strong as they can be borne. When a severe cold attacks the throat and lungs, there is no safety in neglecting it for an hour, for there is more or less inflammation of the lungs, which interferes with their action, rendering them liable at any moment to take on serious, and, possibly, uncontrollable disease. Go home and remain there. In the evening take a warm foot bath, and at bed time take three or four liver pills. These will stimulate the liver to healthy action, and promptly relieve the lung trouble; but it renders the system sensitive to renewed attacks, and, therefore, the greatest care should be observed for several days not to take fresh colds. Ordinarily, no other treatment is necessary; but, should the cough continue, have your druggist make the following mixture, and take one or two teaspoonfuls every hour till cured: Glycerine, four ounces; whisky, four ounces; morphine, one grain. Sore throat can be promptly relieved by applying a mustard plaster, or "mustard leaves," on the front of the neck, over the sore spot. In addition the throat and mouth may be frequently gargled with the following mixture: A teaspoonful of salt, a pinch of red pepper, and a table-spoonful of vinegar. If found too strong, add a little water. A portion of the gargle may be swallowed, or sipped, little at a time.

A Hammock's Wild Way.

[From the Cleveland (Ohio) Herald.]

An Illinois exchange feels called to thus deliver itself: "His hammock swung loose at the sport of the wind," and tumbled the Hon. J. S. Irwin on his head, and, but for the application of St. Jacobs Oil, he might have gone "where the woodbine twineth." Even so, dear Beacon, as many others have gone, who failing to use the Great German Remedy in time, for their rheumatism and other dangerous diseases, "have paid the debt of Nature." Rub is our motto.

A Laplander's Home.

In a large, but rather low room, with walls and roof of rough-hewn planks, and with beams stretching from wall to wall in every direction, were assembled at least twenty-five persons of all ages and both sexes. Most of them had taken off their skin blouses and hung them on the rafters near the huge wood fire, fit to roast an ox at. The half-stewed garments and the steam from the dirty persons of those in front of the fire caused a most unsavory odor, which prompted us to make our stay as short as possible. All around the apartment, except near the door, were ranged the sleeping-shelves, the major part of which were already occupied—men, women and children all indiscriminately mingled together, not distinguishable to the unpractised eye the one from the other, and appearing like nothing else than mere animated bundles of fur. From the group congregated around the fire no cheerful laugh, no buzz of conversation, no noisy merriment emanated—all were silent and still; perhaps they did not wish to disturb the sleepers; but, judging from their solemn and lugubrious countenances, their gloominess seemed but too natural and very far from assumed or constrained. Well, in the joyless and monotonous life these poor people lead, it is not surprising that all innate merriment about them is soon stilled.

A Baseless Precaution.

Know that the woman was extremely sensitive, of a highly-nervous temperament, and painfully anxious in the matter of pleasing and accommodating her guests. Know this, and then imagine her feelings on the occasion which transpired as follows:

She had arranged for an evening party, and among the guests whom she had invited was a middle-aged gentleman, of high social standing and wealthy, who had the misfortune to have a nose so strangely malformed as to be scarcely perceptible; a simple protuberance in place of the nasal organ—and that was all.

Now our good lady friend chanced to have a little 3-year old daughter, who was utterly irrepressible in her eager pursuit of knowledge; and, fearing that the little one might make some remark upon, or ask some question about, that gentleman's facial defect, she took her upon her knee, before the company arrived, and said to her:

"Now look here, my little pet: Mr. S—— will be here this evening, and I want you to promise me that you will not say anything about his nose—that you will neither ask any question nor make any remark."

The child promised, and then went away to help the cook sample the sweetmeats.

Evening came, and with it came Mr. S——. Naturally enough Miss Tot gave him at once a severe scrutiny. She made a critical study of his face; and, when she had apparently satisfied herself, she sought her mother.

"Mamma!"—loud enough for all in the room to hear—"hop 'oo tell me not to ask 'oo anysing about Mr. S——'s nose for? He hasn't dot any!"

To Rid a Loft of Rats.

Take a pint of common tar, half an ounce of vitriol, and a good handful of common salt; mix them all well together in any old deep pan. Get some pieces of paper, and put some of the above mixture very thick on the paper, and place enough of this into the holes sufficient to stop them, and then let the bricklayer make good after you, and if you should find any of the holes opened again, it is quite certain you had not put in a sufficient quantity.

For smoking rats out when they get behind the wainscot: Find out a small hole or crack, then take a handful of common salt, and put it in at the hole or crack, and pour upon the salt a spoonful or two of oil of vitriol, and this will make such a fumigation or smoke that they cannot bear it. Then stop the hole or crevice again that the smoke may not come out. Do this in two or three places as near where you hear they are as you can, and it will cause them to forsake those places. This method is very safe, as no damage can possibly ensue to the wainscot from the smoke.—Vermin Catcher, 1768.

WHAT WE HATE.

[From the St. Paul Pioneer-Press.]

We hate growling, no matter the source or cause, and recommend herewith the remedy: Use St. Jacobs Oil and laugh at pain. It will do the work every time.

What a Coroner's Jury Is Composed of.

Confederate Burker arose to a question of privilege in the club. He was working in the eastern part of the city with a man who was fatally injured. He saw the whole transaction and knew all the particulars, and yet when the Coroner's jury was made up he was ignored because of his color. He felt slighted and indignant, and he hoped the club would not overlook the insult.

"Brudder Burker, you didn't lose nothin'," replied the President. "It was a compliment to yer intelligence to ignore you. De average Coroner's jury am composed of two loafers, three old bums and a fule, and dey would have insisted dat you war de fule. You haven't got any case, sah, an' de meetin' will now be declared split up."—New York Mercury.

A Physician of Great Prominence

in Thirty-sixth street, New York city, was unable to even help Mr. Wm. McKee, of Paterson, N. J., suffering the agonies always attendant upon diseased kidneys. As an honest man and practitioner he prescribed and cured him by using one bottle of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure.

The Mission of the Press.

A tramp stopped in front of a house and asked a little boy who lived inside, and was told that it was the residence of a prominent journalist. The would-be mendicant was touched. He reverentially took off his hat, murmuring: "We ought to help one another out," shoved a car-ticket under the door, and passed on.—Galveston News.

The Epizootic

Has again made its appearance in various parts of the country. As prevention is better than cure, the attention of owners of stock is called to UNCLE SAM'S CONDITION POWDERS. These celebrated powders stand unrivaled for their excellency as a preventive from disease. By mixing with the feed they will keep the animal in the best general health, toning up the system and keeping the digestive organs and blood in a healthy condition.

The Powders are warranted to give perfect satisfaction. Prepared by the Emmert Proprietary Co., Chicago, Ill. Put up in 25 and 50-cent packages, and sold by all druggists.

Barb-Wire Lawsuits.

The barb-wire lawsuits, which have been pending in the United States Courts for the past five years, have been decided, and the broad claims of the Hunt, Kelly and Glidden patents fully sustained. These suits involve millions of dollars, and render all persons making, selling or using barb wire not made under these patents liable for damages. It is important for farmers and dealers to know that the Kelly Steel Barb Wire, made by the Thorn Wire Hedge Company, of Chicago, is made under the patents, and all those who have used it can be happy, as none can molest or make them afraid.

Vegetine in Powder Form is sold by all druggists and general stores. If you cannot buy it of them, inclose 50 cents in postage stamps for one package, or $1 for two packages, and I will send it by return mail. H. R. Stevens, Boston, Mass.

Dr. C. E. Shoemaker, of Reading, Pa., is the only aural surgeon in the United States who devotes all his time to the treatment of deafness and diseases of the ear and catarrh; especially running ear. Nearly twenty years' experience. Thousands testify to his skill. Consult him by mail or otherwise. Pamphlet free.

For a pamphlet on Electric Treatment of chronic diseases with Electricity, which will be sent free, address the McIntosh Electric Belt and Battery Co., 192 & 194 Jackson St., Chicago, Ill.

Rosenthal Bros., Chicago, make the diamond boots and shoes, the best made. Try them.

Dr. BULL'S
COUGH
SYRUP

No More Hard Times.

If you will stop spending so much on fine clothes, rich food and style, buy good, healthy food, cheaper and better clothing; get more real and substantial things of life every way, and especially stop the foolish habit of employing expensive, quack doctors or using so much of the vile humbug medicine that does you only harm, but put your trust in that simple, pure remedy, Hop Bitters; that cures always at a trifling cost, and you will see good times and have good health.—Chronicle.

Prayers That Are Answered.

An old darkey who was asked if, in his experience, prayer was ever answered, replied: "Well, sah, some pra'rs is ansud and some isn't—'pends on wa't you axes fo'; just arter de wah, we'en it was mighty hard scratchin' fo' de culled breddren, I 'bserved dat we'enebber I pway de Lo'd to sen' one o' Marse Payton's fat turkeys fo' de ole man, dare was no notice took ob de partition; but we'en I pway dat he send de old man fo' de turkey, de matter was tended to befo' sun up nex' mornin', dead sartin."

Vegetine
WILL CURE RHEUMATISM

MR. ALBERT CROOKER, the well-known druggist and apothecary of Springvale, Me., always advises every one troubled with rheumatism to try VEGETINE.

Read His Statement:

Springvale, Me., Oct. 12, 1876.

Mr. H. R. Stevens:

Dear Sir—Fifteen years ago last fall I was taken sick with rheumatism, was unable to move until the next April. From that time until three years ago this fall I suffered everything with rheumatism. Sometimes there would be weeks at a time that I could not step one step; these attacks were quite often. I suffered everything that a man could. Over three years ago last spring I commenced taking Vegetine, and followed it up until I had taken seven bottles; have had no rheumatism since that time. I always advise every one that is troubled with rheumatism to try Vegetine, and not suffer for years as I have done. This statement is gratuitous as far as Mr. Stevens is concerned. Yours, etc.,
ALBERT CROOKER,
Firm of A. Crooker & Co., Druggists and Apothecaries.

Vegetine.
For Kidney Complaint and Nervous Debility.

Islesboro, Me., Dec. 28, 1877.

Mr. Stevens:

Dear Sir—I had had a cough for eighteen years, when I commenced taking the Vegetine. I was very low; my system was debilitated by disease. I had the Kidney Complaint, and was very nervous—cough bad, lungs sore. When I had taken one bottle I found it was helping me; it has helped my cough, and it strengthens me. I am now able to do my work. Never have found anything like the Vegetine. I know it is everything it is recommended to be.
MRS. A. J. PENDLETON.

"Vegetine," says a Boston physician, "has no equal as a blood purifier. Hearing of its many wonderful cures, after all other remedies have failed, I visited the laboratory and convinced myself of its genuine merit. It is prepared from barks, roots and herbs, each of which is highly effective, and they are compounded in such a manner as to produce astonishing results."

Vegetine
PREPARED BY
H. R. STEVENS, Boston, Mass.

HOSTETTER'S
CELEBRATED

STOMACH
BITTERS

Sleep, Appetite and Strength

Return when Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is systematically used by a bilious dyspeptic sufferer. Moreover, since the brain sympathises closely with the stomach and its associate organs, the liver and the bowels, as their derangement is rectified by the action of the Bitters, mental despondency produced by that derangement disappears.

For sale by all Druggists and Dealers generally.

If you are a man of business, weakened by the strain of your duties avoid stimulants and use Hop Bitters.

If you are young and suffering from any indiscretion or dissipation; if you are married or single, old or young, suffering from poor health or languish on a bed of sickness, rely on Hop Bitters.

Whoever you are, wherever you are, whenever you feel that your system needs cleansing, toning or stimulating, without intoxicating, take Hop Bitters.

Have you dyspepsia, kidney or urinary complaint, disease of the stomach, bowels, blood, liver or nerves? You will be cured if you use Hop Bitters.

If you are simply weak and low spirited, try it! It may save your life. It has saved hundreds.

If you are a man of letters toiling over midnight work, to restore brain nerve and waste, use Hop B.

Thousands die annually from some form of Kidney disease that might have been prevented by a timely use of Hop Bitters.

HOP BITTERS NEVER FAIL

D. I. C. is an absolute and irresistible cure for drunkenness, use of opium, tobacco, or narcotics.

Sold by druggists. Send for Circular.

HOP BITTERS MFG CO., Rochester, N. Y. & Toronto, Ont.

CONSUMPTIVES! LOOK TO Dr. M. E. Thomson, an old physician of Macon, Ga., for a sure, and call on him for examination on your way to Florida. He uses inhalents and exhalents for the air passages, as others do, but addresses medication to the substance of the lungs through the portal vein, the liver, and the heart, as no one else attempts. Remedies sent anywhere by mail. Address him.

FRAZER
AXLE GREASE.
Best in the World. Made only by the Frazer Lubricator Company, at Chicago, New York, and St. Louis. SOLD EVERYWHERE.

NATRONA BI-CARB. SODA
Is the best in the World. It is absolutely pure. It is the best for Medicinal Purposes. It is the best for Baking and all Family Uses. Sold by all Druggists and Grocers.
Penn'a Salt Manufact'ing Co., Phila.

10 CENTS a Month,
OR
One Dollar a Year.
THE CHICAGO LEDGER will be sent to any address, postage paid, at the prices named above. Send in your names. Address THE LEDGER, Chicago, Ill.

The Pleasures of Business.

No human mind is contented without occupation. No human soul is satisfied without an aim or purpose in life. The greatest success in life consists not in the mere accumulation of riches, but in being able to acquire wealth with a disposition to apply it in such a manner that it shall be a comfort and blessing to others—not in the mere giving away of money, but in putting people in a way to labor and help themselves. There is no pleasure in oppression. There is no joy in grinding and exacting gold from the poor; but there is a great deal of genuine satisfaction in being able to offer steady and honorable employment to the many willing hands that have nothing to do. One of the greatest enjoyments of the prosperous business man consists in being able to comfortably provide for the many employes in his house or manufactory. In doing this he is fulfilling his obligations to society; he becomes a useful and honored citizen; business to him is a real pleasure; he enjoys his successes, when they are fairly won, because he feels that he deserves them.

When a business man has the right kind of a purpose in life he enjoys his occupation, he feels a just and worthy pride in his prosperity, he is pleased with the respect and gratitude of those whom he directs and controls in the management of his affairs, and he feels that in benefiting himself he is conferring a favor upon others.—Criterion.

Out of Pure Politeness.

A recently-arrived Englishman, standing in front of the News office observing the crowd surge into a saloon with violent outcries, became very excited, expressing his opinion that there was going to be a "wiot, a wow, a wumpus, you know;" but was calmed down when a native told him:

"Why, you darned fool, some popular candidate has asked the boys to take a drink, and they are following him in out of pure politeness."—Galveston News.

PISO'S CURE for Consumption is also the best cough medicine.

$350 A MONTH! Agents Wanted! 75 Best-Selling Articles in the world; a sample free. JAY BRONSON, Detroit, Mich.

YOUNG MEN Learn Telegraphy! Earn $40 to $100 a month. Graduates guaranteed paying offices. Address Valentine Bros., Janesville, Wis.

$777 A YEAR and expenses to agents. Outfit Free. Address P. O. VICKERY, Augusta, Maine.

OPIUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till Cured. Dr. J. Stephens, Lebanon, Ohio.

WANTED—Agents everywhere to sell our goods by sample, to families. We give attractive presents and first-class goods to your customers; we give you good profits; we prepay all express charges; we furnish outfit free. Write for particulars.
PEOPLE'S TEA CO., Box 5025, St. Louis, Mo.

TEAS.—Choicest in the world—Importers' prices—Largest Company in America—staple article—pleases everybody—Trade continually increasing—Agents wanted everywhere—best inducements—don't waste time—send for Circular.
ROB'T WELLS, 43 Vesey st., N. Y. P. O. Box 1287.

SALESMEN WANTED $105 A Month and Expenses selling to DEALERS. SAMPLES FREE. Send 3c. STAMP to CIGARS [illegible] S. FOSTER & CO., Cincinnati, O.

Printers' Outfits.
Printers about to embark in the Newspaper or Printing Business in this State will find it to their interest to address PRINTERS' EXCHANGE, Box 2339, Chicago, Ill., before purchasing outfits.

PLAYS! PLAYS! PLAYS! PLAYS!
For Reading Clubs, for Amateur Theatricals, Temperance Plays, Drawing-Room Plays, Fairy Plays, Ethiopian Plays, Guide Books, Speakers, Pantomimes, Tableaux Lights, Magnesium Lights, Colored Fire, Burnt Cork, Theatrical Face Preparations, Jarley's Wax Works, Wigs, Beards and Moustaches at reduced prices. Costumes, Scenery, Charades. New catalogues sent free containing full description and prices.
SAMUEL FRENCH & SON, 38 E. 14th Street, New York.

TEXAS! The Southwestern Immigration Company.
It is the purpose of this Company to supply the need of a State Bureau of Immigration, and not to subserve the purposes of any individual, railway, or other corporation. No lands bought or sold. Information furnished those wishing to settle in Texas. Correspondence solicited. Address
W. W. LANG, Pres. (late Master Texas State Grange) or B. G. DUVAL, Sec. Austin, Texas.

CELLULOID
EYE-CLASSES.
Representing the choicest-selected Tortoise-Shell and Amber. The lightest, handsomest, and strongest known. Sold by Opticians and Jewelers. Made by the SPENCER OPTICAL M'F'G CO., 13 Maiden Lane, New York.

PENSIONS!
New Law. Thousands of Soldiers and heirs entitled. Pensions date back to discharge or death. Time limited. Address, with stamp,
GEORGE E. LEMON,
P. O. Drawer 325. Washington, D. C.

Iowa Farms
Over 1,000,000 Acres of Choice Farming Lands in the Near West
For sale by the Iowa R.R. Land Co.
Cedar Rapids, Iowa.
Branch Office, 92 Randolph St., Chicago, Ills.

SAPONIFIER
Is the "Original" Concentrated Lye and Reliable Family Soap Maker. Directions accompany each Can for making Hard, Soft and Toilet Soap quickly. It is full weight and strength. Ask your grocer for SAPONIFIER, and take no other.
Penn'a Salt Manufact'ng Co., Phila.

CRISTADORO'S Hair Dye is the SAFEST and BEST; it acts instantaneously, producing the most natural shades of Black or Brown; does NOT STAIN the SKIN, and is easily applied. It is a standard preparation, and a favorite on every well-appointed toilet for Lady or Gentleman. Sold by Druggists and applied by Hair-Dressers. Depot, 93 William St., New York. C. N. CRITTENTON, Agt.

AGENTS WANTED FOR THE PICTORIAL
HISTORY OF THE WORLD
Embracing full and authentic accounts of every nation of ancient and modern times, and including a history of the rise and fall of the Greek and Roman Empires, the middle ages, the crusades, the feudal system, the reformation, the discovery and settlement of the New World, etc., etc. It contains 672 fine historical engravings, and is the most complete History of the World ever published. Send for specimen pages and extra terms to Agents. Address
NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO., Chicago, Ill.

RED RIVER VALLEY
2,000,000 Acres
Wheat Lands
best in the World, for sale by the
St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba R.R. CO.
Three dollars per acre allowed the settler for breaking and cultivation. For particulars apply to
D. A. McKINLAY,
Land Commissioner, St. Paul, Minn.

St. Jacobs Oil
THE GREAT GERMAN REMEDY FOR RHEUMATISM, NEURALGIA, SCIATICA, LUMBAGO, BACKACHE, GOUT, SORENESS OF THE CHEST, SORE THROAT, QUINSY, SWELLINGS AND SPRAINS, FROSTED FEET AND EARS, BURNS AND SCALDS, General Bodily Pains, TOOTH, EAR AND HEADACHE, AND ALL OTHER PAINS AND ACHES.
No Preparation on earth equals St. Jacobs Oil as a SAFE, SURE, SIMPLE and CHEAP External Remedy. A trial entails but the comparatively trifling outlay of 50 Cents, and every one suffering with pain can have cheap and positive proof of its claims. DIRECTIONS IN ELEVEN LANGUAGES.
SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS AND DEALERS IN MEDICINE.
A. VOGELER & CO.
Baltimore, Md., U. S. A.

LITERARY REVOLUTION
3 CENTS each, formerly $1.00 to $1.25 each: I. Macaulay's Life of Frederick the Great. II. Carlyle's Life of Robert Burns. III. Lamartine's Life of Mary Queen of Scots. IV. Thos. Hughes' Manliness of Christ. 5 CENTS each, formerly $1.00 each: I. Arnold's Light of Asia. II. Goldsmith's Vicar of Wakefield. III. Baron Munchausen's Travels and Surprising Adventures. SIX CENTS: Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress. Illustrated catalogue sent free. AMERICAN BOOK EXCHANGE, John B. Alden, Manager, Tribune Building, New York.

"Dr. Sykes' Sure Cure"
FOR
"CATARRH"
Cures Without Fail. Ask your Druggist for it.
Price of "Sure Cure" and "Insufflator" all complete is only $1.50. Valuable book of full information, 3 cents. Name this paper and address
DR. C. R. SYKES, 169 E. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

C. GILBERT'S
STARCH

$5.00 PER DAY Made Selling Our New
PLATFORM FAMILY SCALE.
Weighs accurately up to 25 lbs. Its handsome appearance sells it at sight. Retail price, $1.50. Other Family Scales weighing 25 lbs. cost $8.00. A Regular
BOOM FOR AGENTS.
Exclusive territory given free. Terms and rapid sales surprise old Agents.
DOMESTIC SCALE CO.,
No. 128 W. Fifth St., Cincinnati, O.

For Two Generations
The good and staunch old stand-by, MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT, has done more to assuage pain, relieve suffering, and save the lives of men and beasts than all other liniments put together. Why? Because the Mustang penetrates through skin and flesh to the very bone, driving out all pain and soreness and morbid secretions, and restoring the afflicted part to sound and supple health.

KIDNEY-WORT
The Only Remedy
THAT ACTS AT THE SAME TIME ON THE LIVER,
THE BOWELS,
and the KIDNEYS.
This combined action gives it wonderful power to cure all diseases.
Why Are We Sick?
Because we allow these great organs to become clogged or torpid, and poisonous humors are therefore forced into the blood that should be expelled naturally.
KIDNEY-WORT WILL CURE
BILIOUSNESS, PILES, CONSTIPATION, KIDNEY COMPLAINTS, URINARY DISEASES, FEMALE WEAKNESSES, AND NERVOUS DISORDERS, by causing free action of these organs and restoring their power to throw off disease.
Why Suffer Bilious pains and aches?
Why tormented with Piles, Constipation?
Why frightened over disordered Kidneys?
Why endure nervous or sick headaches?
Why have sleepless nights?
Use KIDNEY-WORT and rejoice in health. It is a dry, vegetable compound and One package will make six qts of Medicine. Get it of your Druggist, he will order it for you. Price, $1.00.
WELLS, RICHARDSON & CO., Proprietors,
(Will send post paid.) Burlington, Vt.
4

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

Fruit House Prices

—FOR—

Christmas and New Year.

GREAT DROP ON

Sugar, Coffee, Prunes, Teas, Etc.

All SUGARS reduced 1 cent per pound.
All COFFEES reduced 2 cents per pound.
~~Turkish PRUNES reduced 4 cents per pound.~~
TEAS reduced 10 cents per pound.
And for the Holiday trade we have

Toys, Toy Candies, French Candies, German Toys
Christmas-Tree Candies, and New-Year Gifts of every Description.

Santa Claus in all His Glory.

SUGARS REDUCED 1 1-2C PER POUND.

Crushed	10c	Coffee A	.9
Powdered Sugar	10c	Coffee C	.8
Granulated	10c	Brown Sugar	.7

COFFEES REDUCED 2C PER POUND.

Choice Rio	14c	Roasted Rio	16c
Best Rio	16c	Best	20c
Old Government Java	23c	This is the lowest coffee has sold since 1862

TEAS DOWN 10C PER POUND.

Our tea trade is simply immense No secret about it—just the same rule as in Sugars, sellin at a small profit, and purchasing direct of the importer; we therefore save the profits of the speculator and wholesale merchant. This profit our customers get the benefit of, and it is from 10c to 15c per pound.

Young Hyson	25c	Good Young Hyson	40c	Best Young Hyson	60c
Imperial	40c	Good Imperial	50c	Best Imperial	65c
Gunpowder	40c	Good Gunpowder	50c	Best Gunpowder	65c
Oolong Black Tea	30c	Good Black Tea	40c	Best Oolong	60c
Uncalendered Japan	30c	Good Japan	40c	Best Japan	60c

All our Teas, even the second qualities, warranted to give satisfaction, and the best can 't be beat. Our 60c Tea is equal to any dollar tea sold elsewhere.

Christmas and New Year Goods.

Santa Claus Toys, Christmas Tree Candles and a thousand other things for the holidays, such as Bears Lions, Leopards, Cats, Dogs, Monkeys, Wagons, Hose Carts, Soldiers, Drums, Vases, Albums, Fancy Candies, French Candies, Fruit Candies, Stick Candies 12½c per lb.; French Candies, 15c per pound; Fruit Candies, 20c and 25c per pound, etc., etc.,

Fresh Oysters down 5 cents Per Can.

XXX	14c	Family	20c	S & W	25c	Select Frying	33c

Tobacco of All Kinds.

No 1 Fine Cut	75c	Good Fine Cut	40c
Choice Fine Cut	60c	Good Plug Tobacco	40c
Choice Plug Tobacco	50c	Durham	45c
Best No. 1	60c	Uncle Ned	35c
Smoking	25c

Fish Oil, 70c; Neats Foot Oil 70c; Machine Oil, 25c and 35c; Headlight Oil, 20c.

Syrups, Molasses and Maple Syrup.

Extra Golden Syrup, per gallon	45c	Maple Syrup	1
White Sugar Loaf Drips	60c	Best New Orleans	60

FOR CHRISTMAS CAKE.

Citron, per pound	25c	Orange and Lemon Peel	20c	Shelled Almonds	3

Nuts of all kinds etc. best Turkish Prunes.

Liquors, Wines Whiskies Scotch Ale, Dublin and London Porter.

Good, new Whisky, per gallon	$1 00	California wine	$1 25
Whisky, one year old	1 25	New England Rum	1 50
Whisky, two years old	1 40	Brandy	1 50
Whisky, three years old, '76	2 50	Scotch Ale, per bottle	22
Sherry Wine	1 25	London Porter	2
Port Wine, per gallon	1 15	Doublin Stout	18

Fish, Meats, Pork, Lard, Bacon, Spices, &c.

25 Cents on the Dollar you can save at least by purchasing at the

FORT WAYNE FRUIT HOUSE,
FORT WAYNE, INDIANA.

1850. PIONEER 1881

Hardware Store.

Headquarter for Stoves !

The Celebrated Buffalo N. Y. Stoves have been sold in this house for 25 years. A full stock alway on hand.

—A full line of—

BUILDING HARDWARE and SHELF GOODS,
Wagon and Buggy Mterial,
White Lead, Paints, Oils and Varnishe
Table and Pocket Cutlery,
Silver-Plated Knives and Forks and Spoons,
Granite Iron-Ware,
Oliver Chilled and Bryan Plows.
FARMING IMPLEMENTS
BLACKSMITHS' MATERIALS,
Buffalo Scales, Sash & Doors,
WOOD AND IRON PUMPS, & DRIVE-WELL FIXTURES
All at prices to suit the times.
Call at the old stand when you want bargains.

JOHN L. DAVIS, Proprietor.

CLOCKS, CLOCKS,

WHELLERY
WALTHAM, MASS.

GOLD

—AND—

Silver Watches

Rodgers & Brother's PLATED WARE
SPOONS, KNIVES, and FORKS,
Rings, Necklaces, Vest Chains Ladies Gold Chains,
Castors, Everything in the Jewelry line.

Violins, Guitars,
Banjos, Accordeons,
Violin Strings.

Special attention given to repairing fine watches

All Work Warranted.

No charge for mending silver ware sold at
JOE ABRIGHT'S,
Second door north of Postoffice, Auburn, Ind

"COUSIN SALLY DILLARD."

The Story Which has Become Historic.

BY HAMILLON C. JONES, OF NORTH CAROLINA.

Scene—A court justice in North Carolina.

A beardless disciple of Themis rises and thus addresses the court: "May it please your Worships and gentlemen of the jury, since it has been my fortune, good or bad I will not say, to exercise myself in legal disquestions, it has never before befallen me to be obliged to denounce breach of the peace so enormous and transcending as the one now claiming our attention. A more barbarous, direful, marked and malicious assault—a more willful, violent, dangerous and murderous battery, and finally, a more diabolical breach of the peace, has seldom happened in a civilized country, and I dare say, it was never your duty to pass upon one so shocking to beneavolent feelings as this which took place over at Captain Rice's, in this country. But you will hear from the witness."

The witnesses being sworn, two or three were disposed of. One said he heard the noise, but didn't see the fight; another, that he had seen the row, but didn't know who struck first, and a third, that he was drunk, and could not say much about the skirmmage.

Lawyer Chops—I am very sorry, gentlemen, to have occupied so much of your time with the stupidity of the witnesses examined. It arose, gentlemen, altogether from misapprehension on my part. Had I known, as I do now, of a witness in attendance, who was well acquainted with all the circumstances of the case, and who was able to make himself clearly and intelligibly understood by the court and jury, I should not so long have trespassed on your time and patience. Come forward Mr. Harris.

So forward comes the witness, a fat, chuffy looking man, a "leetle" corned, and took his corporal oath with an air.

Chops—Mr. Harris, you are to tell us all you know about the riot that happened the other day at Captain Rices, and, as a good deal of time has already been wasted in circumlocution, we wish you would be as compendious, and at the same time as explicit as possible.

Harris—Exactly, giving the lawyer a knowing wink at the same time clearing his throat, Captain Rice he gin a treat, and Cousin Sally Dillary, she came over to our house and axed me if my wife mought go. I told Cousin Sally Dillard that my wife was poorly, being as she had got a touch of rheumatiz in the hip, and the big swamp was in the road, and the big swamp was up, for there had been a heap of rain lately; but howsomever, as it was she, Cousin Sally Dillard, my wife, she mought go. I told Cousin Sally Dillard that Mose, he was the foreman of the crap, and the crap was smartly in the grass, but howsomever, as it was Cousin Sally Dillard, Mose, he mought go.

Chops—In the name of common sense, Mr. Harris, what do you mean by this rigama ole.

Witness—Captain Rice, he gin a treat and Cousin Sally Dillard, she came over to our house and axed me if my wife she moughn't go—

Chops—There it is again—witness, witness, I say, witness, please stop.

Witness—Well, sir, what is it you want?

Chops—We want to know about the fight, and you must not proceed in this impertinent story. Do you know anything about the matter before the court?

Witness—To be sure I do.

Chops—Will you go on and tell it, and nothing else!

Witness—Well, Captain Rice, he gin a treat—

Chops—This is intolerable! May it please the court, I move that this witness be committed for contempt; he seems to be trifling with the court.

Court—Witness, you are before the court of justice, and unless you behave yourself in a becoming manner, you will be sent to jail; so begin and tell what you know about the fight at Captain Rice's.

Witness (alarmed)—Well, gentlemen, Captain Rice he gin a treat, and Cousin Sally Dillard—

Chops—I hope that the witness may be ordered into custody.

Court (after deliberating—Mr. attorney, the court is of the opinion that we may save time by telling the witness to go in his own way. Proceed Mr. Harris, with your own story, but stick to the point.

Witness—Yes, gentlemen; well, Captain Rice, he gin a treat, and Cousin Sally Dillard, she came over to our house, and axed me if my wife, she moughtn't go. I told Cousin Sally Dillard that my wife was poorly, being as how she had the rehumatics in the hip and the big swamp was up; but howsomever, as it was she, Cousin Sally Dillard, my wife she mought go. Well Cousin Sally Dillard then axed me if Mose, he moughtn't go. I told Cousin Sally Dillard as how Mose, he was the foreman of the crap, and the crap was smartly in the grass, but howsomever, as it was she, Cousin Sally Dillard, Mose, he mought go. So on they goes together, Mose, my wife and Cousin Sally Dillard, and they comes to the big swamp, and the big swamp was up, as I was telling you, but being as how there was a log across the big swamp, Cousin Sally Dillard and Mose, like genteel folks, they walks the log, but my wife, like a darn fool, hoists up her petticoats and waded, and, gentlemen, that is all I know about the fight.

THE ENQUIRER.

The People's Paper—The Greatest Newspaper in the West.

The Enquirer is just closing one of the most prosperous and successful years of its existence. We wish to thank the people and our patrons for their support. Your encouragement has made the task of publishing the best newspaper in the west a possibility.

We ask your aid and support for the year to come, and for the future, and pledge you that we will spare no expense to make the Enquirer for the ensuing year not only the best newspaper in the west, but the rival of any in America.

The world's news, recorded by a corps of fifteen hundred correspondents in all sections of the globe, will be found in the Enquirer every day in the year.

The history of each day's events will be faithfully and fearlessly told, exposing fraud, rebuking corruption, and upholding the right. The facts of the world belong to the people, and will be presented to them by the Enquirer free of malice and undistorted for political or personal purposes.

In short, the Enquirer will continue to be a newspaper.

In the future, as in the past, the Enquirer will be found advocating the rights of the people of the states; the rights of communities, and the fullest liberty to individuals compatible with the general order and welfare of society.

All questions and parties shall be treated with candor and fairness, but the truth shall never be perverted.

The year 1881 will be an eventful one in the history of the state and republic. The inauguration of a new administration, with new men and new purposes, are themes of the gravest interest to all citizens who love their country. Upon all these topics the Enquirer will contain the fullest and most reliable information from its corps of able and faithful correspondents.

THE WEEKLY ENQUIRER

will be a paper that ought to be in the hands of every farmer, every mechanic, and every toiler in the land. As an agricultural paper, full of fresh, valuable and reliable information, it will be without a rival! A corps of contributors has been retained whose practical and theoretical knowledge in all branches of good farming is unsurpassed.

TERMS OF WEEKLY ENQUIRER.

For one year	$1 15
For six months	65

A free copy given to any one sending a club of seven names with $8 05.

TERMS OF DAILY ENQUIRER.

	With Sunday	With Sunday Issue.
One year	$12 00	$14 00
Six month	6 00	7 00
Three months	3 25	3 75
One month	1 25	1 50
Sunday's issue alone, per year		2 00
Any two days' issue, per year		4 00
Any three days' issue, per year		6 00

Send for sample copies.

FARAN & McLEAN, Publishers.

Examination Of Teachers.

Examinations for the year commencing June 1st, 1879, will be held regularly, in the high-school building at Auburn, the last Saturday of each month. Special examinations at other points on due notice.

W. H. MACINTOSH,

Agents.

All persons, either ladies or gentlemen, who desire good, profitable employment, and the pleasantest kind of work at their own homes, should send address to J. J. KENNEDY, Williamantic, Conn.

51-4t.

Money to Loan.

In sums and on terms to suit all. Apply at Guy Plumb's law office. Low rates of interest.

-3m. C. N. HASKALL.

Tickets! Tickets! Tickets!

First-class, emigrant and round-trip railroad tickets to all points east or west can be bought at low rates by calling upon the undersigned at Auburn Junction, or addressing

J. J. MARTIN, Ag't, B. & O. R. R.
tf Auburn Ind.

The Greatest Medical Discovery of the Age.

Kellogg's Columbian Oil is a powerful remedy, which can be taken internally as well as externally by the tenderest infant. It cures almost instantly, is pleasant, acting directly upon the nervous system causing a sudden bouyancy of the mind. In short, the wonderful effects of the most wonderful remedy cannot be explained in written language. A single dose inhaled and taken according to directions will convince any one that it is all that is claimed for it. Warranted to cure the following diseases; Rheumatism or Kidney Disease in any form, Headache, Toothache, Earache, Neuralgia, Sprains, Bruises, Flesh Wounds, Bunions, Burns, Corns, Spinal Affection, Colic, Cramping Pains, Cholera Morbus, Flux, Diarrhœa, Coughs, Colds, Bronchial Affection, Catarrh, and all aches and pains, external or internal. Full directions with each bottle. For sale by Casebeer & Matheny. 34-eow-1y.

1881

THE STEADFAST WATCHMAN

—of—

PUBLIC INTELLIGENCE,
and Exponent of
American Democracy.

THE INDIANA

STATE SENTINEL!

Has again been enlarged. It will hereafter be a

56 Column Quarto,

Making a growth in size of over twenty per cent., or an addition of reading during the year of 416 Columns.

This makes the Sentinel the largest and most desirable weekly paper in the United States, placing it ahead of all its rivals. Every Indian should be proud of it.

Price Per Year, Single Copy, $150

Special Rates To Clubs.

Persons wishing to become agents send for private circulars an sample copy. Liberal cash commission to agents, also first-class list of special premiums offered. Address

SENTINEL COMPANY,
Indianapolis, Indiana

RAILROADS

Wayne Ft. & Jackson Railroad.

SHORT LINE

Time-Card takes effect Dec. 6, 1880.
(Chicago Time.)
GOING NORTH.

Leave Auburn:

4:15 A. M.—From Fort Wayne 1:50 a. m.; arrive at Waterloo 4:40; Pleasant Lake, 5:25; Angola, 5:45; Fremont, 6:00; Reading 7:15; Bankers, 8:08 (connecting closely with D. H. & S. W. R.); arriving at Hillsdale 8:10 a. m.; Ypsilanti 10.40 a. m; Detroit 11:30 a. m.; Jonesville, 8:30; connecting with the Lake Shore & South. railroad for points west Jackson, 10:30 a. m, there connecting for points west on Michigan Cent. and Grand River valley Ry.

12:31 P. M.—From Fort Wayne 11:30 a. m., Academie, 11:45; Huntertown, 11:55; New Era, 12:10 p. m.; Auburn Junction, 12:2[illegible]; arrive at Waterloo 12.42, connecting with L. S. & M. S. train east and west; Summit, 12:5[illegible]; Pleasant Lake, 1:00; Angola, 1:10; Fremont, 1:25; Reading, 2:05; Bankers, 2:1[illegible], making close connection with D. H. & S. W. R. R.; Jonesville, 2:35 (making connection with L. S. & M. S. for points east; Hillsdale, 2:53; Adrian 4:20; Toledo, 5:25, p. m.), Jackson, 3. 40 p. m., making close connection for Ann Arbor, Detroit, Lansing, Ionia, Saginaw, Grand Rapids, Battle Creek, etc.

6:01 P. M.—From Fort Wayne, 5:00 p. m; New Era, 5:2[illegible] arrive at Waterloo [illegible]; Summit, 6:25; Pleasant Lake [illegible]; Angola, 6:47; Fremont, 7:0[illegible]; Reading, 7:35; Jonesville, 8:22; Jackson, 9:2[illegible] p. m.; connecting closely with Michigan Central railroad; fast train arriving at Detroit at 11:[illegible]0 p. m.; Buffalo, 8:[illegible] a. m.; and New York, 10:00 p. m.; also Chicago, Grand Rapids, etc.

GOING SOUTH.

Leave Auburn:

9:17 A. M.—From Jackson, 5:05 a. m; closely connecting from Chicago; Jonesville, 6:45; connecting from Chicago, Sturgis, Colwater, etc.; Reading, 7:40; Montgomery, 7:54; Fremont, 8:12; Angola, 8:30; Pleasant Lake, 8:40; Summit, 8:52; Waterloo, 9:05; arrive at St. Johns, 9:30; New Era, 9:38; Huntertown, 9:55; Academie, 10:05; Ft. Wayne, 10:20 a. m. connecting closely with Indianapolis, Louisville, Cincinnati, etc.

3:23 P. M.—From Jackson 12:20 p. m.; (connecting from Detroit 9:25 a. m., Ann Arbor, Saginaw, Lansing, Grand Rapids, etc;) Jonesville, 1:18, close connection from Toledo; Bankers, 1:23; Reading, 1:45; Montgomery, 1:55; Fremont, 2:15; Angola, 2:40; Pleasant Lake, 2:50; Summit, 3:00; Waterloo, 3:12; arrive at Auburn Junction, 3:28; St. Johns, 3:37; New Era, 3:43; Stoner's, 3:53; Huntertown, 3:56; Academie, 4:05 Fort Wayne, 4:20 p. m.; connecting for Indianapolis, Louisville, Cincinnati, and all points east via P. F. W. and C. railroad fast express.

11:26 P. M.—From Grand Rapids 11:50 a. m.; Kalamazoo, 1 40 p.m.; Jackson, 5:40 p. m.; Jonesville, 7:36; Bankers 8:10 p. m.; from Detroit 4:00 p. m, Hillsdale 8:00 p. m.; Reading, 8 40; Fremont 9 37; Angola 10 07; Pleasant Lake, 10 28; Waterloo, 11 07; arrive at New Era 12 20 a. m.; Fort Wayne, 1 30 a. m., connecting with early trains west, south and east.

4 15 a. m. train run daily. All other trains daily except Sundays.

M. D. WOODFORD, Gen'l Supt.
H. BROMLEY, Gen'l Fr't. & Pass'r Agent.

Fort Wayne, Muncie and Cin.
—AND—
White Water Railroads.

Time Card in effect November 16, 1879.

STATIONS.	GOING SOUTH. 1. Mail.	3 Express.
FORT WAYNE	10 40 am	5 40 pm
Bluffton	11 22 am	6 55 pm
Montpelier	12 31 pm	7 37 pm
Hartford	12 57 pm	8 04 pm
MUNCIE	1 48 pm	9 00 pm
Newcastle	2 39 pm
Cambridge City	3 14 pm
Connersville	3 46 pm
Cincinnati	6 55 pm
INDIANAPOLIS	6 25 pm	10 05 pm
Louisville
Terre Haute
St. Louis

STATIONS	GOING NORTH 2 Mail.	4 Express	6 Accom.
St. Louis
Terre Haute
Louisville
Indianapolis	11 50 am	6 40 pm	4 05 am
Cincinnati	[illegible] 40 am
Connersville	11 51 am
Cambridge City	12 26 pm
New Castle	1 10 pm
Muncie	2 20 pm	9 20 pm	6 42 am
Hartford	3 09 pm	10 09 pm	7 47 am
Montpelier	3 34 pm	10 32 pm	8 19 am
Bluffton	4 10 pm	11 09 pm	9 10 am
Fort Wayne	5 15 pm	12 15 am	11 00 am

Trains Nos, 1 and 2 run through between Fort Wayne and Cincinnati without change.

Through cars are attached to trains Nos. 1 and 4 and run between Fort Wayne and Indianapolis, via Muncie.

All trains daily except Sunday.

Trains run on Columbus time.

GEO. W. MULLEN, Ass't Gen. Tick. Ag't.
W. W. WORTHINGTON, Gen. Supt.

WABASH ST LOUIS AND PACIFIC RY.

The Great Through Car Route to

Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa.

TRAINS LEAVE AUBURN.

EAST.		WEST.
Mail	12:34 p. m.	Mail	3:20 p. m.
Accom'n	12:57 a. m	Accom'n	6:57 a. m.
Local F't	4:45 p. m.	Local F't	6:28 a. m.
M'l tr'n arrives at Butler	1:50 p. m.	M'l tr'n arr. at Logansport	6:48 p. m.

No Change of Cars From

TOLEDO OR FT WAYNE TO St. Louis, Kansas City St Joseph, Hannibal, Quincy and Atchison.

No Change of Cars From

St. Louis To | Kansas City, St. Joseph Omaha and Ottumwa.

Remember that the

Wabash, St Louis and Pacific

Has No Emigrant Cars.

Everybody rides in Elegant Parlor Coaches—nicely upholstered and carpeted. Baggage checked through to destination.

☞ Don't forget the above inducements given only by this great line, and when you go

West Southwest, North or Northw'st

Don't accept any ticket unless it reads over the

Wabash, St. Louis & Pacific R'y.

For Routes, Rates, Elegant Maps of the Western Country, and any information you may desire in regard to going West, please address,

J. C. GAULT, Gen. Manager,
H. C. TOWNSEND, Gen. Passenger Agent,
St. Louis or
LOUIS JOHNSON, Ticket Ag't, Auburn, Ind

Baltimore & Ohio R. R

CHICAGO DIVISION.

IN EFFECT FROM JUNE 20, 1880.

GOING EAST.

STATIONS.	No. 1 Fast.	No. 3 Ex.	No. 5 Mail
Chicago lv.	5 15pm	[illegible]	[illegible]
Walkerton Junction	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Milford Junction	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Syracuse	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Cromwell	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Albion	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Avilla	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Garrett	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Auburn Junction	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
St. Joe	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Hicksville	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Defiance	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Deshler	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Fostoria	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Tiffin	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Chicago Junction ar.	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]

GOING WEST.

STATIONS.	No. 10	No. 2 Ex.	No. 6 Mail
Chicago Junction lv	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Tiffin	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Fostoria	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Deshler	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Defiance	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Hicksville	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
St. Joe	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Auburn Junction	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Garrett	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Avilla	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Albion	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Cromwell	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Syracuse	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Milford Junction	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Walkerton Junction	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Chicago ar.	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]

C. H. HUDSON, Superintendent Trans., Ohio Division, Chicago, Ill.
J. J. MARTIN, Agent, Auburn Junction.
* Trains do not stop.

Pittsburg, Ft. W. & C. R. R.

ON AND AFTER JUNE 27, 1880.

Condensed time card.

GOING WEST.

Stations.	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Pittsburgh lv.	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Rochester	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Alliance	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Orrville	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Mansfield	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Crestline ar.	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Crestline lv.	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Forest	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Lima	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Ft. Wayne	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Plymouth	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Chicago ar.	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]

GOING EAST.

Stations.	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Chicago lv.	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Plymouth	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Ft. Wayne	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Lima	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Forest	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Crestline ar.	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Crestline lv.	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Mansfield	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Orrville	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Alliance	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Rochester	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Pittsburgh ar.	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]

Nos. 3 and 6, and 5 and 4 run daily; No. 1 leaves Pittsburgh daily, except Saturday. No. 8 leaves Chicago daily except Saturday. All others daily except Sunday.

F. R. MYERS, Gen. Pass. and Ticket Agent.

Notice of Sale of Real Estate.

Notice is hereby given that by virtue of an order of the DeKalb circuit court, the undersigned administrator of the estate of John Whittington, deceased, will offer for sale on the premises, on Friday the 31st day of December, 1880, the following real estate to-wit: Lot No. [illegible] in the original plat of the town of Auburn Junction, DeKalb county, Indiana. Terms: One third cash; the residue in equal payments at twelve and eighteen months, with notes and interest, waiving valuation laws, with approved personal security. Sale to be at two o'clock, p. m. [illegible], Administrator. [illegible]

Recorders Office

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Devoted to the Interests of the Democratic Party and to the Collection of Local and General News.

Volume 11. AUBURN, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, JANUARY 20, 1881. Number 3.

The Auburn Courier

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY BY

BARNS & HUSSELMAN.

HOTELS.

Central House,

TENTH STREET. EAST OF MAIN. GOOD Sample rooms, and low rates.
T. D. Gross. Prop'r Auburn. Ind.

BUTT'S HOTEL

FREE OMNIBUS TO AND FROM ALL trains. Good sample rooms on first floor. John Butt, Proprietor. Waterloo, Indiana.

ATTORNEYS.

D. D. Moody,

ATTORNEY AT LAW AND NOTARY public. Also Prosecuting attorney for DeKalb County. Office in Court House, Auburn, Ind.

Wm. H. Leas,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW AND NOTARY PUBlic, will give prompt attention to collections. Also represents first class insurance companies. Office over Willis & Co's. book store, Waterloo, Indiana.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Thomas Paldock,

PROPRIETOR of Stuart's patent compound Asphalt roofing, for DeKalb county, Ind., manufactured at Charlotte, Michigan. Consult or address at Auburn, Ind.

BUSINESS CARDS.

Cards not exceeding five lines each will b inserted under this head for $5.0 per annum For each additional line 50 cents extra will be charged.

PHYSICIANS.

J. J. Littlefield,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. OFFICE AND residence on 10th st., opposite S. W. Ralston's. All calls promptly attended to, day or night. Auburn, Indiana. 2-ly

Major Morningcall: "Now, my dear Miss Lancytt, whilst I enjoy a little Madeira, favor me with your latest song." Miss Lancytt: "Certainly, major; my last is 'Drink, puppy, drink,' you know."

A lawyer once rushed up to Jerrold in the street, and said, with a flushed face: "Mr. Jerrold, I've just met a scoundrelly barrister." Jerrold looked at him with a bland smile, and simply answered: "What a coincidence."

The following inscription may be seen on a tombstone in the cemetery at Palo Pinto, Palo Pinto county, Texas: "He remained to the last a decided friend and supporter of democratic principles and measures. Blessed are the dead that die in the Lord."

The foreign demand for black walnut timber is very large. Agents for English manufactures have recently been through Iowa, Indiana and Missouri for the purpose of buying this wood, which a quarter century ago, was but little appreciated for any purpose.

"Habit" is hard to overcome. If you take off the first letter it does not change "a bit." If you take off another you still have a "bit" left. If you take off still another the whole of "it" remains. If you take off another it is not "t" totally used up. All of which goes to show that if you wish to be rid of a "habit" you must throw it off altogether.

Eighteen United States senators will be elected during the present month. Nevada and Tennessee will elect on the 11th; Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Indiana, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, New York, Pennsylvania and Texas on the 18th; and New Jersey, West Virginia and Wisconsin on the 25th. The date of the senatorial election depends in each case on the prompt organization of the legislature.—Ind. Journal.

Changing the Color of Flowers.

The natural color of flowers may be altered, according to C. Puscher, by exposing them to the diluted fumes of ammonia. Most of the blue, violet, and light crimson flowers turn to a splendid bright green. Dark crimson clove pinks turn black, other dark red flowers turn dark violet, and white flowers turn sulphur yellow. This change of color is especially beautiful when the flowers are variegated, or the single petals possess a different color. As soon as the new color is fully developed, the flowers must be dipped at once in cold water, when they will keep their new shade from two to six hours. By degrees then their natural color returns. If flowers be exposed to the vapors of ammonia for one or two hours, they turn a dirty chamois, which is permanent. Blue, violet and red asters, are dyed or turned intense red when they are exposed to the fumes of muriatic acid gas. It takes from two to four hours or more, before the shade is fully developed. The flowers are then removed to dark, cool rooms to dry.

BURDETTE'S OBSERVATIONS.

How Altoona Came into Existence and a Wife Made Four Thousand Dollars for Her Husband.

[Burdette's Letter to the Burlington Hawkeye.]

When you want to go anywhere in this country you simply get on the Pennsylvania railroad and go there. There are several other railroads in these parts, but as the "Pennsy" runs to the same place, it amounts to the same thing.

One time, the brakeman was telling me, the Pennsylvania railroad company wanted a good site for the location of its great shops. It found the place it wanted on the east side of the Alleghany mountains, on a beautiful plateau. That was just forty years ago. There were not many people living on that plateau in 1840. One daring pioneer and his family were monarchs of the unbroken forest that covered it, and three log huts hidden away in the shadowy recesses of that forest were all the indications of civilization to be found there. The railroad company sent out an agent to buy the whole plateau, with written instruction to pay $10,000 if necessary. The agent came, he found the pioneer, he put up at his unpretentious log hut, he told him all the new stories from the city, he wrought him into a good humor, and the settler finally made ready to sell at $5,000, considering himself a made man at that. But while he was talking business his good wife was straightening up the stranger's room. She found a package of papers, womanly curiosity prompted her to open the unsealed envelope, she read the agent's instructions. She called her husband into the kitchen in a very few moments, and she did what nine women out of every ten would do for their husbands; she made more money for him than he ever dreamed he would be worth; more than he ever could have made if he hadn't a wife. When the settler returned he told the agent that real estate had picked up a little during the last ten minutes, and that he couldn't think of taking less than ten thousand for his claim. There was nothing else to be done, swearing wouldn't help the matter. The $10,000 was paid. Four thousand of it belonged to the woman, but I never heard whether she got it or not. Ten years later the Pennsylvania railroad began building its shops on the plateau, and now the city of Altoona has upwards of twenty thousand inhabitants, three or four newspapers, seventeen churches, as many schools, and one convent, the largest railroad shops in America, and the Logan house, a hotel the size of Rhode Island. When I was there I slept in the northeast county of it, too—only eleven miles from the clerk's desk.

The Bravest of the Brave.

Michael Ney was born in Saarlouis, in 1769. His early years were devoted to the study of law, but, disliking the confinement, he entered the army as a private hussar, in 1787. He distinguished himself during the first years of the Revolution, and in 1796, he arose to the rank of brigadier general in the French army. During the reign of Napoleon, he became a marshal of the empire, and was created prince de la Moskwa and a Peer of France. When Napoleon was sent to Elba he retired to his country seat, and lived in retirement until the emperor's return, when he again joined his fortunes with those of Napoleon. Hitherto one motive alone—sincere patriotism—had controlled his every action, and a personal or family interest had never been permitted to swerve him from his love of country. He professed to think the return of Napoleon would be an injury to France, and his progress ought to be checked. On taking leave of Louis XVIII, he made many protestations of zeal and fidelity to the king, and expressed his determination to stay the progress of Napoleon. Arriving at Besancon, Ney found the whole country hastening to meet the coming emperor, and at Lyons, the Dukes d'Artois and d'Angouleme acknowledged the fruitlessness of the endeavor to check the popular enthusiasm of Napoleon, which had seized the troops of Ney's command. Impelled by this popular current, Ney and his army joined Napoleon, and fought under his banners until Waterloo was lost. After the conclusion of that eventful day, Ney was advised to leave France, but refused, and retired to his country seat to await his fate. He was soon arrested and brought to trial, but his colleagues and companions in arms having declared themselves incompetent to form a court-martial whereby to judge him, the affair was carried to the house of peers, by whom he was tried and condemned for treason. On December 7, 1815, Marshal Ney, one of the most brilliant officers the world has ever seen, who had fought and won many desperate battles for France, but never one against her, was shot as a traitor.

Fixing Her Hair.

When a girl concludes to put up her hair and make herself look sweet, the best policy is to let her have her own way. She can't be drawn away from her mirror by any of the ordinary things of this life. A fire will sometimes do it, but it has been shown that even a fire may fail to excite some girls. Some time ago, a New York lodging house took fire, and at a most uncomfortable hour, when most girls have their back hair down. One of the young ladies heard that the place was burning down, but she didn't feel like making her appearance before the crowd that had gathered in the street looking like a perfect fright. She shut the door leading into the hall to keep out the flames, and went to her mirror to fix her hair. Anybody who has waited for a girl to fix her hair knows that it takes time, and a great deal of it, too. This girl wasn't any quicker than the average, and she was very particular about having her hair done up exactly as it should be. The fire had cut off her chances of escape by the stairs, and her lover, after appealing to her for some time, finally lost his patience and got away without her. A fireman got up to the room on a ladder, and she made him sit on the edge of the window and wait until she had arranged her hairpins and ribbons for a right sort of public appearance, then she threw herself in his arms—it was so romantic—and slid down the ladder with him, looking just sweet. The whole thing was a tremendous success, but when the careful young girl was safely landed on the pavement, she found out that she had forgotten her stockings.

A number of republican gentlemen of Indianapolis, deeply interested in business affairs, concluded some days since, to find out, if possible, the views of republican candidates for United States senator. To this end, they published an open letter, addressed to Hons. J. C. New, G. S. Orth, General Ben. Harrison, W. Cumback, John M. Butler, S. Colfax and General John Coburn, in which certain "vital questions of paramount importance" were propounded, and replies requested. The questions were as follows:

1. Has congress the power to regulate inter-state fare and freights on railroads, and should such power be exercised when the public good demands it?

2. Do you believe the greenback circulation should be withdrawn or deprived of its legal tender quality?

3. Should the government suspend the coinage of silver dollars?

Messrs. John M. Butler, Will. Cumback, John Coburn and Godlove S. Orth have responded. They are all of the same way of thinking. Not one of them believes the greenback circulation should be withdrawn; not one of them favors suspending the coinage of the silver dollar, and all express the opinion that congress has the power to regulate the inter-state fare and freights on railroads. So far, General Ben. Harrison, Hon. John C. New and S. Colfax have remained silent. It is generally understood that General Harrison will receive the caucus nomination for senator, and will be elected. As a consequence, his views upon the questions to which others have replied, become a matter of no little solicitude on the part of the gentlemen who took upon themselves the duty of boring for information. Messrs. Butler, Cumback, Orth and Coburn, it is safe to say, in their published letters express the convictions of 95 per cent. of the people of Indiana. If General Harrison entertains different views, he will not be able to represent Indiana in the United States senate. The "greenback circulation," as it stands to-day, is the work of the democratic party, and it is agreeable to see distinguished republicans indorsing the democratic policy; and it is also true, that the country is under obligations to the democratic party for the remonetization of the silver dollar, and the law requiring the coinage of standard silver dollars, and the fact that Messrs. Butler, Orth, Coburn and Cumback favor these democratic measures is well calculated to add to the strength of the democratic party in Indiana. With regard to the power of congress to regulate inter-state fare and freight on railroads, it is also agreeable to see distinguished republican candidates for United States senator falling into line under Judge Black, and other distinguished democrats. It is to be hoped that General Harrison may be urged by Messrs. Perry, Wilson, Rush and others, of our business men of Gen. Harrison's politics, to define his position, for if he entertains views antagonistic to those expressed by other candidates, the legislature should not hastily select him for the distinguished position to which he aspires. The people have a right to know his views upon "vital questions of paramount importance," and if he refuses to respond, as others have done, the legislature will not make a mistake by permitting him to continue in the enjoyment of private life.

Curious Scene.

A most respectable jury—every one of them a 50-pound freeholder—was impaneled at Clonmel, Ireland, to try a most important question. During the course of the trial the learned judge had to retire for half an hour, promising to be back on the expiration of that time. The judge then retired, and so did the jurors. In some time after, one of the jurors returned, and stated in open court, to an astonished audience, that he had been to a christening, drank the child's health, a speedy uprise to its mother, and that her son might be a much better man than its papa. This caused so much surprise that those who heard it remained silent. He asked a learned counsel to give him the song called "The Low-backed Car." At this request the learned counsel shook his head. The juror then said: "You won't, won't you? Then I'll do it myself;" and so he did in excellent style, and concluded amid the bravos of a crowded court. He then made a speech on the duties of a paternal government, and acquitted himself with equal credit, and was vociferously applauded. He then demanded that the judge be sent for; and, this demand not being acceded to by the crier, he stood up and called the learned judge to come into court, on a fine of fifty pounds. This he did three different times, and in the usual way. He then declared that as the judge did not come he wouldn't wait—he should go back to the christening; and he accordingly left the jury box, and finally the court. In about half an hour he returned, and, not seeing the judge on the bench, he commenced singing "Rory O'More," after which he stepped into the jury-box, resuming his seat among his fellows, who appeared quite "glum" at his antics; but he, seeming not to mind the wry faces of his brethren, began to hum a song. He then tried what he could do at the Kent bugle, and succeeded to admiration; but, just as he had concluded a splendid solo, the learned judge made his appearance at the corner of the bench, where he stood listening in mute astonishment, to the music of the special juror, who was equally astounded when he heard the cry of "Hats off! Be pleased to keep silence!" In the meantime something was said to the judge, who good-naturedly adjourned the court for the further hearing of the case until the following morning.

Planting out Bulbs.

Some direction as to time, soil etc., in the setting out of bulbs, we printed recently. Perhaps it will be of service to some to learn the depth at which some of our leading floriculturists plant the different kinds of bulbs. They say that hyacinths, large lilies and paeonies should be set four inches from the crown; crown imperials and polyanthus-narcissus, five inches; tulips, double narcissus, jonquils and colchicums, three inches; bulbous iris, crocus, small fritellaries, gladiolus-byzantiums and snowdrops, two inches; ranunculus and anemones, one inch. The bed should be protected in winter with straw, hay, loose manure or spent tan, which, of course, is to be removed in the spring, and the upper soil carefully stirred and pulverized. Those who will not give due attention to their bulbs must not look for perfect flowers, and plenty of them. The bulbs of the gladiolus should, of course, be taken up in the fall, or rather, as soon as the leaves are dead. Like the hyacinth, it must be replanted annually, but in the spring instead of the fall; and if set out at intervals, of from to two weeks, it will to the same extent, have its seasons of blooming prolonged. Tulips we take up only once in three or four years; and snowdrops, only when we desire to have the beds enlarged. In keeping bulbs over winter, they should be placed in a cellar, on a shelf or scaffold, just as they are taken from the ground, and protected against rats and mice, or they can be covered with dry sand. A cellar with a heater in it, will be too warm, and cause them to sprout before the winter is over; they should be put in a cold one, but where they will not freeze. Up to the 20th of November, bulbs can be set out. Some prefer it to the spring. Hyacinths, paeonies, crown imperials, etc., are far the best planted in the fall.[—Germantown Telegraph.

Mahogany was introduced into England by Sir Walter Raleigh, who brought the trunk of a tree of that wood to Queen Elizabeth from Brazil. It was made into various articles, which she presented to her courtiers. For herself, a small work-box was constructed, which is now in the tower of London in a perfect state of preservation.

Subscribe for the COURIER for the year 1881.

An Alarming Swell.

An innocent, hard-working man yesterday lost a situation which he had held for a year, and which he believed secure for at least another year to come, and if this meets the eye of his late employer perhaps the man will be taken back. A citizen of Beach street bought a cord of four-foot wood and the same was delivered early in the morning. As soon as the team had gone the citizen borrowed a quarter of a cord of the same sort of wood of a neighbor and added it to his pile and then rode down to the wharf and said:

"Mr. Blank, I see you have delivered my wood."

"Yes, sir—yes, sir—we alway deliver at the earliest moment," was the reply.

"How much did you send?"

"A cord, sir—a full cord. We never cheat on measure."

"But I am not satisfied with it."

"Can't help that, sir; I sent a cord. I saw it loaded myself."

"I've measured it and——"

"Can't help your measure. There is a cord of wood there.

"I was going to say——"

"Can't help what you were going to say. I've been in the wood business too long to make any mistake."

"I was going to say there is over a cord."

"Over a cord? Ah! that is a different thing. That needs looking into. Get into my buggy and we'll drive up and measure it. I am glad to find one honest man in Detroit."

The pile overran a quarter of a cord, much to the dealer's amazement. When certain of the fact he could only scratch his head and say:

"Never heard of the like before—never, and I've been in the business a long time."

Within five minutes of his return to the office one of the drivers had his balance of wages and was walking off with the remark:

"How dat seben-eighths of a cord got all swelled up dat way am mo' dan I kin tumble into, an' Ize got to go bar'footed all winter to pay fur it."—Detroit Free Press.

Discovery of a Letter Written by Adam to Eve.

In Josh Billings' "Cook Book and Picktorial Receipts," just published by Carleton, the following interesting letter is found:

DEAR EVE: I have been on the rampage now one month, prospecting for our new home, and have seen some ranches that will do pretty well, but none of them just the ticket. The old garden is a hard place to beat, but we have lost that, and are turned out now to root hog or die. We will fight it out now on this line if it takes all summer. Eating that apple was a great blunder, but, my dear girl, let bygones be bygones—there is hope for us yet. Just as soon as I strike a good claim I will come back to you. Watch over Cain closely; he is a brick. The weather is raw and cold; I feel that I am too thinly clad. No more now from your loving ADAM.

P. S.—Has Cain got another tooth yet?

A Competent Juror.

Lawyer—Have you any fixed opinions about anything?

Juror—No.

L.—If a murder were committed before your eyes, and it were proved that you did not see it, would you clear the prisoner on such proof?

J.—No, indeed.

L.—Is your mind so porous that it can leach out all past fact, memory, impression and sense of justice?

J.—It can.

L.—Would you acknowledge on due evidence that you were not yourself but somebody else?

J.—I would.

L.—Are you sure, without due legal proof, that it is I, who am speaking to you now?

J.—I am not.

L.—You assume that this is the year 1880 A. D., but you are open to the conviction, on due and sufficient evidence, that it may be 1880 B. C., do you not?

J.—I does.

L.—You are of the masculine gender?

J.—I am.

L.—But on due and sufficient evidence being produced, you would even in this respect, be willing to admit you might be mistaken?

J.—I might.

L.—Swear this gentleman. He is the juror we long have sought, and mourned because we found him not.—[Graphic.

Cincinnati men are so fond of music that they won't hurl a bootjack until they look out to see that it is a cat and not a Cincinnati prima donna singing.—Chicago Times.

Examination Of Teachers.

Examinations for the year commencing June 1st, 1879, will be held regularly, in the high-school building at Auburn, the last Saturday of each month. Special examinations at other points on due notice.

W. H. MACINTOSH.

Tickets! Tickets! Tickets!

First-class, emigrant and round-trip railroad tickets to all points east or west can be bought at low rates by calling upon the undersigned at Auburn Junction, or addressing

J. J. MARTIN, Ag't, B. & O. R. R.
tf Auburn Ind.

The French Peerage.

France has no peerage officially recognized, or baronetage, while the conferring of knighthood is a ceremony unintelligible to even educated Frenchmen. Several other fashions in which the British sovereign delights to honor her lieges by making them "privy councillors," or of her "counsel learned in the law," are wholly unknown to her neighbors. The "cross," which is a star of five rays, and the various other grades of the "Legion of Honor," established by Napoleon in 1802, are the only visible honors with which France rewards her illustrious sons. Any citizen can obtain them; none can bequeath them.

Senator Nye's Impressions.

[Globe-Democrat.]

Mr. Nye was a statesman of the heroic western type, and after he had recovered from the first natural shiver incident to his introduction into so elevated an atmosphere, he was asked amid a choice circle of senators, what his first impression of the senate had been. "Well," said Mr. Nye, "when I looked around and saw all you gentlemen looking so wise and dignified I wondered how the devil I came to be here." There was a sally of appreciative laughter over this honest admission, and then Mr. Nye was asked what his second impressions were. "Well," he said, "after I had sat there a few days and had heard you other fellows talk, then I wondered how in the devil you all came to be here." There have been few sessions of the senate in recent years, in which Mr. Nye's humorous impressions were not sadly echoed by millions of citizens.

How to Judge Diamonds.

A Chicago man, who claims to be a diamond expert, gives to the Tribune, of that city, the following information, which owners of gems may be interested in: "There are a great many so-called solitaires sold as single stones which, when put under the blow pipe, will come apart in single pieces, put together for the American market. I have detected them and separated them. There is not one diamond in ten sold in our market but what is the refuse of the London market. They are sold at a fictitious value, so that not half the selling price can be got when put upon the market. Nearly all are of off-color, specked or feathered. Very few 'old mine diamonds' are in the market. These are the real valuable stones that are marketable all over the world. People who are investigating these jewels will be surprised, I expect, at these statements, and yet they are true."

Trapped.

There is a story told of a lady and a gentleman traveling together on an English railroad. They were strangers to each other. Suddenly the gentleman said:

"Madam, I will trouble you to look out of the window a few minutes; I am going to make some changes in my wearing apparel."

"Certainly, sir," she replied, with great politeness, rising and turning her back upon him.

In a very short time he said:

"Now, madam, my change is completed, and you may resume your seat."

"Now sir, or madam, whichever you like" said the lady, "I must trouble you to look out of the window, for I also have some changes to make in my apparel."

"Certainly, madam," and the gentleman in lady's attire immediately complied.

"Now, sir, you may resume your own seat."

To his great surprise, on resuming his own seat, the gentleman in female attire found his lady companion transformed into a man. He laughed loudly and said:

"It appears that we are both anxious to avoid recognition. What have you done? I have robbed a bank."

"And I," said the whilom lady, as he dexterously fettered his companion's wrists with a pair of handcuffs, "I am Detective J——, of Scotland Yard, and in female apparel have shadowed you for two days; now," drawing a revolver, "keep still."

THE FAME OF THE CITY.

BY JOHN BOYLE O'REILLY.

A great rich city of power and pride,
With streets full of traders, and ships on the tide;
With rich men and workmen, and judges and preachers,
The shops full of skill, and the schools full of teachers.

The people were proud of their opulent town;
The rich men spent millions to bring it renown;
The strong men built and the tradesmen planned,
The shipmen sailed to every land;
The lawyers argued, the teachers taught,
And a poor shy poet his verses brought
And cast them into the splendid store.

The tradesmen sniffed at his useless craft,
The rich men sneered, and the strong men laughed;
The preachers said it was worthless quite,
The school-men claimed it was theirs to write.
But the songs were spared, though they added naught
To the profit and praise the people sought,
That was wafted at last from distant climes.
And the townsmen said, "To remotest times
We shall send our name and our greatness down."

The boast came true; but the famous town
Had a lesson to learn when all was told.
The nations that honored cared naught for its gold,
Its skill they exceeded a hundredfold;
It had only been one of a thousand more
Had the songs of the poet been lost to its store.

When the rich men and tradesmen and school-men said
They had never decided, but praised instead;
And they boast of the poet the town has fed.
—Harper's Magazine

Under the Apple Blossoms.

BY MISS AMELIA THROPP.

Mabel Vaughn was the daughter of a plain, respectable farmer residing in the State of Pennsylvania. He was a hard-working, honest man, but a poor manager, always in arrears in his payments, and at the time I now write much in debt. The old, two-story farm-house, with its white walls, rustic porch and green blinds, stood upon an eminence, with a lawn in front sloping down upon the winding public road. On the left was a garden inclosed with white-washed palings, and an orchard to the right. The latter sloped back to meadow lands, through which a broad stream flowed, with banks bordered with willow and elder; a large buttonwood tree shaded the back yard with its wide spreading branches, whilst in the spring and summer time festoons of woodbine and roses clustered over the rustic porch in front. From the latter was seen a broad expanse of rolling country dotted here and there with groves of trees. On the right, by the roadside, a little distance off, stood a two-story frame country inn, whose gaily painted sign-board swung lazily in the air; the white spires of the far-off village were seen in the distance. The scene was of a well-cultivated, country landscape, which, in its peaceful solitude, was tempting to the wornout, fashionable people of the heated, dusty cities, and in summer many thronged the rural neighborhood.

Mabel was the eldest of nine children, and, at the time I introduce her, in her nineteenth year. She was tall, fair, handsome, with a slight, symmetrical figure, clear complexion, large, deep blue eyes, fringed with long black lashes, well-shaped nose, and a mouth tempting as a rosebud; her waving masses of golden hair crowned her well-shaped head like a halo. She was a beautiful, refined, superior creature, entirely out of keeping with her rude surrounding. The country lads were quite in awe of the beautiful girl, whom they called cold hearted and proud. This was because they failed to understand her refined, superior nature. She was not entirely satisfied with her lot, and was often oppressed with a strange longing for something better than she had known. She was fond of books, and eagerly grasped any chance reading matter which came in her way. It was the calm of a lovely Sabbath as she sat upon the grass, leaning against an old apple tree, with a book in her hand; her snowy dress floating around her like a cloud, whilst a large straw hat was keeping her calm blue eyes in shade. The trees were laden with blossoms, whilst the hum of bees filled the air as they were laying in their winter supply of honey. The air was full of fragrance, and Mabel, with a half listless admiration, viewed the scene, which was fair enough to kindle the eye of an artist.

Philip Adair was the son of a neighboring farmer. He and Mabel had been brought up together, their families being fast friends. He was a tall, handsome, dark-complexioned young man of three-and-twenty summers. His father was a man of a different character from Mr. Vaughn—industrious and managing, with his fine farm out of debt, and "a little" as he said, "laid up for a rainy day." Philip, his eldest son, was the pride of his parents and the admiration of the neighborhood, on account of his neighborhood. He was a widower of about forty-five. For the last three years he had been traveling abroad. On his return, before settling down to city life, he had concluded to rusticate in this quiet neighborhood for rest for himself and a good time for his two little sons. He was a well educated, superior man, of large means and prominent position. His elegant appearance and haughty manners won for him the awe and admiration of the people of the place, and the farmers' daughters were anxious by their charms to induce him to marry and locate in the neighborhood. Mabel had heard much of Mr. Claire but had not felt the least interest in him. One evening as she was returning from the village, whither she had been making a few purchases, she met an elegant looking gentleman leading by the hand a little boy. From the description she had heard, she at once recognized him as Mr. Claire. She felt embarrassed by the gaze of evident admiration he fixed upon her face. The next evening she heard a knock on the front hall door, and on opening it found, to her astonishment, the gentleman there. He bowed low to her, introducing himself as Mr. Claire, apologizing for the call, saying in vindication that, "he had been informed that Mr. Vaughn had an idea of selling his place, and took the liberty to call and see if there was any truth in the report, as he was so much pleased with this part of the country that he had concluded to purchase a farm where he and the boys might ruralize for the summers."

Mabel blushed deeply at the remarks of the stranger, and informed him that "she was very sorry to be forced to acknowledge that the reports were correct."

The truth was, Mr. Vaughn, who was always in pecuniary embarrassments, had lately lost heavily, and as Mr. Adair (who was his friend in need) at last had become out of patience with him, he would either be forced to sell now, or the property would be sold for him, as there was no way of raising the large amount due. Mr. and Mrs. Vaughn were absent, trying to persuade Mr. Adair to assist them out of their difficulties, but this time he was inexorable.

Mr. Claire was delighted at the opportunity of awaiting their return.

"You would regret, Miss Vaughn," he said, "to leave the old place!"

"Yes, sir; it is our home. We children have all been born here, and we have the most pleasant and tender associations connected with the dear old place. I shall be very unhappy if we are forced to leave it."

"You may not be forced to go. Often, when we are on the verge of some painful misfortune, a kind Providence interposes, and we are extricated from our painful position."

"Those are romantic events," replied Mabel. "We read of them in novels, but they seldom occur in real life."

"Reality, Miss Vaughn, is stranger than fiction, and allow me to predict that something will occur to prevent your leaving the old place."

"That, sir, would be making us all too happy."

On the return of her parents, Mabel quickly withdrew. Mr. Vaughn was delighted with his distinguished guest, who promised to call the next day to look over the farm. He came not only then, but on many succeeding days, until Mabel began to think it was herself, not the farm, in which he was most interested. This caused her alarm, and she tried to avoid the assiduous stranger. She had often rejoiced in her beauty for Philip's sake. She now turned from her mirror with pain, regarding it as her greatest misfortune.

Mr. Claire would not see her indifference, but kept persistently visiting the old farm, and overwhelming her with costly presents. At last he frightened her with an offer, which she positively declined. He expected this, and went to her parents, telling them that he loved their daughter, and if she could be induced to wed him, he would pay off the entire indebtedness of the farm, and assist them out of all embarrassments for the future.

Mr. and Mrs. Vaughn were at this time very indignant at their neighbor for not assisting them, and considered Mr. Claire's position as quite a blessing.

"It will be all right, sir, I am sure," replied the delighted father. "Mable is a noble girl. She will love you as yer noble nature and mental superiority. He worked hard on the farm, and all his spare time was devoted to study. He had loved Mabel passionately from childhood, and she in return gave him her undivided heart.

Philip's ambition was to go to the city of P—— and study for a lawyer and locate there, making his way up to prominence if possible. He had for some time been endeavoring to induce his father to advance a sufficient amount for this scheme, out of what in future would come to him out of the estate. Mr. Adair was at first reluctant, not knowing how he could manage without him; but, wishing to do justice to his noble son, and being yet in his vigorous prime, with two active younger boys, he finally consented, saying to his wife:

"We will not oppose the boy, Mary, for there is the making of a great man in him, and we will never let him reflect upon us for retarding his progress."

"Don't be proud, father," replied the fond little mother. "If Philip continues to be as good as he is now, we will have sufficient cause to be grateful."

"Well, well, little woman, his father will expect to see him become great, and continue good; the two make a beautiful combination."

As Mabel sat listlessly contemplating the scene, Philip Adair approached, unnoticed, through the meadow, and stood looking with intense love and admiration upon her lovely face. As he did so, his shadow ominously crossed hers upon the grass.

"I will ask her again," he mentally exclaimed, "to renew her engagement, lest some city man should come along whilst I am away and rob me of my treasure."

As these thoughts crossed his mind, without speaking, he threw himself upon the clover at her feet.

She started, whilst a flood of crimson colored her face, and looked shyly toward her eager, handsome suitor, exclaiming:

"Is that you, Phil? I have been expecting you."

He was silent; he had come with a story to tell. Mabel guessed it before he had said a word.

"Something has happened," she said, gazing into his pale, sad face. "Do not conceal it from me."

"Do not be frightened, Mabel; father and mother at last have given their consent to my going to the city of P—— to study for a lawyer, that is all," he said, forcing a nervous laugh. "I shall be gone for two or three years, perhaps, and will leave much sooner than I expected—to-morrow, in fact. You will give me a solemn promise to wait for me, darling? I will write often, and come home once or twice a year to see you, and when I finish, we will marry and settle down in the beautiful city of P——, and I hope will have a long and happy life together. You will wait for me?" he repeated, looking earnestly into her face.

"I will wait until I die, Philip," she replied.

"God bless you, darling," he said, kissing her now pale cheeks, which again became crimson-dyed. "You shall not regret it."

As twilight began to deepen into night Philip arose, and, giving Mabel his arm they walked along the winding river. The night birds sang softly, and the stars began to glimmer one by one in their azure setting. Their words were few, but the heart of each was filled with love for the other. At last they parted in silence on the banks of the lonely river. Her cheeks were wet with the tears that were beyond her control. Little thought they of the possible severing of a faith, the blighting of a love that had grown with their growth, until it had now ripened into perfection.

The uncertain future is wisely concealed from us; only our present duties are plain.

Philip went to the city, and Mabel devoted herself with her usual patience to her home duties. She heard frequently from Philip, and was contented and happy.

During the summer the old inn was as usual filled with city boarders, amongst whom one Mr. Percy Claire was making quite a sensation in the deserve, and in turn you will find her as good as she is fair."

After his departure they explained their embarrassed situation to her, and begged that she would accept Mr. Claire's brilliant offer.

"I can not!" Mabel cried with a wail of despair. "It would kill me. You know that I love Philip, and I have made him the most sacred promise. What would he think of me? Oh, I should make him so wretched, and be myself so

Mr. and Mrs. Vaughn could not understand her folly in refusing so grand an opportunity, regarding it as a whim which would be followed by a life-time regret. In urging it upon her they thought they were not only advancing their interest, but her own.

Mr. Claire saw the greatness of the sacrifice, but he accepted it. He fulfilled his promise to her parents, and went further, sending at his own expense her two eldest brothers to college. He remained at the inn the entire winter, lest he might, by some unfortunate accident, lose his treasure. Mabel was submissive. Her brilliant marriage engagement was the envy of the entire neighborhood. And when the farmers' daughters saw her driving out with Mr. Claire in magnificent style, they sighed with envy, little dreaming how often her smile had an aching heart.

The following spring, when all nature was light and smiling, when the apple trees were again in bloom, Mable was sitting alone by one of the "front-room" windows. In a few days she was to be married. She sat listlessly looking over the wide-spreading landscape, thinking of her ruined happiness.

Suddenly she was startled, for Philip Adair stood out upon the porch before her. His looks were strangely altered—so pale and stern. Mabel, in an agony of despair, looked up, and for a moment they gazed fixedly into each other's pale faces.

At last Mabel exclaimed:

"Philip, why are you come? You know I have given you up."

"Mabel, I have come to hear from your own lips that which none could force me to believe. 'Mine until death, Philip,'" said he, bitterly. "I thank my God that I am rid of one so unworthy! When I left you, Mabel, I went away with no thought but of you and your happiness. Whilst I was laboring for this, you were plotting to wound me in the cruelest way; you little know, Mabel Vaughn, the mischief you have done! Farewell, and may a just God deal with you as you have dealt with me!"

He turned quickly, leaped from the porch, hastened through the front yard, mounted his horse, and was soon galloping along the highway.

Mabel was bewildered at first. Arousing herself, she followed as far as the wicket gate in time to see him disappearing in the dim distance. She held out her arms toward him, exclaiming, "Philip!" with a bitter cry of pain. Then she returned, and, seating herself upon the steps of the porch, buried her face in her hands, whilst her whole frame shook with her agitated feelings. Thus they parted, they who had vowed to go through life together.

* * * * *

Mabel's joyless wedding was over. She left with Mr. Clair to preside over his elegant establishment in the city of P——. He was a cold, selfish man of the world. There was no congeniality between them, and Mabel, though submissive, found her life a blank. As time rolled on the gulf widened and widened between them, he regarding her with jealous suspicion, knowing she had married him without love, and considering himself injured in marrying one in her position and not having it appreciated. He was liberal toward her family, and Mabel felt kindly toward him when she saw them prosperous and happy.

Philip Adair, never rightly understanding the matter, accused her of duplicity and a love of display. Twice in after years he saw her. Once she passed him in her elegant carriage; their eyes met; neither spoke, both considering themselves injured. Philip was surprised to see the dark eclipse that had dimmed the radiant beauty; never, he thought, had he seen a human being so pale. "She has reaped what she has sown," said he, bitterly, though his heart was full of pity. The lips may utter severe reproaches whilst the poor, tortured heart is all love the while. Pride conceals anguish, and Philip, in spite of his bitter words, would have died to save her if he could.

When he again saw her she was still paler. She lay in her coffin, and was beautiful even there. When she felt her end approaching she beckoned to her mother, saying:

"It may be a foolish request, mamma dear, but bear with me, for mine is a tired and wounded spirit. When I am no more, it will be a pleasure for you to know you have consented to my dying request. Please have me buried in the old orchard, under my favorite tree."

So when the apple trees were again in bloom they buried her there. It was a bright sunny day. The birds sang sweetly by the winding river, which shone like a band of silver unrolled, the bees hummed from flower to flower, the only inanimate thing was the sleeper beneath the coffin lid.

Philip Adair prospered wonderously and gratified the ambition of his parents and friends. He became a distinguished man in the world, made a brilliant marriage, and was considered by his less fortunate friends a lucky fellow. But though favored by many blessings, there was always a solitary place in his heart—a void which the world could not satisfy or fill. In society he was gay and cheerful, kind and generous, and the grief that was buried deep within his heart was known only to his Maker.

The Associated Press.

"The Associated Press is a great boon, is it not?" said the cigarette smoking scion of a South Side sire to a beautiful Boston girl, full of sentiment and oysters as they were returning from the theater. "It is, indeed," she replied, in soft tones: "George and I had one all last winter; but papa came in one night before George could take his arm away and acted dreadfully. Do they have them in Chicago?" "I should blush to murmur," responded the untutored Chicagoan as he measured her surcingle belt with his strong right arm.—Chicago Tribune.

POPULAR SCIENCE.

The fuel of the living body is food.

Salicylic acid is much used in Germany to keep water free from impurities.

A meteorological station is to be established on the celebrated Scottish mountain, Ben Nevis.

The metals which are found to longest retain heat are brass and copper; next iron, and lastly in order lead.

In a new electric battery one of the elements is composed of sheet-iron less than the ten-thousandth part of an inch in thickness.

Scientists have declared that the Blue Hill Range of Massachusetts is older, in a geological point of view, than the Alps or the Pyrenees of Europe.

Water filtered through charcoal becomes perfectly pure, the charcoal absorbing all disagreeable tastes and smells, whether they arise from animal or vegetable impurities.

The great glacier which gives rise to the Zarafshan River in Central Asia has been explored and recently described by Mr. Mushketof, a Russian geologist. It is fifteen miles long, and a mile wide.

It is known as a fact in geology that below the depth of thirty feet the earth becomes regularly warmer as we descend. On an average the increase is at the rate of one degree of Fahrenheit for every fifty feet.

A journey across Africa from south to north is to be undertaken by Dr. Emil Holub, of Prague, under the auspices of the Vienna Geographical Society. He thinks he can traverse the continent lengthwise in three years.

In his new scientific treatise on island life, Mr. Alfred R. Wallace, the eminent English naturalist, estimates the period embracing the formation of all the fossil-bearing rocks, since the Cambrain, at twenty-eight millions of years.

A Bavarian chemist is reported to have invented an enameling liquid which renders any species of stone or cement harder than granite, and gives it the indelible appearance of any mineral that may be desired.

The leading peculiarity of rice is the very large proportion of starch and the very small proportion of gluten which it contains, there being but one part of gluten to thirteen parts of starch. In wheat there are two parts of gluten to every nine parts of starch.

Sulphide of carbon has been used with complete success in France for the purpose of exterminating wasps. A small quantity is introduced into the aperture by which the insects go in and out of their nest, and the result is the immediate destruction of the entire colony. The aperture should be closed after pouring in the liquid or forcing it in with a syringe.

According to Dr. Edward Smith, an egg contains 15¼ per cent. of carbon, and 2 per cent. of nitrogen. Another writer estimates that the value of one pound of eggs, as food for sustaining the active forces of the body, is to the value of one pound of lean beef as 1,584 is to 900. As a flesh-producer one pound of eggs is about equal to one pound of beef.

One of the leading chemical manufactories of Germany employs six regular chemists with salaries ranging from $1,500 to $2,500 yearly, and in addition engages the services of an eminent chemist for theoretical work exclusively, paying him nearly $10,000 per annum. It is doubtless to this liberal patronage of qualified scientists that the superiority of German chemical manufactures is due.

Some support to the theory that not the brain alone, but the whole nervous system may really be the seat of the mind, is afforded by Prof. O. C. Marsh's latest researches concerning the extinct reptiles of the Rocky-Mountain region. One mammoth skeleton belonging to a creature which he has named Stegosaurus, must have been clothed with a body as large as that of an alligator, while the brain cavity corresponds in size to that of a dog.

The sources of petroleum are found in almost every part of the globe, and the use of the article would seem well nigh coeval with civilization. There is a spring in one of the Ionian islands, which has yielded petroleum more than 2,000 years. The city of Genoa was formerly lighted by oil from the wells of Armenia, on the banks of the Zaro. In Persia, also, near the Caspian Sea, at Baku, numerous springs of petroleum have been known from the earliest time; and those of Rangoon, on the Irawaddy, are said to have yielded, before the general introduction of petroleum, some 400,000 hogsheads of oil a year.

Old-Time Epizootics.

Thanks to the general use of steam in traveling, it is comforting to reflect that in spite of the very great annoyance and inconvenience caused by the horse diseases in recent years, particularly by the epizootic which prevailed in the year 1872, the inconveniences to which people are subjected nowadays in the lack of horses are really much less grave than those which our ancestors had to contend with, in similar circumstances. For our forefathers, the prevalence of a severe epizootic meant the cessation of all traveling and transportation, whether for long or for short distances; excepting, of course, such service as may be done by oxen and by men on foot. Some idea of the gravity of the situation is suggested by the following extracts from an old Birmingham newspaper: On February 4, 1760, notice was published that "the horses belonging to the Birmingham stage coach are so much affected by the present distemper that prevails among them, that its journies are obliged to be discontinued until their recovery." And in the week following another notice appears under that of February 11, 1760, "the horses belonging to the Birmingham stage coach are still so bad that it would be dangerous to attempt their going with the coach this week; but on Monday next, the 18th, Mr. Payton proposes that the coach shall set out to go from hence as usual; after which he hopes it will meet with no other interruption."

Open Windows.

"Windows open more would keep doctors from the door." A very large quantity of fresh air is spoiled and rendered foul by the act of breathing. A man spoils not less than a gallon every minute. In eight hours' breathing a man spoils as much air as seventeen three-bushel sacks could hold. If he were shut up in a room seven feet broad, seven feet long, and seven feet high, the doors and windows fitting so tightly that no air could pass through, he would die poisoned by his own breath in a few hours; in twenty-four hours he would have spoiled all the air contained in the room, and have converted it into poison. Reader, when you rise to-morrow morning, just go out of doors for five minutes, and observe carefully the freshness of the air. That air is in the state Heaven keeps it for breathing. Then come back suddenly into your close room, and your own sense will at once make you feel how very far the air in your chamber is from being in the same wholesome and serviceable condition.

Horse Thieves of India.

The Khyber Pass is the chief gateway into Cabul. Sixteen miles from it is the city of Peshawur. Two miles from the city is the English cantonment, containing nine or ten regiments. The adjoining valley and hills are full of professional robbers. The objects which they love to steal are arms, money, and horses. In securing these they show skill and daring. A writer in Chamber's Journal tells several anecdotes of these thieves, which exhibit their skill in horse stealing:

The most popular plan of horse stealing requires at least three men to carry it out comfortably and successfully. One of them quietly steals his way into the stable, and lays hold of a cord which has been pushed through one of the air-holes in the wall by one of his friends outside.

The two use the string as a saw, while the third pours upon it a plentiful supply of water. The cord silently and speedily cuts its way down the mud wall.

In a wonderfully short time the three craftsmen manage to saw around a portion of the wall, which, when pushed outwards, leaves a space sufficient to allow a horse to pass out.

This done, the remaining work presents no difficulty. The ropes which bind the horse are cut, and in a short time he is cantering to the hills, with generally two and sometimes his three new masters on his back.

A somewhat bold and impudent exploit in the horse-stealing line was the amusement and the talk of the station for some days. The cantonment is literally a camp.

At sundown a chain of sentries communicating with each other is posted right around it. This demands a great number of men, and all regiments, cavalry and infantry, European and native, nightly give their proportions.

A native trooper on the occasion to which I refer, fastened his horse to the peg fixed about the middle of his "beat;" and to keep up his courage and himself warm—the night was very dark and bitterly cold—walked pretty smartly backwards and forwards on his "beat."

The extent of this walk was not more than thirty yards, and thus at no time could he have been more than fifteen yards from his charger. He was armed in the usual way, with a short rifle and tulwar, or sword.

While thus doing duty, a hill man managed to crawl quite close to him without exciting notice and waiting quietly until the sentry was near the end of his walk, and, of course, with his back to the horse, the robber cut the charger's rope, mounted him, and in a moment was galloping away from the station.

The sentry fired his rifle in the direction in which his steed had gone; guards turned out, and a great noise was raised; but the outwitted soldier never saw his horse again.

To him the loss was a serious one, as the horses of the native cavalry regiments do not belong to the Government, but to the troopers themselves.

Parlor Magic.

Borrow a Panama hat, the more expensive the better, and hold it up so that your audience can see that it does not contain either a savings bank or a white whale. You then procure an ordinary kerosene lamp, remove the shade and light the wick. You are now ready. Pass the hat five or six times over the light, or until it is a complete blaze; then quickly placing the hat in a box, into which you have previously deposited two pounds of common gunpowder—the hat and box will instantly disappear. This trick never fails to astonish.

A very amusing, although exciting trick, is to cause a person in the audience to start from his seat without the aid of machinery, bent pins, or the placing of hands. This feat requires a little preparation during the day, as will be seen. You open a book and pretend to read as if from its contents, and immediately a young lady in the audience will start toward you with a shriek, and if you are wise you will have a rear window open, through which you can pass. The secret of the trick consists in your reading a purloined letter of your sister's from her lover.

Lay a wager with some gentleman in front of you that he can not walk to within three feet of you without pausing and throwing back his head, assuring him that the floor will not be obstructed in any manner. This trick never fails, and its success depends upon having a well-waxed thread streched across the room at the height of the gentleman's throat. Do not attempt this with your father.

A good conclusion to an evening's entertainment of this kind is called "Dissolving Feat," in which you turn out the gas for sixty seconds, and on lighting it the room will be vacated of all but yourself. The moment the gas is turned out you produce from a hermetically sealed box about a pound of Limberger cheese. The effect is wonderful, especially if the evening be very warm.

If you are not a ventriloquist you can, nevertheless, make your friends believe you are. Before the audience assembles place your little brother under a barrel, having, of course, first instructed him as to the replies he should make to your questions. At the proper time you walk up to the barrel, and, giving it a sharp rap with your knuckles, say: "Are you there, sir?" The reply comes, "No, I am somewhere else!" Then you hold an animated conversation with a supposed (?) person, in which many of your family secrets are divulged, and when at the close you inform your audience that you will imitate a drowning person and pour a pail of water through a hole in the head of a barrel, all are wonderfully amazed except your brother, who will be madder than a hatter.

PITH AND POINT.

The candle-wick is up to snuff.

The cream of a joke should never be sour.

Usually "through by daylight"—Sleep.

What is it that by losing an eye has only a nose left? A noise.

A crack invisible to the naked eye. The crack of a whip.

Never scare off a fly with a club when a feather will do as well.

A new novel is called "Man Proposes." It is certainly not a leap-year story.

A kiss on the forehead of some of our modern girls is a sort of salaam bang salutation.

Out in Montana, when they start a man down hill in a barrel, they speak of his "appearance in a new role."

Grace—"I am going to see Clara to-day. Have you any message?" Charlotte—"I wonder how you can visit that dreadful girl. Give her my love."

Before marriage,
With wondrous care,
She seeks the mirror
And bangs her hair.
After marriage,
With angry glare,
She grabs her slipper
And bangs her heir.

Recorder—"You are very young to be stealing for a living. Are you going to make that your profession?" "Yes, sir; my father wants me to learn the rudiments thoroughly before I run for office."

"I smell sumfin a burning," remarked an aged negro, who sat at the camp-fire toasting his extremities. "Gosh!" he added, a moment later, with a loud yell, "it's dis niggah's own fut!"

"I say, Clem," cried two disputing darkies, appealing for decision to a sable umpire; "which word is right—disactly or dexactly?" The sable umpire reflected a moment, and then, with a look of wisdom, said: "I can't tell, persactly."

"Have you given electricity a trial for your complaint, madam?" asked the minister, as he took tea with the old lady. "Electricity?" said she. "Well, yes, I reckon I has. I was struck by lightning last summer, and hove out of the window, but it didn't seem to me no sort of good."

The New York Tribune reports the Rev. W. H. H. Murray as saying: "Death is perfinirion, that is all." Well, if that is all—if death is simply a "pe"—what-do-you-call-it—"finirion," it can't have a sting, as alleged. We always had a sneaking sort of feeling that it was one of those things, but, owing to a rush of political news, we never got room to say so.—Norristown Herald.

Board Schoolmaster (desiring to explain the word "conceited," which had occurred in the course of the reading-lesson)—"Now, boys, suppose that I was always boasting of my learning—that I knew a good deal o' Latin, for instance, or that my personal appearance was—that I was very good-looking, y' know—what should you say I was?" Straightforward boy (who had "caught the Speaker's eye")—"I should say you was a liar, s'."

Mrs. Susan Coolidge has written a volume of verse, and in the prelude to the work remarks that:

Poems are heavenly things,
And only souls with wings
May reach them where they grow,
May pluck and bear below,
Visiting the nations thus
With food all glorious.

You are wrong, Susan. There is not a solitary soul with wings in this office, and yet you can stand most anywhere and reach poems. Unfortunately, the people who wrote them are out of reach.—Chicago Tribune.

It is a nice thing to be very bright, and to give what is supposed to be a witty answer to every query, but sometimes one gets caught in his own trap. "What is a crime?" asked the grave professor in a theological college. "A crime!" answered the wit of the class, "why, it is when a man does something." "Then," said the professor, as he looked over his glasses at the youth, "I think no one could accuse you, Mr. Brown, of ever committing a crime."

"Now, you know," remarked the new Sunday-school teacher, as he beamed kindly on the interested class of boys, "that Robert Bruce, as he lay on the bed, saw a spider cast its web seven times, failing every time, but the eighth attempt was successful. Now, what was the result?" And he looked into the eager, upturned faces before him. And then an exceedingly small boy, with phenomenally large freckles, at the foot of the class, whose folks had been cleaning house the week before, spoke up and said that the woman came in the next morning with a broom and dust-pan, and carried the spider out, a clay-cold corpse. And then the school sang, while the new teacher sat down and wiped his forehead.

Waiting the Resurrection.

In New London, Ct., is a lot containing five graves, those of a man and his four wives. The women's form four sides of a square, and the man's is in the center, while the inscriptions are as follows:

My III. wife.
My I. wife.
Our Husband.
My II. wife.
My IIII. wife.

Ladies' Patches.

The beauties of the court of Louis XV. thought they had made a notable discovery when they gummed pieces of black taffeta on their cheeks to heighten the brilliancy of their complexions. The ladies in England had before adopted patches, in quaint shapes, as of a crescent or coach and horses, etc. An epigram was written:

Her patches are of every cut,
For pimples and for scars;
Here's all the wandering planets' signs,
And some of the fixed stars!

The coach and horse patch was an especial favorite. Anstey, in his satire, "The Bath Guide," enumerated "velvet patches" as among a fine lady's necessities; but about the beginning of the present century they seemed gradually to fall out of fashion in England.

Coal is so scarce in some parts of the West that young people engaged in courting have to sit on each other's laps to keep warm.

HUMORS OF THE DAY.

A celebrated case—Switzer Kase.

Tramps' hats supply a long felt want.

The balloonist's home is one flight up.

Hear us, Cassius (cash us,) or we sink.

Be virtuous and you will be—a curiosity.—Modern Argo.

Lovers' a cottage is more common than lovin' the cottage's mistress.

A German grocer calls his scales "ambush" because they lie in weight.

Some men are called muffs because they are used to keep a flirt's hand in.

The best of us are very apt to be mealy-mouthed about three times a day.

The deaf man who had a scolding wife remarked, "Man wants but little hear below."

The experiment has been tried often enough to prove that a jack-knife is not a night-key.

"Well, wife, you can't say I ever contracted bad habits." "No, sir, you generally expand them."

What tree in the forest would be most likely to be known by its bark? We should think the dog wood.

The choir doesn't care so much for the congregational singing. It looks out for the main chants.—Boston Transcript.

"He's an honest young man," said the saloon-keeper, with an approving smile; "he sold his note to pay his whisky bill."

Puck speaks of a Western New York man who cures all diseases by immersion in cold water, and calls him a "canalopath."

Every man in St. Louis owns a dog. The object is to increase the puppylation until it rivals that of Chicago.—Boston Globe.

"I am a man of few words," said Prendergast. "True enough," replied Fog, "true enough; but you never tire of repeating them."

A man writes to an editor for $4 "because he is so terribly short," and gets in reply the heartless response, "Do as I do; stand up on a chair."

An Ohio man has taken the small-pox from a pet pig. When once this disease gets into a family it is pretty sure to go through it.—Galveston News.

Young clergyman at a clerical meeting: "I merely throw out the idea." Old minister: "Well, I think that is the best thing you can do with it."

An Illinois exchange says: "Peoria distilleries are now feeding 16,350 head of cattle." And furnishing drink to as many more, no doubt.—Peck's Sun.

"Would you like to look through the big telescope?" asked one girl of another. To which the latter replied: "No, I'd a great deal rather look through a keyhole."

Mr. Hyer was married to Miss Joy. The friends of the victims were shocked when the press called her "a thing of beauty," because she was "a Joy for Ever."

A newspaper commenting on the fact that a farmer nearly lost his life by sinking in a quagmire, adds: "Men who do not subscribe for a paper must expect to be snaked in every now and then."

When you hear a young lady very carefully say, "I haven't saw," you may be quite confident that she is a recent graduate from one of the most thorough of our numerous female seminaries.

A pupil of the Latin school being confined to his room by sickness, was called upon by a young friend. "What, Charley," said the visitor, "sick, eh?" "Yes," was the answer, "sic sum!"

De Brancas was very absent-minded. He called one day at a friend's house, and asked if he were in. "No, sir," replied the servant, "he was buried eight days ago, and you were one of the pall-bearers."

We'll bet a cent that not a man who has blown out the gas and been suffocated during the past ten years, ever took and read his county paper. Now is the time to subscribe.—Steubenville Herald.

Answer This.

Did you ever know any person to be ill without inaction of the Stomach, Liver or Kidneys, or did you ever know one who was well when either was obstructed or inactive; and did you ever know or hear of any case of that kind that Hop Bitters would not cure? Ask your neighbor this same question.—Times.

Manitoba Lake.

The Manitoba lake, which has given name to the province formed out of the Red river region, is called after a small island, whence, in the stillness of the night, issue strangely-sweet, mysterious sounds. The Ojibway Indians who dwell in that neighborhood believe the island to be the home of Manitoba, the speaking God, and will not land on or approach it for any consideration, thinking they would desecrate or profane it, and that they would meet with some terrible fate for their impiety. The sound is caused, it has been ascertained, by the beating of the waves on the large pebbles along the shore. These, with fragments of fine-grained, compact limestone from the cliffs above, are rubbed together by the action of the water, and give out a tone like that of distant church bells. This natural music is heard when the wind blows from the north, and, as it subsides, low, plaintive notes, resembling voices of an invisible choir, are heard. It has been compared to the chant of the nuns at the Trinita de Monti in Rome, with which all travelers are familiar. The effect is impressive. Tourists have been awakened at night in the vicinity, under the impression that chimes of bells were ringing afar off, and that their tones were rippling over the lake. The mystic bells of Manitoba have acquired such a reputation that travelers are not satisfied until they are heard, and often spend days there waiting for the blowing of the north wind. The Ojibways have a number of poetic legends about their speaking God, whom they profoundly revere.

An Undergraduate's Excuse.

An undergraduate was summoned before one of the Dons for not attending the 7 o'clock morning chapel. "Sir," said the Don, "let me hear what you have to say in excuse of your persistent absence from morning prayers." "Sir," replied the delinquent, "the service is too late for me to be present." "Too late, sir! How can 7 in the morning be considered a late hour?" "Well," replied the ingenious offender, "were the hour 4 or 5, or even 6, I might manage to be present; but to expect a man to sit up till 7 o'clock in the morning in order to go to church is more than human nature will endure."—Chambers' Journal.

Music Hath Charms, Etc.

[From the St. Louis Western Watchman.]

One of the great manufacturing interests of Boston is the Emerson Piano Company, whose pianos are used with high appreciation and satisfaction throughout the world. In a recent conversation with Mr. Jos. Gramer, one of the proprietors, that gentleman remarked: I have used that splendid remedy, St. Jacobs Oil, in my family, and found it to be so very beneficial that I will never be without it. It has cured me of a severe case of rheumatism, after other remedies had failed.

The Grand Rush of an Engine to a Fire.

You are sitting at tea when the alarm rings. You don't know the box, but you rush out on the street and stare around you. In a moment the ominous rush comes on the ear. The horses cantering out of their stables, the firemen, nimble as cats, leap to their stations, the wide doors are thrown open, three policemen dash out of No. 1 to see the start, and bang, ding! whish! rush! G'lang! look out! ding! dong! ding! away they go like a tornado. Crash! a baby may be burning. Bang! sleeping children may be smothering. Ding, dong, ding! An old man, feeble and rheumatic, may be staggering in smoke. Look out! the strong man, blistered with flames, is yelling for his babies! Look out, then! look out! stand aside, and let them pass. Here they come like a storm. The driver stooping down with slacked rein, speaking to the intent steeds that big-eyed, wide-nostriled and strained, go thundering on. The foreman sitting by his side, erect and defiant, with arms folded, looks lion-faced at the sky searching for the ominous glare. The firemen behind him clinging like cats to a ladder, dressing themselves as the machine thunders on. The ubiquitous reporter taking notes on the boom-plate of the lofty ladder. Bang, boom, bang! look out! They pass a crossing like an earthquake on wheels. The horses, alive and stung with the same enthusiasm which fills the firemen, spurn the rough street and dash along as if a prairie on fire was chasing them. They need no whip, they need no lash; their big arteries are churning with hot blood; their big muscles are strung to the task they love. The wild horse followed fast by fed fire never sped like they. With ears laid back, with eyes standing out from the bony face, with nostrils red as if with blood, they gallop on untiring.

The branchman gets out his key, the foreman is all ready. Ding, ding, ding! Another crossing. Ding, dong, swush! The firemen gather themselves for the final jump. Bang! "We're near the fire, lads—look out." Crash! All right. Bang! Here's the box. Jump for your lives! Bang! bang! bang! They jump. The horses' sides heave like big bellows. Their noble heads fall between their trembling knees; the sunk tails quiver; the pointed ears droop like limp leather, and the firemen, eloquent with enthusiasm, dash into the street, and an old woman, wiping her hands—"The Lord bless you, gentlemen, but it was only our chimney; and the Lord bless you, I—" and the gang go home and play dominoes. The horses stand waiting for the next, and just as willing to jump as the man who had been waiting an hour for a shave.—Toronto World.

A Strong Conqueror.

[From the Milwaukee Evening Wisconsin.]

According to an Illinois exchange, our days of Rheumatism are well nigh numbered. St. Jacobs Oil enters a rheumatic territory, and conquers every subject. That's right. We believe in it.

A Good Dog Story.

A correspondent of the Spectator writes that this story of a dog's sagacity may be relied upon as true: During the meeting of the British Association at Glasgow, a friend of mine had occasion to go one day from that place to Greenock on business. Hearing, on his arrival, that the person he wished to see was out, but expected shortly to return home, he determined to take a stroll about the town, to which he was a stranger. In the course of his walk he turned into a baker's shop and bought a bun. As he stood at the door of the shop eating his bun a large dog came up to him and begged for a share, which he got and seemed to enjoy, coming back for piece after piece. "Does the dog belong to you?" my friend asked of the shop woman. "No," she answered, "but he spends most of time here, and begs half-pennies from the people who pass." "Half-pennies! What good can they do him?" "Oh, he knows very well what to do with them; he comes into the shop and buys cakes!"

This seemed rather a remarkable instance of cleverness even for the cleverest of animals; so, by way of testing its reality, my friend went out of the shop into the street, where he was immediately accosted by the dog, who begged for something with all the eloquence of which a dog is capable. He offered him a half-penny and was rather surprised to see him accept it readily and walk with the air of a regular customer into the shop, where he put his fore paws on the counter and held out the half-penny toward the attendant. The young woman produced a bun, but that did not suit the dog, and he held his money fast. "Ah," said she, "I know what he wants," and took down from a shelf a plate of short-bread. This was right; the dog paid his half-penny, took his short-bread and ate it with decorous satisfaction. When he had quite finished he left the shop, and my friend, much amused, followed him, and when he again begged, found another half-penny for him, and saw the whole process gone through a second time.

This dog clearly had learned by some means the use of money, and not merely that it would buy something to eat, but that it would buy several things, among which he could exercise a right of choice. What is perhaps most remarkable is that his proceedings were entirely independent, and for his own benefit, not that of any teacher or master.

A painter who was well acquainted with the dire effects of the law had to represent two men—one who had gained a lawsuit and another who had lost one. He painted the former with a shirt on and the latter naked.

If you are coughing or not, but feel the presence of a cold in the system, use Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup and feel immediate relief. Price 25 cents a bottle.

Father is Getting Well.

My daughters say: "How much better father is since he used Hop Bitters. He is getting well after his long suffering from a disease declared incurable, and we are so glad he used your Bitters."—A lady of Rochester, N. Y.—Utica Herald.

Odd Statistics.

A Detroiter has been collecting and arranging statistics of an odd nature, and, if his book is ever published, readers will find nothing dry about it. He goes right to business on page 1 by estimating the number of lickings received by the average boy up to his 14th year at 125. This includes the spanking process during infancy.

Out of every 100,000 people in this country 19,000 get up cross in the morning, but only a hundred or so remain in that condition very long after breakfast.

Out of 50,000 men only 600 will put up money on a bet. The rest will crawfish around, and finally back water on their assertions.

Only ten women out of every 500 who start out on a journey by railroad consult a railroad map or have the least idea of the direction they take. Four hundred and ninety-eight worry about their baggage; 497 are certain they took the wrong train; 499 wish they had never started.

The risk of being bitten by a dog is greatly overestimated. Out of every 1,000 big and little dogs only two care to get up a row with the human race, and those two are ready and willing to die.

The number of men who can put in a more pleasant evening down town than at their own fireside is on the decrease, and the number of wives who are taking a little extra pains to make home more pleasant than a concert-saloon is on the increase.

Out of every 1,000 men who get mad and swear they will see a lawyer about it only fifteen carry out their intentions.

Only one woman in 5,000 pays the first price asked for a bonnet, and only one milliner in 1,000,000 expects her to.

The time occupied by the average man in buying a full suit of clothes is just one-fourth the time occupied by the average woman in buying a pair of stockings.—Detroit Free Press.

A Compromise.

A man was once asked how he and his wife got along with so little friction in the family machinery. "Well," said he, "when we first married we both wanted our own way. I wanted to sleep on linen sheets, my wife preferred cotton, and we couldn't agree. Finally we talked the matter over, and came to the conclusion that it was unchristian to live in constant bickering; so we compromised on linen, and have got along all right ever since."

More People Die

from diseased Kidneys than of consumption, but not one fatal case in a thousand would occur if Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure was taken in time. By all means try it.

Try to Please.

"What is the secret of the success of Miss ——?"—one of the belles in Washington—we asked of a friend. "She does not appear remarkably intellectual, and she is not very beautiful."

"No," said the person addressed, "but she tries to please people."

And this was the secret of her being loved.

The Epizootic

Has again made its appearance in various parts of the country. As prevention is better than cure, the attention of owners of stock is called to UNCLE SAM'S CONDITION POWDERS. These celebrated powders stand unrivaled for their excellency as a preventive from disease. By mixing with the feed they will keep the animal in the best general health, toning up the system and keeping the digestive organs and blood in a healthy condition.

The Powders are warranted to give perfect satisfaction. Prepared by the Emmert Proprietary Co., Chicago, Ill. Put up in 25 and 50-cent packages, and sold by all druggists.

Vegetine is a great panacea for our aged fathers and mothers; for it gives them strength, quiets their nerves, and gives them Nature's sweet sleep.

For a pamphlet on Electric Treatment of chronic diseases with Electricity, which will be sent free, address the McIntosh Electric Belt and Battery Co., 192 & 194 Jackson St., Chicago, Ill.

All respectable dealers sell Frazer axle grease because it is the genuine and gives perfect satisfaction.

Style, fit and ease combine in the diamond boots and shoes. Try them! Rosenthal Bros., Chicago.

Ask your Druggist for Dr. Bosanko's Rheumatic Cure. It never fails.

Dr. BULL'S

COUGH

SYRUP

BIG WAGES, summer and winter. Samples free. National Copying Co., 300 West Madison st., Chicago.

YOUNG MEN Learn Telegraphy! Earn $40 to $100 a month. Graduates guaranteed paying offices. Address VALENTINE BROS., Janesville, Wis.

$350 A MONTH! Agents Wanted! 75 Best-Selling Articles in the world; a sample free. JAY BRONSON, Detroit, Mich.

OPIUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till Cured. DR. J. STEPHENS, Lebanon, Ohio.

$777 A YEAR and expenses to agents. Outfit Free. Address P. O. VICKERY, Augusta, Maine.

MUSTACHE & WHISKERS [illegible]

PURE TEAS. Agents wanted everywhere to sell to families, hotels and large consumers; largest stock in the country; quality and terms the best. Country storekeepers should call or write THE WELLS TEA COMPANY, 201 Fulton st., N. Y. P. O. Box 4560.

EMPLOYMENT—LOCAL OR Travelling. State which preferred. Also SALARY per month. All EXPENSES advanced. WAGES promptly paid. SLOAN & Co. 306 George St. Cincinnati, O.

CLOTHING TO ORDER ONLY. SAMPLES FURNISHED. FOR THE TRADE ONLY. Manufacturing for COUNTRY TAILORS a specialty. J. D. SAMUELSON & CO., 7½ Fountain Square, CINCINNATI, O. Correspondence solicited.

Printers' Outfits.

Printers about to embark in the Newspaper or Printing Business in this State will find it to their interest to address PRINTERS' EXCHANGE, Box 328, Chicago, Ill., before purchasing outfits.

VEGETINE.

The Barks, Roots and Herbs

FROM WHICH VEGETINE IS MADE

In Powder Form,

SOLD FOR

50 Cents a Package.

VEGETINE

For Kidney Complaint and Nervous Debility.

ISLESBORO, ME., Dec. 28, 1877.

MR. STEVENS:

Dear Sir—I had had a cough for eighteen years, when I commenced taking the Vegetine. I was very low; my system was debilitated by disease. I had the Kidney Complaint, and was very nervous—cough bad, lungs sore. When I had taken one bottle I found it was helping me; it has helped my cough, and it strengthens me. I am now able to do my work. Never have found anything like the Vegetine. I know it is everything it is recommended to be.

MRS. A. J. PENDLETON.

Dr. W. ROSS Writes:

Scrofula, Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia, Rheumatism, Weakness.

H. R. STEVENS, Boston:

I have been practicing medicine for twenty-five years, and as a remedy for Scrofula, Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia, Rheumatism, Weakness, and all diseases of the blood, I have never found its equal. I have sold Vegetine for seven years, and have never had one bottle returned. I would heartily recommend it to those in need of a blood purifier.

DR. W. ROSS, Druggist,

Sept. 18, 1878. Wilton, Iowa.

Vegetine in Powder Form is sold by all druggists and general stores. If you cannot buy it of them, enclose fifty cents in postage stamps for one package, or one dollar for two packages, and I will send it by return mail.

VEGETINE

PREPARED BY

H. R. STEVENS, Boston, Mass.

HOSTETTER'S

CELEBRATED

STOMACH

BITTERS

Sleep, Appetite and Strength

Return when Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is systematically used by a bilious dyspeptic sufferer. Moreover, since the brain sympathizes closely with the stomach and its associate organs, the liver and the bowels, as their derangement is rectified by the action of the Bitters, mental despondency produced by that derangement disappears.

For sale by all Druggists and Dealers generally.

PISO'S CURE for Consumption is also the best cough medicine.

CRISTADORO'S Hair Dye is the SAFEST and BEST; it acts instantaneously producing the most natural shades of Black or Brown; does NOT STAIN the SKIN, and is easily applied. It is a standard preparation, and a favorite on every well-appointed toilet for Lady or Gentleman. Sold by Druggists and applied by Hair-Dressers. Depot 93 William St., New York. C. N. CRITTENTON, Ag't.

Deafness, Ear Diseases, Catarrh.

Dr. C. E. SHOEMAKER, the well-known experienced Aural Surgeon, Author, and Writer on the above Diseases, may be consulted by mail or personally at his office, No. 615 Walnut St., Reading, Pa. His small book sent free. His large and complete work of 375 pages on Deafness, Diseases of the Ear and Tonsils, and Catarrh, and their proper treatment; price $2 by mail.

NOTE.—No one will question Dr. Shoemaker's standing or skill.

SAPONIFIER

Is the "Original" Concentrated Lye and Reliable Family Soap Maker. Directions accompany each Can for making Hard, Soft and Toilet soap quickly. It is full weight and strength. Ask your grocer for SAPONIFIER, and take no other.

Penn'a Salt Manufact'ng Co., Phila.

SEEDS

I will give you the best Seeds for the least money of any firm in America or refund. Western Seeds are best. Mine take the lead. Gardeners say they never fail. I used 5000 lbs paper to print 30000 pretty Catalogues illustrated with $2000 worth of engravings. It beats the world, worth many dollars. FREE. Prices below all. R. H. SHUMWAY, Rockford, Ill.

Best Seeds cheap pretty Book Free.

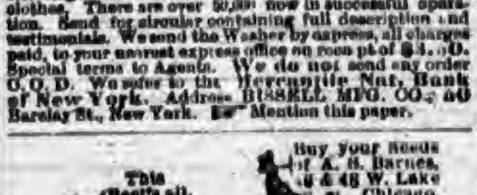
C. GILBERT'S STARCH

AGENTS WANTED FOR THE PICTORIAL HISTORY OF THE WORLD

Embracing full and authentic accounts of every nation of ancient and modern times, and including a history of the rise and fall of the Greek and Roman Empires, the middle ages, the crusades, the feudal system, the reformation, the discovery and settlement of the New World, etc., etc. It contains 672 fine historical engravings, and is the most complete History of the World ever published. Send for specimen pages and extra terms to Agents. Address NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO., Chicago, Ill.

Washing Day!

Is no more to be dreaded, as the ROBBINS FAMILY WASHER will wash clothes clean, without rubbing or wear and tear of the material. The Washer produces a constant flow of boiling soap suds, which pass through the fabric, remove the dirt, and bleach the clothes. There are over 50,000 now in successful operation. Send for circular containing full description and testimonials. We send the Washer by express, all charges paid, to your nearest express office on receipt of $4.50. Special terms to Agents. We do not send any order C. O. D. We refer to the [illegible] Nat. Bank of New York. Address BISSELL MFG. CO., 50 Barclay St., New York. Mention this paper.



This Beet's all.

Buy your Seeds of A. H. Barnes, 46 & 48 W. Lake St., Chicago.

SEEDS—Choice selections from the most reliable growers and importers. All seeds in stock. Every variety tested before offered for sale. Special attention given to orders by mail. Seeds shipped by mail or express to any part of the United States. Reference: Home National Bank, Chicago; Furst & Bradley M'f'g Co., Chicago; Kirby, Carpenter & Co., Chicago. Send for Catalogue of Seeds and Farm Machinery. A. H. BARNES, 46 & 48 W. Lake St., Chicago, Ill.

Inventions of Women.

The list of woman's inventions of recent date is by no means blank. One of the best machines now in use for the manufacture of paper bags is the invention of Mary E. Knight, of Springfield, Mass. The accomplished wife of Father Hyacinthe holds a patent for an improved corset. The Empress Eugenie invented the many flounced bustle—the precursor of the extinct crinoline. Mrs. Walton has devised a way of deadening the noise on the elevated railroads, and a spark arrester for locomotives. Women obtain from the Government an average of about sixty patents yearly. During the year ending July, 1880, women received some seventy patents, a list of the subjects, which is appended, as a useful showing of the tendency of the inventive faculties of the sex. As might be expected, the plurality of articles relate to the lightening of woman's work. Among them are a jar-lifter, a bag-holder, a pillow-sham holder, a dress protector, two dust-pans, a washing machine, a fluting iron, a dress chart, a fish-boner, a sleeve-adjuster, a lap table, a seaming-machine treadle, a wash basin, an iron heater, sad-irons, a garment stiffener, a folding chair, a wardrobe bed, a window-cleaner, a napkin, a clothespin, a weather-strip, a churn, an invalid's bed, a strainer, a milk-cooler, a sofa-bed, a dipper, a paper dish, and a plaiting device. In the line of purely mechanical contrivances appear a car-step, a baggage attachment for vehicles, a shoe-channeling machine, a guard for sleeping berths, a loom for tubular fabrics, a window frame, an oil burner, a life-raft, a window-fastener, a locomotive's chimney, a buckle, paper bag machines, dumping-wagon and a bale-tie. Besides these are braces, corsets, a hat-cover, a collar, a doll supporter, a shawl-strap, corset-clasps, undergarments, a game, a shoe and a hair-wash.

Some fellow has figured out that Vanderbilt's income would allow him to visit 8,000 circuses, eat 20,000 pints of peanuts, and drink 5,000 glasses of lemonade every day in the year.

RHEUMATISM

BY THE USE OF

DR. BOSANKO'S

RHEUMATIC CURE,

THE GREAT

ALKALINE REMEDY.

TRY IT AND BE CURED.

PRICE, 75 Cents.

ASK YOUR DRUGGIST FOR IT.

Address THE DR. BOSANKO MEDICINE CO., PIQUA, O.

If you are a man of business, weakened by the strain of your duties avoid stimulants and use Hop Bitters.

If you are a man of letters toiling over midnight work, to restore brain nerve and waste, use Hop B.

If you are young and suffering from any indiscretion or dissipation; if you are married or single, old or young, suffering from poor health or languishing on a bed of sickness, rely on Hop Bitters.

Whoever you are, whenever you feel that your system needs cleansing, toning or stimulating, without intoxicating, take Hop Bitters.

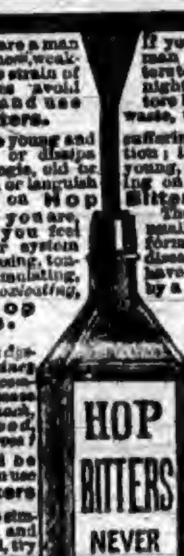
Thousands die annually from some form of Kidney disease that might have been prevented by a timely use of Hop Bitters.

Have you dyspepsia, kidney or urinary complaint, disease of the stomach, bowels, blood, liver or nerves? You will be cured if you use Hop Bitters.

If you are simply weak and low spirited, try it! It may save your life. It has saved hundreds.



D. I. C. is an absolute and irresistible cure for drunkenness, use of opium, tobacco, or narcotics.

Sold by druggists. Send for Circular.

HOP BITTERS M'F'G CO., Rochester, N. Y. & Toronto, Ont.

PLAYS! PLAYS! PLAYS! PLAYS! For Reading Clubs, for Amateur Theatricals, Temperance Plays, Drawing-Room Plays, Fairy Plays, Ethiopian Plays, Guide Books, Speakers, Pantomimes, Tableaux Lights, Magnesium Lights, Colored Fire, Burnt Cork, Theatrical Face Preparations, Jarley's Wax Works, Wigs, Beards and Moustaches at reduced prices. Costumes, Scenery, Charades. New catalogues sent free containing full description and prices. SAMUEL FRENCH & SON, 38 E. 14th Street, New York.

CELLULOID EYE-GLASSES.

Representing the choicest-selected Tortoise-Shell and Amber. The lightest, handsomest, and strongest known. Sold by Opticians and Jewelers. Made by the SPENCER OPTICAL M'F'G CO., 13 Maiden Lane, New York.

10 CENTS a Month, OR One Dollar a Year.

THE CHICAGO LEDGER will be sent to any address, postage paid, at the prices named above. Send in your names. Address THE LEDGER, Chicago, Ill.

"Dr. Sykes' Sure Cure" FOR "CATARRH"

Cures Without Fail. Ask your Druggist for it.

Price of "Sure Cure" and "Insufflator" all complete is only $1.50. Valuable book of full information, 10 cents. Name this paper and address DR. C. R. SYKES, 169 E. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

PENSIONS!

New Law. Thousands of Soldiers and heirs entitled. Pensions date back to discharge or death. Time limited. Address, with stamp,

GEORGE E. LEMON,

P. O. Drawer 325. Washington, D. C.

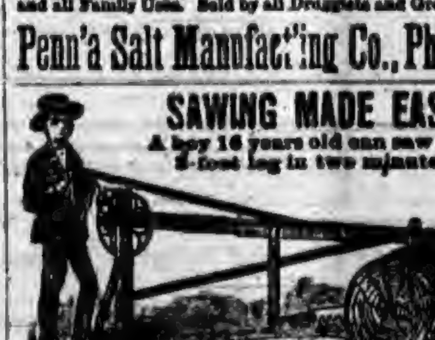
NATRONA BI-CARB. SODA

Is the best in the World. It is absolutely pure. It is the best for Medicinal Purposes. It is the best for Baking and all Family Uses. Sold by all Druggists and Grocers.

Penn'a Salt Manufact'ng Co., Phila.

SAWING MADE EASY.

A boy 16 years old can saw off a 2-foot log in two minutes.



Our new portable Monarch Lightning Sawing Machine rivals all others. $50 cash will be given to two men who can saw as fast and easy in the old way, as one boy 16 years old can with this machine. Warranted. Circulars sent Free. Agents wanted.

MONARCH LIGHTNING SAW CO., 163 Randolph St., Chicago, Ill.

St. JACOBS OIL
TRADE MARK
THE GREAT

GERMAN REMEDY

FOR

RHEUMATISM,

Neuralgia, Sciatica, Lumbago, Backache, Soreness of the Chest, Gout, Quinsy, Sore Throat, Swellings and Sprains, Burns and Scalds, General Bodily Pains,

Tooth, Ear and Headache, Frosted Feet and Ears, and all other Pains and Aches.

No Preparation on earth equals St. Jacobs Oil as a safe, sure, simple and cheap External Remedy. A trial entails but the comparatively trifling outlay of 50 Cents, and every one suffering with pain can have cheap and positive proof of its claims.

Directions in Eleven Languages.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS AND DEALERS IN MEDICINE.

A. VOGELER & CO.,

Baltimore, Md., U. S. A.

ELECTRIC LIGHT! SENT FREE.

NERVOUS DEBILITY, Lost Manhood and Seminal Weakness cured by MATHEWS' Improved Electro-Magnetic Belt and Absorbent Pad combined; size of Pad, 7x10 inches—four times larger than others. Do not purchase any old-style $10 Belts when you can get the latest improved for $5. "Electric Light," a 32-column paper, sent free unsealed; sealed, 3c.

D. & D. MATHEWS & CO., 421 W. Lake Street, Chicago.

IMPROVED FARMS

In Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska & Minnesota

FOR SALE.

Great bargains. 10 years' time on three-fourths of the purchase money. Interest 8 per cent. Parties intending to go West send for lists. State locality in which the lands are desired.

J. K. O. SHERWOOD, 113 Broadway, N. Y. City.

LITERARY REVOLUTION

3 CENTS each, formerly $1.00 to $1.25 each: I. Macaulay's Life of Frederick the Great. II. Carlyle's Life of Robert Burns. III. Lamartine's Life of Mary Queen of Scots. IV. Thos. Hughes' Manliness of Christ. 5 CENTS each, formerly $1.50 each: I. Arnold's Light of Asia. II. Goldsmith's Vicar of Wakefield. III. Baron Munchausen's Travels and Surprising Adventures. For SIX CENTS: Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress. Illustrated catalogue sent free. AMERICAN BOOK EXCHANGE, John B. Alden, Manager, Tribune Building, New York.

ESTEY ORGAN
THE HOME & CHAPEL
J. ESTEY & Co. BRATTLEBORO VT.

The Best Field

FOR

EMIGRANTS.

AN IMMENSE AREA OF RAILROAD AND GOVERNMENT LANDS, OF GREAT FERTILITY, WITHIN EASY REACH OF PERMANENT MARKET, AT EXTREMELY LOW PRICES, is now offered for sale in EASTERN OREGON and EASTERN WASHINGTON TERRITORY.

These lands form part of the great GRAIN BELT of the Pacific slope, and are within an average distance of 250 to 300 miles from Portland, where steamships and sailing vessels are directly loaded FOR ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD.

GRAIN AT PORTLAND, OREGON, COMMANDS A PRICE EQUAL TO THAT OBTAINED IN CHICAGO.

The early completion of the Northern Pacific R. R. is now assured, and guarantees to settlers cheap and quick transportation and good markets both East and West. The opening of this new overland line to the Pacific, together with the construction of the network of 700 miles of railroad by the O. R. & N. Co. in the valleys of the great Columbia and its principal tributaries, renders certain a rapid increase in the value of the lands now open to purchase and pre-emption. There is every indication of an enormous movement of population to the Columbia River region in the immediate future.

LANDS SHOW an AVERAGE YIELD of 40 BUSHELS OF WHEAT PER ACRE. No Failure of Crops ever known.

RAILROAD LANDS offered at the uniform rate of $2.50 an Acre.

CLIMATE MILD AND HEALTHY.

For pamphlet and maps, descriptive of country, its resources, climate, route of travel, rates and full information, address

A. L. STOKES,

Gen'l Eastern Pass'r Agent,

62 Clark St., Chicago, Ill.

LIST OF DISEASES

ALWAYS CURABLE BY USING

MEXICAN

MUSTANG

LINIMENT.

OF HUMAN FLESH.	OF ANIMALS.
Rheumatism,	Scratches,
Burns and Scalds,	Sores and Galls,
Stings and Bites,	Spavin, Cracks,
Cuts and Bruises,	Screw Worm, Grub,
Sprains & Stitches,	Foot Rot, Hoof Ail,
Contracted Muscles	Lameness,
Stiff Joints,	Swinny, Founders,
Backache,	Sprains, Strains,
Eruptions,	Sore Feet,
Frost Bites,	Stiffness,

and all external diseases, and every hurt or accident.

For general use in family, stable and stock yard it is

THE BEST OF ALL

LINIMENTS

C N U. No. 8

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

THE FAME OF THE CITY.

BY JOHN BOYLE O'REILLY.

A great rich city of power and pride,
With streets full of traders, and ships on the tide;
With rich men and workers, and judges and preachers,
The shops full of skill, and the schools full of teachers.

The people were proud of their opulent town;
The rich men spent millions to bring it renown;
The strong men built and the tradesmen planned,
The shipmen sailed to every land;
The lawyers argued, the teachers taught,
And a poor shy poet his verses brought
And cast them into the splendid store.

The tradesmen sneered at his useless craft,
The rich men sneered, and the strong men laughed;
The preachers said it was worthless quite,
The school-men claimed it was theirs to write.
But the songs were spared, though they added naught
To the profit and praise the people sought,
That was wafted at last from distant climes.
And the townsmen said, "To remotest times
We shall send our name and our greatness down."

The boast came true; but the famous town
Had a lesson to learn when all was told.
The nations that honored cared naught for its gold,
Its skill they exceeded a hundredfold;
It had only been one of a thousand more
Had the songs of the poet been lost to its store.

Then the rich men and tradesmen and school-men said
They had never derided, but praised instead;
And they boast of the poet the town has bred.
—Harper's Magazine

Under the Apple Blossoms.

BY MISS AMELIA THROPP.

Mabel Vaughn was the daughter of a plain, respectable farmer residing in the State of Pennsylvania. He was a hard-working, honest man, but a poor manager, always in arrears in his payments, and at the time I now write much in debt. The old, two-story farm-house, with its white walls, rustic porch and green blinds, stood upon an eminence, with a lawn in front sloping down upon the winding public road. On the left was a garden inclosed with white-washed palings, and an orchard to the right. The latter sloped back to meadow lands, through which a broad stream flowed, with banks bordered with willow and alder; a large buttonwood tree shaded the back yard with its wide spreading branches, whilst in the spring and summer time festoons of woodbine and roses clustered over the rustic porch in front. From the latter was seen a broad expanse of rolling country dotted here and there with groves of trees. On the right, by the roadside, a little distance off, stood a two-story frame country inn, whose gaily painted sign-board swung lazily in the air; the white spires of the far-off village were seen in the distance. The scene was of a well-cultivated, country landscape, which, in its peaceful solitude, was tempting to the wornout, fashionable people of the heated, dusty cities, and in summer many thronged the rural neighborhood.

Mabel was the eldest of nine children, and, at the time I introduce her, in her nineteenth year. She was tall, fair, handsome, with a slight, symmetrical figure, clear complexion, large, deep blue eyes, fringed with long black lashes, well-shaped nose, and a mouth tempting as a rosebud; her waving masses of golden hair crowned her well-shaped head like a halo. She was a beautiful, refined, superior creature, entirely out of keeping with her rude surrounding. The country lads were quite in awe of the beautiful girl, whom they called cold hearted and proud. This was because they failed to understand her refined, superior nature. She was not entirely satisfied with her lot, and was often oppressed with a strange longing for something better than she had known. She was fond of books, and eagerly grasped any chance reading matter which came in her way. It was the calm of a lovely Sabbath as she sat upon the grass, leaning against an old apple tree, with a book in her hand; her snowy dress floating around her like a cloud, whilst a large straw hat was keeping her calm blue eyes in shade. The trees were laden with blossoms, whilst the hum of bees filled the air as they were laying in their winter supply of honey. The air was full of fragrance, and Mabel, with a half listless admiration, viewed the scene, which was fair enough to kindle the eye of an artist.

Philip Adair was the son of a neighboring farmer. He and Mabel had been brought up together, their families being fast friends. He was a tall, handsome, dark-complexioned young man of three-and-twenty summers. His father was a man of a different character from Mr. Vaughn—industrious and managing, with his fine farm out of debt, and "a little" as he said, "laid up for a rainy day." Philip, his eldest son, was the pride of his parents and the admiration of the neighborhood, on account of his neighborhood. He was a widower of about forty-five. For the last three years he had been traveling abroad. On his return, before settling down to city life, he had concluded to rusticate in this quiet neighborhood for rest for himself and a good time for his two little sons. He was a well educated, superior man, of large means and prominent position. His elegant appearance and haughty manners won for him the awe and admiration of the people of the place, and the farmers' daughters were anxious by their charms to induce him to marry and locate in the neighborhood. Mabel had heard much of Mr. Claire but had not felt the least interest in him. One evening as she was returning from the village, whither she had been making a few purchases, she met an elegant looking gentleman leading by the hand a little boy. From the description she had heard, she at once recognized him as Mr. Claire. She felt embarrassed by the gaze of evident admiration he fixed upon her face. The next evening she heard a knock on the front hall door, and on opening it found, to her astonishment, the gentleman there. He bowed low to her, introducing himself as Mr. Claire, apologizing for the call, saying in vindication that, "he had been informed that Mr. Vaughn had an idea of selling his place, and took the liberty to call and see if there was any truth in the report, as he was so much pleased with this part of the country that he had concluded to purchase a farm where he and the boys might ruralize for the summers."

Mabel blushed deeply at the remarks of the stranger, and informed him that "she was very sorry to be forced to acknowledge that the reports were correct."

The truth was, Mr. Vaughn, who was always in pecuniary embarrassments, had lately lost heavily, and as Mr. Adair (who was his friend in need) at last had become out of patience with him, he would either be forced to sell now, or the property would be sold for him, as there was no way of raising the large amount due. Mr. and Mrs. Vaughn were absent, trying to persuade Mr. Adair to assist them out of their difficulties, but this time he was inexorable.

Mr. Claire was delighted at the opportunity of awaiting their return.

"You would regret, Miss Vaughn," he said, "to leave the old place?"

"Yes, sir; it is our home. We children have all been born here, and we have the most pleasant and tender associations connected with the dear old place. I shall be very unhappy if we are forced to leave it."

"You may not be forced to go. Often, when we are on the verge of some painful misfortune, a kind Providence interposes, and we are extricated from our painful position."

"Those are romantic events," replied Mabel. "We read of them in novels, but they seldom occur in real life."

"Reality, Miss Vaughn, is stranger than fiction, and allow me to predict that something will occur to prevent your leaving the old place."

"That, sir, would be making us all too happy."

On the return of her parents, Mabel quickly withdrew. Mr. Vaughn was delighted with his distinguished guest, who promised to call the next day to look over the farm. He came not only then, but on many succeeding days, until Mabel began to think it was herself, not the farm, in which he was most interested. This caused her alarm, and she tried to avoid the assiduous stranger. She had often rejoiced in her beauty for Philip's sake. She now turned from her mirror with pain, regarding it as her greatest misfortune.

Mr. Claire would not see her indifference, but kept persistently visiting the old farm, and overwhelming her with costly presents. At last he frightened her with an offer, which she positively declined. He expected this, and went to her parents, telling them that he loved their daughter, and if she could be induced to wed him, he would pay off the entire indebtedness of the farm, and assist them out of all embarrassments for the future.

Mr. and Mrs. Vaughn were at this time very indignant at their neighbor for not assisting them, and considered Mr. Claire's position as quite a blessing.

"It will be all right, sir, I am sure," replied the delighted father. "Mable is a noble girl. She will love you as yar noble nature and mental superiority. He worked hard on the farm, and all his spare time was devoted to study. He had loved Mabel passionately from childhood, and she in return gave him her undivided heart.

Philip's ambition was to go to the city of P—— and study for a lawyer and locate there, making his way up to prominence if possible. He had for some time been endeavoring to induce his father to advance a sufficient amount for this scheme, out of what in future would come to him out of the estate. Mr. Adair was at first reluctant, not knowing how he could manage without him; but, wishing to do justice to his noble son, and being yet in his vigorous prime, with two active younger boys, he finally consented, saying to his wife:

"We will not oppose the boy, Mary, for there is the making of a great man in him, and we will never let him reflect upon us for retarding his progress."

"Don't be proud, father," replied the fond little mother. "If Philip continues to be as good as he is now, we will have sufficient cause to be grateful."

"Well, well, little woman, his father will expect to see him become great, and continue good; the two make a beautiful combination."

As Mabel sat listlessly contemplating the scene, Philip Adair approached, unnoticed, through the meadow, and stood looking with intense love and admiration upon her lovely face. As he did so, his shadow ominously crossed hers upon the grass.

"I will ask her again," he mentally exclaimed, "to renew her engagement, lest some city man should come along whilst I am away and rob me of my treasure."

As these thoughts crossed his mind, without speaking, he threw himself upon the clover at her feet.

She started, whilst a flood of crimson colored her face, and looked shyly toward her eager, handsome suitor, exclaiming:

"Is that you, Phil? I have been expecting you."

He was silent; he had come with a story to tell. Mabel guessed it before he had said a word.

"Something has happened," she said, gazing into his pale, sad face. "Do not conceal it from me."

"Do not be frightened, Mabel; father and mother at last have given their consent to my going to the city of P—— to study for a lawyer, that is all," he said, forcing a nervous laugh. "I shall be gone for two or three years, perhaps, and will leave much sooner than I expected—to-morrow, in fact. You will give me a solemn promise to wait for me, darling? I will write often, and come home once or twice a year to see you, and when I finish, we will marry and settle down in the beautiful city of P——, and I hope will have a long and happy life together. You will wait for me?" he repeated, looking earnestly into her face.

"I will wait until I die, Philip," she replied.

"God bless you, darling," he said, kissing her now pale cheeks, which again became crimson-dyed. "You shall not regret it."

As twilight began to deepen into night Philip arose, and, giving Mabel his arm they walked along the winding river. The night birds sang softly, and the stars began to glimmer one by one in their azure setting. Their words were few, but the heart of each was filled with love for the other. At last they parted in silence on the banks of the lonely river. Her cheeks were wet with the tears that were beyond her control. Little thought they of the possible severing of a faith, the blighting of a love that had grown with their growth, until it had now ripened into perfection.

The uncertain future is wisely concealed from us; only our present duties are plain.

Philip went to the city, and Mabel devoted herself with her usual patience to her home duties. She heard frequently from Philip, and was contented and happy.

During the summer the old inn was as usual filled with city boarders, amongst whom one Mr. Percy Claire was making quite a sensation in the deserve, and in turn you will find her as good as she is fair."

After his departure they explained their embarrassed situation to her, and begged that she would accept Mr. Claire's brilliant offer.

"I can not!" Mabel cried with a wail of despair. "It would kill me. You know that I love Philip, and I have made him the most sacred promise. What would he think of me? Oh, I should make him so wretched, and be myself so

Mr. and Mrs. Vaughn could not understand her folly in refusing so grand an opportunity, regarding it as a whim which would be followed by a life-time regret. In urging it upon her they thought they were not only advancing their interest, but her own.

Mr. Claire saw the greatness of the sacrifice, but he accepted it. He fulfilled his promise to her parents, and went further, sending at his own expense her two eldest brothers to college. He remained at the inn the entire winter, lest he might, by some unfortunate accident, lose his treasure. Mabel was submissive. Her brilliant marriage engagement was the envy of the entire neighborhood. And when the farmers' daughters saw her driving out with Mr. Claire in magnificent style, they sighed with envy, little dreaming how often her smile had an aching heart.

The following spring, when all nature was light and smiling, when the apple trees were again in bloom, Mable was sitting alone by one of the "front-room" windows. In a few days she was to be married. She sat listlessly looking over the wide-spreading landscape, thinking of her ruined happiness.

Suddenly she was startled, for Philip Adair stood out upon the porch before her. His looks were strangely altered—so pale and stern. Mabel, in an agony of despair, looked up, and for a moment they gazed fixedly into each other's pale faces.

At last Mabel exclaimed:

"Philip, why are you come? You know I have given you up."

"Mabel, I have come to hear from your own lips that which none could force me to believe. 'Mine until death, Philip,'" said he, bitterly. "I thank my God that I am rid of one so unworthy! When I left you, Mabel, I went away with no thought but of you and your happiness. Whilst I was laboring for this, you were plotting to wound me in the cruelest way; you little know, Mabel Vaughn, the mischief you have done! Farewell, and may a just God deal with you as you have dealt with me!"

He turned quickly, leaped from the porch, hastened through the front yard, mounted his horse, and was soon galloping along the highway.

Mabel was bewildered at first. Arousing herself, she followed as far as the wicket gate in time to see him disappearing in the dim distance. She held out her arms toward him, exclaiming, "Philip!" with a bitter cry of pain. Then she returned, and, seating herself upon the steps of the porch, buried her face in her hands, whilst her whole frame shook with her agitated feelings. Thus they parted, they who had vowed to go through life together.

* * * * *

Mabel's joyless wedding was over. She left with Mr. Clair to preside over his elegant establishment in the city of P——. He was a cold, selfish man of the world. There was no congeniality between them, and Mabel, though submissive, found her life a blank. As time rolled on the gulf widened and widened between them, he regarding her with jealous suspicion, knowing she had married him without love, and considering himself injured in marrying one in her position and not having it appreciated. He was liberal toward her family, and Mabel felt kindly toward him when she saw them prosperous and happy.

Philip Adair, never rightly understanding the matter, accused her of duplicity and a love of display. Twice in after years he saw her. Once she passed him in her elegant carriage; their eyes met; neither spoke, both considering themselves injured. Philip was surprised to see the dark eclipse that had dimmed the radiant beauty; never, he thought, had he seen a human being so pale. "She has reaped what she has sown," said he, bitterly, though his heart was full of pity. The lips may utter severe reproaches whilst the poor, tortured heart is all love the while. Pride conceals anguish, and Philip, in spite of his bitter words, would have died to save her if he could.

When he again saw her she was still paler. She lay in her coffin, and was beautiful even there. When she felt her end approaching she beckoned to her mother, saying:

"It may be a foolish request, mamma dear, but bear with me, for mine is a tired and wounded spirit. When I am no more, it will be a pleasure for you to know you have consented to my dying request. Please have me buried in the old orchard, under my favorite tree."

So when the apple trees were again in bloom they buried her there. It was a bright sunny day. The birds sang sweetly by the winding river, which shone like a band of silver unrolled, the bees hummed from flower to flower, the only inanimate thing was the sleeper beneath the coffin lid.

Philip Adair prospered wonderously and gratified the ambition of his parents and friends. He became a distinguished man in the world, made a brilliant marriage, and was considered by his less fortunate friends a lucky fellow. But though favored by many blessings, there was always a solitary place in his heart—a void which the world could not satisfy or fill. In society he was gay and cheerful, kind and generous, and the grief that was buried deep within his heart was known only to his Maker.

The Associated Press.

"The Associated Press is a great boon, is it not?" said the cigarette smoking scion of a South Side sire to a beautiful Boston girl, full of sentiment and oysters as they were returning from the theater. "It is, indeed," she replied, in soft tones: "George and I had one all last winter; but papa came in one night before George could take his arm away and acted dreadfully. Do they have them in Chicago?" "I should blush to murmur," responded the untutored Chicagoan as he measured her surcingle belt with his strong right arm.—Chicago Tribune.

POPULAR SCIENCE.

The fuel of the living body is food.

Salicylic acid is much used in Germany to keep water free from impurities.

A meteorological station is to be established on the celebrated Scottish mountain, Ben Nevis.

The metals which are found to longest retain heat are brass and copper; next iron, and lastly in order lead.

In a new electric battery one of the elements is composed of sheet-iron less than the ten-thousandth part of an inch in thickness.

Scientists have declared that the Blue Hill Range of Massachusetts is older, in a geological point of view, than the Alps or the Pyrenees of Europe.

Water filtered through charcoal becomes perfectly pure, the charcoal absorbing all disagreeable tastes and smells, whether they arise from animal or vegetable impurities.

The great glacier which gives rise to the Zarafshan River in Central Asia has been explored and recently described by Mr. Mushketof, a Russian geologist. It is fifteen miles long, and a mile wide.

It is known as a fact in geology that below the depth of thirty feet the earth becomes regularly warmer as we descend. On an average the increase is at the rate of one degree of Fahrenheit for every fifty feet.

A journey across Africa from south to north is to be undertaken by Dr. Emil Holub, of Prague, under the auspices of the Vienna Geographical Society. He thinks he can traverse the continent lengthwise in three years.

In his new scientific treatise on island life, Mr. Alfred R. Wallace, the eminent English naturalist, estimates the period embracing the formation of all the fossil-bearing rocks, since the Cambrain, at twenty-eight millions of years.

A Bavarian chemist is reported to have invented an enameling liquid which renders any species of stone or cement harder than granite, and gives it the indelible appearance of any mineral that may be desired.

The leading peculiarity of rice is the very large proportion of starch and the very small proportion of gluten which it contains, there being but one part of gluten to thirteen parts of starch. In wheat there are two parts of gluten to every nine parts of starch.

Sulphide of carbon has been used with complete success in France for the purpose of exterminating wasps. A small quantity is introduced into the aperture by which the insects go in and out of their nest, and the result is the immediate destruction of the entire colony. The aperture should be closed after pouring in the liquid or forcing it in with a syringe.

According to Dr. Edward Smith, an egg contains 15¼ per cent. of carbon, and 2 per cent. of nitrogen. Another writer estimates that the value of one pound of eggs, as food for sustaining the active forces of the body, is to the value of one pound of lean beef as 1,584 is to 900. As a flesh-producer one pound of eggs is about equal to one pound of beef.

One of the leading chemical manufactories of Germany employs six regular chemists with salaries ranging from $1,500 to $2,500 yearly, and in addition engages the services of an eminent chemist for theoretical work exclusively, paying him nearly $10,000 per annum. It is doubtless to this liberal patronage of qualified scientists that the superiority of German chemical manufactures is due.

Some support to the theory that not the brain alone, but the whole nervous system may really be the seat of the mind, is afforded by Prof. O. C. Marsh's latest researches concerning the extinct reptiles of the Rocky-Mountain region. One mammoth skeleton belonging to a creature which he has named Stegosaurus, must have been clothed with a body as large as that of an alligator, while the brain cavity correspeonds in size to that of a dog.

The sources of petroleum are found in almost every part of the globe, and the use of the article would seem well nigh coeval with civilization. There is a spring in one of the Ionian islands, which has yielded petroleum more than 2,000 years. The city of Genoa was formerly lighted by oil from the wells of Armenia, on the banks of the Zaro. In Persia, also, near the Caspian Sea, at Baku, numerous springs of petroleum have been known from the earliest time; and those of Rangoon, on the Irawaddy, are said to have yielded, before the general introduction of petroleum, some 400,000 hogsheads of oil a year.

Old-Time Epizootics.

Thanks to the general use of steam in traveling, it is comforting to reflect that in spite of the very great annoyance and inconvenience caused by the horse diseases in recent years, particularly by the epizootic which prevailed in the year 1872, the inconveniences to which people are subjected nowadays in the lack of horses are really much less grave than those which our ancestors had to contend with, in similar circumstances. For our forefathers, the prevalence of a severe epizootic meant the cessation of all traveling and transportation, whether for long or for short distances; excepting, of course, such service as may be done by oxen and by men on foot. Some idea of the gravity of the situation is suggested by the following extracts from an old Birmingham newspaper: On February 4, 1760, notice was published that "the horses belonging to the Birmingham stage coach are so much affected by the present distemper that prevails among them, that its journies are obliged to be discontinued until their recovery." And in the week following another notice appears under that of February 11, 1760, "the horses belonging to the Birmingham stage coach are still so bad that it would be dangerous to attempt their going with the coach this week; but on Monday next, the 18th, Mr. Peyton proposes that the coach shall set out to go from hence as usual; after which he hopes it will meet with no other interruption."

Open Windows.

"Windows open more would keep doctors from the door." A very large quantity of fresh air is spoiled and rendered foul by the act of breathing. A man spoils not less than a gallon every minute. In eight hours' breathing a man spoils as much air as seventeen three-bushel sacks could hold. If he were shut up in a room seven feet broad, seven feet long, and seven feet high, the doors and windows fitting so tightly that no air could pass through, he would die poisoned by his own breath in a few hours; in twenty-four hours he would have spoiled all the air contained in a room, and have converted it into poison. Reader, when you rise to-morrow morning, just go out of doors for five minutes, and observe carefully the freshness of the air. That air is in the state Heaven keeps it for breathing. Then come back suddenly into your close room, and your own sense will at once make you feel how very far the air in your chamber is from being in the same wholesome and serviceable condition.

Horse Thieves of India.

The Khyber Pass is the chief gateway into Cabul. Sixteen miles from it is the city of Peshawur. Two miles from the city is the English cantonment, containing nine or ten regiments. The adjoining valley and hills are full of professional robbers. The objects which they love to steal are arms, money, and horses. In securing these they show skill and daring. A writer in Chamber's Journal tells several anecdotes of these thieves, which exhibit their skill in horse stealing:

The most popular plan of horse stealing requires at least three men to carry it out comfortably and successfully. One of them quietly steals his way into the stable, and lays hold of a cord which has been pushed through one of the air-holes in the wall by one of his friends outside.

The two use the string as a saw, while the third pours upon it a plentiful supply of water. The cord silently and speedily cuts its way down the mud wall.

In a wonderfully short time the three craftsmen manage to saw around a portion of the wall, which, when pushed outwards, leaves a space sufficient to allow a horse to pass out.

This done, the remaining work presents no difficulty. The ropes which bind the horse are cut, and in a short time he is cantering to the hills, with generally two and sometimes his three new masters on his back.

A somewhat bold and impudent exploit in the horse-stealing line was the amusement and the talk of the station for some days. The cantonment is literally a camp.

At sundown a chain of sentries communicating with each other is posted right around it. This demands a great number of men, and all regiments, cavalry and infantry, European and native, nightly give their proportions.

A native trooper on the occasion to which I refer, fastened his horse to the peg fixed about the middle of his "beat;" and to keep up his courage and himself warm—the night was very dark and bitterly cold—walked pretty smartly backwards and forwards on his "beat."

The extent of this walk was not more than thirty yards, and thus at no time could he have been more than fifteen yards from his charger. He was armed in the usual way, with a short rifle and tulwar, or sword.

While thus doing duty, a hill man managed to crawl quite close to him without exciting notice and waiting quietly until the sentry was near the end of his walk, and, of course, with his back to the horse, the robber cut the charger's rope, mounted him, and in a moment was galloping away from the station.

The sentry fired his rifle in the direction in which his steed had gone; guards turned out, and a great noise was raised; but the outwitted soldier never saw his horse again.

To him the loss was a serious one, as the horses of the native cavalry regiments do not belong to the Government, but to the troopers themselves.

Parlor Magic.

Borrow a Panama hat, the more expensive the better, and hold it up so that your audience can see that it does not contain either a savings bank or a white whale. You then procure an ordinary kerosene lamp, remove the shade and light the wick. You are now ready. Pass the hat five or six times over the light, or until it is a complete blaze; then quickly placing the hat in a box, into which you have previously deposited two pounds of common gunpowder—the hat and box will instantly disappear. This trick never fails to astonish.

A very amusing, although exciting trick, is to cause a person in the audience to start from his seat without the aid of machinery, bent pins, or the placing of hands. This feat requires a little preparation during the day, as will be seen. You open a book and pretend to read as if from its contents, and immediately a young lady in the audience will start toward you with a shriek, and if you are wise you will have a rear window open, through which you can pass. The secret of the trick consists in your reading a purloined letter of your sister's from her lover.

Lay a wager with some gentleman in front of you that he can not walk to within three feet of you without pausing and throwing back his head, assuring him that the floor will not be obstructed in any manner. This trick never fails, and its success depends upon having a well-waxed thread streched across the room at the height of the gentleman's throat. Do not attempt this with your father.

A good conclusion to an evening's entertainment of this kind is called "Dissolving Feat," in which you turn out the gas for sixty seconds, and on lighting it the room will be vacated of all but yourself. The moment the gas is turned out you produce from a hermetically sealed box about a pound of Limberger cheese. The effect is wonderful, especially if the evening be very warm.

If you are not a ventriloquist you can, nevertheless, make your friends believe you are. Before the audience assembles place your little brother under a barrel, having, of course, first instructed him as to the replies he should make to your questions. At the proper time you walk up to the barrel, and, giving it a sharp rap with your knuckles, say: "Are you there, sir?" The reply comes, "No, I am somewhere else!" Then you hold an animated conversation with a supposed (?) person, in which many of your family secrets are divulged, and when at the close you inform your audience that you will imitate a drowning person and pour a pail of water through a hole in the head of a barrel, all are wonderfully amazed except your brother, who will be madder than a hatter.

FITS AND POINTS.

The candle-wick is up to snuff.

The cream of a joke should never be sour.

Usually "through by daylight"—Sleep.

What is it that by losing an eye has only a nose left? A noise.

A crack invisible to the naked eye. The crack of a whip.

Never scare off a fly with a club when a feather will do as well.

A new novel is called "Man Proposes." It is certainly not a leap-year story.

A kiss on the forehead of some of our modern girls is a sort of salaam bang salutation.

Out in Montana, when they start a man down hill in a barrel, they speak of his "appearance in a new role."

Grace—"I am going to see Clara to-day. Have you any message?" Charlotte—"I wonder how you can visit that dreadful girl. Give her my love."

Before marriage,
With wondrous care,
She seeks the mirror
And bangs her hair.
After marriage,
With angry glare,
She grabs her slipper
And bangs her heir.

Recorder—"You are very young to be stealing for a living. Are you going to make that your profession?" "Yes, sir; my father wants me to learn the rudiments thoroughly before I run for office."

"I smell sumfin a burning," remarked an aged negro, who sat at the camp-fire toasting his extremities. "Gosh!" he added, a moment later, with a loud yell, "it's dis niggah's own fut!"

"I say, Clem," cried two disputing darkies, appealing for decision to a sable umpire; "which word is right—disactly or dexactly?" The sable umpire reflected a moment, and then, with a look of wisdom, said: "I can't tell, perzactly."

"Have you given electricity a trial for your complaint, madam?" asked the minister, as he took tea with the old lady. "Electricity?" said she. "Well, yes, I reckon I has. I was struck by lightning last summer, and hove out of the window, but it didn't seem to me no sort of good."

The New York Tribune reports the Rev. W. H. H. Murray as saying: "Death is perfinirion, that is all." Well, if that is all—if death is simply a "pe—what-do-you-call-it—"finirion," it can't have a sting, as alleged. We always had a sneaking sort of feeling that it was one of those things, but, owing to a rush of political news, we never got room to say so.—Norristown Herald.

Board Schoolmaster (desiring to explain the word "conceited," which had occurred in the course of the reading-lesson)—"Now, boys, suppose that I was always boasting of my learning—that I knew a good deal o' Latin, for instance, or that my personal appearance was—that I was very good-looking, y' know—what should you say I was?" Straightforward boy (who had "caught the Speaker's eye")—"I should say you was a liar, s'."

Mrs. Susan Coolidge has written a volume of verse, and in the prelude to the work remarks that:

Poems are heavenly things,
And only souls with wings
May reach them where they grow,
May pluck and bear below,
Visiting the nations thus
With food all glorious.

You are wrong, Susan. There is not a solitary soul with wings in this office, and yet you can stand most anywhere and reach poems. Unfortunately, the people who wrote them are out of reach.—Chicago Tribune.

It is a nice thing to be very bright, and to give what is supposed to be a witty answer to every query, but sometimes one gets caught in his own trap. "What is a crime?" asked the grave professor in a theological college. "A crime!" answered the wit of the class, "why, it is when a man does something." "Then," said the professor, as he looked over his glasses at the youth, "I think no one could accuse you, Mr. Brown, of ever committing a crime."

"Now, you know," remarked the new Sunday-school teacher, as he beamed kindly on the interested class of boys, "that Robert Bruce, as he lay on the bed, saw a spider cast its web seven times, failing every time, but the eighth attempt was successful. Now, what was the result?" And he looked into the eager, upturned faces before him. And then an exceedingly small boy, with phenomenally large freckles, at the foot of the class, whose folks had been cleaning house the week before, spoke up and said that the woman came in the next morning with a broom and dust-pan, and carried the spider out, a clay-cold corpse. And then the school sang, while the new teacher sat down and wiped his forehead.

Waiting the Resurrection.

In New London, Ct., is a lot containing five graves, those of a man and his four wives. The women's form four sides of a square, and the man's is in the center, while the inscriptions are as follows:

My III. wife.

My I. wife.

Our Husband.

My II. wife.

My IV. wife.

Ladies' Patches.

The beauties of the court of Louis XV. thought they had made a notable discovery when they gummed pieces of black taffeta on their cheeks to heighten the brilliancy of their complexions. The ladies in England had before adopted patches, in quaint shapes, as of a crescent or coach and horses, etc. An epigram was written:

Her patches are of every cut,
For pimples and for scars;
Here's all the wandering planets' signs,
And some of the fixed stars!

The coach and horse patch was an especial favorite. Anstey, in his satire, "The Bath Guide," enumerated "velvet patches" as among a fine lady's necessities; but about the beginning of the present century they seemed gradually to fall out of fashion in England.

Coal is so scarce in some parts of the West that young people engaged in courting have to sit on each other's laps to keep warm.

HUMORS OF THE DAY.

A CELEBRATED case—Switzer Kase.

TAME, soft hats supply a long felt want.

THE balloonist's home is one flight up.

HEAR us, Cassius (cash us,) or we sink.

BE virtuous and you will be—a curiosity.—Modern Argo.

LOVIN' a cottage is more common than lovin' the cottage's mistress.

A GERMAN grocer calls his scales "ambush" because they lie in weight.

SOME men are called muffs because they are used to keep a flirt's hand in.

THE best of us are very apt to be mealy-mouthed about three times a day.

THE deaf man who had a scolding wife remarked, "Man wants but little hear below."

THE experiment has been tried often enough to prove that a jack-knife is not a night-key.

"WELL, wife, you can't say I ever contracted bad habits." "No, sir, you generally expand them."

WHAT tree in the forest would be most likely to be known by its bark? We should think the dog wood.

THE choir doesn't care so much for the congregational singing. It looks out for the main chants.—Boston Transcript.

"HE's an honest young man," said the saloon-keeper, with an approving smile; "he paid his note to pay his whisky bill."

Puck speaks of a Western New York man who cures all diseases by immersion in cold water, and calls him a "canalopath."

EVERY man in St. Louis owns a dog. The object is to increase the puppylation until it rivals that of Chicago.—Boston Globe.

"I AM a man of few words," said Prendergast. "True enough," replied Fog, "true enough; but you never tire of repeating them."

A MAN writes to an editor for $4 "because he is so terribly short," and gets in reply the heartless response, "Do as I do; stand up on a chair."

AN Ohio man has taken the small-pox from a pet pig. When once this disease gets into a family it is pretty sure to go through it.—Galveston News.

YOUNG clergyman at a clerical meeting: "I merely throw out the idea." Old minister: "Well, I think that is the best thing you can do with it."

AN Illinois exchange says: "Peoria distilleries are now feeding 16,360 head of cattle." And furnishing drink to as many more, no doubt."—Peck's Sun.

"WOULD you like to look through the big telescope?" asked one girl of another. To which the latter replied: "No, I'd a great deal rather look through a key-hole."

MR. EVER was married to Miss Joy. The friends of the victims were shocked when the press called her "a thing of beauty," because she was "a Joy for Ever."

A NEWSPAPER commenting on the fact that a farmer nearly lost his life by sinking in a quagmire, adds: "Men who do not subscribe for a paper must expect to be snaked in every now and then.

WHEN you hear a young lady very carefully say, "I haven't saw," you may be quite confident that she is a recent graduate from one of the most thorough of our numerous female seminaries.

A PUPIL of the Latin school being confined to his room by sickness, was called upon by a young friend. "What, Charley," said the visitor, "sick, eh?" "Yes," was the answer, "sic sum!"

DE BRANCAS was very absent-minded. He called one day at a friend's house, and asked if he were in. "No, sir," replied the servant, "he was buried eight days ago, and you were one of the pall-bearers."

WE'LL bet a cent that not a man who has blown out the gas and been suffocated during the past ten years, ever took and read his county paper. Now is the time to subscribe.—Steubenville Herald.

Answer This.

Did you ever know any person to be ill without inaction of the Stomach, Liver or Kidneys, or did you ever know one who was well when either was obstructed or inactive; and did you ever know or hear of any case of that kind that Hop Bitters would not cure? Ask your neighbor this same question.—Times.

Manitoba Lake.

The Manitoba lake, which has given name to the province formed out of the Red river region, is called after a small island, whence, in the stillness of the night, issue strangely-sweet, mysterious sounds. The Ojibway Indians who dwell in that neighborhood believe the island to be the home of Manitoba, the speaking God, and will not land on or approach it for any consideration, thinking they would desecrate or profane it, and that they would meet with some terrible fate for their impiety. The sound is caused, it has been ascertained, by the beating of the waves on the large pebbles along the shore. These, with fragments of fine-grained, compact limestone from the cliffs above, are rubbed together by the action of the water, and give out a tone like that of distant church bells. This natural music is heard when the wind blows from the north, and, as it subsides, low, plaintive notes, resembling voices of an invisible choir, are heard. It has been compared to the chant of the nuns at the Trinita de Monti in Rome, with which all travelers are familiar. The effect is impressive. Tourists have been awakened at night in the vicinity, under the impression that chimes of bells were ringing afar off, and that their tones were rippling over the lake. The mystic bells of Manitoba have acquired such a reputation that travelers are not satisfied until they are heard, and often spend days there waiting for the blowing of the north wind. The Ojibways have a number of poetic legends about their speaking God, whom they profoundly revere.

An Undergraduate's Excuse.

An undergraduate was summoned before one of the Dons for not attending the 7 o'clock morning chapel. "Sir," said the Don, "let me hear what you have to say in excuse of your persistent absence from morning prayers." "Sir," replied the delinquent, "the service is too late for me to be present." "Too late, sir! How can 7 in the morning be considered a late hour?" "Well," replied the ingenious offender, "were the hour 4 or 5, or even 6, I might manage to be present; but to expect a man to sit up till 7 o'clock in the morning in order to go to church is more than human nature will endure."—Chambers' Journal.

Music Hath Charms, Etc.

[From the St. Louis Western Watchman.]

One of the great manufacturing interests of Boston is the Emerson Piano Company, whose pianos are used with high appreciation and satisfaction throughout the world. In a recent conversation with Mr. Jos. Gramer, one of the proprietors, that gentleman remarked: I have used that splendid remedy, St. Jacobs Oil, in my family, and found it to be so very beneficial that I will never be without it. It has cured me of a severe case of rheumatism, after other remedies had failed.

The Grand Rush of an Engine to a Fire.

You are sitting at tea when the alarm rings. You don't know the box, but you rush out on the street and stare around you. In a moment the ominous rush comes on the ear. The horses cantering out of their stables, the firemen, nimble as cats, leap to their stations, the wide doors are thrown open, three policemen dash out of No. 1 to see the start, and bang, ding! whish! rush! G'lang! look out! ding! dong! ding! away they go like a tornado. Crash! a baby may be burning. Bang! sleeping children may be smothering. Ding, dong, ding! An old man, feeble and rheumatic, may be staggering in smoke. Look out! the strong man, blistered with flames, is yelling for his babies! Look out, then! look out! stand aside, and let them pass. Here they come like a storm. The driver stooping down with slacked rein, speaking to the intent steeds that big-eyed, wide-nostriled and strained, go thundering on. The foreman sitting by his side, erect and defiant, with arms folded, looks lion-faced at the sky searching for the ominous glare. The firemen behind him clinging like cats to a ladder, dressing themselves as the machine thunders on. The ubiquitous reporter taking notes on the boom-plate of the lofty ladder. Bang, boom, bang! look out! They pass a crossing like an earthquake on wheels. The horses, alive and stung with the same enthusiasm which fills the firemen, spurn the rough street and dash along as if a prairie on fire was chasing them. They need no whip, they need no lash; their big arteries are churning with hot blood; their big muscles are strung to the task they love. The wild horse followed fast by fed fire never sped like they. With ears laid back, with eyes standing out from the bony face, with nostrils red as if with blood, they gallop on untiring.

The branchman gets out his key, the foreman is all ready. Ding, dung, ding! Another crossing. Ding, dong, swush! The firemen gather themselves for the final jump. Bang! "We're near the fire, lads—look out." Crash! All right. Bang! Here's the box. Jump for your lives! Bang! bang! bang! They jump. The horses' sides heave like big bellows. Their noble heads fall between their trembling knees; the sunk tails quiver; the pointed ears droop like limp leather, and the firemen, eloquent with enthusiasm, dash into the street, and an old woman, wiping her hands—"The Lord bless you, gentlemen, but it was only our chimney; and the Lord bless you, I—" and the gang go home and play dominoes. The horses stand waiting for the next, and just as willing to jump as the man who had been waiting an hour for a shave.—Toronto World.

A Strong Conqueror.

[From the Milwaukee Evening Wisconsin.]

According to an Illinois exchange, our days of Rheumatism are well nigh numbered. St. Jacobs Oil enters a rheumatic territory, and conquers every subject. That's right. We believe in it.

A Good Dog Story.

A correspondent of the Spectator writes that this story of a dog's sagacity may be relied upon as true: During the meeting of the British Association at Glasgow, a friend of mine had occasion to go one day from that place to Greenock on business. Hearing, on his arrival, that the person he wished to see was out, but expected shortly to return home, he determined to take a stroll about the town, to which he was a stranger. In the course of his walk he turned into a baker's shop and bought a bun. As he stood at the door of the shop eating his bun a large dog came up to him and begged for a share, which he got and seemed to enjoy, coming back for piece after piece. "Does the dog belong to you?" my friend asked of the shop woman. "No," she answered, "but he spends most of time here, and begs half-pennies from the people who pass." "Half-pennies! What good can they do him?" "Oh, he knows very well what to do with them; he comes into the shop and buys cakes!"

This seemed rather a remarkable instance of cleverness even for the cleverest of animals; so, by way of testing its reality, my friend went out of the shop into the street, where he was immediately accosted by the dog, who begged for something with all the eloquence of which a dog is capable. He offered him a half-penny and was rather surprised to see him accept it readily and walk with the air of a regular customer into the shop, where he put his fore paws on the counter and held out the half-penny toward the attendant. The young woman produced a bun, but that did not suit the dog, and he held his money fast. "Ah," said she, "I know what he wants," and took down from a shelf a plate of short-bread. This was right; the dog paid his half-penny, took his short-bread and ate it with decorous satisfaction. When he had quite finished he left the shop, and my friend, much amused, followed him, and when he again begged, found another half-penny for him, and saw the whole process gone through a second time.

This dog clearly had learned by some means the use of money, and not merely that it would buy something to eat, but that it would buy several things, among which he could exercise a right of choice. What is perhaps most remarkable is that his proceedings were entirely independent, and for his own benefit, not that of any teacher or master.

A PAINTER who was well acquainted with the dire effects of the law had to represent two men—one who had gained a lawsuit and another who had lost one. He painted the former with a shirt on and the latter naked.

IF you are coughing or not, but feel the presence of a cold in the system, use Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup and feel immediate relief. Price 25 cents a bottle.

Father is Getting Well.

My daughters say: "How much better father is since he used Hop Bitters. He is getting well after his long suffering from a disease declared incurable, and we are so glad he used your Bitters."—A lady of Rochester, N. Y.—Utica Herald.

Odd Statistics.

A Detroiter has been collecting and arranging statistics of an odd nature, and, if his book is ever published, readers will find nothing dry about it. He goes right to business on page 1 by estimating the number of lickings received by the average boy up to his 14th year at 125. This includes the spanking process during infancy.

Out of every 100,000 people in this country 19,000 get up cross in the morning, but only a hundred or so remain in that condition very long after breakfast.

Out of 50,000 men only 600 will put up money on a bet. The rest will crawfish around, and finally back water on their assertions.

Only ten women out of every 500 who start out on a journey by railroad consult a railroad map or have the least idea of the direction they take. Four hundred and ninety-eight worry about their baggage; 497 are certain they took the wrong train; 499 wish they had never started.

The risk of being bitten by a dog is greatly overestimated. Out of every 1,000 big and little dogs only two care to get up a row with the human race, and those two are ready and willing to die.

The number of men who can put in a more pleasant evening down town than at their own fireside is on the decrease, and the number of wives who are taking a little extra pains to make home more pleasant than a concert-saloon is on the increase.

Out of every 1,000 men who get mad and swear they will see a lawyer about it only fifteen carry out their intentions.

Only one woman in 5,000 pays the first price asked for a bonnet, and only one milliner in 1,000,000 expects her to.

The time occupied by the average man in buying a full suit of clothes is just one-fourth the time occupied by the average woman in buying a pair of stockings.—Detroit Free Press.

A Compromise.

A man was once asked how he and his wife got along with so little friction in the family machinery. "Well," said he, "when we first married we both wanted our own way. I wanted to sleep on linen sheets, my wife preferred cotton, and we couldn't agree. Finally we talked the matter over, and came to the conclusion that it was unchristian to live in constant bickering; so we compromised on linen, and have got along all right ever since."

More People Die

from diseased Kidneys than of consumption, but not one fatal case in a thousand would occur if Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure was taken in time. By all means try it.

Try to Please.

"What is the secret of the success of Miss ——?"—one of the belles in Washington—we asked of a friend. "She does not appear remarkably intellectual, and she is not very beautiful."

"No," said the person addressed, "but she tries to please people."

And this was the secret of her being loved.

The Epizootic

Has again made its appearance in various parts of the country. As prevention is better than cure, the attention of owners of stock is called to UNCLE SAM'S CONDITION POWDERS. These celebrated powders stand unrivaled for their excellency as a preventive from disease. By mixing with the feed they will keep the animal in the best general health, toning up the system and keeping the digestive organs and blood in a healthy condition.

The Powders are warranted to give perfect satisfaction. Prepared by the EMMERT PROPRIETARY Co., Chicago, Ill. Put up in 25 and 50-cent packages, and sold by all druggists.

VEGETINE is a great panacea for our aged fathers and mothers; for it gives them strength, quiets their nerves, and gives them Nature's sweet sleep.

FOR a pamphlet on Electric Treatment of chronic diseases with Electricity, which will be sent free, address the McIntosh Electric Belt and Battery Co., 192 & 194 Jackson St., Chicago, Ill.

ALL respectable dealers sell Frazer axle grease because it is the genuine and gives perfect satisfaction.

STYLE, fit and ease combine in the diamond boots and shoes. Try them! Rosenthal Bros., Chicago.

ASK your Druggist for Dr. Bosanko's Rheumatic Cure. It never fails.

D! BULL'S
COUGH
SYRUP

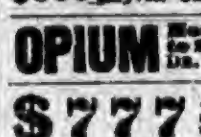
BIG WAGES, summer and winter. Samples free. National Copying Co., 300 West Madison st., Chicago.

YOUNG MEN Learn Telegraphy! Earn $40 to $100 a month. Graduates guaranteed paying offices. Address VALENTINE BROS., Janesville, Wis.

$350 A MONTH! Agents Wanted! 75 Best-Selling Articles in the world; a sample free. JAY BRONSON, Detroit, Mich.

OPIUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till Cured. DR. J. STEPHENS, Lebanon, Ohio.

$777 A YEAR and expenses to agents. Outfit Free. Address P. O. VICKERY, Augusta, Maine.



MUSTACHE & WHISKERS [illegible]

PURE TEAS Agents wanted everywhere to sell to families, hotels and large consumers; largest stock in the country; quality and terms the best. Country storekeepers should call or write THE WELLS TEA COMPANY, 201 Fulton st., N. Y. P. O. Box 4560.

EMPLOYMENT—LOCAL OR Travelling. State which preferred. Also SALARY per month. All EXPENSES advanced. WAGES promptly paid. SLOAN & Co. 306 George St. Cincinnati, O.

CLOTHING TO ORDER ONLY. SAMPLES FURNISHED FOR THE TRADE ONLY. Manufacturing for COUNTRY TAILORS a specialty. J. B. SAMUELSON & CO., 7½ Fountain Square, CINCINNATI, O. Correspondence solicited.

Printers' Outfits.

Printers about to embark in the Newspaper or Printing Business in this State will find it to their interest to address PRINTERS' EXCHANGE, Box 1039, Chicago, Ill., before purchasing outfits.

VEGETINE.

The Barks, Roots and Herbs
FROM WHICH VEGETINE IS MADE
In Powder Form,
SOLD FOR
50 Cents a Package.

VEGETINE
For Kidney Complaint and Nervous Debility.

ISLESBORO, ME., Dec. 28, 1877.

MR. STEVENS:
Dear Sir—I had had a cough for eighteen years, when I commenced taking the Vegetine. I was very low; my system was debilitated by disease. I had the Kidney Complaint, and was very nervous—cough bad, lungs sore. When I had taken one bottle I found it was helping me; it has helped my cough, and it strengthens me. I am now able to do my work. Never have found anything like the Vegetine. I know it is everything it is recommended to be.
MRS. A. J. PENDLETON.

Dr. W. ROSS Writes:
Scrofula, Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia, Rheumatism, Weakness.

H. R. STEVENS, Boston:
I have been practicing medicine for twenty-five years, and as a remedy for Scrofula, Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia, Rheumatism, Weakness, and all diseases of the blood, I have never found its equal. I have sold Vegetine for seven years, and have never had one bottle returned. I would heartily recommend it to those in need of a blood purifier.
DR. W. ROSS, Druggist,
Sept. 18, 1878. Wilton, Iowa.

Vegetine in Powder Form is sold by all druggists and general stores. If you cannot buy it of them, inclose fifty cents in postage stamps for one package, or one dollar for two packages, and I will send it by return mail.

VEGETINE
PREPARED BY
H. R. STEVENS, Boston, Mass.

HOSTETTER'S
CELEBRATED STOMACH
BITTERS

Sleep, Appetite and Strength

Return when Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is systematically used by a bilious dyspeptic sufferer. Moreover, since the brain sympathizes closely with the stomach and its associate organs, the liver and the bowels, as their derangement is rectified by the action of the Bitters, mental despondency produced by that derangement disappears.

For sale by all Druggists and Dealers generally.

PISO'S CURE for Consumption is also the best cough medicine.

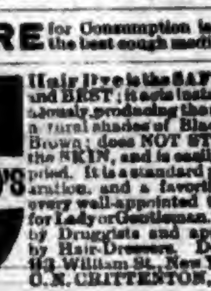
CRISTADORO'S Hair Dye is the SAFEST and BEST; it acts instantaneously, producing the most natural shades of Black or Brown; does NOT STAIN the SKIN, and is easily applied. It is a standard preparation, and a favorite on every well-appointed toilet for Lady or Gentleman. Sold by Druggists and applied by Hair Dressers. Depot, 93 William St., New York. J. C. N. CRITTENTON, Agt.

Deafness, Ear Diseases, Catarrh.

Dr. C. E. SHOEMAKER, the well-known Aural Surgeon, Author, and Writer on the above Diseases, may be consulted by mail or personally at his office, No. 616 Walnut St., Reading, Pa. His small book sent free. His large and complete work of 375 pages on Deafness, Diseases of the Ear and Tonsils, and Catarrh, and their proper treatment; price $3 by mail. NOTE.—No one will question Dr. Shoemaker's standing or skill.

SAPONIFIER

Is the "Original" Concentrated Lye and Reliable Family Soap Maker. Directions accompany each Can for making Hard, Soft and Toilet soap quickly. It is full weight and strength. Ask your grocer for SAPONIFIER, and take no other.
Penn'a Salt Manufact'ng Co., Phila.



SEEDS

I will give you the best Seeds for the least money of any firm in America or refund. Western Seeds are best. Mine take the lead. Gardeners say they never fail. I used 6000 lbs paper to print 50000 pretty Catalogues illustrated with $2000 worth of engravings. It beats the world, worth many dollars. FREE. Prices below all. R. H. SHUMWAY, Rockford, Ill.

Best Seeds cheap pretty Book Free.

C. GILBERT'S
STARCH

AGENTS WANTED FOR THE PICTORIAL
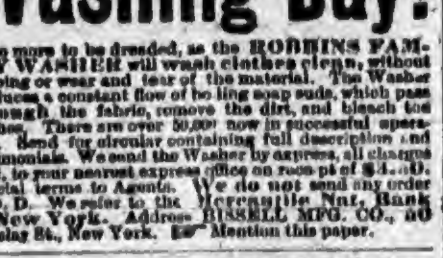
HISTORY OF THE WORLD

Embracing full and authentic accounts of every nation of ancient and modern times, and including a history of the rise and fall of the Greek and Roman Empires, the middle ages, the crusades, the feudal system, the reformation, the discovery and settlement of the New World, etc., etc. It contains 672 fine historical engravings, and is the most complete History of the World ever published. Send for specimen pages and extra terms to Agents. Address
NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO., Chicago, Ill.

Washing Day!

Is no more to be dreaded, as the ROBBINS FAMILY WASHER will wash clothes clean, without rubbing or wear and tear of the material. The Washer produces a constant flow of boiling soap suds, which pass through the fabric, remove the dirt, and bleach the clothes. There are over 50,000 now in successful operation. Send for circular containing full description and testimonials. We send the Washer by express, all charges paid, to your nearest express office on receipt of $4.50. Special terms to Agents. We do not send any order C. O. D. We refer to the Mercantile Nat. Bank of New York. Address BISSELL MFG. CO., 50 Barclay St., New York. Mention this paper.



This Beat's all.

Buy your Seeds of A. B. Barnes, 46 & 48 W. Lake st., Chicago.

SEEDS—Choice selections from the most reliable growers and importers. No old seeds in stock. Every variety tested before offered for sale. Special attention given to orders by mail. Seeds shipped by mail or express to any part of the United States. Reference: Home National Bank, Chicago; Furst & Bradley M'f'g Co., Chicago; Kirby, Carpenter & Co., Chicago. Send for Catalogue of Seeds and Farm Machinery.
A. B. BARNES, 46 & 48 W. Lake St., Chicago, Ill.

Inventions of Women.

The list of woman's inventions of recent date is by no means blank. One of the best machines now in use for the manufacture of paper bags is the invention of Mary E. Knight, of Springfield, Mass. The accomplished wife of Father Hyacinthe holds a patent for an improved corset. The Empress Eugenie invented the many flounced bustle—the precursor of the extinct crinoline. Mrs. Walton has devised a way of deadening the noise on the elevated railroads, and a spark arrester for locomotives. Women obtain from the Government an average of about sixty patents yearly. During the year ending July, 1880, women received some seventy patents, a list of the subjects, which is appended, as a useful showing of the tendency of the inventive faculties of the sex. As might be expected, the plurality of articles relate to the lightening of women's work. Among them are a jar-lifter, a bag-holder, a pillow-sham holder, a dress protector, two dust-pans, a washing machine, a fluting iron, a dress chart, a fish-boner, a sleeve-adjuster, a lap table, a seaming-machine treadle, a wash basin, an iron heater, sad-irons, a garment stiffener, a folding chair, a wardrobe bed, a window-cleaner, a napkin, a clothespin, a weather-strip, a churn, an invalid's bed, a strainer, a milk-cooler, a sofa-bed, a dipper, a paper dish, and a plaiting device. In the line of purely mechanical contrivances appear a car-step, a baggage attachment for vehicles, a shoe-channeling machine, a guard for sleeping berths, a loom for tubular fabrics, a window frame, an oil burner, a life-raft, a window-fastener, a locomotive's chimney, a buckle, paper bag machines, dumping-wagon and a bale-tie. Besides these are braces, corsets, a hat-cover, a collar, a doll supporter, a shawl-strap, corset-clasps, undergarments, a game, a shoe and a hair-wash.

SOME fellow has figured out that Vanderbilt's income would allow him to visit 8,000 circuses, eat 20,000 pints of peanuts, and drink 5,000 glasses of lemonade every day in the year.

RHEUMATISM
[illegible]
BY THE USE OF
DR. BOSANKO'S
RHEUMATIC CURE,
THE GREAT
ALKALINE REMEDY.
TRY IT AND BE CURED.
PRICE, 75 Cents.
ASK YOUR DRUGGIST FOR IT.
Address THE DR. BOSANKO MEDICINE CO.,
PIQUA, O.

If you are a man of business, weakened by the strain of your duties avoid stimulants and use Hop Bitters.

If you are young and suffering from any indiscretion or dissipation; if you are married or single, old or young, suffering from poor health or languishing on a bed of sickness, rely on Hop Bitters.

Whoever you are, whenever you feel that your system needs cleansing, toning or stimulating, without intoxicating, take Hop Bitters.

Have you dyspepsia, kidney or urinary complaint, disease of the stomach, bowels, blood, liver or nerves? You will be cured if you use Hop Bitters.

If you are simply weak and low spirited, try it! It may save your life. It has saved hundreds.

If you are a man of letters toiling over midnight work, to restore brain nerve and waste, use Hop B.

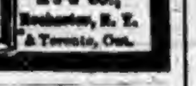
Thousands die annually from some form of Kidney disease that might have been prevented by a timely use of Hop Bitters.

D. I. C. is an absolute and irresistible cure for drunkenness, use of opium, tobacco, or narcotics.

Sold by druggists. Send for Circular.
HOP BITTERS M'F'G CO., Rochester, N. Y. & Toronto, Ont.

HOP BITTERS NEVER FAIL

PLAYS! PLAYS! PLAYS! PLAYS! For Reading Clubs, for Amateur Theatricals, Temperance Plays, Drawing-Room Plays, Fairy Plays, Ethiopian Plays, Guide Books, Speakers, Pantomimes, Tableaux Lights, Magnesium Lights, Colored Fire, Burnt Cork, Theatrical Face Preparations, Jarley's Wax Works, Wigs, Beards and Moustaches at reduced prices. Costumes, Scenery, Charades. New catalogues sent free containing full description and prices. SAMUEL FRENCH & SON, 38 E. 14th Street, New York.



CELLULOID
EYE-GLASSES.

Representing the choicest-selected Tortoise-Shell and Amber. The lightest, handsomest, and strongest known. Sold by Opticians and Jewelers. Made by the SPENCER OPTICAL M'F'G CO., 13 Maiden Lane, New York.

10 CENTS a Month,
—OR—
One Dollar a Year.
THE CHICAGO LEDGER will be sent to any address, postage paid, at the prices named above. Send in your names. Address THE LEDGER, Chicago, Ill.

"Dr. Sykes' Sure Cure"
FOR
"CATARRH"
Cures Without Fail. Ask your Druggist for it.

Price of "Sure Cure" and "Insufflator" all complete is only $1.50. Valuable book of full information, 10 cents. Name this paper and address DR. C. R. SYKES, 169 E. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

PENSIONS!

New Law. Thousands of Soldiers and heirs entitled. Pensions date back to discharge or death. Time limited. Address, with stamp,
GEORGE E. LEMON,
P. O. Drawer 325. Washington, D. C.

NATRONA BI-CARB. SODA

Is the best in the World. It is absolutely pure. It is the best for Medicinal Purposes. It is the best for Baking and all Family Uses. Sold by all Druggists and Grocers.
Penn'a Salt Manufact'ng Co., Phila.

SAWING MADE EASY.
A boy 16 years old can saw off a 2-foot log in two minutes.

Our new portable Monarch Lightning Sawing Machine rivals all others. $50 cash will be given to two men who can saw as fast and easy in the old way, as one boy 16 years old can with this machine. Warranted. Circulars sent Free. Agents wanted.
MONARCH LIGHTNING SAW CO.,
163 Randolph St., Chicago, Ill.

ST. JACOBS OIL
TRADE MARK

THE GREAT
GERMAN REMEDY
FOR RHEUMATISM,

Neuralgia, Sciatica, Lumbago, Backache, Soreness of the Chest, Gout, Quinsy, Sore Throat, Swellings and Sprains, Burns and Scalds, General Bodily Pains, Tooth, Ear and Headache, Frosted Feet and Ears, and all other Pains and Aches.

No Preparation on earth equals ST. JACOBS OIL as a safe, sure, simple and cheap External Remedy. A trial entails but the comparatively trifling outlay of 50 Cents, and every one suffering with pain can have cheap and positive proof of its claims.

Directions in Eleven Languages.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS AND DEALERS IN MEDICINE.
A. VOGELER & CO.,
Baltimore, Md., U. S. A.

ELECTRIC LIGHT! SENT FREE.

NERVOUS DEBILITY, Lost Manhood and Seminal Weakness cured by MATHEWS' Improved Electro-Magnetic Belt and Absorbent Pad combined; size of Pad, 7x10 inches—Ten times larger than others. Do not purchase any old-style $10 Belts when you can get the latest improved for $3. "Electric Light," a 24-column paper, sent free unsealed; sealed, 3c.
D. & D. MATHEWS & CO.,
21 W. Lake Street, Chicago.

IMPROVED FARMS
In Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska & Minnesota
FOR SALE.

Great bargains. 10 years' time on three-fourths of the purchase money. Interest 8 per cent. Parties intending to go West send for lists. State locality in which the lands are desired.
J. E. O. SHERWOOD, 115 Broadway, N. Y. City.

LITERARY REVOLUTION

3 CENTS each, formerly $1.00 to $1.25 each: I. Macaulay's Life of Frederick the Great. II. Carlyle's Life of Robert Burns. III. Lamartine's Life of Mary Queen of Scots. IV. Thos. Hughes' Manliness of Christ. 5 CENTS each, formerly $1.00 each: I. Arnold's Light of Asia. II. Goldsmith's Vicar of Wakefield. III. Baron Munchausen's Travels and Surprising Adventures. For SIX CENTS: Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress, Illustrated; catalogue sent free. AMERICAN BOOK EXCHANGE, John B. Alden, Manager, Tribune Building, New York.

ESTEY ORGAN
THE HOME & CHAPEL
J. ESTEY & Co. BRATTLEBORO VT.

The Best Field
FOR EMIGRANTS.

AN IMMENSE AREA OF RAILROAD AND GOVERNMENT LANDS, OF GREAT FERTILITY, WITHIN EASY REACH OF PERMANENT MARKET, AT EXTREMELY LOW PRICES, is now offered for sale in EASTERN OREGON and EASTERN WASHINGTON TERRITORY.

These lands form part of the great GRAIN BELT of the Pacific Slope, and are within an average distance of 250 to 300 miles from Portland, where steamships and sailing vessels are directly loaded FOR ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD.

GRAIN AT PORTLAND, OREGON, COMMANDS A PRICE EQUAL TO THAT OBTAINED IN CHICAGO.

The early completion of the Northern Pacific R. R. is now assured, and guarantees to settlers cheap and quick transportation and good markets both East and West. The opening of this new overland line to the Pacific, together with the construction of the network of 700 miles of railroad by the O. R. & N. Co. in the valleys of the great Columbia and its principal tributaries, renders certain a rapid increase in the value of the lands now open to purchase and pre-emption. There is every indication of an enormous movement of population to the Columbia River region in the immediate future.

LANDS SHOW an AVERAGE YIELD of 40 BUSHELS OF WHEAT PER ACRE. No Failure of Crops ever known.

RAILROAD LANDS offered at the uniform rate of $2.50 an Acre.

CLIMATE MILD AND HEALTHY.

For pamphlet and maps, descriptive of country, its resources, climate, route of travel, rates and full information, address
A. L. STOKES,
Gen'l Eastern Pass'r Agent,
52 Clark St., Chicago, Ill.

LIST OF DISEASES
ALWAYS CURABLE BY USING MEXICAN MUSTANG
LINIMENT.

OF HUMAN FLESH.	OF ANIMALS.
Rheumatism,	Scratches,
Burns and Scalds,	Sores and Galls,
Stings and Bites,	Spavin, Cracks,
Cuts and Bruises,	Screw Worm, Grub,
Sprains & Stitches,	Foot Rot, Hoof Ail,
Contracted Muscles	Lameness,
Stiff Joints,	Swinny, Founders,
Backache,	Sprains, Strains,
Eruptions,	Sore Feet,
Frost Bites,	Stiffness,

and all external diseases, and every hurt or accident

For general use in family, stable and stock yard it is

THE BEST OF ALL
LINIMENTS

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, IND., JANUARY 20, 1881.

THE vote in the legislature on Tuesday, for U. S. senator, was in the senate, Harrison, 22, Gray, 23, De La Matyr, 2. In the house, Harrison 57, Gray 30, De La Matyr 1. This gives Harrison a majority of 14 over all.

THE joint committee engaged in canvassing the votes for governor in Maine, recently completed their work by announcing that Plaisted, the greenback candidate, having received a plurality of all the votes cast, is entitled to be governor for the next two years.

IT is now understood that the Lake Shore road will build a double track from Laporte to Chicago. This much needed improvement was begun some years ago, and the track partly graded, but hard times compelled them to stop. The business of the road now makes a second track a necessity.

THERE is likely to be a scarcity of oysters, owing to the long continued freezing of the waters where oysters are raised. These waters are usually shallow bays, and rivers near the sea, and are seldom covered with thick ice, except for a few days in the most severe weather. Even the York river is frozen over; a very unusual thing.

The Indianapolis Sentinel in speaking of Gov. Porter's inauguration says he made a great failure in his first appearance before the public. He put on a great deal of style, but the wrong kind of style. He was inclined to be imperious, haughty, dictatorial, dogmatic and pedagogic. He was as full of malaria as a quarter section of Louisiana swamp; was offended at Gov. Gray, and spoke disparagingly of the late Gov. Williams. In fact, he has got the big head, bad.

A MEETING of the democratic editors of the state was held at Indianapolis Jan. 5, in the supreme court room. A constitution was adopted, and the following officers elected: President, John B. Stoll; first vice-president, W. D. H. Hunter; second vice-president, George Shanklin; recording secretary, Frank G. Shutt; corresponding secretary, Howard Henderson; Treasurer, Josiah Gwin; Executive committee, L. C. Jones, W. J. Hilligass, H. H. Frances, M. A. Barnett and J. C. Shoemaker. Meetings are to be held twice a year. The next meeting will be at Michigan City.

Goshen Times: Last Thursday the townships of Concord and Osolo voted on the question of a tax for the extension of the C. W. & M. railway from this city to Benton Harbor, and the measure was defeated in both townships, the majority against it in Concord being 89, and in Osolo 6. The result was a surprise to the friends and to the opponents of the tax, and it is generally supposed that another attempt will be made to raise the money. Another meeting was held at Elkhart on Monday evening, at which, it was resolved to make an effort to obtain, by subscription, the $30,000 required of Concord township, and the $4,000 of Osolo township, for the extension of the road. Alex Pope, John W. Ellis and Frank Erwin are the finance committee, and they mean business.

MR. SPRINGER, of Illinois, has a bill before congress for dividing the different states into congressional districts, under the new census, but keeping the number of members at 293, as at present. The number of members opportioned to each state is as follows: Alabama 7, Arkansas 7, California 5, Colorado 1, Connecticut 4, Delaware 1, Florida 1, Georgia 9, Illinois 18, Indiana 12, Iowa 10, Kansas 8, Kentucky 10, Louisiana 5, Maine 4, Maryland 5, Massachusetts 10, Michigan 10, Minnesota 5, Mississippi 7, Missouri 13, Nebraska 3, Nevada 1, New Hampshire 2, New Jersey 7, New York 30, North Carolina 8, Ohio 19, Oregon 1, Pennsylvania 25, Rhode Island 3, South Carolina 6, Tennessee 9, Vermont 2, Virginia 9, West Virginia 4, Wisconsin 8. Total, 293.

TREASURES UNEARTHED.

[Indianapolis Sentinel.]

CORYDON, IND., Jan. 13.—Yesterday, Mr. John Conrad, who resides near this place, took to New Albany $2,000, which he deposited in the First National Bank of that city. Of this sum, $800 was in coin and $1,200 in United States paper money. When General John Morgan made his famous raid into Harrison county and through Indiana, during the war, most of this money was buried in the ground in an iron kettle by Mr. Conrad. There it remained until disinterred yesterday afternoon, though often examined to see that it was not damaging. The gold and silver coin was much discolored, and the paper money time-stained and dirty-looking, yet it was all intact. The United States bills were of the first issue made by the government during the war. Mr. Conrad has, by his over-caution, lost seventeen years' interest on his $2,000, which, at 10 per cent., would aggregate the sum of $5,460.

THE STATE LEGISLATURE.

MONDAY, JAN. 6.

This day was mostly spent in the inauguration ceremonies. Gov. Porter delivered his inaugural address to the two houses in English's opera house in the afternoon. Remarks were also made by Lieut. Gov. Hanna, on taking the oath of office. Resolutions complimentary to Gov. Gray on his administration of the affairs of the state were passed, after which the two houses adjourned.

TUESDAY.

Both houses were occupied by the introduction of bills. A somewhat annimated discussion was called out by the proposition to re-district the state for congressional and legislative purposes.

The organization of the different house committees was also announced.

WEDNESDAY.

But little of importance was done, except to pass a bill providing for the expenses of the general assembly.

A resolution instructing our members in congress to use their influence to secure pensions for the soldiers of the Mexican war was lost.

THURSDAY.

A petition was presented to the senate from the commissioner of Floyd county, to limit the term of office of sheriff and treasurer to four years, and ineligible for a second term.

In the house, a bill was introduced requiring county superintendents to hold a state license.

Also, a bill requiring the payment of a poll tax, to entitle a voter to vote.

FRIDAY.

In the senate the Lieut. Governor announced the different committees.

Matter of getting rooms at the Grand Hotel, for the use of committees, was discussed.

A bill was introduced by Senator Foster to regulate the height of freight cars, so that a self-coupling aparatus can be used, and railroad employes incur less danger to life and limb.

In the house a bill was introduced to secure a uniform method of computing interest on notes, when partial payments have been made.

Also, one making the pay of the speaker $10.00 per diem, and other members $6.00, with mileage at the rate of $5.00 for each 25 miles traveled in going to and from the capital.

SATURDAY.

But little done in either house, personal explanations were made, and bills previously introduced were discussed. Teeters' bill for computing interest is as follows:

Compute the interest on the principal from the time it begins to draw interest to the time of settlement, and also on each payment from the time it was made to time of settlement; then from the principal and its interest, subtract the sum of the payments and their interest, and the difference shall be the balance due.

The Vote of Tennessee.

NASHVILLE, Jan. 12.—Both bodies met in joint convention in the house to-day, and counted the vote for governor, which stood as follows: Hawkins, republican, 103,964; Wright, state credit democrat, 78,783; Wilson, low tax democrat, 57,183; Edwards, greenbacker, 3,459. Total vote cast, 243,188. The presidential voth stands as follows: Hancock, 128,191; Garfield, 107,677; Weaver, 5,910; Dow, 43.

The above is the official count of the vote of Tennessee, and yet, in the face of these figures, there are no doubt plenty of men who do not hesitate to say that there is no free ballot in the southeran states, except for democrats. It was the great humbug of the late political canvass. The alleged impossibility of a fair vote in the south, was the theme of every Federal-office-holding orator in the land. No amount of denials, on the part of fair-minded democrats, north or south, was sufficient to counteract it, and many otherwise intelligent voters were led astray by this false alarm, and voted the republican ticket on an issue that the politicans then knew, and all now know to be false.

AN INDIAN RELIC.

A Mr. Garrison, of Yellow Springs, Ohio, has in his possession an Indian hatchet. This remarkable relic and specimen of antiquity was found fifty years ago on the farm of Mr. Garrison, about two miles northwest of what is now the city. This hatchet is about seven inches from the poll to the edge, and about two and one-half inches wide. It is solid brass, and is beautifully and artistically covered around the edges. It is finely decorated on each side with vines, leaves and stars. On one of the outer edges the letter "G" is plainly engraved. The edge of the hatchet is the finest steel, and fitted solidly into the brass by a dovetail. There is a small hole in the poll, the handle being hollow, the hatchet makes a very desirable smoke-pipe. This is certainly one of the most remarkable specimens of ancient relics, and is thought to have been made in England, and owned by some famous Indian warrior. The letter "G" may have some reference to King George III, but the true and inside history of the famous relic is wrapped in profound mystery, and perhaps will never be unvailed in this or all future generations to come.

DEATH OF HON. W. M. CLAPP.

MEMORIAL AND RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED BY THE BAR OF NOBLE COUNTY, IND.

Action of Albion Lodge No. 97, F. & A. M., of which Mr. Clapp was a Worthy Member.

At a meeting of the bar of the Noble county circuit court, of the state of Indiana, held in the Noble circuit court room, at Albion, Ind., on Thursday morning, the sixth day of January, A. D. 1881, to offer to the court an expression of their appreciation of the exhalted character, and to mourn the death of the Honorable William M. Clapp, the Honorable Lucius E. Goodwin was elected chairman and Thomas M. Eells, secretary.

The chairman appointed a committee on memorial and resolutions, composed of Augustus A. Chapin, Fielding Prickett and Vincent C. Mains. The committee on memorial and resolutions reported, through Augustus A. Chapin, Esq., a memorial and resolution which were adpoted as follows:

The members of the bar of Noble county, Ind., now assembled, express their profound sorrow for the loss of their friend and brother, the Honorable Willliam M. Clapp.

Judge Clapp died at his residence in the town of Albion, at 8 o'clock a. m., on the 5th day of January, 1881, in the sixty-fourth year of his age.

He was born in Ellington, Tolland county, Pennsylvania, on the 18th day of December, 1817, from which place he removed with his father, in 1822, to Ashtabula county, Ohio, and lived there and in that vicinity until sometime in 1842, when he went to Peru, Indiana, and entered a law office and read law until the last of March, 1843, when, having been admitted to practice, he removed to Agusta, then the county seat of this county, and commenced the practice of law, and has from that time to his demise been a resident of this county.

In 1855 he was elected county auditor, in 1856, a member of the legislature, and in 1860, judge of the court of common pleas for the 10th district, to which office he was repeatedly elected, and held that position for thirteen years, retiring only upon the abolition of that court.

Judge Clapp was truly a self-made man. With but the most limited means of acquiring an education in that early period of the settlement of the western Reserve, when log school houses and winter schools were his only opportunities, he, by diligence and a laudable ambition, so improved his opportunities that he was enabled to acquire a fair education. To his uncommon preception and wise discrimination, combined with a native shrewdness, he added that affability of manners and kindness in personal intercourse that made him successful in every position of life, and particularly won him esteem and respect as a citizen, a lawyer and a judge. He was always industrious and painstaking in the discharge of all his duties, and was a courteous gentleman in all his relations in life.

His death we feel as a loss not only to his family, but to our county. Let us cherish his memory. In his death we are reminded that we, too, are mortal, and that sooner or later each of us will be called to follow him to that undiscovered country from which no traveler returns. When the great Judge shall send His sommons, may it find us ready to obey the call.

Your committee recommend the adoption of the following resolution:

Resolved, That the Noble circuit court now in session be requested to enter this memorial upon its records; that the desk of the judge be draped with mourning during the present term of court; that a copy of this memorial be furnished, by the secretary of this meeting, to the family of our deceased brother; and that said court be adjourned, out of respect to the memory of the deceased, until Saturday, January 8, 1881.

In response to the motion to adopt the foregoing memorial and resolution, eloquent and appropriate speeches were made by Messrs. Augustus A. Chapin, Fielding Prickett, Isaac E. Kaisely, Henry G. Zimmerman, James M. Denny and others.

The chairman appointed Messrs. Chapin, Prickett and Mains a committee to present the memorial and resolution to the court.

On motion of Augustus A. Chapin the meeting adjourned.

LUCIUS E. GOODWIN, Chairman.
THOMAS M. EELLS, Secretary.

INSINCERITY IN POLITICAL LIFE

[New York Herald.]

During the recent canvass no journals were so stalwert as the republican papers in southern Ohio. It made one's blood run cold to read of the horrors that would follow from the election of Hancock. Since the election, however, the southern merchants of Louisville, and other points in Kentucky, have been complaining of the tone of those republican newspapers, and talk about transferring their trade to other markets. We have discovered that a republican may be very stalwart about election times, but when he has goods to sell, he would just as soon have a democratic customer as a republican. Now these republican papers take up a chorus of friendship for the south, deny that they ever said anything against their "brethren," and urge the brethren to come and buy in Cincinnati, and to be as friendly as it is possible for brethren to be.

This change is a curious one. It is only another illustration of what we see every day of the insincerity of our political life. What the republicans wanted to do before the election, was to elect Gen. Garfield. Therefore they howled about the "miseries of southern domination." Now they want to sell goods, and they coo and chirp in the most affectionate manner about "fraternity" and "union."

Neighborhood Nippings.

From the Syracuse express, we clip the following items:

Wm. Ridenour is making arrangements to locate at Auburn.

The aged mother of P. Finnigan is slowly recovering from a long siege of sickness.

Now that Dennis Stiffler has taken unto himself a wife, his appearance is more domestic.

Dr. Kelley was on the sick list the first of the week, but is now attending his many patients.

A number of fish houses have been built on Nine-mile lake, and one or two on the small lake adjoining town.

Ft. Wayne News: Engineer N. Baughman, of the Chicago branch of the W. St. L. & P. railroad, has accomplished the almost incredible run of 27 miles in 28 minutes, making one complete stop.

While Wabash train No. 3 was passing a point eight miles east of Lafayette last night, the engine struck a broken rail, but only the rear spring of a sleeping car was injured.—[Ibid.

The drawing of the Louisiana state lottery took place yesterday, and, although a number of Fort Wayne people had erected one and two dollar paper lightning rods, no $100,000 blizzard seems to have struck in the neighborhood.—[Ibid.

School Reports.

NUMBER 7, JACKSON TOWNSHIP.

Report for the month ending Jan. 3d, 1881: Average number of pupils belonging, 38; average attendance, 33½; per cent. of attendance, 70½. Names of pupils neither absent nor tardy: Elora McGilvray, Katie McGilvray, Pearly Boots, Laura Means, Frank Henderson, Eddie McGilvray. Absence caused by sickness: Reuben Mullen, Ivan Farmer and Clyde Boots.

S. M. HIGH, Teacher.

NUMBER 5, BUTLER TOWNSHIP.

The following pupils were neither tardy nor absent during the month ending January 14, 1881: Mary Pepple, Lean Pepple, Clyde West, Wm. West, Emma Houser, Rachel Lyon. Names of those whose grade was 100 per cent. in deportment: Eytchie Whetsel, Britty Whetsel, Mary Pepple, Mary West, Claud West, Wm. West, Lee West, Lizzie Work, Emma Houser, Frank Erixson, Rachel Lyon, Ella Pepple. Number of pupils enrolled, 17. Per cent. of attendance, 90.

We find in the school, hard-working, energetic scholars, who appreciate right, and try to make the work pleasant for the teacher. Parents and friends of the school, are invited to visit us, and see what we are doing.

T. S. MEDICA, Teacher.

NUMBER 5, KEYSER TOWNSHIP.

Scholars enrolled 32, with a general attendance of 25. Some of the parents have visited us, and it is my desire that they will all do so. The school gives me good satisfaction, and also the parents, and is prospering. A great interest is taken by the scholars.

M. L. HOFFMAN, Teacher.

NUMBER 4, KEYSER TOWNSHIP.

Names of pupils neither absent nor tardy during the month ending Jan. 14: Henry Embrey, Miler Embrey, Harvey Embrey, Emmett Fortner, Lovina Burr, Charlie Probst, Robert Bell and Clyde Fortner. Those who were absent no more than one half day: Jane Bell, Wm. Burr, Elmer Clark, Dora Jackson and Elmer Burr. For me, the school has been a very pleasant one, parents and pupils seem to be trying to work with me, and by so doing, we are having an interesting and profitable time.

J. B. SCOTT, Teacher.

THE following is a list of the petit jurors drawn for the February term of court:

James Quince,
Jacob Walborn,
Frank Ryan,
Wm. Richmond,
J. B. Bower,
Eber M. Coll,
Jas. R. Stafford,
Jacob B. White,
Milton C. Jones,
Robert McCurdy,
W. J. Frederick,
Thomas Brown.

Best & McClellan, Attorneys.

Notice to Non-Residents.

State of Indiana, DeKalb county.—In the DeKalb circuit court, vacation after December term, 1880.

John Coyle is hereby notified that an action has been commenced against him in said court, for judgment and foreclosure by George W. Husselman, and that the same will be heard and determined on the 10th juridical day of the next term of said court, which commences February 28, 1881, at nine o'clock a. m.

Witness, the clerk of said court, this 12th day of January, 1881.

JOHN W. BAXTER, Clerk.

Thos. H. SPROTT'S

INSURANCE, LOAN,

REAL ESTATE AND

STEAMSHIP AGENCY.

FIRE INSURANCE

Effected in companies that are

TIME-TRIED & FIRE-TESTED

at lowest current rates.

LIFE INSURANCE

on the best plans. No POST MORTUM INSURANCE can be had of us. We will sell you only the best, that which has been tried and found to be just what we say it is.

Single or Round-Trip Tickets

to and from all points in

IRELAND, FRANCE,
HOLLAND, SPAIN,
GERMANY, ENGLAND,

and all parts of the globe that is reached by water.

HARDWARE!

HERE WE ARE AGAIN

With a mammoth stock of

BUILDING HARDWARE!

SUCH AS

Doors, Sash, Glass,

Paints, Oils, Locks,

Hinges, etc., etc.

And now is the time to buy while they are low

Those who contemplate

BUILDING THIS SEASON

will find it to their advantage to

BUY EARLY,

as there will be an

ADVANCE

in the near future.

We also carry a large stock of

Wagon & Carriage Woodwork,

Wheels, Shafts, Poles,

Bent and Sawed Rims,

Iron, Steel and Heavy Hardware.

IRON & WOOD PUMPS

a specialty. Call when you want pumps and get a bargain, at

W. H. Kiblinger & Co's.,

New Brick Room, Auburn, Ind,

Auburn Courier.

Local and Miscellaneous

Joe. Abright went to Chicago yesterday.

—Cook Ford has quit working for Mr. Ochs.

—Mrs. T. C. Mays is sick with diptheria.

—Jack Ralston and wife are visiting in Ohio.

—Tom. Gross is talking of selling out the Central.

—Howard Griswold took in Rome City yesterday.

—Miss Sadie Hare is visiting with friends at Hudson.

—Charley Rainier is boss at the 8th street restaurant now.

—Wheat was worth 99c at the Wabash elevator Wednesday.

—Johnny Spacht and Joe. Beugnot have desolved partnership.

—Billy Stimely returned Tuesday from an extended visit to Ohio.

—The citizens of Jackson Center have a singing school in progress.

—Miss Ella Griswold is visiting with Miss Aletha Born, at Colon, Mich.

—The proprietor of the boot up-side down will erect a business house in the spring.

—Miss Hariet Baldock spent several days this week with relatives at Fort Wayne.

—The ladies of the M. E. church will give a New England supper on February 22.

—G. A. Porter now occupies the Williams residence, at the south end of Jackson street.

—Groceries without limit as to variety and cheapness, at the Fruit House in Fort Wayne.

—Charley Pomert says the sleighing is splendid in the neighborhood of the "four bridges."

—Don. Lawrence and wife, of Garrett, spent last week with C. A. Picker and better half.

—Tom C. Mays Sundayed over with his family here and returned to Indianapolis Tuesday.

—Sam, Pete and Max, of Ft. Wayne, offer their stock of furnishing goods at a sacrifice for a few days.

—Mrs. Joe. Abright and daughter, Maudie, are visiting with the family of Geo. Patterson, at Warsaw.

—Frank Rush will return to Butler next week and resume his labor at the hardware store of S. G. Searight.

—There is still a big rush at the ever popular store of Isaac Ochs. Try some of the bargains he is now offering.

—Another drop in coffees at the Fort Wayne Fruit House. A fall of three cents per pound from last quotation.

—Rev. Wm. R. Higgins, of Bowling Green, Ohio, will preach in the Presbyterian church next sabbath, morning and evening.

—Al. Simons, formeraly a citizen of this place, now living at Waseon, Ohio, is in town shaking hands with his old acquaintances.

Lost.—A dark colored shawl, between this place and Waterloo, Tuesday night. The finder will please leave the same at this office.

—Mr. Martin and Chris. Baker gave a dance at the junction to a large party of friends Friday evening, which was an enjoyable affair.

—We call attention to the advertisement of T. H. Sprott, to be found in another column. Business in his line will be carefully attended to.

—Joe Culler, the happy, lively Joe, had a birthday party last Friday evening. A number of presents were given him by his relatives and friends.

—Dr. A. V. Humphry, the gentlemanly and accommodating clerk at the Physician's drug store, visited Fort Wayne the fore part of this week.

—Miss Meam Born, who has been visiting with the family James Anderson for a week or so past, returned to her home in Colon, Mich., Tuesday.

—We had a pleasant call from Miss Olive Nelson and her father last week. She reports the school at No. 9, Jackson, to be in a satisfactory condition.

—W. H. Dills has retired permanently from his position in the office of the county clerk, and will resume the practice of law. His card will appear nex week.

—The M. E. society will be entertained at the lecture room on next Wednesday, afternoon and evening. Refreshments served at the usual hour. All are invited.

—It must be good, for everybody recommends it, and doctors prescribe it. We mean Dr. Marshall's Lung Syrup, the great cough remedy. Sold by all druggists.

—Don't ruin your health, and make yourself disagreeable to other people by your continual coughing. A 25 or 50 cent bottle of Dr. Marshall's Lung Syrup will cure you.

—Cal. Husselman last week cut down an elm tree that measured five feet and five inches in diameter, and judging by the rings, must have been two hundred and twenty years old. Who can beat it?

—Mrs. Likens, mother of Jerry Likens, living six miles east of town, is not expected to survive but a short time. She is in her eighty-sixth year, and to old age more than anything else is attributed her feeble condition.

—Wanted.—Boy not under 17 years of age, to learn the painting trade. Apply to J. F. Canon, shop over W. H. Sibalt's blacksmith shop.

Married—On December 30, 1880, at Hudson, by the Rev. J. C. Mead, Mr. John O. Whysong, of Steuben county, and Miss Charlotte J. Ream, of DeKalb county.

—What we call time enough always proves little enough, and if you buy your time (piece) of Joe Abright you always wish you had bought more. He gives good bargains.

—Mothers, do not let you darlings suffer with the whooping-cough. Use Dr. Marshall's Lung Syrup and the little sufferer will soon find relief. Only 25 and 50 cents a bottle.

—We can recommend our readers to use Dr. Marshall's Lung Syrup in all cases of coughs, colds, etc. It only costs 25 and 50 cents a bottle, and is warranted to cure. Sold by druggists.

—Little Et. Watson had the misfortune to cut his foot with an axe, and has been unable to walk without the use of crutches for several weeks. He laid the sticks to one side Monday, however.

—James Jackson, formerly a resident here, and who has been out west for fifteen years, has returned. He went in company with Dick Plumb and others, and will be remembered by many of the old citizens of Auburn.

—P. H. Brandon, teamster, had his thumb badly smashed while working in the woods yesterday. His son was striking an iron wedge that Pete was holding, and missing it the maul came in contact with Pete's thumb.

—Mr. George Wagoner, who carries on a blacksmith shop near the stave factory, was kicked in the head while shoeing a horse belonging to George Pepple, last Friday. The wound was a painful one, but not dangerous.

—H. E. Beugnot, son of our worthy townsman, C. Beugnot, is attending Assumption college, Sandwich, Ontario. No education being complete without an accompanying stock of information, he takes the Courier as a matter of course.

—The First National bank of Auburn last week declared a semi-annual dividend of three per cent., payable on demand, and carried one per cent. to the surplus fund. P. S.: This bank also has the biggest Shilling of any bank in the state.

Died—At Sulphur Station, Bowen county, Texas, Jan. 8, 1881, of dropsy. Clara, the loving wife of Wm. P. Luck, and youngest daughter of Mrs. Martha Ferrel, of Concord, Indiana, aged 19 years and 7 months. Jackson, Mich., and Tonawanda, New York, papers please copy.

—Austin, of the boot-up-side-down, is a thorough business man, and never lets slip a chance to give his customers a good bargain. But when he sold that pair of rubber boots to a stranger and trusted him for part of the price, he did not think he would have to go to the county hotel to collect his pay.

—Wm. Hoagland, teacher of the school two miles east of town, whipped Frank Piles a little more severe than the parents approved of, and consequently Mr. H. was arrested by Constable Porter. The suit was tried yesterday at Jackson Center, but we cannot give the particulars this week.

—Professor J. W. Clark, the well known scientific lecturer, will give a course of three lecturers, under the auspices of the Auburn Lecture Society, on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings of next week, January 25, 26 and 27. Tickets for the three lectures will be 75 cents. We have attended two courses of Prof. Clark's lectures, and believe that those who hear him will be profited as well as entertained.

—In last week's Republican we noticed an item stating that Frank Copper and his wife had parted, and wondered if the Courier would make a note of it. In general, the Courier is outspoken in all local affairs, without regard to person, but unlike the Republican, it prefers to have facts, and that, too, from a reliable source. The item referred to is wholly untrue, as Mr. Copper and his wife are living happily together, as they always have, at Albion.

—The following marriage licenses have been issued by the clerk during the first half of the present month: Albert Lash and Lizzie Hinman, Jay O. Eastman and Katie Linkenhelt, Asa Bennett and Josie Linkenhelt, Myron S. Kutzner and Mary Coy, George Schroeder and Mary Vandusen, Chas. E. Dreher and Catherine E. Sprankle, Albert M. Markle and Allie Zimmerman, Michael Jozewieck and Paulina Kameeza, Leandrew Ball and Angelina Dirrim, Reuben Forney and Roseltha A. Bohler.

—The Garrett Herald says: "Eggs have been selling at 30 cents a dozen eggsactly, but they will be cheaper in a few days, as one of our hens has commenced laying." Well, Brother Powell, our hens are now laying eggs manufactured expressly for our use, out of 50-cent corn, and by a close estimate from known physiological data, and, making proper allowance for waste, we find that our home-made eggs cost us just 45 cents a dozen. We propose to call a meeting of our hens, and have them close up the business until corn is cheaper, or a higher tariff is placed on foreign eggs.

Crossed the River Jordan.

Miss Frank Baker, daughter of Edward Baker, living just across the creek, died Tuesday afternoon. She has been ailing for about sixteen months, and has been propped up in a reclining chair for over nine months. Her sickness has been long and wearisome, and death would be to anyone, in like circumstances, a welcome release. She leaves a large circle of intimate friends who did all in their power to alleviate her sufferings, during her illness, and prolong her life. Her remains were intered in the front yard of her home at two o'clock to-day.

Old Settlers' Meeting.

The executive committee of the Pioneer association of DeKalb county, are requested to meet at Auburn, at 10 o'clock a. m., on Friday, February 4th, 1881, to transact business of the association. The following persons are the committee: Jacob A. Miller, Butler township, Samuel Mason, Concord; J. J. Gonsenhouser, Stafford, D. Altenburg, Auburn, O. C. Clark, Keyser, Phillip Gushwa, Fairfield, Geo. Fireson, Franklin, A. D. Goetschius, Jackson; S. H. Bartlett, Newville; Chas. Hanes, Wilmington; John Butt, Waterloo; T. D. Dailey, Richland; Jerry Hemstreet, Smithfield; Wm. Emerson, Troy.

Jan. 17, 1881. W. H. Dills, Sec'y.

[Other papers in the county please copy.]

Town Teachers' Meeting.

It is proposed to try the experiment of holding a meeting of the teachers of the village schools of the county to read papers on educational subjects and to discuss the same. The first meeting will be held in Auburn high-school room on Saturday, January 29, commencing at 9 a. m. and closing at 4 p. m. All teachers in town schools are earnestly invited to be present.

MORNING PROGRAMME.

1. The relation of study to the practical pursuits of life—C. A. Fyke.
2. Principles upon which text-books should be composed—W. P. Myers.
3. School examinations, methods and utility—L. Lamport.
4. The conduct of recitations, and how to secure good lessons—F. Rawles.

EVENING PROGRAMME.

1. Language. Should more than one be taught?—M. H. Harrison.
2. The use and abuse of emulation—C. A. Brink.
3. Proper and improper incentives. Prizes and rewards—Henry Coe.
4. Treatment of the refractory and stubborn. Corporal punishment and suspension—Miss Emma Mills.

It is hoped that all teachers in our town schools will be present and prompt. W. H. McIntosh, County Superintendent of Schools.

Obituary.

Died, at his residence near this place, January 12, Lyman Chidsey, aged sixty-three years, six months and three days.

Mr. Chidsey was born in the state of New York, and in his youth, removed with his parents to Medina county, Ohio, from whence, in 1841, he came to this county, where ever since—now nearly forty years—he has continuously resided. On January 11, 1844, he was married to a daughter of the late John Somers, Eliza, who survives him.

Shortly after their marriage they moved upon the farm which adjoins this place, and on which he breathed his last.

Mr. Chidsey, although a quiet and retiring man, and because of his early removals to new and unsettled portions of the country, had not the advantages of early education, as our youths now have, was a man of many virtues in his character, of a sound judgment, and of enlarged views of man and his obligations. His mind was always open for information and to reason, and when made up, was firm and unswerving, as was his attachment to family and friends. His neighbors and associates always knew his convictions, which he maintained with reason and judgment, and always on the side of morality and in the interest of and for the good of society. His neighbors and friends realized these good qualities in our friend and neighbor, as was evidenced by the large concourse who, regardless of the severe inclemency of the weather, attended the funeral from the Presbyterian church, of which denomination he has been a member for several years.

Thus has lived and died a good man—God's noblest work—a pioneer of our county, and with his sorrowing widow and only child, Mrs. Wm. Ashelman, we mingle our tears, and with our entire community extend them our sympathies and condolence, hoping that when the terrible scare of life may come to them and us, our last days may be as serene as his, and that friends may drop a tear of sadness upon our graves. H.

—List of unclaimed letters in the post-office at Auburn January 17, 1881: W. A. Allen, Almon Depen, Thomas Elam, Mrs. M. Grant, A. Jenkinson, Henry Klink, Frank McKinsley, Albert Redell, Jacob Balam, Peter Raub, Hannah Randell, George Sovine, George Swarts, Frank Stevens, E. Weckley.

Jos. Rainier, P. M.

Attention Ladies.

The ladies of Auburn are requested to call on Millie Baughan, at the residence of Mr. L. Bowers, for all kinds of sewing.

Waterloo.

—Schools are progressing finely.

—Dr. Winslow is lying quite ill.

—J. B. Hoover is at work collecting the taxes of 1880.

—Rev. Wm. R. Higgins will preach at the Presbyterian church Sunday afternoon.

—Mr. Forsythe, father-in-law of Postmaster Kimsey, has been lying ill for some time.

—Prof. Tice's lecture was rather thinly attended, but the lecture was full of ideas and opinions new to most of the audience.

—Town board met on Monday evening and settled the delinquent corporation tax matter that has been so long a vexed question.

—Mr. Woolsey is still busy selling his remedies. He informs us that his sales amount to several thousand bottles of medicines annually.

—Mr. Leo Caro, of Kansas City, who was married to Miss Lona F. Jackman, of Waterloo, Ind., August 11, 1880, is now making his wife and her people a visit.

—When you are in Waterloo you might as well call in at Brand & Duncan's and lay in a supply of groceries. It will save coming some day when you are busy.

—J. Mish, of South Bend, will be at Long's hotel January 25, with a fine assortment of masks and costumes for the benefit of those having received invitations to the masquerade party to be given by the Winifred club at Waterloo Wednesday evening, January 26.

—The Press finds fault because we did not notice the election of the agricultural society. The fact is, when we saw the Press was taken into the secret, and the Courier was not, we concluded that the parties interested did not care to give the matter much publicity. So, out of regard to their feelings, we refrained.

—On last Sunday evening as our popular landlord, John Butt, stepped out of his hotel on to the steps, his feet slipped from under him, throwing him with such force against the steps and door jam as to knock out one of his teeth, cut his lip clear through and injure him internally about the chest. He is now slowly recovering, and expects to be all right again in a short time.

—The population of Waterloo is "booming." Our popular sewing-machine agent, Michael Kiplinger, has a bran new girl at his house. Mike don't know whether it is a Domestic or a Singer, but he does know that his five boys are all girls. Charles R. Reed also has a bran new 9¾-pound girl at his house, and as Charlie is a musician, of course there is no doubt but this is a Singer. As yet she sings only in the natural key—key of wah.

St. Joe.

—Two little girls of James Sechler are quite sick with lung fever.

—Will. Koch, son of Joseph Koch, is dangerously sick with lung fever.

—The hunt on Saturday turned out pleasantly, considering the stormy day.

—Marion Dermott was around last week and set up the cigars like a little man.

—The proudest man we have seen for many a day is Marion Dermott. When asked the reason, Marion's answer is, "you ought to see my boy."

—Somebody's dog raided the sheep pen of Milas Rhodes one night last week and succeeded in killing one and wounding eight or nine others, the damage of which was appraised at $50, or $5 per head. Pretty well sold.

—Wm. Simonton thinks Uncle Jim Baker cannot accept that China position until after corn-planting, which will necessitate a change of programme, and Thad. will have to look up another victim. We recommend Brother Engle.

—Ad. Chubb tells the hardest army story of any we have yet heard, which is, that while at Bell Buckle, in the south, his company received some hardtack which was marked B. C., (before Christ.) Ad. says that's a fact, and no fooling.

The crowd which Nelson Thomas commanded came out at the little end of the horn, but they paid for the supper without a murmur. It is said that Al. Bishop proposes to challenge the hunters of St. Joe and vicinity some time in the spring for a duck hunt. He offers to wager the supper for all who may participate that he can kill more ducks in one day that all of St. Joe's mighty hunters combined. The boys will hold a secret meeting in a few days to see if his challenge shall be accepted.

—The Auburn Courier is getting along finely under the new management. They get out an excellent local paper. It is true some of the contemporaries of the Courier are mad because they imagine they can see a small quantity of sauer kraut sticking out of the Courier, but had not their education been neglected it would furnish them first-class amusement instead of perplexing them worse than the fifteen puzzle. Gelt sell is so, Auburner Courier.—Hicksville Republican.

Yah, do bush't du rech't, Bruder Eveland. Dale kar'ls sin tzu dunners dum far in'a house ga vona ra'gert, un of course es mach't se falsh von se ous finn'a dos epher sunsh't, eppes vase dos se, net viss'n. Awe'r so is es eyy'a, un ich denk mer'a mis'sa se eyy'a yush't so g'a luss'n. Ich vil der sag'n; von mer'e a'n gut'a mess sour kraut greg'a kenn'a un don fressa mer'n un sag'n gar nix tzu en'n un gan'e unser'a bisness noch os von gar nix g'happened het. Sell's wag' kenn'a mer'e se uf wech'n by golly.

Mr. Sprott, of Williams county, Ohio, is partially insane over the loss of his team, and not over any transaction concerning the election, as the crazy republican editors of this county would like to make it appear. We get our information from the Hicksville News, a republican organ, published near the home of Mr. Sprott.—Auburn Courier.

Mr. Sprott, named in the above extract, is now an inmate of the Central Ohio lunatic asylum. His insanity was not caused by political complications in DeKalb county, nor did he lose his mental balance because of the theft of his horses. Circumstances attending the pursuit and recovery of the stolen property, repeated attempts to extort money under one pretext and another, constant harassment of his mind and body by men who had marked him for a victim worth the plucking, the breach of pledges and betrayal of confidences by men who preyed upon his pocket under the guise of friendship and authority, had much more to do with placing Marion Sprott where he now is than any political controversies or mere loss of property could have done. Some day, ere long we trust, all the facts in this case of semi-legal robbery will come out, and then lightning will strike in places not now suspected.—[Bryan Democrat.

Important Notice.

Notice is hereby given that our stock of groceries, provisions, queensware, glassware, etc., etc., etc., is complete, and that we will not be undersold by any grocery house in DeKalb county. We invite everybody in need of anything in our line, to call and see us. We will continue to pay the highest market price for produce.

Respectfully,
Brand & Duncan,
Waterloo, Ind.

2 3t

OBITUARY.

Rev. Wesley G. Hartman, brother of E. D. Hartman, Esq., of this place, died of lung fever at Farmersburg, in this state, on the 12th inst. Mr. Hartman was well known to many of our readers, especially to those in this vicinity, as a young man of ability and great industry; and, though yet in early manhood, had been very successful in his chosen calling, the ministry. His future was full of promise, but to the loss of the church and the sorrow of his many friends, he was cut off in the vigor of youth, and in the midst of his labors.

Annual Meeting of the Stockholders of the Fort Wayne & Jackson Railroad Company.

The annual meeting of the stock holders of the Fort Wayne & Jackson railroad company for the election of directors for the ensuing year, and the transaction of such other business as may be brought before it, will be held on Saturday, January 29, 1881, at 10 o'clock a. m., at the general office of the company in Jackson, Michigan. By order of the board of directors. R. G. Rolston, Sec'y.

New York, Dec. 28, 1880. 53 4t.

IMPROVE THE HOUR.

TRADE MARK.

GUENTHER'S LUNG HEALER
CURES CONSUMPTION,
[illegible] of Blood, Bronchitis, Asthma, Coughs, [illegible] Diseases of the Pulmonary Organs.
[illegible] 50 Cents and One Dollar.
GUENTHER & CO. Proprietors.
37 Fifth Avenue, PITTSBURGH, PA.
Ask your druggist for it.

BUT A FEWDAYS!
CHANGE OF FIRM'
Furnishing Goods!
Sacrifice Sale!
Fine Clothing!
Splendid Overcoats!
AT COST.
SAM, PETE & MAX, Ft. Wayne, Ind.

BIG RUSH
AT
Isaac Ochs' Mammoth Store!
THE BOOM INCREASES DAILY.
New Stocks Received Daily
STUPENDOUS BARGAINS TO BE HAD IN ALL CLASSES OF GOODS
THE BOTTOM KNOCKED CLEAR OUT OF
BOOTS, SHOES AND RUBBER GOODS.
Selling piles of them cheap; cheaper than anybody.
Immense Trade in Clothing, and Why?
Because I have an immense stock, and am selling cheaper than anybody. biggest line of Ladies' Dress Goods, and Cloaks, and Dolmans in town, at prices
WAY DOWN! WAY DOWN!
STAPLES ALMOST GIVEN AWAY. Come all ye that want bargains, and will give them to you.
JOIN THE CROWD AND COME AND SEE Us, COME EVERYBODY!
ISAAC OCHS, Auburn, Ind.

ROOT & COMPANY
Invite attention to their
REDUCED PRICES
FOR JANUARY. Preparatory to their Annual Inventory.
LARGE REDUCTION
—IN—
Silks, Satins, Velvets, Plushes, Etc.
LARGE REDUCTION
—IN—
DRESS GOODS,
Dolmans, Ulsters, Cloaks, Shawls.
FELT AND SATIN SKIRTS
A FEW FINE
SEALGARMENTS
AND ELEGANT
FUR LINED GOODS,
AT SPECIAL PRICES.
An unbroken assortment of gentlemen's, ladies' and children's
UNDERWEAR!
Still on hand, and offered at
REDUCED PRICES.
Our stock, in every department, must be reduced, and we have marked such prices on everything as will insure that result.
ROOT & CO., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

AUBURN COURIER.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 20, 1881.

WEEKLY NEWS REVIEW.

THE EAST.

THE county poor-house, near Dover, N. H., caught fire about daylight on the morning of the 7th inst., and was totally consumed. There were 103 paupers in the building, thirteen of whom were suffocated or roasted alive. Those who escaped were clothed and sheltered by families residing in the vicinity. The building was an immense brick structure, and the pecuniary loss was $70,000, on which there is insurance to the amount of $25,000.... The breaking of a water-power at Passaic, N. J., will cause the stoppage of all the mills in that city for several weeks. Damage to the extent of $60,000 has already taken place, and the water supply of the city is cut off..... Two boilers exploded simultaneously in the Balback smelting-works on the Passaic river, near Newark, N. J., the largest establishment of the kind in the United States. Three men were frightfully mangled and two fatally injured.

JULIUS COHN, a manufacturer of varnish in New York, has made an assignment, owing $100,0 0....The safe in the residence of a prominent citizen of Bradford, Pa., was blown open by burglars, who secured $2,000 in bonds and an assortment of diamonds....Four more of the men injured by the boiler explosion at Allentown, Pa., have died and the list now numbers sixteen. At the investigation into the cause of the explosion, two boiler-makers testified that it was the result of the accidental introduction of a current of cold air which forced itself into the boiler and created a vacuum. Other witnesses stated that there was a leak in the boiler.

THE death is announced of Hon. John B. Brown, the wealthiest citizen of Portland, Me., who was prominent in the construction of all the railways in that State and a director in the chief manufacturing enterprises.

MRS. EGERTON and her 2-year-old son were burned to death in Washington, N. J. A coal-oil lamp exploded and set fire to their clothing....A negro boy of Philadelphia, 3 years old, heated a poker to a red-hot heat and killed a babe by putting down its throat the burning iron.

MRS. STONE, the well-known lady philanthropist of Boston, has made the following bequests in addition to a great many previously announced: To the Hampton Institute, Fortress Monroe, Va.; Olivet College, Olivet, Mich.; Ripon College, Ripon, Wis.; Illinois College, Jacksonville; Beloit College, Beloit, Wis.; and Robert College, Constantinople, $20,000 each; to Marietta College, Marietta, Ohio, and Berea College, Berea, Ky., 10,000 each. She gives $25,000 to the Howard University at Washington, $15,000 for evangelical work in France, and $12,500 to the New York Educational Commission.... At Petersboro, N. H., Hatch Walsh killed his wife and cut his own throat....One man was killed and two fatally burned by an explosion in a celluloid factory at Newburyport, Mass.

THE WEST.

THE Presidents of several narrow-gauge railroads in the West and Southwest are moving for a consolidation of their interests, with the intention of making a continuous line from Toledo to the Rio Grande.

A TEAM of horses, drawing a heavy wagon, ran away at Watertown, Wis., on New Year's eve. After considerable advertising, they were found standing dead in a marsh, almost enveloped in mire, six miles from Oconomowoc....By the breaking up of the ice in the Ohio river, steamboat property was damaged to the extent of $150,000.

MLLE. SARA BERNHARDT is creating as great a furore in Chicago as in the cities she has previously visited in America; the advance sale of seats being far ahead of that attending any former presentation to the public of the Western metropolis. Manager McVicker has nearly prevented the securing of the best seats by ticket speculators by his regution of a woman's private character is "none of their business." Probably a larger amount of money will be taken in than at any previous twelve performances in the history of Chicago amusements.

A SHOCKING accident, by which two estimable ladies lost their lives, is reported from Havana, Ohio. Mrs. C. G. Galley and Mrs. B. O. Ellis were riding in a sleigh. Approaching the Baltimore and Ohio railway through a cut in the road, the bells drowned the noise of the approaching locomotive with caboose. The cutter and locomotive reached the crossing at the same time. Mrs. Galley, seeing her peril, stood up in the sleigh and was struck by the pilot in such a manner that she was thrown over the cab of the engine and fell in the arms of the fireman, standing on the tender. Mrs. Ellis was thrown forty feet. Both ladies were killed. The horse was also killed and the cutter ground to fragments.... Dr. Patton, the chemist of the Chicago Health Department, has analyzed a sample of Lake Michigan. He finds it comparatively free from organic matter, but strongly impregnated with magnesian salts....."Uncle Tom," the hero of Harriet Beecher Stowe's novel, lectured last week in Chicago.

ONE HUNDRED AND TWENTY-FIVE pounds of gunpowder exploded in the store of John Andrews, at Climax, Mich. There were eleven persons in the store at the time, three of whom were fatally and seven badly wounded.

POOL-SELLING is now a crime in Ohio, under a new law just passed and approved.... During the past year there were erected in Chicago 3,863 new buildings, at a total cost of $9,100,000....A convention of the farmers of Kansas, in session at Topeka, adopted a resolution in favor of a Congressional enactment controlling all inter-State transportation....The Union flouring-mills, at Detroit, were completely wrecked by the explosion of the boiler. The engineer, fireman and oiler were killed. The damage was $30,000... A policeman at Alton, Ill., caught three burglars at work, and inflicted upon one of them a mortal wound.....The St. Louis Central Railroad Company, which proposes to build a line from Murphysboro, Ill., to the Mississippi river, has been incorporated at Springfield.

A HORRIBLE tragedy was enacted near Oshkosh, Wis., a few nights ago. The farm-house, barn, and granary of a family named Wiskow were burned. When the neighbors arrived on the scene they found the doors securely locked. Miss Wiskow was found some rods from the house insensible, with two deep gashes on her head and face, and her clothing partly burned. The body of Mrs. Wiskow was found in the burning embers, but sufficiently preserved to show that she had been murdered. In the ruins of the barn were found some bones, presumably all that was left of Mr. Wiskow. It is believed that the crime was perpetrated by Wiskow while laboring under a fit of insanity.

THE SOUTH.

JAY GOULD paid $750,000 for the road best known as the New Orleans and Texas, which is in running order to Donaldsonville, and is graded to Alexandria. It is expected that the New Orleans Pacific will be completed by August....A fast-mail train, going south on the Richmond and Danville road, struck a rock slide near Lexington, N. C. The engineer and fireman were instantly killed, and the engine and postal-car completely wrecked.

THE Masonic lodge in Fredericksburg, Va., in which Washington was initiated Nov. 1752, has determined to erect a memorial temple.

A BILL is before the Legislature of Tennessee to settle the debt of Memphis with bonds at 25 cents on the dollar, bearing 4 per cent. interest....Mrs. Anne Wood, who resided in Hampton, Va., when the British troops entered it, in 1812, has passed away from earthly scenes.... A negro who had outraged a white girl, near Mariana, Ark., was taken from jail by an armed mob, some of whom riddled the villain with bullets before the hanging faction could reach a tree.

THE cotton and rice crops of South Carolina have sustained great damage from the protracted wet weather....Frederick Wirtz, President of the New Orleans City Railroad Company, has been indicted for embezzling $50,000 of the funds of the company.

WASHINGTON.

SECRETARY EVARTS says there is no way to reopen the Halifax arbitration unless Great Britain takes the first step....The managers of the Garfield inauguration now propose to have in attendance 300 men from each county in Ohio, ranged under banners.

CAPT. JAMES B. EADS has arrived in Washington. He expresses his belief that Congress would never lend itself to further the wishes of the promoters of an inter-oceanic canal, in view of the superior recommendations which would be offered by the adoption of his plan. He will ask Congress at once to give him authority to form a company, with $75,000,000 capital, and to guarantee 6-per-cent. dividends upon two-thirds of that amount. For this the American Government will have a right to have its war vessels transported across the railway free of charge.

THE House Committee on Education and Labor agreed to report favorably on Representative Goode's bill to devote to public instruction the proceeds of sales of public lands.

POLITICAL.

IN California, Gen. John F. Miller has been chosen to succeed Newton Booth in the United States Senate; in Maine, Eugene Hale will succeed Senator Hamlin; in Nevada, James G. Fair will step into Senator Sharon's shoes; and in Missouri, Senator Cockrell will be his own successor.

GOV. MURRAY, of Utah, has issued a certificate of election to Allen G. Campbell as delegate to Congress, on the ground that Geo. Q. Cannon, who received the majority of votes, is not a citizen of the United States, and living in polygamy in violation of the law of 1862. The Mormons are indignant, and Cannon will contest the case.

A LARGE number of the colored people of Cleveland, at a public meeting, adopted a resolution that Senator Bruce has done nothing for his race, and is not a true representative of his class.

JOHN SHERMAN will succeed Mr. Thurman in the Senate from Ohio. He received the unanimous vote of the Republican Legislative caucus, which was in session only half an hour. Gen. J. R. Hawley was nominated by acclamation for Senator by the Republican caucus of the Connecticut Legislature. Gen. Ben Harrison received the unanimous nomination of the Republican caucus of the Indiana Legislature for Senator.... The Democratic members of the Senate Military Committee at Washington are a unit against Logan's scheme to put Grant on the retired list with the rank and pay of General.

GEN. MILLER, the Republican candidate, was elected United States Senator by the California Legislature, on the 12th inst. Col. James G. Fair was elected Senator by the Nevada Legislature on the same day..... Gen. Plaisted has been declared Governor of Maine by the Legislature of that State.

IN the Pennsylvania Republican Senatorial caucus, at Harrisburg, the Grow men, fifty-one in number, finding themselves in the minority, absented themselves by agreement. On the the third ballot H. W. Oliver, Jr., the Cameron candidate, was nominated for Senator. Thomas C. Platt was nominated for Senator by the New York Legislative caucus, and Mr. McMillan was named as his own successor by the Republican caucus of the Minnesota Legislature.

GENERAL.

ADVICES from the City of Mexico say that at last accounts there was not a pound of flour in Tampico, the cotton crop in the State of Durango had been destroyed, and the cold weather in Chihuahua surpassed anything in the memory of the oldest inhabitant....It is announced that a rival syndicate has been formed for the construction of the Canada Pacific railroad, and on terms much more favorable to the country than those agreed to by the Government. The new syndicate is willing to undertake the work for a bonus of $2,000,000 and 20,000,000 acres of land. This is more favorable than the contract now before Parliament of $5,000,000 and 50,000,000 acres of land....George F. Slosson, being unable to get another match with Vignaux in Paris, has sailed for New York. In a letter to his brother he claims that he was robbed in the last game.

FIVE Mexican prisoners, heavily ironed, in charge of a Federal Marshal, passed through Chicago last week to serve terms of two years each in the Detroit House of Correction. They were the leaders of a party equipped in Arizona last August for revolutionary operations in Mexico, and were sentenced for violating the neutrality laws. One of the number, Col. Martinez, was the finest cavalry officer in the Mexican army.... John F. Swift, one of the American Commissioners who recently negotiated the treaty with China, says the United States has reserved the right to terminate at pleasure the residence of Chinese laborers upon its soil. It is understood that no more Celestials shall be naturalized in this country, and the papers already issued shall have no effect.

THE National Rifle Association, at its annual meeting in New York, adopted a resolution declaring it inexpedient to accept the invitation of Lord Stanhope to compete on British soil.

IT is believed that the basis on which the Western Union, American Union and Atlantic and Pacific Telegraph Companies have been consolidated is that the new company's stock shall be $80,000,000, of which the Western Union is to have $58,000,000, the American Union $15,000,000 and the Atlantic and Pacific $7,000,000. Jay Gould engineered the whole scheme, and is said to have profited very largely by the operation.

THE value of the petroleum exports from the United States for the eleven months ending Nov. 30, 1880, was $31,644,007, against $33,296,020 for the same period in 1879.

FOREIGN.

SINCE the failure of negotiations for a treaty with Russia, the Chinese Government has made extensive preparations for war. It is believed that torpedoes will be laid at the entrance to treaty ports, and the commerce of all nations cut off.

A CHRISTIAN Liberal club has been formed in Berlin to oppose the anti-Jewish agitation....A Japanese coasting steamer with sixty passengers and a crew of twenty-two foundered in an inland sea of Japan, and sixty-four lives were lost....A Bombay dispatch announces that a plot to depose the Rajah and massacre all European residents in Kolapore has been discovered at Kolapore. Forty-seven natives have been arrested.

A PLOT to kill Charles Bradlaugh has been discovered in London. The intention was to attack him on his way home from the House of Commons....A Vienna dispatch announces the renewal of the alliance between the Emperors of Austria, Germany and Russia....All the great powers unreservedly approve of the arbitration of the Greek question, but Greece and Turkey refuse to have anything to do with the scheme. Both nations are getting ready to fight.

THE Peruvians have placed dynamite mines at exposed points outside of Lima. The Chilian army is encamped nine miles from the city, and a battle is daily expected.

THE prosecution having closed their case, the defense of the Irish traversers was begun at Dublin on the 13th inst. The court-room was crowded. McDonough, who delivered the opening address, was almost the sole survivor of the counsel in the O'Connell case. He claimed that the Land League was a legal organization, and that the traversers professed the principles of John Stewart Mill, and but for the support of England the landlords would be driven into the sea.... A theater at Cronstadt, Russia, was destroyed by fire, and the director and seven others perished in the flames....During the month of December, 866 agrarian outrages were committed in Ireland.

CONGRESSIONAL SUMMARY.

Mr. Eaton reported the Diplomatic Appropriation bill to the Senate on the morning of Thursday, Jan. 6. The Army Appropriation was read twice and referred. Mr. Vest introduced a bill to authorize the construction of a bridge across the Missouri at Howell's Ferry, Mo. A prolonged debate took place on the claim of Ben Holliday. The Senate, in executive session, took up Gen. Goff's nomination as Secretary of the Navy, and immediately confirmed it, without the usual reference to committee. The House went into committee of the whole on the Funding bill. Mr. Kelley insisted upon temporary loans rather than an extension of the bonded debt. Mr. Chittenden favored the repeal of all taxes on the capital or deposits of banks. Mr. Weaver urged the application of the silver hoard to the extinguishment of bonds. Mr. Chittenden expressed the belief that unless the banks were relieved of tax the 3-per-cent. bond scheme would fail. Mr. Phillips gave notice of a substitute to issue 3-per-cent. treasury notes, redeemable after next year, in regular series.

On the opening of the Senate on Friday, Jan 7, the Vice President submitted a request from the Secretary of War that the item for recruiting in the Army Appropriation bill be increased to $97,000. Mr. Jonas presented a memorial from W. J. Moore, of New Orleans, stating that William Pitt Kellogg secured his seat by bribery, and asking to be allowed to testify that he was himself bribed. Mr. Burnside introduced a bill to authorize the retirement of Brevet Maj. Gen. William A. Averill, with the rank and pay of Brigadier General. The Consular appropriation, calling for $1,191,435, was taken up, and prolonged debate occurred on the item of $1,500 for rent of prisons for American convicts in China, which finally got through. The sum of $4,000 was appropriated for a Consul General at Bucharest, and the bill passed. Mr. Ferry introduced a bill providing for the establishment of seven additional life-saving stations on Lakes Superior and Michigan, and twenty-eight additional stations on the Atlantic coast. The Senate adjourned to Monday. In the House, Mr. Springer offered a resolution calling on the Secretary of State for the fullest information in regard to the Halifax award. Mr. Newberry charged that fraudulent testimony had been manufactured by British agents and accepted by the commission, and the party in power in England would willingly reopen the question. A bill was passed for the relief of Winnebago Indians in Wisconsin.

The Senate was not in session on Saturday, Jan. 8. The House spent nearly all day in committee of the whole on the Funding bill. Fernando Wood, for the Committee on Ways and Means, offered an amendment to fix the rate of interest at 3 per cent. Mr. Claflin thought it would be dangerous to put a bond of that rate on the market. Mr. Warner suggested that the interest be fixed at 3½ per cent. Mr. Keifer offered an amendment to pay not exceeding 4 per cent., which was voted down. Mr. Frye said he had lately become convinced that it would be utterly impossible to float a 3-per-cent. bond running less than thirty years. Mr. Randall remarked that the outstanding bonds vibrated between 3¼ and 3½ per cent. Fernando Wood gave Secretary Sherman as authority for a statement that a short certificate could be floated at 3 per cent. Mr. Mills thought $100,000,000 could be saved by letting the matured debt stand and pay it in five years. Mr. Hawley said that at the present market rates of bonds a thirty-year 3 per cent. was worth 94 to 95. Mr. Converse thought a 3-per-cent. bond was equivalent to 6 per cent. on private loans. Mr. Townshend called attention to the sale of Northern Pacific 5's at a premium of over 2½ per cent. Mr. Felton thought it would be criminal to perpetuate the debt. Mr. Bayne offered an amendment that the Secretary of the Treasury sell the new bonds at the lowest rate of interest practicable, which was lost. Mr. Hurd declared specie resumption a delusion and a snare. Mr. Gillette thought it shameful that Mr. Newberry should admit having received instructions from a national bank. When the committee rose, to limit debate, an adjournment was effected. The Indian appropriation was reported, which sets aside $4,526,860, of which amount $250,000 is for the transportation of supplies.

Mr. Logan introduced in the Senate, on Monday, Jan. 10, a bill to place Grant on the retired list of the army with the rank and pay of General. Mr. Bayard presented a bill to require signatures on national-bank notes to be written, and Mr. Logan one to extend the franking privilege to all official business of Senators and Representatives. Mr. Voorhees submitted a resolution to exclude the Territories from the operation of the Posse Comitatus act. Mr. McDonald urged the payment of the claim of Ben Holliday, while Mr. Bayard opposed the idea of the Government insuring mail contractors against loss by the depredations of Indians. In the House, Mr. Carpenter presented a constitutional amendment providing that the bulk of civil officers of the United States shall hold their positions for four years, and that Congress may provide for the election of Postmasters and other local officers. Mr. Buckner introduced a bill to negotiate with Mexico or Central America for the cession of territory on which to colonize our negro population. The House went into committee of the whole on the Indian appropriation, and Mr. Frost charged that the removal of Chief Joseph and his band to the malarious Indian Territory was a crime. Mr. Sherwin introduced a bill to regulate the importation of imitations of butter and cheese. A resolution was passed authorizing the invitation of the Government and people of France to take a part in the Yorktown centennial celebration.

Mr. Cameron made an adverse report on the bill to reorganize the militia of the United States to the Senate, on the morning of Jan. 11. Mr. Windom reported the West Point appropriation, and Mr. Morey a bill for the relief of Gen. Ord. Mr. Slater introduced a bill fixing the price of even-numbered sections, "within the limits of any railroad, military, or wagon road grant to pre-emption settlers," at $1.75 per acre. The Senate spent most of the day in discussing the bill for the relief of Ben Holliday and the District Tramp bill. During the discussion of the former some sharp passages at arms took place between Conkling and McPherson. No final action was taken on either bill. In the House, Messrs. Converse, House, Phillips, Browne and Robinson of Massachusetts were appointed a Congressional committee to investigate the alleged violations of the franking privilege by members of Congress in sending political documents through the mails under their frank just prior to the late Presidential election. In committee of the whole on Indian appropriations, Mr. Hiscock's amendment setting aside $10,000 for the expenses of a commission of ten citizens was adopted. The sixth section, which provides for the opening of bids and award of contracts at some point in the West, was stricken out. On reporting the bill to the House the amendment for a commission was rejected, and the bill passed. The House received a communication from the President recommending that an appropriation be made to pay the expenses of two delegates to represent the United States at the International Congress of Electricians to be held in Paris next September.

In the United States Senate, Mr. Davis, of West Virginia, presented a scheme for the clerical reorganization of the Treasury Department, on Wednesday, Jan. 12. Mr. Logan called up his resolution for the extension of the franking privilege to all official business of Senators and Representatives, on which a prolonged debate took place. The army appropriation was then taken up, and discussion arose over the sum set apart to pay land-grant railroads an installment on their claims. The House took up the Funding bill, in committee of the whole, and, after a full expression of opinion, the rate of interest on the bonds and notes was fixed at 3 per cent. The vote was 122 to 92, the Democrats mainly favoring that rate and the Republicans opposing it. An amendment by Mr. Stanford was adopted, that prior to the issue of the refunding bonds or notes the Secretary of the Treasury shall pay on maturing bonds all standard silver dollars and all gold in excess of $50,000,000 now held for redemption purposes. When the committee rose, Mr. Randall said the national banks should be compelled to take the 3 per cents. as security for their circulation, which would market $400,000,000, and the remainder of the maturing debt could be liquidated by payment. Mr. Haskell declared that no Western national bank could continue business on a 3-per-cent. bond. No conclusive action had been reached on the bill at the hour of adjournment.

A bill was reported favorably to the Senate on the morning of Jan. 13, by Mr. McMillan, to pay damages to Indians on the Minnesota reservations, caused by the construction of reservoirs at the headwaters of the Mississippi, and it was passed. Mr. Logan called up the resolution extending the franking privilege, which went to the Postoffice Committee. The Senate then took up the Army bill and adopted Mr. Edmunds's amendment providing for the payment to the land-grant railroads of 50 per cent. of their claims; provided further, that the total amount to be paid should not exceed $125,000. In the House, Mr. Johnston reported a bill to relieve Maj. Gen. Ord. The Funding bill was then taken up in committee of the whole. An amendment was adopted that $400,000,000 in 3-per-cent. bonds be issued, redeemable in five years and payable in ten, and certificates to the amount of $300,000,000, bearing 3 per cent. interest and running from one to ten years, the treasury having previously paid out all the silver dollars and all the gold reserve above $50,000,000. Some passages-at-arms took place between Reed, of Maine, and Randall, the former accusing the latter of something like demagogy. Frank Hurd also felt aggrieved at some remarks by a brother Democrat, Myers, of Indiana, and rose to a personal explanation.

INDIANA LEGISLATURE.

THURSDAY, Jan. 6.—SENATE.—The Senate was called to order by Auditor of State Manson, and immediately after the new Senators were sworn in. Senator Viche, of Knox, Democrat, was elected President pro tem., only one vote in the negative and one other not voting. On the ballot for Principal Secretary, Rice received 25 votes and Wilson 25. Davis and Majors voting with the Democrats and Poindexter with the Republicans. This continued for four ballots, and then the Senate adjourned until to-morrow morning.

HOUSE.—Judge Elliott, one of the recently elected Judges of the Supreme Court, administered the oath, after which the caucus nominees were duly elected, as follows: Speaker, W. M. Ridpath, of Clay; Clerk, Cyrus T. Nixon, of Marion; Assistant Clerk, Clinton G. Riley, of Marion; Doorkeeper, Owen Evans, of Henry. The Democrats cast their votes for the officers of the last session. The count of the ballots showed the strength of the political organizations to be as follows: Republicans, 58; Democrats, 41; National, 1. Assistant-Secretary Riley made the following appointments: Minute Clerk, James F. Bryer, of Logansport; Journal Clerk, Richard W. Dorner, of Richmond; Copy Clerks, W. W. Garner, of Knox, and E. O. Johnson, of Union.

FRIDAY, Jan. 7.—SENATE.—The dead lock in the organization of the Senate still continues, though several attempts at compromise were made. Senator Bell, of Allen, introduced a resolution which provided for the election of James H. Rice as principal Secretary, Robert Sears, of Vermillion, as Assistant, and C. Y. Monroe for Doorkeeper. The resolution was lost by the usual tie vote—25 to 25—and, nominations for Secretary being in order, Rice and Wilson were again named, while Poindexter, Greenbacker, varied the monotony by nominating Charles W. Brouse. The vote stood 25 for Rice, 24 for Wilson and 1 for Brouse—no choice. Another ballot was taken with a similar result, when an adjournment took place until 2 o'clock. Upon reassembling, Senator Brown, of Jackson, offered a resolution that the nominee receiving the highest number of votes should be declared the Secretary. This was lost by a tie vote. Three members were appointed to assist in preparing for the inauguration. An effort to adjourn then failed, when Senator Bell moved that Greenbacker Brouse be chosen Clerk, the vote standing 27 to 23, Benz and Brown, Democrats, voting against him. A second ballot resulted similarly, when the Senate adjourned.

HOUSE.—The time of the lower House was occupied principally in a discussion of the contested-election case of Haslewood-Hammond, from Crawford and Orange. It was finally referred to a committee of five. An appropriation of $125,000 was voted for the expenses of the session. Clerk Nixon announced for Reading Clerk, W. L. Taylor, of LaGrange; Registry Clerk, Thad Butler, of Wabash.

SATURDAY, Jan. 8.—SENATE.—After the appointment of two or three routine committees, Senator Porter, a Democrat, made an ineffectual effort to pass his resolution for a committee of three Democrats and three Republicans to propose a compromise candidate for Principal Secretary. Senator Menzies, Democrat, nominated Joel P. Heatwale, a Republican. Heatwale was defeated by a vote of 18 to 28. Then Charles W. Brouse, the Greenback candidate, was put in nomination. Then Heatwale was again nominated by a Democrat, giving the Republicans a second opportunity to elect a Secretary, but they voted for Wilson. On the next ballot Mr. Benz voted with his Democratic associates, electing Brouse by a vote of 25 to 23 cast for Wilson. After Brouse's election the two remaining offices were quickly filled. Robert B. Sears, of Vermillion county, the only candidate nominated, was elected Assistant Secretary by 45 votes, 2 being cast for Mr. Robbins. Mr. Sears was nominated from the Democratic benches. Allen W. Monroe, nominated from the Republican side, was elected Doorkeeper, receiving 30 votes, Mr. Rich Huncheon, Mr. L. D. Atkinson, and Mr. J. E. Gowdy, each received 3 votes, and Mr. Ed Hawkins 2 votes. The Senate, having organized, adjourned to meet at 2 o'clock in joint session with the House to hear the message of Gov. Gray.

MONDAY, Jan. 10.—The Legislature did no business to-day, but in a body attended the inauguration ceremonies of the new State officers. In accordance with the adjournment on Saturday, the Senate and House met in joint session this afternoon at half-past 1 o'clock, and, with Gov. Gray and Governor-elect Porter at their head, the members marched in double file to English's Opera House, where the inaugural ceremonies occurred. A large crowd anticipated this arrival, filling the galleries and lobbies. Govs. Gray and Porter entered the Opera House arm in arm. Immediately behind followed Lieut. Gov. Hanna, accompanied by Senator Viehe, President pro tem. of the Senate. The Hon. Will E. Niblack, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, had previously entered, taking his seat on the extreme right. Mr. Viehe then offered a series of resolutions bearing tribute to the patriotism and efficiency of his Excellency Hon. Isaac P. Gray, which, upon the motion of Hon. Henry Cauthorne, was adopted by a unanimous vote of the members of both houses. Chief Justice Niblack administered the oath first to Gov. Porter and then to Lieut. Gov. Hanna, both gentlemen rising and remaining standing until each had bowed assent. Gov. Porter then read his inaugural.

TUESDAY, Jan. 11.—SENATE.—There was quite a breeze over the question of referring the inaugural of Gov. Porter to the standing committees. The Democrats took the ground that the address was not a message to the Legislature, and, therefore, not proper before the body. The Republicans took the opposite ground, and the Lieutenant Governor so ruled. An appeal from the decision failed by a vote of 21 to 23, Senator Davis not being present. In the afternoon the Senate agreed to refer Porter's inaugural to the standing committees by a vote of 26 to 21. Gov. Porter appointed Capt. James R. Carnahan, of Lafayette, Adjutant General, and Frank H. Blackledge, of Indianapolis, private secretary.

HOUSE.—The most important thing done was the adoption of the majority report of the Committee on Rules in favor of a committee on Congressional and Legislative reapportionment. The vote was 57 to 40. The standing committees were announced, the following being the most important:

Elections—Burrell, Carr of White and Bent, Fraysin, Marshal, Cabbage, Bryant and Adrian.

Ways and Means—Kenner, Huston, Meredith, Lindsey, Neff, Cauthorne and Close.

On Judiciary—Carter, Ryan, Lindsay, Frazier, Skinner, Wright, Neff, Cauthorne, Buskirk, Gibson and Teter.

On Prisons—Wilson, of Montgomery, Roelker, Hinton, Iddings, Davis, Edwards and Barnett.

On Military Affairs—Compton, Mosier, Westfall, Gardner, Schweitzer, Cummins and Huston.

On Claims—Thompson, Vawter, Huff, Carter, Akin, Bonham and Jackson.

On Fees and Salaries—Wilson of Morgan, Fuller, Robinson of Decatur, Chandler, Kerr and Sinclair.

On Affairs of the City of Indianapolis—McGlasson, Cotton, Berryman, Hinton, Cooper, Kain and McGuire.

On County and Township Business—Murray, Thompson, Mason, O'Brien, Bryant, McClure and Null.

On Benevolent Institutions—Hamilton, Fail, Fanchar, Cotton, Neff, Teter and Adrian.

On Reformatory Institutions—Miles, Beatty, Furnas, Stewart, Akin, Carr of Whitley and Sumner.

On Reapportionment—Wright, Eleventh district, Chairman; First district, Sulzer, of Perry; Second, Fuller, of Greene; Third, Gibson, of Clark; Fourth, Robinson, of Decatur; Fifth, Barnett, of Johnson; Sixth, Sinclair, of Rush; Seventh, Hinton, of Marion; Eighth, Morgan, of Vigo; Ninth, Bryant, of Clinton; Tenth, Wheeler, of Fulton and Pulaski; Twelfth, Iddings, of Noble; Thirteenth, Davis, of Laporte.

The usual number of bills were introduced; among them one compelling attendance upon the public schools, another authorizing the voters in any district to call a meeting and select a school-teacher of their own choosing, and a proposition for a constitutional convention. A resolution was adopted for an investigation of all matters connected with the contract and building of the new State House. A bill was also introduced for the resubmission of the amendments.

The Republicans met in joint caucus and nominated Gen. Ben Harrison for Senator by acclamation, no other name being mentioned. Fifty-four Representatives and twenty-three Senators participated.

WEDNESDAY, Jan. 12.—SENATE.—The Senate spent the morning in passing two bills, one of them appropriating $125,000 for Legislative expenses; the other restoring a law concerning decedents' estates, in effect for twenty years until a recent decision of the Supreme Court. Senator Voyles introduced a bill preventing the issuance of a marriage license to a habitual drunkard or to any one twice convicted of felony, or incapable of managing his or her own business, or who has been adjudged insane. Senator Spann presented one prohibiting pool selling, and Senator Shaffer introduced a local-option bill drawn by the State Temperance League, and which amounts to almost total prohibition in large cities. The Assistant Secretary of the Senate announced the following appointments: Journal Clerk, James T. Darnell, of Putnam county; Assistant Journal Clerk, Charles F. Robbins, of Marion county; Copying Clerk, Aaron T. Horrell, of Warren. Doorkeeper Monroe appointed the following assistants: First, Walter Poindexter, son of the Senator; Second, Frank Pillet; Third, John W. Merton; Postmaster, A. W. Monroe, Jr.

HOUSE.—The House refused to petition Congress to pension Mexican veterans. Representative Kenner, of Huntington, was made Chairman of the committee to investigate the new State House matter, and Dr. Edwins of the committee to make inquiry into charges of cruel treatment of prisoners in the female reformatory institutions. Bills were introduced, among them the Medical bill, a bill establishing a board of fish commissioners, authorizing the appointment of a Police Judge for Indianapolis, and enabling the Legislature by joint resolution to require an opinion from the Supreme Court within ten days as to the power of the General Assembly to resubmit the constitutional amendments. The House went into committee of the whole for the purpose of considering Gov. Porter's inaugural address. Finally the whole matter was postponed until to-morrow afternoon.

The Champion Liar.

The most abled-bodied liar on this continent is now on the staff of the San Francisco Chronicle, and that paper is justly proud of his brilliant mendacity. Gifted as others have been in this line, the 'Frisco man discounts them all and gives them as many points as they wish at the beginning of the game. His genius in this respect is probably the result of the "glorious climate of California," ably seconded by that training which only Chicago or San Francisco can give. His most imposing and massive falsehoods are always in the medical line. A while ago he gave an account of a physician who removed a condemned criminal's brain, piece by piece. The top of the unfortunate culprit's head would lift off like a lid, so that any inquisitive person could gaze at the empty shell. To do the doctor justice it must be admitted that he kept the scooped-out head filled with cotton, so that the brainless man could not catch cold. No doubt California is so accustomed to see men without brains that this story passed current there. This man, we presume, is now an estimable citizen of San Francisco, going around with a lump of cotton instead of brains. Again, this chronicler wrote of a physician who fixed up a bath that would freeze solid in an instant, by touching an electric knob. By mistake the physician got into the bath, some one touched the knob, and in a moment the doctor was ready to be loaded on an ice wagon. The latest yarn appeared last week. Barney McGee, probably a descendant of the "Bouncing Barney McGee" celebrated in an old Irish song, drove a street car till he got a disease that softened all his bones. Barney was about to collapse when Dr. Bishop took him in hand and ossified Mr. McGee on the outside. He procured bone material at the stock yards and covered Barney with a shell—in fact, made a human oyster of him. Barney has no bones inside, but his outside shell prevents collapse and although he is a little stiff in his manner he gets along all right.—Detroit Free Press.

How Three Debts Were Paid.

A singular coincidence, showing how much can be done by the payment of even a small debt, happened at Bangor, Me. A gentleman was at the wharf, intending to purchase some lobsters, when two gentlemen came up and engaged with him in conversation. The first gentleman said to the second: "I believe I owe you a dollar." "Yes," replied the second, "I believe you do." The second man then spoke to the third: "I believe I also owe you a dollar," which fact the third man acknowledged, and he also said that he owed the first man a dollar, which he desired to pay. In this transaction the three men each paid their indebtedness to each other, and they did so without passing any money between them.

Don't Spell it Out.

Elizabeth Cady Stanton is trying to persuade her friends to write their own full names, as if the public cared for anything but some distinguishing initial. As remarks the Boston Transcript, "it does not improve a piece of bad poetry to have it signed Mary Ann James Patterson Perkins, nor does any one care to be reminded that Mrs. Charles Smith's maiden name was Polly Snow, by her writing Polly Snow Smith, whenever she has an opportunity."

MANY of the Hindoos still think that the leader of the Sepoy rebellion, Nana Sahib, is yet living, and that he is in America, a region as vague to them as the dominions of Prester John were to the mediævalists. Although his death was announced twenty years ago, the truth or falsity of it was not then, nor has it since been, ascertained. He might be alive, so far as his age goes, for he would not now be more than 60 years old.

THE TEACHER'S LOT.

A Collection of Quotations Upon the Amenities and Tribulations of Teaching.

Teacher—"And the Lord said unto Moses—Maggie Ford, put down that slate!"

Delightful task! to rear the tender thought,
To teach the young idea how to shoot!
—Thomson's "Spring."

To sentence a man of true genius to the drudgery of a school is to put a race-horse in a mill.—Colton.

Taught or untaught the dunce is still the same;
Yet still the wretched master bears the blame.
—Dryden.

The schoolmaster is apt to be a favorite with the female part of creation, especially in the rural districts.—Irving.

Uneasy lie the heads of all who rule;
The most so his whose kingdom is a school.
—O. W. Holmes.

I can easier teach twenty what were good to be done than be one of the twenty to follow my own teaching.—Shakspeare.

Came the Preceptor, gazing idly round,
Now at the clouds and now at the green grass,
And all absorbed in reveries profound
Of fair Almira in the upper class.
—Longfellow.

Worried and tormented into monotonous feebleness, the best part of life ground out of him in a mill of boys.—Dickens.

She dwells by great Kenhawa's side,
In valleys green and cool,
And all her hope and all her pride
Are in her village school.
—Longfellow.

If a student convince you that you are wrong and he is right, acknowledge it cheerfully, and—hug him.—Emerson.

The twig is so easily bended,
I have banished the rule and the rod;
I have taught them the goodness of knowledge,
They have taught me the goodness of God.
—Charles Dickinson.

If vexed with a child when instructing it, try to write with your left hand. Remember a child is all left hand.—J. F. Boyce.

To rear, to teach,
Becoming as is meet and fit,
A link among the days to knit
The generations each with each.
—Tennyson.

What comfort some pedagogues might derive from the thought that wise pupils can learn as much from a fool as from a philosopher.—Vedder.

Instructors should not only be skillful in those sciences which they teach, but have skill in the method of teaching and patience in the practice.—Dr. Watts.

And when the world shall link your names
With gracious lives and manners fine,
The teacher shall assert her claims,
And proudly whisper, "These were mine!"
—Whittier.

The eminences of their scholars commend the memories of schoolmasters to posterity, who otherwise, in obscurity, had been altogether forgotten.—Thomas Fuller.

Pretty were the sight
If our old halls could change their sex, and flaunt
With prudes for proctors, dowagers for deans,
And sweet girl-graduates in their golden hair.
—Tennyson.

Enny man who has kept a skool for ten years ought to be made a Major General, and have a penshun for the rest of his nateral days, and a hoss and wagon to do his going around in.—Josh Billings.

O'er wayward childhood wouldst thou hold firm rule,
And sun thee in the light of happy faces;
Love, Hope, and Patience—these must be thy graces,
And in thine own heart let them first keep school.
—Coleridge.

One-half of the children cried in chorus, "Yes, sir!" Upon which the other half, seeing in the gentleman's face that yes was wrong, cried out in chorus, "No, sir!" as the custom is in these examinations.—Dickens.

And while a paltry stipend earning,
He sows the richest seeds of learning;
No joys, alas! his toil beguile,
His mind lies fallow all the while
—Robert Lloyd.

Still to be pinioned down to teach
The Syntax and the Parts of Speech,
Or deal out authors by retail,
Like penny pots of Oxford ale;
O 'tis a service irksome more
Than tugging at the slavish oar.
—Robert Lloyd.

A WRITER in Land and Water says: "What a mistake it is to put marble statues in the open air in London! There is an effigy of the Queen in the Royal Exchange. In fine weather the features are soot-begrimed, and on wet days the water flows in dirty furrows down the cheeks."

THE happiness of your life depends upon the quality of your thoughts; therefore, guard accordingly, and take care that you entertain no notions unsuitable to virtue, and unreasonable to nature.

AN Alaska iceberg of the largest size will send its waves a half-dozen miles or more before they are spent.

THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK.
Beeves	$7 75	@11 75
Hogs	5 00	@ 5 40
Cotton	12	@ 13¼
Flour—Superfine	3 25	@ 3 75
Wheat—No. 2 Spring	1 13	@ 1 20
Corn—Ungraded	56	@ 57
Oats—Mixed Western	42	@ 45
Pork—Mess	12 75	@13 00
Lard	9	@ 9¼
CHICAGO.
Beeves—Choice Graded Steers	5 15	@ 5 75
Cows and Heifers	2 50	@ 3 75
Medium to Fair	4 35	@ 4 75
Hogs	4 00	@ 5 25
Flour—Fancy White Winter Ex	4 75	@ 6 00
Good to Choice Spring Ex	5 00	@ 5 25
Wheat—No. 2 Spring	98	@ 99
No. 3 Spring	85	@ 88
Corn—No. 2	37	@ 38
Oats—No. 2	31	@ 32
Rye—No. 2	88	@ 89
Barley—No. 2	1 07	@ 1 08
Butter—Choice Creamery	28	@ 30
Eggs—Fresh	24	@ 26
Pork—Mess	11 00	@12 00
Lard	8¼	@ 8¾
MILWAUKEE.
Wheat—No. 1	99	@ 1 00
No. 2	96	@ 97
Corn—No 2	37	@ 38
Oats—No. 2	31	@ 32
Rye—No. 1	85	@ 86
Barley—No. 2	81	@ 82
ST. LOUIS.
Wheat—No. 2 Red	1 01	@ 1 02
Corn—Mixed	39	@ 40
Oats—No. 2	31	@ 32
Rye	85	@ 87
Pork—Mess	12 75	@13 00
Lard	8¼	@ 8¾
CINCINNATI.
Wheat	1 06	@ 1 07
Corn	41	@ 42
Oats	36	@ 37
Rye	97	@ 98
Pork—Mess	12 25	@13 50
Lard	8¼	@ 8¾
TOLEDO.
Wheat—No. 1 White	1 01	@ 1 02
No. 2 Red	1 05	@ 1 06
Corn—No. 2	40	@ 41
Oats—No. 2	35	@ 36
DETROIT.
Flour—Choice	4 90	@ 5 25
Wheat—No. 1 White	1 01	@ 1 02
Corn—No. 1	42	@ 43
Oats—Mixed	36	@ 37
Barley (per cental)	1 50	@ 2 50
Pork—Mess	12 25	@12 50
INDIANAPOLIS.
Wheat—No. 2 Red	1 00	@ 1 01
Corn	38	@ 39
Oats	32	@ 34
Pork—Mess	12 50	@13 00
EAST LIBERTY, PA.
Cattle—Best	5 25	@ 5 50
Fair	4 50	@ 5 00
Common	4 00	@ 4 25
Hogs	4 25	@ 5 40
Sheep	3 50	@ 5 00

AUBURN COURIER.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 20, 1881.

To satisfy a judgmen against a defaulter, a constable at Fond du Lac, Wis., levied on a tombstone about to be erected.

Senator Sharon's daughter Flora, shortly before her marriage to an English gentleman a few days ago, renounced the Catholic faith in which she had been reared. The wedding ceremony was performed by an Episcopal clergyman, and the young woman will join the Church of England.

The "cotton factory" fever having spread over the South, is now stretching out into the West, and Louisville, Ky., is taking preparatory steps to start a $400,000 factory. Whether the enterprise will prove successful on Kentucky soil is an open question. A somewhat protracted trial was given to it in St. Louis, some years since, and it was abandoned as impracticable.

To dun a debtor on a postal-card has been decided by the Supreme Court of Ohio to be unlawful. The court held that anything so written that is liable to injure the credit or reputation of any one is a crime. The decision was made in the case of a man who dunned a debtor for an old account on a postal-card, and in that manner made the matter public, to the detriment of the latter's credit elsewhere.

The following table shows the receipts of flour, grain and live stock for the year 1880 at Chicago, St. Louis and six other Western cities:

	Flour, barrels.	Grain, bushels.	Hogs, number.	Cattle, number.
Chicago	1,377,312	149,127,447	7,066,144	1,382,346
St. Louis	1,612,827	50,629,940	2,030,664	424,720
St. Paul	60,000	2,125,400	2,000	15,000
Kansas City	....	8,713,762	673,440	244,474
Peoria	196,332	25,016,116	303,927	42,035
Detroit	341,167	11,174,171	....	....
Cleveland	134,515	6,347,927	....	....
Pittsburgh	353,962	3,999,890	....	....

A couple arrived at San Francisco on their bridal tour, and took a room at a hotel. The bridegroom then informed the bride that he was out of money, and did not know how to get any. He said that the best thing for them to do was to commit suicide. She agreed, and suggested the use of laudanum, of which she had a bottle. They divided the drug into two equal parts, and swallowed it. The man died, but the dose proved insufficient to kill the woman, and she has recovered.

The author of "A Life on the Ocean Wave" has been discovered. Epes Sargent, who died in Boston recently, wrote that celebrated song many years ago. To the great majority of schoolboys, Mr. Sargent was known only as the author of various books of "dialogues" for exhibition days. Yet he was a most industrious worker, and produced plays, poems, novels, magazine articles and biographies in great profusion. Nearly his whole life was given to editorial work.

The annual report of Dr. John T. Nagle, the New York city Deputy Registrar of Vital Statistics, shows that during the last year 31,866 cases of death were recorded, being an increase of 3,524 over the previous year. There were 27,536 births, an increase of 1,963 over the returns of 1879. One mother gave birth to her twenty-second child. Nine thousand and two marriages were reported. Six grooms were over 70 years of age, and one bride over 65. The greatest number of deaths in any of the months was in July, when the mortality reached 3,487. Of the 31,866 persons that died 16,327 were males and 15,539 were females.

For several years prior to 1878 the aggregate receipts of breadstuffs in Chicago ranged among the nineties of millions of bushels, and it seemed that 100,000,000 of bushels was a limit of grain receipts beyond which even Chicago could not rise. In 1878 there was a bound to 134,000,000, and in 1879 to 137,000,000 bushels; but now comes 1880 with the record of 163,326,267 bushels of breadstuffs received in that city. No city in the world, in any age, has ever witnessed such a traffic as the receipt, handling, inspection, storage and shipment of such a vast proportion of the world's food.

The recent cold waves, says the Chicago Tribune, have spread over an enormous area, covering the entire territory between the Rocky mountains and the Atlantic seaboard, and sweeping down even to the Gulf of Mexico. These fierce blasts have an uninterrupted course before them. There are no mountain ranges between us and the Arctic regions to regulate or mitigate their strength and velocity. The "Manitoba wave" is in reality not a wave from Manitoba, for that is a flat country, and these icy breezes have their starting place way up in the Hudson Bay region, when they have an uninterrupted range to the south and southeast, with hardly a hill to arrest their fearful sweep. Even the Allegheny has proven no barrier to them. They have swept on and over, and far out to sea, catching vessels coming westward, retarding commerce, disabling steamers, and seriously interrupting the whole business of ocean transportation coming in this direction.

At Bangor, Me., recently, a bright little fellow named Harry Donnelly, between 6 and 7 years of age, while at play, met with a terrible accident. Harry was sliding backward on a sled in the rear of the house, holding in his hand a pointed instrument about two feet long, and called in foundries a "vent wire." In attempting to make his sled go a little faster, the boy in some way dropped the wire, in such a manner that the point pierced the lower part of his back on the right side, and came out on the right side of the abdomen, the wire passing entirely through and impaling the body. The wire, which was quite rusty, was extracted by the plucky boy himself. He will probably die.

A bee flew into a pitcher that stood on a doorstep of a house in Boston. A dog, coming along, saw the bee, and his head went down into the pitcher after the insect. The bee made it lively for the dog, and he could not now withdraw his head, and the circus began in earnest. The dog howled fearfully and began to plunge wildly about, and then started on a mad run down the street. The dog, being completely blindfolded by the pitcher, could not guide himself, but got under the feet of a stout man, and both took a roll in the gutter, and the shouts of the man, who did not attempt to disguise his annoyance, were as loud as the yells of the dog. A policeman, coming up, broke up the pitcher and the show at the same time.

Gen. Grant, at a dinner in Washington, related the following amusing story of his son Jesse: "Young Jesse is a very slight boy, narrow as a bean-pole, and not half as tall. He was traveling last summer in Colorado, New Mexico, or some of those outlying provinces; and the Grant party, of course, was the sensation in those parts. They were dining at a wayside inn, with some other travelers, in a common room. Among the travelers was a fine-looking, athletic fellow, who was evidently a cultured gentleman, but was unknown to the rest of the party. A rough frontiersman came into the room, in the free-and-easy Western way, and evidently mistook this athletic stranger for young Jesse. Going up to him, the pioneer looked out from under his sombrero into his eyes, and said, in an irritating sort of way: 'How many bits do you go for to the dollar, young fellar?' Quick as lightning, and without a word, the young stranger struck out from the shoulder, and gave the pioneer a blow which felled him to the floor; and, without permitting him to recover, he seized him by the collar, dragged him across the floor to the door, and threw him out by main force. In a few moments the frontiersman returned, a good deal battered from hard usage, and, again approaching the young fellow, whom he had mistaken for Jesse Grant, extended his hand, as if he were an old friend, saying: 'Well, you are a good one. You are a good deal like the old man, I reckon.'"

The Demon of Speculation.

The foul demon of speculation keeps us all in a turmoil; society seethes and bubbles over with the excitement due to the constant race for riches; to the struggling pursuit of more wealth. This is common to all classes. Farmers and country dwellers are tempted to send their small savings to be swallowed up in the whirlpool of speculations in the cities, and in the vain hope of acquiring riches that have never existed, and which they can no more secure than they can grasp a shadow. The business man and the man who possesses already a snug competence haste to throw their property away in the same foolish manner to be swallowed up in the bottomless maw of speculation. And so the wrecked hopes and fortunes may be counted by the thousands, and crime, ignominy and wretchedness are present everywhere. In a less degree the evils of overliving, too, prevail, and men and families mourn for want of that which they have unwisely squandered and wasted in a way that brings no solid comfort to them.

There is no happiness in living beyond one's means. Those who have no debts, who pay as they go and make this their rule, are more careful and economical than those who buy on credit whatever they may desire or think they need. Buying on credit is our national bane, an evil which saps the foundations of our social comfort. It keeps a man in debt, increases his expenses, makes his necessities greater, and tempts him to risk his property in vain efforts to extricate himself from pecuniary difficulties. It is quite easy to spend what we have not; but a man always thinks twice before he breaks upon a small accumulation which he already has, and will rather add to it than trench upon it. Therefore the habit of saving, once created, is a safeguard against careless spending and should be encouraged in every legitimate and proper way. There is an economy that is mean and stingy; but it is very easy to avoid this fault without falling into the opposite vice of extravagance, and to hit the happy mean of a sensible and wholesome economy.—Rural New Yorker.

A few years ago a Japanese publisher brought out a life of Washington in forty-five volumes, with illustrations in which the Father of his Country is represented in modern dress, wearing a heavy mustache, carrying a cane, and accompanied by a Skye terrier.

GOV. PORTER.

Abstract of His Inaugural Address.

The inaugural message of Gov. Porter is a lengthy document—too lengthy, in fact, for insertion in full in these columns. We reproduce below copious extracts, covering the chief points of interest:

The benevolent institutions of the State ought to be watched over with anxious vigilance, not only to guard, as respects the inmates, against any intentional abuses and willful mismanagement and neglect, but the hardly less serious abuses that often creep in imperceptibly through routine. Where so large a body of helpless persons is collected—separated from their friends and placed under the care of persons who must be governed in their treatment and care of them, in the long run, however happily exceptional may be individual instances, chiefly by a sense merely of official responsibility—the experience of mankind has shown that there is a constant liability to an abuse or neglect of the trust. There is, also, often a disposition to treat these places too much as asylums, and too little as places where the inmates are to be restored to, or prepared for, a condition which will make them cease to be a charge upon the State, and enable them to be self-supporting and useful members of society.

It seems to me that, as an additional safeguard to these afflicted wards of the State, and to secure with more certainty such efficiency in their restoration or instruction as may be desirable, a Board of Visitors, composed of persons noted for their zeal and disinterestedness in benevolent undertakings, ought to be appointed.

This board, it is believed, ought to be composed of five persons, and of these I have no hesitation in saying that provision ought to be made that two, at least, shall be women. They, better than others, could learn what ought to be known in relation to the treatment of their own sex, and their sympathetic feelings, quick intuitions, and experience in conduct of households would, in many cases, enable them to discern the abuses and the needs of inmates of the other sex better than their male associates. In relation to the domestic economy of these establishments, in which there is a tendency often to extravagance and waste, their observations and suggestions would be likely to be most valuable. The skill and economy with which our Reformatory for Women is conducted by women attests their capacity to take a leading and beneficial part in the administration of all the public charities.

The amendments to the constitution, which at the last spring election were submitted to the electors for adoption or rejection, have been held by the Supreme Court, in opposition to what, it is believed, had, previously to the decision, been the general sense of the legal profession, not to have been constitutionally adopted.

The court, while deciding thus, took occasion to express an opinion that another submission might take place, notwithstanding the submission and vote which have occurred, if the Legislature shall choose to provide therefor by an appropriate enactment. The court, though not now composed entirely of the same members as when the decision was made, will, it is believed, feel constrained to accommodate itself to this suggestion, whatever view the new Judges might entertain, if the question were one of first impression. I therefore earnestly recommend that a bill be speedily passed giving the electors of the State another opportunity to pass their judgment upon these amendments.

The amendments have been the theme of frequent and careful discussion. So general is the sentiment of unbiased men in their favor that I believe if a vote upon them could be separated from party politics, it would be nearly unanimous for their adoption.

The expediency can hardly be questioned of limiting within reasonable bounds the debts which may be contracted by cities and townships, so that taxes may not become an intolerable burden, and of fixing a limit upon the fees to be paid to officers in the populous counties; so that, while they shall be adequately compensated, estates and suitors may not be burdened with needless costs and our politics corrupted by the expenditures made in the greedy scramble to obtain office. These reforms are provided for by two of the amendments.

Another amendment is of such extreme importance that it may be regarded as almost vital to the elective franchise. When the elector places his ballot in the box, it is a hollow and preposterous ceremony if some other person, not entitled to the franchise, may neutralize his vote by a fraudulent ballot, or if some dishonest officer may substitute a false ballot for the one he has deposited, or stuff the box with fictitious ballots. Our laws do not provide—the constitution will not allow that they shall provide—that the person who offers his ballot shall prove, even when challenged, that he has resided a single hour or minute in the county or precinct where his vote is offered. It is enough that he shall show that at the particular instant he is such a resident, and has resided in the State for six months. No registration law can be passed; the constitution will not allow one.

The consequence of all this is that, where even the most expensive and organized vigilance is maintained, persons from other counties and other States, not entitled to vote at the precincts where they tender their ballots, often succeed in depositing fraudulent votes; and where this vigilance is not maintained the feeble flood-gates against fraud fly open at the first assault, and the ballot-box is deluged with fraudulent ballots.

I find upon examination that nearly all the Northern States, except Indiana, require as a qualification to vote a previous residence of the voter in the precinct where his vote is offered, and that hardly a less number require a registration of voters. These laws are an expression of the people of those States, founded upon experience, that such provisions are necessary to preserve the purity of the elective franchise.

At every general election for many years sums of money, vastly greater than has ever been suspected by the people, have been expended to prevent invasion of the ballot-box by persons not authorized to vote, which need not have been expended but for the clause in our constitution that will not allow safeguards against fraud to be established which our own experience has shown to be necessary, and the legislation of other States has provided with respect to those States.

Bad laws seldom inflict merely a single evil. Where the facilities for fraud are so considerable the members of each party think that their opponents will perpetrate them, and the next step is too apt to be to lay schemes by which wrong may be met by kindred wrong. The consequence of all this is that politics become embittered; that neighbors who, in their business transactions, would place implicit confidence in each other, believe that, to obtain a party advantage, they would quarter false voters, encourage repeating and connive at a false count of the ballots, and that the young, learning and believing that fraud is perpetrated without disgrace by the most respectable persons, in what they are taught to be the most important of transactions, are not able to draw the refined distinction which would make it wrong or disgraceful to perpetrate frauds in less important ones. Thus the foundations of private virtue are sapped by tolerance given to public fraud.

I regret that I am not able to concur with my immediate and respected predecessor in his opinion that a convention ought to be called to revise our present constitution.

The best means of reclaiming by drainage the vast area of swamp lands in the State, which it will not be practicable to reclaim under the provision of existing laws, ought to engage your earnest attention. These lands, according to the best estimate attainable, embrace more than 800,000 acres of soil that would be highly productive if rendered by drainage susceptible of cultivation. This area is larger than the territorial area of Rhode Island, and more than one-fourth as large as that of Connecticut. These lands are already crossed by railroads, and lie conveniently near to the cities of Chicago and Louisville, respectively, and the drainage would, by increasing their value, add greatly to the taxable wealth of the State. The lands the natural market of whose products is Chicago would find, it is understood, a convenient means of drainage through the Kankakee river, could the barriers which obstruct the flow of that stream be removed. These obstructions, however, are in the State of Illinois, and it has not been found practicable to get rid of the difficulties which lie in the way of acquiring a right to remove them. There is strong reason to believe that, with an outlay immeasurably less than the value of the benefits to be derived from the expenditure, the current of the Kankakee might be diverted, to the extent desired, into the Tippecanoe and Iroquois rivers, thus reducing the height of the surface of the stream, and rendering the country whose natural drain it is susceptible of easy and cheap reclamation by ditching.

I urgently recommend that provision be made by law for the employment of an engineer, of high skill in his profession and of good general knowledge to make a careful survey of such portion of our swamp lands as are deemed unsusceptible of early reclamation under existing provisions of law, with a view of ascertaining how these lands can be drained, the probable expense of drainage, and how the expense can be so defrayed that the owners may be able, without sacrificing them, to pay the cost of reclamation.

It is proper to remark that an examination of the legislation of other States shows that the money required to effect the drainage of lands is often raised upon bonds issued by Commissioners of Drainage, secured by a pledge of assessments, which latter are made payable in installments running for a series of years and bearing interest from the time they respectively mature.

The Commissioners, along with other new legislation favored by them, have proposed the establishment of a Board of Pardons, without whose advice and consent the Governor shall not have authority to grant pardons in any case, except such as may, by law, be left to his sole power.

I concur with my immediate predecessor in the belief that there is no necessity for the establishment of such a board. The power to grant pardons without any restraint but his own honest and intelligent discretion has been confided to the Governor ever since the State was organized. While in a few instances this power may have been unwisely exercised, it cannot be said that it has been abused. It is believed that, as a rule, the Governor will exercise this power more carefully and deliberately where the responsibility of granting the pardon is not shared with others. Remedial legislation is generally unwise when the supposed mischief meant to be cured has not become clear and obvious. It is believed that in this State the exercise of the power to pardon offenders has been governed, with very rare exceptions, by thoughtful and sober judgment. For one upon whom this responsibility is about to be cast, I can say that I am willing to accept it, as my predecessors have done, and trust for my vindication to the judgment of the people.

The late Presidential election contained a renewed expression of the determination of the people that the provisions of the fundamental law of the land, with respect to the rights of citizenship, shall not be lightly disregarded. No party can justly claim to be national that would countenance the deprivation of any particular class of citizens of this highest constitutional right. For 200 years a class of citizens now invested with this just constitutional prerogative produced bread which they were not allowed to eat. The fruits of their hard and painful toil went to others and not to themselves. Those who took it, let us charitably suppose, did not believe they did wrong; those who were too weak not to suffer it did not revolt, but bore the wrong with humble patience. A war came which, they believed, was being fought under the providence of God to set them free. They were willing, if need be, to fight in the open field, and to die for that cause, but they would not be assassins or incendiaries, and they took care of defenseless women and children, when those who were their natural protectors were fighting against the cause which they loved and for which, in battle, they were ready to offer, if need were, their blood. Their right now to vote is guaranteed by the constitution, and is as complete as the right of those who formerly held rule over them. If, in education, or whatever else is desirable, they do not come up to the standard of those who once ruled them, it is not their fault. The fault is with those who now strive to deprive them of this inestimable franchise.

There can be no fraternal peace as long as this right is willfully withheld. The party under whose administrative policy the War for the Union was conducted has never shown hostility to anything that would really help the section where this wrong is practiced. It bears no malice toward the South. For the improvement of the harbors and rivers of that section of the country its representatives vote without sectional prejudice, and the industrial laws which it has passed would, if welcomed by the South, foster the diversification of her industries, and bring on the conditions which have filled the Northern States with varied pursuits and the advantages of largely accumulated wealth.

The older citizens of the South, who held this class in bondage, cannot easily surrender the prejudice which they feel against investing the freedmen with a prerogative so high as the ballot; but there are hundreds of thousands of young men in the South, now of the age to vote, who can hardly remember when slavery existed; who have but a faint remembrance of the war; who look upon it as fortunate for the South that slavery has fallen; who, as time has passed, have plainly seen that what they have often upheld as error has proved to be the highest truth, yet who cling with immovable tenacity to antiquated prejudices, and never share in the satisfaction of those who move in the vanguard for right. To such might we not well say: You are brave; you are gallant. To be brave and gallant is much, but to be just is more. And what more glorious than to see all these high qualities shedding their luster upon one another? Shall prejudices which narrow the mind and extinguish the sparks which kindle a generous ardor in the soul, keep those great qualities apart that nature always strives to bring together? Because, under the more favorable conditions, the Northern people first saw the right, shall you refuse to see it at all? Your generous natures, if once allowed to be released from bondage to a degrading prejudice, would embrace, with delighted zeal, the opportunity to right the great wrong inflicted by slavery, by conceding with generous alacrity to those who were oppressed, and to their descendants, every constitutional right with which the nation has invested them.

It is an occasion of regret that I have to feel myself constrained to refer to a most disagreeable topic. In placing in the corner-stone of the new Capitol memorials of the history and progress of the State, none was placed in it referring to the deeds or valor of her soldiers who went forth to battle to preserve the Union, and to save Indiana from becoming a State upon the border, subject to hostile raids and incursions, and exposed, at the first approach of war, to the invasion of hostile armies. In the address delivered upon the occasion of laying the corner-stone, many minor incidents in the history of the State were dwelt upon with eloquent copiousness, but no reference was made to the illustrious dead whose lives were offered as a sacrifice for the welfare of their State and the preservation of their country. Nor was mention made of the no less illustrious living, whose grateful presence among us is a continued remembrance of the immortal cause for which they fought. If memorials of their services had been placed in this repository, the omission in the address would have been unimportant; but, none having been placed there, the address seems to emphasize the supposition that no recognition was to be made of their services, their sacrifices, or their heroism.

It will not detract from the renown of the dead and the honorable fame of the living soldier that this was not done. Their place in history is secure. In less than half a generation it has come to be confessed by the most intelligent of those who were their enemies that it was best even for them that the intrepid deeds which they performed were done. As age shall follow age, the cause for which they fought, their sacrifices and their prowess will become more and more illustrious. When, perhaps a century hence, the new edifice now ascending shall be razed to the ground to make room for some still more imposing structure, and the fame of these heroes shall shine with the luster of the sun, what shall be said of the generation who, in placing in the corner-stone of its chief temple the memorials of its history, could find no room for any record or mention of them? It has been suggested that this omission may be redressed by placing some statue or other object in the dome commemorative of their services, and thus show that, while we could not remember them while laying the base of the Capitol, we were constrained to remember them when rearing the pinnacle.

I have no hesitation in saying that, if it can be done without releasing the sureties upon bonds of the contractors, this corner-stone should be laid bare, the repository of its treasures should be opened and there should be placed therein a careful record in relation to the war, of whatever a great and patriotic State might keep best worth preserving in a record of its most illustrious citizens.

Nor should omission be made to leave there some mention of the great Governor, who was not less a soldier because he never drew a sword; who braved dangers as great as those did who fell in battle; and whose care, and vigilance, and inexhaustible energy in anticipating and providing for every want of our soldiers, in every field, seemed to invest him with the property of ubiquity.

I am sure, gentlemen, that no one will be so uncandid as to suspect that in saying what I have said on this theme I have sought to revive any old animosities. Surely, it cannot be a party question that we shall honor the heroes of our great civil strife, whether they wore epaulettes or a knapsack. We can all now do justice even to the mistaken braves who crossed swords with them in that strife.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR.

Asthma Cure.—Belladonna leaves, two ounces; stramonium leaves, one ounce; powdered nitrate of potassium, one and one-half drachms. Mix them thoroughly. To be used by igniting a drachm in a suitable vessel and inhaling the fumes.

Sciatica.—Three drops of sulphuric ether, mixed with a few drops of water and injected under the skin with a hypodermic syringe, is said to permanently cure this distressing complaint. The remedy should be used every twelve hours till cure is effected.

Treatment of Diphtheria.—Take from two to five grains of chlorate of potash, put it far back on the tongue, allow it to melt gradually, and repeat every hour until a decided improvement takes place, which is usually in a few hours. One of the best plans of treatment is the following: Gargle—Chlorate of potassa, two drachms; hot water, six ounces; alcohol, four drachms; creosote, eight drops; muriatic acid, thirty drops. This is to be used as a gargle every thirty minutes. Internally use the following remedy—Chlorate of potassa, three drachms; water, six ounces; sugar, one ounce; tincture of muriate of iron, two drachms. Dose—A teaspoonful every four hours. It is claimed that the above treatment will cure nineteen cases out of twenty.

Croup—Is inflammation of the windpipe, which causes it to be contracted, making breathing difficult, and sometimes impossible. Croup is the result of cold, though there is generally an hereditary disposition to it. It comes on with an increased frequency in breathing in the evening; the next morning the child is better, and at night worse again, and on the third or fourth night, or sooner, it is regular croup. The child is restless, breathes hard, wheezes, and has a dry cough. If proper remedies are applied the first or even the second night, but few children will die of croup. Give two teaspoonfuls of epsom salts, and put the child to bed; then apply mustard draughts, or "mustard leaves," to its feet. Wring out a flannel cloth in hot water, and wrap it around the neck as warm as it can be borne, protecting the bed with dry cloths. If the breathing is not easier, and the skin not getting moist in three or four hours, mix half a teaspoonful each of powdered alum and ipecac in half a glass of tepid water and give it. If it does not vomit in ten minutes, repeat the dose with a teacup of warm water every five minutes until there is free vomiting. If the bowels are constipated, use a "Nelaton Suppository for Children" every three hours, until there is a free passage. If this treatment is applied early, it will seldom fail. If, however, the disease is well established before treatment is commenced, and the above plan of treatment should fail to afford relief in twelve hours, then give ten grains of calomel, mixed with one drachm of saltpeter, called nitrate of potash; divide into twelve powders, and give one every two hours.—Hall's Journal of Health.

A Cruel Joke.

Bolivar went home, and entering the room where his mother was, exclaimed:

"Say, ma, have you heard about Mr. Braley?"

"Why, no," answered Mrs. Bolivar, with an air of surprise. "What about him?"

"This morning he got up early."

"Yes; go on."

"Wait till I tell you. He got up early, and remarked that he felt very well."

"Go on!" exclaimed Mrs. Bolivar, after a short pause.

"Just wait. He said that he felt unusually well. While Mrs. Braley was getting breakfast he went and shelled a lot of corn for the pigs. He came back to the house, still saying that he felt well."

"Why don't you go on?"

"Wait till I get my breath. I've run from all the way down town. He sat down to the table and ate the heartiest breakfast you ever saw. When he got up from the table he remarked again that he felt well. Then he turned around, and just as he got half way between the table and the water bucket he—"

"Dropped dead!" exclaimed Mrs. Bolivar.

"O, no; turned around and told his wife that he felt much better."

"You imprudent scoundrel!" yelled Mrs. Bolivar; and seizing a broom, she knocked the boy down. No one knows where the joke originated, and the boy doesn't care.

A girl only eight years old was arrested in Lowell, Mass., the other day, for drunkenness, and an exchange says: "To complete the disgraceful picture, the police let her lie ten hours insensible in a cell without attention." But they did not club her.

DR. BUTTS' DISPENSARY
Established 1847 at 12 N. 8th Street, ST. LOUIS, MO.
The Physicians in charge of this old and well known institution are regular graduates in medicine and surgery. Years of experience in the treatment of Chronic Diseases have made their skill and ability so much superior to that of the ordinary practitioner, that they have acquired a national reputation through their treatment of complicated cases.
INDISCRETION or EXPOSURE
YOUNG MEN
PATIENTS TREATED
DR. BUTTS, 12 North 8th St., St. Louis, Mo.

Children
CRY
FOR Pitcher's
Castoria.

Mothers like, and Physicians recommend it.

IT IS NOT NARCOTIC.

CENTAUR LINIMENTS; the World's great Pain-Relieving remedies. They heal, soothe and cure Burns, Wounds, Weak Back and Rheumatism upon Man, and Sprains, Galls, and Lameness upon Beasts. Cheap, quick and reliable.

MISHLER'S HERB BITTERS

A Compound Tincture of the most valuable remedies known to the medical profession, prepared upon strictly pharmaceutical principles.

NOT A BEVERAGE

But an old reliable Household Remedy, thoroughly adapted to assist nature.

Highly commended as a General Tonic and Appetizer. Sold by Druggists everywhere.

THE MESSENGER OF HEALTH

THE MISHLER HERB BITTERS CO.
Lancaster, Pa.

THE SYMPTOMS

of Liver Complaint are a bitter or bad taste in the mouth; Pain in the Back, Sides or Joints, often mistaken for Rheumatism; Sour Stomach, Loss of Appetite, Bowels alternately costive and lax; Headache, Loss of Memory, with a painful sensation of having failed to do something which ought to have been done; Debility, Low Spirits, a thick yellow appearance of the Skin and Eyes, a dry Cough often mistaken for Consumption.

Sometimes many of these symptoms attend the disease, at others very few; but the Liver, the largest organ in the body, is generally the seat of disease, and, if not regulated in time, great suffering, wretchedness and DEATH will ensue.

AS AN UNFAILING SPECIFIC

For DYSPEPSIA, CONSTIPATION, Jaundice, Bilious Attacks, SICK HEADACHE, Colic, Depression of Spirits, SOUR STOMACH, Heart Burn, etc., etc.,

Take Simmons' Liver Regulator.

This justly-celebrated medicine Regulates the Liver, promotes digestion and fortifies the system against malaria.

CAUTION.

See that you get the Genuine, in clean, white wrapper, with large red "Z." Prepared only by

J. H. ZEILIN & CO.

Sold by All Druggists.

AGENTS WANTED for the Best and Fastest Selling Pictorial Books and Bibles. Prices reduced 33 per ct. National Publish'g Co., St. Louis, Mo.

PILES fully described with scientific mode of cure. Prof. Harris' illustrated pamphlet sent free on application.
HARRIS REMEDY CO.
St. Louis, Mo.

Book of the Million

"THE PRIVATE MEDICAL ADVISER"

FOR ONE DOLLAR

DR. BUTTS' DISPENSARY

DR. BUTTS, 12 North 8th St., St. Louis, Mo.

Seminal Pastille

An entirely New and positively effective Remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Seminal Emissions and Impotency

HARRIS REMEDY CO. MF'G CHEMISTS, Market and 8th Streets, ST. LOUIS, MO.

Unsolicited testimony to the Efficacy of Prof. Harris' Seminal Pastilles, taken from Letters received from Patrons

From a Physician and Surgeon.

From a Druggist.

Fruit House Prices

—FOR—

Christmas .and New Year.

GREAT DROP ON

Sugar, Coffee, Prunes, Teas, Etc.

All SUGARS reduced 1 cent per pound.
All COFFEES reduced 2 cents per pound.
Turkish PRUNES reduced 4 cents per pound.
TEAS reduced 10 cents per pound.
And for the Holiday trade we have

Toys, Toy Candies, French Candies, German Toys Christmas-Tree Candies, and New-Year Gifts of every Description.

Santa Claus in all His Glory.

SUGARS REDUCED 1 1-2C PER POUND.

Crushed	10c	Coffee A	9
Powdered Sugar	10c	Coffee C	8
Granulated	10c	Brown Sugar	7

COFFEES REDUCED 2C PER POUND.

Choice Rio	14c	Roasted Rio	18c
Best Rio	16c	Best	20c
Old Government Java	28c	This is the lowest coffee has sold since 1862

TEAS DOWN 10C PER POUND.

Our tea trade is simply immense. No secret about it—just the same rule as in Sugars, selling at a small profit, and purchasing direct of the importer; we therefore save the profits of the speculator and wholesale merchant. This profit our customers get the benefit of, and it is from 10c to 15c per pound.

Young Hyson	25c	Good Young Hyson	40c	Best Young Hyson	60c
Imperial	40c	Good Imperial	50c	Best Imperial	60c
Gunpowder	40c	Good Gunpowder	50c	Best Gunpowder	60c
Oolong Black Tea	30c	Good Black Tea	40c	Best Oolong	60c
Uncalendered Japan	30c	Good Japan	40c	Best Japan	60c

All our Teas, even the second qualities, warranted to give satisfaction, and the best can 't be beat. Our 60c Tea is equal to any dollar tea sold elsewhere.

Christmas and New Year Goods.

Santa Claus Toys, Christmas Tree Candles and a thousand other things for the holidays, such as Bears, Lions, Leopards, Cats, Dogs, Monkeys, Wagons, Hose Carts, Soldiers, Drums, Vases, Albums, Fancy Candies, French Candies, Fruit Candies, Stick Candies 12½c per lb.; French Candies, 15c per pound; Fruit Candies, 20c and 25c per pound, etc., etc.

Fresh Oysters down 5 cents Per Can,

XXX 14c Family 20c S & W 25c Select Frying 32c

Tobacco of All Kinds.

No 1 Fine Cut	75c	Good Fine Cut	40c
Choice Fine Cut	60c	Good Plug Tobacco	40c
Choice Plug Tobacco	50c	Durham	48c
Best No. 1	60c	Uncle Ned	35c
Smoking	25c

Fish Oil, 70c; Neats Foot Oil 70c; Machine Oil, 25c and 35c; Headlight Oil, 20c.

Syrups. Molasses and Maple Syrup.

Extra Golden Syrup, per gallon	45c	Maple Syrup	1
White Sugar Loaf Drips	60c	Best New Orleans	80

FOR CHRISTMAS CAKE.

Citron, per pound 25c Orange and Lemon Peel 20c Shelled Almonds 3
Nuts of all kinds and best Turkish Figs, &c.

Liquors, Wines Whiskies Scotch Ale, Dublin and London Porter.

Good new Whisky, per gallon	$1 00	California wine	$1 25
Whisky, one year old	1 25	New England Rum	1 50
Whisky, two years old	1 40	Brandy	1 50
Whisky, three years old, 1.76	2 50	Scotch Ale, per bottle	22
Sherry Wine	1 25	London Porter	2
Port Wine, per gallon	1 25	Dublin Stout	18

Fish, Meats, Pork, Lard, Bacon, Spices, &c.

25 Cents on the Dollar you can save at least by purchasing at the

FORT WAYNE FRUIT HOUSE,
FORT WAYNE, INDIANA.

1850. PIONEER 1881

Hardware Store.

Headquarters for Stoves !

The Celebrated Buffalo N. Y. Stoves have been sold in this house for 25 years. A full stock always on hand.

—A full line of—

BUILDING HARDWARE and SHELF GOODS.
Wagon and Buggy Material,
White Lead, Paints, Oils and Varnishes
Table and Pocket Cutlery,
Silver-Plated Knives and Forks and Spoons,
Granite Iron-Ware,
Oliver Chilled and Bryan Plows.
FARMING IMPLEMENTS
BLACKSMITHS' MATERIALS,
Buffalo Scales, Sash & Doors,
WOOD AND IRON PUMPS, & DRIVE-WELL FIXTURES
All at prices to suit the times.
Call at the old stand when you want bargains.
JOHN L. DAVIS, Proprietor.

CLOCKS, CLOCKS,

Wm. ELLERY.
1871075
WALTHAM, MASS.

GOLD

—AND—

Silver Watches

Rodgers & Brother's PLATED WARE
SPOONS, KNIVES, and FORKS,
Rings, Necklaces, Vest Chains Ladies Gold Chains.
Castors. Everything in the Jewelry line.

Violins, Guitars,
Banjos, Accordeons,
Violin Strings.

Special attention given to repairing fine watches

All Work Warranted.

No charge for mending silver ware sold at
JOE ABRIGHT'S,
Second door north of Postoffice, Auburn, Ind

Texas.

[Cincinnati Enquirer.]

Among the important political questions that will arise in the near future will be found some in relation to the formation of additional states of the Union out of the state of Texas. The census returns of 1880 will compel attention to the amazing growth in population of that state, which could hardly grow in territory, so big is it. Ten years ago Texas had a population of 818,000. Under the apportionment based upon that census Texas was entitled to six members of congress. Texas has an area of 274,356 square miles. The state extends 800 miles from east to west and 700 miles from north to south. Its area is nearly equal to that of the entire Austrian empire. It is more than three times as large as that of the six New England states—more than equal in extent, that is, to eighteen New England states. It has seventy thousand more square miles than the republic of France. All Germany is not so broad as the state of Texas by more than sixty thousand square miles. The area of Texas is more than twice as great as that of Great Britain and Ireland. The population of Texas within the last ten years has increased more rapidly than has the population of any other state in the Union, not even excepting, we believe, Colorado. A state so huge in area, and becoming so huge in population, once a republic itself, will inevitably some day divide. It covers almost a congress of climates, and its division was contemplated when it was admitted into the Union.

The joint resolution for annexing Texas to the United States, adopted and improved in 1845, provided: "New States of convenient size, not exceeding four in number, in addition to the said state of Texas, and having sufficient population, may hereafter, by the consent of said state, be formed out of the territory thereof, which shall be entitled to admission under the provisions of the Federal constitution." It was contemplated thirty-five years ago, when this great empire, though a feeble republic, was annexed to this union of states, that the time would soon come when, for convenience, it would be divided; and the exceptionally rapid growth in population will have hastened the necessity of this division, and has already made the state, which was bulky in ground, bulky with people. The capacities of the state of Texas to bear up a vast population can be inferred from the comparisons we have made of its area with the areas of the countries of Europe. It is not necessary to go so far for comparisons when we recollect that Texas is six times as large as the state of New York, and that the Empire state has thirty-three members of congress.

The provision of the resolution annexing Texas was that four new states in addition to Texas might be formed out of the territory of Texas, by the consent of Texas, which states, said the resolution, "shall be entitled to admission under the provisions of the Federal constitution." When it is proproposed in pursuance of this joint resolution annexing Texas, to form four states, or a smaller number of states, out of the territory of Texas, without doubt opposition will be made. It is interesting to inquire in advance what is the direction of the constitution, what are the rights of congress and what are the privileges of Texas in this matter. The constitution says: "New states may be admitted by the congress into this Union; but no new state shall be formed or erected within the jurisdiction of any other state, nor any state be formed by the junction of two states or parts of states, without the consent of the legislatures of the states concerned, as well as of the congress."

West Virginia was formed out of Virginia, but that is not an argument. Will it be argued by any that it is not competent to form out of the territory of Texas the number of states in addition to Texas which the joint resolution annexing Texas declared should be formed out of the territory by the consent of that state? Several interesting questions are likely to arise in connection with this subject. The friends of an increase in the number of states out of the territory of Texas will forcibly argue that congress, under the constitution, HAS ACTED in the matter of admitting Texas, and has made a constitutional contract that, if Texas consents, these new states may be formed out of its territory.

Congress has consented to the formation of four more states out of the territory of Texas, in addition to Texas itself. The government of the United States made this solemn contract with Texas, an independent republic, when Texas was annexed. The only "lacking ingredient," apparently, to the formation of these new states is the "consent" of Texas. The constitution itself conferred upon congress the full power to admit Texas, and to make the compact which congress did make as to the increase of the number of states to be constructed out of its territory. The joint resolution containing this contract was deliberately adopted and approved. This establishes a presumption in favor of the validity and permanence of the compact. For thirty-five years the authority of congress to make such a contract, and the binding force of the contract when made, have not been seriously and intelligently disputed. If the state of Texas should "consent" to the formation of these new states out of its territory what could prevent the erection of such states? "It is so nominated in the bond."

THE ENQUIRER.

The People's Paper—The Greatest Newspaper in the West.

The Enquirer is just closing one of the most prosperous and successful years of its existence. We wish to thank the people and our patrons for their support. Your encouragement has made the task of publishing the best newspaper in the west a possibility.

We ask your aid and support for the year to come, and for the future, and pledge you that we will spare no expense to make the Enquirer for the ensuing year not only the best newspaper in the west, but the rival of any in America.

The world's news, recorded by a corps of fifteen hundred correspondents in all sections of the globe, will be found in the Enquirer every day in the year.

The history of each day's events will be faithfully and fearlessly told, exposing fraud, rebuking corruption, and upholding the right. The facts of the world belong to the people, and will be presented to them by the Enquirer free of malice and undistorted for political or personal purposes.

In short, the Enquirer will continue to be a newspaper.

In the future, as in the past, the Enquirer will be found advocating the rights of the people of the states; the rights of communities, and the fullest liberty to individuals compatible with the general order and welfare of society.

All questions and parties shall be treated with candor and fairness, but the truth shall never be perverted.

The year 1881 will be an eventful one in the history of the state and republic. The inauguration of a new administration, with new men and new purposes, are themes of the gravest interest to all citizens who love their country. Upon all these topics the Enquirer will contain the fullest and most reliable information from its corps of able and faithful correspondents.

THE WEEKLY ENQUIRER

will be a paper that ought to be in the hands of every farmer, every mechanic, and every toiler in the land. As an agricultural paper, full of fresh, valuable and reliable information, it will be without a rival! A corps of contributors has been retained whose practical and theoretical knowledge in all branches of good farming is unsurpassed.

TERMS OF WEEKLY ENQUIRER.

For one year $1 15
For six months 65

A free copy given to any one sending a club of seven names with $8 05.

TERMS OF DAILY ENQUIRER.

	With Sunday	With Sunday Issue.
One year	$12 00	$14 00
Six month	6 00	7 00
Three months	3 25	3 75
One month	1 25	1 50
Sunday's issue alone, per year		2 00
Any two days' issue, per year		4 00
Any three days' issue, per year		6 00

Send for sample copies.
FARAN & McLEAN, Publishers.

The Greatest Medical Discovery of the Age.

Kellogg's Columbian Oil is a powerful remedy, which can be taken internally as well as externally by the tenderest infant. It cures almost instantly, is pleasant, acting directly upon the nervous system causing a sudden bouvancy of the mind. In short, the wonderful effects of the most wonderful remedy cannot be explained in written language. A single dose inhaled and taken according to directions will convince any one that it is all that is claimed for it. Warranted to cure the following diseases: Rheumatism or Kidney Disease in any form, Headache, Toothache, Earache, Neuralgia, Sprains, Bruises, Flesh Wounds, Bunions, Burns, Corns, Spinal Affection, Colic, Cramping Pains, Cholera Morbus, Flux, Diarrhœa, Coughs, Colds, Bronchial Affection, Catarrh, and all aches and pains, external or internal. Full directions with each bottle. For sale by Casebeer & Matheny. 34-eow-1y.

Rose & Hartman, Attorneys.

Notice to Non-Residents.

State of Indiana, DeKalb county—In the DeKalb circuit court, February term, 1881.

Lucinda Waydelich, Jacob Waderlich and Raymond Knisley, impleaded with others, are hereby notified that an action has been commenced against them in said court, in partition by Joseph Bell, and that the same will be heard and determined on the 2d juridical day of the next term of of said court, which commences February 28th, 1881.

Witness, the clerk of said court, this 23d day of December, 1880.

53-3t. JOHN W. BAXTER, Clerk.

Administrator's Sale.

Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of an order of the DeKalb circuit court, the undersigned, administrator of the estate of Hiram Loutzenheiser, deceased, will offer for sale at public auction, on the premises, on Saturday, the 5th day of February, 1881, the following premises in DeKalb county, in the state of Indiana, to-wit:

A part of the south-half of the north-east quarter of section thirteen (13), in township number thirty-three (33), north of range thirteen (13) east, bounded by a line commencing at a point on the east boundry line of said section, seventy rods south of the north-east corner of said south half, and running thence west on a line parallel with the south boundary line of said north-east quarter to a point equi-distant from the east and west boundary lines of said north-east quarter, thence south to the south boundary line of said south-east quarter, thence east on said line to the south-east corner of said north-east quarter, thence north to the place of beginning, containing five acres more or less.

Terms: one third cash, the residue in equal payments at twelve and eighteen months, with note at interest, waiving benefit of appraisement laws, and secured by mortgage upon the real estate sold. Sale to commence at two o'clock p. m. 53-3t.

HENRY HINES, Administrator.

1881

THE STEADFAST WATCHMAN

—of—

PUBLIC INTELLIGENCE,
and Exponent of

American Democracy.

THE INDIANA

STATE SENTINEL!

Has again been enlarged. It will hereafter be a

56 Column Quarto,

Making a growth in size of over twenty per cent., or an addition of reading during the year of 416 Columns.

This makes the Sentinel the largest and most desirable weekly paper in the United States, placing it ahead of all its rivals. Every Indian should be proud of it.

Price Per Year, Single Copy, $150

Special Rates To Clubs.

Persons wishing to become agents send for private circulars an sample copy. Liberal cash commission to agents, also first-class list of special premiums offered.

Address

SENTINEL COMPANY,
Indianapolis, Indiana

RAILROADS

Wayne Ft. & Jackson Railroad.

SHORT LINE

Time-Card takes effect Dec. 6, 1880.
(CHICAGO TIME.)

GOING NORTH.

Leave Auburn:

4:15 A. M.—From Fort Wayne 1:30 a. m.; arrive at Waterloo 4:30; Pleasant Lake, 5:25; Angola, 5:40; Fremont, 6:20; Reading, 7:15; Bankers, 7:20; (connecting closely with D. H. & S. W. R.;) arriving at Hillsdale 8:10 a. m.; Ypsilanti 10:40 a. m.; Detroit, 11:50 a. m.; Jonesville, 8:30; connecting with the Lake Shore & South railroad for points west. Jackson, 10:20 a. m., there connecting for points west on Michigan Cent. and Grand River valley Ry.

12:21 P. M.—From Fort Wayne 10:20 a. m., Academie, 11:25; Huntertown, 11:35; New Era, 12:09 p. m.; Auburn Junction, 12:25; arrive at Waterloo 12:43, connecting with L. S. & M. S. train east and west; Summit, 12:52; Pleasant Lake, 1:00; Angola, 1:10; Fremont, 1:25; Reading, 2:05; Bankers, 2:10, making close connection with D. H. & S. W. R. R.; Jonesville 2:25 (making connection with L. S. & M. S. for points east: Hillsdale, 2:55; Adrian 4:05; Toledo, 5:25, p. m.; Jackson, 3 40 p. m., making close connection for Ann Arbor, Detroit, Lansing, Ionia, Saginaw, Grand Rapids, Battle Creek etc.

6:01 P. M.—From Fort Wayne 5:00 p. m; New Era, 5:3[illegible]; arrive at Waterloo [illegible]; Summit, 6:2[illegible]; Pleasant Lake 6:3[illegible]; Angola, 6:47; Fremont, 7:0[illegible]; Reading, 7:35; Jonesville, 8:2[illegible]; Jackson, 9:[illegible] p. m.; connecting closely with Michigan Central railroad; fast train arriving at Detroit at 11:[illegible] p. m.; Buffalo, 8[illegible] a. m.; and New York, 10:20 p. m.; also Chicago, Grand Rapids, etc.

GOING SOUTH.

Leave Auburn:

9:17 A. M.—From Jackson, 5:05 a. m; closely connecting from Chicago; Jonesville, 6:45; connecting from Chicago, Sturgis, Colwater, etc.; Reading, 7:40; Montgomery, 7:54; Fremont, 8:12; Angola, 8:30; Pleasant Lake, 8:40; Summit, 8:52; Waterloo, 9:06; arrive at St. Johns, 9:30; New Era, 9:38; Huntertown, 9:55; Academie, 10:05; Ft. Wayne, 10:20 a. m. connecting closely with Indianapolis, Louisville, Cincinnati, etc.

3 22 P. M.—From Jackson 12:30 p. m.; (connecting from Detroit 9:35 a. m., Ann Arbor, Saginaw, Lansing, Grand Rapids, etc;) Jonesville, 1:18, close connection from Toledo; Bankers, 1:2[illegible]; Reading, 1:3[illegible]; Montgomery, 1:56; Fremont, 2:15; Angola, 2:40; Pleasant Lake, 2:50; Summit, 3:00; Waterloo, 3:12; arrive at Auburn Junction, 3:25; St. Johns 3:37; New Era, 3:43; Stoner's, 3:53; Huntertown, 3:56; Academie, 4:05 Fort Wayne, 4:30 p. m.; connecting for Indianapolis, Louisville, Cincinnati, and all points east via P. F. W. and C. railroad fast express.

11:26 P. M—From Grand Rapids 11:30 a. m.; Kalamazoo, 1 40 p.m; Jackson, 5:40 p. m.; Jonesville, 7:25; Bankers 8:10 p. m.; from Detroit 4:06 p. m, Hillsdale 8:00 p. m.; Reading 8 40; Fremont 9 37; Angola 10 07; Pleasant Lake, 10 28; Waterloo, 11 07; arrive at New Era 12 20 a. m.; Fort Wayne, 1 30 a. m., connecting with early trains west, south and east.

4 15 a. m. train run daily. All other trains daily except Sundays.

M. D. WOODFORD, Gen'l Supt.
H. BROMLEY, Gen'l Fr't. & Pass'r Agent.

Fort Wayne, Muncie and Cin.

—AND—

White Water Railroads.

Time Card in effect November 16, 1879.

STATIONS.	GOING SOUTH. 1. Mail.	3 Express.
FORT WAYNE	10 30 am	5 [illegible]0 pm
Bluffton	11 52 am	6 55 pm
Montpelier	12 31 pm	7 37 pm
Hartford	12 57 pm	8 04 pm
MUNCIE	1 48 pm	9 00 pm
Newcastle	2 30 pm
Cambridge City	3 14 pm
Connersville	3 45 pm
Cincinnati	6 55 pm
INDIANAPOLIS	6 25 pm	10 55 pm
Louisville
Terre Haute
St. Louis

STATIONS	GOING NORTH 2 Mail.	4 Express	6 Accom.
St. Louis
Terre Haute
Louisville
Indianapolis	11 50 am	6 40 pm	4 05 am
Cincinnati	8 40 am
Connersville	11 51 am
Cambridge City	12 26 pm
New Castle	1 10 pm
Muncie	2 20 pm	9 20 pm	6 42 am
Hartford	3 09 pm	10 08 pm	7 47 am
Montpelier	3 34 pm	10 32 pm	8 19 am
Bluffton	4 10 pm	11 09 pm	9 10 am
Fort Wayne	5 15 pm	12 15 am	11 00 am

Trains Nos. 1 and 2 run through between Fort Wayne and Cincinnati without change.

Through cars are attached to trains Nos. 1 and 2 and run between Fort Wayne and Indianapolis, via Muncie.

All trains daily except Sunday.
Trains run on Columbus time.

GEO. W. MULLEN, Act'g Gen. Tick. Ag't.
W. W. WORTHINGTON, Gen. Supt.

WABASH ST. LOUIS AND PACIFIC R'Y.

The Great Through Car Route to

Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa.

TRAINS LEAVE AUBURN.

EAST.		WEST.
Mail	12:34 p. m.	Mail	8:20 p. m.
Accom'n	12:57 a. m.	Accom'n	6:57 a. m.
Local F't	4:45 p. m.	Local F't	6:58 a. m.
M'l tr'n arrives at Butler	1:30 p. m.	M'l tr'n arr. at Logansport	6:45 p. m.

No Change of Cars From

TOLEDO OR FT WAYNE TO St. Louis, Kansas City St. Joseph, Hannibal, Quincy and Atchison.

No Change of Cars From

St. Louis To Kansas City, St. Joseph Omaha and Ottumwa.

Remember that the

Wabash, St. Louis and Pacific

Has No Emigrant Cars.

Everybody rides in Elegant Parlor Coaches—nicely upholstered and carpeted. Baggage checked through to destination.

☞ Don't forget the above inducements given only by this great line, and when you go

West Southwest. North or Northw'st

Don't accept any ticket unless it reads over the

Wabash, St. Louis & Pacific R'y.

For Routes, Rates, Elegant Maps of the Western Country, and any information you may desire in regard to going West, please address,

J. C. GAULT, Gen. Manager,
H. C. TOWNSEND, Gen. Passenger Agent,
St. Louis or
LOUIS JOHNSON, Ticket Ag't, Auburn, Ind

Baltimore & Ohio R. R

CHICAGO DIVISION.

IN EFFECT FROM JUNE 20, 1880.

GOING EAST.

STATIONS.	No. 1 Fast.	No. 5 Ex.	No. 4 Mail
Chicago lv	5 15pm		5 10am
Walkerton Junction	8 00		10 5[illegible]
Milford Junction	9 00		12 05pm
Syracuse	*		12 15
Cromwell	*		12 30
Albion	*		12 50
Avilla	9 50		1 10
Garrett	10 20	3 55am	1 40
Auburn Junction	10 27	4 03	1 48
St. Joe	*	4 25	2 10
Hicksville	*	4 42	2 28
Defiance	11 25	5 27	3 10
Deshler	12 25am	6 23	4 05
Fostoria	1 06	7 25	4 50
Tiffin	1 20	7 54	5 20
Chicago Junction ar.	2 15	9 00	6 15

GOING WEST.

STATIONS.	No. 10 Mail.	No 3 Ex.	No. 9 Fast.
Chicago Junction lv	9 00am	6 40pm	11 20am
Tiffin	10 03	7 55	12 00 m
Fostoria	10 23	8 25	11 22pm
Deshler	11 44	9 34	1 00
Defiance	12 58pm	10 32	1 56
Hicksville	1 52	11 20	*
St. Joe	2 10	11 32	*
Auburn Junction	2 32	11 52	3 00
Garrett	2 40	12 05am	3 25
Avilla		12 20	3 35
Albion		12 45	3 55
Cromwell		1 10	4 15
Syracuse		1 30	4 20
Milford Junction		1 40	4 28
Walkerton Junction		3 04	5 40
Chicago ar.		5 10	8 20

C. H. HUDSON, Superintendent Trans., Ohio Division, Chicago, Ill.
J. J. MARTIN, Agent, Auburn Junction.
* Trains do not stop.

Pittsburg, Ft. W. & C. R. R

ON AND AFTER JUNE 27, 1880.

Condensed time card.

GOING WEST.

Stations.	No. 1, Fast Ex.	No. 7, Pacific Ex.	No. 3, Night Ex.	No. 5, Limit'd ex.
Pittsburgh lv.	12 05	9 15am	1 50pm	7 30pm
Rochester	1 15	10 10	2 55
Alliance	3 30	1 20pm	5 25	10 25
Orrville	5 00	3 18	7 13
Mansfield	6 55	5 40	9 20
Crestline ar.	7 25	6 15	9 45	1 40am
Crestline lv.	7 50am	6 35pm	9 55pm	1 15am
Forest	9 25	8 15	11 28
Lima	10 40	9 30	12 32am
Ft. Wayne	1 15pm	12 03am	2 40	5 25
Plymouth	3 46	2 50	4 55	7 16
Chicago ar.	7 00	6 00	8 00	9 40

GOING EAST

Stations.	No. 2, Morn'g ex	No. 6, N. Y. Ex.	No. 4, At. Ex	No. 8, [illegible] Line
Chicago lv.	8 [illegible]0am	3 30pm	5 15pm	9 40pm
Plymouth	11 33		9 25	2 50am
Ft. Wayne	2 35pm	8 35	12 15am	6 55
Lima	4 38		2 28	8 55
Forest	5 43		2 55	10 08
Crestline ar.	7 10	12 35	5 30	11 45
Crestline lv.	7 30pm	12 40pm	6 40am	12 05pm
Mansfield	8 03	1 15am	7 20	12 35
Orrville	10 06	2 57	9 23	2 26
Alliance	11 45	4 25	11 25	4 00
Rochester	2 01am		2 10pm	6 22
Pittsburgh ar.	3 15	7 30	3 15	7 30

Nos 3 and 6, and 5 and 4 run daily; No. 1 leaves Pittsburgh daily, except Saturday. No. 8 leaves Chicago daily except Saturday. All others daily except Sunday.

F. R. MYERS,
Gen. Pass. and Ticket Agent.

Money to Loan.

In sums and on terms to suit all. Apply at Guy Plumb's law office. Low rates of interest.

-3m. C. N. HASKALL.

Agents.

All persons, either ladies or gentlemen, who desire good, profitable employment, and the pleasantest kind of work at their own homes, should send address to J. J. KENNEDY, Williamantic, Conn.
51-4t.

Recorder's Office

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Devoted to the Interests of the Democratic Party and to the Collection of Local and General News.

Volume 11. AUBURN, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, JANUARY 27, 1881. Number 4.

The Auburn Courier

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY BY

BARNS & HUSSELMAN.

HOTELS.

Central House,

TENTH STREET, EAST OF MAIN. GOOD Sample rooms, and low rates.
T. D. Gross, Prop'r Auburn, Ind.

BUTT'S HOTEL.

FREE OMNIBUS TO AND FROM ALL trains. Good sample rooms on first floor. John Butt, Proprietor, Waterloo, Indiana.

ATTORNEYS.

D. D. Moody,

ATTORNEY AT LAW AND NOTARY public. Also Prosecuting attorney for DeKalb County. Office in Court House. Auburn, Ind.

Wm. H. Leas,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW AND NOTARY PUBlic, will give prompt attention to collections Also represents first class insurance companies. Office over Willis & Co's. book store, Waterloo, Indiana.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Thomas Ealdock,

PROPRIETOR of Stuart's patent compound Asphalt roofing, for DeKalb county, Ind., manufactured at Charlotte, Michigan. Consult or address at Auburn, Ind.

BUSINESS CARDS.

Cards not exceeding five lines each will b inserted under this head for $5.0 per annum For each additional line 50 cents extra will be charged.

PHYSICIANS.

J. J. Littlefield,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. OFFICE AND residence on 10th St., opposite S.W. Ralston's. All calls promptly attended to, day or night. Auburn, Indiana. 24 1y

OFFICIAL DIRECTORY.

COUNTY OFFICERS.

John W. Baxter	Clerk.
A. S. Leas	Sheriff.
Albert Robbins	Auditor
L. J. Miller	Treasurer.
Michael Boland	Recorder.
A. P. Foltz	Surveyor.
J. J. Latson	Coroner.
W. H. McIntosh	Sup't of School.
D. D. Moody	Representative.
Edward Kelham John Shoub Fred. N. Oberlin	Commissioners.

MARRIED—In Chillicothe, September 12, Herbert L. Rollingstone and Emma J. Moss. Thus does our familiar proverb receive a death blow.

* * *

According to the Wabash Plaindealer there are now left but 324 of the once powerful tribe of Miami Indians which formerly inhabited the Wabash country.

* * *

The following is an epitaph from a tomb near Versailles: "Except in 1859, during which for several days she took lessons on the piano, her life was without a stain."

* * *

A little girl, whose father was a merchant tailor, said to her mother: "Mother, I can always tell when pa makes a misfit, because he always gives you and me fits when he gets home."

* * *

A young man with an umbrella, overtook an unprotected lady acquaintance in the rain-storm Tuesday afternoon on Washington street, and, extending his umbrella over her, requested the pleasure of acting as her rainbeau. "Oh !" exclaimed the young lady, taking his arm, "you wish me to be your raindear." Two souls with but a single umbrella; two forms that stepped as one.—Boston Globe.

* * *

A gentleman traveling in a railroad carriage was endeavoring, with considerable earnestness, to impress some argument upon a fellow-passenger who was seated opposite to him, and who appeared rather dull of comprehension. At length, being slightly irritated, he exclaimed, in a louder tone, "Why, sir, it's as plain as A B C!" "That may be," replied the other, with unexpected alacrity, "but I am D E F."

* * *

A bride of a four week's duration, went to market the other day, and seeing some large gold-fish swimming about in a glass globe, was struck with the idea of haying them for dinner. "I'd like these fishes, if you haven't any smelts," she said mildly to the man, and when told they were not to eat, but for pets, she declared it was a shame; for they would have looked so nice on her Nankin blue china.

* * *

One of our best-known operators, has a pretty daughter, who is a bit of a hoyden. Brokers and bondholders are notorious for talking shop, and our operator is no exception to the rule. Of course Miss Tomboy has imbibed the jargon of the street, and, of course, she knows how to use her tongue. The other night, at dinner, the young lady spilt a goblet of water all over her. The head of the family framed a stern rebuke, promptly checked by the chit with this explanation: "O, let up, pa, I was merely watering your stocks."—Boston Courier.

A POOR FAMILY'S LUCK.

Suddenly Falling Heirs to a Million and a Half.

[Philadelphia Record.]

On a truck patch, at Sixteenth and Dickenson streets, lives a family named Glen. They are in rather poor circumstances. The husband works the truck farm and sustains a family consisting of a wife and four children. Recently the wife was notified that her father had died in Melbourne, Australia, leaving $1,500,000 to her. The story told by the Glen family is this:

Somewhere about thirty years ago, James Boyle, his wife and two children, were living upon a farm in Laghtnagallagh, county Donegal, Ireland. Years of hard toil and struggling with the impoverished soil, had failed to place the farmer in a comfortable position, and finally, when his lease expired, he determined to seek his fortunes elsewhere.

A home was found for the children—the girl Mary, who was then but a babe, being placed with her grandparents—and Boyle and his wife took passage for Victoria, Australia. On arriving at the colony he obtained employment, and by care and industry, saved enough in a few years to buy a farm. Prosperity continued to attend him, and eventually he became one of the most extensive farmers in the district.

Meanwhile, the baby daughter, whom he had left behind, was growing to years of womanhood. From time to time the mails brought words of good cheer from her parents, but the welcome missives ceased after 1870, the last one stating that her mother, and a sister, who was born in the colony, had died, and that her father had given up farming, and was investing heavily in gold mines near Ballarat. In 1871, Miss Mary married Glen, and immediately afterward the couple embarked for this country. They are now living with their children on a truck farm, in a three-story brick house at Sixteenth and Dickenson streets.

For nine long years Mrs. Glen mourned her father as dead. Often, almost hoping against hope, she wrote to his far-distant home, but none of the letters elicited a response. A few months ago, however, a letter with the Irish postmark reached the house. This proved to be from an uncle, and contained the information that her father had died, leaving an estate of about £285,000, nearly $1,500,0000, that her only brother had also died in 1874, and that, therefore, she, Mrs. Glen, was the sole surviving legatee to her father's wealth.

This information seemed almost incredible to the Glens, who could not realize the possibility of being raised from their present humble position to one of luxury and affluence. Letters were sent to the Australian lawyers, the good news were confirmed, and, within this week, Mrs. Glen has received a letter from solicitors in Melbourne, asking for a certificate of birth. This must be obtained from Ireland, and the whole charge of the matter has been placed in the hands of Lawyer John Austin Purcell, who will take the necessary steps by which the family can come into possession of the enormous fortune.

Indiana's School Fund.

Indiana has the largest school fund of any of the states. The available fund now amounts to more than $9,000,000; the exact figures cannot be given. This is a permanent fund, drawing interest the state having $4,000,000 of the amount on which is paid 6 per cent. interest; the remainder being loaned to individual borrowers in the several counties of the state at 8 per cent. interest. Borrowers consider this better than any 6 per cent. for the reason that it is never called in. The law permits no loan to any individual borrower to exceed $1,000, and no money is loaned to corporations. The security demanded is land of estimated value exclusive of all improvements of twice the amount of the loan. There are at least four applicants for each $1,000, that is loaned. The fund is constantly being increased from $40,000 to $50,000 by yearly fines and forfeitures under the penal law of the state. In addition to this permanent fund the school property of the state was valued last year at $11,536,617.39. This year Professor Smart, superintendent of public instruction, estimates that it will amount to $12,000,000.

* * *

It is narrated that a would be joker, in a mixed company, remarked: "Now, my friends, I think Japan is the best place to live in the world. I understand that there are neither Jews nor pigs there." A diminutive specimen but with unmistakable Hebrew cast of countenance, replied: "Vell mine friend, I tell you vat it is. Lets you and me go there and exhibit ourselves. We could make our fortune. I could represent the Jews and you could take the rest of the role to perfection."

Mark Twains "Innocents Abroad."

Elisha Bliss, jr., late president of the American Publishing Company, Hartford, was the first publisher that gave favorable consideration to Mark Twain's Innocents Abroad, and caused it to be issued. Notwithstanding the rollicking satire, the laughter provoking character and the obviously popular elements of the Innocents, its author had the greatest difficulty in getting it before the public. He had gained considerable reputation as a humorist by his little volume containing the "Jumping Frog" and other sketches, before setting out on his travels in the Quaker City, and after he had returned and prepared his copy, he had naturally very little doubt of its prompt acceptance. He was doomed to continued and bitter disappointment. He offered the manuscript to one publisher after another in New York, but not one would take the risk of putting it in book form. Then he sent it to Boston, with the same result, and finally to Philadelphia, only to be again rebuffed. By this time he was, as may be inferred, in no amiable mood. He confessed that his literary vanity had been sorely wounded, and he was so dissatisfied with his work that he was ready to throw it into the fire. Having offered it to the leading publishers of three of the principal cities in the Union to no purpose, it was not strange that he was troubled and hurt. While in this irritated, self-disgusted mood, he met the late Albert D. Richardson, to whom he handed the manuscript to see if it was so irredeemably bad. Richardson pronounced it very clever, full of the extravagant drollery which the American people relish, and expressed his astonishment that any publisher of intelligence and experience should have declined it. "You can't be any more astonished than I am," remarked Clemens dryly. "Those publishers have astonished as much conceit out of me as a long siege of seasickness." Richardson, who had published several books through the American company, said that he was going to Hartford, that he would take the manuscript with him, and he was sure that the company would be glad to take it. He put it in the hands of Bliss, then secretary, who was immensely pleased with it. But some of the other officers and directors were adverse, and made so many objections that he finally declared that he would publish it on his own personal account. They came round when they saw he was really in earnest, and afterward pretended they favored the book from the start. The extraordinary success of the Innocents Abroad is well known. The sale to date, including pirated editions, is said to have reached 200,000 copies. The American company probably cleared from $60,000 to $70,000 by its publication.—Boston Transcript.

How Mark Twain was Swindled.

Mr. Redpath tells the following story of Mark Twain:

I think it was Mark's second year of lecturing in the east. He told me one day that he was going to get married, and he wanted me to go with him to buy what you would have called a "trousseau" if you had been a woman. He bought enough for a century or two; he comes from a long-lived race, and he had an eye to the future. He was not worth more than $20,000 at the time, I guess. He has made since over $100,000 by his book and lectures and interests in insurance companies at Hartford, where he lives. He went and got married at Elmira, where his father-in-law lived. The latter was a millionaire, one of the coal-mining lords. Mark had asked his friends in the editorial office to select a first-class suite of rooms in a fashionable boarding house, and to have a carriage ready to take his bride and himself there when they came to Buffalo. He knew they would do it, and gave himself no more anxiety about it. When he reached Buffalo he found the boys, sure enough, at the depot with the finest carriage and span of horses he had ever seen in that city. They drove him up to a handsome house on an aristocratic street, and, as the door was opened, there were the parents of the bride to welcome him home. As the story was told me—I didn't get it from Mark—the bride's folks had come up, without knowledge, by a special train. Mark went from room to room and found every room furnished exquisitely—some in blue and some in yellow silks—the furniture and upholstery of the most luxurious and expensive styles. Then he was informed, officially, that he had been driven up by his own coachman, in his own carriage, to his own house. They say tears came to Mark's eyes, although his wonderful bright eyes—the keenest and clearest and most penetrating eyes I ever saw in any man's head—aren't given to weeping as a regular business. He could not find words to "express his sentiments," so he only "rose to explain." "Well, this is a first-class swindle ! he stammered.

Mammoth Octopus.

There are giant octopuses in our seas, as readers of Victor Hugo's thrilling romance "Les Travailleurs de la Mer," have learned to their groundless horror. Seldom, indeed, are these revolting monsters ever seen, but that they undoubtedly exist at certain depths was proven by the enormous specimen cast up by the sea on the Duggerna reef, at Kilkee, county of Clare, during the last great storm on October 7. An accurate description of the strange jetsam has been furnished by the Rev. R. I. Gabbett. Its tentacles, of which there are eight, had been partly broken. Each of them was as thick as a man's upper arm, and studded underneath throughout the whole length with a double row of rounded stickers. The length of the arm was from thirteen to fifteen feet, so that from the extremity of one arm to that of its opposite was a span of thirty feet. The length of the animal's trunk, from end to end, was at least twenty feet. The head was about three feet long, but very narrow, and its hideous eyes were like the inner surface of a breakfast plate, while its repulsive mouth, shaped like a parrot's beak, was as large and baggy as the joined hands of a man with fingers outstretched. The horrid thing weighed nearly a quarter of a ton, and to complete its manifold attractions was decked in the livery of a turbot's underside.

A New Anecdote About Henry Clay.

In Dr. Tomes' new book of biography we find, in the chapter devoted to his life in college, the following anecdote of Clay, which our readers may never have before seen in print:

"We had occasional visits at the college from the presidents and other great men on their periodical tours over the country. Henry Clay was received by the whole body of students, headed by college president and professors, and being addressed by one of them, responded in a speech. I cannot recall what he said upon that occasion, but, during the same visit, when I heard him address the citizens of Hartford, I can remember the conclusion of his speech, which was singularly inappropriate, I thought, to his sober-sided New England audience. 'I did not,' said he, 'come here to be treated with any form of ceremony, but to see you as friends. In a word, to take a drink and a chew of tobacco with you.' This might have been a welcome peroration to a throng of his jolly constituents assembled about a western tavern, where the deed would, no doubt, have followed up the word; but it was like a sudden dash of cold water into the faces of his Puritanic friends of the east, after the soul-stirring orator had first warmed them into sympathy with his genial eloquence."

How a Beautiful Hymn was Written.

There is an interesting incident mentioned in the life of Charles Wesley, which led to the writing of one of his sweet hymns:

One day Mr. Wesley was sitting by an open window, looking out over the beautiful fields in summer time. Just then a hawk came sweeping down toward a little bird. The poor thing, very much frightened, was darting here and there, trying to find some place of refuge. In the bright, sunny air, in the leafy trees, or the green fields, there was no hiding place from the fierce grasp of the hawk. But, seeing the open window, and the man sitting by it, the bird flew in its terror toward it, and with a beating heart and quivering wing found refuge in Mr. Wesley's bosom. He sheltered it from the threatening danger, and saved it from a cruel death. Mr. Wesley was at the time suffering severe trials, and was feeling the need of a refuge in his own time of trouble as much as the trembling little bird did, that nestled in his bosom. So he took up his pen and wrote the hymn.

Jesus, Savior of my soul,
Let me to thy bosom fly,
While the waves of trouble roll,
While the tempest still is high.'

A Famous Diamond District.

The Madras Mail asserts that Golconda has obtained its fame vicariously, inasmuch as the diamonds cut and polished there are usually brought from Parteal, in the Ganjam district, the wealth of which, there is fair reason to believe, has not been exhausted. It is thought that scientific investigation and first-rate machinery may yet bring to light many treasures. A rumor is prevalent that a scheme is now afloat for redeveloping the resources of this district. Most of the world-famous diamonds hail from this locality, including the Pitt or Regent diamond, and the Koh-i-Noor.

Wabash Courier: A horrible accident, resulting in the burning to death of the wife of Marshall Kill-so-see, a Miami Indian, well known in this county, occurred on Friday morning of last week. Marshall's wife, as well as himself, was a slave to drink, and in company with her husband, would get on a bender and remain drunk for weeks at a time. The dusky pair were on one of their prolonged drunks at the time the accident occurred, and the same may be justly set down as rum's doings. Marshall and his wife lived in a comfortable log house about two miles southwest of Lafontaine, and here they would lay in a supply of whisky, and carry on their drunken orgies undisturbed. On the morning of the accident, Marshall had employed a white boy, living on his land, to haul him a load of wood. The lad arrived about nine o'clock in the morning with the wood, and being cold, he went to Marshall's house to warm, and stepping inside, was horrified at the sight, Marshall's wife, who was quite a large woman, lying in the fire-place, her cloths on fire and her entire body wrapped in flames. The lad was terror-stricken at the sight, and instead of going to the unfortunate woman's aid, ran to his home, a half mile distant, and summoned his father to the frightful scene. When the latter reached the house, Marshall had dragged his wife from the fire-place, and was endeavoring, as well as he could in his drunken condition, to rid her of her burning clothing. It was then too late to save the poor creature's life, and after several hours of dreadful agony she died. Persons who saw her, inform us that the spectacle was horrifying in the extreme. The flesh on many parts of her body, was burned to a crisp, while both ears were burned entirely off. Marshall, in his endeavors to assist his wife, was also severely burned, and is now confined to his bed, with a fair chance of dying. Marshall and his wife did not live very harmoniously together, and it is thought by some, that they had been quarreling on the fatal morning, and Marshall, in a fit of anger, pushed his wife into the fire. It is quite probable, however, that she was too drunk to walk, and, in attempting to move about the room, lost her balance and fell into the fire, Kendallville News: The work on the new line of telephone from Ligonier to Rochester was commenced on last Tuesday morning. Strauss Brothers are having this built for the benefit of their grist-mill at the latter place.

* * *

The French husband, who locked his wife's lover into the closet of his deserted country house, and left him to work his way out, has his rival in ingenuity in another. The latter, a marquis, had a great hobby for the collection of helmets. He conducted his erring spouse, accoutered as she was, in one light garment, into the armor chamber, and the next morning the milkman saw sitting on the pavement, a body clad in a chemise with head surmounted by an iron casque and plume of feathers. She could not speak clearly, and had to write out her story. A locksmith tried in vain to open the head gear, and the metal resisted the best tools. The helmet was fastened by a secret spring, and the marquis took the key with him. It was announced that he was traveling, and would be absent about two years. And so the lady fed through a tube, and with barely air enough to prevent suffocation, awaits the relenting of her husband's wrath.

* * *

At a ball in Schwarzenburg, Saxony, a young man entered, having what appeared to be a cigar in his mouth. He went to the chandelier as if to light it, and a terrible explosion ensued. The lights were extinguished, the walls partly gave way, some of the dancers were covered with blood, and the young man was blown to pieces. He had killed himself by means of a dynamite cartridge.

* * *

Minister to Rory—"Why weren't you at the kirk on Sunday?"

Rory—"I was at Mr. Dunlop's kirk."

Minister—"I don't like your running about the strange kirks in that way. Not that I object to yer hearing Mr. Dunlop, but I'm sure ye wadna like yer ain sheep straying away into strange pastures."

Rory—"I wadna care a grain, sir, if it were better grass."

* * *

A darkey entered a lawyer's office and asked for a private consultation. He then stated that he wanted a suit brought against his wife for a divorce. "On what ground," asked the lawyer; "on account of infidelity?" Yes, boss, you hit it first pop. She goes to de meetin' foah times a week, and don't get home till way late in de night."—[The Nation.

At a wedding the bride was a young lady who had been a great flirt. When the clergyman asked the question "who gives this woman away?" a young man present replied: "I can, but won't."

Examination Of Teachers.

Examinations for the year commencing June 1st, 1879, will be held regularly, in the high-school building at Auburn, the last Saturday of each month. Special examinations at other points on due notice.

W. H. MACINTOSH.

Tickets ! Tickets ! Tickets !

First-class, emigrant and round-trip railroad tickets to all points east or west can be bought at low rates by calling upon the undersigned at Auburn Junction, or addressing

J. J. MARTIN, Ag't, B. & O. R. R.
tf Auburn Ind.

Steuben Republican: About a week ago, Cary Richarson, who lives at Metz, was carrying a jar of apple-jelly, when he slipped on the ice, and as he fell, the jar came down on the little finger of the right hand, cutting it quite badly. Mortification having set in, he was brought to town yesterday, and the finger was amputated by Dr. Williams, assisted by Dr. Woodcox, of Metz.

* * *

It is said that Colonel Ingersoll didn't lose faith in the bible until he collided with the story of Naomi marrying when she was 580 years old. He thinks that it is merely a campaign rumor, and it does seem a little off color in this progressive age, when a woman only thirty-five years old can't lasso a man unless she has plenty of bonds and other valuable collaterals.

* * *

A Brazilian count, a billionaire, was dining at a table d'hote at a fashionable hotel in Paris. His cutlet was to his taste, and he ordered another.

"We only give one cutlet," said the manager, "and no bread with one fishball."

Without a word the count arose, went out, bought the hotel, returned, led the manager to the front door and kicked him down the steps, then reseating himself at the table, said:

"Bring me another cutlet."

They brought it swift as the eagle cleaves the air.

Best & McClellan, Attorneys.

Notice to Non-Residents.

State of Indiana, DeKalb county----In the DeKalb circuit court, vacation after December term, 1880.

John Coyle is hereby notified that an action has been commenced against him in said court, for judgment and foreclosure by George W. Husselman, and that the same will be heard and determined on the 10th juridical day of the next term of said court, which commences February 28, 1881, at nine o'clock a. m.

Witness, the clerk of said court, this 12th day of January, 1881.

JOHN W. BAXTER, Clerk.

$100 Reward

For any case of

CATARRH

That cannot be cured with

HALL'S CATARRH CURE.

This is no humbug. No nasty douche. No snuff. Nothing to irritate the nasal cavity or distroy the sense of smell. It is an INTERNAL REMEDY ACTING UPON THE BLOOD, cleansing it from its impurities, causing the purulent matter to be carried off through the natural channels. It is a scientific preparation used and prescribed for years by one of the ablest practitioners in this country, and has never failed to cure when used according to direction.

WE MAKE THIS PROPOSITION:

If any person, after taking one dozen of HALL'S CATARRH CURE is NOT CURED OR BENEFITED more than four times its cost, we will refund the money paid. If it does you good you are willing to pay for it. If it does no good it costs you nothing.

PRICE 75 CENTS PER BOTTLE.

Manufactured by F. J. CHENEY & Co., Druggists, Toledo, O.

11-1 yr. For Sale by all Druggists

IMPROVE THE HOUR.

TRADE MARK.

GUENTHER'S LUNG HEALER
CURES CONSUMPTION,
Spitting of Blood, Bronchitis, Asthma, Croup, and all diseases of the Pulmonary Organs.
Price 50 Cents and One Dollar.
GUENTHER & CO. Proprietors
53 Fifth Avenue, PITTSBURGH, PA.
Ask your druggist for it.

AUBURN COURIER.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 27, 1881.

WEEKLY NEWS REVIEW.

THE EAST.

Edward Bernhardt, who murdered his wife, was hanged at the jail on Staten Island, N. Y. As his body was jerked into the air the undertaker fell in a fainting fit.

A five-story building on Cortlandt street, New York, belonging to the Vanderbilt estate, and occupied by Bruno & Sons, dealers in musical instruments, and by the Waterbury Clock Company, was almost totally destroyed by fire recently. The loss to the clock company is estimated at $75,600.

The New York Board of Health has passed a very stringent ordinance to prevent the spread of infectious or contagious diseases. It makes it a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of $250, to hold a public or church funeral over the remains of any person who dies from small-pox, diphtheria, scarlet fever, yellow fever, typhus fever, or Asiatic cholera.

A fire at Lynn, Mass., burned A. B. Martin's morocco manufactory and the old Revere Beach Depot, and damaged seven dwellings. The total loss is $130,000. Three hundred men are thrown out of employment. ....Coasting on the mountain roads in Pennsylvania is very dangerous. Two ladies were killed near Centralia, Pa., by the sled striking a telegraph pole.

Francis B. Booth and his wife, Eloise, an aged couple in New York, were found in bed perishing from hunger. They had been ill for thirty days, and had eaten nothing for nine days. Their recovery is doubtful. Mr. Booth was once wealthy, but lost his money in speculations....A fire at Wilton, N. H., destroyed thirteen stores, a bank, and several offices, the loss being $60,000.

THE WEST.

The probable murder of Charles Buckles, in sight of the famous Bender farm in Kansas, by Henry C. Forrest and wife, has aroused the citizens to a frenzied pitch of excitement. Forrest has been placed in jail in Oswego. It is asserted that Buckles' body was boiled, the flesh being fed to the hogs, and the bones burned in the stove.

Haverly's New Mastodon Minstrels, an organization which has lately been perfected, return to his Chicago theater for an engagement of one week. The press of other cities has spoken of the company in the highest terms. It has even been said they excel the original Mastodons.

The Denver and Rio Grande Railway Company has ordered 144 locomotives. Their cost will be something over $1,000,000, and they are to be delivered within a year. This is probably the largest order for locomotives ever given at one time....A band of Indians attacked a stage near Fort Cummings, and killed the driver and four passengers, mutilating and burning their bodies.

A Salt Lake dispatch says that "snow has fallen almost continuously in the Wahsatch range of mountains since Christmas. A slide on Wednesday at the little mining hamlet of Alta swept away a house, killing four persons, and another avalanche buried two unfortunates. On Friday night a slide half a mile in width, which would have demolished the town but for a flat area intervening, caused four deaths and swept away the buildings of the Joab Lawrence Company. People are fleeing from the Big Cottonwood region, as several other avalanches are impending."

Diphtheria is raging in the vicinity of Valparaiso, Ind., with a virulence that almost equals that of the yellow fever. Chauncy Gaylord, residing near Chrisman station, buried five children in one grave....A fiendish crime, which seems the product of a diseased mind, was perpetrated at Lapeer, Mich. Mrs. E. P. Barnard has for some months followed the movements of Rev. E. S. Curtis and wife. During the absence of the pastor at church, Mrs. Barnard went to his residence, charged his wife with having wronged her, threw gasoline over the venerable lady, and set it on fire, returning to church and joining in the hymns of praise. The dying lady gave the details as her life ebbed out. The murderess was placed in jail. ....During the progress of a dance at Las Mulas, Mexico, a fight occurred between Mexicans and Americans, in which two of the latter and one of the former were killed.... Philip J. Kreiger, Jr., formerly Cashier of the Broadway Savings Bank, St. Louis, killed himself with morphine at the Western Hotel, in that city. He had wrecked the bank, and misappropriated school funds, ruining his father financially....Samuel Smart, the last of a rich and prominent family of Circleville, Ohio, having spent a fortune in two years of dissipation, blew out his brains.

A widow named Matilda Scott, her grown daughter, Maria, and an adopted son named Charlie Good, residents of Plain City, Ohio, were murdered by Robert Garner, who is under arrest. Garner was in love with Maria Scott, who refused his addresses, and it is supposed that in revenge he outraged her and then killed the whole family to shield himself from the consequences of the crime....Missouri Pacific engineers are engaged in surveying a route southwest from Parsons, Kan., to the Mexican border.

The Keokuk Northern Line Packet Company has made an assignment of its property to Charles Green, of St. Louis. The concern owned fourteen steamboats and thirty barges, and its liabilities are over $200,000.... Advices from the West report that fifty lodges of Sitting Bull's Indians are now on the way to Fort Buford to surrender, and forty more lodges, under Sitting Bull, have left the mouth of the Milk river for Canada. Of his band of 1,000, Sitting Bull has less than 300 men, women, and children with him.

There have been great floods in Oregon and Washington Territories. A very warm rain fell in torrents for over thirty hours, melting the large quantities of snow which had fallen early in the winter, and swelling the rivers to an unusual height. The loss is estimated at $500,000..... The Illinois State Grange adopted resolutions demanding the passage by Congress of the Reagan Inter-State Commerce bill.....Two freight trains collided on the Lake Shore road at Clayton, Mich. Both engines and twelve cars were wrecked, and one man killed....The receipts of the city of Chicago for the year 1880 were $7,726,594, and the expenditures $7,619,119.

WASHINGTON.

So popular throughout the Union is the project to erect a new Disciple Church at Washington, in honor of Gen. Garfield, that the idea of a $35,000 edifice has given place to larger hopes. Every State and Territory is represented in the contributions.

Col. Butterfield, with a corps of assistants, who have been in South Carolina examining into the accuracy of the census in that State, returned to Washington last week and reported to Gen. Walker. The report says the census of June was taken with unusual accuracy, and fully maintains the integrity of the enumerators.

William H. Webb, the eminent ship-builder of New York, argued before the House Committee on Foreign Affairs that the political and commercial interests of the country would be adversely affected by the construction of the Panama canal, and that the Monroe doctrine should be reasserted.

A proposition has been made to sell the Franklin collection of manuscripts to the State Department for $25,000.

It is the general belief in Washington that an apportionment bill will be passed during the present session of Congress. The number of Representatives will be fixed at from 295 to 308.

THE SOUTH.

Careful investigation in the cotton belt shows that 16,500,000 acres have been planted, and that the larger portion of the crop will be saved, amounting to 5,900,000 bales. One farmer in Kern county, Cal., has planted fifty acres with good results.

The receiving warehouse of the Old Dominion Steamship Company, at Norfolk, Va., has been burned, with valuable stores of cotton and general merchandise.

Levin Smith Jones, LL. D., one of the most prominent physicians in Virginia, is dead.

Miss Werts, a white girl of Prosperity, S. C., was outraged and murdered by negroes named Spearman and Fair, who were lodged in the guard-house. A mob took them out, heard their confessions, shot Spearman on the spot where the crime was committed, and hanged Fair to a tree near by.

GENERAL.

A dispatch from St. Scholastique, Canada, says that Jean Baptiste Narbonne, who confessed the murder of his brother Dan, with his father and step-mother (each 60 years old), at whose instigation he committed the deed, were each sentenced to be hanged on the 25th of February.

A preliminary report has been made to the Census Bureau upon the cotton industry of the United States. It shows that there are 530,223 looms, and 10,921,147 spindles, consuming 1,568,481 bales of cotton, and employing 181,628 persons....The official figures give West Virginia a population of 618,193, of whom 599,970 are native-born. Michigan's population is 1,636,335, of whom 1,247,989 are native-born....The wool-growers and manufacturers in convention at Washington passed a resolution urging upon Congress the importance of establishing in the District of Columbia an experimental farm, at the expense of the Government, to acquire the best species of domesticated animals for distribution among the States....About $6,000,000 in Mexican Central railroad securities were recently offered on the Boston market, and twice that amount was subscribed. The allotment made by the Executive Committee discloses the fact that all railway interests between Mexico and the Mississippi river have been pooled. Gould is to receive stock to the amount of $2,997,000 and Gen. Grant subscribes $45,000.

Gen. Walker, Superintendent of the Census, has sent to Congress a statement showing the population of the United States as follows, by States:

Alabama	1,262,724	Mississippi	1,131,672
Arkansas	802,564	Missouri	2,168,824
California	864,686	Nebraska	452,450
Colorado	174,649	Nevada	62,205
Connecticut	622,683	New Hampshire	346,984
Delaware	146,614	New Jersey	1,130,983
Florida	267,351	New York	5,083,810
Georgia	1,539,048	North Carolina	1,400,047
Illinois	3,078,769	Ohio	3,178,269
Indiana	1,978,362	Oregon	174,767
Iowa	1,624,620	Pennsylvania	4,282,786
Kansas	995,966	Rhode Island	276,528
Kentucky	1,648,708	South Carolina	995,622
Louisiana	940,103	Tennessee	1,542,463
Maine	648,945	Texas	1,572,574
Maryland	934,632	Vermont	332,286
Massachusetts	1,783,012	Virginia	1,520,806
Michigan	1,636,331	West Virginia	616,443
Minnesota	780,806	Wisconsin	1,332,480

This makes a total of 49,369,595 for the States. The Territories aggregate 665,663, and the District of Columbia 177,638, which makes a grand aggregate of population of 50,152,866.

A New York paper, speaking of the telegraph consolidation, says J. Gould owns a majority of the stock of the present Western Union, and will control a majority of the joint stock. Gen. Thomas J. Eckert will be First Vice President and General Manager of the consolidated companies. The amount of capital stock has been fixed at $80,000,000. It is understood that the Western Union will receive 37,800 shares, the American Union 24,350, and the Atlantic and Pacific 15,850.... The National Woman's Suffrage Convention in Washington adopted resolutions setting forth that suffrage or self-government is a national, inalienable right, and not a privilege that any Government can confer or justly withhold; that we are a nation, and not a confederacy of States; that we are all citizens, first of the United States, and second of the States wherein we reside, hence the right of self-government should be guaranteed by the national constitution to all citizens that, with the ballot in their hands, they may protect themselves everywhere under our flag; that it is the duty of Congress to submit to the several States a constitutional amendment giving women citizens the right of suffrage, and to pass the bill providing for a committee to consider the rights of women.

A representative of the Bolivian Government is understood to be on the way to the United States to negotiate a treaty of commerce and raise a loan of $5,000,000 at any sacrifice....Railway men at Montreal are discussing a plan to put a tunnel under the Falls of Niagara.

POLITICAL.

A delegation representing the colored Republicans of Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida and Texas visited Gen. Garfield at Mentor, and laid before him the condition of the freedmen in the South. Their spokesman was R. B. Elliott, of South Carolina. The President-elect said it was neither the time nor place for him to indicate his future policy in regard to the freedmen, but he assured them that his past utterances on that subject were based on profound conviction, leaving them to infer that he was fully alive to their interests. He encouraged them to make the best use of every educational facility, as their political salvation lay in the acquirement of knowledge, which would enable them to cope on more equal terms with the trained minorities in their States. Bishop Hood presented a short address from the Board of Bishops of the African Methodist Episcopal Church, to which Gen. Garfield replied very briefly.

The Chicago Tribune's Washington correspondent telegraphs that at a dinner party in that city, "at which most of the leading Republican Senators were present, it was stated to be a fact within the knowledge of a number that the following three positions in Gen. Garfield's Cabinet had been fixed upon: They were Senator Blaine, Secretary of State; Senator Allison, of Iowa, Secretary of the Treasury; and Levi P. Morton, Secretary of the Navy. Secretary Evarts now closes his official letters to American representatives abroad with the notification that further correspondence with regard to diplomatic affairs will be conducted by his successor, Mr. Blaine."

Hon. Henry L. Dawes has been chosen as his own successor in the United States Senate, from Massachusetts. ....In his message to the Legislature of Rhode Island, Gov. Littlefield recommends woman suffrage on the school question.... A leading member of the House, who has made a pilgrimage to Mentor, was asked by the President-elect what the Grant people thought and what they desired from him. After considerable conversation on this topic, Gen. Garfield remarked that his Cabinet would be found to be one thoroughly in harmony with all branches of the party, and that no section of it will have any special cause for dissatisfaction.

Gen. Sewell received the Republican caucus nomination for the New Jersey Senatorship on the twelfth ballot. In the Wisconsin Republican caucus Philetus Sawyer received fifty-eight votes on the final ballot and E. W. Keyes twenty-five. When Sawyer's nomination had been made unanimous, the caucus adopted a resolution recommending Keyes to Garfield for the Postmaster Generalship.... The following United States Senators were elected on Wednesday, the 19th inst.: Thomas C. Platt, of New York; Eugene Hale, of Maine; Benjamin H. Harrison, of Indiana; Joseph R. Hawley, of Connecticut; Henry L. Dawes, of Massachusetts; Francis M. Cockrell, of Missouri, and Henry P. Baldwin and Omar D. Conger, of Michigan..... Senator Allison has returned to Washington from Mentor. He says Gen. Garfield listened respectfully and attentively to his representations in behalf of Mr. Wilson, of Iowa, but did not commit himself by a single syllable. It is believed by many that Gen. Green B. Raum, of Illinois, the present Commissioner of Internal Revenue, will be tendered the Treasury Department, or that at least Gen. Garfield will give one place in his Cabinet to Illinois.

A recent Washington dispatch says: "A gentleman prominently connected with New England industries, who is here in the interest of the tariff, expresses the opinion that the Eaton bill will be passed by the House at this session, and that then the tariff question will be taken out of politics. The Eaton bill, which has passed the Senate, is now upon the Speaker's table in the House awaiting action."

FOREIGN.

Owing to disquieting rumors, the commander of the British navy has been summoned to Dublin to confer with the commander of troops in Ireland, in order to arrange for co-operation at certain points in case of necessity. After a land meeting on one of the Arran isles twenty-one head of cattle were missing. It is supposed the Land Leaguers drove them over the cliffs into the sea. An attempt was made, it is believed by Fenians, to blow up the armory of the infantry barracks at Salford, England, and get possession of the arms. Dynamite was employed for the purpose, but it did no harm, save to blow a meal store to atoms. Parnell's amendment to the address in reply to the Queen's speech was rejected, in the House of Commons, by a vote of 435 to 57....The anti-Jewish agitation has extended from Berlin to Saxony, Bavaria, Leipzig and Breslau. Forty thousand names have been signed to the petition to be presented to Bismarck.

The Crown Prince of Germany, speaking in Berlin, condemned the anti-Jewish movement and said he felt especially aggrieved because it was invading the schools and universities. The Bavarian Minister of the Interior has instructed the police to arrest the agitation.....In a fresh note to the powers, the Porte cites the warlike preparations of Greece, and invites a movement for a European conference. The Greeks are negotiating for four swift cruisers.

In the state trials at Dublin, the counsel for the traversers called to the stand a man of 83 years, scarcely able to stand upright, who had been evicted from a holding. ....Seven persons were killed and thirty or forty injured by a railroad accident at Wakefield, England.

Greece has stopped all furloughs from the army and appointed several Brigadier Generals....The British Government professes to have reliable information of dangerous conspiracies of Irishmen in several large towns of England....Russia dissents from the claim of France that the European powers are not bound to maintain the decisions of the Berlin Conference on the Greek frontier question.... General Skobeleff telegraphs that on Jan. 9 a body of 30,000 Tekke-Turcomans assaulted the Russian trenches near Geok-Tepe, which were manned by twenty companies of infantry and twenty-four guns. The Russian outworks were carried by the onslaught, but by a desperate effort they were repossessed, with heavy loss on both sides.

The recent storm in England was one of the most violent and destructive ever experienced in the British isles. All the railroads were blocked with snow and the trains stopped running, while in the city of London traffic of all kinds was abandoned. The tide in the Thames river was higher than ever before, and the lower portions of the city were flooded. Woolwich pier was washed away, and over 100 barges sunk. The damage is estimated at $10,000,000. Scores of vessels were wrecked on the coast and many lives lost.... Leopold de Rothschild, youngest son of the late Baron Lionel de Rothschild, was married to Miss Perugia, of Trieste, in the Portland Street Synagogue, London. The Prince of Wales, Lord and Lady Roseberry, and other persons of rank were present....A company has been formed at London with a capital of £500,000, to facilitate the importation of beef from America, and will build four large steamers.

The rector of the University of Berlin took advantage of a meeting of the students in honor of German unity to protest against the anti-Jewish movement. An uproar was the only effect of the remonstrance. It is expected that several duels will grow out of the agitation. A proposed meeting of workmen in opposition to the agitation was prohibited by the Berlin police....On the reassembling of the French Chambers, Leon Say was re-elected President of the Senate, and Gambetta of the Chamber of Deputies.... A great battle was fought nine miles south of Lima, in which the Peruvians suffered defeat and heavy loss....The proposed arbitration of the Greek frontier question has been absolutely abandoned.

CONGRESSIONAL SUMMARY.

Senator Hoar introduced a bill in the Senate on Friday, Jan. 14, providing that ex-Presidents shall be entitled to an annual pension equal to one-fourth of the salary paid them while in office. Mr. Johnston, from the Committee on Yorktown Celebration, reported favorably on the resolution inviting the French Government and people to participate in the celebration. Mr. Voorhees offered a concurrent resolution instructing the Chairmen of the Naval Committees of the two houses to co-operate with the Secretary of the Navy in making arrangements for the unveiling of Admiral Farragut's statue. The Army Appropriation bill and the District Tramp bill were passed, as was the Military Academy Appropriation bill, without amendment. Senator Conkling scored a victory over President Hayes. The President appointed one Haskell Postmaster of Albany to succeed the present occupant, Craig, whose term expires on the 1st of March. The Post-office Committee reported in favor of Haskell's confirmation. Mr. Conkling opposed it on the ground that the appointment was illegal, Craig's term not having expired. The report was recommitted by a unanimous vote. The House went into committee of the whole on the private calendar. In the debate on the bill for the relief of William Redus, for cattle stolen by Osage Indians, Mr. Springer demonstrated the necessity of a court for hearing all private claims.

The House of Representatives spent Saturday, Jan. 15, on the Funding bill, leaving two sections unfinished. First in order was the pending amendment of Mr. Anderson, to replace bank notes with legal tenders as rapidly as the former are retired, a proposition rejected as not being germane. Mr. McLane offered a substitute for the whole bill, embracing Secretary Sherman's plan of bonds or certificates, drawing not over 3½ per cent., which was lost. The Randall amendment to the first section was then adopted, providing for $400,000,000 of bonds, payable in five to ten years, and $300,000,000 of certificates, redeemable in one to ten years, each bearing 3 per cent. interest, the treasury having previously paid out on maturing bonds all the silver dollars in store and all gold above $50,000,000. The second section, as amended, authorizes the Secretary of the Treasury, in refunding operations, to exchange any bonds except those issued to the Pacific railway companies. The third section restricts to one-fourth of 1 per cent. the expense of placing the new bonds and certificates. The fourth section authorizes the use of $50,000,000 in coin in redeeming 5 and 6-per-cent. bonds, which are to be canceled. The fifth section, on which no action has been taken, provides that the new bonds shall be the only ones receivable as security for national-bank circulation.

The joint resolution creating the Yorktown Centennial Commission was passed by the Senate on Monday, Jan. 17. Bills were also passed directing the purchase of the Freedmen's Bank building at Washington for $250,000, and to place Gen. Ord on the list of retired Major Generals. The bill for the relief of Ben Holladay was debated, without action. Senator Saulsbury's motion to consider the Kellogg case was defeated by a vote of 34 to 30. Several Democrats, including Bayard, Pendleton, Thurman, Lamar, Voorhees and Davis (Ill.) voted against the motion. Three different reports were submitted by the Board of Visitors to West Point. Senator Garland and Representative Phillips declare that the mingling of the races is subject to drawbacks which no legislation can control. Senator Edmunds is of opinion that the standard of admission ought to be raised, and Representatives McKinley and Felton hold views directly to the contrary. Senator Garland presented a bill providing that hereafter no officer above the rank of Colonel shall be assigned to duty at the academy. The Senate rejected the nominations of John B. Stickney to be District Attorney of Florida, and Robert H. Trego to be Postmaster at Sidney, Ohio. In the House, Mr. Newberry introduced a bill to provide for a joint international commission to investigate the alleged fraudulent statistics used by the Halifax Commission. Mr. Ford presented a resolution for the construction by the Government of such telegraph lines as may be necessary to protect private interests, and Mr. Springer one for a telegraphic postal system. Mr. White offered a constitutional amendment providing for the election of United States Senators by the people. Mr. Cox introduced an apportionment bill fixing the number of Representatives at 301. The bill quieting the titles of settlers on Des Moines river lands was passed. Mr. Fort introduced a bill to prohibit the exportation of diseased cattle; Mr. Willis, to improve the civil service; Mr. Kelley, to repeal an act which imposes a discriminating duty of 10 per cent. on goods produced east of the Cape of Good Hope and imported from countries west of the Cape; Mr. Converse, to reclaim the swamp lands of the Potomac and to deepen the channel of the river; and Mr. Keifer, to prevent the spread of contagious disease among domestic animals. The Speaker submitted a communication from Secretary Schurz which accompanied the report of the Census Superintendent, which shows that the United States has a population of 50,152,866.

In the United States Senate, the census returns were laid before the members, on the morning of Tuesday, Jan. 18, as also information which had been called for in regard to the enumeration in South Carolina. The bill to incorporate the Interoceanic Canal Company was sent to the Committee on Foreign Affairs. The claim of Ben Holladay was taken up, and a motion to refer it to the Court of Claims was defeated, but the amount was finally fixed at $160,000 and passed. The House Military Committee presented majority and minority reports on the proposition to restore Gen. Grant to the rank and pay of General of the Army, and place him on the retired list. The majority reported against the bill, and the minority in favor of it. Mr. Atkins reported the Naval Appropriation bill, which sets aside $14,461,607. The Funding bill then came up, and Mr. Carlisle's substitute for the fifth section was agreed to, providing that the new bonds shall be the only security received for national-bank circulation. An amendment, by Mr. Price, that any bank depositing these bonds shall be exempt from all tax on deposits, capital or circulation, was ruled out on the point of order. Messrs. Wood, Randall, Kelley, Warner and Weaver spoke in support of the 3-per-cent. bond clause of the bill. Messrs. Hiscock, Hoar and Gen. Hawley spoke against the measure as impracticable. The bill was reported to the House by the committee, but no final action was taken. The Committee on Elections reported that H. Bisbee, Jr., was, and N. A. Hull was not, entitled to the seat from the Second Congressional district of Florida. Mr. Hull is the sitting member.

A bill to relieve the political disabilities of Richard Fatherly, of Arkansas, was defeated in the Senate on Wednesday, Jan. 19. Mr. Conkling submitted a resolution calling for full information as to the cost of taking the census. It was resolved to create a select committee of five on pleuro-pneumonia and other contagious and infectious diseases of cattle. A bill prescribing the mode of settling private land claims was passed. The Refunding bill came up in the House as unfinished business. A point of order was raised that Mr. Newberry, of Michigan, who had stated during the debate that he had gone to the national bank with which he was connected to inquire how he should vote, was under the rules not entitled to a vote. The Chair overruled the point of order. A separate vote was taken on the amendment fixing the rate of interest at 3 per cent., and it was agreed to by yeas, 149; nays, 104. The amendment making the bonds redeemable after five years and payable in ten years was adopted without a division. The House rejected the amendment providing that all the silver dollars and all the gold over $50,000,000 be paid on the bonds accruing during the current year before any of the new bonds should be issued. The vote was yeas, 111; nays, 140. The next separate vote was on the amendment limiting the expense of the new issue to one-fourth of 1 per cent. It was agreed to by yeas, 151; nays, 103. Carlisle's substitute, making only 3 per cents receivable as security for national-bank circulation, was adopted by yeas, 127; nays, 119. The bill as amended was then passed by yeas, 135; nays, 125.

The ladies' gallery was occupied by members of the National Woman Suffrage Association at the opening of the Senate, on Thursday, Jan. 20. Mr. McDonald called up his resolution for a standing committee on the rights of female citizens, which he warmly urged, and it was sent to the Committee on Rules. Mr. Kernan presented a resolution, which was adopted, calling for copies of any correspondence with foreign governments in regard to the sending of criminals or paupers to this country. The Funding bill was received from the House and referred to the Committee on Finance. The bill for the allotment of land in severalty to Indians was taken up, its provisions being explained by Mr. Coke. In executive session, the Senate, on motion of Senator Edmunds, directed the Committee on Privileges and Elections to investigate and ascertain by what means the full text of the Chinese treaties became public in several newspapers. The House went into committee of the whole on the Naval Appropriation bill, which was passed as it came from the Committee on Appropriations. The bill calls for $14,500,000. Mr. Whitthorne, Chairman of the Naval Committee, during the discussion on the bill expressing the hope that Gen. Garfield's administration would recognize that we had no navy, and that we should commence to build one. In the case of the contest of E. Moody Boynton for the seat in Congress occupied by Dr. Loring from the Sixth Massachusetts district the Committee on Elections reported in favor of the sitting member. Gen. Weaver brought in a minority report favoring Mr. Boynton. An evening session was held for the consideration of District business.

Planting Oak Trees.

The most common trees throughout the Western States are oaks of different varieties. They are found growing on hillsides, along the banks of streams, on the prairies. The soil and climate are favorable to their production. The oak thrives here as the beech does in New England, the chestnut in Maryland, the pine in Northern Michigan, the cottonwood on the banks of the Ohio and its tributaries, and the magnolia in the Gulf States. It does not suffer from root-rot, sun-scald, or the attacks of insects. It is hardy and long-lived. It requires no pruning, no protection, no transplanting, no manuring, no cultivation. It furnishes most of the wood employed as timber, a fair proportion of the posts and rails used for fencing, and all the tan-barks we produce. The trees are stately and highly ornamental. They throw up no sprouts or suckers. They afford admirable shade for all kinds of stock, while their branches make excellent roosting places for fowls of all kinds. They produce large crops of acorns, that are readily eaten by swine and sheep.

Still no one engaged in the culture of trees for timber or fuel plants oak trees. They generally experiment with trees that are "far brought and dearly bought," and make a complete or partial failure. Millions of dollars have been spent for no purpose in buying or setting out the European larch and other trees raised in nurseries, which require protection from the sun and cold, a large amount of cultivation, and considerable training. To raise a good crop of oak trees it is only necessary to plow the land or dig up portions of it, to drop the acorns, and to leave them to germinate and grow. They will come up without any pains being taken to prepare the seed, and will require no care. "The fittest survive" and become objects of worth and beauty. In England a larger number of oaks are planted than of all other kinds of forest trees. An effort is now being made to cover all the barren hills with them. Land planted with oak trees is regarded as very valuable on account of the crop of acorns annually produced, which are devoured by sheep, goats, and hogs.

CENSUS RETURNS.

Town Populations.

The Census Office furnishes the following statement of the population of the towns and cities of the United States having a population of 10,000 and less than 30,000, according to the United States census of 1880:

Trenton, N. J.	29,910	Concord, N. H.	13,839
Covington, Ky.	29,720	Lincoln, R. I.	13,765
Peoria, Ill.	29,315	Virginia City, Nev.	[illegible]
Evansville, Ind.	29,287	New Lots, N. Y.	13,681
Bridgeport, Ct.	28,148	Schenectady, N. Y.	13,673
Elizabeth, N. J.	28,229	Alexandria, Va.	13,658
Erie, Pa.	27,730	Brockton, Mass.	13,608
Salem, Mass.	27,598	Newburyport, Mass.	13,537
Quincy, Ill.	27,275	Lockport, N. Y.	13,523
Fort Wayne, Ind.	26,880	Nashua, N. H.	13,397
New Bedford, Mass.	26,876	Pittsfield, Mass.	13,367
Terre Haute, Ind.	26,040	South Bend, Ind.	13,279
Lancaster, Pa.	25,769	Pottsville, Pa.	13,254
Somerville, Mass.	24,985	Orange, N. J.	13,206
Wilkesbarre, Pa.	23,339	Little Rock, Ark.	13,185
Augusta, Ga.	22,023	Rockford, Ill.	13,136
Des Moines, Iowa	22,408	Fond du Lac, Wis.	13,091
Dubuque, Iowa	22,254	Norristown, Pa.	13,064
Galveston, Texas	22,253	Lincoln, Neb.	13,006
Watervliet, N. Y.	22,220	Chattanooga, Tenn.	12,891
Norfolk, Va.	21,966	Macon, Ga.	12,748
Auburn, N. Y.	21,924	Richmond, Ind.	12,743
Holyoke, Mass.	21,851	Castleton, N. Y.	12,679
Davenport, Iowa	21,836	Cortlandt, N. Y.	12,604
Chelsea, Mass.	21,785	Biddeford, Me.	12,639
Petersburg, Va.	21,656	Georgetown, D. C.	12,578
Sacramento, Cal.	21,420	San Jose, Cal.	12,567
Taunton, Mass.	21,213	Fitchburg, Mass.	12,406
Norwich, Ct.	21,141	Canton, Ohio	12,258
Oswego, N. Y.	21,117	Northampton, Mass.	12,173
Salt Lake City	20,768	Warwick, R. I.	12,163
Springfield, Ohio	20,730	Rutland, Vt.	12,149
Bay City, Mich.	20,693	Hamilton, Ohio	12,122
San Antonio, Texas	20,561	Keokuk, Iowa	12,117
Elmira, N. Y.	20,541	Steubenville, Ohio	12,093
Newport, Ky.	20,433	Rome, N. Y.	12,045
Waterbury, Ct.	20,269	Malden, Mass.	12,017
Poughkeepsie, N. Y.	20,207	Kalamazoo, Mich.	11,987
Springfield, Ill.	19,746	Easton, Pa.	11,924
Altoona, Pa.	19,716	Oyster Bay, N. Y.	11,923
Burlington, Iowa	19,480	Aurora, Ill.	11,825
Cohoes, N. Y.	19,417	Vicksburg, Miss.	11,814
Gloucester, Mass.	19,329	Middletown, Ct.	11,721
Lewiston, Me.	19,083	Amsterdam, N. Y.	11,711
Pawtucket, R. I.	19,030	Waltham, Mass.	11,711
E. Saginaw, Mich.	19,016	Dover, N. H.	11,687
Williamsport, Pa.	18,934	Danbury, Ct.	11,669
Yonkers, N. Y.	18,892	Rock Island, Ill.	11,666
Houston, Texas	18,646	Derby, Ct.	11,649
Haverhill, Mass.	18,475	Brookhaven, N. Y.	11,544
Lake Township, Ill.	18,396	Wallkill, N. Y.	11,483
Kingston, N. Y.	18,342	Galesburg, Ill.	11,446
Meriden, Ct.	18,340	Portsmouth, Va.	11,388
Hempstead, N. Y.	18,160	Burlington, Vt.	11,348
Zanesville, Ohio	18,125	Chicopee, Mass.	11,325
Allentown, Pa.	18,063	Portsmouth, Ohio	11,314
Council Bluffs, Ia.	18,059	Los Angeles, Cal.	11,311
Newburgh, N. Y.	18,050	Stamford, Ct.	11,298
Wilmington, N. C.	17,361	Muskegon, Mich.	11,262
Binghamton, N. Y.	17,315	Logansport, Ind.	11,196
Bloomington, Ill.	17,184	Attleborough, Mass.	11,111
N. Brunswick, N. J.	17,167	Hannibal, Mo.	11,074
Long Island City	17,117	Shreveport, La.	11,017
Newton, Mass.	16,995	Austin, Tex.	10,960
Bangor, Me.	16,857	Chillicothe, Ohio	10,938
Montgomery, Ala.	16,714	Woburn, Mass.	[illegible]
Lexington, Ky.	[illegible]	Jacksonville, Ill.	10,927
Johnstown, N. Y.	16,626	Saratoga Sp'gs, N. Y.	10,882
Leavenworth, Kan.	16,550	Fishkill, N. Y.	10,833
Akron, Ohio	16,512	Watertown, N. Y.	10,697
New Albany, Ind.	16,422	Belleville, Ill.	10,683
Joliet, Ill.	16,145	Weymouth, Mass.	10,571
Jackson, Mich.	16,105	Quincy, Mass.	10,529
Woonsocket, R. I.	16,053	New London, Ct.	10,520
Racine, Wis.	16,031	Saginaw, Mich.	10,525
Lynchburg, Va.	15,959	Jeffersonville, Ind.	10,422
Flushing, N. Y.	15,915	Saugerties, N. Y.	10,375
Sandusky, Ohio	15,838	Dallas, Tex.	10,358
Oshkosh, Wis.	15,749	Ogdensburg, N. Y.	10,340
Hyde Park, Ill.	15,716	Madison, Wis.	10,325
Newport, R. I.	15,693	Stockton, Cal.	10,287
Topeka, Kan.	15,451	Lenox, N. Y.	10,244
Youngstown, Ohio	15,431	Winona, Minn.	10,208
Atchison, Kan.	15,106	North Adams, Mass.	10,192
Chester, Pa.	14,996	Shenandoah, Pa.	10,148
Lafayette, Ind.	14,860	Marlborough, Mass.	10,126
Leadville, Col.	14,820	Eau Claire, Wis.	10,118
La Crosse, Wis.	14,505	Cedar Rapids, Iowa	10,104
New Britain, Ct.	13,978	Jamaica, N. Y.	10,084
Norwalk, Ct.	13,956	Columbia, S. C.	10,040
York, Pa.	13,940

Cotton Manufacture in the United States.

The following is a preliminary report to the Census Bureau upon the specific cotton manufacture of the United States, exhibiting the number of looms, spindles, the number of bales of cotton consumed and the number of operatives employed:

STATES.	Looms.	Spindles.	Bales of Cotton Used.	Persons Employed.
United States	230,223	10,921,147	1,568,481	181,628
Alabama	1,060	53,072	14,887	1,609
Arkansas	28	2,015	720	64
Connecticut	18,036	931,538	107,877	15,497
Delaware	833	46,838	7,612	695
Florida	......	816	350	83
Georgia	4,713	200,974	67,874	6,678
Illinois	24	4,860	2,261	231
Indiana	776	83,396	11,558	730
Kentucky	73	9,022	4,215	359
Louisiana	120	6,096	1,354	108
Maine	15,978	696,665	113,361	11,319
Maryland	2,333	128,014	46,947	4,168
Massachusetts	94,788	4,445,290	870,590	62,794
Michigan	121	12,120	600	208
Mississippi	704	26,172	6,411	748
Missouri	341	19,212	6,630	515
New Hampshire	25,487	1,008,521	172,746	16,637
New Jersey	3,044	232,096	20,069	4,638
New York	12,833	578,512	70,014	10,710
N. Carolina	1,080	102,767	27,506	3,426
Ohio	42	14,328	10,397	583
Pennsylvania	10,841	446,379	86,358	11,871
Rhode Island	30,274	1,649,296	161,694	22,228
S. Carolina	1,776	92,788	33,009	2,195
Tennessee	1,069	46,260	11,829	1,812
Texas	71	2,648	340	71
Utah	14	432	......	29
Vermont	1,180	58,066	7,404	736
Virginia	1,324	44,336	11,461	1,112
Wisconsin	400	10,210	3,173	242

The above does not include the hosiery mills or any of the mills known as woolen mills where cotton may be a component material used in the manufacture.

Census Comparisons.

The following table shows the population of the United States and Territories under the last three enumerations. It is interesting as exhibiting the marvelous growth of the country in the three decades:

	1880.	1870.	1860.
Alabama	1,262,724	996,992	964,219
Arkansas	802,564	484,471	435,450
California	864,686	560,247	379,994
Colorado	174,649	39,864	34,277
Connecticut	622,683	537,454	460,147
Delaware	146,614	125,015	112,216
Florida	267,351	187,748	140,424
Georgia	1,539,048	1,184,109	1,057,286
Illinois	3,078,769	2,539,891	1,711,951
Indiana	1,978,362	1,680,637	1,350,428
Iowa	1,624,620	1,194,020	674,913
Kansas	995,966	364,399	107,206
Kentucky	1,648,708	1,321,011	1,155,684
Louisiana	940,103	726,915	708,002
Maine	648,945	626,915	628,279
Maryland	934,632	780,894	687,049
Massachusetts	1,783,012	1,457,351	1,231,066
Michigan	1,636,331	1,184,059	749,113
Minnesota	780,806	439,706	172,023
Mississippi	1,131,672	827,922	791,305
Missouri	2,168,824	1,721,295	1,182,012
Nebraska	452,453	122,993	28,841
Nevada	62,205	42,491	6,857
New Hampshire	346,984	318,300	326,073
New Jersey	1,130,983	906,096	672,035
New York	5,083,810	4,382,759	3,880,735
North Carolina	1,400,047	1,071,361	992,622
Ohio	3,178,269	2,665,260	2,339,511
Oregon	174,767	90,923	52,465
Pennsylvania	4,282,786	3,521,951	2,906,215
Rhode Island	276,528	217,353	174,620
South Carolina	995,622	705,606	703,708
Tennessee	1,542,463	1,258,520	1,109,801
Texas	1,572,574	818,579	604,215
Vermont	332,286	330,551	315,098
Virginia	1,520,806	1,225,163	1,596,318
West Virginia	616,443	442,014	......
Wisconsin	1,332,480	1,054,670	775,881
Total States	49,369,595	38,155,505	31,216,021
THE TERRITORIES.
Alaska	......	......	......
Arizona	40,411	9,658	......
Dakota	134,502	14,181	4,837
D. of Columbia	177,638	131,700	75,080
Idaho	32,611	14,999	......
Montana	39,157	20,595	......
New Mexico	118,424	91,874	93,516
Utah	143,907	86,786	40,273
Washington	75,120	23,955	11,594
Wyoming	20,788	9,118	......
Total Territories	782,864	402,866	225,300
Total U. S.	50,152,559	38,558,371	31,443,321

Increase of the Negro Race in the South.

Census returns from the Southern States of Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Louisiana and North Carolina show the following rate of increase of whites and blacks:

Alabama—Whites, 27 per cent.; negroes, 26 per cent.

Arkansas—Whites, 44 per cent.; negroes, 89 per cent.

Georgia—Whites, 27 per cent.; negroes, 32 per cent.

Louisiana—Whites, 28 per cent.; negroes, 38 per cent.

North Carolina—Whites, 29 per cent.; negroes, 32 per cent.

It will thus be seen that, with the exception of Alabama, the negro race has been increasing more rapidly than the whites in the Southern States. The same fact has also been shown by the census returns of South Carolina and Maryland.

The New Congressional Apportionment.

Following is the text of Mr. Cox's bill, now pending in the House:

An Act making an apportionment of representation in Congress among the several States under the tenth census:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America, in Congress assembled, After the 3d of March, 1883, the House of Representatives shall be composed of 301 members, to be apportioned among the several States as follows:

Alabama	[illegible]	Mississippi	[illegible]
Arkansas	[illegible]	Missouri	[illegible]
California	[illegible]	Nebraska	[illegible]
Colorado	[illegible]	Nevada	[illegible]
Connecticut	[illegible]	New Hampshire	[illegible]
Delaware	[illegible]	New Jersey	[illegible]
Florida	[illegible]	New York	[illegible]
Georgia	[illegible]	North Carolina	[illegible]
Illinois	[illegible]	Ohio	[illegible]
Indiana	[illegible]	Oregon	[illegible]
Iowa	[illegible]	Pennsylvania	[illegible]
Kansas	[illegible]	Rhode Island	[illegible]
Kentucky	[illegible]	South Carolina	[illegible]
Louisiana	[illegible]	Tennessee	[illegible]
Maine	[illegible]	Texas	[illegible]
Maryland	[illegible]	Vermont	[illegible]
Massachusetts	[illegible]	Virginia	[illegible]
Michigan	[illegible]	West Virginia	[illegible]
Minnesota	[illegible]	Wisconsin	[illegible]

SEC. 2. Whenever a new State is admitted to the Union, the Representative or Representatives assigned to it shall be added to said number.

SEC. 3. In each State entitled under this apportionment the number to which such State may be entitled in the Forty-eighth and each subsequent Congress shall be elected by districts composed of contiguous territory, and containing, as nearly as practicable, an equal number of inhabitants and equal in number to the Representatives to which such State may be entitled in Congress, no one district electing more than one Representative.

The following table shows the gains and losses of the chief geographical divisions of the country under the proposed apportionment:

Group of States.	301 Members. Gain.	Loss.
New England	[illegible]	[illegible]
Middle	[illegible]	[illegible]
Northwestern	[illegible]	[illegible]
Pacific	[illegible]	[illegible]
Total Northern	[illegible]	[illegible]
Southern	[illegible]	[illegible]
Totals	[illegible]	[illegible]
New members	[illegible]

It will be seen that by Mr. Cox's arrangement the North will get two of the eight new members and the South the other six. Curiously enough, if the House should be increased to 325 members, which is not probable, the North would get seventeen of the thirty-two new members, and the South only fifteen.

A Story of Tom Ochiltree.

Jem Mace, the celebrated prize-fighter, once spent a winter in New Orleans. He used to amuse himself and his admirers by betting the drinks with them that they could not hit him—they to do their best to hit him, and he simply to ward off the blows. Tom Ochiltree, of Texas, who has gained considerable reputation from his intimacy with General Grant, and perhaps even more reputation from the fast running horse which was named after him, happened to be in New Orleans during the winter. Some of Ochiltree's friends told him of Mace's favorite bet. Ochiltree is a short, thick-set, powerfully-built man. His hair is just red enough to indicate a fiery temper. As soon as he was told of Mace's bet he fired up and said he would bet the crowd a champagne supper that he could hit Jem Mace. The bet, of course, was taken at once, and the whole party started out in search of Mace. He was easily found in a neighboring drinking saloon. Mace was standing at the bar in the act of taking a drink. Ochiltree stepped quietly up beside him, and hit him suddenly a stinging blow on the cheek. Mace quietly placed his glass on the bar, and, scarcely moving his body, brought his right hand up and struck Ochiltree a fearful blow just under one ear. His friends rushed to him, gathered him up, and carried him to the nearest hotel. Doctors were sent for in a great hurry, and after two or three hours of hard work they succeeded in bringing Ochiltree back to this earth. He was confined to his room in the hotel for three weeks, however. When he finally reappeared he was forced to furnish the champagne supper. Some of his friends said to him: "What in the world made you such a blanked fool as to hit Jem Mace?" "Why," said Ochiltree, "I thought I would just tap him without his knowledge and would then explain to him."

In Venice there is no wealthy class, and, as the only manufactures seem to be of fancy glassware, travelers sometimes wonder how the 130,000 Venetians live.

THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK.

BEEVES	[illegible]
HOGS	[illegible]
COTTON	[illegible]
FLOUR—Superfine	[illegible]
WHEAT—No. 2 Spring	[illegible]
CORN—Ungraded	[illegible]
OATS—Mixed Western	[illegible]
PORK—Mess	[illegible]
LARD	[illegible]

CHICAGO.

BEEVES—Choice Graded Steers	[illegible]
Cows and Heifers	[illegible]
Medium to Fair	[illegible]
HOGS	[illegible]
FLOUR—Fancy White Winter Ex.	[illegible]
Good to Choice Spring Ex.	[illegible]
WHEAT—No. 2 Spring	[illegible]
No. 3 Spring	[illegible]
CORN—No. 2	[illegible]
OATS—No. 2	[illegible]
RYE—No. 2	[illegible]
BARLEY—No. 2	[illegible]
BUTTER—Choice Creamery	[illegible]
EGGS—Fresh	[illegible]
PORK—Mess	[illegible]
LARD	[illegible]

MILWAUKEE.

WHEAT—No. 1	[illegible]
No. 2	[illegible]
CORN—No. 2	[illegible]
OATS—No. 2	[illegible]
RYE—No. 1	[illegible]
BARLEY—No. 2	[illegible]

ST. LOUIS.

WHEAT—No. 2 Red	[illegible]
CORN—Mixed	[illegible]
OATS—No. 2	[illegible]
RYE	[illegible]
PORK—Mess	[illegible]
LARD	[illegible]

CINCINNATI.

WHEAT	[illegible]
CORN	[illegible]
OATS	[illegible]
RYE	[illegible]
PORK—Mess	[illegible]
LARD	[illegible]

TOLEDO.

WHEAT—No. 1 White	[illegible]
No. 2 Red	[illegible]
CORN—No. 2	[illegible]
OATS—No. 2	[illegible]

DETROIT.

FLOUR—Choice	[illegible]
WHEAT—No. 1 White	[illegible]
CORN—No. 1	[illegible]
OATS—Mixed	[illegible]
BARLEY (per cental)	[illegible]
PORK—Mess	[illegible]

INDIANAPOLIS.

WHEAT—No. 2 Red	[illegible]
CORN	[illegible]
OATS	[illegible]
PORK—Mess	[illegible]

EAST LIBERTY, PA.

CATTLE—Best	[illegible]
Fair	[illegible]
Common	[illegible]
HOGS	[illegible]
SHEEP	[illegible]

AUBURN COURIER.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 27, 1881.

MR. WILLIAM H. VANDERBILT, on Christmas day, made each of his daughters a present of 1,000 shares of Lake Shore stock—market value of each gift, $137,000.

A VERY sad item comes from Boston, it being nothing less than that blondes are out of fashion. Young men who were foolish enough to marry them will now have plenty of time for repentance.

COL. JOHN W. FORNEY is writing a novel entitled "Our New Nobility," that his friends predict will be a freeze-out on "Endymion." The plan of the book is to picture public people under thin disguises.

JULES VERNE, an author who depends upon his imagination for his facts, is a blonde, with a head delicate but not handsome. He is past 50, and has many silver threads among the gold. He never voted in his life, and has no political principles.

NOT long ago Senator Hamlin, of Maine, and Postmaster General Maynard were talking of the unsatisfactory life a public man leads. Mr. Maynard complained that he had been a quarter of a century in public life and was poorer than when he entered. "Well," replied Hamlin, "I am not. I had nothing when I commenced, and I have nothing now."

THE gamblers of St. Louis are to find security in the spring in a keno-boat which is to be started upon the river. The boat will have a large main cabin for keno, and smaller rooms forward for faro, roulette and hazard. Each passenger is to pay $1 fare, and three-fourths of the fares are to constitute three "pots" for the game, the bank deducting the usual commission. Once fairly out in the river, State laws against gambling will not avail, and the United States statutes do not recognize such an offense.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN, the grandfather of the great President of that name, was killed by Indians on Linkhorn's run, as the stream in Kentucky was then called. His blood ran into the stream, which ever since has borne his name. He was found with the strings of his powder-horn wound around his neck. This powder horn passed from one neighbor to another, and finally fell into the hands of a Mr. Brown, who forwarded it to the Lincoln Memorial Association at Springfield, Ill. It bore the owner's name and an eagle with spread wings carved in bold relief.

THE consumption of beer in this country, as shown by the internal-revenue returns, is largely on the increase. During the last fiscal year taxes were paid on 13,347,000 barrels of malt liquor. Each barrel contains thirty-one gallons, and the consumption was, therefore, 414,000,000 gallons, or 8.28 gallons per capita per annum. This is equal to about 150 mugs of beer each per annum for every man, woman and child in the country, or 600 glasses for each male in the country above the age of 21. In 1870 the consumption was less than half what it is at present, or 6,574,000 barrels, equal to an annual per-capita consumption of 5.29 gallons.

THE following is a list of the 20 cities of the United States having 100,000 inhabitants, with their present population compared with that of 10 years ago.

CITIES.	Population in 1880.	Population in 1870.	years.	Percentage of gain.
New York	1,206,590	942,292	264,298	28
Philadelphia	846,948	674,022	172,902	25
Brooklyn	566,689	396,099	170,590	43
Chicago	503,304	298,977	204,327	69
Boston	362,535	250,526	112,009	44
St. Louis	350,522	310,864	39,658	12
Baltimore	332,190	267,354	64,836	24
Cincinnati	255,708	216,239	39,469	18
San Francisco	233,956	149,473	84,483	56
New Orleans	216,140	191,418	24,722	13
Cleveland	160,142	92,829	67,313	72
Pittsburgh	156,381	86,076	70,305	81
Buffalo	155,137	117,714	37,423	31
Washington	147,307	109,199	38,108	35
Newark	146,400	105,059	41,341	39
Louisville	123,645	100,753	22,892	22
Jersey City	120,728	82,546	38,182	46
Detroit	116,342	79,577	36,765	46
Milwaukee	115,578	71,440	44,138	61
Providence	104,850	68,904	35,946	52

From the foregoing it will be seen that the number of cities exceeding 100,000 in population has increased from 14 in 1870, to 20 in 1880, with a total population of 6,211,128 now, as against 4,611,361 ten years ago, an increase of 1,599,767, or 34 6-10. In 1870 these 20 cities contained 11.7 per cent of the entire population of the country; now they contain 12.3 per cent.

THE frigid weather of the present season has brought up reminiscences of the phenomenally cold winter of 1779-'80, during which one snow-storm followed another, until the ground got so deeply covered that pedestrianism, or travel of any sort, became well-nigh impossible. Wild turkeys froze to death, domestic fowls died on their roosts, deer and buffalo sought shelter in civilized quarters, and innumerable wild animals perished in the forests, which were almost buried in a shroud of snow. The rivers north and west were ice-bound, and even as far south as Nashville the Cumberland was frozen with ice three feet thick. The winters of 1773, 1784, 1785, 1788, 1792, 1796, and 1799 were all phenomenally severe. From December, 1788, until March, 1789, the Delaware and Ohio rivers were both frozen, and navigation suspended. In 1792 snow fell two feet deep in Ohio, and the river was so firmly frozen that mounted troops and artillery wagons rode across by the hundred. "Cold Friday" still forms a subject for many a grandsire's tale of terrible winter weather. On Friday, Feb. 7, 1807, the day opened mild. Rain fell, changing to snow, and followed by a frigid wave of unexampled severity, accompanied by a high wind which changed to a hurricane. The frozen trees were broken by the dozen, each as it fell giving forth a report like that of a cannon. The whole land was ice-bound; traffic was stopped and out-door work of every sort suspended. Many froze to death in their beds, while the mortality among wild and domestic animals was equal to the ravaging of a plague.

IT is seldom that parties who defy the law so far as to bet have the cheek to go into court to have the bet decided. I. S. Fernald bet $200 with George Dawson that California would go Republican. Both parties live in San Francisco. As all but one of the electors were Democratic, the referee concluded to pay Dawson the $200. Fernald thereupon sued Dawson for the money. The Judge's decision is rather interesting. He said: "The law of this case is, in brief, about as follows: In most of the Eastern States, notably New York, Massachusetts and Ohio, it is held that claims growing out of wagers of all kinds are contra bonos mores; that parties not coming into court with clean hands are not entitled to any consideration or to recover by their action. In California this doctrine is so modified as to allow parties who make bets in the excitement of a political contest to repent their wager any time before the event has happened upon which the wager is made and has been generally known, and demand back their money. The doctrine of the case reported in Johnson vs. Russell, and which must decide this case, is clearly based upon moral grounds, and not upon any chance of gain or loss in dollars and cents. It results, in my opinion, that plaintiff's repentance came too late to prove it of the genuine type that 'needs not to be repented of' and is 'unto salvation,' but is rather too much 'of the crocodile stripe' (to use the language of the case cited above) to entitle him to recover; hence, I find for defendant for his costs.'

A Practical Joke on the Wrong Party.

Mr. Wagon was the victim. His son Johnny is a mischievous lad, and one day resolved to play a trick on his brother. He arranged certain attachments to that brother's bed, worked by cords running to his own room, and then went off fishing. While he was gone, his brother was sent away to be absent over night, and a lot of company arrived at the house. Mr. Wagon gave up his own room to them and occupied the absent son's bed. Johnny got home late at night, and wholly ignorant of this change of arrangements, went to his room, which was next to his mother's, and prepared to perpetrate his designs upon his brother.

The first proceeding was a haul on a cord which ran between the blankets and spread on his brother's bed, and, being fastened at the top, would pull the clothes off the bed. Mr. Wagon was comfortably tucked in, when suddenly the clothes began to slip, and he found himself uncovered. He thought he might have kicked them off, and sat up and took hold of the clothes to pull them back. Meanwhile, Johnny had yanked another cord which pulled the pillow off the bed. Mr. Wagon discovered his loss and reached for the pillow, and when he got it, the clothes went off again. He was much excited at that, and again went after the clothes and again lost his pillow.

That time the pillow went under the bed and Mr. Wagon went after it, and immediately came out again and swore prodigiously, for the floor was strewn with chestnut burrs, and he had gotton into them. He resolved to scold the chambermaid for leaving so many pins on the floor. Once more he attempt to get the pillow, and, as it was way under, he made a frantic dive for it, and just then Johnny, who was shaking with laughter, pulled the last cord and the whole bed came down upon Mr. Wagon and jammed him upon the burrs.

His frantic howls brought his wife and friends to the rescue, and he was fished out. And then the gas was lighted and somebody discovered the cords running to Johnny's room. Mr. Wagon at once hastened there. The lad explained that he thought his brother was in the bed, but it didn't make any difference. His yells were mistaken by a man sleeping half a mile away for a cry of fire, and he jumped out of bed so hard that he sprained a toe. And the next day when Johnny went to school he got spanked again because he wouldn't sit down, and is now resolved to run away from home the first chance he can get, as this part of the country is a mighty discouraging region for a boy.—Exchange.

A Short Creed.

When a young man declared to Dr. Parr that he would believe nothing he did not understand, "Then, sir," said the doctor, "your creed would be the shortest of any man whom I ever saw."

ROBERT COLLYER in a sermon once said of the inventor of the locomotive: "I would rather take my chance as Robert Stephenson, with that locomotive on my back, knocking for admission at the gate of St. Peter in Paradise, than the devoutest saint that can carry on his back a ton's load of vows and penances.

INDIANA LEGISLATURE.

THURSDAY, JAN. 13.—SENATE.—A large amount of routine business was transacted today. Among the joint resolutions introduced was one by Senator Marvin, directing the Judiciary Committee to inquire into the constitutionality of prohibiting the circulation of the so-called "trade dollars" in Indiana. Another, introduced by Senator Rahmj, provides for a pension for Mexican veterans. Senator Kahlo proposed a resolution directing the Apportionment Committee to inquire into the expediency of reducing the number of State Senators from fifty to thirty, and of Representatives from 100 to sixty, to report as soon as possible by bill or otherwise. These measures went over under the rules. Of the new bills introduced, the most important were those of Senator Bischowsky, providing for a uniform system of text books in Indiana; Senator Viehe's, providing for the resubmission of the constitutional amendments to the people; Senator Van Vorhis', providing for a Police Judge for Indianapolis. Senator Owens' bill allowing the funding of the indebtedness of more than $30,000 of any incorporated town was passed under a suspension of the rules.

HOUSE.—The lower branch of the Legislature was engaged all day on the first reading of bills, the most important being those proposing to make the insane asylum for women a separate State institution under the management of a board composed of women only, introduced by Mr. Hinton; to resubmit the constitutional amendment, "the bill of the State Bar Association," introduced by Mr. Carter; to compel hotels to provide means of escape in case of fire, introduced by Mr. Schweitzer; and a prohibitory bill, introduced by Mr. Murray, of Randolph; and a bill proposing that no one shall vote at any election who has not paid his poll-tax. The messages of Gov. Gray and Gov. Porter were submitted to the appropriate committees, and the committee to inquire into the charges of cruelty at the Female Reformatory was authorized to send for persons and papers, and to employ a clerk. Seventy-five bills had been introduced up to the close. James Greeman, of Noble county, was appointed to succeed Mr. Hoover, who has resigned, as Assistant Doorkeeper of the House.

FRIDAY, JAN. 14.—SENATE.—Lieut. Gov. Hanna announced the standing committees, of which the following are among the more important:

Elections—Sayre of Wabash, Viehe, Spann, Keiser, Kramer, Lockridge and Heffron.

Financial—Wilson of Madison, Langdon, Leeper, Davis, Smith, Owen and Foster.

Judiciary—Grubbs of Morgan, Bell, Brown, Chapman, Comstock, Graham and Traylor.

Organization of Courts—Langdon of Tippecanoe, Coffey, Van Vorhis, Grubbs, Bischowsky and Compton.

Education—Owen of Warren, Leeper, White, Davis, Smith, Sayre and Frazer.

Corporations—Garrigus of Howard, Heffron, Spann, Wood, Yancey, Graham and Rahmj.

Roads—Poindexter of Floyd, Hostetter, Hart, Macartney, Majors, Lockridge and Marvin.

Benevolent and Reformatory Institutions—Van Vorhis of Marion, White, Comstock, Ristine, Bell, Kahlo and Urmson.

Agriculture—Lockridge of Putnam, Smith, Leeper, Poindexter, Davis, Macartney and Marvin.

Public Buildings and State Library—Kahlo of Cass, Menzies, Garrigus, Bell, Shaffer, Comstock and Woollen.

State Pensions—Chapman of Marion, Menzies, Ristine, Hutchinson, Shaffer, Bundy and Benz.

Temperance—Ristine of Montgomery, Heffron, Kahlo Shaffer, Briscoe, Bischowsky and Urmson.

Insurance—Spann of Rush, Woollen, Wilson, Graham, Wood, Whyte and Voyles.

Railroads—Graham of Hamilton, Brown, Kahlo, Foster, Spann, Garrigus and Voyles.

Congressional Apportionment—Grubbs of Morgan, Viehe, Comstock, Compton, Langdon, Poindexter, Rahmj, Garrigus, Wood, Macartney, White, Van Vorhis and Howard.

Legislative Apportionment—Shaffer of Huntington, Brown, Spann, Kramer, Keiser, Coffey, Owen, Woollen, Yancey, Graham, Hostetter, White and Traylor.

The following are Chairmen of the other committees: Canals, Internal Improvements and Swamp Lands, Bischowsky, of Vigo; Fees and Salaries, Smith, of Delaware; Claims and Expenditures, Ristine, of Montgomery; Military Affairs, Hostetter, of Noble; Phraseology of Bills and Unfinished Business, Henry, of Madison; Federal Relations, Shaffer, of Huntington; County and Township Affairs, White, of Elkhart; Public Health and Vital Statistics, Yancey, of Shelby; Executive Appointments, Bundy of Henry; Supervision and Inspection of the Senate, Bischowsky, of Vigo. Joint Standing Committees: On Enrolled Bills, Smith, of Delaware, Foster and Wilson; Public Buildings, Garrigus, of Howard, Leeper and Lockridge; State Library, Kahlo, Marvin, and Van Vorhis; Canal Funds, Bischowisky, Davidson and Owen; Claims, Wilson of Jefferson, Heffron and Yancey; Revision of Statutes, Comstock, of Wayne, Viehe, Langdon, Menzies and Henry. The bills previously introduced were read by title and referred to the appropriate committees. Senator Brown's bill proposing the holding of a constitutional convention was referred to a special committee, consisting of one member from each Congressional district. After a long discussion, taking up half of the afternoon session, the proposition of the Grand Hotel regarding committee rooms was accepted. A number of new bills were introduced, prominent among which were a medical bill, a homestead act, and an act providing for a State Board of Charities, after which the Senate adjourned until Monday afternoon.

HOUSE.—In the House an unsuccessful attempt was made to suspend the rules for the passage of the bill authorizing the appointment of a Police Judge in Indianapolis, but the vote in favor of suspension lacked three of the constitutional majority. Among the measures introduced the most important were a bill to place the State prisons, north and south, under a single board of five Directors; a bill requiring Inspectors and Judges of Election to sign their names on each ballot; a bill to repeal the act of last session for the inspection of petroleum oils; a bill to permit aliens to hold and convey real estate; a bill establishing a State public school for dependent children; a bill prohibiting gambling and pool-selling, and concerts at beer-gardens; a bill providing for a constitutional convention, and an act making the per diem of members $6 and that of the Speaker $10. Mr. Kenner's motion passed, appointing a committee to investigate the cost and policy of relaying the corner-stone of the new State House. An appropriate memorial of the late Gov. Williams was reported by a committee and made the special order for next Thursday afternoon. The House refused to adjourn over until Monday. Gov. Gray was nominated for Senator by the Democratic Legislative caucus; and Mrs. Peele, the present incumbent, received the nomination for State Librarian.

SATURDAY, JAN. 15.—HOUSE.—The House was in session for a short time on Saturday, and disposed of a number of bills on second reading, and then adjourned till Monday afternoon. Gov. Porter signed the first session law, which provided for the payment of the expenses of the present session.

MONDAY, JAN. 17.—SENATE.—There was another deluge of new bills. Senator Van Vohris introduced one providing for a State Board of Health, as recommended by the State Medical Society, and Senator Winston a bill making material changes in the law regulating insanity inquests, so that irresponsible Commissioners cannot adjudge parties insane. Senator Poindexter presented a joint resolution cutting down the number of judicial circuits, as well as Judges and Prosecuting Attorneys. Senator Kramer's bill to pay claims due members of the Indiana Legion and Independent volunteers went to the Committee on Military Affairs.

HOUSE.—The House adopted a concurrent resolution for an investigation of the management of the Insane Asylum, and appointed a committee headed by Representative Berryman, of Shelby. Nineteen new bills were introduced, including another prohibitory bill, a bill providing that in civil cases a verdict of two-thirds of the jury shall be sufficient, an act compelling railways to plank-fence their tracks, and a bill permitting counties to contribute to the support of orphan asylums unconnected with religious organizations. The friends of Matthew M. Campbell, of Bloomington, have presented a singular claim. In his earlier days Prof. Campbell was an enthusiastic supporter of the state University, his zeal leading him to serve as a teacher from 1830 to 1845, part of the time filling two chairs, and all of the time resolutely refusing compensation from the State. He was a co-worker with Andrew Wylie. Lately he became financially embarrassed, and because of his present condition and advanced age the Legislature is asked to pay him the amount he covered back into the treasury during the fifteen years' services as teacher, amounting in the aggregate to $6,662. Chandler's Railroad bill, introduced to-day, provides that every line operating in this State shall be fenced with plank within sixty days after the passage of the act, and after this time, unless the road is fenced in, no agent or conductor is allowed to collect fare for travel in any coach or car thereon.

TUESDAY, JAN. 18.—SENATE.—A greater part of the time was devoted to the introduction of bills, prominent among which were those of Senator Wood, providing for a reorganization of the benevolent institutions, Senator Langdon's providing for a $10,000 monument to be placed on the Tippecanoe battle ground, and Senator Grubb's concerning judgments against foreign insurance companies. Senator Spann's resolution regarding a memorial to the Indiana soldiers to be placed in the new State House was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs without discussion. Over 100 petitions on the subject of temperance were presented from all parts of the State and sent to the Temperance Committee without reading.

HOUSE.—In the House, bills were introduced: To limit the rate of travel of railroad trains to twenty-five miles an hour, to prevent fraud at elections, and making railroads responsible for damage resulting from the accumulation of rubbish along the line of their tracks. Seventy petitions, bearing fifteen thousand signatures, were presented, praying for the passage of a constitutional amendment prohibiting the sale of liquor. Two hours were occupied in a debate upon Mr. Carter's bill for the submission to the Supreme Court of the question whether the Legislature has the power to order another vote on the constitutional amendments, and the bill, which was on its third reading, passed—yeas 52, nays 42.

In accordance with Congressional enactment both branches of the Legislature balloted for United States Senator, and there being no election a joint session will be held at noon to-morrow. The driest of routine work marked the proceedings in the Senate. Gen. Ben Harrison, the choice of the Republicans, was placed in nomination by Senator Grubbs, of Morgan, seconded by Senator Chapman. Senator Bell, of Allen and Whitley, presented ex-Gov. Gray as the Democratic nominee, and Senator Poindexter, of Clark, nominated Congressman De La Matyr as the Greenback choice. The ballot resulted: Gray, 23; Harrison, 22; and De La Matyr, 2. In the House, Judge Lindsay, of Howard, nominated Harrison, and Representatives Morgan, of Vigo, and Meredith, of Wayne, seconded the nomination with set speeches. Ex-Speaker Cauthorne, of Knox, presented ex-Gov. Gray, and Mr. Wheeler, of Pulaski, placed in nomination Congressman De La Matyr, and Mr. Compton, of Vermillion, seconded the nomination. The calling of the roll showed: Harrison, 57; Gray, 49; and De La Matyr, 1.

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 19.—SENATE.—Comstock's bill removing the disabilities of Covertine was made the special order for to-morrow, and Senator Brown's bill providing for a constitutional convention was laid over until next Tuesday afternoon. A bill passed amending the charter of the city of Evansville, and in the afternoon resolutions were adopted in memoriam of the late Senator B. L. Davenport, of Elkhart. Pending the adoption, tributes were paid by Senators White, Shaffer, Heffron and Comstock.

HOUSE.—The House appointed a special committee on woman suffrage, headed by Representative Furnas, of Marion. Among the flood of new bills was one appropriating $6,000 to relieve the State Board of Agriculture of mortgage indebtedness; another for the more effectual protection and education of pauper children, and a third regulating railway charges for freight transportation. This bill was introduced by Fuller, of Greene, and provided a maximum rate of freight on wheat, corn, flour, lumber and agricultural implements as follows: Each 100 pounds not exceeding twenty-five miles distance, 7 cents; under seventy-five miles, 8 cents; under 100 miles, 10 cents. All such distances to be within the State, and consignors to deliver freight on board cars for transportation. Railroads are barred from collecting additional sums for switching, but the freight rates are not to apply to less quantities than car-loads, and a violation forfeits all claims for freight charges. Adjournment followed after the passage of a joint resolution memorializing Congress in favor of the Wabash and Erie canal.

The Legislature met in joint session at noon and went through the formality of electing Gen. Ben Harrison United States Senator. The Lieutenant Governor presided. Gen. Harrison was placed in nomination by Senator Grubbs of Morgan, seconded by Chapman of Marion, and Spann of Rush. Senator Bell of Allen, nominated ex-Gov. Isaac P. Gray, and ex-Speaker Cathorne, of Knox, seconded the presentation of his name. Then Hon. Gilbert De La Matyr was nominated by the Greenbackers. The ballot was announced: Harrison, 81; Gray, 62, and De La Matyr 2, after which the Lieutenant Governor formally declared Gen. Harrison the Senator-elect from Indiana for six years, beginning March 4, 1881. Gen. Harrison was introduced and made a short address of thanks. The President announced the election of State Librarian as also a part of the special order, and a ballot was ordered. The Republicans presented Mrs. Emma Amos Winsor, of Putnam, and the Democracy Mrs. Maggie F. Peelle, the present incumbent. Mrs. Winsor was chosen by a vote of 81 to 71. Adjournment followed. Mrs. Winsor will not qualify until April. In the meanwhile the Legislature will pass an enabling act, permitting a married woman to give bonds. As the law now stands, she is disqualified by this restriction.

The Fenians.

These people, if we believe the early historians so far as to allow them an historical existence, were a body of Irish militia, forming a kind of standing army, which was employed to defend the coasts of Ireland from the invasion of foreign foes. They were billeted upon the inhabitants during winter, and obliged to maintain themselves by hunting and fishing during summer. Each of the four provinces had its own band of these warriors or champions, but Leinster was the most fortunate province in incorporating distinguished names in the list of its Fenians. Fingal himself was one of the illustrious band, which included also the ever-memorable Ossian. When St. Patrick came to Ireland, Ossian narrated to the Apostle of Ireland the exploits of the valiant Fenians. The record of their conversation, which is still extant, is called the Dialogue of the Sages; but it seems that the saint and the bard, sage as they both were, were sometimes on the point of quarreling. Our readers may remember the version of an ancient Ossianic poem which, according to Sir Walter Scott, Hector McIntyre gave to his uncle, the antiquary. St. Patrick there complains that his devotional meditations and psalms are disturbed by the old women's tales of Ossian; and Ossian, annoyed at the implied comparison of psalms to the tales of the bare-armed Fenian, declares in no measured terms that he should think it no great harm to wring the saint's bald head from his shoulders.

A STATISTICIAN, who claims to have made accurate calculation, declares that the pine forests of Michigan will be exhausted in thirteen years, and those of Wisconsin and Minnesota in thirty or forty years. Twenty years ago this region had scarcely been touched by the ax.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

STRAIN meat fryings through a thin cloth; keep in a cool place, and you have a cheap shortening for "every-day" pastry.

KEEP a blank book with a thick cover in the kitchen, and copy any bits of information that may likely be of use at some time. Be sure and write a large, clear hand.

DIPPER-GOURDS make excellent things to keep salt in for kitchen use. Cut a hole in the side large enough to admit the hand and to remove the seed; also cut a small hole in the handle to hang up by.

HOUSEKEEPERS are often greatly troubled and perplexed by mildew from damp closets and from rust. By putting an earthen bowl or deep plate full of quick-lime into the closet, the lime will absorb the dampness and also sweeten and disinfect the place. Rats, mice and many bugs that are apt to congregate in damp places have a dislike to lime. As often as the lime becomes slacked throw it on the compost heap if in the country, or into the ash-barrel if in the city.

AN exchange gives the following receipt to remove wrinkles: To one fluid ounce of tincture of gum benzoin add seven fluid ounces distilled rosewater and one-half ounce glycerine. Bathe face, neck and hands with it at night, letting it dry on. Wash off in the morning with a very little pure white castile soap and soft water. If the water is hard, add a little dissolved borax. This is a famous cosmetic, and has been sold under various names. It is an excellent remedy for tan, sunburn and freckles also. The latter, it is said, may be removed by using the following decoction: Put a quantity of elder flowers into a jug, pour boiling water on them, let the mixture stand twenty-four hours, and strain through muslin. Wash the face every morning with the decoction. It is good also for sunburn and to beautify the skin.

THE following is an excellent method of preparing boots to stand the snow and water: Put half a pound of resin and a pound of tallow in an earthen pot, and melt and mix them well together over a slow fire. Warm the boots well for some time beforehand, so that they will be thoroughly dry, and, while as warm as may be found convenient for handling, apply the hot mixture with a brush until neither the sole nor the leather will absorb any more. By using care the leather may be made very hot without burning it, and it should be warmed through that the preparation may fill all the pores. The resin gives the mixture an antiseptic quality, preserves the leather, and prevents the tallow from rotting the stitching. For a polish, dissolve an ounce of wax and a teaspoonful of lampblack in a little turpentine. A day or two after the boots have been treated to the tallow and resin apply the polish, but not before the fire. This gives the exterior a coat of wax that will shine like a mirror.

An Incident of Jealousy.

A great many people make themselves unhappy by needless suspicion and jealousy. They cannot reason themselves out of it, for as Shakespeare says:

> Jealous souls will not be answered so,
> They are not jealous for a cause,
> But jealous for they're jealous.

It is therefore more easy to ridicule jealousy than to argue with it. An old German who lived in Baden, and was afflicted with this malady, was suddenly called to Frankfort. While there the pangs of the green-eyed monster seized him and he rushed to a clairvoyant.

This prohetess closed her eyes and said slowly,

"I see a young and beautiful woman looking out of the window."

"That's my wife," said the poor man to himself; "I wonder what in the world she is looking out of the window for?"

"She is evidently very anxious to see some one," continued the sleeper.

The husband began to feel like a pin cushion full of pins.

"Ah, there he is, she sees him now, and how her face lights up with joy.

"Oh, heavens!" cried the excited husband, "how I wish I was there," and his eyes flashed in a very dangerous way.

"Now," said the clairvoyant slowly, "she rushes down to the front door to meet him."

Here great drops of perspiration began to gather on the man's brow. He had been looking for positive proof for a long time, and he had it to his heart's content.

"And now," said the seer, "she takes his head between her hands, calls him 'her precious' and 'her darling,' and kisses him again and again."

This was really too much. The poor man trembled in every limb.

"And he," continued the seer, jumps about the room as though he were mad with delight, and barks, and wags his tail."

"Barks and wags his tail?" cried the frantic husband, "for heaven's sake what are you talking about?"

"Oh," said the seer, "I think I forgot to tell you that it is a dog that I have been looking at all this time."—N. Y. Herald.

THE paper-makers are importuned by big printing-houses, and other concerns using a good deal of paper, to put up twenty-five sheets to a quire, or in some way make a ream consist of 500 sheets instead of 480. The printers and book and magazine publishers make their contracts by the thousand, and find it necessary to carry too many broken reams. Much of the book paper is now sold in reams of 500 sheets.

DR. BUTTS' DISPENSARY

Established 1847 at 12 N. 8th Street, ST. LOUIS, MO.

THE Physicians in charge of this old and well known institution are regular graduates in medicine and surgery. Years of Experience in the treatment of Chronic Diseases have made their skill and ability so much superior to that of the ordinary practitioner, that they have acquired a national reputation through their treatment of complicated cases.

INDISCRETION or EXPOSURE [illegible] Syphilis, Gonorrhea, Gleet, Stricture, Orchitis, all Urinary Troubles and Syphilitic or Mercurial affections of the throat, skin or bones, treated with success, on scientific principles, without using Mercury or other Poisonous Medicines.

YOUNG MEN and those of middle age who are suffering from the effects of Spermatorrhea or Seminal Weakness, the result of self-abuse in youth or excess in matured years, are permanently cured. This disease produces some of the following effects—emissions, blotches, dizziness, nervousness, dimness of sight, cough, indigestion, constipation, despondency, confusion of ideas, aversion to society, defective memory, sexual exhaustion, impotency or loss of manly vigor, which unfits the victim for business or marriage.

PATIENTS TREATED by Mail and Express, but where possible, personal consultation is preferred, which is FREE and invited. List of questions to be answered by patients desiring treatment mailed free to any address on application.

(Persons suffering from Rupture should send their address, and learn something to their advantage. It is not a truss.) Communications strictly confidential, and should be addressed DR. BUTTS, 12 North 8th St., St. Louis, Mo.

CENTAUR LINIMENT

always Cures and never Disappoints. The world's great Pain-Reliever for Man and Beast. Cheap, quick and reliable.

PITCHER'S CASTORIA is not Narcotic. Children grow fat upon, Mothers like, and Physicians recommend CASTORIA. It regulates the Bowels, cures Wind Colic, allays Feverishness, and destroys Worms.

IN USE SINCE 1858

MISHLER'S HERB BITTERS

A Compound Tincture of the most valuable remedies known to the medical profession, prepared upon strictly pharmaceutical principles.

An experience of twenty-five years proves it to be the greatest Antidote to Malaria and all other Ague Influences known to the world.

The only absolute cure for all Affections of the Kidneys, In Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia, all Disorders of the Bowels, and all Affections of the Throat and Lungs, it is equally efficacious, while as a remedy for complaints peculiar to the female sex it has no equal.

NOT A BEVERAGE

But an old reliable Household Remedy, thoroughly adapted to assist nature.

It supplies tone to the stomach, reinvigorates the digestive organs, stimulates the secretions, and promoting a regular action of the bowels, enables every organ of the body to perform its allotted work regularly and without interruption.

Its highest commendations come from those who have used it longest and known it best.

Nowhere so popular as in Lancaster, Pa., where it has been in use for more than a quarter of a century.

Highly commended as a General Tonic and Appetizer. Sold by Druggists everywhere.

THE MESSENGER OF HEALTH

A large sized paper descriptive of disease, its origin and cure, will be mailed free to any address on application to

THE MISHLER HERB BITTERS CO.
Lancaster, Pa.

☞ We strongly recommend to mothers Prof. Parker's Pleasant Worm Syrup. It never fails, is easy to take, and no after-physic is required. Price, 25 cents.

THE SYMPTOMS

of Liver Complaint are a bitter or bad taste in the mouth; Pain in the Back, Sides or Joints, often mistaken for Rheumatism; Sour Stomach, Loss of Appetite, Bowels alternately costive and lax; Headache, Loss of Memory, with a painful sensation of having failed to do something which ought to have been done; Debility, Low Spirits, a thick yellow appearance of the Skin and Eyes, a dry Cough often mistaken for Consumption.

Sometimes many of these symptoms attend the disease, at others very few; but the LIVER, the largest organ in the body, is generally the seat of the disease, and, if not regulated in time, great suffering, wretchedness and DEATH will ensue.

AS AN UNFAILING SPECIFIC

For DYSPEPSIA, CONSTIPATION, Jaundice, Bilious Attacks, SICK HEADACHE, Colic, Depression of Spirits, SOUR STOMACH, Heart Burn, etc., etc.,

Take Simmons' Liver Regulator.

This justly-celebrated medicine Regulates the Liver, promotes digestion and fortifies the system against malaria.

CAUTION.

See that you get the Genuine, in clean, white wrapper, with large red "Z." Prepared only by

J. H. ZEILIN & CO.

Sold by All Druggists.

AGENTS WANTED for the Best and Fastest Selling Pictorial Books and Bibles. Prices reduced 33 per ct. National Publish'g Co., St. Louis, Mo.

PILES fully described with scientific mode of cure. Prof. Harris' illustrated pamphlet sent free on application. HARRIS REMEDY CO., Manf'g Chemists, 8th & Market Sts., St. Louis, Mo.

The Book for the Million.

A large, new and complete Guide to Wedlock, containing, with many others, the following chapters: A Competent Womanhood, Selection of Wife, Temperaments, compatible and incompatible, Sterility in Women, cause and treatment, Advice to Bridegroom, Advice to Husbands, Advice to Wives, [illegible]

"THE PRIVATE MEDICAL ADVISER" on Syphilis, Gonorrhea, Gleet, Stricture, Varicocele, &c., also on Spermatorrhea, Sexual Debility, and Impotency, from Self-Abuse and Excesses, [illegible]

"Medical Advice," Lecture on Manhood & Womanhood, 10c.

FOR ONE DOLLAR we send all three of the above described books, nicely bound in one volume, containing [illegible] pages, and over [illegible] illustrations. [illegible]

DR. BUTTS' DISPENSARY Established in 1847, [illegible]

DR. BUTTS, 12 North 8th St., St. Louis, Mo.

Seminal Pastille

An entirely New and positively effective Remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Seminal Emissions and Impotency [illegible]

HARRIS REMEDY CO. M'F'G CHEMISTS, Market and 8th Streets, ST. LOUIS, MO.

Unsolicited testimony to the Efficacy of Prof. Harris' Seminal Pastilles, taken from Letters received from Patients.

Indiana, April 11th, 1879.—The remedy is working perfectly. Had epilepsy from weakness, for eight years past.

Chicago, Aug. 14, 1879.—I am thoroughly cured and feel tip top. The young man in the country is getting better.

Missouri, Sept. 10, 1879.—I received so much benefit from the use of your remedies that I want to try them in another case. This is of long standing, and will need something very strong.

Mich., Jan. 23, 1879.—I have used up your package of medicine; send me another as soon as possible. That package stopped all apparent trouble, but there is a weakness yet, and I wish you would prescribe this last for the cure of that.

Iowa, Oct. 16th, 1879.—I am almost surprised at your Pastilles. They have worked like a charm on me. I am just twice as much of a man as I was before taking. I was on the verge of the grave, I thought, and there was no pleasure for me, but now I am in good hopes of a cure.

West Virginia, Aug. 29, 1879.—I received your medicine, and I believe it has cured me, for which I am very thankful. Enclosed please find $5, for which please send me another box (No. 2) for a friend. You have done a great thing for me. I will send you all the orders I can.

From a Physician and Surgeon.

Missouri, June 28th, 1879.—Please forward one of your packages of the Pastilles. The patient on whom I have used most of one box, is, in addition to a valuable box, in fast recovering, and I think another will see him all right.

From a Druggist.

Maryland, Sept. 8, 1879.—Last January we got from you a box of your remedy, for one of our customers, and it has made a perfect cure of him. We have another customer [illegible]

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, IND., JANUARY 27, 1881.

A LARGE boarding and rooming hall, used in connection with the Normal school at Valparaiso, and known as Flint's hall, was burned January 25. About ninety students were rooming in the building, but these lost only a portion of their furniture and other property. The fire is supposed to have originated in one of the flues in the third story. Though three fire companies were present, the scarcity of water prevented their doing effective work. The building was fully insured.

BEN. HARRISON, the newly-elected United States senator for Indiana, is said to claim descent from that Gen. Tom. Harrison, who was Oliver Cromwell's right-hand man during those troubles in England in which Charles I lost his life. In fact, T. H. was one of the judges who passed sentence on the unhappy king. General Harrison also claims Benjamin Harrison, signer of the declaration of independence, President W. H. Harrison, and several lesser lights as his immediate ancestors. Many a man who has not descended so far has fared worse.

RAILROAD accidents are becoming alarmingly common. From every quarter come accounts of disasters of greater or less fatality. We cannot pick up an exchange from any part of the country but these deplorable items occupy a prominent place. Whether it is the result of the long-continued cold weather, or of neglect on the part of employes, or mismanagement on the part of officers, no one seems to know. But it does seem as if these promiscuous slaughters might be made less frequent, if proper care was used by those in charge of trains. The latest that has come to our notice is the death of Wm. Blaine, firemen on the B. & O. It seems that freight No. 17 went east last Sunday morning with seven sections. Blaine was firing on the seventh section, and as the train neared Tiffin, Ohio, No. 6 stopped without giving notice to No. 7, which ran into it. The engineer on the seventh section jumped off without warning the fireman, Blaine, who was instantly killed, having his neck dislocated. His remains were brought to Garrett on Tuesday and taken to his former home near Columbia City for interment.

THE STATE LEGISLATURE.

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 20.

A bill was introduced in the house to appropriate the sum of $60,000 for the purpose of liquidating the indebtedness of the Indiana state board of agriculture, providing that the state shall hold the ground for the use of the board of agriculture, until such time as they may otherwise arrange, and require the board of agriculture to make and keep up all needed improvements.

A joint session of both houses was held in the hall of representatives for the purpose of electing a United States senator for the term of six years from March 4, 1881. Fifty senators and ninety-seven members of the house were present. The vote stood, Harrison, senators, 21, representatives, 57; total 81. Gray, senators, 24, representatives, 38; total 62. De La Matyr, one senator and one representative.

Mrs. Emma A. Winsor was elected state librarian. Joint session adjourned.

A resolution was passed in the house in regard to asking the general government to reconstruct the Wabash and Erie canal.

THURSDAY 20TH.

In the house, Mr. Kenner's bill for the submission of the constitutional amendments was passed. The bill provides that they shall be re-submitted to the electors of the state at a special election, some time during the year 1881. It also provides that if a majority of the votes cast at such election shall be in favor of said amendment, the governor shall declare them adopted.

The votes cast at such election shall be considered the number of electors in the state.

Mr. Buskirk's bill fixing the legal rate of interest at 6 per cent., was discussed. Mr. Moody, of DeKalb, who spoke at some length in support of the measure, argued that there are thousands of dollars in the state owned by farmers who would be willing to loan money at 6 per cent. Mr. Moody was of the opinion that there was not a farmer in the whole northern part of the state who could possibly realize 3 per cent. out of the money invested in his farm, and by the withdrawal of eastern capital, people will pay as they go, and not incumber themselves by mortgaging their property.

FRIDAY 21ST.

The following bills were introduced:

By Mr. Davis [H. R. 151]: To make the township trustee of each township, superintendent of roads and highways in his township, etc. It shall be the trustee's duty to take charge of highways and bridges, and keep them in good repair; to execute the orders of the county commissioners; to build the roads in his township, and assess every able-bodied man over the age of twenty-one and under fifty years of age a sum not to exceed two dollars.

By Mr. Cotton [H. R. 154]: To amend section 4 of the act to regulate the indebtedness of counties having a voting population of over 20,000, as shown by the votes cast for governor at the last election, authorizing the funding of the indebtedness of such counties; limiting the amount of taxes that may be levied by the county commissioners, etc. [The amount of taxes levied is not allowed to exceed 3 per cent.

SATURDAY 22ND.

But little reported done, except some work of a general character. A short speech was delivered by Senator Vorhees, who happened to come into the house.

MONDAY 24TH.

The senate discussed the drainage laws, and listened to the reading of a letter by Prof. J. L. Campbell in regard to draining the Kankakee marshes. The writer believed the present laws insufficient to meet the wants of that portion of the state in which these swamps were located.

In the house Mr. Moody presented a resolution adopted by a soldiers' association in Auburn, Indiana, indorsing and concurring in the proposition to place some memorial of the war and Indiana's war governor in the corner-stone of the state house. It was referred to the new state-house committee.

DECISIVE BATTLES OF THE WORLD

Creasy's extremely interesting volume narrating the history of the fifteen decisive battles of the world, those few battles of which a contrary event would have essentially varied the drama of the world in all its subsequent scenes, is highly esteemed by all readers of history. It has a long time been on Harper's list as one of their standard books, at a price of $1.50. Now it is issued in a very handsome cloth-bound volume, by the American Book Exchange, New York, at the nominal price of 35 cents. It forms one of their Acme Library of History, which includes McCaulay's England, $1.25 (reduced from $7.50), Gibbon's Rome, $2.00 (reduced from $9.00), Rollin's Ancient History, $1.75; Froissart's Chronicles, $1.50, and to which list will soon be added, at equally low prices, Grote's Greece, Green's (larger) England, Mommsen's Rome, Masson's Guizot's France, Carlyle's French Revolution, Schillers' Thirty Years' War, and others. Catalogues of the standard low-priced books of the literary revolution will be sent on application to the American Book Exchange, Tribune Building, New York

The Bane of our Common Schools.

EDITORS COURIER:—For the past eight years, until this winter, I have been a teacher in DeKalb county, and during that time have observed the schools progressing toward a higher state of perfection. Most of the old school houses with their antiquated furniture have been replaced by new and commodious buildings, supplied with the latest improved furniture and apparatus. The teachers, too, have generally made a special preparation for their work, both in acquiring a better knowledge of the different branches to be taught, and in familiarizing themselves with such methods as will make the instruction more effective. Yet there are many obstacles to be overcome, and ample room for improvement.

In my opinion, the "starvation wages" of teachers are bane of our common schools. It is this that is driving our competent teachers from the ranks into some other field of labor, more profitable and more honorable. I do not use the term honorable because I consider the arduous and responsible employment of cultivating the minds of our youths disgraceful or degrading, but the mere pittance, called salary, paid to teachers, does dishonor the profession.

For a young man to prepare himself for the profession of teaching, he is at as much expense, in time and money, as the lawyer, the physician or any other professional man. Now, comparing their income, we can readily ascertain the great cause of the many failures in our common schools.

No one would wish to secure the services of a lawyer who is not professionally prepared, nor those of a physician, having but a superficial knowledge of medicine, and using the profession only as a stepping-stone to something else, then how much more concerned should we be in the employment of a person upon whose professional ability, depend the future usefulness and prosperity of our children.

As an objection to professional teaching, it is asserted, and very truthfully, too, that many teachers do their best work the first term, and then retrograde instead of becoming more and more proficient. There is a cause for this. Why does not the minister of the gospel preach his best sermon the first year of his ministerial labors and then retrograde? Why does not the professional mechanic accomplish his greatest work at the onset of life? or, why does the farmer, profiting by his many mistakes, become better prepared each year to perform his arduous labor? The answer is simply this: They intend it as their vocation through life; their whole mind, their whole soul is in the work, and consequently it is no drugery. But teaching, used merely as a kind of pecuniary means to assist in attaining something greater, does become a drudgery of the worst kind.

Is there any economy, then, in small salaries? Most assuredly there is not; for as long as there is not sufficient wages paid to justify teachers entering upon the work with a full determination to make it their life-long employment, our schools will not be what they can and should be.

How is this important matter to be adjusted properly, though? Will it be, as long as the teachers discuss it only in their own minds, never mustering up enough courage to express publicly their sentiments? Surely not. It can be accomplished by a united effort on the part of the teachers, but never will it be in any other way.

I believe a very effective way of bringing about a concert of action, would be the organization of a County Teachers' association. A strong association would prove a benefit, too, in a great many other ways; it would afford an opportunity for discussing all important subjects concerning the schools, and if it should succeed in securing the attendance of the school officers at its meetings, it would create a more intimate personal and educational relation between them and the teachers, and better enlighten them on the wants of the schools.

Discuss this, then, teachers, at your township institutes, and, if it meets your favor, enter into the organization at once.

C. M. M.

WATERLOO

—Dr. Winslow is still quite sick.

—Will Leas has a fine new sleigh.

—The masons are having a revival.

—S. J. Lock and several of his children are on the sick list.

—Postmaster Kimsey looks comfortable in his new quarters.

—The protracted meeting at the Evangelical church is still in progress.

—J. W. Patterson says that $20 bet is all right now, the stake-holder has "shelled out."

—Our young friend D. L. Leas, is going to run his milk trade on business principles. He is building up and extensive trade.

—Father Forsythe is still poorly. We made a mistake in his relationship last week. He is grandfather to Mrs. Kimsey, not her father, as we had it.

—J. D. McAnally has another new and useful invention to be used in all kinds of horse clothing. It is a tug fastener, or in fact fasten anything about a harness.

—After lodge meeting Tuesday evening the masonic fraternity repaired to J. A. Denisons and partook of an excellent supper prepared for them by "Jule" and his estimable wife.

Some of our inhabitants are over at Syracuse this week attending court in a suit in which the ownership of a span of horses is involved. There has been considerable figuring done in that case.

—A load of young people from Auburn, as well as some from this place, gave a very pleasant surprise party at H. Leib's Monday evening. Our reports say all enjoyed the visit, but does not say whether the genial Hi. told his famous stove story or not.

—Duncan Bros. have been compelled to haul water from the creek lately to run their mill. Their well has become so "farrow" that they either had to shut down, dig, or haul water, and they are doing the latter. A good many other wells in town are in like condition. Sam Givens would call that kind of a well a "stripper."

—John M. Kimsey was commissioned postmaster, last week, for the next four years by President Hayes and confirmed by the Senate. He's got a great big commission with nearly a yard of red tape attached. Well, if the Republicans never do anything worse than keep John in the post office the country will be safe.

—We neglected to mention in last issue that O P. Smith gave the crank of the legal mill a turn last week. It was in the case of the State vs. Mrs. Hannah Hosler, of Corunna, for violating the liquor law. It was sufficiently shown to the court that Hannah sold liquor on the 1st day of January, 1881, (which day the law says is a legal holiday and such transactions are forbidden). The squire put her under bonds of $100 to appear and give an account of her stewardship at the next term of the DeKalb circuit court.

Annual Meeting of the Stockholders of the Fort Wayne & Jackson Railroad Company.

The annual meeting of the stock holders of the Fort Wayne & Jackson railroad company for the election of directors for the ensuing year, and the transaction of such other business as may be brought before it, will be held on Saturday, January 29, 1881, at 10 o'clock a. m., at the general office of the company in Jackson, Michigan. By order of the board of directors.

R. G. ROLSTON, Sec'y.

New York, Dec. 28, 1880. 53-4t.

School Reports.

Report of school number 5, Union township, for the month ending Jan. 7, 1881: Number of pupils enrolled, 34; average daily attendance, 26; names of pupils neither absent nor tardy: Ida Baughman, Mary Kreuger, Hannah Kreuger, Jud Baughman and Willis Boughman.

Laura R. Keeran.

PRIMARY DEPARTMENT, SPENCERVILLE.

Report of the primary department of the Spencerville schools for the month ending Jan. 21, 1881: Number of pupils enrolled, 47; belonging, 45; promoted, 2; average daily attendance, 37; average absence, 8. Names of pupils neither absent nor tardy during the month: Merrit Butler, Frank Butler, Merrit Barney, Ellsworth Stofer, Chas. Scott, Eddie Smith, John Koontz and Lawrence Hush. Time lost by tardiness, 5 hours and 20 minutes.

JOSIE RUSH, Teacher.

NO. 5, WILMINGTON.

Below are the names of pupils present each day of the month ending Jan. 24, 1881: Presly Brown, Joseph Brown, John Morr, Belle Smurr, John Moore, Ollie John, George Harwood, Callie Wallace, Ellsworth Eakright, Ulysses Gisinger, George Moore, Clara Pifer, Hiram Wallace, Sarah Wallace, Clyde Shaffer, John Smurr, Frank VanHorn, George Morr, Caroline Gisinger, May Brown, Sarah Morr, Joseph Brown, M. Bishop, Samuel Morr, Jos. Livergood, Arthur Bishop and George VanHorn. Number enrolled, 72; average, 50; per cent., 82. Parents and those interested in schools are cordially invited to visit the school.

J. J. EAKRIGHT, Teacher.

AUBURN SCHOOLS.

Report of the public schools, of Auburn, Ind., for the month ending Jan. 21, 1881:

1ST AND 2D PRIMARY DEPARTMENTS.

No. pupils enrolled	60
No. belonging	60
Average attendance	52
Per cent. of attendance	86
No. neither absent nor tardy	20

MISS L. A. STONER, Teacer.

1ST AND 1D PRIMARY DEPARTMENTS.

No. pupils enrolled	76
No. belonging	75
No. withdrawn	1
Average attendance	94
Per cent. of attendance	85
No. absent unexcused	6
No. half days absent unexcused	11
No. cases corporal punishment	2
No. neither absent nor tardy	10

MISS P. CODER, Teacher.

1ST INTERMEDIATE.

No. pupils enrolled	69
No. belonging	68
No. withdrawn	1
Average daily attendance	61
Per cent of attendance	88
No. neither absent nor tardy	20

MISS L. A. COATS, Teacher,

2D INTERMEDIATE.

No. pupils enrolled	57
No. belonging	52
No. withdrawn	5
Average daily attendance	50
Per cent. of attendance	96
No. absent unexcused	2
No. half days absence unexcused	11
No. neither absent nor tardy	13

MISS L. CLARK, Teacher.

GRAMMAR DEPARTMENT.

No. pupils enrolled	57
No. belonging	57
Average daily attendance	53
Per cent. of attendance	95
No. half days absent unexcused	4
No. pupils absent unexcused	1
No. neither absent nor tardy	24

T. J. SAXTON, Teacher.

HIGH SCHOOL DEPARTMENT.

No. pupils enrolled	58
No. belonging	57
No. withdrawn	1
Average daily attendance	49
Per cent. of attendance	85
No. absent unexcused	5
No. half days absent unexcused	12
No. neither absent nor tardy	12

W. P. MYERS, Teacher.

M. W. HARRISON, Assistant.

CONSOLIDATED REPORT.

Whole number enrolled	375
No. belonging	367
No. withdrawn	8
Average attendance	329
Per cent. of attendance	92
No. half days absent unexcused	14
No. pupils absent unexcused	30
No. cases corporal punishment	2
No. neither absent nor tardy	99

W. P. MYERS, Principal.

NUMBER 2, KEYSER TOWNSHIP.

Names of scholars neither absent nor tardy during the month ending Jan. 11, 1881: Perry Long, Chas. Myers, Jackson Long, David Barnes, Lydia Long, Ida Long, Emma Bolender, Sarah Myers, Cora Myers, Nettie Yarde, Frank Bolender. Number of scholars present during the month, 35; average attendance, 29 1-2. I find the school industrious and ready to learn, and feel thankful to the students for the kindness and respect shown me, and also to the parents for their active co-operation in making our school successful. All are invited to attend.

M. J. WELLER, Teacher.

Braun's Meat Market.

W. L. Baun, our popular butcher, has opened a new Meat Market opposite Hoff's grocery store, where he will keep at all times the very best

Beef,
Pork,
Bologna,
Stuffed Puddings,
Etc.

He will always be found pleasant to customers

He has a good Refrigerator, and his customers can always feel sure of getting cool, fresh meats. Any one, making previous arrangements can get their meat on Sunday by calling for it from 6 to 8 o'clock a. m.

Farmers having stock for sale should give me a call. 4 tf

Publishers' Commercial Union.

Clarance W. Taylor, of Janesville, Wisconsin, has hit upon a good plan to protect newspaper publishers from advertising frauds, and no publisher can afford to remain outside of the Publishers' Commercial Union, of which Mr. Taylor is general manager. It seems now, a little strange that some one did not hit on this plan sooner.

Important Notice.

Notice is hereby given that our stock of groceries, provisions, queensware, glassware, etc., etc., etc., is complete, and that we will not be undersold by any grocery house in DeKalb county. We invite everybody in need of anything in our line, to call and see us. We will continue to pay the highest market price for produce.

Respectfully,
BRAND & DUNCAN,
9-8t Waterloo, Ind.

For Sale or Rent.

Desiring to change my business, I wish to either sell or rent my saloon and stock. It is A No. 1 saloon—the best in Butler, being supplied with an ice-house full of ice. For further particulars, call on or address

ISAAC H[illegible],
4 tf Butler, Ind.

Tickets! Tickets! Tickets!

First-class, emigrant and round-trip railroad tickets to all points east or west can be bought at low rates by calling upon the undersigned at Auburn Junction, or addressing

J. J. MARTIN, Ag't, B. & O. R. R.
tf Auburn Ind.

HARDWARE!

HERE WE ARE AGAIN

With a mammoth stock of

BUILDING HARDWARE!

SUCH AS

Doors, Sash, Glass,
Paints, Oils, Locks,
Hinges, etc., etc.

And now is the time to buy while they are low

Those who contemplate

BUILDING THIS SEASON

will find it to their advantage to

BUY EARLY,

as there will be an

ADVANCE

in the near future.

We also carry a large stock of

Wagon & Carriage Woodwork,

Wheels, Shafts, Poles,

Bent and Sawed Rims,

Iron, Steel and Heavy Hardware

IRON & WOOD PUMPS

a specialty. Call when you want pumps and get a bargain, at

W. H. Kiblinger & Co's.,

New Brick Room, Auburn, Ind,

The Auburn Courier

LOCAL MENTION.

—Clyde Moore is in the City.

—Dave Hampton is home again.

—Obe Cool was at Corunna Monday.

—Tom. Cool, jr. has returned from Toledo.

—Etiquette teaches that a lady should wink first.

—Tom. Cool, that noisy Tom., has been sick.

—Johnny Knoder spent Tuesday at Fort Wayne.

—Johnny Jenks, of Waterloo, was in town Tuesday.

—Mitch. Houston is to have a new butcher this week.

—Chris. Baker and Joe Rutenberger have traded horses.

—Hon. L. D. Britton, of Corunna, was in town Saturday.

—Wes. Miller, southeast of town, has a child dangerously ill.

—Tom Cuppy went to Columbia City yesterday. Business trip.

—There was a dance at the Stamets house, Junction, Friday evening.

—Sleighing parties are too numerous for us to make a note of each one.

—Preaching next Sunday morning and evening at the Baptist church.

—Immense stock of groceries going cheap at Schaab, Beugnot & Co's.

—Joe. Abright and family have had their visit out and returned home.

—Go and see the immense stock of dry goods at Schaab, Beugnot & Co's.

—Go and see the immense stock of dry Goods at Schaab, Beugnot & Co's.

—Mr. James, McKay, of Bear Lake, Michigan, is visiting relatives in this city.

—Wash. Link, Junction, has been enrolled on the sick list for a few days.

—A. J. Ralston and wife have returned from a two weeks' visit in Ohio.

—S. Tarney and Wm. Dugan have formed a partnership in the lumber trade.

—Piles of overcoats of the latest styles and lowest prices, at Schaab, Beughot & Co's.

—Another alarm of fire yesterday. It was the chimney on Eli Coders residence.

—Hank Mader and Howard Griswold whiled away a few hours at Garrett Monday.

—Recorder Boland is again at his post of duty after an illness of several weeks.

—Buck Allen & Son have purchased some new cutters. They send out some nobby rigs.

—Ed. Eldridge is a wholesouled fellow. He gives his customers a free lunch daily.

—J. J. Van Auken has been out this week drilling Mr. Foltz in the surveying business.

—H. Maxwell, living south of town has been looking for a lost horse for several days.

—Johnny Collier, of livery fame, is the father of a bouncing boy. It was not weighed.

—The entire republican population of the town are assistant locals on the Republican.

—Mr. Hossler, a saloon keeper at Corunna, has some trouble before DeKalb county's bar.

—Mrs. B. Lewis led the Presbyterian choir sabbath evening in the absence of Miss Sadie Hare.

—Mrs. Chris. Baker and Mrs. Chas. Picker were visiting at Garrett the forepart of the week.

—The law does not allow the playing of cards in saloons, but the practice is kept up in this place.

—Schaab, Beugnot & Co. are still booming in the ready-made clothing business. Give them a call.

—Schaab, Beugnot & Co., ask the public to call and examine their new stock of queensware, glassware, &c.

—Schaab, Beugnot, & Co., ask the public to call and examine their fine stock of queensware, glassware, etc.

—A party of juveniles from Waterloo, spent a pleasant afternoon Saturday at the residence of Sheriff Leas.

—William Little tipped over seven times last Friday with a log on his sled that scaled over six hundred feet.

—All of our factories have a good supply of timber on hand, and the busy hum of the machinery is heard on every hand.

—Our time has come at last. The weather clerk has sent us a sufficient fall of the beautiful to make good sleighing.

—Amos. Miller and wife, of Hicksville, Ohio, visited under the paternal roof over Sunday. They are looking very fine.

—A jolly party of young men from Garrett, under the supervision of Jno Robbins, took a whirl about town last Saturday.

—There were no services at the Baptist church last Sunday, and the members attended the Presbyterian in the evening.

—Mr. C. Snyder, living near the south county line, has had two sons sick with lung fever. Dr. Cowan is the attending physician.

—A little child of Dr. Sherman, of Garrett, ate a number of pills that the doctor carelessly laid down, and came near dying.

—W. H. Dills has one of the neatest and cosiest law offices in the county. If you don't believe it, just step in and see for yourselves.

—The alarm of fire was given yesterday and the "bucket brigade" turned out largely. It was the chimney of Mr. Hebel's residence.

—W. L. Braun, the new butcher, means business. We bespeak for him a successful future. See his new "ad." in another column.

—The band boys are making preparations to give a concert soon, the proceeds to be used for the advancement of the organization.

—The fellow who took John Blaney's spring wagon-seat had better return it. John has examined Blackstone, and finds the law on his side.

—A party of young folks, from this place, went to Waterloo last Friday evening and had a pleasant time at the residence of Judge Best.

—W. L. Penfield is up with the style of the day. He had a couple of Auburn belles out sleigh-riding Sunday. P. S. His wife was with him too.

—It would be very acceptable for our pedestrians if the married men along the different streets would remove the snow from their sidewalks.

—That was a naughty fellow who received fifty cents in goods and two dollars and fifty cents in silver change for one of Austin's three dollar advertising bills.

—Mr. Ef. Watson, who has been employed at the Wabash elevators for some time past, will move to Columbia City and take charge of the grain trade there.

—Tom Cuppy's running horse tried his speed last week, contrary to Tom's wishes. He put a fancy cutter in condition for repairs—that's all, and nothing more.

—A. J. Smith and wife, of Ohio, formerly residents here, are in the city, the guests of B. Lewis and family. A. J. is now engaged in selling agricultural machinery.

—Country dances are all the rage now. The boys and gals have a pleasant time. They don't send out fancy invitations, but they have a crowd just the same.

—It is always very annoying to a congregation to have a person hacking and coughing during services. One dose of Dr. Marshall's Lung Syrup relieves the worst cases.

—For the Hancock inspirator, globe, safety and check valves, engine brass supplies, 3 8, 1-2 and 3 4 inch gas pipe, call on W. H. Kiblinger, Auburn, Indiana. 4-tf.

—We had the first ride in W. H. Leas' new cutter, and it is a daisy. Will knows how to select a good horse and rig, and when he starts out there is not much hesitation until the close.

—If you have a friend who is troubled with a cough or cold, tell him to try Dr. Marshall's Lung Syrup. He will thank you for your advice. It only costs 25 and 50c a bottle.

—Time is money, but health is happiness. If you had a bad cold or cough, use Dr. Marshall's Lung Syrup it will cure you. Twenty-five cents a bottle; large size 50c. Sold by all druggists.

—Several of our young lads made night hideous with their yells and songs the forepart of the week. They literally wore out the song entitled "Bye oh baby." The words were somewhat characteristic of the singers, however.

—The hay-packers have about one hundred tons to put into the bale, and will then quit for this season. The large amount that has already been packed is stored away and will not be shipped at present.

—The season for coughs and colds is now upon us. Dr. Marshal's Lung Syrup is the greatest specific of the day. Call at the drug store and try it. Only 25 and 50 cents a bottle. Sold by all druggists.

—J. A. Barns, of Waterloo, was in town Monday.—Republican.

The only difference between the original George Washington and George Washington Weamer is, that the former never told a lie, and the latter never told the truth.

—Both Mr. Mitchell and Mr. Veeley had the misfortune to break some of the machinery connected with their saw-mills last week, and consequently were compelled to shut down steam for several days.

—L. J. Johnson, agent at this place for the Wabash, stands deservedly high among our business men and citizens generally. The road is fortunate in being so ably represented.

—A call on Dr. Johnson, dentist, in Waterloo, will satisfy you as to the character of the work he is now doing. Teeth attended to in time, save a great deal of suffering and expense.

—Mr. Hoagland, mentioned in last week's COURIER, who chastised a child of Mr. John Pyles' for disobedience in school, had his trial last Friday, at Jackson Center, and was fined three dollars and costs, amounting in all to twenty-one dollars.

—Mr. Calkins, of Corunna, who has been drilling our band for several weeks, has become quite a favorite among the members. The boys are learning rapidly, and will, ere long, rank among the prominent "tooters" of the country.

—D. D. Moody, representative from this county, will be at home Saturday, January 29, and will be pleased to see any of the citizens of the county and consult with them in regard to any legislation now before the house, or in reference to any other legislation in which they have an interest.

—Rumor now has it that the proper authorities will soon take steps preparatory to the erection of a new school house, and are now clearing away the debris of the old building. Let us hear from you on this subject, Messrs. school board, the people are asking about it.

—R. V. and O. B. Taylor, of Walcottville, Ind., are representing their respective counties in the state legislature, and are brothers. The former lives on the south side of the street and represents Noble county. The latter lives on the north side of the same street and is a member for Lagrange. A case of the two Dromios, almost.

—A meeting of the teachers of the town schools of the county will be held in Auburn on Saturday, January 29. Work is assigned to the different teachers. Among others, C. P. Houser will give a lesson on the use of globes in connection with the subject of mathematical geography.

—The Butler Record came to us last week in the garb of an illustrated paper. As it is difficult to say whether the cut is intended to represent Marshal Haley or a live squirrel, we presume it was executed by one of the "old masters." The coloring is Murillo's, but the tail, growing in at both ends, shows the artistic hand of a Titian.

—The congregation at the Presbyterian church last Sunday evening was not large. The sermon delivered was somewhat superior to the average sermon, but not equal to those of Rev. H. Johnson. It will be a difficult matter for this congregation to obtain a minister that will fill his place.

—We publish this week a communication on the subject of county schools, written by one of our most successful teachers. While we do not agree with the author in all the conclusions he reaches, yet we commend the article to the consideration of all who have the success of our common schools at heart. We will try and give his article a more extended review at some future date.

—The big elm tree, spoken of in last week's COURIER, has since been cut into stave-bolts, and delivered to Beugnot & Co., of this place, making nine cords and five feet. This is the largest tree ever worked into stave-bolts in this vicinity; it will make nearly 11,000 staves, sufficient to make 680 flour-barrels, or about enough to load seven cars with the product of 3,400 bushels of wheat.

—We clip the following from the Indianapolis Sentinel of Jan. 22. It will please his constituents to know that he is making a good record:—"The Speech of Hon. D. D. Moody, of DeKalb county, delivered in the house on Thursday on the Buskirk interest bill, was a speech that reflected much credit upon that gentleman. Many of his friends were quite complimentary to him in their expressions upon the subject, and award to Mr. Moody the honor of having made an able speech."

The Little Folks.

A large party of little folks gathered at the residance of Mr. John Shugers last Saturday, to celebrate the ninth birthday of Miss Della. She was made the recipient of a number of presents by the little guests, for which, she returns thanks. All seemed to enjoy themselves very much, and will long remember the happy event. The following are the names of those present: Minnie Wilson, Gertie Wilson, Winnie Potter, Allie Swisher, Nellie Shaffer, Mary Culver, Ida Culver, Julia Jones, Viola Cool, Lona Thomas, Viola Thomas, Mary Carr, Mary Ditmars, Cordelia Culver, Brida Culver, Ellen Maurer, Maud Sheets, Minnie Rule, Mertie Maurer, Hattie Sheets and George Cool.

Old Settlers' Meeting.

The executive committee of the Pioneer association of DeKalb county, are requested to meet at Auburn, at 10 o'clock a. m., on Friday, February 4th, 1881, to transact business of the association. The following persons are the committee: Jacob A. Miller, Butler township, Samuel Mason, Concord J. J. Gunsenhouser, Stafford, D. Altenburg, Auburn, O. C. Clark, Keyser, Philip Gushwa, Fairfield, Geo. Firestone, Franklin, A. D. Goetschius, Jackson; S. H. Bartlett, Newville; Chas. Hanes, Wilmington; John Butt, Waterloo; T. D. Dailey, Richland; Jerry Hemstreet, Smithfield; Wm. Emerson, Troy.

Jan. 17, 1881. W. H. DILLS, Sec'y.

[Other papers in the county please copy.]

For Sale or Rent.

Desiring to change my business, I wish to either sell or rent my saloon and stock. It is A No. 1 saloon—the best in Butler—being supplied with an ice-house full of ice. For further particulars, call on or address,

ISAAC HIRSCHLER,
4-tf. Butler, Ind.

Donation.

On last Thursday the friends of Elder S. B. Ward and wife met at the residence of the latter in this city. That they might the more readily manifest their good will and esteem they gave them of the good things with which they themselves had been blessed. A sumptuous dinner provided by the friends, arranged and served by the ladies, was participated in by one hundred and eight persons, after which a short, memory-stirring address was delivered by Mr. Joseph E. Shilling, followed by a presentation to Elder S. B. Ward and wife of cash and goods to the amount of $52.85, feelingly responded to by the recipients. Then was sung, "Shall we Gather at the River," followed by prayer. On the arrival of the mails other tokens of regard were received from Angola, Rome City, Corunna, Newville and other points, with an arrival of friends from Pleasant Lake increasing the donation to $80. The day and evening concluded an occasion of pleasure long to be remembered, and for the very liberal donation, and the kind feeling which prompted it, Elder Ward and wife tender their sincere thanks.

Family Reunion.

The second reunion of the Sears family was held at the residence of S. Z. Dickinson in Waterloo, Jan. 23. This was held in honor of Mrs. Lodisa Sears, aged 74, the mother of Mrs. Dickinson. The company, including children, grandchildren and great-grand-children, numbered 19. Although a number of the family were absent, those in attendance had a very enjoyable time. The especial feature of the entertainment, was the musical part. The family, having a taste in that line, were under obligations to Messrs. Basset & Maxson for the use of a fine violin, on which they, in turn, performed to the great enjoyment of all. The presentation of gifts followed. It was decided to hold the next reunion at L. W. Osborn's, at West Casco, Mich., no preventing providence. The united ages of those present was 597; oldest 74; youngest 2; average 31 7-19 years.

A Good Trade.

We are glad to state that our manufacturers and business men generally are having an extra good trade at present. The hum of the busy machines reach the ear daily from every point of the compass, and the shrill sound of the whistles at noon-time and eventide, go to show that this portion of our business interests is in a flourishing condition. The stave factory, hub and spoke factory, the planing mills and the saw mills have a great abundance of timber on hand. The machine shops, wagon and buggy factories and blacksmiths, are all apparently doing a thriving business. The elevators are kept well filled with grain, and our business rooms are crowded daily with the sturdy farmer, the laborer and the townsman. Everything indicates thrift and enterprise, and our business men are steadily moving on to fame and fortune. So mote it be.

Hollister Birthday Anniversary Club.

Tuesday evening, Jan. 25, the club met at Mr. Hollister's for the fourth time. Roll was called, and only two were absent, T. C. Mays and Prof. Seiler. After supper the club listened to an address by Rev. Mr. Norris, and all agree that the evening was spent most pleasantly.

This club was organized three years ago, and those who were accidentally present at that time numbered twenty-one. They elected a president and other officers, who are elected for life, and no new members are admitted Dr. Ford is president. Gentlemen, we wish you many "happy returns."

Publishers' Commercial Union.

Clarance W. Taylor, of Janesville, Wisconsin, has hit upon a good plan to protect newspaper publishers from advertising frauds, and no publisher can afford to remain outside of the Publishers' Commercial Union, of which Mr. Taylor is general manager. It seems now, a little strange that some one did not hit on this plan sooner.

St. Joe.

Protracted meeting is still in progress.

Mr. S. Burleigh, of Antwert, Ohio, was visiting in town Sunday.

School will commence again in the Center school-house in a few days.

A party of young folks of St. Joe spent Friday night with Dr. Bowman at Newville, and report a pleasant time.

Uncle Nels. Ulm takes great pride in telling of the good and bad times through which he has passed in the times long ago.

The little ones of King's corners had a prize hunt last Saturday. The older ones of the same place will have their sport next Saturday.

J. W. D. prides himself on his guessing qualities, and he is good in regard to stock. When he guesses on the weight of little boys for the cigars he is not so good as he may think.

Mr. Perry has a hen that certainly deserves a monument to keep her in remembrance. Mose says that on Friday last this hen laid one dozen eggs. Mose says this is a fact, and no fooling, and he was around town on Saturday trying to sell the eggs at 45c per dozen. (We eggactly think that it took that hen just 12 days to make this "eggnog."—Editor.)

Thos. H. SPROTTS'

INSURANCE, LOAN,
REAL ESTATE AND STEAMSHIP ACENCY.

FIRE INSURANCE
Effected in companies that are
TIME-TRIED & FIRE-TESTED
at lowest current rates.

LIFE INSURANCE
on the best plans. No POST MORTUM INSURANCE can be had of us. We will sell you only the best, that which has been tried and found to be just what we say it is.

Single or Round-Trip Tickets
to and from all points in
IRELAND, FRANCE,
HOLLAND, SPAIN,
GERMANY, ENGLAND,
and all parts of the globe that is reached by water.

New! New! New!
New Proprietor.
New Stock.
New Prices.

I beg leave to inform the citizens of Butler and surrounding country that on and after February 1, 1881, I shall be engaged in the

HARDWARE BUSINESS

in the Tomlinson Building, Broadway street, Butler, Ind., where you will find a complete line of HARDWARE—everything from a keg of nails to a fish-hook.

—Remember my stock is—ENTIRELY NEW,
and that I have everything belonging to the trade, which I will sell as cheap as the cheapest.

ISAAC HIRSCHLER,
tf BUTLER, IND.

W. H. Dills,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW AND NOTARY PUBlic. Special attention given to all classes of legal business. Office second floor in Cool's block, opposite north side of public square Auburn, Ind.

BUT A FEWDAYS!
CHANGE OF FIRM.
Furnishing Goods!
Sacrifice Sale!
Fine Clothing!
Splendid Overcoats!
AT COST.
SAM, PETE & MAX, Ft. Wayne, Ind.

A BIG RUSH
AT
Isaac Ochs' Mammoth Store!
THE BOOM INCREAES DAILY.
Mew Stocks Received Daily.
STUPENDOUS BARGAINS TO BE HAD IN ALL CLASSES OF GOODS.
THE BOTTOM KNOCKED CLEAR OUT OF
BOOTS, SHOES AND RUBBER GOODS.
Selling piles of them cheap; cheaper than anybody.
Immense Trade in Clothing, and Why?
Because I have an immense stock, and am selling cheaper than anybody. Biggest line of Ladies' Dress Goods, and Cloaks, and Dolmans in town, at prices
WAY DOWN! WAY DOWN!
STAPLES ALMOST GIVEN AWAY. Come all ye that want bargains, and I give them to you.
ISAAC OCHS, Auburn, Ind.

ROOT & COMPANY
Invite attention to their
REDUCED PRICES
For Janury, preparatory to their annual inventory. Large reductions in Silks, Satins, Velvits, Plushes, etc.
Large reductions in Dress Goods, Dolmans, Ulsters,
Shawls, Felt and Satin Skirts.
A few fine Seal Garments,
Elegant Fur-Lined Goods,
At special prices. An unbroken assortment of gentlemen's, ladies' and children's
UNDERWEAR
Still on hand at reduced prices. Our stock, in every department, must be reduced, and we have marked such prices on everything as will insure that result.
ROOT & CO., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

REST.

BY PARKER BEAN.

My feet are wearied, and my hands are tired—
My soul oppressed;
And with desire have I long desired
Rest—only rest.

'Tis hard to toil, when toil is almost vain,
In barren ways;
'Tis hard to sow, and never garner grain
In harvest days.

The burden of my days is hard to bear,
But God knows best;
And I have prayed—but vain has been my prayer—
For rest—sweet rest.

'Tis hard to plant in spring, and never reap
The autumn yield;
'Tis hard to till, and when 'tis tilled to weep
O'er fruitless field.

And so I cry, a weak and human cry,
So heart oppressed;
And so I sigh, a weak and human sigh,
For rest—rest.

My way has wound across the desert years,
And cares infest
My path; and through the flowing of bad hours
I pine for rest.

'Twas always so; when still a child I laid
On mother's breast
My wearied little head, e'en then I prayed
As now, for rest.

And I am restless still; 'twill soon be o'er,
For, down the west,
Life's sun is setting, and I see the shore
Where I shall rest.

STAGE ILLUSIONS.

Many of the peculiar effects produced upon the stage, imitating moonlight, sunlight, thunder, wind, rain and other natural phenomena, are a puzzle to those outside of the business. How such realistic representations of those things as are often witnessed upon the stage can be made is a question that often enters the mind of the spectator, and is seldom answered in a satisfactory manner. It is always the ambition of scene painters and stage carpenters to devise improved methods of imitating these things, and hence the stage may be said to try to hold the mirror up to nature in a material, as well as a moral sense. Authors, in writing plays, are always on the lookout for an opportunity to produce a telling effect. The amount of work bestowed upon their production in a theater is simply astonishing to those unacquainted with that mysterious realm known as "behind the scenes."

Thunder is a common stage effect, and is used with great advantage in many plays. In former days it was produced by shaking a large piece of sheet-iron hung immediately above the prompter's desk. This contrivance produced a good imitation of sharp, rattling thunder, but failed to give the dull roar which is always heard in storms. A contrivance for this purpose was soon invented. A heavy box frame is made, and over it is tightly drawn a calf skin. Upon this the prompter operates with a stick, one end of which is padded and covered with chamois skin. A flash of lightning, produced with magnesium, and a sharp crack of the sheet-iron, followed by a long decreasing roll upon the "thunder drum," produces an effect which is startlingly realistic. Traveling companies are compelled to be satisfied with the sheet-iron alone; and the tragedian who enters a theater provided with a complete thunder apparatus always is happy to think that his battle with the elements in "King Lear" will be worth fighting.

The rain machine in large theaters is a fixture placed high in the "flies." A cylinder is made of "half-inch" wood. It is usually five feet in circumference, and four feet in length. Upon the inside are placed rows of small wooden teeth. A lot of dried peas is placed in the cylinder, a rope belt is run round one end of it and down to the prompter's desk, and is it ready for a drenching shower. By turning the cylinder, the peas roll down between the teeth, and the noise produced by them makes a good imitation of rain falling upon a roof. A sudden pull of the rope, accompanied by a gust on the "wind machine," gives the sound of the sweep of a blast of wind during a storm. Traveling companies often meet with theaters where there is no wind machine. A sufficiently-good one, however, is easily produced. A common child's hoop is obtained, and a sheet of brown paper is pasted on it after the manner of a circus-rider's balloon. A handful of bird-shot is placed upon the paper. The "machine" is canted from one side to the other, and the shot rolls around the paper, producing a fairly-good rain effect.

Wind is an item that is very useful in heightening the effect of stage storms. It is often dispensed with in theaters where strict attention is not paid to details, but not without a loss of "realism." It has, moreover, a great influence over the feelings of spectators. The wind machine is constructed in this manner. A heavy frame is made, in which is set a cylinder provided with paddles, and resembling very much the stern-wheels seen on Ohio river tow-boats. Across the top of this cylinder is stretched as tightly as possible a piece of heavy gros-grain silk. This silk remains stationary while the wheel is turned by a crank. The rapid passage of the paddles across the surface of the silk produces the noise of wind. Often traveling companies are in theaters where there is no wind machine. Then the property man groans audibly and proceeds to do what, in theatrical parlance, is called "faking" the wind. He selects a heavy piece of gas hose, called by stage men "flexible," and, finding a quiet corner where there is sufficient space to swing a cat without danger—to the cat—he whirls it around his head with the greatest possible rapidity. This method produces very satisfactory results—to every one but the property man. He is a long-suffering person; but the extraction of wind from "flexible" causes him to find life tedious.

Every one has heard the startling crash that is produced when the hero kicks the villain through a four-inch oaken door. One would think that not only the door but the villain must be completely shattered. This noise is produced by the crash machine, one of the oldest implements of imitation still used on the stage. It is similar to the wind machine in construction. A wheel with paddles set at an angle of about forty-five degrees to the radii is the main part of the machine. Upon the top of the wheel one end of a stout piece of wood is pressed down by fastening the other end to a portion of the frame-work. When the wheel is turned, the slats, passing under the stationary piece produce a rattling crash. The principle of the machine is illustrated by the small boy who runs a stick along a paling fence and is gratified by introducing into the world an additional morsel of hubbub.

There is nothing that can be so well counterfeited on the stage as moonlight scenery. And yet there is nothing which requires more work. The artist begins the task by painting a moonlight scene. In daylight such a scene is a ghastly sight. It is done in cold grays and greens, in which Prussian blue and burnt umber play an important part; and the lights are put in with white slightly tinged with emerald green. The strong moonlight of the foreground is produced by a calcium light thrown through a green glass. The fainter light upon the scenery at the back of the stage is obtained from "green mediums"—a row of argand burners with green chimneys. These are placed upon the stage just in front of the main scene, and are "masked in" from the view of the audience by a "ground piece." A row of them is often suspended from the "flies," in order to light the top of the scene. This upper row is masked in by "sky borders." Thus a soft green light is thrown over the entire distance, while its source does not meet the view of the spectator. A usual feature of stage moonlight scenes is water, because it affords an opportunity for the introduction of the "ripple"—a charmingly natural stage effect. The main scene in a moonlight view is always painted on a "drop"—that is, a scene made like the curtain let down between the acts. The position of the moon being determined, immediately under it, beginning at the horizon, a number of small, irregular holes are cut in the drop. These are then covered on the back with muslin and painted over on the front to match the rest of the water. Behind these holes is placed an endless towel, about eight feet in length, running around two cylinders, one at the top and one at the bottom. The lower cylinder has a crank by which the towel is turned. In this towel is cut a number of holes similar to those in the drop. A strong gas-burner is placed between the two sides of the towel. When the machine is turned the flashing of the light from the passing holes in the towel through the stationary ones in the drop produce a fine ripple. It is always better to turn the towel so that the holes pass upward, as that helps to make the mimic wavelets seem to dance up toward the sky. Instead of a towel a large tin cylinder has been used, but it is cumbersome and noisy. It is necessary to turn this towel with great steadiness; otherwise the ripples will go by fits and starts, and entirely lose their natural appearance. Stars are easily put into the sky. Each twinkling orb consists of a spangle hung upon a pin bent into a double hook. The slightest motion of the drop causes these stars to shake and the flashing of the light upon them produces the twinkle.

One of the most beautiful effects produced upon the stage is the change from day to night, or from night to day. Of these the former is the more striking, and a description of it will serve to explain the principle of both. In order to produce the proper effect, the back drop is made nearly double the height of the usual scenes. The upper half of it is painted to represent a sunset sky, and the lower half to represent moonlight. It is hung so that the upper half alone is visible. The scenery of the distance is then painted upon a separate piece, which is "profiled;" that is, the irregular line of the horizon made by trees, mountains or houses is sharply cut out with a circular saw. This piece is placed immediately in front of the sky drop. A few feet further in front is hung what is known as a cut gauze drop. This has sides and top of canvas painted as the case requires, while the center is filled with fine gauze which lends an aerial effect to the distance. Red "mediums" are employed to give a soft, sunset glow to the scene. At the proper moment, the back drop is very slowly and steadily hauled up, while the red mediums are slowly turned off and green ones turned on. The moon is made in the night half of the sky-drop, and rises with it. When it rises above the distant horizon, the green mediums are turned on to their full power, and the green calcium light is brought into play. The effect of this change, when carefully managed, is always very beautiful, and is sure to draw forth applause from an audience.

Moonrise, in a scene where there is no change from daylight to darkness, is often produced with a muslin drop and a "moonbox." The muslin drop is painted to represent the sky, the clouds being painted on strips of canvas cut in the required shape and sewn on. The moon is made with a box on one side of which a circular hole is cut. Over this hole is pasted a piece of white muslin. A couple of wires serve to draw the moon upward. Of course the white illuminated circle shows plainly through the muslin sky, but disappears when passing behind the canvas clouds. By having another piece of muslin painted red and imperceptibly fading to white, placed at the back of the drop in the moon's path, the orb of night can be made to appear red at the horizon, and gradually change to pale yellow as it sails slowly upward. Floating clouds are easily imitated by hanging in front of the sky drop a gauze drop upon which are sewn muslin or canvas clouds, and moving the whole slowly.

An ocean of heaving waters is made in this way: Each bounding wave is cut out separately. The first row is set up with a distance of three or four feet between each billow; and the second row is set so as to show in the openings left by the first. Small boys furnish the motive power. The waves are rocked back and forth, not from side to side; and the effect is very good. The noise of water rolling upon a beach is well imitated in a simple manner. A box of light wood is lined with tin. By putting two or three ounces of bird-shot into this and causing it to roll around, the desired sound is produced.

Fire scenes are sometimes dangerous; but with proper care they may be rendered comparatively safe. That they are not so hazardous as is generally supposed by the uninitiated beholder may be learned from the following description: One of the most familiar fire scenes is that which occurs in the "Streets of New York," in which a three-story house burns down, the roof caving in, the shutters falling, and the walls breaking with a wonderful appearance of realism. The house is painted on three separate pieces, the top one of which is swung from the flies; this constitutes the roof. Upon the second is painted half the wall, and it is joined to the bottom piece in an irregular zig-zag line. The simple dropping in succession of these pieces to the stage produces the falling of roof and wall. The fire itself is represented by chemical red fire and powdered lycopodium used separately, the former to give a red glow and the latter to represent flames. The shutters, which are to fall, are fastened to the scene with a preparation called "quick-match." This is made of powder, alcohol and a lamp wick. The window frames and sashes are made of sheet iron. They are covered with oakum soaked in alcohol or naphtha. These sashes and frames are not fastened to the canvas scene at all, but are placed a short distance behind it upon platforms. The quickest possible touch of flame ignites the oakum, and, in a moment, the fire runs around the sash and nothing is apparently left but the blackened and charred wood. Steam is used to represent the smoke that issues from the crannies in the walls of the burning building; and an occasional crash, followed by the ignition of a little powder to produce a sudden puff of smoke, gives the spectator an idea of a falling rafter. Behind the entire scene is placed a very large endless towel upon which is painted a mass of flames. This is kept in constant upward motion; and, when viewed through an open window in the house, gives a good idea of the supposed raging furnace within. Add to these things a real fire-engine on the stage, a host of yelling supernumeraries in discarded firemen's uniforms, and the spectator is easily filled with a sense of tremendous danger. Nevertheless the only flames upon the stage are those arising from the burning of lycopodium in a "flash torch;" and they are only allowed to blaze up for a second or two at a time. Fires in theaters, resulting from a fire scene, are usually caused by carelessness in handling the powder which is used to produce puffs of smoke.

THE FUNDING BILL.

Full Text of the Funding Bill as it Passed the House of Representatives.

A BILL to facilitate the refunding of the national debt:

SECTION 1. Be it enacted, by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That all existing provisions of the law authorizing the refunding of the national debt shall apply to any bonds of the United States bearing a higher rate of interest than 4½ per cent. per annum which may hereafter become redeemable; provided that, in lieu of the bonds authorized to be issued by the act of July 14, 1870, entitled "An act to authorize the refunding of the national debt," and acts amendatory thereto, and the certificates authorized by the act of Feb. 26, 1879, entitled "An act to authorize the issue of certificates of deposit in aid of the refunding of the public debt," the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized to issue bonds in an amount not exceeding $400,000,000 which shall bear interest at the rate of 3 per cent. per annum, redeemable at the pleasure of the United States after five years, and payable ten years from date of issue, and also certificates to the amount of $300,000,000, in denominations of $10, $20, or $50, either registered or coupon, bearing interest at the rate of 3 per cent. per annum, redeemable at the pleasure of the United States after one year, and payable in ten years from date. The bonds and certificates shall be in all other respects of like character, and subject to the same provisions as the bonds authorized to be issued by the act of July 14, 1870, entitled "An act to authorize the refunding of the national debt," and acts amendatory thereto; provided, that nothing in this act shall be so construed as to authorize an increase of the public debt; and provided, further, that interest upon the 6-per-cent. bonds hereby authorized, to be refunded shall cease at the expiration of thirty days after notice that the same have been designated by the Secretary of the Treasury for redemption.

SEC. 2. The Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized, in process of refunding the national debt, to exchange, at not less than par, any bonds or certificates herein authorized for any of the bonds of the United States outstanding and uncalled bearing a higher rate of interest than 4½ per cent. per annum, and on bonds so redeemed the Secretary of the Treasury may allow to holders the difference between the interest on such bonds from the date of exchange to the time of maturity and the interest for a like period on the bonds or certificates issued, but none of the provisions of this act shall apply to the redemption or exchange of any of the bonds issued to the Pacific Railway Companies, and the bonds so received and exchanged in pursuance of the provisions of this act shall be canceled and destroyed.

SEC. 3. Authority to raise bonds and certificates to the amount necessary to carry out the provisions of the act is hereby granted, and the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized and directed to make suitable rules and regulations to carry this act into effect; provided, that the expenses of preparing, issuing, advertising and disposing of the bonds and certificates authorized to be issued shall not exceed one-fourth of 1 per cent.

SEC. 4. That the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized, if in his opinion it shall become necessary, to use $50,000,000 of the standard gold and silver in the treasury in the redemption of the 5 and 6-per-cent. bonds of the United States authorized to be refunded by the provisions of this act, and he may, at any time, apply the surplus money in the treasury, not otherwise appropriated, or so much thereof as he may consider proper, to the purchase or redemption of United States bonds or certificates; provided that the bonds and certificates so purchased or redeemed shall constitute no part of the sinking fund, but shall be canceled.

SEC. 5. From and after the 1st day of May, 1881, the 3-per-cent. bonds authorized by the first section of this act shall be the only bond receivable as security for national-bank circulation, or as security for the safe-keeping and prompt payment of public money deposited with such banks; but when any such bonds deposited for the purpose aforesaid shall be designated for purchase or redemption by the Secretary of the Treasury, the banking association depositing the same shall have the right to substitute other issues of bonds of the United States in lieu thereof; provided, that no bond upon which interest has ceased shall be accepted or shall be continued on deposit as security for the circulation or for the safe-keeping of the public money, and in case the bonds so deposited shall not be withdrawn, as provided by law, within thirty days after interest has ceased thereon, the banking association depositing the same shall be subject to the liabilities and proceedings on the part of the Comptroller provided for in section 5,244 of the Revised Statutes of the United States; and provided, further, that section 4 of the act of June 20, 1874, entitled "An act fixing the amount of United States notes, providing for a redistribution of the national-bank currency, and for other purposes," be, and the same is hereby, repealed, and sections 5,159 and 5,160 of the Revised Statutes of the United States be, and the same is hereby, re-enacted.

SEC. 6. That this act shall be known as "The Funding Act of 1881," and all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed.

THERE are ten thousand more females than males in Rhode Island.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR.

FOR sweating feet try a powder composed of salicylic acid, 16 parts, and silicate of magnesia, 87 parts. It is a German army remedy.

GENTLEMEN who are going to take a drive should not forget that an eight-page newspaper spread over the chest is the best chest protector that can be worn in cold weather. Put it between the under and overcoat.

A DAILY paper tells how a boy almost lost his eyesight by trying to wipe his own face with a handkerchief which he had previously used about the mouth of a horse suffering from the epizootic. One experience of this kind, if widely published, ought to be the last to occur.

ONE of the most dangerous poisons is produced by the first stages of decomposition in sausage and other meats. It is difficult to understand how some people can, as they do, have a taste for "gamey meat," but their number will be diminished as the reports increase of fatal cases of poisoning from the eating of it.—Dr. Foote's Health Monthly.

CURE FOR CORNS.—Mr. Gezow, a Russian apothecary, recommends the following as a "sure" remedy for corns, stating that it proves effective within a short time, and without causing any pain—Salicylic acid, 30 parts; extract of cannabis indica, 5 parts; collodion, 240 parts. To be applied by means of a camel's hair pencil.

HOME-MADE COURT PLASTER.—Soak isinglass in a little warm water for seventy-four hours; then evaporate nearly all the water by gentle heat; dissolve the residue in a little dilute alcohol, and strain the whole through a piece of open linen. The strained mass should be a stiff jelly when cold. Now stretch a piece of silk or sarcenet on a wooden frame, and fix it tight with tacks or pack thread. Melt the jelly and apply it to the silk thinly and evenly with a badger hair brush. A second coating must be applied when the first has dried. When both are dry, apply over the whole surface two or three coatings of the balsam of Peru. Plaster thus made is very pliable, and never breaks.

CHILBLAINS.—A chilblain, whether on the hands or feet, is nothing else save a mitigated form of frost bite. The evil effects of the cold are not felt until what medical men and surgeons term reaction has taken place; this is, until the blood which has been dispelled by the chill returns to the skin, and returns to it with sufficient force to cause a certain degree of inflammation. The parts so inflamed—probably some part of the hands or a toe or heel—will be found red and swollen, and most disagreeable itching and tingling will be felt, quite sufficient, in many cases, to banish sleep. After a time the chilblain assumes a bluish hue, and children once attacked are very liable to be so again. Now it is well to remember that it is far more easy to prevent the occurrence of chilblain than to cure it. A child or young person, after having been exposed for some time to the cold, should not be allowed to go too near to the fire, nor even remain in a too warm room. It is rapid reaction that causes the chilblain. If the feet or hands have become numbed with the cold, exercise should be taken to restore them slowly; or they may be rubbed with powdered starch, or, as suggested by an eminent authority, a liniment composed of the yolk of two eggs, four table-spoonfuls of turpentine, and the same quantity of vinegar, may be used to restore the circulation. The smell, however, of this liniment may be objected to, so one composed of two ounces of camphor liniment to one ounce of laudanum, and the same quantity of hartshorn, may be thought preferable. For the cure of a chilblain once formed, hundreds of remedies are from time to time recommended. A mixture of the compound tincture of iodine and liquid ammonia, equal parts, painted over the inflamed parts twice a day, is probably as good as any. Glycerine or lime liniment eases the itching, and some may find relief from bathing the chilblain in a strong solution of alum; an ounce of the powder dissolved in a pint of soft water. Those who suffer much in winter from this disagreeable complaint should take a course of cod liver oil and tincture of yellow bark before the cold weather comes on, or Parrish's chemical food with cod liver oil. Their own chemist will be able to state the proper dose, which should be according to the age, and the length of time it may be taken to do good is about six weeks. Warm stockings and gloves prevent chilblains; tight shoes encourage them.

Children's Ideas.

The natural philosophy of children is very interesting; they invent just such theories of the universe as the wild nations have, with a sweet unconsciousness that they are originally myths. During a tremendous thunder storm a little fellow of four year old was overheard explaining to another child that lightning was just "red water that runs out of the clouds," and the thunder "the noise it makes when it goes into the ground." He lost his courage concerning thunder in one of the showers, and afterward had to be comforted a little when one occurred. One evening, to calm his apprehensions, his father assured him that the lightening he saw was a great way off, and told him that if it were near, he could hear the thunder at once after the flash, but this time he could notice that there was quite a while between the two. The boy mused over this a little, and then queried:

"Papa, what makes the thunder speak so long after it's got through?"

A question which might be asked of many a public speaker.

The Power of Kisses.

When Charles II. was making his triumphant progress through England certain country ladies who were presented to him, instead of kissing the royal hand in their simplicity held up their pretty lips to be kissed by the King, a blunder no one would more willingly excuse than the lover of pretty Nell Gwynne. Georgiana, Duchess of Devonshire, gave Steele, the butcher, a kiss for his vote nearly a century since, and another equally beautiful woman, Jane, Duchess of Gordon, recruited her regiment in a similar manner. A kiss from his mother made Benjamin West an artist. "Kiss me, mother, before I sleep." How simple a boon, yet how soothing to the little suppliant is that soft, gentle kiss. The head sinks contentedly on the pillow for all is peace and happiness within. The bright eyes and rosy lips close, and the little darling is soon reveling in the bright and sunny dreams of innocence. Yes, kiss, mother, for that good-night kiss will linger in the memory when the giver lies moldering in the grave. The memory of a gentle mother's kiss has cheered many a lonely wanderer's pilgrimage and has been the beacon light to illuminate his desolate heart; life has many a stormy billow to cross, many a rugged path to climb, and we know not what is in store for the little one so sweetly slumbering, with no marring care to disturb its peaceful dreams. The parched and fevered lips will become dewy again as recollection bears to the sufferer's couch a mother's love, a mother's kiss. Then kiss your little one's ere they sleep; there is a magic power in that kiss which will endure to the end of life.—Troy Times.

A Pertinacious Landlord.

"Isn't there such a crime as conduct calculated to provoke a breach of the peace?" asked a nervous-looking man of a Brooklyn Police Justice.

"Of course there is," responded the Justice.

"Then gimme a warrant for my landlord," demanded the nervous man.

"What has he done?" asked the Justice, eying the suitor suspiciously.

"He comes to my house when I've got company, and says he wants the four-months' rent I owe him, and sits out on the front steps and howls for his money. If I should kick the whole spine out of him, I'd be arrested, wouldn't I?"

"Yes, I think you would. Why don't you pay him?"

"That isn't the question. He comes to my house at 4 o'clock in the morning and yells through the key-hole, and then he goes up through the vacant house next door, and gets on my roof and shouts down the chimney. Says he will have that money. If I should drop a flat-iron on him, or blow him up with powder, it would go hard with me, wouldn't it?"

"Pretty apt to. Can't you come to no understanding with him?"

"It seems not. Say, has he got a right to climb over my fence and have fits in my back yard, just because I owe him a little money?"

"Does he do that?"

"Of course he does, and when we haul him in the house he yells murder and draws a crowd. Have I got a right to maul the life out of him with a club for that?"

"I think not," responded the Judge. "Why don't you move?"

"That's got nothing to do with it. I want to know if he is entitled to slip up on the ice and fall through my basement window, and do ten dollars' worth of damage to the glass. Couldn't I mash the stuffing out of him for that?"

"Certainly not."

"But, when he lays down on the sidewalk and howls that his mother is dead, and he can't bury her because I won't pay what I owe, haven't I got any remedy?"

"I don't know of any. I think you'd better pay him."

"But isn't it conduct calculated to provoke a breach of the peace, when he comes around with a quart of laudanum and a horse-pistol, and threatens to take 'em both right on the premises, if I don't put up? Ain't it a crime to hang himself to a tree in front of my house, with a paper pinned on him that I drove him to suicide? Has he got a right to make faces at my children in Sunday-school? Won't the law touch him for coming to my door at daylight as drunk as a lord, and claiming he's me, and yelling that I want to get in and lick my wife?"

"I don't think you can do anything but pay him or move. The man has a right to his money."

"That's all I want to know," replied the nervous man, appearing relieved. "I'm the landlord, and my tenant says he'll have me arrested for doing these things. Now you bet he'll put up that wealth, or I'll fall off the top of the house and have the inquest in the parlor. A man can't live four months in my house for nothing, without going to some trouble, now you hear me;" and the nervous man pranced off, glowing all over with grim determination.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Jackson and Benton.

On the breaking out of the War of 1812 Gen. Jackson was one of the very first to tender his services to the Government, and collected a force of 2,500 men which met at Natchez, where it remained idle some two months, when it was ordered disbanded. Jackson, enraged, declined to disband the troops there, but took them back home, giving drafts on the Government for the expenses thus incurred. These drafts the Government refused to pay, which placed Jackson in a very unpleasant predicament. At this juncture Col. Benton volunteered to go to Washington in Jackson's interest, and, if possible, induce the Government to pay the drafts, and save Jackson's honor and property. By his politic and adroit management he succeeded. As Col. Benton was about returning to Nashville he received word from his brother, Jesse Benton, that Gen. Jackson had acted as second in a duel to that brother's antagonist—a most ungracious act, as it appeared, at a moment when the claims of gratitude should have been uppermost in Jackson's heart. In this duel Jesse Benton was wounded. An angry letter was written by Thomas H. Benton to Jackson, and the latter swore "by the Eternal" he would horsewhip Tom Benton. On Sept. 4, 1813, the two Bentons were in the doorway of the City Hotel, at Nashville, when Jackson and Col. Coffee approached. Jackson brandished his whip, Col. Benton fumbled for his pistol, Jackson drew his own, and at the same time received in his arm and shoulder a slug and a bullet from the pistol of Jesse Benton, who stood behind him. Jackson was thus dropped by a terrible wound. Coffee then attacked Col. Benton, who fell down a flight of stairs. This disgraceful affair laid Jackson up for several months and drove Benton to Missouri.

A WOMAN was drowned the other day, while being baptized, and if any paragrapher rings in a hoary pun about the deceased dying of dip-theory, he should be severely talked to.

"FULL WORK FOR MOTHER WHILE I LIVE."

"Why don't you take your comfort, John,
And spend your money as you go,
Nor dress so plainly as you do,
Although you're always neat, I know?"
Said John, and laughed a merry laugh;
"Why, Will, your pocket's like a sieve;
I've got a duty to perform—
I'll work for mother while I live.

"And such a mother as we have—
Father he left her to our care;
There's mother sitting 'mid the flowers,
With sweet brown eyes and silvery hair.
We mean to buy that cottage home
By saving up—it can be done—
Brother and I; yes, hear me, Will,
Before we lads are twenty-one!"

What heartfelt joy that mother had,
As he, her son, passed in the door!
What though they lived in humble style,
No costly pile upon the floor;
But love was there—and should God will
To call that son by His decree,
That mother 'mid her tears could say:
"He always did his best for me!"

Young men in all the walks of life,
And blessed with mothers kind and dear,
Ah! would that you might prize them well,
And do your duty by them here.
Fortune may strew your path with flowers,
Or wealth may not be yours to give,
But never manlier words than these:
"I'll work for mother while I live!"

PITH AND POINT.

THE balloonist's home is one flight up.

TALL soft hats supply a long-felt want.

A HUMOROUS article—A baby with the rash.

Puck wants to know if "the soft, soothing sounds of the far-distant mill" refers to the mill's tone.

MADE of the mist—Drizzling rain. Maid of the mister—His sweetheart. Made of the mystery—Hash.

AN exchange says: "Streams all over the country are running dry." This is a canard. When a stream is dry it can't run.

"I'M a man of few words," said Prendergast. "True enough," replied Fogg, "true enough; but you never tire of repeating them."

LITTLE Jimmy is laid up with measles and suffering a great deal, but when he was asked how he liked the measles he brightened up and exclaimed: "The doctor says I can't go to school for a week or two. That's how I like it."

A BOYISH novice in smoking turned deadly pale and threw away his cigar. Said he: "Thar's something in that air cigar that's made me sick." "I know what it is," said his companion, pulling away. "What?" "Tobacker."

A QUESTION OF THE OVER-SOUL.
A chicken lived; a chicken died;
His drumsticks and his wings were fried,
His feathers by a dealer dried,
And, very shortly after, dyed.
Soul he had none; admitting that,
How comes it? There upon her hat,
His plumes—a mortal chicken's—rise
A glorious bird of paradise.

MAIDEN aunt to tall young nephew—"As I stood by you in church, Percy, I could not help being struck by your size." Percy—"Very sorry, aunt, but there was such an awfully pretty girl the other side the aisle I couldn't help sighing!"

I SAID to my little girl one day: "What a large forehead you have. It is just like your father's; you could drive a pony carriage round it. To which her brother, 5 years old, said: "Yes, ma, but on pa's you can see the marks of the wheels."

HERE is an inscription on a soldier in the kirkyard of Dumfries:

Here lies Andrew Macpherson,
Who was a peculiar person,
He stood six feet two
Without his shoes,
And was slew
At Waterloo.

THE Galveston boy is progressive. He was standing in a crowd of boys on the sidewalk when his mother called to him to go down town and bring her a demijohn of whisky. The boy was too busy to go, but he called out: "Send the old man; I've got considerable confidence in him."

HE was a fine-looking man, and he proudly strutted down the sidewalks with the air of proprietorship in every movement. "Beg pardon," said a stranger, as he stopped up to him, hat in hand, in utmost humility. "Do I have your permission to remain in town over night?"

MONS. DUPONT, who was a widower, re-married. It was in full honeymoon, and he made countless tender protestations. "I will always love you," he said to her. "Always, always?" "As long as I live." "And afterward, you will not love me in eternity?" "But I have already promised that to my first wife."

HE was a great bore, and was talking to a crowd about the coming local election. Said he: "Jones is a good man. He is capable, honest, fearless and conscientious. He will make the very kind of an officer we need. He once saved my life from drowning." "Do you really want to see Jones elected?" said a solemn-faced old man. "I do, indeed. I'd do anything to see him elected." "Then never let anybody know he saved your life." The meeting then adjourned.

A JOLLY-LOOKING German was quietly walking down Third avenue, looking up occasionally at an elevated-railway locomotive, and perhaps wishing he could smoke as much as it could, when he was familiarly approached by a man who said, "Hello, Joe! What are you doing here?" The old man looked and said, "But I am not here at all." "Not here?" said the man. "What do you mean by that?" "Vell, now, you see my name is not Joe, and so how could I be here? You must mean some other man."—New York Herald.

Brutal Conduct of a Husband.

A fashionable Galveston woman wanted to impress her husband with her house-keeping abilities; so, when the cook left, she went down into the kitchen and cooked breakfast, and she made an awful mess of it. They sat down to the table, and her husband noticed that she had a rag on her finger, so he asked what was the matter.

"I burned it while frying the steak," she replied.

"Well, any woman who would put such a breakfast as this on the table ought to be burned at the stake," replied the brute.

A MODERN illustration of vicarious atonement is found in the case of Dr. Legoff, of Paris, who allowed blood to be pumped from his own veins into the body of a wounded soldier—the operation being of the transfusion of blood. The sick man recovered and the doctor's health failed. He tried change of climate in hope of improvement, but without avail, and he finally died from the effects of his generosity.

WINTER STYLES.

Miss Lucy Carter, a New York fashion writer, writes as follows regarding the latest styles:

Fashions which prevail in January hold their own during the remainder of the winter, and the New Year's costume is important, therefore, not only as indicative of what is stylish at the present time, but of what is to come. By far the greater number of dressy toilets are made with trimmed skirts and basques, and, the use of magnificent brocades having proved unfavorable to short dresses for evening wear, most of the handsomer costumes are devised with trains. They are not of unusual length, and are a compromise between the square and round train, partaking of the nature of both, since they would be square but that the corners are rounded off. Sleeves are generally to the elbow, and the corsage is cut high around the throat, square or heart-shaped, the latter style being sometimes allowed to come close about the neck and opened below. These leading ideas are, of course, so variously combined and modified by the skillful modiste that there is no sameness, but continual variety, for among a number of New Year costumes gotten up for leaders of society by Lord & Taylor it was only on a close examination that certain prevailing features were to be remarked. A superb costume was of black velvet, on which, at intervals, were placed, in applique style, bouquets and sprays of silk-embroidered flowers in gay natural colors. The effect was lovely. Another exquisite costume was of heliotrope brocade combined with satin; a third, gold and crimson; a fourth, pale pink brocade, with satin and crystal passementerie; a fifth, pure white. All the brocades were very large in pattern; for you must remember that small-figured brocades are not now used—at least for very dressy wear. Opera cloaks were never so gorgeous, and are really resplendent creations of rich brocade, wrought in very large, wide, open flowers. The long dolman or visite is the fashionable shape for these elegant garments.

PLUSH COLLARS

are decided novelties and give a stylish finish to dresses, being all the more becoming, perhaps, because there is a wide range as to choice in the way of color. Cuffs of plush can be added at the wrists. Of course there should be a white collar or ruffle within the collar of plush, and a cuff of linen or lace below the plush at the end of the sleeve. Street costumes are often added to by large collars or even capes of plush, and here, too, the plush cuff may give warmth about the wrist. The severe winter has also brought fur capes into much demand, and fur cuffs to match are now sometimes worn. The conventional fur muff ought of course to be used when fur is on other parts of the costume, but charmingly coquettish fancies are now seen as substitutes. They are made of plush or heavy cloth cut into some pretty shape, wadded, bound on the edges, tied with ribbon and sometimes edged with wide white lace. Others are finished with gold braid, artificial flowers or embroidery. If ingenious, you can devise one for yourself, but the pattern-houses bring out models, and of these the prettiest I have noticed is the Olga. Sara Bernhardt has left behind her a rage for ruffiings about the neck. They never were in such demand nor carried to quite such extremes. Crepe lisse is much used, probably because so becoming, yet lace comes in for a full share of popularity. It is impossible to give special description, but in all kinds the Sidenburg favorite brands are most sought after because most fashionable and the best made.

INDEPENDENT BASQUES

of cloth or velvet, to be worn with different skirts, have a jaunty finish given them by additions of gilt braid and embroidery. Three rows of braid around the edges, and embroidery on the collar, cuffs and pockets. One sees at a glance how pretty these must be, and they afford a change from basques of brocade. Another new and pleasing ornamentation for a corsage is to have collar and cuffs of colored satin, red, blue, gold, garnet, etc., finished with gilt embroidery. This, of course, is more suitable for a costume than an independent, and the collar and cuffs of satin take the place of any other trimming on the corsage. A touch of gilt embroidery, or of satin and embroidery can be added on the skirt, but is not essential. This season, indeed, it is hard to misplace gilt trimmings. In all sorts of forms they intrude themselves everywhere; and much as they are liked for costumes are more prominent in millinery. But gilt or silver braids should never be put on brocades where a variety of colors are blended, although we do see tinsel threads running through brocades. Metal trimmings are better adapted to plain goods, and in general are so employed. Enormous bows of satin ribbon are now attached on the left side of the corsage just above the waist line, instead of the mammoth bouquets of flowers which were once in vogue, and the fact that all symmetry is destroyed by their use does not seem to interfere with their popularity.

Father is Getting Well.

My daughters say: "How much better father is since he used Hop Bitters. He is getting well after his long suffering from a disease declared incurable, and we are so glad he used your Bitters."—A Lady of Rochester, N. Y.—Utica Herald.

Prolongation of Life.

Some years ago the French Ministry addressed a circular to all the Prefects, desiring them to institute inquiries as to the conditions which appeared to favor longevity in their several districts, and the replies are said to have almost unanimously indicated as the leading elements or influences great sobriety, regular labor, and usually in the open air, daily exercise short of fatigue, early hours, a comparatively well-to-do life, calmness of mind in meeting troubles, moderate intellectual powers, and a family life. The beneficial influence of marriage on the duration of life is universally admitted, and remarriage does not seem to be unfavorable. The Prefects also indicate heredity as a frequent cause, and the influence of climate is likewise admitted; this latter, however, is separable with difficulty from other causes which may be operating simultaneously; but, if all things were otherwise equal, it would seem that southern are less favorable to longevity than northern climates.

Answer This.

Did you ever know any person to be ill without inaction of the Stomach, Liver or Kidneys, or did you ever know one who was well when either was obstructed or inactive; and did you ever know or hear of any case of that kind that Hop Bitters would not cure? Ask your neighbor this same question.—Times.

Indian Peculiarities.

Marrying into an Indian tribe assures the white man an immunity from danger he could not otherwise secure. Though he is not considered one of the band, he is, in a measure, attached to it. His relationship is that of a mortgage to a house, whose owner can't discharge it. In the event of a difficulty between his people and his tribe, he remains perfectly neutral, taking care to keep out from between them. As a renegade, the Indian would not tolerate him. As an enemy, he would be hunted into the ground. When trouble looms up he packs his traps and moves until it is over, and then returns with a Rip-Van-Winkle-like yawn, wondering what has happened in his absence. It is this position that has made him an object of some suspicion among whites and Indians where neutrality is an unknown force. He is on neither side in a fracas, a situation more unfortunate than to be with the defeated, among people who take a hand in everything. He may be brave, but he is circumscribed, bound down by his domestic relations, but powerless for action.

According to prairie law, it is disreputable in a white man to abandon his dusky wife until she has grown too old to work for him. Then he may send her back to her tribe if he so elect. The obligation upon the wife is different. She may not desert the husband for another white man, but she may leave him for an Indian who wants to marry her provided she have no children. If a squaw desires to abandon her husband, the Indian of her choice must put back the price originally paid to her mother. He may abate no jot or tittle, and it is in such payment that the divorce is perfected. She then becomes a single woman, free to marry, but she can not live in the vicinity inhabited by her former husband. She must move away with her new venture. Such divorces are not infrequent. It is a difficult thing for the squaw to perfectly adapt herself to her white husband. He may be of the kindliest disposition, but his ways are not as her ways, and though she struggle with all her strength to draw closer to her existence a part of his, she can not make him one of her kind, and she drifts away from him. The birth of children directs her thoughts into a new channel, and lessens the chasm between them, but without them he has but little hope of keeping her to himself. Sooner or later she will find her affinity.

London Fogs.

Fifty years ago, when we first became acquainted with them, London fogs were bad enough; but they were on a comparatively limited scale. They have since attained marvelously grand dimensions and intensity, according to the increase of houses and population. What we ordinarily call London, but is more directly styled the Metropolis, has spread and spread till it covers a space of about 120 square miles. In the winter months every house has a coal fire, some of them two, three, or four, and there are numerous manufactories and public works with furnaces and tall chimneys, all of which less or more emit quantities of smoke. This smoke mingles with what fog there happens to be, and produces a curious mixture, that is now only beginning to be rightly understood. Like every other mist, the fog which rises and is wafted along the valley of the Thames is composed of small particles of water that ought properly to be dissipated by the sun's heat. Only with difficulty is the sun able to undertake the duty. The smoke poured out from hundreds of thousands of chimneys does not merely mix with the fog; it coats each watery particle with a tarry, oily film, giving it an unnatural character, and preserving it, so to speak, from immediate dispersion. A genuine London fog, therefore, is something more than a fog. It is a prodigiously large volume of mist, held in a kind of thralldom by oleaginous ingredients floated from the tops of chimneys. When we say oleaginous, we, for convenience, take the readiest word to express a condition that would involve some chemical explanations, which need not be gone into. Every one will understand that the smoke from the coal fires somehow unites inextricably with the particles of mist, and keeps the whole thing hovering in a dense cloud over the metropolis. Not only so; the dingy cloud darkens and pollutes the air, fills the streets, and to a certain extent the houses and lungs of the inhabitants. On such occasions the darkness even at noon is so great that dwellings and places of business have to be lit with gas as at night. As the London gas is more remarkable for its volume than its purity, it aids in deteriorating the atmosphere during fogs, already sufficiently tainted with the exhalations of domestic sewage. At times it is as difficult to get a breath of fresh air as it is to procure a good drink of palatable water.—Chambers' Journal.

Our Dying Commerce.

Twenty-four years ago our exports and imports in American ships were double what they are to-day. During the last five years Britain has built 1,800,000 tons of iron ships. Since 1856 we have built in that time 100,000 tons. British tonnage in our ports has increased 7,000,000 tons. In 1860 foreigners had 33 per cent. of our commerce; in 1880 they have 82 per cent. We pay $100,000,000 every year to foreign shipowners for transportation, all of which cash goes out of this country. Every year we have fewer ships, and the foreigner takes an increased percentage of our traffic.

St. Louis owns eighteen parks and squares, embracing 2,107 acres, costing $1,405,000 originally; and on which $2,072,000 have been spent. Forest Park, the largest of the lot, contains 1,371 acres, but Tower Grove Park, the gift of Henry Shaw, and improved under his personal supervision, is far the finest.

All should recollect that, with the loss of health, loss of enjoyment and happiness soon follows. A Cough or Cold quickly undermines the health, and should be checked by the prompt use of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup. For sale by all Druggists. Price 25 cents.

No Warmth in Clothes.

It is, says the Lancet, a mistake to suppose there is any warmth in clothes. Animal heat is the direct result of changes going on within the body itself. Nutrition by food and the discharge of energy by exercise are the sufficient causes of heat. Clothes "seem" to warm because they prevent the cold air and objects with a capacity for heat which surround the body from attracting the heat generated within its organism. The clothing is simply an insulator. It follows that it should be light in weight, and above all things that it should permit the free and full circulation of blood through every part of the system—to the end of every finger and toe—and that the muscular apparatus of the extremities should be in perfect working order. If we will wear foot coverings, whether boots or stockings, which compress the feet and render the separate action of each toe impossible, it is simply absurd to expect to be warm-footed. Heat is the complement of work and nutrition; and if a part of the organism is so bound that it connot work and its supply of blood is limited, it must be cold. The resort to stouter and heavier clothing under such circumstances is simply ridiculous. Generally it is the stockings that compress the feet. The garter acts as a ligature, and diminishes the blood-supply, while the stocking itself acts as a bandage, and impedes the circulation through the extremities.

Hon. S. H. Yoder's Position.

[From the Des Moines (Iowa) State Register.]

A representative man's opinion on other than political matters is often of great use to his constituency. The Hon. S. H. Yoder, of Globe Mills, Pa., has thus recorded his opinion on a subject of popular interest. I have been selling St. Jacobs Oil for the last year. I have never heard a person speak of it, except as a splendid medicine, and as the great specific for rheumatic affections, whether inflammatory, acute or chronic, swellings, sores, sprains, burns, wounds, etc. I sell more St. Jacobs Oil than of any other kind of liniment, and it gives universal satisfaction. I will always keep it on hand. The farmers say that, for man and beast, they find nothing to equal it.

Parental affection suffers a pang when children marry. "Would you be laving your poor old father?" said an Irishman to his youngest, "you who are the only child I ever had who never struck me when I was down?"

Dangers to Iron Workers.

[From the Pittsburgh Evening Chronicle.]

Messrs. R. Esterbrook & Sons, City Iron Foundry, Boston, Mass., speak on this point as follows: Two or three of our men were badly burnt in working. They were, however, immediately cured by using that valuable remedy, St. Jacobs Oil. All our men are highly pleased with it, and we shall always recommend it to those afflicted with pains or rheumatism.

A little boy, having heard a missionary tell how the natives of South Africa live, on going home said, "Ma, I wish I was a little South African boy!" "Why, Georgie," exclaimed the mother, "whatever put such an idea into your head?" "'Cause their mothers don't wear slippers," said little Georgie.

The Cause of Science has received an important addition in the elegant Observatory which Mr. H. H. Warner, proprietor of the valuable Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, has erected at Rochester.

The Eastern publishers have contributed nearly 4,000 volumes for a public library at the new settlement at Rugby, Tenn.

The Epizootic

Has again made its appearance in various parts of the country. As prevention is better than cure, the attention of owners of stock is called to UNCLE SAM'S CONDITION POWDERS. These celebrated powders stand unrivaled for their excellency as a preventive from disease. By mixing with the feed they will keep the animal in the best general health, toning up the system and keeping the digestive organs and blood in a healthy condition.

The Powders are warranted to give perfect satisfaction. Prepared by the Emmert Proprietary Co., Chicago, Ill. Put up in 25 and 50-cent packages, and sold by all druggists.

Dr. C. E. Shoemaker, of Reading, Pa., is the only aural surgeon in the United States who devotes all his time to the treatment of deafness and diseases of the ear and catarrh; especially running ear. Nearly twenty years' experience. Thousands testify to his skill. Consult him by mail or otherwise. Pamphlet free.

We confidently refer our readers to the card of Dr. C. R. Sykes, in another column. He is an old resident of Chicago, a regular graduate, honest, honorable and responsible, and, as a physician, takes first rank in his chosen specialty of catarrh and its complications.

Pure Cod Liver Oil, made from selected livers, on the seashore, by Caswell, Hazard & Co., New York. It is absolutely pure and sweet. Patients who have once taken it prefer it to all others. Physicians have decided it superior to any of the other oils in market.

For a pamphlet on Electric Treatment of chronic diseases with Electricity, which will be sent free, address the McIntosh Electric Belt and Battery Co., 192 & 194 Jackson St., Chicago, Ill.

The best are the cheapest! Buy the diamond boots, made by Rosenthal Brothers, Chicago.

DR. BULL'S
COUGH
SYRUP

YOUNG MEN Learn Telegraphy! Earn $40 to $100 a month. Graduates guaranteed paying offices. Address Valentine Bros., Janesville, Wis.

TEXAS! The Southwestern Immigration Company.
It is the purpose of this Company to supply the need of a State Bureau of Immigration, and not to subserve the purposes of any individual, railway, or other corporation. No lands bought or sold. Information furnished those wishing to settle in Texas. Correspondence solicited. Address W. W. LANG, Pres. (late Master Texas State Grange) or B. G. DUVAL, Sec. Austin, Texas.

10 CENTS a Month, or One Dollar a Year.
THE CHICAGO LEDGER will be sent to any address, postage paid, at the prices named above. Send in your names. THE LEDGER, Chicago, Ill.

HOSTETTER'S
CELEBRATED

STOMACH
BITTERS

Sleep, Appetite and Strength

Return when Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is systematically used by a bilious dyspeptic sufferer. Moreover, since the brain sympathizes closely with the stomach and its associate organs, the liver and the bowels, as their derangement is rectified by the action of the Bitters, mental despondency produced by that derangement disappears.

For sale by all Druggists and Dealers generally.

The Purest and Best Medicine ever Made.
A combination of Hops, Buchu, Mandrake and Dandelion, with all the best and most curative properties of all other Bitters, makes the greatest Blood Purifier, Liver Regulator, and Life and Health Restoring Agent on earth.
No disease can possibly long exist where Hop Bitters are used, so varied and perfect are their operations.
They give new life and vigor to the aged and infirm.
To all whose employments cause irregularity of the bowels or urinary organs, or who require an Appetizer, Tonic and mild Stimulant, Hop Bitters are invaluable, without intoxicating.
No matter what your feelings or symptoms are what the disease or ailment is use Hop Bitters. Don't wait until you are sick but if you only feel bad or miserable, use them at once. It may save your life. It has saved hundreds.
$500 will be paid for a case they will not cure or help. Do not suffer or let your friends suffer, but use and urge them to use Hop B.
Remember, Hop Bitters is no vile, drugged drunken nostrum, but the Purest and Best Medicine ever made; the "INVALIDS FRIEND and HOPE" and no person or family should be without them.
D.I.C. is an absolute and irresistible cure for Drunkenness, use of opium, tobacco and narcotics. All sold by druggists. Send for Circular. Hop Bitters Mfg. Co., Rochester, N.Y. and Toronto, Ont.

Free—A Musical Journal. Addr. F. Brehm, Erie, Pa.

OPIUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till Cured. Dr. J. Stephens, Lebanon, Ohio.

$350 A MONTH! Agents Wanted! 75 Best-Selling Articles in the world; a sample free. JAY BRONSON, Detroit, Mich.

SALESMEN WANTED $105 A Month and Expenses selling to DEALERS. SAMPLES FREE. Send 3c. STAMP to CIGARS. [illegible] S. FOSTER & CO., Cincinnati, O.

EMPLOYMENT—LOCAL OR Travelling. State which preferred. Also SALARY per month. All EXPENSES advanced. WAGES promptly paid. SLOAN & Co. 306 George St. Cincinnati, O.

NOTICE TO CIGAR MANUFACTURERS. Fine Lancaster County Re-Sweated Tobacco, in quantities of 25 lbs. and upwards, at very moderate prices. Send for Price-List to LANCASTER TOBACCO RE-SWEATING WORKS, Lancaster, Pa.

TEAS.—Choicest in the world—Importers' prices—Largest Company in America—staple article—pleases everybody—Trade continually increasing—Agents wanted everywhere—best inducements—don't waste time—send for Circular. ROBT WELLS, 43 Vesey st., N. Y. P. O. Box 1287.

SPRAGUE Photographic views of Canonchet, the Sprague CONKLING mansion, near Narragansett Pier, with group of Mrs. Sprague and family; size, 10x12 inches; twenty other Pier views, twenty Providence views for sale at One Dollar each, postage paid. Send stamp for Circular. R. I. VIEW CO., Natick, R. I.

Printers' Outfits.
Printers about to embark in the Newspaper or Printing Business in this State will find it to their interest to address PRINTERS' EXCHANGE, Box 3032, Chicago, Ill., before purchasing outfits.

PLAYS! PLAYS! PLAYS! PLAYS! For Reading Clubs, for Amateur Theatricals, Temperance Plays, Drawing-Room Plays, Fairy Plays, Ethiopian Plays, Guide Books, Speakers, Pantomimes, Tableaux Lights, Magnesium Lights, Colored Fire, Burnt Cork, Theatrical Face Preparations, Jarley's Wax Works, Wigs, Beards and Moustaches at reduced prices. Costumes, Scenery, Charades. New catalogues sent free containing full description and prices. SAMUEL FRENCH & SON, 38 E. 14th Street, New York.

Special Offer TO INTRODUCE OUR Pure Teas. Read our sworn certificates of purity.
FREE BY EXPRESS On receipt of the money a 5 pound Caddy of our absolutely pure Tea, $2.00, $3.00 & $4.00.
Formosa TEA IMPORTING CO., 88 STATE ST.
Get up clubs and buy direct of importers. Get price-list.

CELLULOID EYE-GLASSES.
Representing the choicest-selected Tortoise-Shell and Amber. The lightest, handsomest, and strongest known. Sold by Opticians and Jewelers. Made by the SPENCER OPTICAL M'F'G CO., 13 Maiden Lane, New York.

Iowa Farms Over 1,000,000 Acres of Choice Farming Lands in the Near West.
For sale by the Iowa R.R. Land Co. Cedar Rapids, Iowa. Branch Office, 92 Randolph St., Chicago, Ills.

"Dr. Sykes' Sure Cure" FOR "CATARRH"
Cures Without Fail. Ask your Druggist for it.
Price of "Sure Cure" and "Insufflator" all complete is only $1.50. Valuable book of full information, 10 cents. Name this paper and address DR. C. R. SYKES, 169 E. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

ELECTRIC LIGHT! SENT FREE.
For NERVOUS DEBILITY, Lost Manhood and Seminal Weakness cured by MATHEWS' Improved Electro-Magnetic Belt and Absorbent Pad combined; size of Pad, 7x10 inches—four times larger than others. Do not purchase any old-style $20 Belts when you can get the latest improved for $3. "Electric Light," a 16-column paper, sent free unsealed; sealed, 2c. D. S. D. MATHEWS & CO., 461 W. Lake Street, Chicago.

LITERARY REVOLUTION
3 CENTS each, formerly $1.00 to $1.50 each: I. Carlyle's Life of Frederick the Great. II. Macaulay's Life of Robert Burns. III. Lamartine's Life of Mary Queen of Scots. IV. Thos. Hughes' Manliness of Christ. 5 CENTS each: I. Arnold's Light of Asia. II. Goldsmith's Vicar of Wakefield. III. Baron Munchausen's Travels and Surprising Adventures. IV. 6 CENTS: Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress, Illustrated. 64-page catalogue sent free. AMERICAN BOOK EXCHANGE, John B. Alden, Manager, Tribune Building, New York.

AGENTS WANTED FOR THE PICTORIAL HISTORY OF THE WORLD
Embracing full and authentic accounts of every nation of ancient and modern times, and including a history of the rise and fall of the Greek and Roman Empires, the middle ages, the crusades, the feudal system, the reformation, the discovery and settlement of the New World, etc., etc. It contains 672 fine historical engravings, and is the most complete History of the World ever published. Send for specimen pages and extra terms to Agents. Address NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO., Chicago, Ill.

The Utilizing of the Tide.

A Philadelphia engineer has invented, it is claimed, a machine by which the power of the tides can be utilized. Numerous plans have been proposed for the accomplishment of this most desirable end, but only under exceptional conditions have they been practical or economical. If the new device can harness the tide in an open channel, so as to convert any considerable portion of the vast power into working force, the inventor will rank among the great benfactors of humanity. Emerson says somewhere: Hitch your wagon to a star. A device for utilizing mechanically the fresh tides, as they sweep along our shores, would come next to that, since it would enable us, through converters and carriers of electricity, to hitch our wagons to the sun and moon.

The Difference.

"The difference," said Augustus Millwhiffles, sauntering into the library the other day—"the difference between the works of Captain Cook and the works of Beaumont and Fletcher is, I presume, that the former are by a tar and the latter by-tu-men." Before he could cackle, he was seized by the nape of the neck and thrust out of the building by an enraged professor, who said to him, as he struck the ground, "Do you know why you are like Noah's Ark?"

"No," said the bewildered Augustus.

"Well, it's because you're pitched without," said the professor, as he shut the door.

The Possibilities of American Wheat.

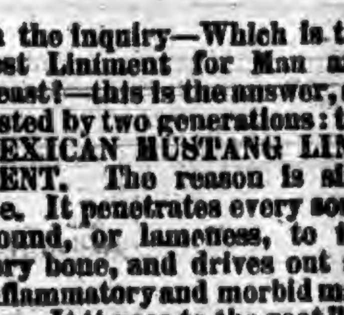
Speaking of our gigantic crops of wheat, the American Miller remarks that few people, even in our own country, realize how inexhaustible our resources are for wheat growing. The total area of lands available for wheat culture in the United States is not less than 470,000,000 acres. Our entire wheat crop of the past year would not supply seed enough to sow so vast an area of land.

$777 A YEAR and expenses to agents. Outfit Free. Address P. O. VICKERY, Augusta, Maine.

CRISTADORO'S Hair Dye is the SAFEST and BEST; it acts instantaneously, producing the most natural shades of Black or Brown; does NOT STAIN the SKIN, and is easily applied. It is a standard preparation, and a favorite on every well-appointed toilet for Lady or Gentleman. Sold by Druggists and applied by Hair-Dressers. Depot, 93 William St., New York. C. N. CRITTENTON, Agt.

NICHOLS, SHEPARD & CO
Battle Creek, Michigan,
MANUFACTURERS OF THE ONLY GENUINE
VIBRATOR
THRESHERS,
Traction and Plain Engines
and Horse-Powers.
Most Complete Thresher Factory in the World. Established 1848
32 YEARS of continuous and successful business, without change of name, management, or location, to "back up" the broad warranty given on all our goods.

STEAM-POWER SEPARATORS and Complete Steam Outfits of matchless qualities. Finest Traction Engines and Plain Engines ever seen in the American market.
A multitude of special features and improvements for 1881, together with superior qualities in construction and materials not dreamed of by other makers. Four sizes of Separators, from 6 to 12 horse capacity, for steam or horse power.
Two styles of "Mounted" Horse-Powers.
7,500,000 Feet of Selected Lumber (from three to six years air-dried) constantly on hand, from which is built the incomparable wood-work of our machinery.
TRACTION ENGINES
Strongest, most durable, and efficient ever made. 8, 10, 12 Horse Power.



Farmers and Threshermen are invited to investigate this matchless Threshing Machinery. Circulars sent free. Address
NICHOLS, SHEPARD & CO.
Battle Creek, Michigan.

If you are Interested

In the inquiry—Which is the best Liniment for Man and Beast?—this is the answer, attested by two generations: the MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT. The reason is simple. It penetrates every sore, wound, or lameness, to the very bone, and drives out all inflammatory and morbid matter. It "goes to the root" of the trouble, and never fails to cure in double quick time.

SAWING MADE EASY.
A boy 16 years old can saw off a 2-foot log in two minutes.

Our new portable Monarch Lightning Sawing Machine rivals all others. $50 cash will be given to two men who can saw as fast and easy in the old way, as one boy 16 years old can with this machine. Warranted. Circulars sent Free. Agents wanted. MONARCH LIGHTNING SAW CO., 163 Randolph St., Chicago, Ill.

St. Jacobs Oil
THE GREAT GERMAN REMEDY
FOR RHEUMATISM, NEURALGIA,
SCIATICA, LUMBAGO,
BACKACHE,
GOUT,
SORENESS
OF THE CHEST, SORE THROAT,
QUINSY,
SWELLINGS
AND SPRAINS, FROSTED FEET
AND EARS,
BURNS
AND SCALDS,
General Bodily Pains,
TOOTH, EAR
AND HEADACHE,
AND
ALL OTHER PAINS
AND ACHES.
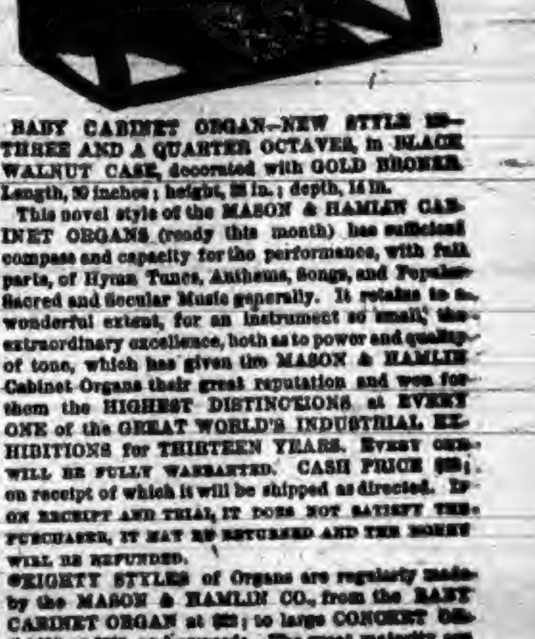
No Preparation on earth equals St. Jacobs Oil as a safe, sure, simple and cheap External Remedy. A trial entails but the comparatively trifling outlay of 50 Cents, and every one suffering with pain can have cheap and positive proof of its claims. DIRECTIONS IN ELEVEN LANGUAGES.
SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS AND DEALERS IN MEDICINE.
A. VOGELER & CO.
Baltimore, Md., U. S. A.

PISO'S CURE for Consumption is also the best cough medicine.

FRAZER AXLE GREASE.
Best in the World. Made only by the Frazer Lubricator Company, at Chicago, New York, and St. Louis. SOLD EVERYWHERE.

PATENTS
M. M. ROHRER & SON,
Attorneys at Law and Solicitors of American and Foreign Patents,
No. 509 Seventh Street, Washington, D. C.
Practice patent law in all its branches in the Patent Office and in the Courts. Special attention given to re-issues and rejected cases.

Price $22.



BABY CABINET ORGAN—NEW STYLE 109—THREE AND A QUARTER OCTAVES, in BLACK WALNUT CASE, decorated with GOLD BRONZE. Length, 30 inches; height, 25 in.; depth, 14 in.
This novel style of the MASON & HAMLIN CABINET ORGANS (ready this month) has sufficient compass and capacity for the performance, with full parts, of Hymn Tunes, Anthems, Songs, and Popular Sacred and Secular Music generally. It retains to a wonderful extent, for an instrument so small, the extraordinary excellence, both as to power and quality of tone, which has given the MASON & HAMLIN Cabinet Organs their great reputation and won for them the HIGHEST DISTINCTIONS at EVERY ONE of the GREAT WORLD'S INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITIONS for THIRTEEN YEARS. Every one will be fully warranted. CASH PRICE $22; on receipt of which it will be shipped as directed. If on receipt and trial, it does not satisfy the purchaser, it may be returned and the money will be refunded.
EIGHTY STYLES of Organs are regularly made by the MASON & HAMLIN CO., from the BABY CABINET ORGAN at $22; to large CONCERT ORGANS at $900, and upwards. The great majority are at $100 to $200 each. ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUES, CIRCULARS and PRICE LISTS free.
MASON & HAMLIN ORGAN CO.,
154 Tremont St., BOSTON; 46 East 14th St., NEW YORK; 149 Wabash Ave., CHICAGO.

The Best Field FOR EMIGRANTS.
AN IMMENSE AREA OF RAILROAD AND GOVERNMENT LANDS, OF GREAT FERTILITY, WITHIN EASY REACH OF PERMANENT MARKET, AT EXTREMELY LOW PRICES, is now offered for sale in EASTERN OREGON and EASTERN WASHINGTON TERRITORY.
These lands form part of the great GRAIN BELT of the Pacific Slope, and are within an average distance of 250 to 300 miles from Portland, where steamships and sailing vessels are directly loaded FOR ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD.
GRAIN AT PORTLAND, OREGON, COMMANDS A PRICE EQUAL TO THAT OBTAINED IN CHICAGO.
The early completion of the Northern Pacific R. R. is now assured, and guarantees to settlers cheap and quick transportation and good markets both East and West. The opening of this new overland line to the Pacific, together with the construction of the network of 700 miles of railroad by the O. R. & N. Co. in the valleys of the great Columbia and its principal tributaries, renders certain a rapid increase in the value of the lands now open to purchase and pre-emption. There is every indication of an enormous movement of population to the Columbia River region in the immediate future.
LANDS SHOW an AVERAGE YIELD of 40 BUSHELS OF WHEAT PER ACRE. No Failure of Crops ever known.
RAILROAD LANDS offered at the uniform rate of $2.50 an Acre.
CLIMATE MILD AND HEALTHY.
For pamphlet and maps, descriptive of country, its resources, climate, route of travel, rates and full information, address
A. L. STOKES,
Gen'l Eastern Pass'r Agent,
62 Clark St., Chicago, Ill.

C N U. No. 6

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS, please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

Fruit House Prices

—FOR—

Christmas and New Year.

GREAT DROP ON

Sugar, Coffee, Prunes, Teas, Etc.

All SUGARS reduced 1 cent per pound.
All COFFEES reduced 2 cents per pound.
Turkish PRUNES reduced 4 cents per pound.
TEAS reduced 10 cents per pound.
And for the Holiday trade we have

Toys, Toy Candies, French Candies, German Toys Christmas-Tree Candies, and New-Year Gifts of every Description.

Santa Claus in all His Glory.

SUGARS REDUCED 1 1-2C PER POUND.

Crushed	10c	Coffee A	9
Powdered Sugar	10c	Coffee C	8
Granulated	10c	Brown Sugar	7

COFFEES REDUCED 2C PER POUND.

Choice Rio	11c	Roasted Rio	16c
Best Rio	16c	Best	20c
Old Government Java	25c	This is the lowest coffee has sold since 1862

TEAS DOWN 10C PER POUND.

Our tea trade is simply immense No secret about it—just the same rule as in Sugars, selling at a small profit, and purchasing direct of the importer; we therefore save the profits of the speculator and wholesale merchant. This profit our customers get the benefit of, and it is from 10c to 15c per pound.

Young Hyson	25c	Good Young Hyson	40c	Best Young Hyson	60c
Imperial	40c	Good Imperial	50c	Best Imperial	65c
Gunpowder	40c	Good Gunpowder	50c	Best Gunpowder	65c
Oolong Black Tea	30c	Good Black Tea	40c	Best Oolong	60c
Uncolored Japan	30c	Good Japan	40c	Best Japan	60c

All our Teas, even the second qualities, warranted to give satisfaction, and the best can't be beat. Our 60c Tea is equal to any dollar tea sold elsewhere.

Christmas and New Year Goods.

Santa Claus Toys, Christmas Tree Candies and a thousand other things for the holidays, such as Bears Lions, Leopards, Cats, Dogs, Monkeys, Wagons, Hose Carts, Soldiers, Drums, Vases, Albums, Fancy Candles, French Candles, Fruit Candies Stick Candies 12½c per lb.; French Candies, 15c per pound: Fruit Candies 20c and 25c per pound, etc., etc.,

Fresh Oysters down 5 cents Per Can,

XXX	14c	Family	20c	S & W	25c	Select Frying	32c

Tobacco of All Kinds.

No 1 Fine Cut	75c	Good Fine Cut	40c
Choice Fine Cut	60c	Good Plug Tobacco	40c
Choice Plug Tobacco	50c	Durham	48c
Best No. 1	60c	Uncle Ned	35c
Smoking	25c

Fish Oil, 70c; Neats Foot Oil 70c; Machine Oil, 25c and 35c; Headlight Oil, 20c.

Syrups, Molasses and Maple Syrup.

Extra Golden Syrup, per gallon	45c	Maple Syrup	1
White Sugar Loaf Drips	60c	Best New Orleans	60

FOR CHRISTMAS CAKE.

Citron, per pound	25c	Orange and Lemon Peel	20c	Shelled Almonds

Nuts of all kinds [illegible]

Liquors, Wines Whiskies Scotch Ale, Dublin and London Porter.

Good new Whisky, per gallon	$1 00	California wine	$1 25
Whisky, one year old	1 25	New England Rum	1 50
Whisky, two years old	1 40	Brandy	1 50
Whisky, three years old, '75	2 50	Scotch Ale, per bottle	22
Sherry Wine	1 25	London Porter	2
Port Wine, per gallon	1 75	Doublin Stout	15

Fish, Meats, Pork, Lard, Bacon Spices, &c.

25 Cents on the Dollar you can save at least by purchasing at the

FORT WAYNE FRUIT HOUSE,
FORT WAYNE, INDIANA.

1850. PIONEER 1881

Hardware Store.

Headquarters for Stoves !

The Celebrated Buffalo N. Y. Stoves have been sold in this house for 25 years. A full stock always on hand.

—A full line of—

BUILDING HARDWARE and SHELF GOODS.
Wagon and Buggy [illegible] erial,
White Lead, Paints, Oils and Varnishes
Table and Pocket Cutlery
Silver-Plated Knives and Forks and Spoons,
Granite Iron-Ware,
Oliver Chilled and Bryan Plows.
FARMING IMPLEMENTS
BLACKSMITHS' MATERIALS,
Buffalo Scales, Sash & Doors,
WOOD AND IRON PUMPS, & DRIVE-WELL FIXTURES
All at prices to suit the times.
Call at the old stand when you want bargains.

JOHN L. DAVIS, Proprietor.

CLOCKS, CLOCKS,

WM. ELLERY
1071075
WALTHAM, MASS.

GOLD

—AND—

Silver Watches

Rodgers & Brother's PLATED WARE
SPOONS, KNIVES, and FORKS.
Rings, Necklaces, Vest Chains Ladies Gold Chains,
Castors, Everything in the Jewelry line.
Violins, Guitars,
Banjos, Accordeons,
Violin Strings.
Special attention given to repairing fine watches

All Work Warranted.

No charge for mending silver ware sold at
JOE ABRIGHT'S,
Second door north of Postoffice, Auburn, Ind

A Lecture on a Bridge.

A gentleman who very recently made a pilgrimage to the tomb of Washington was about crossing the bridge which spans the Potomac, when he came upon a negro in a wagon, with whom he bargained to be taken over for the sum of five cents. The negro desired payment in advance.

The gentleman, who had noticed a saloon near by, being suspicious that the negro was thirsty, asked why he desired his money before he commenced it.

"Dar's whisky over dar, massa," answered the negro, pointing toward the saloon, "and I'se gwoin to drop in."

"No you don't, my friend; at least, not with my money," returned the stranger, with an emphasis that half took the negro's breath away.

"But I'se very hot, massa," urged the negro.

"Yes, and by-and-by you will be very cold. When you are hot you take whisky to cool you; and when you are cool you take whisky to warm you. Is it not so?"

"Jes' so, zactly, massa. Yah! yah

"Now I know all about it my friend. I used to be a tipler myself, and it was only through God's mercy that I was not utterly ruined. As it was, it brought me and my family to poverty and disgrace. If you will drive on, I will give you ten cents instead of the five I bargained for."

After a wistful, hesitating look toward the saloon, the negro concluded to proceed. He could not always earn ten cents; but he could almost always get whisky. So he shouted, "Go 'lang, Nellie," and the beast began to move forward.

"My friend," said the stranger, "it is not at all probable that you and I will ever meet again in this world, and as we part at the edge of this bridge, I have a duty to perform. I wish you to promise me, here and now, that you will never take another drop of liquor as long as you live. Whisky stole my brains and purse away, and it will steal yours as well. It left me without friends or bread, or self-respect. But look at me now. I'm not a handsome man; but I am an honest and true one, with a respectable family, and a home where peace and plenty abide. Would this have been my condition had I continued to drink liquor? Is it yours?"

"No, massa; I'se a poor man, dat's a fact."

"How can you be otherwise than poor so long as you drink up your half-dimes before they are earned. Have you a family?"

"Yes sah."

"Well, here are your ten cents; and can you promise me to buy a loaf of bread with it for the little ones?"

"Yes, sah," drawing his sleeves across his eyes.

"And you will always think of what I have said when you cross this bridge, and when you are tempted to drink whisky?"

"Yes, sah. I never saw it dis way before."

"Good-bye, then, and God help you." The men shook hands and parted.

* * *

Blunders and Absurdities in Art.

In looking over some collections of old pictures, it is surprising what extraordinary anachronisms, blunders and absurdities are often discoverable.

In the gallery of the convent of Jesuits at Lisbon, there is a picture representing Adam in paradise, dressed in blue breeches with silver buckles, and Eve with a striped petticoat. In the distance appears a procession of Capuchin monks bearing the cross.

In a country church in Holland there is a painting representing the sacrifice of Isaac, in which the painter has depicted Abraham with a blunder-buss in his hand, ready to shoot his son. A similar edifice in Spain has a picture of the same incident, in which the patriarch is armed with a pistol.

At Windsor there is a painting by Antonio Verrio, in which the artist has introduced the portraits of Sir Godfrey Kneller, and May, the surveyor of the works of that period, all in long periwigs, as spectators of Christ healing the sick.

A painter of Toledo, having to represent the three wise men of the east coming to worship on the nativity of Christ, depicted three Arabian or Inkings, two of them white and one black, and all of them in the posture of kneeling. The position of the legs of each figure not being very distinct, he inadvertently painted three black feet for the negro king, and three also between the two white kings; and he did not discover his error until the picture was hung up in the cathedral.

In another picture of the adoration of the Magi, which was in the Houghton hall collection, the painter, Brugeel, had introduced a multitude of little figures, finished off with true Dutch exactitude, but one was accoutred in boots and spurs, and another was handing in, as a present, a little model of a Dutch ship.

The same collection contained a painting of the stoning of Stephen the martyr, by Le Sœur, in which the saint was attired in the habit of a Roman Catholic priest at high mass.

A picture by Rubens in the Luxembourg, represents the Virgin Mary in council with two cardinals and the god Mercury assisting in her deliberations.

THE ENQUIRER.

The People's Paper—The Greatest Newspaper in the West.

The Enquirer is just closing one of the most prosperous and successful years of its existence. We wish to thank the people and our patrons for their support. Your encouragement has made the task of publishing the best newspaper in the west a possibility.

We ask your aid and support for the year to come, and for the future, and pledge you that we will spare no expense to make the Enquirer for the ensuing year not only the best newspaper in the west, but the rival of any in America.

The world's news, recorded by a corps of fifteen hundred correspondents in all sections of the globe, will be found in the Enquirer every day in the year.

The history of each day's events will be faithfully and fearlessly told, exposing fraud, rebuking corruption, and upholding the right. The facts of the world belong to the people, and will be presented to them by the Enquirer free of malice and undistorted for political or personal purposes.

In short, the Enquirer will continue to be a newspaper.

In the future, as in the past, the Enquirer will be found advocating the rights of the people of the states; the rights of communities, and the fullest liberty to individuals compatible with the general order and welfare of society.

All questions and parties shall be treated with candor and fairness, but the truth shall never be perverted.

The year 1881 will be an eventful one in the history of the state and republic. The inauguration of a new administration, with new men and new purposes, are themes of the gravest interest to all citizens who love their country. Upon all these topics the Enquirer will contain the fullest and most reliable information from its corps of able and faithful correspondents.

THE WEEKLY ENQUIRER.

will be a paper that ought to be in the hands of every farmer, every mechanic, and every toiler in the land. As an agricultural paper, full of fresh, valuable and reliable information, it will be without a rival! A corps of contributors has been retained whose practical and theoretical knowledge in all branches of good farming is unsurpassed.

TERMS OF WEEKLY ENQUIRER.

For one year	$1 15
For six months	65

A free copy given to any one sending a club of seven names with $8 05.

TERMS OF DAILY ENQUIRER.

	With Sunday	With Sunday Issue.
One year	$12 00	$14 00
Six month	6 00	7 00
Three months	3 25	3 75
One month	1 25	1 50
Sunday's issue alone, per year		2 00
Any two days' issue, per year		4 00
Any three days' issue, per year		6 00

Send for sample copies.
FARAN & McLEAN, Publishers.

* * *

The Greatest Medical Discovery of the Age.

Kellogg's Columbian Oil is a powerful remedy, which can be taken internally as well as externally by the tenderest infant. It cures almost instantly, is pleasant, acting directly upon the nervous system causing a sudden bouyancy of the mind. In short, the wonderful effects of the most wonderful remedy cannot be explained in written language. A single dose inhaled and taken according to directions will convince any one that it is all that is claimed for it. Warranted to cure the following diseases: Rheumatism or Kidney Disease in any form, Headache, Toothache, Earache, Neuralgia, Sprains, Bruises, Flesh Wounds, Bunions, Burns, Corns, Spinal Affection, Colic, Cramping Pains, Cholera Morbus, Flux, Diarrhœa, Coughs, Colds, Bronchial Affection, Catarrh, and all aches and pains, external or internal. Full directions with each bottle. For sale by Casebeer & Matheny. 34 eow-1y.

Rose & Hartman, Attorneys.

Notice to Non-Residents.

State of Indiana, DeKalb county—In the DeKalb circuit court, February term, 1881. Lucinda Waydelich, Jacob Waderlich and Raymond Knisley, impleaded with others, are hereby notified that an action has been commenced against them in said court, in partition by Joseph Bell, and that the same will be heard and determined on the 2d juridical day of the next term of of said court, which commences February 28th, 1881.

Witness, the clerk of said court, this 23d day of December, 188.
53-3t. JOHN W. BAXTER, Clerk.

Administrator's Sale.

Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of an order of the DeKalb circuit court, the undersigned, administrator of the estate of Hiram Loutsenheiser, deceased, will offer for sale at public auction, on the premises on saturday, the 5th day of February, 1881, the following premises in DeKalb county, in the state of Indiana, to-wit:

A part of the south half of the north-east quarter of section thirteen (13), in township number thirty-three (33), north of range thirteen (13) east, bounded by a line commencing at a point on the east boundry line of said section, seventy rods south of the north-east corner of said south half, and running thence west on a line parallel with the south boundary line of said north-east quarter to a point equi-distant from the east and west boundary lines of said north-east quarter, thence south to the south boundary line of said south [illegible] quarter, thence east on said line to the south-east corner of said north-east quarter, thence north to the place of beginning, containing five acres more or less.

Terms: one third cash, the residue in equal payments at twelve and eighteen months, with note at interest, waiving benefit of appraisement laws, and secured by mortgage upon the real estate sold. Sale to commence at two o'clock p. m.
52-3t. HENRY HUMES, Administrator.

1881

THE STEADFAST WATCHMAN

—of—

PUBLIC INTELLIGENCE,

and Exponent of

American Democracy.

THE INDIANA

STATE SENTINEL!

Has again been enlarged. It will hereafter be a

56 Column Quarto,

Making a growth in size of over twenty per cent., or an addition of reading during the year of 416 Columns.

This makes the Sentinel the largest and most desirable weekly paper in the United States, placing it ahead of all its rivals. Every Indian should be proud of it.

Price Per Yr. Single Copy, $150

Special Rates To Clubs.

Persons wishing to become agents send for private circulars an sample copy. Liberal cash commission to agents, also first-class list of special premiums offered.

Address

SENTINEL COMPANY,
Indianapolis, Indiana

RAILROADS

Wayne Ft. & Jackson Railroad.

SHORT LINE

Time-Card takes effect Dec. 6, 1880.
(CHICAGO TIME.)
GOING NORTH.

Leave Auburn:

4:15 A. M.—From Fort Wayne 1:50 a. m.; arrive at Waterloo 4:36; Pleasant Lake, 5:25; Angola, 5:45; Fremont, 6:30; Reading 7:05; Bankers, 8:00; (connecting closely with D. H. & S. W. R.;) arriving at Hillsdale 8:10 a. m.; Ypsilanti 10:40 a. m.; Detroit 11:50 a. m.; Jonesville, 8:30; connecting with the Lake Shore & South railroad for points west. Jackson, 10:00 a. m. there connecting for points west on Michigan Cent. and Grand River valley Ry.

12:31 P. M.—From Fort Wayne 11:00 a. m.; Academie, 11:30; Huntertown, 11:55; New Era, 12:09 p. m.; Auburn Junction, 12:20; arrive at Waterloo 12:42, connecting with L. S. & M. S. train east and west; Summit, 12:52; Pleasant Lake, 1:00; Angola, 1:16; Fremont, 1:35; Reading, 2:05; Bankers, 2:10, making close connection with D. H. & S. W. R. R.; Jonesville, 2:35, (making connection with L. S. & M. S. for points east. Hillsdale, 2:50; Adrian 4:05; Toledo, 5:25 p. m.), Jackson, 3:40 p. m., making close connection for Ann Arbor, Detroit, Lansing, Ionia, Saginaw, Grand Rapids, Battle Creek, etc.

6:01 P. M.—From Fort Wayne, 5:00 p. m; New Era, 5:30 arrive at Waterloo 6:[illegible]; Summit, 6:35; Pleasant Lake 6:45; Angola, 6:57; Fremont, 7:20; Reading, 7:55; Jonesville, 8:22; Jackson, 9:35 p. m., connecting closely with Michigan Central railroad; fast train arriving at Detroit at 11:50 p. m.; Buffalo, 6:[illegible] a. m.; and New York, 10:30 p. m.; also Chicago, Grand Rapids, etc.

GOING SOUTH.

Leave Auburn:

9:17 A. M.—From Jackson 5:05 a. m; closely connecting from Chicago; Jonesville, 6:46; connecting from Chicago, Sturgis, Coldwater, etc.; Reading, 7:40; Montgomery, 7:54; Fremont, 8:12; Angola, 8:30; Pleasant Lake, 8:40; Summit, 8:52; Waterloo, 9:05; arrive at St. Johns, 9:36; New Era, 9:48; Huntertown, 9:55; Academie, 10:05; Ft. Wayne, 10:20 a. m. connecting closely with Indianapolis, Louisville, Cincinnati, etc.

3 22 P. M.—From Jackson 12:20 p. m.; (connecting from Detroit 9:35 a. m., Ann Arbor, Saginaw, Lansing, Grand Rapids, etc;) Jonesville, 1:18, close connection from Toledo; Bankers, 1:32; Reading, 1:45; Montgomery, 1:55; Fremont, 2:15; Angola, 2:40; Pleasant Lake, 2:50; Summit, 3:00; Waterloo, 3:12; arrive at Auburn Junction, 3:25; St. Johns, 3:37; New Era, 3:43; Stoner's, 3:53; Huntertown, 3:56; Academie, 4:05 Fort Wayne, 4:20, p. m.; connecting for Indianapolis, Louisville, Cincinnati, and all points east via P. F. W. and C. railroad fast express.

11:30 P. M.—From Grand Rapids 11:50 a. m.; Kalamazoo, 1:40 p. m.; Jackson, 5:40 p. m.; Jonesville, 7:25; Bankers 8:10 p. m.; from Detroit 4:05 p. m. Hillsdale 8:00 p. m.; Reading, 8 40; Fremont 9 07; Angola 10 07; Pleasant Lake, 10 28; Waterloo, 11 07; arrive at New Era 12 29 a. m.; Fort Wayne, 1.30 a. m., connecting with early trains west, south and east.

4 15 a. m. train run daily. All other trains daily except Sundays.

M. D. WOODFORD, Gen'l Supt.
H. BROMLEY, Gen'l Fr't & Pass'r Agent.

Fort Wayne, Muncie and Cin.

—AND—

White Water Railroads.

Time Card in effect November 16, 1879.

STATIONS.	GOING SOUTH. 1 Mail.	3 Express.
FORT WAYNE	10 40 am	5 40 pm
Bluffton	11 52 am	6 55 pm
Montpelier	12 21 pm	7 22 pm
Hartford	12 57 pm	8 04 pm
MUNCIE	1 48 pm	9 00 pm
Newcastle	2 30 pm
Cambridge City	3 14 pm
Connersville	3 45 pm
Cincinnati	6 55 pm
INDIANAPOLIS	6 25 pm	10 55 pm
Louisville
Terre Haute
St. Louis

STATIONS	GOING NORTH Mail.	4 Express	8 Accom.
St. Louis
Terre Haute
Louisville
Indianapolis	11 50 am	6 40 pm	4 05 am
Cincinnati	8 40 am
Connersville	11 51 am
Cambridge City	12 26 pm
New Castle	1 10 pm
Muncie	2 20 pm	9 20 pm	6 42 am
Hartford	3 00 pm	10 18 pm	7 41 am
Montpelier	3 31 pm	10 52 pm	8 10 am
Bluffton	4 10 pm	11 00 pm	9 10 am
Fort Wayne	5 10 pm	12 15 am	11 00 am

Trains Nos. 1 and 2 run through between Fort Wayne and Cincinnati without change.

Through cars are attached to trains Nos. 1 and and run between Fort Wayne and Indianapolis, via Muncie.

All trains daily except Sunday.

Trains run on Columbus time.

GEO. W. MILLER, Act'g Gen. Tick. Ag't. W. W. WORTHINGTON, Gen. Supt.

WABASH St. LOUIS AND PACIFIC R'Y.

The Great Through Car Route to

Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa.

TRAINS LEAVE AUBURN.

EAST.		WEST.
Mail	12:34 p. m.	Mail	3:20 p. m.
Accom'n	12:57 a. m	Accom'n	6:57 a. m.
Local F't	4:35 p. m.	Local F't	6:56 a. m.
M'l tr'n arrives at Butler	1:00 p. m.	M'l tr'n arr. at Logansport	6:46 p. m.

No Change of Cars From

TOLEDO OR FT WAYNE TO St. Louis, Kansas City St Joseph, Hannibal, Quincy and Atchison.

No Change of Cars From

St. Louis To Kansas City, St. Joseph Omaha and Ottumwa.

Remember that the

Wabash, St Louis and Pacific

Has No Emigrant Cars.

Everybody rides in Elegant Parlor Coaches—nicely upholstered and carpeted. Baggage checked through to destination.

☞ Don't forget the above inducements given only by this great line, and when you go

West Southwest. North or Northw'st

Don't accept any icket unless t reads over the

Wabash, St. Louis & Pacific R'y.

For Routes, Rates, Elegant Maps of the Western Country, and any information you may desire in regard to going West, please address,

J. C. GAULT, Gen. Manager, H. C. TOWNSEND, Gen. Passenger Agent, St. Louis or
LOUIS JOHNSON, Ticket Ag't, Auburn, Ind

Baltimore & Ohio R. R

—o—

CHICAGO DIVISION.

—o—

IN EFFECT FROM JUNE 20, 1880.

GOING EAST.

STATIONS.	No. 1 Fast.	No. 5 Ex.	No. 4 Mail
Chicago lv.	6 15pm		6 10am
Walkerton Junction	8 10		10 40
Milford Junction	9 00		12 05pm
Syracuse	*		12 16
Cromwell	*		12 30
Albion	*		12 50
Avilla	9 50		1 10
Garrett	10 20	3 55am	1 40
Auburn Junction	10 27	4 03	1 48
St. Joe	*	4 25	2 10
Hicksville	*	4 48	2 28
Defiance	11 25	5 27	3 10
Deshler	12 25am	6 28	4 08
Fostoria	1 08	7 25	4 58
Tiffin	1 30	7 54	5 26
Chicago Junction ar.	2 15	9 00	6 10

GOING WEST.

STATIONS.	No. 10 Mail.	No 2 Ex.	No. 8 Fast.
Chicago Junction lv	9 05am	6 30pm	11 35am
Tiffin	10 01	7 58	12 00 m
Fostoria	10 23	8 25	12 27pm
Deshler	11 44	9 24	1 02
Defiance	12 45pm	10 32	1 54
Hicksville	1 52	11 20	*
St. Joe	2 10	11 32	*
Auburn Junction	2 38	11 52	3 08
Garrett	2 40	12 05am	3 25
Avilla		12 20	3 35
Albion		12 45	3 55
Cromwell		1 10	4 15
Syracuse		1 30	4 30
Milford Junction		1 40	4 38
Walkerton Junction		2 04	5 40
Chicago ar.		6 10	8 20

C. H. HUDSON, Superintendent Trans., Ohio Division, Chicago, Ill.
J. J MARTIN, Agent, Auburn Junction.
* Trains do not stop.

Pittsburg, Ft. W. & C. R. R

ON AND AFTER JUNE 27, 1880,

Condensed time card.

GOING WEST.

Stations.	No. 1, Fast Ex.	No. 7, Pacific Ex	No. 3, Night Ex.	No. 5, Limited Ex.
Pittsburgh lv.	12 06	9 15am	1 50pm	7 30pm
Rochester	1 15	10 10	2 55
Alliance	3 30	1 20pm	5 35	10 25
Orrville	5 00	3 18	7 13
Mansfield	6 55	5 40	9 20
Crestline ar.	7 26	6 15	9 45	1 40am
Crestline lv.	7 50am	6 35pm	9 55pm	1 15am
Forest	9 25	8 18	11 28
Lima	10 40	9 30	12 32am
Ft. Wayne	1 15pm	12 05am	2 40	5 38
Plymouth	3 46	2 50	4 55	7 15
Chicago ar.	7 00	6 00	8 00	9 40

GOING EAST

Stations.	No. 2, Morn'g Ex	No. 6, N. Y. Ex.	No. 4, At. Ex.	No. 8, Lim.
Chicago lv.	8 00am	3 30pm	5 15pm	9 40pm
Plymouth	11 53		9 25	2 56am
Ft. Wayne	2 35pm	8 35	12 15am	6 36
Lima	4 36		2 36	8 55
Forest	5 43		2 55	10 08
Crestline ar.	7 10	12 35	5 30	11 45
Crestline lv.	7 30pm	12 40pm	6 40am	12 05pm
Mansfield	8 03	1 15am	7 20	12 35
Orrville	10 06	357	9 23	2 26
Alliance	11 48	4 25	11 25	4 00
Rochester	2 04am		2 10pm	6 22
Pittsburgh ar.	3 15	7 30	3 35	7 30

Nos 3 and 6, and 5 and 4 run daily; No. 1 leaves Pittsburgh daily, except Saturday. No. 8 leaves Chicago daily except Saturday. All others daily except Sunday.

F. R. MYERS,
Gen. Pass. and Ticket Agent.

Money to Loan.

In sums and on terms to suit all. Apply at Guy Plumb's law office. Low rates of interest.
-3m. C. N. HASKALL.

* * *

Agents.

All persons, either ladies or gentlemen, who desire good, profitable employment, and the pleasantest kind of work at their own homes, should send address to J. J. KENNEDY,
51-4t. Willimantic, Conn.

Recorders Office

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Devoted to the Interests of the Democratic Party and to the Collection of Local and General News.

Volume 11. AUBURN, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, FEBRUARY 3, 1881. Number 5.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY BY

BARNS & HUSSELMAN.

HOTELS.

Central House,

TENTH STREET. EAST OF MAIN. GOOD Sample rooms, and low rates.
T. D. Gross, Prop'r Auburn, Ind.

BUTT'S HOTEL.

FREE OMNIBUS TO AND FROM ALL trains. Good sample rooms on first floor. John Butt, Proprietor. Waterloo, Indiana.

ATTORNEY.

W. H. Dills,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW AND NOTARY PUBlic. Special attention given to all classes of legal business. Office second floor in Cool's block, opposite north side of public square Auburn, Ind.

D. D. Moody,

ATTORNEY AT LAW AND NOTARY public. Also Prosecuting attorney for DeKalb County. Office in Court House. Auburn, Ind.

Wm. H. Leas,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW AND NOTARY PUBlic, will give prompt attention to collections Also represents first class insurance companies. Office over Willis & Co's. book store, Waterloo, Indiana.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Thomas Baldock,

PROPRIETOR of Stuart's patent compound Asphalt roofing, for DeKalb county, Ind., manufactured at Charlotte, Michigan. Consult or address at Auburn, Ind.

BUSINESS CARDS.

Cards not exceeding five lines each will be inserted under this head for $5.00 per annum For each additional line 50 cents extra will be charged.

PHYSICIANS.

J. J. Littlefield,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. OFFICE AND residence on 10th St., opposite S. W. Ralston's. All calls promptly attended to, day or night. Auburn, Indiana. 28 ly

OFFICIAL DIRECTORY.

COUNTY OFFICERS.

John W. Baxter	Clerk.
A. S. Leas	Sheriff.
Albert Robbins	Auditor.
L. J. Miller	Treasurer.
Michael Boland	Recorder.
A. P. Foltz	Surveyor.
